[64] These sought the pedigree of their company, and it was not found, and they were removed as polluted from the priesthood. [65] And the Athersastha said, that they should not eat of the most holy things, until a priest should stand up to give light.

[66] And all the congregation was about forty-two thousand three hundred and sixty, [67] besides their men-servants and their maid-servants: these were seven thousand three hundred and thirty seven: and the singing-men and singing-women, two hundred and forty-five. [68] 69 Two thousand seven hundred asses.

[70] And part of the heads of families gave into the treasury to Neemias for the work a thousand pieces of gold, fifty bowls, and thirty priests' garments. [71] And some of the heads of families gave into the treasuries of the work, twenty thousand pieces of gold, and two thousand three hundred pounds of silver. [72] And the rest of the people gave twenty thousand pieces of gold, and two thousand two hundred pounds of silver, and sixty-seven priests' garments.

[73] And the priests, and Levites, and porters, and singers, and some of the people, and the Nathinim, and all Israel, dwelt in their cities.

[1] And the seventh month arrived, and the children of Israel were settled in their cities; and all the people were gathered as one man to the broad place before the water-gate, and they told Esdras the scribe to bring the book of the law of Moses, which the Lord commanded Israel. [2] So Esdras the priest brought the law before the congregation both of men and women, and every one who had understanding was present to hearken, on the first day of the seventh month. [3] And he read in it from the time of sun-rise to the middle of the day, before the men and the women; and they understood it, and the ears of all the people were attentive to the book of the law. [4] And Esdras the scribe stood on a wooden stage, and there stood next to him Mattathias, and Samaeas, and Ananias, and Urias, and Chelcia, and Massia, on his right hand; and on his left Phadaeas, and Misael, and Melchias, and Asom, and Asabadma, and Zacharias, and Mesollam. [5] And Esdras opened the book before all the people, for he was above the people; and it came to pass when he had opened it, that all the people stood. [6] And Esdras blessed the Lord, the great God: and all the people answered, and said, Amen, lifting up their hands: and they bowed down and worshipped the Lord with their face to the ground. [7] And Jesus and Banaias and Sarabias instructed the people in the law, and the people stood in their place. [8] And they read in the book of the law of God, and Esdras taught, and instructed them distinctly in the knowledge of the Lord, and the people understood the law in the reading.

[9] And Neemias, and Esdras the priest and scribe, and the Levites, and they that instructed the people, spoke and said to all the people, It is a holy day to the Lord our God; do not mourn, nor weep. For all the people wept when they heard the words of the law. [10] And the governor said to them, Go, eat the fat, and drink the sweet, and send portions to them that have nothing; for the day is holy to our Lord: and faint not, for the Lord is our strength. [11] And the Levites caused all the people to be silent, saying, Be silent, for it is a holy day, and despond not. [12] So all the people departed to eat, and to drink, and to send portions, and to make great mirth, for they understood the words which he made known to them.

[13] And on the second day the heads of families assembled with all the people, also the priests and Levites, to Esdras the scribe, to attend to all the words of the law. [14] And they found written in the law which the Lord commanded Moses, that the children of Israel should dwell in booths, in the feast in the seventh month: [15] and that they should sound with trumpets in all their cities, and in Jerusalem. And Esdras said, Go forth to the mountain, and bring branches of olive, and branches of cypress trees, and branches of myrtle, and branches of palm trees, and branches of every thick tree, to make booths, according to that which was written. [16] And the people went forth, and brought them, and made booths for themselves, each one upon his roof, and in their courts, and in the courts of the house of God, and in the streets of the city, and as far as the gate of Ephraim. ^[17] And all the congregation who had returned from the captivity, made booths, and dwelt in booths: for the children of Israel had not done so from the days of Jesus the son of Naue until that day: and there was great joy.

^[18] And Esdras read in the book of the law of God daily, from the first day even to the last day: and they kept the feast seven days; and on the eighth day a solemn assembly, according to the ordinance.

Chapter 9

[1] Now on the twenty-fourth day of this month the children of Israel assembled with fasting, and in sackcloths, and with ashes on their head. [2] And the children of Israel separated themselves from every stranger, and stood and confessed their sins, and the iniquities of their fathers. [3] And they stood in their place, and read in the book of the law of the Lord their god: and they confessed their sins to the Lord, and worshipped the Lord their God. [4] And there stood upon the stairs, of the Levites, Jesus, and the sons of Cadmiel, Sechenia the son of Sarabia, sons of Choneni; and they cried with a loud voice to the Lord their God. [5] And the Levites, Jesus and Cadmiel, said, Rise up, bless the Lord our God forever and ever: and let them bless thy glorious name, and exalt it with all blessing and praise.

[6] And Esdras said, Thou art the only true Lord; thou madest the heaven, and the heaven of heavens, and all their array, the earth, and all things that are in it, the seas, and all things in them; and thou quickenest all things, and the hosts of heaven worship thee.

[7] Thou art the Lord God, thou didst choose Abram, and broughtest him out of the land of the Chaldeans, and gavest him the name of Abraam: [8] and thou foundest his heart faithful before thee, and didst make a covenant with him to give to him and to his seed the land of the Chananites, and the Chettites, and Amorites, and Pherezites, and Jebusites, and Gergesites; and thou hast confirmed thy words, for thou art righteous.

[9] And thou sawest the affliction of our fathers in Egypt, and thou heardest their cry at the Red Sea. [10] And thou shewedst signs and wonders in Egypt, on Pharaoh and all his servants, and on all the people of his land: for thou knowest that they behaved insolently against them: and thou madest thyself a name, as at this day. [11] And thou didst cleave the sea before them, and they passed through the midst of the sea on dry land; and thou didst cast into the deep them that were about to pursue them, as a stone in the mighty water.

[12] And thou guidedst them by day by a pillar of cloud, and by night by a pillar of fire, to enlighten for them the way wherein they should walk. [13] Also thou camest down upon mount Sina, and thou spakest to them out of heaven, and gavest them right judgments, and laws of truth, ordinances, and good commandments. [14] And thou didst make known to them thy holy sabbath; thou didst enjoin upon them commandments, and ordinances, and a law, by the hand of thy servant Moses. [15] And thou gavest them bread from heaven for their food, and thou broughtest them forth water from a rock for their thirst; and thou badest them go in to inherit the land over which thou stretchedst out thy hand to give it them.

[16] But they and our fathers behaved proudly, and hardened their neck, and did not hearken to thy commandments, [17] and refused to listen, and remembered not thy wonders which thou wroughtest with them; and they hardened their neck, and appointed a leader to return to their slavery in Egypt: but thou, O God, art merciful and compassionate, long-suffering, and abundant in mercy, and thou didst not forsake them. [18] And still farther they even made to themselves a molten calf, and said, These are the gods that brought us up out of Egypt: and they wrought great provocations.

[19] Yet thou in thy great compassions didst not forsake them in the wilderness: thou didst not turn away from them the pillar of the cloud by day, to guide them in the way, nor the pillar of fire by night, to enlighten for them the way wherein they should walk. [20] And thou gavest thy good Spirit to instruct them, and thou didst not withhold thy manna from their mouth, and gavest them water in their thirst. [21] And thou didst sustain them forty years in the wilderness; thou didst not allow anything to fail them: their garments did not wax old, and their feet were not bruised.

[22] Moreover, thou gavest them kingdoms, and didst divide nations to them: and they inherited the land of Seon king of Esebon, and the land of Og king of Basan. [23] And thou didst multiply their children as the stars of heaven, and broughtest them into the land of which thou spakest to their fathers; [24] And they inherited it: and thou didst destroy from before them the dwellers in the land of the Chananites, and thou gavest into their hands them and their kings, and the nations of the land, to do unto them as it pleased them. [25] And they took lofty cities, and inherited houses full of all good things, wells dug, vineyards, and oliveyards, and every fruit tree in abundance: so they ate, and were filled, and grew fat, and rioted in thy great goodness. [26] But they turned, and revolted from thee, and cast thy law behind their backs; and they slew thy prophets, who testified against them to turn them back to thee, and they wrought great provocations. [27] Then thou gavest them into the hand of them that afflicted them, and they did afflict them: and they cried to thee in the time of their affliction, and thou didst hear them from thy heaven, and in thy great compassions gavest them deliverers, and didst save them from the hand of them that afflicted them.

[28] But when they rested, they did evil again before thee: so thou leftest them in the hands of their enemies, and they ruled over them: and they cried again to thee, and thou heardest them from heaven, and didst deliver them in thy great compassions. [29] And thou didst testify against them, to bring them back to thy law: but they hearkened not, but sinned against thy commandments and thy judgments, which if a man do, he shall live in them; and they turned their back, and hardened their neck, and heard not. [30] Yet thou didst bear long with them many years, and didst testify to them by thy Spirit by the hand of thy prophets: but they hearkened not; so thou gavest them into the hand of the nations of the land. [31] But thou in thy many mercies didst not appoint them to destruction, and didst not forsake them; for thou art strong, and merciful, and pitiful.

[32] And now, O our God, the powerful, the great, the mighty, and the terrible, keeping thy covenant and thy mercy, let not all the trouble seem little in thy sight which has come upon us, and our kings, and our princes, and our priests, and our prophets, and our fathers, and upon all thy people, from the days of the kings of Assur even to this day. [33] But thou art righteous in all the things that come upon us; for thou hast wrought faithfully, but we have greatly sinned. [34] And our kings, and our princes, and our priests, and our fathers, have not performed thy law, and have not given heed to thy commandments, and have not kept thy testimonies which thou didst testify to them. [35] And they did not serve thee in thy kingdom, and in thy great goodness which thou gavest to them, and in the large and fat land which thou didst furnish before them, and they turned not from their evil devices. [36] Behold, we are servants this day, and as for the land which thou gavest to our fathers to eat the fruit of it and the good things of it, behold, we are servants upon it: [37] and its produce is abundant for the kings whom thou didst appoint over us because of our sins; and they have dominion over our bodies, and over our cattle, as it pleases them, and we are in great affliction.

[38] And in regard to all these circumstances we make a covenant, and write it, and our princes, our Levites, and our priests, set their seal to it.

Chapter 10

[1] And over them that sealed were Neemias the Artasastha, son of Achalia, and Zedekias, [2] the son of Araea, and Azaria, and Jeremia, [3] Phasur, Amaria, Melchia, [4] Attus, Sebani, Maluch, [5] Iram, Meramoth, Abdia, [6] Daniel, Gannathon, Baruch, [7] Mesulam, Abia, Miamin, [8] Maazia, Belgai, Samaia; these were priests.

[9] And the Levites; Jesus the son of Azania, Banaiu of the sons of Enadad, Cadmiel [10] and his brethren, Sabania, Oduia, Calitan, Phelia, Anan, [11] Micha, Roob, Asebias, [12] Zacchor, Sarabia, Sebania, [13] Odum, the sons of Banuae.

[14] The heads of the people; Phoros, Phaath Moab, Elam, Zathuia, [15] the sons of Bani, Asgad, Bebai, [16] Adania, Bagoi, Hedin [17] Ater, Ezekia, Azur, [18] Oduia, Esam, Besi, [19] Ariph, Anathoth, Nobai, [20] Megaphes, Mesullam, Ezir, [21] Mesozebel, Saduc, Jeddua, [22] Phaltia, Anan, Anaea, [23] Osee, Anania, Asub, [24] Aloes, Phalai, Sobec, [25] Reum, Essabana, Maasia, [26] and Aia, Aenan, Enam, [27] Maluch, Eram, Baana.

[28] And the rest of the people, the priests, the Levites, the porters, the singers, the Nathinim, and every one who drew off from the nations of the land to the law of God, their wives, their sons, their daughters, every one who had knowledge and understanding, [29] were urgent with their brethren, and bound them under a curse, and entered into a curse, and into an oath, to walk in the law of God, which was given by the hand of Moses, the servant of God; to keep and to do all the commandments of the Lord, and his judgments, and his ordinances; [30] and that we will not, they said, give our daughters to the people of the land, nor will we take their daughters to our sons. [31] And as for the people of the land who bring wares and all manner of merchandise to sell on the sabbath-day, we will not buy of them on the sabbath or on the holy day: and we will leave the seventh year, and the exaction of every debt.

[32] And we will impose ordinances upon ourselves, to levy on ourselves the third part of a didrachm yearly for the service of the house of our God; [33] the shewbread, and the continual meat-offering, and for the continual whole-burnt-offering, of the sabbaths, of the new moon, for the feast, and for the holy things, and the sin-offerings, to make atonement for Israel, and for the works of the house of our God.

[34] And we cast lots for the office of wood-bearing, we the priests, and the Levites, and the people, to bring wood into the house of our God, according to the house of our families, at certain set times, year by year, to burn on the altar of the Lord our God, as it is written in the law: [35] and to bring the first-fruits of our land, and the first-fruits of the fruit of every tree, year by year, into the house of the Lord: [36] the first-born of our sons, and of our cattle, as it is written in the law, and the first-born of our herds and of our flocks, to bring to the house of our God, for the priests that minister in the house of our God. [37] And the first-fruits of our corn, and the fruit of every tree, of wine, and of oil, will we bring to the priests to the treasury of the house of God; and a tithe of our land to the Levites: for the Levites themselves shall receive tithes in all the cities of the land we cultivate. ^[38] And the priest the son of Aaron shall be with the Levites in the tithe of the Levite: and the Levites shall bring up the tenth part of their tithe to the house of our God, into the treasuries of the house of God. ^[39] For the children of Israel and the children of Levi shall bring into the treasuries the first-fruits of the corn, and wine, and oil; and there are the holy vessels, and the priests, and the ministers, and the porters, and the singers: and we will not forsake the house of our God.

[1] And the chiefs of the people dwelt in Jerusalem: and the rest of the people cast lots, to bring one of every ten to dwell in Jerusalem the holy city, and nine parts in the other cities. [2] And the people blessed all the men that volunteered to dwell in Jerusalem.

[3] Now these are the chiefs of the province who dwelt in Jerusalem, and in the cities of Juda; every man dwelt in his possession in their cities: Israel, the priests, and the Levites, and the Nathinim, and the children of the servants of Solomon.

[4] And there dwelt in Jerusalem some of the children of Juda, and of the children of Benjamin. Of the children of Juda; Athaia son of Azia, the son of Zacharia, the son of Samaria, the son of Saphatia, the son of Maleleel, and some of the sons of Phares; [5] and Maasia son of Baruch, son of Chalaza, son of Ozia, son of Adaia, son of Joarib, son of Zacharias, son of Seloni. [6] All the sons of Phares who dwelt in Jerusalem were four hundred and sixty-eight men of might. [7] And these were the children of Benjamin; Selo son of Mesulam, son of Joad, son of Phadaia, son of Coleia, son of Maasias, son of Ethiel, son of Jesia. [8] And after him Gebe, Seli, nine hundred and twenty-eight. [9] And Joel son of Zechri was overseer over them: and Juda son of Asana was second in the city.

[10] Of the priests: both Jadia son of Joarib, and Jachin. [11] Saraia, son of Elchia, son of Mesulam, son of Sadduc, son of Marioth, son of Ætoth, was over the house of God. [12] And their brethren doing the work of the house were eight hundred and twenty-two: and Adaia son of Jeroam, son of Phalalia, son of Amasi, son of Zacharia, son of Phassur, son of Melchia, [13] and his brethren, chiefs of families, two hundred and forty-two: and Amasia son of Esdriel, son of Mesarimith, son of Emmer, [14] and his brethren, mighty men of war, a hundred and twenty-eight: and their overseer was Badiel son of one of the great men.

[15] And of the Levites; Samaia, son of Esricam, [16] 17 Matthanias son of Micha, and Jobeb son of Samui, [18] two hundred and eighty-four.

[19] And the porters; Acub, Telamin, and their brethren, a hundred and seventy-two.

[20] 21 [22] And the overseer of the Levites was the son of Bani, son of Ozi, son of Asabia, the son of Micha. Of the sons of Asaph the singers some were over the house of God, [23] For so was the king's commandment concerning them.

[24] And Phathaia son of Baseza was in attendance on the king in every matter for the people, [25] and with regard to villages in their country district: and some of the children of Juda dwelt in Cariatharhoc, [26] and in Jesu, [27] and in Bersabee: [28] 29 [30] And their villages were Lachis and her hands: and they pitched their tents in Bersabee. [31] And the children of Benjamin dwelt from

Gabaa to Machmas. ^[32] 33 ^[34] 35 ^[36] And of the Levites there were divisions to Juda and to Benjamin.

Chapter 12

[1] Now these are the priests and the Levites that went up with Zorobabel the son of Salathiel and Jesus: Saraia, Jeremiah, Esdra, [2] Amaria, Maluch, [3] Sechenia. [4] 5 [6] 7 These were the chiefs of the priests, and their brethren in the days of Jesus.

[8] And the Levites were, Jesus, Banui, Cadmiel, Sarabia, Jodae, Matthanias: he was over the bands, [9] (8A) and his brethren were appointed to the daily courses. [10] And Jesus begot Joakim, and Joakim begot Eliasib, and Eliasib begot Jodae, [11] and Jodae begot Jonathan, and Jonathan begot Jadu. [12] And in the days of Joakim, his brethren the priests and the heads of families were, belonging to Saraia, Amaria; to Jeremiah, Anania; [13] to Esdra, Mesulam; to Amaria, Joanan; [14] to Amaluch, Jonathan; to Sechenia, Joseph; [15] to Are, Mannas; to Marioth, Elcai; [16] to Adadai, Zacharia; to Ganathoth, Mesolam; [17] to Abia, Zechri; to Miamin, Maadai; to Pheleti, one; [18] to Balgas, Samue; to Semia, Jonathan; [19] to Joarib, Matthanai; to Edio, Ozi; [20] to Salai, Callai; to Amec, Abed; [21] to Elkia, Asabias; to Jedeiu, Nathanael.

[22] The Levites in the days of Eliasib, Joadai, and Joa, and Joanan, and Idua, were recorded heads of families: also the priests, in the reign of Darius the Persian. [23] And the sons of Levi, heads of families, were written in the book of the chronicles, even to the days of Joanan son of Elisue. [24] And the heads of the Levites were Asabia, and Sarabia, and Jesu: and the sons of Cadmiel, and their brethren over against them, were to sing hymns of praise, according to the commandment of David the man of God, course by course.

[25] When I gathered the porters, [26] it was in the days of Joakim son of Jesus, son of Josedec, and in the days of Neemia: and Esdras the priest was scribe.

[27] And at the dedication of the wall of Jerusalem they sought the Levites in their places, to bring them to Jerusalem, to keep a feast of dedication and gladness with thanksgiving, and they sounded cymbals with songs, and had psalteries and harps. [28] And the sons of the singers were assembled both from the neighbourhood round about to Jerusalem, and from the villages, [29] and from the country: for the singers built themselves villages by Jerusalem. [30] And the priests and the Levites purified themselves, and they purified the people, and the porters, and the wall.

[31] And they brought up the princes of Juda on the wall, and they appointed two great companies for thanksgiving, and they passed on the right hand on the wall of the dung-gate. [32] And after them went Osaia, and half the princes of Juda, [33] and Azarias, and Esdras, and Mesollam, [34] and Juda, and Benjamin, and Samaias and Jeremiah. [35] And some of the sons of the priest with trumpets, Zacharias son of Jonathan, son of Samaias, son of Matthanias, son of Michaia, son of Zacchur, son of Asaph: [36] and his brethren, Samaia, and Oziel, Gelol, Jama, Aia, Nathanael, and Juda, Anani, to praise with the hymns of David the man of God; (37) and Esdras the scribe was before them, [37] at the gate, to praise before them, and they went up by the steps of the city of David, in the ascent of the wall, above the house of David, even to the water-gate [38] 39 of Ephraim, and to the fish-gate, and by the tower of Anameel, and as far as the sheep-gate. [40] 41 [42] And the singers were heard, and were numbered. [43] And in that day they offered great sacrifices, and rejoiced; for God had made them very joyful: and their wives and their children rejoiced: and the joy in Jerusalem was heard from afar off.

[44] And in that day they appointed men over the treasures, for the treasures, the first-fruits, and the tithes, and for the chiefs of the cities who were assembled among them, to furnish portions for the priests and Levites: for there was joy in Juda over the priests and over the Levites that waited. [45] And they kept the charges of their God, and the charges of the purification, and ordered the singers and the porters, according to the commandments of David and his son Solomon. [46] For in the days of David Asaph was originally first of the singers, and they sang hymns and praise to God. [47] And all Israel in the days of Zorobabel, and in the days of Neemias, gave the portions of the singers and the porters, a daily rate: and consecrated them to the Levites: and the Levites consecrated them to the sons of Aaron.

[1] In that day they read in the book of Moses in the ears of the people; and it was found written in it, that the Ammonites and Moabites should not enter into the congregation of God for ever; [2] because they met not the children of Israel with bread and water, but hired Balaam against them to curse them: but our God turned the curse into a blessing. [3] And it came to pass, when they heard the law, that they were separated, even every alien in Israel.

[4] And before this time Eliasib the priest dwelt in the treasury of the house of our God, connected with Tobias; [5] and he made himself a great treasury, and there they were formerly in the habit of bestowing the offerings, and the frankincense, and the vessels, and the tithe of the corn, and the wine, and the oil, the ordered portion of the Levites, and singers, and porters; and the first-fruits of the priests. [6] But in all this time I was not in Jerusalem; for in the thirty-second year of Arthasastha king of Babylon I came to the king, and after a certain time I made my request of the king; [7] and I came to Jerusalem, and I understood the mischief which Eliasib had done in the case of Tobias, in making for him a treasury in the court of the house of God.

[8] And it appeared very evil to me: so I cast forth all the furniture of the house of Tobias from the treasury. [9] And I gave orders, and they purified the treasuries: and I restored thither the vessels of the house of God, and the offerings, and the frankincense.

[10] And I understood that the portion of the Levites had not been given: and they had fled every one to his field, the Levites and the singers doing the work. [11] And I strove with the commanders, and said, Wherefore has the house of God been abandoned? and I assembled them, and set them in their place. [12] And all Juda brought a tithe of the wheat and the wine and the oil into the treasuries, [13] to the charge of Selemia the priest, and Sadoc the scribe, and Phadaea of the Levites: and next to them was Anan the son of Zacchur, son of Matthanias; for they were accounted faithful: it was their office to distribute to their brethren.

[14] Remember me, O God, in this, and let not my kindness be forgotten which I have wrought in regard to the house of the Lord God.

[15] In those days I saw in Juda men treading wine-presses on the sabbath, and carrying sheaves, and loading asses with both wine, and grapes, and figs, and every kind of burden, and bringing them into Jerusalem on the sabbath-day: [16] and I testified in the day of their sale. Also their dwelt in it men bringing fish, and selling every kind of merchandise to the children of Juda and in Jerusalem on the sabbath. [17] And I strove with the free children of Juda, and said to them, What is this evil thing which ye do, and profane the sabbath-day? [18] Did not your fathers thus, and our God brought upon them and upon us and upon this city all these evils? and do ye bring additional wrath upon Israel by profaning the sabbath?

[19] And it came to pass, when the gates were set up in Jerusalem, before the sabbath, that I spoke, and they shut the gates; and I gave orders that they should not be opened till after the sabbath: and I set some of my servants at the gates, that none should bring in burdens on the sabbath-day. [20] So all the merchants lodged, and carried on traffic without Jerusalem once or twice. [21] Then I testified against them, and said to them, Why do ye lodge in front of the wall? if ye do so again, I will stretch out my hand upon you. From that time they came not on the sabbath. [22] and I told the Levites who were purifying themselves, and came and kept the gates, that they should sanctify the sabbath-day.

Remember me, O God, for these things, and spare me according to the abundance of thy mercy.

[23] And in those days I saw the Jews who had married women of Ashdod, of Ammon, and of Moab: [24] and their children spoke half in the language of Ashdod, and did not know how to speak in the Jewish language. [25] And I strove with them and cursed them; and I smote some of them, and plucked off their hair, and made them swear by God, saying, Ye shall not give your daughters to their sons, and ye shall not take of their daughters to your sons. [26] Did not Solomon king of Israel sin thus? though there was no king like him among many nations, and he was beloved of God, and God made him king over all Israel; yet strange women turned him aside. [27] So we will not hearken to you to do all this evil, to break covenant with our God, — to marry strange wives.

[28] and Elisub the high priest, one of the sons of Joada, being son-in-law of Sanaballat the Uranite, I chased him away from me. [29] Remember them, O God, for their false connection with the priesthood, and the breaking the covenant of the priesthood, and for defiling the Levites.

[30] So I purged them from all foreign connection, and established courses for the priests and the Levites, every man according to his work. [31] And the offering of the wood-bearers was at certain set times, and in the times of the first-fruits. Remember me, O our God, for good.

Tobit

Chapter 1

[1] The book of the words of Tobit, son of Tobiel, the son of Ananiel, the son of Aduel, the son of Gabael, of the seed of Asael, of the tribe of Nephthali; [2] Who in the time of Enemessar king of the Assyrians was led captive out of Thisbe, which is at the right hand of that city, which is called properly Nephthali in Galilee above Aser. [3] I Tobit have walked all the days of my life in the ways of truth and justice, and I did many almsdeeds to my brethren, and my nation, who came with me to Nineve, into the land of the Assyrians. [4] And when I was in mine own country, in the land of Israel being but young, all the tribe of Nephthali my father fell from the house of Jerusalem, which was chosen out of all the tribes of Israel, that all the tribes should sacrifice there, where the temple of the habitation of the most High was consecrated and built for all ages.

[5] Now all the tribes which together revolted, and the house of my father Nephthali, sacrificed unto the heifer Baal. [6] But I alone went often to Jerusalem at the feasts, as it was ordained unto all the people of Israel by an everlasting decree, having the firstfruits and tenths of increase, with that which was first shorn; and them gave I at the altar to the priests the children of Aaron. [7] The first tenth part of all increase I gave to the sons of Aaron, who ministered at Jerusalem: another tenth part I sold away, and went, and spent it every year at Jerusalem: [8] And the third I gave unto them to whom it was meet, as Debora my father's mother had commanded me, because I was left an orphan by my father.

[9] Furthermore, when I was come to the age of a man, I married Anna of mine own kindred, and of her I begat Tobias. [10] And when we were carried away captives to Nineve, all my brethren and those that were of my kindred did eat of the bread of the Gentiles. [11] But I kept myself from eating; [12] Because I remembered God with all my heart. [13] And the most High gave me grace and favour before Enemessar, so that I was his purveyor.

[14] And I went into Media, and left in trust with Gabael, the brother of Gabrias, at Rages a city of Media ten talents of silver. [15] Now when Enemessar was dead, Sennacherib his son reigned in his stead; whose estate was troubled, that I could not go into Media.

[16] And in the time of Enemessar I gave many alms to my brethren, and gave my bread to the hungry, [17] And my clothes to the naked: and if I saw any of my nation dead, or cast about the walls of Nineve, I buried him. [18] And if the king Sennacherib had slain any, when he was come, and fled from Judea, I buried them privily; for in his wrath he killed many; but the bodies were not found, when they were sought for of the king.

[19] And when one of the Ninevites went and complained of me to the king, that I buried them, and hid myself; understanding that I was sought for to be put to death, I withdrew myself for fear. [20] Then all my goods were forcibly taken away, neither was there any thing left me, beside my wife Anna and my son Tobias. [21] And there passed not five and fifty days, before two of his sons killed him, and they fled into the mountains of Ararath; and Sarchedonus his son reigned in his stead; who appointed over his father's accounts, and over all his affairs, Achiacharus my brother Anael's son.

[22] And Achiacharus intreating for me, I returned to Nineve. Now Achiacharus was cupbearer, and keeper of the signet, and steward, and overseer of the accounts: and Sarchedonus appointed him next unto him: and he was my brother's son.

[1] Now when I was come home again, and my wife Anna was restored unto me, with my son Tobias, in the feast of Pentecost, which is the holy feast of the seven weeks, there was a good dinner prepared me, in the which I sat down to eat. [2] And when I saw abundance of meat, I said to my son, Go and bring what poor man soever thou shalt find out of our brethren, who is mindful of the Lord; and, lo, I tarry for thee.

[3] But he came again, and said, Father, one of our nation is strangled, and is cast out in the marketplace. [4] Then before I had tasted of any meat, I started up, and took him up into a room until the going down of the sun. [5] Then I returned, and washed myself, and ate my meat in heaviness, [6] Remembering that prophecy of Amos, as he said, Your feasts shall be turned into mourning, and all your mirth into lamentation. [7] Therefore I wept: and after the going down of the sun I went and made a grave, and buried him. [8] But my neighbours mocked me, and said, This man is not yet afraid to be put to death for this matter: who fled away; and yet, lo, he burieth the dead again.

[9] The same night also I returned from the burial, and slept by the wall of my courtyard, being polluted and my face was uncovered: [10] And I knew not that there were sparrows in the wall, and mine eyes being open, the sparrows muted warm dung into mine eyes, and a whiteness came in mine eyes: and I went to the physicians, but they helped me not: moreover Achiacharus did nourish me, until I went into Elymais.

[11] And my wife Anna did take women's works to do. [12] And when she had sent them home to the owners, they paid her wages, and gave her also besides a kid. [13] And when it was in my house, and began to cry, I said unto her, From whence is this kid? is it not stolen? render it to the owners; for it is not lawful to eat any thing that is stolen.

[14] But she replied upon me, It was given for a gift more than the wages. Howbeit I did not believe her, but bade her render it to the owners: and I was abashed at her. But she replied upon me, Where are thine alms and thy righteous deeds? behold, thou and all thy works are known.

[1] Then I being grieved did weep, and in my sorrow prayed, saying, [2] O Lord, thou art just, and all thy works and all thy ways are mercy and truth, and thou judgest truly and justly for ever. [3] Remember me, and look on me, punish me not for my sins and ignorances, and the sins of my fathers, who have sinned before thee: [4] For they obeyed not thy commandments: wherefore thou hast delivered us for a spoil, and unto captivity, and unto death, and for a proverb of reproach to all the nations among whom we are dispersed.

[5] And now thy judgments are many and true: deal with me according to my sins and my fathers': because we have not kept thy commandments, neither have walked in truth before thee. [6] Now therefore deal with me as seemeth best unto thee, and command my spirit to be taken from me, that I may be dissolved, and become earth: for it is profitable for me to die rather than to live, because I have heard false reproaches, and have much sorrow: command therefore that I may now be delivered out of this distress, and go into the everlasting place: turn not thy face away from me.

[7] It came to pass the same day, that in Ecbatane a city of Media Sara the daughter of Raguel was also reproached by her father's maids; [8] Because that she had been married to seven husbands, whom Asmodeus the evil spirit had killed, before they had lain with her. Dost thou not know, said they, that thou hast strangled thine husbands? thou hast had already seven husbands, neither wast thou named after any of them. [9] Wherefore dost thou beat us for them? if they be dead, go thy ways after them, let us never see of thee either son or daughter. [10] When she heard these things, she was very sorrowful, so that she thought to have strangled herself; and she said, I am the only daughter of my father, and if I do this, it shall be a reproach unto him, and I shall bring his old age with sorrow unto the grave.

[11] Then she prayed toward the window, and said, Blessed art thou, O Lord my God, and thine holy and glorious name is blessed and honourable for ever: let all thy works praise thee for ever. [12] And now, O Lord, I set I mine eyes and my face toward thee, [13] And say, Take me out of the earth, that I may hear no more the reproach. [14] Thou knowest, Lord, that I am pure from all sin with man, [15] And that I never polluted my name, nor the name of my father, in the land of my captivity: I am the only daughter of my father, neither hath he any child to be his heir, neither any near kinsman, nor any son of his alive, to whom I may keep myself for a wife: my seven husbands are already dead; and why should I live? but if it please not thee that I should die, command some regard to be had of me, and pity taken of me, that I hear no more reproach.

[16] So the prayers of them both were heard before the majesty of the great God. [17] And Raphael was sent to heal them both, that is, to scale away the whiteness of Tobit's eyes, and to give Sara the daughter of Raguel for a wife to Tobias the son of Tobit; and to bind Asmodeus the evil spirit; because she belonged to Tobias by right of inheritance. The selfsame time came Tobit home, and entered into his house, and Sara the daughter of Raguel came down from her upper chamber.

[1] In that day Tobit remembered the money which he had committed to Gabael in Rages of Media, [2] And said with himself, I have wished for death; wherefore do I not call for my son Tobias that I may signify to him of the money before I die?

[3] And when he had called him, he said, My son, when I am dead, bury me; and despise not thy mother, but honour her all the days of thy life, and do that which shall please her, and grieve her not. [4] Remember, my son, that she saw many dangers for thee, when thou wast in her womb: and when she is dead, bury her by me in one grave.

[5] My son, be mindful of the Lord our God all thy days, and let not thy will be set to sin, or to transgress his commandments: do uprightly all thy life long, and follow not the ways of unrighteousness. [6] For if thou deal truly, thy doings shall prosperously succeed to thee, and to all them that live justly. [7] Give alms of thy substance; and when thou givest alms, let not thine eye be envious, neither turn thy face from any poor, and the face of God shall not be turned away from thee. [8] If thou hast abundance give alms accordingly: if thou have but a little, be not afraid to give according to that little: [9] For thou layest up a good treasure for thyself against the day of necessity. [10] Because that alms do deliver from death, and suffereth not to come into darkness. [11] For alms is a good gift unto all that give it in the sight of the most High.

[12] Beware of all whoredom, my son, and chiefly take a wife of the seed of thy fathers, and take not a strange woman to wife, which is not of thy father's tribe: for we are the children of the prophets, Noe, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob: remember, my son, that our fathers from the beginning, even that they all married wives of their own kindred, and were blessed in their children, and their seed shall inherit the land.

[13] Now therefore, my son, love thy brethren, and despise not in thy heart thy brethren, the sons and daughters of thy people, in not taking a wife of them: for in pride is destruction and much trouble, and in lewdness is decay and great want: for lewdness is the mother of famine. [14] Let not the wages of any man, which hath wrought for thee, tarry with thee, but give him it out of hand: for if thou serve God, he will also repay thee: be circumspect my son, in all things thou doest, and be wise in all thy conversation. [15] Do that to no man which thou hatest: drink not wine to make thee drunken: neither let drunkenness go with thee in thy journey.

[16] Give of thy bread to the hungry, and of thy garments to them that are naked; and according to thine abundance give alms: and let not thine eye be envious, when thou givest alms. [17] Pour out thy bread on the burial of the just, but give nothing to the wicked. [18] Ask counsel of all that are wise, and despise not any counsel that is profitable.

[19] Bless the Lord thy God alway, and desire of him that thy ways may be directed, and that all thy paths and counsels may prosper: for every nation hath not counsel; but the Lord himself giveth all good things, and he humbleth whom he will, as he will; now therefore, my son, remember my commandments, neither let them be put out of thy mind.

[20] And now I signify this to they that I committed ten talents to Gabael the son of Gabrias at Rages in Media. [21] And fear not, my son, that we are made poor: for thou hast much wealth, if thou fear God, and depart from all sin, and do that which is pleasing in his sight.

[1] Tobias then answered and said, Father, I will do all things which thou hast commanded me: [2] But how can I receive the money, seeing I know him not? [3] Then he gave him the handwriting, and said unto him, Seek thee a man which may go with thee, whiles I yet live, and I will give him wages: and go and receive the money.

[4] Therefore when he went to seek a man, he found Raphael that was an angel. [5] But he knew not; and he said unto him, Canst thou go with me to Rages? and knowest thou those places well? [6] To whom the angel said, I will go with thee, and I know the way well: for I have lodged with our brother Gabael.

[7] Then Tobias said unto him, Tarry for me, till I tell my father. [8] Then he said unto him, Go and tarry not. So he went in and said to his father, Behold, I have found one which will go with me. Then he said, Call him unto me, that I may know of what tribe he is, and whether he be a trusty man to go with thee. [9] So he called him, and he came in, and they saluted one another.

[10] Then Tobit said unto him, Brother, shew me of what tribe and family thou art. [11] To whom he said, Dost thou seek for a tribe or family, or an hired man to go with thy son? Then Tobit said unto him, I would know, brother, thy kindred and name.

[12] Then he said, I am Azarias, the son of Ananias the great, and of thy brethren. [13] Then Tobit said, Thou art welcome, brother; be not now angry with me, because I have enquired to know thy tribe and thy family; for thou art my brother, of an honest and good stock: for I know Ananias and Jonathas, sons of that great Samaias, as we went together to Jerusalem to worship, and offered the firstborn, and the tenths of the fruits; and they were not seduced with the error of our brethren: my brother, thou art of a good stock. [14] But tell me, what wages shall I give thee? wilt thou a drachm a day, and things necessary, as to mine own son? [15] Yea, moreover, if ye return safe, I will add something to thy wages.

[16] So they were well pleased. Then said he to Tobias, Prepare thyself for the journey, and God send you a good journey. And when his son had prepared all things far the journey, his father said, Go thou with this man, and God, which dwelleth in heaven, prosper your journey, and the angel of God keep you company. So they went forth both, and the young man's dog with them.

[17] But Anna his mother wept, and said to Tobit, Why hast thou sent away our son? is he not the staff of our hand, in going in and out before us? [18] Be not greedy to add money to money: but let it be as refuse in respect of our child. [19] For that which the Lord hath given us to live with doth suffice us. [20] Then said Tobit to her, Take no care, my sister; he shall return in safety, and thine eyes shall see him. [21] For the good angel will keep him company, and his journey shall be prosperous, and he shall return safe. [22] Then she made an end of weeping.

[1] And as they went on their journey, they came in the evening to the river Tigris, and they lodged there. [2] And when the young man went down to wash himself, a fish leaped out of the river, and would have devoured him. [3] Then the angel said unto him, Take the fish. And the young man laid hold of the fish, and drew it to land. [4] To whom the angel said, Open the fish, and take the heart and the liver and the gall, and put them up safely. [5] So the young man did as the angel commanded him; and when they had roasted the fish, they did eat it: then they both went on their way, till they drew near to Ecbatane.

[6] Then the young man said to the angel, Brother Azarias, to what use is the heart and the liver and the gal of the fish? [7] And he said unto him, Touching the heart and the liver, if a devil or an evil spirit trouble any, we must make a smoke thereof before the man or the woman, and the party shall be no more vexed. [8] As for the gall, it is good to anoint a man that hath whiteness in his eyes, and he shall be healed.

[9] And when they were come near to Rages, [10] The angel said to the young man, Brother, to day we shall lodge with Raguel, who is thy cousin; he also hath one only daughter, named Sara; I will speak for her, that she may be given thee for a wife. [11] For to thee doth the right of her appertain, seeing thou only art of her kindred. [12] And the maid is fair and wise: now therefore hear me, and I will speak to her father; and when we return from Rages we will celebrate the marriage: for I know that Raguel cannot marry her to another according to the law of Moses, but he shall be guilty of death, because the right of inheritance doth rather appertain to thee than to any other.

[13] Then the young man answered the angel, I have heard, brother Azarias that this maid hath been given to seven men, who all died in the marriage chamber. [14] And now I am the only son of my father, and I am afraid, lest if I go in unto her, I die, as the other before: for a wicked spirit loveth her, which hurteth no body, but those which come unto her; wherefore I also fear lest I die, and bring my father's and my mother's life because of me to the grave with sorrow: for they have no other son to bury them.

[15] Then the angel said unto him, Dost thou not remember the precepts which thy father gave thee, that thou shouldest marry a wife of thine own kindred? wherefore hear me, O my brother; for she shall be given thee to wife; and make thou no reckoning of the evil spirit; for this same night shall she be given thee in marriage. [16] And when thou shalt come into the marriage chamber, thou shalt take the ashes of perfume, and shalt lay upon them some of the heart and liver of the fish, and shalt make a smoke with it: [17] And the devil shall smell it, and flee away, and never come again any more: but when thou shalt come to her, rise up both of you, and pray to God which is merciful, who will have pity on you, and save you: fear not, for she is appointed unto thee from the beginning; and thou shalt preserve her, and she shall go with thee. Moreover I suppose that she shall bear thee children. Now when Tobias had heard these things, he loved her, and his heart was effectually joined to her.

[1] And when they were come to Ecbatane, they came to the house of Raguel, and Sara met them: and after they had saluted one another, she brought them into the house. [2] Then said Raguel to Edna his wife, How like is this young man to Tobit my cousin!

[3] And Raguel asked them, From whence are ye, brethren? To whom they said, We are of the sons of Nephthalim, which are captives in Nineve. [4] Then he said to them, Do ye know Tobit our kinsman? And they said, We know him. Then said he, Is he in good health? [5] And they said, He is both alive, and in good health: and Tobias said, He is my father. [6] Then Raguel leaped up, and kissed him, and wept, [7] And blessed him, and said unto him, Thou art the son of an honest and good man. But when he had heard that Tobit was blind, he was sorrowful, and wept.

[8] And likewise Edna his wife and Sara his daughter wept. Moreover they entertained them cheerfully; and after that they had killed a ram of the flock, they set store of meat on the table. Then said Tobias to Raphael, Brother Azarias, speak of those things of which thou didst talk in the way, and let this business be dispatched.

[9] So he communicated the matter with Raguel: and Raguel said to Tobias, Eat and drink, and make merry: [10] For it is meet that thou shouldest marry my daughter: nevertheless I will declare unto thee the truth. [11] I have given my daughter in marriage to seven men, who died that night they came in unto her: nevertheless for the present be merry. But Tobias said, I will eat nothing here, till we agree and swear one to another. [12] Raguel said, Then take her from henceforth according to the manner, for thou art her cousin, and she is thine, and the merciful God give you good success in all things.

[13] Then he called his daughter Sara, and she came to her father, and he took her by the hand, and gave her to be wife to Tobias, saying, Behold, take her after the law of Moses, and lead her away to thy father. And he blessed them; [14] And called Edna his wife, and took paper, and did write an instrument of covenants, and sealed it. [15] Then they began to eat.

[16] After Raguel called his wife Edna, and said unto her, Sister, prepare another chamber, and bring her in thither. [17] Which when she had done as he had bidden her, she brought her thither: and she wept, and she received the tears of her daughter, and said unto her, [18] Be of good comfort, my daughter; the Lord of heaven and earth give thee joy for this thy sorrow: be of good comfort, my daughter.

[1] And when they had supped, they brought Tobias in unto her. [2] And as he went, he remembered the words of Raphael, and took the ashes of the perfumes, and put the heart and the liver of the fish thereupon, and made a smoke therewith. [3] The which smell when the evil spirit had smelled, he fled into the utmost parts of Egypt, and the angel bound him.

[4] And after that they were both shut in together, Tobias rose out of the bed, and said, Sister, arise, and let us pray that God would have pity on us. [5] Then began Tobias to say, Blessed art thou, O God of our fathers, and blessed is thy holy and glorious name for ever; let the heavens bless thee, and all thy creatures. [6] Thou madest Adam, and gavest him Eve his wife for an helper and stay: of them came mankind: thou hast said, It is not good that man should be alone; let us make unto him an aid like unto himself. [7] And now, O Lord, I take not this my sister for lush but uprightly: therefore mercifully ordain that we may become aged together. [8] And she said with him, Amen.

[9] So they slept both that night. And Raguel arose, and went and made a grave, [10] Saying, I fear lest he also be dead. [11] But when Raguel was come into his house, [12] He said unto his wife Edna. Send one of the maids, and let her see whether he be alive: if he be not, that we may bury him, and no man know it. [13] So the maid opened the door, and went in, and found them both asleep, [14] And came forth, and told them that he was alive.

[15] Then Raguel praised God, and said, O God, thou art worthy to be praised with all pure and holy praise; therefore let thy saints praise thee with all thy creatures; and let all thine angels and thine elect praise thee for ever. [16] Thou art to be praised, for thou hast made me joyful; and that is not come to me which I suspected; but thou hast dealt with us according to thy great mercy. [17] Thou art to be praised because thou hast had mercy of two that were the only begotten children of their fathers: grant them mercy, O Lord, and finish their life in health with joy and mercy. [18] Then Raguel bade his servants to fill the grave.

[19] And he kept the wedding feast fourteen days. [20] For before the days of the marriage were finished, Raguel had said unto him by an oath, that he should not depart till the fourteen days of the marriage were expired; [21] And then he should take the half of his goods, and go in safety to his father; and should have the rest when I and my wife be dead.

Chapter 9

[1] Then Tobias called Raphael, and said unto him, [2] Brother Azarias, take with thee a servant, and two camels, and go to Rages of Media to Gabael, and bring me the money, and bring him to the wedding. [3] For Raguel hath sworn that I shall not depart. [4] But my father counteth the days; and if I tarry long, he will be very sorry. [5] So Raphael went out, and lodged with Gabael, and gave him the handwriting: who brought forth bags which were sealed up, and gave them to him.

[6] And early in the morning they went forth both together, and came to the wedding: and Tobias blessed his wife.

Chapter 10

[1] Now Tobit his father counted every day: and when the days of the journey were expired, and they came not, [2] Then Tobit said, Are they detained? or is Gabael dead, and there is no man to give him the money? [3] Therefore he was very sorry. [4] Then his wife said unto him, My son is dead, seeing he stayeth long; and she began to wail him, and said, [5] Now I care for nothing, my son, since I have let thee go, the light of mine eyes.

[6] To whom Tobit said, Hold thy peace, take no care, for he is safe. [7] But she said, Hold thy peace, and deceive me not; my son is dead. And she went out every day into the way which they went, and did eat no meat on the daytime, and ceased not whole nights to bewail her son Tobias, until the fourteen days of the wedding were expired, which Raguel had sworn that he should spend there. Then Tobias said to Raguel, [8] Let me go, for my father and my mother look no more to see me. [9] But his father in law said unto him, Tarry with me, and I will send to thy father, and they shall declare unto him how things go with thee. [10] But Tobias said, No; but let me go to my father.

[11] Then Raguel arose, and gave him Sara his wife, and half his goods, servants, and cattle, and money: [12] And he blessed them, and sent them away, saying, The God of heaven give you a prosperous journey, my children. [13] And he said to his daughter, Honour thy father and thy mother in law, which are now thy parents, that I may hear good report of thee. And he kissed her. Edna also said to Tobias, The Lord of heaven restore thee, my dear brother, and grant that I may see thy children of my daughter Sara before I die, that I may rejoice before the Lord: behold, I commit my daughter unto thee of special trust; where are do not entreat her evil.

[1] After these things Tobias went his way, praising God that he had given him a prosperous journey, and blessed Raguel and Edna his wife, and went on his way till they drew near unto Nineve. [2] Then Raphael said to Tobias, Thou knowest, brother, how thou didst leave thy father: [3] Let us haste before thy wife, and prepare the house. [4] And take in thine hand the gall of the fish. So they went their way, and the dog went after them. [5] Now Anna sat looking about toward the way for her son. [6] And when she espied him coming, she said to his father, Behold, thy son cometh, and the man that went with him.

[7] Then said Raphael, I know, Tobias, that thy father will open his eyes. [8] Therefore anoint thou his eyes with the gall, and being pricked therewith, he shall rub, and the whiteness shall fall away, and he shall see thee.

[9] Then Anna ran forth, and fell upon the neck of her son, and said unto him, Seeing I have seen thee, my son, from henceforth I am content to die. And they wept both. [10] Tobit also went forth toward the door, and stumbled: but his son ran unto him, [11] And took hold of his father: and he strake of the gall on his fathers' eyes, saying, Be of good hope, my father. [12] And when his eyes began to smart, he rubbed them; [13] And the whiteness pilled away from the corners of his eyes: and when he saw his son, he fell upon his neck.

[14] And he wept, and said, Blessed art thou, O God, and blessed is thy name for ever; and blessed are all thine holy angels: [15] For thou hast scourged, and hast taken pity on me: for, behold, I see my son Tobias. And his son went in rejoicing, and told his father the great things that had happened to him in Media.

[16] Then Tobit went out to meet his daughter in law at the gate of Nineve, rejoicing and praising God: and they which saw him go marvelled, because he had received his sight. [17] But Tobias gave thanks before them, because God had mercy on him. And when he came near to Sara his daughter in law, he blessed her, saying, Thou art welcome, daughter: God be blessed, which hath brought thee unto us, and blessed be thy father and thy mother. And there was joy among all his brethren which were at Nineve. [18] And Achiacharus, and Nasbas his brother's son, came: [19] And Tobias' wedding was kept seven days with great joy.

[1] Then Tobit called his son Tobias, and said unto him, My son, see that the man have his wages, which went with thee, and thou must give him more. [2] And Tobias said unto him, O father, it is no harm to me to give him half of those things which I have brought: [3] For he hath brought me again to thee in safety, and made whole my wife, and brought me the money, and likewise healed thee. [4] Then the old man said, It is due unto him. [5] So he called the angel, and he said unto him, Take half of all that ye have brought and go away in safety. [6] Then he took them both apart, and said unto them, Bless God, praise him, and magnify him, and praise him for the things which he hath done unto you in the sight of all that live. It is good to praise God, and exalt his name, and honourably to shew forth the works of God; therefore be not slack to praise him. [7] It is good to keep close the secret of a king, but it is honourable to reveal the works of God. Do that which is good, and no evil shall touch you. [8] Prayer is good with fasting and alms and righteousness. A little with righteousness is better than much with unrighteousness. It is better to give alms than to lay up gold: [9] For alms doth deliver from death, and shall purge away all sin. Those that exercise alms and righteousness shall be filled with life: [10] But they that sin are enemies to their own life.

[11] Surely I will keep close nothing from you. For I said, It was good to keep close the secret of a king, but that it was honourable to reveal the works of God. [12] Now therefore, when thou didst pray, and Sara thy daughter in law, I did bring the remembrance of your prayers before the Holy One: and when thou didst bury the dead, I was with thee likewise. [13] And when thou didst not delay to rise up, and leave thy dinner, to go and cover the dead, thy good deed was not hid from me: but I was with thee. [14] And now God hath sent me to heal thee and Sara thy daughter in law. [15] I am Raphael, one of the seven holy angels, which present the prayers of the saints, and which go in and out before the glory of the Holy One.

[16] Then they were both troubled, and fell upon their faces: for they feared. [17] But he said unto them, Fear not, for it shall go well with you; praise God therefore. [18] For not of any favour of mine, but by the will of our God I came; wherefore praise him for ever. [19] All these days I did appear unto you; but I did neither eat nor drink, but ye did see a vision. [20] Now therefore give God thanks: for I go up to him that sent me; but write all things which are done in a book. [21] And when they arose, they saw him no more. [22] Then they confessed the great and wonderful works of God, and how the angel of the Lord had appeared unto them.

[1] Then Tobit wrote a prayer of rejoicing, and said,

Blessed be God that liveth for ever, and blessed be his kingdom. [2] For he doth scourge, and hath mercy: he leadeth down to hell, and bringeth up again: neither is there any that can avoid his hand. [3] Confess him before the Gentiles, ye children of Israel: for he hath scattered us among them. [4] There declare his greatness, and extol him before all the living: for he is our Lord, and he is the God our Father for ever. [5] And he will scourge us for our iniquities, and will have mercy again, and will gather us out of all nations, among whom he hath scattered us.

[6] If ye turn to him with your whole heart, and with your whole mind, and deal uprightly before him, then will he turn unto you, and will not hide his face from you. Therefore see what he will do with you, and confess him with your whole mouth, and praise the Lord of might, and extol the everlasting King. In the land of my captivity do I praise him, and declare his might and majesty to a sinful nation. O ye sinners, turn and do justice before him: who can tell if he will accept you, and have mercy on you?

[7] I will extol my God, and my soul shall praise the King of heaven, and shall rejoice in his greatness. [8] Let all men speak, and let all praise him for his righteousness.

[9] O Jerusalem, the holy city, he will scourge thee for thy children's works, and will have mercy again on the sons of the righteous. [10] Give praise to the Lord, for he is good: and praise the everlasting King, that his tabernacle may be builded in thee again with joy, and let him make joyful there in thee those that are captives, and love in thee for ever those that are miserable.

[11] Many nations shall come from far to the name of the Lord God with gifts in their hands, even gifts to the King of heaven; all generations shall praise thee with great joy. [12] Cursed are all they which hate thee, and blessed shall all be which love thee for ever. [13] Rejoice and be glad for the children of the just: for they shall be gathered together, and shall bless the Lord of the just. [14] O blessed are they which love thee, for they shall rejoice in thy peace: blessed are they which have been sorrowful for all thy scourges; for they shall rejoice for thee, when they have seen all thy glory, and shall be glad for ever.

[15] Let my soul bless God the great King. [16] For Jerusalem shall be built up with sapphires and emeralds, and precious stone: thy walls and towers and battlements with pure gold. [17] And the streets of Jerusalem shall be paved with beryl and carbuncle and stones of Ophir. [18] And all her streets shall say, Alleluia; and they shall praise him, saying, Blessed be God, which hath extolled it for ever.

[1] So Tobit made an end of praising God. [2] And he was eight and fifty years old when he lost his sight, which was restored to him after eight years: and he gave alms, and he increased in the fear of the Lord God, and praised him.

[3] And when he was very aged he called his son, and the sons of his son, and said to him, My son, take thy children; for, behold, I am aged, and am ready to depart out of this life. [4] Go into Media my son, for I surely believe those things which Jonas the prophet spake of Nineve, that it shall be overthrown; and that for a time peace shall rather be in Media; and that our brethren shall lie scattered in the earth from that good land: and Jerusalem shall be desolate, and the house of God in it shall be burned, and shall be desolate for a time; [5] And that again God will have mercy on them, and bring them again into the land, where they shall build a temple, but not like to the first, until the time of that age be fulfilled; and afterward they shall return from all places of their captivity, and build up Jerusalem gloriously, and the house of God shall be built in it for ever with a glorious building, as the prophets have spoken thereof.

[6] And all nations shall turn, and fear the Lord God truly, and shall bury their idols. [7] So shall all nations praise the Lord, and his people shall confess God, and the Lord shall exalt his people; and all those which love the Lord God in truth and justice shall rejoice, shewing mercy to our brethren.

[8] And now, my son, depart out of Nineve, because that those things which the prophet Jonas spake shall surely come to pass. [9] But keep thou the law and the commandments, and shew thyself merciful and just, that it may go well with thee. [10] And bury me decently, and thy mother with me; but tarry no longer at Nineve. Remember, my son, how Aman handled Achiacharus that brought him up, how out of light he brought him into darkness, and how he rewarded him again: yet Achiacharus was saved, but the other had his reward: for he went down into darkness. Manasses gave alms, and escaped the snares of death which they had set for him: but Aman fell into the snare, and perished.

[11] Wherefore now, my son, consider what alms doeth, and how righteousness doth deliver. When he had said these things, he gave up the ghost in the bed, being an hundred and eight and fifty years old; and he buried him honourably. [12] And when Anna his mother was dead, he buried her with his father.

But Tobias departed with his wife and children to Ecbatane to Raguel his father in law, [13] Where he became old with honour, and he buried his father and mother in law honourably, and he inherited their substance, and his father Tobit's. [14] And he died at Ecbatane in Media, being an hundred and seven and twenty years old. [15] But before he died he heard of the destruction of Nineve, which was taken by Nabuchodonosor and Assuerus: and before his death he rejoiced over Nineve.

Judith

Chapter 1

[1] In the twelfth year of the reign of Nabuchodonosor, who reigned in Nineve, the great city; in the days of Arphaxad, which reigned over the Medes in Ecbatane, [2] And built in Ecbatane walls round about of stones hewn three cubits broad and six cubits long, and made the height of the wall seventy cubits, and the breadth thereof fifty cubits: [3] And set the towers thereof upon the gates of it an hundred cubits high, and the breadth thereof in the foundation threescore cubits: [4] And he made the gates thereof, even gates that were raised to the height of seventy cubits, and the breadth of them was forty cubits, for the going forth of his mighty armies, and for the setting in array of his footmen:

[5] Even in those days king Nabuchodonosor made war with king Arphaxad in the great plain, which is the plain in the borders of Ragau. [6] And there came unto him all they that dwelt in the hill country, and all that dwelt by Euphrates, and Tigris and Hydaspes, and the plain of Arioch the king of the Elymeans, and very many nations of the sons of Chelod, assembled themselves to the battle.

[7] Then Nabuchodonosor king of the Assyrians sent unto all that dwelt in Persia, and to all that dwelt westward, and to those that dwelt in Cilicia, and Damascus, and Libanus, and Antilibanus, and to all that dwelt upon the sea coast, [8] And to those among the nations that were of Carmel, and Galaad, and the higher Galilee, and the great plain of Esdrelom, [9] And to all that were in Samaria and the cities thereof, and beyond Jordan unto Jerusalem, and Betane, and Chelus, and Kades, and the river of Egypt, and Taphnes, and Ramesse, and all the land of Gesem, [10] Until ye come beyond Tanis and Memphis, and to all the inhabitants of Egypt, until ye come to the borders of Ethiopia.

[11] But all the inhabitants of the land made light of the commandment of Nabuchodonosor king of the Assyrians, neither went they with him to the battle; for they were not afraid of him: yea, he was before them as one man, and they sent away his ambassadors from them without effect, and with disgrace. [12] Therefore Nabuchodonosor was very angry with all this country, and sware by his throne and kingdom, that he would surely be avenged upon all those coasts of Cilicia, and Damascus, and Syria, and that he would slay with the sword all the inhabitants of the land of Moab, and the children of Ammon, and all Judea, and all that were in Egypt, till ye come to the borders of the two seas.

[13] Then he marched in battle array with his power against king Arphaxad in the seventeenth year, and he prevailed in his battle: for he overthrew all the power of Arphaxad, and all his horsemen, and all his chariots, [14] And became lord of his cities, and came unto Ecbatane, and took the towers, and spoiled the streets thereof, and turned the beauty thereof into shame. [15] He took also Arphaxad in the mountains of Ragau, and smote him through with his darts, and destroyed him utterly that day.

[16] So he returned afterward to Nineve, both he and all his company of sundry nations being a very great multitude of men of war, and there he took his ease, and banqueted, both he and his army, an hundred and twenty days.

[1] And in the eighteenth year, the two and twentieth day of the first month, there was talk in the house of Nabuchodonosor king of the Assyrians that he should, as he said, avenge himself on all the earth. [2] So he called unto him all his officers, and all his nobles, and communicated with them his secret counsel, and concluded the afflicting of the whole earth out of his own mouth. [3] Then they decreed to destroy all flesh, that did not obey the commandment of his mouth.

[4] And when he had ended his counsel, Nabuchodonosor king of the Assyrians called Holofernes the chief captain of his army, which was next unto him, and said unto him. [5] Thus saith the great king, the lord of the whole earth, Behold, thou shalt go forth from my presence, and take with thee men that trust in their own strength, of footmen an hundred and twenty thousand; and the number of horses with their riders twelve thousand. [6] And thou shalt go against all the west country, because they disobeyed my commandment. [7] And thou shalt declare unto that they prepare for me earth and water: for I will go forth in my wrath against them and will cover the whole face of the earth with the feet of mine army, and I will give them for a spoil unto them: [8] So that their slain shall fill their valleys and brooks and the river shall be filled with their dead, till it overflow: [9] And I will lead them captives to the utmost parts of all the earth. [10] Thou therefore shalt go forth. and take beforehand for me all their coasts: and if they will yield themselves unto thee, thou shalt reserve them for me till the day of their punishment.

[11] But concerning them that rebel, let not thine eye spare them; but put them to the slaughter, and spoil them wheresoever thou goest. [12] For as I live, and by the power of my kingdom, whatsoever I have spoken, that will I do by mine hand. [13] And take thou heed that thou transgress none of the commandments of thy lord, but accomplish them fully, as I have commanded thee, and defer not to do them.

[14] Then Holofernes went forth from the presence of his lord, and called all the governors and captains, and the officers of the army of Assur; [15] And he mustered the chosen men for the battle, as his lord had commanded him, unto an hundred and twenty thousand, and twelve thousand archers on horseback; [16] And he ranged them, as a great army is ordered for the war. [17] And he took camels and asses for their carriages, a very great number; and sheep and oxen and goats without number for their provision: [18] And plenty of victual for every man of the army, and very much gold and silver out of the king's house.

[19] Then he went forth and all his power to go before king Nabuchodonosor in the voyage, and to cover all the face of the earth westward with their chariots, and horsemen, and their chosen footmen. [20] A great number also sundry countries came with them like locusts, and like the sand of the earth: for the multitude was without number. [21] And they went forth of Nineve three days' journey toward the plain of Bectileth, and pitched from Bectileth near the mountain which is at the left hand of the upper Cilicia. [22] Then he took all his army, his footmen, and horsemen and chariots, and went from thence into the hill country; [23] And destroyed Phud and Lud, and spoiled all the children of Rassas, and the children of Israel, which were toward the wilderness at the south of the land of the Chellians.

[24] Then he went over Euphrates, and went through Mesopotamia, and destroyed all the high cities that were upon the river Arbonai, till ye come to the sea.

[25] And he took the borders of Cilicia, and killed all that resisted him, and came to the borders of Japheth, which were toward the south, over against Arabia.

[26] He compassed also all the children of Madian, and burned up their tabernacles, and spoiled their sheepcotes.

[27] Then he went down into the plain of Damascus in the time of wheat harvest, and burnt up all their fields, and destroyed their flocks and herds, also he spoiled their cities, and utterly wasted their countries, and smote all their young men with the edge of the sword.

[28] Therefore the fear and dread of him fell upon all the inhabitants of the sea coasts, which were in Sidon and Tyrus, and them that dwelt in Sur and Ocina, and all that dwelt in Jemnaan; and they that dwelt in Azotus and Ascalon feared him greatly.

[1] So they sent ambassadors unto him to treat of peace, saying, [2] Behold, we the servants of Nabuchodonosor the great king lie before thee; use us as shall be good in thy sight. [3] Behold, our houses, and all our places, and all our fields of wheat, and flocks, and herds, and all the lodges of our tents lie before thy face; use them as it pleaseth thee. [4] Behold, even our cities and the inhabitants thereof are thy servants; come and deal with them as seemeth good unto thee.

[5] So the men came to Holofernes, and declared unto him after this manner. [6] Then came he down toward the sea coast, both he and his army, and set garrisons in the high cities, and took out of them chosen men for aid. [7] So they and all the country round about received them with garlands, with dances, and with timbrels. [8] Yet he did cast down their frontiers, and cut down their groves: for he had decreed to destroy all the gods of the land, that all nations should worship Nabuchodonosor only, and that all tongues and tribes should call upon him as god.

[9] Also he came over against Esdraelon near unto Judea, over against the great strait of Judea. [10] And he pitched between Geba and Scythopolis, and there he tarried a whole month, that he might gather together all the carriages of his army.

[1] Now the children of Israel, that dwelt in Judea, heard all that Holofernes the chief captain of Nabuchodonosor king of the Assyrians had done to the nations, and after what manner he had spoiled all their temples, and brought them to nought. [2] Therefore they were exceedingly afraid of him, and were troubled for Jerusalem, and for the temple of the Lord their God: [3] For they were newly returned from the captivity, and all the people of Judea were lately gathered together: and the vessels, and the altar, and the house, were sanctified after the profanation. [4] Therefore they sent into all the coasts of Samaria, and the villages and to Bethoron, and Belmen, and Jericho, and to Choba, and Esora, and to the valley of Salem: [5] And possessed themselves beforehand of all the tops of the high mountains, and fortified the villages that were in them, and laid up victuals for the provision of war: for their fields were of late reaped.

[6] Also Joacim the high priest, which was in those days in Jerusalem, wrote to them that dwelt in Bethulia, and Betomestham, which is over against Esdraelon toward the open country, near to Dothaim, [7] Charging them to keep the passages of the hill country: for by them there was an entrance into Judea, and it was easy to stop them that would come up, because the passage was straight, for two men at the most. [8] And the children of Israel did as Joacim the high priest had commanded them, with the ancients of all the people of Israel, which dwelt at Jerusalem.

[9] Then every man of Israel cried to God with great fervency, and with great vehemency did they humble their souls: [10] Both they, and their wives and their children, and their cattle, and every stranger and hireling, and their servants bought with money, put sackcloth upon their loins.

[11] Thus every man and women, and the little children, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, fell before the temple, and cast ashes upon their heads, and spread out their sackcloth before the face of the Lord: also they put sackcloth about the altar, [12] And cried to the God of Israel all with one consent earnestly, that he would not give their children for a prey, and their wives for a spoil, and the cities of their inheritance to destruction, and the sanctuary to profanation and reproach, and for the nations to rejoice at.

[13] So God heard their prayers, and looked upon their afflictions: for the people fasted many days in all Judea and Jerusalem before the sanctuary of the Lord Almighty.

[14] And Joacim the high priest, and all the priests that stood before the Lord, and they which ministered unto the Lord, had their loins girt with sackcloth, and offered the daily burnt offerings, with the vows and free gifts of the people, [15] And had ashes on their mitres, and cried unto the Lord with all their power, that he would look upon all the house of Israel graciously.

Chapter 15

[1] Then was it declared to Holofernes, the chief captain of the army of Assur, that the children of Israel had prepared for war, and had shut up the passages of the hill country, and had fortified all the tops of the high hills and had laid impediments in the champaign countries: [2] Wherewith he was very angry, and called all the princes of Moab, and the captains of Ammon, and all the governors of the sea coast, [3] And he said unto them, Tell me now, ye sons of Chanaan, who this people is, that dwelleth in the hill country, and what are the cities that they inhabit, and what is the multitude of their army, and wherein is their power and strength, and what king is set over them, or captain of their army; [4] And why have they determined not to come and meet me, more than all the inhabitants of the west.

[5] Then said Achior, the captain of all the sons of Ammon, Let my lord now hear a word from the mouth of thy servant, and I will declare unto thee the truth concerning this people, which dwelleth near thee, and inhabiteth the hill countries: and there shall no lie come out of the mouth of thy servant. [6] This people are descended of the Chaldeans: [7] And they sojourned heretofore in Mesopotamia, because they would not follow the gods of their fathers, which were in the land of Chaldea. [8] For they left the way of their ancestors, and worshipped the God of heaven, the God whom they knew: so they cast them out from the face of their gods, and they fled into Mesopotamia, and sojourned there many days. [9] Then their God commanded them to depart from the place where they sojourned, and to go into the land of Chanaan: where they dwelt, and were increased with gold and silver, and with very much cattle. [10] But when a famine covered all the land of Chanaan, they went down into Egypt, and sojourned there, while they were nourished, and became there a great multitude, so that one could not number their nation. [11] Therefore the king of Egypt rose up against them, and dealt subtilly with them, and brought them low with labouring in brick, and made them slaves.

[12] Then they cried unto their God, and he smote all the land of Egypt with incurable plagues: so the Egyptians cast them out of their sight. [13] And God dried the Red sea before them, [14] And brought them to mount Sina, and Cades-Barne, and cast forth all that dwelt in the wilderness.

[15] So they dwelt in the land of the Amorites, and they destroyed by their strength all them of Esebon, and passing over Jordan they possessed all the hill country. [16] And they cast forth before them the Chanaanite, the Pherezite, the Jebusite, and the Sychemite, and all the Gergesites, and they dwelt in that country many days.

[17] And whilst they sinned not before their God, they prospered, because the God that hateth iniquity was with them. [18] But when they departed from the way which he appointed them, they were destroyed in many battles very sore, and were led captives into a land that was not their's, and the temple of their God was cast to the ground, and their cities were taken by the enemies.

[19] But now are they returned to their God, and are come up from the places where they were scattered, and have possessed Jerusalem, where their sanctuary is, and are seated in the hill country; for it was desolate. [20] Now therefore, my lord and governor, if there be any error against this people, and they sin against their God, let us consider that this shall be their ruin, and let us go up, and we shall overcome them. [21] But if there be no iniquity in their nation, let my lord now pass by, lest their Lord defend them, and their God be for them, and we become a reproach before all the world.

[22] And when Achior had finished these sayings, all the people standing round about the tent murmured, and the chief men of Holofernes, and all that dwelt by the sea side, and in Moab, spake that he should kill him. [23] For, say they, we will not be afraid of the face of the children of Israel: for, lo, it is a people that have no strength nor power for a strong battle

[24] Now therefore, lord Holofernes, we will go up, and they shall be a prey to be devoured of all thine army.

Chapter 6

[1] And when the tumult of men that were about the council was ceased, Holofernes the chief captain of the army of Assur said unto Achior and all the Moabites before all the company of other nations, [2] And who art thou, Achior, and the hirelings of Ephraim, that thou hast prophesied against us as to day, and hast said, that we should not make war with the people of Israel, because their God will defend them? and who is God but Nabuchodonosor? [3] He will send his power, and will destroy them from the face of the earth, and their God shall not deliver them: but we his servants will destroy them as one man; for they are not able to sustain the power of our horses. [4] For with them we will tread them under foot, and their mountains shall be drunken with their blood, and their fields shall be filled with their dead bodies, and their footsteps shall not be able to stand before us, for they shall utterly perish, saith king Nabuchodonosor, lord of all the earth: for he said, None of my words shall be in vain.

[5] And thou, Achior, an hireling of Ammon, which hast spoken these words in the day of thine iniquity, shalt see my face no more from this day, until I take vengeance of this nation that came out of Egypt. [6] And then shall the sword of mine army, and the multitude of them that serve me, pass through thy sides, and thou shalt fall among their slain, when I return. [7] Now therefore my servants shall bring thee back into the hill country, and shall set thee in one of the cities of the passages: [8] And thou shalt not perish, till thou be destroyed with them. [9] And if thou persuade thyself in thy mind that they shall be taken, let not thy countenance fall: I have spoken it, and none of my words shall be in vain.

[10] Then Holofernes commanded his servants, that waited in his tent, to take Achior, and bring him to Bethulia, and deliver him into the hands of the children of Israel. [11] So his servants took him, and brought him out of the camp into the plain, and they went from the midst of the plain into the hill country, and came unto the fountains that were under Bethulia. [12] And when the men of the city saw them, they took up their weapons, and went out of the city to the top of the hill: and every man that used a sling kept them from coming up by casting of stones against them. [13] Nevertheless having gotten privily under the hill, they bound Achior, and cast him down, and left him at the foot of the hill, and returned to their lord.

[14] But the Israelites descended from their city, and came unto him, and loosed him, and brought him to Bethulia, and presented him to the governors of the city: [15] Which were in those days Ozias the son of Micha, of the tribe of Simeon, and Chabris the son of Gothoniel, and Charmis the son of Melchiel.

[16] And they called together all the ancients of the city, and all their youth ran together, and their women, to the assembly, and they set Achior in the midst of all their people. Then Ozias asked him of that which was done. ^[17] And he answered and declared unto them the words of the council of Holofernes, and all the words that he had spoken in the midst of the princes of Assur, and whatsoever Holofernes had spoken proudly against the house of Israel.

^[18] Then the people fell down and worshipped God, and cried unto God. saying, ^[19] O Lord God of heaven, behold their pride, and pity the low estate of our nation, and look upon the face of those that are sanctified unto thee this day.

^[20] Then they comforted Achior, and praised him greatly. ^[21] And Ozias took him out of the assembly unto his house, and made a feast to the elders; and they called on the God of Israel all that night for help.

Chapter 7

[1] The next day Holofernes commanded all his army, and all his people which were come to take his part, that they should remove their camp against Bethulia, to take aforehand the ascents of the hill country, and to make war against the children of Israel. [2] Then their strong men removed their camps in that day, and the army of the men of war was an hundred and seventy thousand footmen, and twelve thousand horsemen, beside the baggage, and other men that were afoot among them, a very great multitude. [3] And they camped in the valley near unto Bethulia, by the fountain, and they spread themselves in breadth over Dothaim even to Belmaim, and in length from Bethulia unto Cynamon, which is over against Esdraelon.

[4] Now the children of Israel, when they saw the multitude of them, were greatly troubled, and said every one to his neighbour, Now will these men lick up the face of the earth; for neither the high mountains, nor the valleys, nor the hills, are able to bear their weight. [5] Then every man took up his weapons of war, and when they had kindled fires upon their towers, they remained and watched all that night. [6] But in the second day Holofernes brought forth all his horsemen in the sight of the children of Israel which were in Bethulia, [7] And viewed the passages up to the city, and came to the fountains of their waters, and took them, and set garrisons of men of war over them, and he himself removed toward his people.

[8] Then came unto him all the chief of the children of Esau, and all the governors of the people of Moab, and the captains of the sea coast, and said, [9] Let our lord now hear a word, that there be not an overthrow in thine army. [10] For this people of the children of Israel do not trust in their spears, but in the height of the mountains wherein they dwell, because it is not easy to come up to the tops of their mountains.

[11] Now therefore, my lord, fight not against them in battle array, and there shall not so much as one man of thy people perish. [12] Remain in thy camp, and keep all the men of thine army, and let thy servants get into their hands the fountain of water, which issueth forth of the foot of the mountain: [13] For all the inhabitants of Bethulia have their water thence; so shall thirst kill them, and they shall give up their city, and we and our people shall go up to the tops of the mountains that are near, and will camp upon them, to watch that none go out of the city. [14] So they and their wives and their children shall be consumed with fire, and before the sword come against them, they shall be overthrown in the streets where they dwell. [15] Thus shalt thou render them an evil reward; because they rebelled, and met not thy person peaceably.

[16] And these words pleased Holofernes and all his servants, and he appointed to do as they had spoken. [17] So the camp of the children of Ammon departed, and with them five thousand of the Assyrians, and they pitched in the valley, and took the waters, and the fountains of the waters of the children of Israel.

[18] Then the children of Esau went up with the children of Ammon, and camped in the hill country over against Dothaim: and they sent some of them toward the south, and toward the east over against Ekrebel, which is near unto Chusi, that is upon the brook Mochmur; and the rest of the army of the Assyrians camped in the plain, and covered the face of the whole land; and their tents and carriages were pitched to a very great multitude.

[19] Then the children of Israel cried unto the Lord their God, because their heart failed, for all their enemies had compassed them round about, and there was no way to escape out from among them. [20] Thus all the company of Assur remained about them, both their footmen, chariots, and horsemen, four and thirty days, so that all their vessels of water failed all the inhabitants of Bethulia. [21] And the cisterns were emptied, and they had not water to drink their fill for one day; for they gave them drink by measure. [22] Therefore their young children were out of heart, and their women and young men fainted for thirst, and fell down in the streets of the city, and by the passages of the gates, and there was no longer any strength in them.

[23] Then all the people assembled to Ozias, and to the chief of the city, both young men, and women, and children, and cried with a loud voice, and said before all the elders, [24] God be judge between us and you: for ye have done us great injury, in that ye have not required peace of the children of Assur. [25] For now we have no helper: but God hath sold us into their hands, that we should be thrown down before them with thirst and great destruction.

[26] Now therefore call them unto you, and deliver the whole city for a spoil to the people of Holofernes, and to all his army. [27] For it is better for us to be made a spoil unto them, than to die for thirst: for we will be his servants, that our souls may live, and not see the death of our infants before our eyes, nor our wives nor our children to die. [28] We take to witness against you the heaven and the earth, and our God and Lord of our fathers, which punisheth us according to our sins and the sins of our fathers, that he do not according as we have said this day. [29] Then there was great weeping with one consent in the midst of the assembly; and they cried unto the Lord God with a loud voice.

[30] Then said Ozias to them, Brethren, be of good courage, let us yet endure five days, in the which space the Lord our God may turn his mercy toward us; for he will not forsake us utterly. [31] And if these days pass, and there come no help unto us, I will do according to your word. [32] And he dispersed the people, every one to their own charge; and they went unto the walls and towers of their city, and sent the women and children into their houses: and they were very low brought in the city.

[1] Now at that time Judith heard thereof, which was the daughter of Merari, the son of Ox, the son of Joseph, the son of Ozel, the son of Elcia, the son of Ananias, the son of Gedeon, the son of Raphaim, the son of Acitho, the son of Eliu, the son of Eliab, the son of Nathanael, the son of Samael, the son of Salasadal, the son of Israel.

[2] And Manasses was her husband, of her tribe and kindred, who died in the barley harvest. [3] For as he stood overseeing them that bound sheaves in the field, the heat came upon his head, and he fell on his bed, and died in the city of Bethulia: and they buried him with his fathers in the field between Dothaim and Balamo.

[4] So Judith was a widow in her house three years and four months. [5] And she made her a tent upon the top of her house, and put on sackcloth upon her loins and ware her widow's apparel. [6] And she fasted all the days of her widowhood, save the eves of the sabbaths, and the sabbaths, and the eves of the new moons, and the new moons and the feasts and solemn days of the house of Israel. [7] She was also of a goodly countenance, and very beautiful to behold: and her husband Manasses had left her gold, and silver, and menservants and maidservants, and cattle, and lands; and she remained upon them. [8] And there was none that gave her an ill word; ar she feared God greatly.

[9] Now when she heard the evil words of the people against the governor, that they fainted for lack of water; for Judith had heard all the words that Ozias had spoken unto them, and that he had sworn to deliver the city unto the Assyrians after five days; [10] Then she sent her waitingwoman, that had the government of all things that she had, to call Ozias and Chabris and Charmis, the ancients of the city. [11] And they came unto her, and she said unto them, Hear me now, O ye governors of the inhabitants of Bethulia: for your words that ye have spoken before the people this day are not right, touching this oath which ye made and pronounced between God and you, and have promised to deliver the city to our enemies, unless within these days the Lord turn to help you. [12] And now who are ye that have tempted God this day, and stand instead of God among the children of men?

[13] And now try the Lord Almighty, but ye shall never know any thing. [14] For ye cannot find the depth of the heart of man, neither can ye perceive the things that he thinketh: then how can ye search out God, that hath made all these things, and know his mind, or comprehend his purpose? Nay, my brethren, provoke not the Lord our God to anger. [15] For if he will not help us within these five days, he hath power to defend us when he will, even every day, or to destroy us before our enemies.

[16] Do not bind the counsels of the Lord our God: for God is not as man, that he may be threatened; neither is he as the son of man, that he should be wavering. [17] Therefore let us wait for salvation of him, and call upon him to help us, and he will hear our voice, if it please him.

[18] For there arose none in our age, neither is there any now in these days neither tribe, nor family, nor people, nor city among us, which worship gods made with hands, as hath been aforetime. [19] For the which cause our fathers were given to the sword, and for a spoil, and had a great fall before our enemies. [20] But we know none other god, therefore we trust that he will not dispise us, nor any of our nation.

[21] For if we be taken so, all Judea shall lie waste, and our sanctuary shall be spoiled; and he will require the profanation thereof at our mouth. [22] And the slaughter of our brethren, and the captivity of the country, and the desolation of our inheritance, will he turn upon our heads among the Gentiles, wheresoever we shall be in bondage; and we shall be an offence and a reproach to all them that possess us. [23] For our servitude shall not be directed to favour: but the Lord our God shall turn it to dishonour.

[24] Now therefore, O brethren, let us shew an example to our brethren, because their hearts depend upon us, and the sanctuary, and the house, and the altar, rest upon us.

[25] Moreover let us give thanks to the Lord our God, which trieth us, even as he did our fathers. [26] Remember what things he did to Abraham, and how he tried Isaac, and what happened to Jacob in Mesopotamia of Syria, when he kept the sheep of Laban his mother's brother. [27] For he hath not tried us in the fire, as he did them, for the examination of their hearts, neither hath he taken vengeance on us: but the Lord doth scourge them that come near unto him, to admonish them.

[28] Then said Ozias to her, All that thou hast spoken hast thou spoken with a good heart, and there is none that may gainsay thy words. [29] For this is not the first day wherein thy wisdom is manifested; but from the beginning of thy days all the people have known thy understanding, because the disposition of thine heart is good. [30] But the people were very thirsty, and compelled us to do unto them as we have spoken, and to bring an oath upon ourselves, which we will not break. [31] Therefore now pray thou for us, because thou art a godly woman, and the Lord will send us rain to fill our cisterns, and we shall faint no more.

[32] Then said Judith unto them, Hear me, and I will do a thing, which shall go throughout all generations to the children of our nation. [33] Ye shall stand this night in the gate, and I will go forth with my waitingwoman: and within the days that ye have promised to deliver the city to our enemies the Lord will visit Israel by mine hand. [34] But enquire not ye of mine act: for I will not declare it unto you, till the things be finished that I do.

[35] Then said Ozias and the princes unto her, Go in peace, and the Lord God be before thee, to take vengeance on our enemies. [36] So they returned from the tent, and went to their wards.

Chapter 9

[1] Judith fell upon her face, and put ashes upon her head, and uncovered the sackcloth wherewith she was clothed; and about the time that the incense of that evening was offered in Jerusalem in the house of the Lord Judith cried with a loud voice, and said, [2] O Lord God of my father Simeon, to whom thou gavest a sword to take vengeance of the strangers, who loosened the girdle of a maid to defile her, and discovered the thigh to her shame, and polluted her virginity to her reproach; for thou saidst, It shall not be so; and yet they did so: [3] Wherefore thou gavest their rulers to be slain, so that they dyed their bed in blood, being deceived, and smotest the servants with their lords, and the lords upon their thrones; [4] And hast given their wives for a prey, and their daughters to be captives, and all their spoils to be divided among thy dear children; which were moved with thy zeal, and abhorred the pollution of their blood, and called upon thee for aid: O God, O my God, hear me also a widow.

[5] For thou hast wrought not only those things, but also the things which fell out before, and which ensued after; thou hast thought upon the things which are now, and which are to come. [6] Yea, what things thou didst determine were ready at hand, and said, Lo, we are here: for all thy ways are prepared, and thy judgments are in thy foreknowledge.

[7] For, behold, the Assyrians are multiplied in their power; they are exalted with horse and man; they glory in the strength of their footmen; they trust in shield, and spear, and bow, and sling; and know not that thou art the Lord that breakest the battles: the Lord is thy name. [8] Throw down their strength in thy power, and bring down their force in thy wrath: for they have purposed to defile thy sanctuary, and to pollute the tabernacle where thy glorious name resteth and to cast down with sword the horn of thy altar.

[9] Behold their pride, and send thy wrath upon their heads: give into mine hand, which am a widow, the power that I have conceived. [10] Smite by the deceit of my lips the servant with the prince, and the prince with the servant: break down their stateliness by the hand of a woman. [11] For thy power standeth not in multitude nor thy might in strong men: for thou art a God of the afflicted, an helper of the oppressed, an upholder of the weak, a protector of the forlorn, a saviour of them that are without hope.

[12] I pray thee, I pray thee, O God of my father, and God of the inheritance of Israel, Lord of the heavens and earth, Creator of the waters, king of every creature, hear thou my prayer: [13] And make my speech and deceit to be their wound and stripe, who have purposed cruel things against thy covenant, and thy hallowed house, and against the top of Sion, and against the house of the possession of thy children.

[14] And make every nation and tribe to acknowledge that thou art the God of all power and might, and that there is none other that protecteth the people of Israel but thou.

Chapter 10

[1] Now after that she had ceased to cry unto the God of Israel, and had made an end of all these words. [2] She rose where she had fallen down, and called her maid, and went down into the house in the which she abode in the sabbath days, and in her feast days, [3] And pulled off the sackcloth which she had on, and put off the garments of her widowhood, and washed her body all over with water, and anointed herself with precious ointment, and braided the hair of her head, and put on a tire upon it, and put on her garments of gladness, wherewith she was clad during the life of Manasses her husband. [4] And she took sandals upon her feet, and put about her her bracelets, and her chains, and her rings, and her earrings, and all her ornaments, and decked herself bravely, to allure the eyes of all men that should see her.

[5] Then she gave her maid a bottle of wine, and a cruse of oil, and filled a bag with parched corn, and lumps of figs, and with fine bread; so she folded all these things together, and laid them upon her. [6] Thus they went forth to the gate of the city of Bethulia, and found standing there Ozias and the ancients of the city, Chabris and Charmis.

[7] And when they saw her, that her countenance was altered, and her apparel was changed, they wondered at her beauty very greatly, and said unto her. [8] The God, the God of our fathers give thee favour, and accomplish thine enterprizes to the glory of the children of Israel, and to the exaltation of Jerusalem. Then they worshipped God.

[9] And she said unto them, Command the gates of the city to be opened unto me, that I may go forth to accomplish the things whereof ye have spoken with me. So they commanded the young men to open unto her, as she had spoken.

[10] And when they had done so, Judith went out, she, and her maid with her; and the men of the city looked after her, until she was gone down the mountain, and till she had passed the valley, and could see her no more. [11] Thus they went straight forth in the valley: and the first watch of the Assyrians met her, [12] And took her, and asked her, Of what people art thou? and whence comest thou? and whither goest thou? And she said, I am a woman of the Hebrews, and am fled from them: for they shall be given you to be consumed: [13] And I am coming before Holofernes the chief captain of your army, to declare words of truth; and I will shew him a way, whereby he shall go, and win all the hill country, without losing the body or life of any one of his men.

[14] Now when the men heard her words, and beheld her countenance, they wondered greatly at her beauty, and said unto her, [15] Thou hast saved thy life, in that thou hast hasted to come down to the presence of our lord: now therefore come to his tent, and some of us shall conduct thee, until they have delivered thee to his hands. [16] And when thou standest before him, be not afraid in thine heart, but shew unto him according to thy word; and he will entreat thee well.

[17] Then they chose out of them an hundred men to accompany her and her maid; and they brought her to the tent of Holofernes. [18] Then was there a concourse throughout all the camp: for her coming was noised among the tents, and they came about her, as she stood without the tent of Holofernes, till they told him of her. [19] And they wondered at her beauty, and admired the children of Israel because of her, and every one said to his neighbour, Who would despise this people, that have among them such women? surely it is not good that one man of them be left who being let go might deceive the whole earth. [20] And they that lay near Holofernes went out, and all his servants and they brought her into the tent.

[21] Now Holofernes rested upon his bed under a canopy, which was woven with purple, and gold, and emeralds, and precious stones. [22] So they shewed him of her; and he came out before his tent with silver lamps going before him. [23] And when Judith was come before him and his servants they all marvelled at the beauty of her countenance; and she fell down upon her face, and did reverence unto him: and his servants took her up.

[1] Then said Holofernes unto her, Woman, be of good comfort, fear not in thine heart: for I never hurt any that was willing to serve Nabuchodonosor, the king of all the earth. [2] Now therefore, if thy people that dwelleth in the mountains had not set light by me, I would not have lifted up my spear against them: but they have done these things to themselves. [3] But now tell me wherefore thou art fled from them, and art come unto us: for thou art come for safeguard; be of good comfort, thou shalt live this night, and hereafter: [4] For none shall hurt thee, but entreat thee well, as they do the servants of king Nabuchodonosor my lord.

[5] Then Judith said unto him, Receive the words of thy servant, and suffer thine handmaid to speak in thy presence, and I will declare no lie to my lord this night. [6] And if thou wilt follow the words of thine handmaid, God will bring the thing perfectly to pass by thee; and my lord shall not fail of his purposes.

[7] As Nabuchodonosor king of all the earth liveth, and as his power liveth, who hath sent thee for the upholding of every living thing: for not only men shall serve him by thee, but also the beasts of the field, and the cattle, and the fowls of the air, shall live by thy power under Nabuchodonosor and all his house. [8] For we have heard of thy wisdom and thy policies, and it is reported in all the earth, that thou only art excellent in all the kingdom, and mighty in knowledge, and wonderful in feats of war.

[9] Now as concerning the matter, which Achior did speak in thy council, we have heard his words; for the men of Bethulia saved him, and he declared unto them all that he had spoken unto thee. [10] Therefore, O lord and governor, reject not his word; but lay it up in thine heart, for it is true: for our nation shall not be punished, neither can sword prevail against them, except they sin against their God.

[11] And now, that my lord be not defeated and frustrate of his purpose, even death is now fallen upon them, and their sin hath overtaken them, wherewith they will provoke their God to anger whensoever they shall do that which is not fit to be done: [12] For their victuals fail them, and all their water is scant, and they have determined to lay hands upon their cattle, and purposed to consume all those things, that God hath forbidden them to eat by his laws: [13] And are resolved to spend the firstfruits of the the tenths of wine and oil, which they had sanctified, and reserved for the priests that serve in Jerusalem before the face of our God; the which things it is not lawful for any of the people so much as to touch with their hands. [14] For they have sent some to Jerusalem, because they also that dwell there have done the like, to bring them a licence from the senate. [15] Now when they shall bring them word, they will forthwith do it, and they shall be given to thee to be destroyed the same day.

presence; and God hath sent me to work things with thee, whereat all the earth shall be astonished, and whosoever shall hear it. ^[17] For thy servant is religious, and serveth the God of heaven day and night: now therefore, my lord, I will remain with thee, and thy servant will go out by night into the valley, and I will pray unto God, and he will tell me when they have committed their sins: ^[18] And I will come and shew it unto thee: then thou shalt go forth with all thine army, and there shall be none of them that shall resist thee. ^[19] And I will lead thee through the midst of Judea, until thou come before Jerusalem; and I will set thy throne in the midst thereof; and thou shalt drive them as sheep that have no shepherd, and a dog shall not so much as open his mouth at thee: for these things were told me according to my foreknowledge, and they were declared unto me, and I am sent to tell thee.

^[20] Then her words pleased Holofernes and all his servants; and they marvelled at her wisdom, and said, ^[21] There is not such a woman from one end of the earth to the other, both for beauty of face, and wisdom of words. ^[22] Likewise Holofernes said unto her. God hath done well to send thee before the people, that strength might be in our hands and destruction upon them that lightly regard my lord. ^[23] And now thou art both beautiful in thy countenance, and witty in thy words: surely if thou do as thou hast spoken thy God shall be my God, and thou shalt dwell in the house of king Nabuchodonosor, and shalt be renowned through the whole earth.

[1] Then he commanded to bring her in where his plate was set; and bade that they should prepare for her of his own meats, and that she should drink of his own wine.

[2] And Judith said, I will not eat thereof, lest there be an offence: but provision shall be made for me of the things that I have brought. [3] Then Holofernes said unto her, If thy provision should fail, how should we give thee the like? for there be none with us of thy nation.

[4] Then said Judith unto him As thy soul liveth, my lord, thine handmaid shall not spend those things that I have, before the Lord work by mine hand the things that he hath determined.

[5] Then the servants of Holofernes brought her into the tent, and she slept till midnight, and she arose when it was toward the morning watch, [6] And sent to Holofernes, saving, Let my lord now command that thine handmaid may go forth unto prayer.

[7] Then Holofernes commanded his guard that they should not stay her: thus she abode in the camp three days, and went out in the night into the valley of Bethulia, and washed herself in a fountain of water by the camp. [8] And when she came out, she besought the Lord God of Israel to direct her way to the raising up of the children of her people. [9] So she came in clean, and remained in the tent, until she did eat her meat at evening.

[10] And in the fourth day Holofernes made a feast to his own servants only, and called none of the officers to the banquet. [11] Then said he to Bagoas the eunuch, who had charge over all that he had, Go now, and persuade this Hebrew woman which is with thee, that she come unto us, and eat and drink with us. [12] For, lo, it will be a shame for our person, if we shall let such a woman go, not having had her company; for if we draw her not unto us, she will laugh us to scorn.

[13] Then went Bagoas from the presence of Holofernes, and came to her, and he said, Let not this fair damsel fear to come to my lord, and to be honoured in his presence, and drink wine, and be merry with us and be made this day as one of the daughters of the Assyrians, which serve in the house of Nabuchodonosor.

[14] Then said Judith unto him, Who am I now, that I should gainsay my lord? surely whatsoever pleaseth him I will do speedily, and it shall be my joy unto the day of my death. [15] So she arose, and decked herself with her apparel and all her woman's attire, and her maid went and laid soft skins on the ground for her over against Holofernes, which she had received of Bagoas for her daily use, that she might sit and eat upon them.

[16] Now when Judith came in and sat down, Holofernes his heart was ravished with her, and his mind was moved, and he desired greatly her company; for he waited a time to deceive her, from the day that he had seen her.

[17] Then said Holofernes unto her, Drink now, and be merry with us. [18] So Judith said, I will drink now, my lord, because my life is magnified in me this day more than all the days since I was born. [19] Then she took and ate and drank before him what her maid had prepared.

[20] And Holofernes took great delight in her, and drank more wine than he had drunk at any time in one day since he was born.

[1] Now when the evening was come, his servants made haste to depart, and Bagoas shut his tent without, and dismissed the waiters from the presence of his lord; and they went to their beds: for they were all weary, because the feast had been long. [2] And Judith was left along in the tent, and Holofernes lying along upon his bed: for he was filled with wine.

[3] Now Judith had commanded her maid to stand without her bedchamber, and to wait for her. coming forth, as she did daily: for she said she would go forth to her prayers, and she spake to Bagoas according to the same purpose.

[4] So all went forth and none was left in the bedchamber, neither little nor great. Then Judith, standing by his bed, said in her heart, O Lord God of all power, look at this present upon the works of mine hands for the exaltation of Jerusalem. [5] For now is the time to help thine inheritance, and to execute thine enterprizes to the destruction of the enemies which are risen against us.

[6] Then she came to the pillar of the bed, which was at Holofernes' head, and took down his fauchion from thence, [7] And approached to his bed, and took hold of the hair of his head, and said, Strengthen me, O Lord God of Israel, this day.

[8] And she smote twice upon his neck with all her might, and she took away his head from him. [9] And tumbled his body down from the bed, and pulled down the canopy from the pillars; and anon after she went forth, and gave Holofernes his head to her maid; [10] And she put it in her bag of meat: so they twain went together according to their custom unto prayer: and when they passed the camp, they compassed the valley, and went up the mountain of Bethulia, and came to the gates thereof.

[11] Then said Judith afar off, to the watchmen at the gate, Open, open now the gate: God, even our God, is with us, to shew his power yet in Jerusalem, and his forces against the enemy, as he hath even done this day.

[12] Now when the men of her city heard her voice, they made haste to go down to the gate of their city, and they called the elders of the city. [13] And then they ran all together, both small and great, for it was strange unto them that she was come: so they opened the gate, and received them, and made a fire for a light, and stood round about them.

[14] Then she said to them with a loud voice, Praise, praise God, praise God, I say, for he hath not taken away his mercy from the house of Israel, but hath destroyed our enemies by mine hands this night. [15] So she took the head out of the bag, and shewed it, and said unto them, behold the head of Holofernes, the chief captain of the army of Assur, and behold the canopy, wherein he did lie in his drunkenness; and the Lord hath smitten him by the hand of a woman.

[16] As the Lord liveth, who hath kept me in my way that I went, my countenance hath deceived him to his destruction, and yet hath he not committed sin with me, to defile and shame me.

[17] Then all the people were wonderfully astonished, and bowed themselves and worshipped God, and said with one accord, Blessed be thou, O our God, which hast this day brought to nought the enemies of thy people.

[18] Then said Ozias unto her, O daughter, blessed art thou of the most high God above all the women upon the earth; and blessed be the Lord God, which hath created the heavens and the earth, which hath directed thee to the cutting off of the head of the chief of our enemies. [19] For this thy confidence shall not depart from the heart of men, which remember the power of God for ever. [20] And God turn these things to thee for a perpetual praise, to visit thee in good things because thou hast not spared thy life for the affliction of our nation, but hast revenged our ruin, walking a straight way before our God. And all the people said; So be it, so be it.

[1] Then said Judith unto them, Hear me now, my brethren, and take this head, and hang it upon the highest place of your walls.

[2] And so soon as the morning shall appear, and the sun shall come forth upon the earth, take ye every one his weapons, and go forth every valiant man out of the city, and set ye a captain over them, as though ye would go down into the field toward the watch of the Assyrians; but go not down. [3] Then they shall take their armour, and shall go into their camp, and raise up the captains of the army of Assur, and shall run to the tent of Holofernes, but shall not find him: then fear shall fall upon them, and they shall flee before your face. [4] So ye, and all that inhabit the coast of Israel, shall pursue them, and overthrow them as they go. [5] But before ye do these things, call me Achior the Ammonite, that he may see and know him that despised the house of Israel, and that sent him to us as it were to his death.

[6] Then they called Achior out of the house of Ozias; and when he was come, and saw the head of Holofernes in a man's hand in the assembly of the people, he fell down on his face, and his spirit failed.

[7] But when they had recovered him, he fell at Judith's feet, and revered her, and said, Blessed art thou in all the tabernacles of Juda, and in all nations, which hearing thy name shall be astonished. [8] Now therefore tell me all the things that thou hast done in these days. Then Judith declared unto him in the midst of the people all that she had done, from the day that she went forth until that hour she spake unto them. [9] And when she had left off speaking, the people shouted with a loud voice, and made a joyful noise in their city.

[10] And when Achior had seen all that the God of Israel had done, he believed in God greatly, and circumcised the flesh of his foreskin, and was joined unto the house of Israel unto this day.

[11] And as soon as the morning arose, they hanged the head of Holofernes upon the wall, and every man took his weapons, and they went forth by bands unto the straits of the mountain.

[12] But when the Assyrians saw them, they sent to their leaders, which came to their captains and tribunes, and to every one of their rulers.

[13] So they came to Holofernes' tent, and said to him that had the charge of all his things, Waken now our lord: for the slaves have been bold to come down against us to battle, that they may be utterly destroyed.

[14] Then went in Bagoas, and knocked at the door of the tent; for he thought that he had slept with Judith. [15] But because none answered, he opened it, and went into the bedchamber, and found him cast upon the floor dead, and his head was taken from him. [16] Therefore he cried with a loud voice, with weeping, and sighing, and a mighty cry, and rent his garments.

[17] After he went into the tent where Judith lodged: and when he found her not, he leaped out to the people, and cried, [18] These slaves have dealt treacherously; one woman of the Hebrews hath brought shame upon the house of king Nabuchodonosor: for, behold, Holofernes lieth upon the ground without a head. ^[19] When the captains of the Assyrians' army heard these words, they rent their coats and their minds were wonderfully troubled, and there was a cry and a very great noise throughout the camp.

[1] And when they that were in the tents heard, they were astonished at the thing that was done. [2] And fear and trembling fell upon them, so that there was no man that durst abide in the sight of his neighbour, but rushing out all together, they fled into every way of the plain, and of the hill country. [3] They also that had camped in the mountains round about Bethulia fled away. Then the children of Israel, every one that was a warrior among them, rushed out upon them.

[4] Then sent Ozias to Betomasthem, and to Bebai, and Chobai, and Cola and to all the coasts of Israel, such as should tell the things that were done, and that all should rush forth upon their enemies to destroy them. [5] Now when the children of Israel heard it, they all fell upon them with one consent, and slew them unto Chobai: likewise also they that came from Jerusalem, and from all the hill country, (for men had told them what things were done in the camp of their enemies) and they that were in Galaad, and in Galilee, chased them with a great slaughter, until they were past Damascus and the borders thereof.

[6] And the residue that dwelt at Bethulia, fell upon the camp of Assur, and spoiled them, and were greatly enriched. [7] And the children of Israel that returned from the slaughter had that which remained; and the villages and the cities, that were in the mountains and in the plain, gat many spoils: for the multitude was very great.

[8] Then Joacim the high priest, and the ancients of the children of Israel that dwelt in Jerusalem, came to behold the good things that God had shewed to Israel, and to see Judith, and to salute her. [9] And when they came unto her, they blessed her with one accord, and said unto her, Thou art the exaltation of Jerusalem, thou art the great glory of Israel, thou art the great rejoicing of our nation: [10] Thou hast done all these things by thine hand: thou hast done much good to Israel, and God is pleased therewith: blessed be thou of the Almighty Lord for evermore. And all the people said, So be it.

[11] And the people spoiled the camp the space of thirty days: and they gave unto Judith Holofernes his tent, and all his plate, and beds, and vessels, and all his stuff: and she took it and laid it on her mule; and made ready her carts, and laid them thereon.

[12] Then all the women of Israel ran together to see her, and blessed her, and made a dance among them for her: and she took branches in her hand, and gave also to the women that were with her. [13] And they put a garland of olive upon her and her maid that was with her, and she went before all the people in the dance, leading all the women: and all the men of Israel followed in their armour with garlands, and with songs in their mouths.

[1] Then Judith began to sing this thanksgiving in all Israel, and all the people sang after her this song of praise.

[2] And Judith said,

Begin unto my God with timbrels, sing unto my Lord with cymbals: tune unto him a new psalm: exalt him, and call upon his name. [3] For God breaketh the battles: for among the camps in the midst of the people he hath delivered me out of the hands of them that persecuted me. [4] Assur came out of the mountains from the north, he came with ten thousands of his army, the multitude whereof stopped the torrents, and their horsemen have covered the hills. [5] He bragged that he would burn up my borders, and kill my young men with the sword, and dash the sucking children against the ground, and make mine infants as a prey, and my virgins as a spoil.

[6] But the Almighty Lord hath disappointed them by the hand of a woman. [7] For the mighty one did not fall by the young men, neither did the sons of the Titans smite him, nor high giants set upon him: but Judith the daughter of Merari weakened him with the beauty of her countenance. [8] For she put off the garment of her widowhood for the exaltation of those that were oppressed in Israel, and anointed her face with ointment, and bound her hair in a tire, and took a linen garment to deceive him. [9] Her sandals ravished his eyes, her beauty took his mind prisoner, and the fauchion passed through his neck.

[10] The Persians quaked at her boldness, and the Medes were daunted at her hardness. [11] Then my afflicted shouted for joy, and my weak ones cried aloud; but they were astonished: these lifted up their voices, but they were overthrown. [12] The sons of the damsels have pierced them through, and wounded them as fugatives' children: they perished by the battle of the Lord.

[13] I will sing unto the Lord a new song: O Lord, thou art great and glorious, wonderful in strength, and invincible. [14] Let all creatures serve thee: for thou spakest, and they were made, thou didst send forth thy spirit, and it created them, and there is none that can resist thy voice. [15] For the mountains shall be moved from their foundations with the waters, the rocks shall melt as wax at thy presence: yet thou art merciful to them that fear thee. [16] For all sacrifice is too little for a sweet savour unto thee, and all the fat is not sufficient for thy burnt offering: but he that feareth the Lord is great at all times.

[17] Woe to the nations that rise up against my kindred! the Lord Almighty will take vengeance of them in the day of judgment, in putting fire and worms in their flesh; and they shall feel them, and weep for ever.

[18] Now as soon as they entered into Jerusalem, they worshipped the Lord; and as soon as the people were purified, they offered their burnt offerings, and their free offerings, and their gifts.

[19] Judith also dedicated all the stuff of Holofernes, which the people had given her, and gave the canopy, which she had taken out of his bedchamber, for a gift unto the Lord.

[20] So the people continued feasting in Jerusalem before the sanctuary for the space of three months and Judith remained with them.

[21] After this time every one returned to his own inheritance, and Judith went to Bethulia, and remained in her own possession, and was in her time honourable in all the country. [22] And many desired her, but none knew her all the days of her life, after that Manasses her husband was dead, and was gathered to his people.

[23] But she increased more and more in honour, and waxed old in her husband's house, being an hundred and five years old, and made her maid free; so she died in Bethulia: and they buried her in the cave of her husband Manasses. [24] And the house of Israel lamented her seven days: and before she died, she did distribute her goods to all them that were nearest of kindred to Manasses her husband, and to them that were the nearest of her kindred. [25] And there was none that made the children of Israel any more afraid in the days of Judith, nor a long time after her death.

Esther

Chapter 1

In the second year of the reign of Artaxerxes the great king, on the first day of Nisan, Mardochaeus the son of Jarius, the son of Semeias, the son of Cisaus, of the tribe of Benjamin, a Jew dwelling in the city Susa, a great man, serving in the king's palace, saw a vision. Now he was of the captivity which Nabuchodonosor king of Babylon had carried captive from Jerusalem, with Jachonias the king of Judea.

And this was his dream: Behold, voices and a noise, thunders and earthquake, tumult upon the earth. And, behold, two great serpents came forth, both ready for conflict, and there came from them a great voice, and by their voice every nation was prepared for battle, even to fight against the nation of the just. And, behold, a day of darkness and blackness, tribulation and anguish, affection and tumult upon the earth. And all the righteous nation was troubled, fearing their own afflictions; and they prepared to die, and cried to God: and from their cry there came as it were a great river from a little fountain, even much water. And light and the sun arose, and the lowly were exalted, and devoured the honorable.

And Mardochaeus who had seen this vision and what God desired to do, having awoke, kept it in his heart, and desired by all means to interpret it, even till night. And Mardochaeus rested quiet in the palace with Gabatha and Tharrha the king's two chamberlains, eunuchs who guarded the palace. And he heard their reasoning and searched out their plans, and learnt that they were preparing to lay hands on king Artaxerxes: and he informed the king concerning them. And the king examined the two chamberlains, and they confessed, and were executed. And the king wrote these things for a memorial: also Mardochaeus wrote concerning these matters. And the king commanded Mardochaeus to attend in the palace, and gave gifts for this service. And Aman the son of Amadathes the Bugean was honourable in the sight of the king, and he endeavored to hurt Mardochaeus and his people, because of the two chamberlains of the king.

[1] And it came to pass after these things in the days of Artaxerxes, — (this Artaxerxes ruled over a hundred and twenty-seven provinces from India) — [2] in those days, when king Artaxerxes was on the throne in the city of Susa, [3] in the third year of his reign, he made a feast to his friends, and the other nations, and to the nobles of the Persians and Medes, and the chief of the satraps.

[4] And after this, after he had shewn to them the wealth of his kingdom, and the abundant glory of his wealth during a hundred and eighty days, [5] when, I say, the days of the marriage feast were completed, the king made a banquet to the nations who were present in the city six days, in the court of the king's house, [6] which was adorned with hangings of fine linen and flax on cords of fine linen and purple, fastened to golden and silver studs, on pillars of

Parian marble and stone: there were golden and silver couches on a pavement of emerald stone, and of pearl, and of Parian stone, and open-worked coverings variously flowered, having roses worked round about; [7] gold and silver cups, and a small cup of carbuncle set out of the value of thirty thousand talents, abundant and sweet wine, which the king himself drank. [8] And this banquet was not according to the appointed law; but so the king would have it: and he charged the stewards to perform his will and that of the company. [9] Also Astin the queen made a banquet for the women in the palace where king Artaxerxes dwelt.

[10] Now on the seventh day the king, being merry, told Aman, and Bazan, and Tharrha, and Barazi, and Zatholtha, and Abataza, and Tharaba, the seven chamberlains, servants of king Artaxerxes, [11] to bring in the queen to him, to enthrone her, and crown her with the diadem, and to shew her to the princes, and her beauty to the nations: for she was beautiful. [12] But queen Astin hearkened not to him to come with the chamberlains: so the king was grieved and angered.

[13] And he said to his friends, Thus hast Astin spoken: pronounce therefore upon this case law and judgment. [14] So Arkesaeus, and Sarsathaeus, and Malisear, the princes of the Persians and Medes, who were near the king, who sat chief in rank by the king, drew near to him, [15] and reported to him according to the laws how it was proper to do to queen Astin, because she had not done the things commanded of the king by the chamberlains.

[16] And Muchaeus said to the king and to the princes, Queen Astin has not wronged the king only, but also all the king's rulers and princes: [17] for he has told them the words of the queen, and how she disobeyed the king. As then, said he, she refused to obey king Artaxerxes, [18] so this day shall the other ladies of the chiefs of the Persians and Medes, having heard what she said to the king, dare in the same way to dishonour their husbands. [19] If then it seem good to the king, let him make a royal decree, and let it be written according to the laws of the Medes and Persians, and let him not alter it: and let not the queen come in to him any more; and let the king give her royalty to a woman better than she. [20] And let the law of the king which he shall have made, be widely proclaimed, in his kingdom: and so shall all the women give honour to their husbands, from the poor even to the rich.

[21] And the saying pleased the king and the princes; and the king did as Muchaeus had said, [22] and sent into all his kingdom through the several provinces, according to their language, in order that men might be feared in their own houses.

[1] And after this the king's anger was pacified, and he no more mentioned Astin, bearing in mind what she had said, and how he had condemned her. [2] Then the servants of the king said, Let there be sought for the king chaste and beautiful young virgins. [3] And let the king appoint local governors in all the provinces of his kingdom, and let them select fair and chaste young damsels and bring them to the city Susa, into the women's apartment, and let them be consigned to the king's chamberlain, the keeper of the women; and let things for purification and other attendance be given to them. [4] And let the woman who shall please the king be queen instead of Astin. And the thing pleased the king; and he did so.

[5] Now there was a Jew in the city Susa, and his name was Mardochaeus, the son of Jairus, the son of Semeias, the son of Cisaeus, of the tribe of Benjamin; [6] who had been brought a prisoner from Jerusalem, which Nabuchodonosor king of Babylon had carried into captivity. [7] And he had a foster child, daughter of Aminadab his father's brother, and her name was Esther; and when her parents were dead, he brought her up for a wife for himself: and the damsel was beautiful.

[8] And because the king's ordinance was published, many damsels were gathered to the city Susa under the hand of Gai; and Esther was brought to Gai the keeper of the women. [9] And the damsel pleased him, and she found favour in his sight; and he hasted to give her the things for purification, and her portion, and the seven maidens appointed her out of the palace: and he treated her and her maidens well in the women's apartment. [10] But Esther discovered not her family nor her kindred: for Mardochaeus had charged her not to tell.

[11] But Mardochaeus used to walk every day by the women's court, to see what would become of Esther. [12] Now this was the time for a virgin to go into the king, when she should have fulfilled twelve months; for so are the days of purification fulfilled, six months while they are anointing themselves with oil of myrrh, and six months with spices and women's purifications. [13] And then the damsel goes in to the king; and the officer to whomsoever he shall give the command, will bring her to come in with him from the women's apartment to the king's chamber. [14] She enters in the evening, and in the morning she departs to the second women's apartment, where Gai the king's chamberlain is keeper of the women: and she goes not in to the king again, unless she should be called by name.

[15] And when the time. was fulfilled for Esther the daughter of Aminadab the brother of Mardochaeus' father to go in to the king, she neglected nothing which the chamberlain, the women's keeper, commanded; for Esther found grace in the sight of all that looked upon her. [16] So Esther went in to king Artaxerxes in the twelfth month, which is Adar, in the seventh year of his reign. [17] And the king loved Esther, and she found favour beyond all the other virgins: and he put on her the queen's crown. [18] And the king made a banquet for all his friends and great men for seven days, and he highly celebrated the marriage of Esther; and he made a release to those who were under his dominion. [19] But Mardochaeus served in the palace. [20] Now Esther had not discovered her kindred; for so Mardochaeus commanded her, to fear God, and perform his commandments, as when she was with him: and Esther changed not her manner of life.

[21] And two chamberlains of the king, the chiefs of the body-guard, were grieved, because Mardochaeus was promoted; and they sought to kill king Artaxerxes. [22] And the matter was discovered to Mardochaeus, and he made it known to Esther, and she declared to the king the matter of the conspiracy. [23] And the king examined the two chamberlains, and hanged them: and the king gave orders to make a note for a memorial in the royal records of the good offices of Mardochaeus, as a commendation.

[1] And after this king Artaxerxes highly honoured Aman son of Amadathes, the Bugaeon, and exalted him, and set his seat above all his friends. [2] And all in the palace did him obeisance, for so the king had given orders to do: but Mardocheaus did not do him obeisance. [3] And they in the king's palace said to Mardocheaus, Mardocheaus, why dost thou transgress the commands of the king?

[4] Thus they spoke daily to him, but he hearkened not unto them; so they represented to Aman that Mardocheaus resisted the commands of the king: and Mardocheaus had shewn to them that he was a Jew. [5] And when Aman understood that Mardocheaus did not obeisance to him, he was greatly enraged, [6] and took counsel to destroy utterly all the Jews who were under the rule of Artaxerxes.

[7] And he made a decree in the twelfth year of the reign of Artaxerxes, and cast lots daily and monthly, to slay in one day the race of Mardocheaus: and the lot fell on the fourteenth day of the month which is Adar. [8] And he spoke to king Artaxerxes, saying, There is a nation scattered among the nations in all thy kingdom, and their laws differ from those of all the other nations; and they disobey the laws of the king; and it is not expedient for the king to let them alone. [9] If it seem good to the king, let him make a decree to destroy them: and I will remit into the king's treasury ten thousand talents of silver. [10] And the king took off his ring, and gave it into the hands of Aman, to seal the decrees against the Jews. [11] And the king said to Aman, Keep the silver, and treat the nation as thou wilt.

[12] So the king's recorders were called in the first month, on the thirteenth day, and they wrote as Aman commanded to the captains and governors in every province, from India even to Ethiopia, to a hundred and twenty-seven provinces; and to the rulers of the nations according to their several languages, in the name of king Artaxerxes. [13] And the message was sent by posts throughout the kingdom of Artaxerxes, to destroy utterly the race of the Jews on the first day of the twelfth month, which is Adar, and to plunder their goods.

And the following is the copy of the letter; The great king Artaxerxes writes thus to the rulers and inferior governors of a hundred and twenty-seven provinces, from India even to Ethiopia, who hold authority under him. Ruling over many nations and having obtained dominion over the whole world, I was minded (not elated by the confidence of power, but ever conducting myself with great moderation and gentleness) to make the lives of my subjects continually tranquil, desiring both to maintain the kingdom quiet and orderly to its utmost limits, and to restore the peace desired by all men. But when I had enquired of my counsellors how this should be brought to pass. Aman, who excels in soundness of judgment among us, and has been manifestly well inclined without wavering and with unshaken fidelity, and had obtained the second post in the kingdom, informed us that a certain ill-disposed people is mixed up with all the tribes throughout the world, opposed in their law to every other nation, and continually neglecting the commands of the king, so that the united government blamelessly administered by us is not quietly established. Having then conceived that this nation alone of all others is continually set in opposition to every man, introducing as a change a foreign code of laws, and injuriously plotting to accomplish the worst of evils against our interests, and against the happy establishment of the monarchy; we signified to you in the letter written by Aman, who is set over the public affairs and is our second governor, to destroy them all utterly with their wives and children by the swords of the enemies, without pitying or sparing any, on the fourteenth day of the twelfth month Adar, of the present year; that the people aforetime and now ill-disposed to us having been violently consigned to death in one day, may hereafter secure to us continually a well constituted and quiet state of affairs.

[14] And the copies of the letters were published in every province; and an order was given to all the nations to be ready against that day. [15] And the business was hastened, and that at Susa: and the king and Aman began to drink; but the city was troubled.

[1] But Mardochaeus having perceived what was done, rent his garments, and put on sackcloth, and sprinkled dust upon himself; and having rushed forth through the open street of the city, he cried with a loud voice, A nation that has done no wrong is going to be destroyed. [2] And he came to the king's gate, and stood; for it was not lawful for him to enter into the palace, wearing sackcloth and ashes. [3] And in every province where the letters were published, there was crying and lamentation and great mourning on the part of the Jews: they spread for themselves sackcloth and ashes.

[4] And the queen's maids and chamberlains went in and told her: and when she had heard what was done, she was disturbed; and she sent to clothe Mardochaeus, and take away his sackcloth; but he consented not. [5] So Esther called for her chamberlain Achrathaeus, who waited upon her; and she sent to learn the truth from Mardochaeus. [6] 7 And Mardochaeus shewed him what was done, and the promise which Aman had made the king of ten thousand talents to be paid into the treasury, that he might destroy the Jews. [8] And he gave him the copy of the writing that was published in Susa concerning their destruction, to shew to Esther; and told him to charge her to go in and intreat the king, and to beg him for the people, remembering, said he, the days of thy low estate, how thou wert nursed by my hand: because Aman who holds the next place to the king has spoken against us for death. Do thou call upon the Lord, and speak to the king concerning us, to deliver us from death.

[9] So Achrathaeus went in and told her all these words. [10] And Esther said to Achrathaeus, Go to Mardochaeus, and say, [11] All the nations of the empire know, that whoever, man or woman, shall go in to the king into the inner court uncalled, that person cannot live: only to whomsoever the king shall stretch out his golden sceptre, he shall live: and I have not been called to go into the king, for these thirty days. [12] And Achrathaeus reported to Mardochaeus all the words of Esther.

[13] Then Mardochaeus said to Achrathaeus, Go, and say to her, Esther, say not to thyself that thou alone wilt escape in the kingdom, more than all the other Jews. [14] For if thou shalt refuse to hearken on this occasion, help and protection will be to the Jews from another quarter; but thou and thy father's house will perish: and who knows, if thou hast been made queen for this very occasion? [15] And Esther sent the man that came to her to Mardochaeus, saying, [16] Go and assemble the Jews that are in Susa, and fast ye for me, and eat not and drink not for three days, night and day: and I also and my maidens will fast; and then I will go in to the king contrary to the law, even if I must die. [17] So Mardochaeus went and did all that Esther commanded him.

[And he besought the Lord, making mention of all the works of the Lord; and he said, Lord God, king ruling over all, for all things are in thy power, and there is no one that shall oppose thee, in thy purpose to save Israel. - For thou hast made the heaven and the earth and every wonderful thing in the world under heaven. And thou art Lord of all, and there is no one who shall resist thee Lord. Thou knowest all things: thou knowest, Lord, that it is not in insolence, nor haughtiness, nor love of glory, that I have done this, to refuse obeisance to the haughty Aman. For I would gladly have kissed the soles of his feet for the safety of Israel. But I have done this, that I might not set the glory of man above the glory of God: and I will not worship any one except thee, my Lord, and I will not do these things in haughtiness. And now, O Lord God, the King, the God of Abraam, spare thy people, for our enemies are looking upon us to our destruction, and they have desired to destroy thine ancient inheritance. Do not overlook thy peculiar people, whom thou hast redeemed for thyself out of the land of Egypt. Harken to my prayer, and be propitious to thine inheritance, and turn our mourning into gladness, that we may live and sing praise to thy name, O Lord; and do not utterly destroy the mouth of them that praise thee, O Lord.

And all Israel cried with all their might, for death was before their eyes. And queen Esther betook herself for refuge to the Lord, being taken as it were in the agony of death. And having taken off her glorious apparel, she put on garments of distress and mourning; and instead of grand perfumes she filled her head with ashes and dung, and she greatly brought down her body, and she filled every place of her glad adorning with the torn curls of her hair.

And she besought the Lord God of Israel, and said, O my Lord, thou alone art our king: help me who am destitute, and have no helper but thee, for my danger is near at hand. I have heard from my birth, in the tribe of my kindred that thou, Lord, tookest Israel out of all the nations, and our fathers out of all their kindred for a perpetual inheritance, and hast wrought for them all that thou hast said. And now we have sinned before thee, and thou hast delivered us into the hands of our enemies, because we honoured their gods: thou art righteous, O Lord. But now they have not been contented with the bitterness of our slavery, but have laid their hands on the hands of their idols, in order to abolish the decree of thy mouth, and utterly to destroy thine inheritances, and to stop the mouth of them that praise thee, and to extinguish the glory of thine house and thine altar, and to open the mouth of the Gentiles to speak the praises of vanities, and in order that a mortal king should be admired for ever.

O Lord, do not resign thy scepter to them that are not, and let them not laugh at our fall, but turn their counsel, against themselves, and make an example of him who has begun to injure us. Remember us, O Lord, manifest thyself in the time of our affliction, and encourage me, O King of gods, and ruler of all dominion. Put harmonious speech into my mouth before the lion, and turn his heart to hate him that fights against us, to the utter destruction of him that consent with him. But deliver us by thine hand, and help me who am destitute, and have none but the, O Lord. Thou knowest all things, and knowest that I hate the glory of transgressors, and that I abhor the couch of the uncircumcised, and of every stranger. Thou knowest my necessity, for I abhor the symbol of my proud station, which is upon my head in the days of my splendour: I abhor it as a menstruous cloth, and I wear it not in the days of my tranquility. And thy handmaid has not eaten at the table of Aman, and I have not honoured the banquet of the king, neither have I drunk wine of libations. Neither has thy handmaid rejoiced since the day of my promotion until now, except in thee, O Lord God of Abraam. O god, who has power over all, hearken to the voice of the desperate, and deliver us from the hand of them that devise mischief; and deliver me from my fear.

[1] And it came to pass on the third day, when she had ceased praying, that she put off her mean dress, and put on her glorious apparel. And being splendidly arrayed, and having called upon God the Overseer and Preserver of all things, she took her two maids, and she leaned upon one, as a delicate female, and the other followed bearing her train. And she was blooming in the perfection of her beauty; and her face was cheerful, and it were benevolent, but her heart was straitened for fear. And having passed through all the doors, she stood before the king: and he was sitting upon his royal throne, and he had put on all his glorious apparel, covered all over with gold and precious stones, and was very terrible. And having raised his face resplendent with glory, he looked with intense anger: and the queen fell, and changed her colour as she fainted; and she bowed herself upon the head of the maid that went before her. But God changed the spirit of the king gentleness, and in intense feeling he sprang from off his throne, and took her into his arms, until she recovered: and he comforted her with peaceable words, and said to her, What is the matter, Esther? I am thy brother; be of good cheer, thou shalt not die, for our command is openly declared to thee, Draw nigh.

[2] And having raised the golden sceptre he laid it upon her neck, and embraced her, and said, Speak to me. And she said to him, I saw thee, my lord, as an angel of God, and my heart was troubled for fear of thy glory; for thou, my lord, art to be wondered at, and thy face is full of grace. And while she was speaking, she fainted and fell. Then the king was troubled, and all his servants comforted her. [3] And the king said, What wilt thou, Esther? and what is thy request? ask even to the half of my kingdom, and it shall be thine. [4] And Esther said, To-day is my great day: if then it seem good to the king, let both him and Aman come to the feast which I will prepare this day. [5] And the king said, Hasten Aman hither, that we may perform the word of Esther. So they both come to the feast of which Esther had spoken.

[6] And at the banquet the king said to Esther, What is thy request, queen Esther? speak, and thou shalt have all that thou requirest. [7] And she said, My request and my petition are: [8] if I have found favour in the sight of the king, let the king and Aman come again to-morrow to the feast which I shall prepare for them, and to-morrow I will do the same.

[9] So Aman went out from the king very glad and merry: but when Aman saw Mardocheaus the Jew in the court, he was greatly enraged. [10] And having gone into his own house, he called his friends, and his wife Zosara. [11] And he shewed them his wealth, and the glory with which the king had invested him, and how he had caused him to take precedence and bear chief rule in the kingdom. [12] And Aman said, The queen has called no one to the feast with the king but me, and I am invited to-morrow. [13] But these things please me not, while I see Mardocheaus the Jew in the court. [14] And Zosara his wife and his friends said to him, Let there be a gallows made for thee of fifty cubits, and in the morning do thou speak to the king, and let Mardochaeus be hanged on the gallows: but do thou go in to the feast with the king, and be merry. And the saying pleased Aman, and the gallows was prepared.

[1] But the Lord removed sleep from the king that night: and he told his servant to bring in the books, the registers of daily events, to read to him. [2] And he found the records written concerning Mardochaeus, how he had told the king concerning the two chamberlains of the king, when they were keeping guard, and sought to lay hands on Artaxerxes.

[3] And the king said, What honour or favour have we done to Mardochaeus? And the king's servants said, Thou hast not done anything to him. [4] And while the king was enquiring about the kindness of Mardochaeus, behold, Aman was in the court. And the king said, Who is in the court? Now Aman was come in to speak to the king, that he should hang Mardochaeus on the gallows, which he had prepared. [5] And the king's servants said, Behold, Aman stands in the court. And the king said, Call him.

[6] And the king said to Aman, What shall I do to the man whom I wish to honour? And Aman said within himself, Whom would the king honour but myself? [7] and he said to the king, As for the man whom the king wishes to honour, [8] let the king's servants bring the robe of fine linen which the king puts on, and the horse on which the king rides, [9] and let him give it to one of the king's noble friends, and let him array the man whom the king loves; and let him mount him on the horse, and proclaim through the street of the city, saying, Thus shall it be done to every man whom the king honours. [10] Then the king said to Aman, Thou hast well said: so do to Mardochaeus the Jew, who waits in the palace, and let not a word of what thou hast spoken be neglected.

[11] So Aman took the robe and the horse, and arrayed Mardochaeus, and mounted him on the horse, and went through the street of the city, and proclaimed, saying, Thus shall it be to every man whom the king wishes to honour.

[12] And Mardochaeus returned to the palace: but Aman went home mourning, and having his head covered. [13] And Aman related the events that had befallen him to Zosara his wife, and to his friends: and his friends and his wife said to him, If Mardochaeus be of the race of the Jews, and thou hast begun to be humbled before him, thou wilt assuredly fall, and thou wilt not be able to withstand him, for the living God is with him. [14] While they were yet speaking, the chamberlains arrived, to hasten Aman to the banquet which Esther had prepared.

[1] So the king and Aman went in to drink with the queen. [2] And the king said to Esther at the banquet on the second day, What is it, queen Esther? and what is thy request, and what is thy petition? and it shall be done for thee, to the half of my kingdom. [3] And she answered and said, If I have found favour in the sight of the king, let my life be granted to my petition, and my people to my request. [4] For both I and my people are sold for destruction, and pillage, and slavery; both we and our children for bondmen and bondwomen: and I consented not to it, for the slanderer is not worthy of the king's palace. [5] And the king said, Who is this that has dared to do this thing? [6] And Esther said, the adversary is Aman, this wicked man. Then Aman was troubled before the king and the queen.

[7] And the king rose up from the banquet to go into the garden: and Aman began to intreat the queen; for he saw that he was in an evil case.

[8] And the king returned from the garden; and Aman had fallen upon the bed, intreating the queen. And the king said, Wilt thou even force my wife in my house? And when Aman heard it, he changed countenance. [9] And Bugathan, one of the chamberlains, said to the king, Behold, Aman has also prepared a gallows for Mardocheaus, who spoke concerning the king, and a gallows of fifty cubits high has been set up in the premises of Aman. And the king said, Let him be hanged thereon. [10] So Aman was hanged on the gallows that had been prepared for Mardocheaus: and then the king's wrath was appeased.

[1] And in that day king Artaxerxes gave to Esther all that belonged to Aman the slanderer: and Mardocheaus was called by the king; for Esther had shewn that he was related to her. [2] And the king took the ring which he had taken away from Aman, and gave it to Mardocheaus: and Esther appointed Mardocheaus over all that had been Aman's.

[3] And she spoke yet again to the king, and fell at his feet, and besought him to do away the mischief of Aman, and all that he had done against the Jews. [4] Then the king stretched out to Esther the golden sceptre: and Esther arose to stand near the king. [5] And Esther said, If it seem good to thee, and I have found favour in thy sight, let an order be sent that the letters sent by Aman may be reversed, that were written for the destruction of the Jews, who are in thy kingdom. [6] For how shall I be able to look upon the affliction of my people, and how shall I be able to survive the destruction of my kindred?

[7] And the king said to Esther, If I have given and freely granted thee all that was Aman's, and hanged him on a gallows, because he laid his hands upon the Jews, what dost thou yet further seek? [8] Write ye also in my name, as it seems good to you, and seal it with my ring: for whatever orders are written at the command of the king, and sealed with my ring, it is not lawful to gainsay them.

[9] So the scribes were called in the first-month, which is Nisan, on the three and twentieth day of the same year; and orders were written to the Jews, whatever the king had commanded to the local governors and chiefs of the satraps, from India even to Ethiopia, a hundred and twenty-seven satraps, according to the several provinces, according to their dialects.

[10] And they were written by order of the king, and sealed with his ring, and they sent the letters by the posts: [11] wherein he charged them to use their own laws in every city, and to help each other, and to treat their adversaries, and those who attacked them, as they pleased, [12] on one day in all the kingdom of Artaxerxes, on the thirteenth day of the twelfth month, which is Adar.

[13] And let the copies be posted in conspicuous places throughout the kingdom, and let all the Jews be ready against this day, to fight against their enemies.

And the following is the copy of the letter of the orders.

[The great king Artaxerxes sends greetings to the rulers of provinces in a hundred and twenty-seven satrapies, from India to Ethiopia, even to those who are faithful to our interests. Many who have been frequently honored by the most abundant kindness of their benefactors have conceived ambitious designs, and not only endeavour to hurt our subjects, but moreover, not being able to bear prosperity, they also endeavour to plot against their own benefactors. And they not only would utterly abolish gratitude from among men, but also, elated by the boastings of men who are strangers to all that is good, they supposed that they shall escape the sin-hating vengeance of the ever-seeing God. And oftentimes evil exhortation has made partakers of the guilt of shedding innocent blood, and has involved in irremediable calamities, many of those who had been appointed to offices of authority, who had been entrusted with the management of their friends' affairs; while men, by the false sophistry of an evil disposition, have deceived the simple candour of the ruling powers. And it is possible to see this, not so much from more ancient traditionary accounts, as it is immediately in your power to see it by examining what things have been wickedly perpetrated by the baseness of men unworthily holding power. And it is right to take heed with regard to the future, that we may maintain the government in undistributed peace for all men, adopting needful changes, and ever judging those cases which come under our notices, with truly equitable decision.

For whereas Aman, a Macedonian, the son of Amadathes, in reality an alien from the blood of the Persians, and differing widely from our mild course of government, having been hospitable entertained by us, obtained so large a share of our universal kindness, as to be called our father, and to continue the person next to the royal throne, revered of all; he however, overcome by the pride of his station, endeavored to deprive us of our dominion, and our life: having by various and subtle artifices demanded for destruction both Mardochaeus our deliverer and perpetual benefactor, and Esther the blameless consort of our kingdom, with their whole nation. For by these methods he thought, having surprised us in a defenceless state, to transfer the dominion of the Persians to the Macedonians. But we find that the Jews, who have been consigned to destruction by the most abominable of men, are not malefactors, but living according to the justest laws, and being the sons of the living God, the most high and mighty, who maintains the kingdom. to us as well as to our forefathers, in the most excellent order.

Ye will therefore do well in refusing to obey the letter sent by Aman the son of Amadathes, because he that has done these things, has been hanged with his whole family at the gates of Susa, Almighty God having swiftly returned to him a worthy recompence, We enjoin you then, having openly published a copy of this letter in every place, to give the Jews permission to use their own lawful customs, and to strengthen them, that on the thirteenth of the twelfth month Adar, on the self-same day, they may defend themselves against those who attack them in a time of affliction. For in the place of the destruction of the chosen race, Almighty God has granted them this time of gladness.

Do ye therefore also, among your notable feasts, keep a distinct day with all festivity, that both now and hereafter it may be a day of deliverance to us and who are well disposed toward the Persians, but to those that plotted against us a memorial of destruction. And every city and province collectively, which shall not do accordingly, shall be consumed with vengeance by spear and fire: it shall be made not only inaccessible to men, but most hateful to wild beasts and birds for ever.] And let the copies be posted in conspicuous places throughout the kingdom and let all the Jews be ready against this day, to fight against their enemies.

[14] So the horsemen went forth with haste to perform the king's commands; and the ordinance was also published in Susa.

[15] And Mardochaeus went forth robed in the royal apparel, and wearing a golden crown, and a diadem of fine purple linen: and the people in Susa saw it and rejoiced. [16] And the Jews had light and gladness, [17] in every city and province wherever the ordinance was published: wherever the proclamation took place, the Jews had joy and gladness, feasting and mirth: and many of the Gentiles were circumcised, and became Jews, for fear of the Jews.

[1] For in the twelfth month, on the thirteenth day of the month which is Adar, the letters written by the king arrived. [2] In that day the adversaries of the Jews perished: for no one resisted, through fear of them. [3] For the chiefs of the satraps, and the princes and the royal scribes, honoured the Jews; for the fear of Mardochaeus lay upon them. [4] For the order of the king was in force, that he should be celebrated in all the kingdom. [5] 6 And in the city Susa the Jews slew five hundred men: [7] both Pharsannes, and Delphon and Phasga, [8] and Pharadatha, and Barea, and Sarbaca, [9] and Marmasima, and Ruphaeus, and Arsaeus, and Zabuthaeus, [10] the ten sons of Aman the son of Amadathes the Bugaeon, the enemy of the Jews, and they plundered their property on the same day: [11] and the number of them that perished in Susa was rendered to the king. [12] And the king said to Esther, The Jews have slain five hundred men in the city Susa; and how, thinkest thou, have they used them in the rest of the country? What then dost thou yet ask, that it may be done for thee?

[13] And Esther said to the king, let it be granted to the Jews so to treat them tomorrow as to hand the ten sons of Aman. [14] And he permitted it to be so done; and he gave up to the Jews of the city the bodies of the sons of Aman to hang. [15] And the Jews assembled in Susa on the fourteenth day of Adar, and slew three hundred men, but plundered no property.

[16] And the rest of the Jews who were in the kingdom assembled, and helped one another, and obtained rest from their enemies: for they destroyed fifteen thousand of them on the thirteenth day of Adar, but took no spoil. [17] And they rested on the fourteenth of the same month, and kept it as a day of rest with joy and gladness. [18] And the Jews in the city Susa assembled also on the fourteenth day and rested; and they kept also the fifteenth with joy and gladness. [19] On this account then it is that the Jews dispersed in every foreign land keep the fourteenth of Adar as a holy day with joy, sending portions each to his neighbour.

[20] And Mardochaeus wrote these things in a book, and sent them to the Jews, as many as were in the kingdom of Artaxerxes, both them that were near and them that were afar off, [21] to establish these as joyful days, and to keep the fourteenth and fifteenth of Adar; [22] for on these days the Jews obtained rest from their enemies; and as to the month, which was Adar, in which a change was made for them, from mourning to joy, and from sorrow to a good day, to spend the whole of it in good days of feasting and gladness, sending portions to their friends, and to the poor.

[23] And the Jews consented to this accordingly as Mardochaeus wrote to them, [24] shewing how Aman the son of Amadathes the Macedonian fought against them, how he made a decree and cast lots to destroy them utterly; [25] also how he went in to the king, telling him to hang Mardochaeus: but all the calamities he tried to bring upon the Jews came upon himself, and he was hanged, and his children. [26] Therefore these days were called Phrurae, because of the lots; (for in their language they are called Phrurae;) because of the words of this letter, and because of all they suffered on this account, and all that happened to them. [27] And Mardochaeus established it, and the Jews took upon themselves, and upon their seed, and upon those that were joined to them to observe it, neither would they on any account behave differently: but these days were to be a memorial kept in every generation, and city, and family, and province. [28] And these days of the Phrurae, said they, shall be kept for ever, and their memorial shall not fail in any generation.

[29] And queen Esther, the daughter of Aminadab, and Mardochaeus the Jew, wrote all that they had done, and the confirmation of the letter of Phrurae. [30] 31 And Mardochaeus and Esther the queen appointed a fast for themselves privately, even at that time also having formed their plan against their own health. [32] And Esther established it by a command for ever, and it was written for a memorial.

[1] And the king levied a tax upon his kingdom both by land and sea. [2] And as for his strength and valour, and the wealth and glory of his kingdom, behold, they are written in the book of the Persians and Medes, for a memorial. [3] And Mardocheaus was viceroy to king Artaxerxes, and was a great man in the kingdom, and honoured by the Jews, and passed his life beloved of all his nation.

I Maccabees

[1] And it happened, after that Alexander son of Philip, the Macedonian, who came out of the land of Chettiim, had smitten Darius king of the Persians and Medes, that he reigned in his stead, the first over Greece, [2] And made many wars, and won many strong holds, and slew the kings of the earth, [3] And went through to the ends of the earth, and took spoils of many nations, insomuch that the earth was quiet before him; whereupon he was exalted and his heart was lifted up. [4] And he gathered a mighty strong host and ruled over countries, and nations, and kings, who became tributaries unto him.

[5] And after these things he fell sick, and perceived that he should die. [6] Wherefore he called his servants, such as were honourable, and had been brought up with him from his youth, and parted his kingdom among them, while he was yet alive. [7] So Alexander reigned twelve years, and then died. [8] And his servants bare rule every one in his place. [9] And after his death they all put crowns upon themselves; so did their sons after them many years: and evils were multiplied in the earth.

[10] And there came out of them a wicked root Antiochus surnamed Epiphanes, son of Antiochus the king, who had been an hostage at Rome, and he reigned in the hundred and thirty and seventh year of the kingdom of the Greeks.

[11] In those days went there out of Israel wicked men, who persuaded many, saying, Let us go and make a covenant with the heathen that are round about us: for since we departed from them we have had much sorrow. [12] So this device pleased them well.

[13] Then certain of the people were so forward herein, that they went to the king, who gave them licence to do after the ordinances of the heathen: [14] Whereupon they built a place of exercise at Jerusalem according to the customs of the heathen: [15] And made themselves uncircumcised, and forsook the holy covenant, and joined themselves to the heathen, and were sold to do mischief.

[16] Now when the kingdom was established before Antiochus, he thought to reign over Egypt that he might have the dominion of two realms. [17] Wherefore he entered into Egypt with a great multitude, with chariots, and elephants, and horsemen, and a great navy, [18] And made war against Ptolemee king of Egypt: but Ptolemee was afraid of him, and fled; and many were wounded to death. [19] Thus they got the strong cities in the land of Egypt and he took the spoils thereof.

[20] And after that Antiochus had smitten Egypt, he returned again in the hundred forty and third year, and went up against Israel and Jerusalem with a great multitude, [21] And entered proudly into the sanctuary, and took away the golden altar, and the candlestick of light, and all the vessels thereof, [22] And the table of the shewbread, and the pouring vessels, and the vials. and the censers of gold, and the veil, and the crown, and the golden ornaments that were before the temple, all which he pulled off. [23] He took also the silver and the gold, and the precious vessels: also he took the hidden treasures which he found.

[24] And when he had taken all away, he went into his own land, having made a great massacre, and spoken very proudly. [25] Therefore there was a great mourning in Israel, in every place where they were; [26] So that the princes and elders mourned, the virgins and young men were made feeble, and the beauty of women was changed. [27] Every bridegroom took up lamentation, and she that sat in the marriage chamber was in heaviness, [28] The land also was moved for the inhabitants thereof, and all the house of Jacob was covered with confusion.

[29] And after two years fully expired the king sent his chief collector of tribute unto the cities of Juda, who came unto Jerusalem with a great multitude, [30] And spake peaceable words unto them, but all was deceit: for when they had given him credence, he fell suddenly upon the city, and smote it very sore, and destroyed much people of Israel. [31] And when he had taken the spoils of the city, he set it on fire, and pulled down the houses and walls thereof on every side. [32] But the women and children took they captive, and possessed the cattle.

[33] Then builded they the city of David with a great and strong wall, and with mighty towers, and made it a strong hold for them. [34] And they put therein a sinful nation, wicked men, and fortified themselves therein. [35] They stored it also with armour and victuals, and when they had gathered together the spoils of Jerusalem, they laid them up there, and so they became a sore snare: [36] For it was a place to lie in wait against the sanctuary, and an evil adversary to Israel.

[37] Thus they shed innocent blood on every side of the sanctuary, and defiled it: [38] Insomuch that the inhabitants of Jerusalem fled because of them: whereupon the city was made an habitation of strangers, and became strange to those that were born in her; and her own children left her. [39] Her sanctuary was laid waste like a wilderness, her feasts were turned into mourning, her sabbaths into reproach her honour into contempt. [40] As had been her glory, so was her dishonour increased, and her excellency was turned into mourning.

[41] Moreover king Antiochus wrote to his whole kingdom, that all should be one people, [42] And every one should leave his laws: so all the heathen agreed according to the commandment of the king. [43] Yea, many also of the Israelites consented to his religion, and sacrificed unto idols, and profaned the sabbath.

[44] For the king had sent letters by messengers unto Jerusalem and the cities of Juda that they should follow the strange laws of the land, [45] And forbid burnt offerings, and sacrifice, and drink offerings, in the temple; and that they should profane the sabbaths and festival days: [46] And pollute the sanctuary and holy people: [47] Set up altars, and groves, and chapels of idols, and sacrifice swine's flesh, and unclean beasts: [48] That they should also leave their children uncircumcised, and make their souls abominable with all manner of uncleanness and profanation: [49] To the end they might forget the law, and change all the ordinances.

[50] And whosoever would not do according to the commandment of the king, he said, he should die. [51] In the selfsame manner wrote he to his whole kingdom, and appointed overseers over all the people, commanding the cities of Juda to sacrifice, city by city.

[52] Then many of the people were gathered unto them, to wit every one that forsook the law; and so they committed evils in the land; [53] And drove the Israelites into secret places, even wheresoever they could flee for succour.

[54] Now the fifteenth day of the month Casleu, in the hundred forty and fifth year, they set up the abomination of desolation upon the altar, and builded idol altars throughout the cities of Juda on every side; [55] And burnt incense at the doors of their houses, and in the streets.

[56] And when they had rent in pieces the books of the law which they found, they burnt them with fire. [57] And whosoever was found with any the book of the testament, or if any committed to the law, the king's commandment was, that they should put him to death. [58] Thus did they by their authority unto the Israelites every month, to as many as were found in the cities. [59] Now the five and twentieth day of the month they did sacrifice upon the idol altar, which was upon the altar of God.

[60] At which time according to the commandment they put to death certain women, that had caused their children to be circumcised.

[61] And they hanged the infants about their necks, and rifled their houses, and slew them that had circumcised them. [62] Howbeit many in Israel were fully resolved and confirmed in themselves not to eat any unclean thing.

[63] Wherefore the rather to die, that they might not be defiled with meats, and that they might not profane the holy covenant: so then they died. [64] And there was very great wrath upon Israel.

[1] In those days arose Mattathias the son of John, the son of Simeon, a priest of the sons of Joarib, from Jerusalem, and dwelt in Modin. [2] And he had five sons, Joannan, called Caddis: [3] Simon; called Thassi: [4] Judas, who was called Maccabeus: [5] Eleazar, called Avaran: and Jonathan, whose surname was Apphus.

[6] And when he saw the blasphemies that were committed in Juda and Jerusalem, [7] He said, Woe is me! wherefore was I born to see this misery of my people, and of the holy city, and to dwell there, when it was delivered into the hand of the enemy, and the sanctuary into the hand of strangers?

[8] Her temple is become as a man without glory. [9] Her glorious vessels are carried away into captivity, her infants are slain in the streets, her young men with the sword of the enemy. [10] What nation hath not had a part in her kingdom and gotten of her spoils? [11] All her ornaments are taken away; of a free woman she is become a bondslave. [12] And, behold, our sanctuary, even our beauty and our glory, is laid waste, and the Gentiles have profaned it. [13] To what end therefore shall we live any longer?

[14] Then Mattathias and his sons rent their clothes, and put on sackcloth, and mourned very sore.

[15] In the mean while the king's officers, such as compelled the people to revolt, came into the city Modin, to make them sacrifice. [16] And when many of Israel came unto them, Mattathias also and his sons came together.

[17] Then answered the king's officers, and said to Mattathias on this wise, Thou art a ruler, and an honourable and great man in this city, and strengthened with sons and brethren: [18] Now therefore come thou first, and fulfil the king's commandment, like as all the heathen have done, yea, and the men of Juda also, and such as remain at Jerusalem: so shalt thou and thy house be in the number of the king's friends, and thou and thy children shall be honoured with silver and gold, and many rewards.

[19] Then Mattathias answered and spake with a loud voice, Though all the nations that are under the king's dominion obey him, and fall away every one from the religion of their fathers, and give consent to his commandments: [20] Yet will I and my sons and my brethren walk in the covenant of our fathers. [21] God forbid that we should forsake the law and the ordinances. [22] We will not hearken to the king's words, to go from our religion, either on the right hand, or the left.

[23] Now when he had left speaking these words, there came one of the Jews in the sight of all to sacrifice on the altar which was at Modin, according to the king's commandment. [24] Which thing when Mattathias saw, he was inflamed with zeal, and his reins trembled, neither could he forbear to shew his anger according to judgment: wherefore he ran, and slew him upon the altar.

[25] Also the king's commissioner, who compelled men to sacrifice, he killed at that time, and the altar he pulled down. [26] Thus dealt he zealously for the law of God like as Phinees did unto Zambri the son of Salom.

[27] And Mattathias cried throughout the city with a loud voice, saying, Whosoever is zealous of the law, and maintaineth the covenant, let him follow me. [28] So he and his sons fled into the mountains, and left all that ever they had in the city.

[29] Then many that sought after justice and judgment went down into the wilderness, to dwell there: [30] Both they, and their children, and their wives; and their cattle; because afflictions increased sore upon them.

[31] Now when it was told the king's servants, and the host that was at Jerusalem, in the city of David, that certain men, who had broken the king's commandment, were gone down into the secret places in the wilderness, [32] They pursued after them a great number, and having overtaken them, they camped against them, and made war against them on the sabbath day. [33] And they said unto them, Let that which ye have done hitherto suffice; come forth, and do according to the commandment of the king, and ye shall live.

[34] But they said, We will not come forth, neither will we do the king's commandment, to profane the sabbath day. [35] So then they gave them the battle with all speed. [36] Howbeit they answered them not, neither cast they a stone at them, nor stopped the places where they lay hid; [37] But said, Let us die all in our innocency: heaven and earth will testify for us, that ye put us to death wrongfully. [38] So they rose up against them in battle on the sabbath, and they slew them, with their wives and children and their cattle, to the number of a thousand people.

[39] Now when Mattathias and his friends understood hereof, they mourned for them right sore. [40] And one of them said to another, If we all do as our brethren have done, and fight not for our lives and laws against the heathen, they will now quickly root us out of the earth.

[41] At that time therefore they decreed, saying, Whosoever shall come to make battle with us on the sabbath day, we will fight against him; neither will we die all, as our brethren that were murdered in the secret places.

[42] Then came there unto him a company of Assideans who were mighty men of Israel, even all such as were voluntarily devoted unto the law. [43] Also all they that fled for persecution joined themselves unto them, and were a stay unto them. [44] So they joined their forces, and smote sinful men in their anger, and wicked men in their wrath: but the rest fled to the heathen for succour.

[45] Then Mattathias and his friends went round about, and pulled down the altars: [46] And what children soever they found within the coast of Israel uncircumcised, those they circumcised valiantly. [47] They pursued also after the proud men, and the work prospered in their hand. [48] So they recovered the law out of the hand of the Gentiles, and out of the hand of kings, neither suffered they the sinner to triumph.

[49] Now when the time drew near that Mattathias should die, he said unto his sons, Now hath pride and rebuke gotten strength, and the time of destruction, and the wrath of indignation: [50] Now therefore, my sons, be ye zealous for the law, and give your lives for the covenant of your fathers. [51] Call to remembrance what acts our fathers did in their time; so shall ye receive great honour and an everlasting name. [52] Was not Abraham found faithful in temptation, and it was imputed unto him for righteousness? [53] Joseph in the time of his distress kept the commandment and was made lord of Egypt. [54] Phinees our father in being zealous and fervent obtained the covenant of an everlasting priesthood.

[55] Jesus for fulfilling the word was made a judge in Israel. [56] Caleb for bearing witness before the congregation received the heritage of the land. [57] David for being merciful possessed the throne of an everlasting kingdom. [58] Elias for being zealous and fervent for the law was taken up into heaven. [59] Ananias, Azarias, and Misael, by believing were saved out of the flame. [60] Daniel for his innocency was delivered from the mouth of lions. [61] And thus consider ye throughout all ages, that none that put their trust in him shall be overcome. [62] Fear not then the words of a sinful man: for his glory shall be dung and worms. [63] To day he shall be lifted up and to morrow he shall not be found, because he is returned into his dust, and his thought is come to nothing.

[64] Wherefore, ye my sons, be valiant and shew yourselves men in the behalf of the law; for by it shall ye obtain glory. [65] And behold, I know that your brother Simon is a man of counsel, give ear unto him alway: he shall be a father unto you. [66] As for Judas Maccabeus, he hath been mighty and strong, even from his youth up: let him be your captain, and fight the battle of the people.

[67] Take also unto you all those that observe the law, and avenge ye the wrong of your people. [68] Recompense fully the heathen, and take heed to the commandments of the law. [69] So he blessed them, and was gathered to his fathers. [70] And he died in the hundred forty and sixth year, and his sons buried him in the sepulchres of his fathers at Modin, and all Israel made great lamentation for him.

[1] Then his son Judas, called Maccabeus, rose up in his stead. [2] And all his brethren helped him, and so did all they that held with his father, and they fought with cheerfulness the battle of Israel. [3] So he gat his people great honour, and put on a breastplate as a giant, and girt his warlike harness about him, and he made battles, protecting the host with his sword.

[4] In his acts he was like a lion, and like a lion's whelp roaring for his prey. [5] For He pursued the wicked, and sought them out, and burnt up those that vexed his people. [6] Wherefore the wicked shrunk for fear of him, and all the workers of iniquity were troubled, because salvation prospered in his hand.

[7] He grieved also many kings, and made Jacob glad with his acts, and his memorial is blessed for ever. [8] Moreover he went through the cities of Juda, destroying the ungodly out of them, and turning away wrath from Israel: [9] So that he was renowned unto the utmost part of the earth, and he received unto him such as were ready to perish.

[10] Then Apollonius gathered the Gentiles together, and a great host out of Samaria, to fight against Israel. [11] Which thing when Judas perceived, he went forth to meet him, and so he smote him, and slew him: many also fell down slain, but the rest fled. [12] Wherefore Judas took their spoils, and Apollonius' sword also, and therewith he fought all his life long.

[13] Now when Seron, a prince of the army of Syria, heard say that Judas had gathered unto him a multitude and company of the faithful to go out with him to war; [14] He said, I will get me a name and honour in the kingdom; for I will go fight with Judas and them that are with him, who despise the king's commandment. [15] So he made him ready to go up, and there went with him a mighty host of the ungodly to help him, and to be avenged of the children of Israel. [16] And when he came near to the going up of Bethhoron, Judas went forth to meet him with a small company: [17] Who, when they saw the host coming to meet them, said unto Judas, How shall we be able, being so few, to fight against so great a multitude and so strong, seeing we are ready to faint with fasting all this day?

[18] Unto whom Judas answered, It is no hard matter for many to be shut up in the hands of a few; and with the God of heaven it is all one, to deliver with a great multitude, or a small company: [19] For the victory of battle standeth not in the multitude of an host; but strength cometh from heaven. [20] They come against us in much pride and iniquity to destroy us, and our wives and children, and to spoil us: [21] But we fight for our lives and our laws. [22] Wherefore the Lord himself will overthrow them before our face: and as for you, be ye not afraid of them.

[23] Now as soon as he had left off speaking, he leapt suddenly upon them, and so Seron and his host was overthrown before him. [24] And they pursued them from the going down of Bethhoron unto the plain, where were slain about eight hundred men of them; and the residue fled into the land of the Philistines. [25] Then began the fear of Judas and his brethren, and an exceeding great dread, to fall upon the nations round about them: [26] Inasmuch as his fame came unto the king, and all nations talked of the battles of Judas.

[27] Now when king Antiochus heard these things, he was full of indignation: wherefore he sent and gathered together all the forces of his realm, even a very strong army. [28] He opened also his treasure, and gave his soldiers pay for a year, commanding them to be ready whensoever he should need them.

[29] Nevertheless, when he saw that the money of his treasures failed and that the tributes in the country were small, because of the dissension and plague, which he had brought upon the land in taking away the laws which had been of old time; [30] He feared that he should not be able to bear the charges any longer, nor to have such gifts to give so liberally as he did before: for he had abounded above the kings that were before him.

[31] Wherefore, being greatly perplexed in his mind, he determined to go into Persia, there to take the tributes of the countries, and to gather much money. [32] So he left Lysias, a nobleman, and one of the blood royal, to oversee the affairs of the king from the river Euphrates unto the borders of Egypt: [33] And to bring up his son Antiochus, until he came again.

[34] Moreover he delivered unto him the half of his forces, and the elephants, and gave him charge of all things that he would have done, as also concerning them that dwelt in Juda and Jerusalem: [35] To wit, that he should send an army against them, to destroy and root out the strength of Israel, and the remnant of Jerusalem, and to take away their memorial from that place; [36] And that he should place strangers in all their quarters, and divide their land by lot. [37] So the king took the half of the forces that remained, and departed from Antioch, his royal city, the hundred forty and seventh year; and having passed the river Euphrates, he went through the high countries.

[38] Then Lysias chose Ptolemee the son of Dorymenes, Nicanor, and Gorgias, mighty men of the king's friends: [39] And with them he sent forty thousand footmen, and seven thousand horsemen, to go into the land of Juda, and to destroy it, as the king commanded. [40] So they went forth with all their power, and came and pitched by Emmaus in the plain country.

[41] And the merchants of the country, hearing the fame of them, took silver and gold very much, with servants, and came into the camp to buy the children of Israel for slaves: a power also of Syria and of the land of the Philistines joined themselves unto them.

[42] Now when Judas and his brethren saw that miseries were multiplied, and that the forces did encamp themselves in their borders: for they knew how the king had given commandment to destroy the people, and utterly abolish them; [43] They said one to another, Let us restore the decayed fortune of our people, and let us fight for our people and the sanctuary.

[44] Then was the congregation gathered together, that they might be ready for battle, and that they might pray, and ask mercy and compassion.

[45] Now Jerusalem lay void as a wilderness, there was none of her children that went in or out: the sanctuary also was trodden down, and aliens kept the strong hold; the heathen had their habitation in that place; and joy was taken from Jacob, and the pipe with the harp ceased. [46] Wherefore the Israelites assembled themselves together, and came to Maspha, over against Jerusalem; for in Maspha was the place where they prayed aforetime in Israel.

[47] Then they fasted that day, and put on sackcloth, and cast ashes upon their heads, and rent their clothes, [48] And laid open the book of the law, wherein the heathen had sought to paint the likeness of their images. [49] They brought also the priests' garments, and the firstfruits, and the tithes: and the Nazarites they stirred up, who had accomplished their days.

[50] Then cried they with a loud voice toward heaven, saying, What shall we do with these, and whither shall we carry them away? [51] For thy sanctuary is trodden down and profaned, and thy priests are in heaviness, and brought low. [52] And lo, the heathen are assembled together against us to destroy us: what things they imagine against us, thou knowest. [53] How shall we be able to stand against them, except thou, O God, be our help? [54] Then sounded they with trumpets, and cried with a loud voice.

[55] And after this Judas ordained captains over the people, even captains over thousands, and over hundreds, and over fifties, and over tens. [56] But as for such as were building houses, or had betrothed wives, or were planting vineyards, or were fearful, those he commanded that they should return, every man to his own house, according to the law.

[57] So the camp removed, and pitched upon the south side of Emmaus. [58] And Judas said, arm yourselves, and be valiant men, and see that ye be in readiness against the morning, that ye may fight with these nations, that are assembled together against us to destroy us and our sanctuary: [59] For it is better for us to die in battle, than to behold the calamities of our people and our sanctuary. [60] Nevertheless, as the will of God is in heaven, so let him do.

[1] Then took Gorgias five thousand footmen, and a thousand of the best horsemen, and removed out of the camp by night; [2] To the end he might rush in upon the camp of the Jews, and smite them suddenly. And the men of the fortress were his guides. [3] Now when Judas heard thereof he himself removed, and the valiant men with him, that he might smite the king's army which was at Emmaus, [4] While as yet the forces were dispersed from the camp.

[5] In the mean season came Gorgias by night into the camp of Judas: and when he found no man there, he sought them in the mountains: for said he, These fellows flee from us

[6] But as soon as it was day, Judas shewed himself in the plain with three thousand men, who nevertheless had neither armour nor swords to their minds. [7] And they saw the camp of the heathen, that it was strong and well harnessed, and compassed round about with horsemen; and these were expert of war.

[8] Then said Judas to the men that were with him, Fear ye not their multitude, neither be ye afraid of their assault. [9] Remember how our fathers were delivered in the Red sea, when Pharaoh pursued them with an army. [10] Now therefore let us cry unto heaven, if peradventure the Lord will have mercy upon us, and remember the covenant of our fathers, and destroy this host before our face this day: [11] That so all the heathen may know that there is one who delivereth and saveth Israel.

[12] Then the strangers lifted up their eyes, and saw them coming over against them. [13] Wherefore they went out of the camp to battle; but they that were with Judas sounded their trumpets. [14] So they joined battle, and the heathen being discomfited fled into the plain. [15] Howbeit all the hindmost of them were slain with the sword: for they pursued them unto Gazera, and unto the plains of Idumea, and Azotus, and Jamnia, so that there were slain of them upon a three thousand men.

[16] This done, Judas returned again with his host from pursuing them, [17] And said to the people, Be not greedy of the spoil inasmuch as there is a battle before us, [18] And Gorgias and his host are here by us in the mountain: but stand ye now against our enemies, and overcome them, and after this ye may boldly take the spoils.

[19] As Judas was yet speaking these words, there appeared a part of them looking out of the mountain: [20] Who when they perceived that the Jews had put their host to flight and were burning the tents; for the smoke that was seen declared what was done: [21] When therefore they perceived these things, they were sore afraid, and seeing also the host of Judas in the plain ready to fight, [22] They fled every one into the land of strangers. [23] Then Judas returned to spoil the tents, where they got much gold, and silver, and blue silk, and purple of the sea, and great riches. [24] After this they went home, and sung a song of thanksgiving, and praised the Lord in heaven: because it is good, because his mercy endureth forever. [25] Thus Israel had a great deliverance that day.

[26] Now all the strangers that had escaped came and told Lysias what had happened: [27] Who, when he heard thereof, was confounded and discouraged, because neither such things as he would were done unto Israel, nor such things as the king commanded him were come to pass.

[28] The next year therefore following Lysias gathered together threescore thousand choice men of foot, and five thousand horsemen, that he might subdue them. [29] So they came into Idumea, and pitched their tents at Bethsura, and Judas met them with ten thousand men.

[30] And when he saw that mighty army, he prayed and said, Blessed art thou, O Saviour of Israel, who didst quell the violence of the mighty man by the hand of thy servant David, and gavest the host of strangers into the hands of Jonathan the son of Saul, and his armourbearer; [31] Shut up this army in the hand of thy people Israel, and let them be confounded in their power and horsemen: [32] Make them to be of no courage, and cause the boldness of their strength to fall away, and let them quake at their destruction: [33] Cast them down with the sword of them that love thee, and let all those that know thy name praise thee with thanksgiving.

[34] So they joined battle; and there were slain of the host of Lysias about five thousand men, even before them were they slain.

[35] Now when Lysias saw his army put to flight, and the manliness of Judas' soldiers, and how they were ready either to live or die valiantly, he went into Antiochia, and gathered together a company of strangers, and having made his army greater than it was, he purposed to come again into Judea.

[36] Then said Judas and his brethren, Behold, our enemies are discomfited: let us go up to cleanse and dedicate the sanctuary. [37] Upon this all the host assembled themselves together, and went up into mount Sion. [38] And when they saw the sanctuary desolate, and the altar profaned, and the gates burned up, and shrubs growing in the courts as in a forest, or in one of the mountains, yea, and the priests' chambers pulled down; [39] They rent their clothes, and made great lamentation, and cast ashes upon their heads, [40] And fell down flat to the ground upon their faces, and blew an alarm with the trumpets, and cried toward heaven.

[41] Then Judas appointed certain men to fight against those that were in the fortress, until he had cleansed the sanctuary. [42] So he chose priests of blameless conversation, such as had pleasure in the law: [43] Who cleansed the sanctuary, and bare out the defiled stones into an unclean place. [44] And when as they consulted what to do with the altar of burnt offerings, which was profaned; [45] They thought it best to pull it down, lest it should be a reproach to them, because the heathen had defiled it: wherefore they pulled it down, [46] And laid up the stones in the mountain of the temple in a convenient place, until there should come a prophet to shew what should be done with them.

[47] Then they took whole stones according to the law, and built a new altar according to the former; [48] And made up the sanctuary, and the things that were within the temple, and hallowed the courts. [49] They made also new holy vessels, and into the temple they brought the candlestick, and the altar of burnt offerings, and of incense, and the table.

[50] And upon the altar they burned incense, and the lamps that were upon the candlestick they lighted, that they might give light in the temple. [51] Furthermore they set the loaves upon the table, and spread out the veils, and finished all the works which they had begun to make.

[52] Now on the five and twentieth day of the ninth month, which is called the month Casleu, in the hundred forty and eighth year, they rose up betimes in the morning, [53] And offered sacrifice according to the law upon the new altar of burnt offerings, which they had made. [54] Look, at what time and what day the heathen had profaned it, even in that was it dedicated with songs, and citherns, and harps, and cymbals. [55] Then all the people fell upon their faces, worshipping and praising the God of heaven, who had given them good success.

[56] And so they kept the dedication of the altar eight days and offered burnt offerings with gladness, and sacrificed the sacrifice of deliverance and praise. [57] They decked also the forefront of the temple with crowns of gold, and with shields; and the gates and the chambers they renewed, and hanged doors upon them. [58] Thus was there very great gladness among the people, for that the reproach of the heathen was put away.

[59] Moreover Judas and his brethren with the whole congregation of Israel ordained, that the days of the dedication of the altar should be kept in their season from year to year by the space of eight days, from the five and twentieth day of the month Casleu, with mirth and gladness. [60] At that time also they builded up the mount Sion with high walls and strong towers round about, lest the Gentiles should come and tread it down as they had done before. [61] And they set there a garrison to keep it, and fortified Bethsura to preserve it; that the people might have a defence against Idumea.

[1] Now when the nations round about heard that the altar was built and the sanctuary renewed as before, it displeased them very much. [2] Wherefore they thought to destroy the generation of Jacob that was among them, and thereupon they began to slay and destroy the people.

[3] Then Judas fought against the children of Esau in Idumea at Arabattine, because they besieged Gael: and he gave them a great overthrow, and abated their courage, and took their spoils. [4] Also he remembered the injury of the children of Bean, who had been a snare and an offence unto the people, in that they lay in wait for them in the ways. [5] He shut them up therefore in the towers, and encamped against them, and destroyed them utterly, and burned the towers of that place with fire, and all that were therein.

[6] Afterward he passed over to the children of Ammon, where he found a mighty power, and much people, with Timotheus their captain. [7] So he fought many battles with them, till at length they were discomfited before him; and he smote them. [8] And when he had taken Jazar, with the towns belonging thereto, he returned into Judea.

[9] Then the heathen that were at Galaad assembled themselves together against the Israelites that were in their quarters, to destroy them; but they fled to the fortress of Dathema. [10] And sent letters unto Judas and his brethren, The heathen that are round about us are assembled together against us to destroy us: [11] And they are preparing to come and take the fortress whereunto we are fled, Timotheus being captain of their host.

[12] Come now therefore, and deliver us from their hands, for many of us are slain: [13] Yea, all our brethren that were in the places of Tobie are put to death: their wives and their children also they have carried away captives, and borne away their stuff; and they have destroyed there about a thousand men.

[14] While these letters were yet reading, behold, there came other messengers from Galilee with their clothes rent, who reported on this wise, [15] And said, They of Ptolemais, and of Tyrus, and Sidon, and all Galilee of the Gentiles, are assembled together against us to consume us.

[16] Now when Judas and the people heard these words, there assembled a great congregation together, to consult what they should do for their brethren, that were in trouble, and assaulted of them. [17] Then said Judas unto Simon his brother, Choose thee out men, and go and deliver thy brethren that are in Galilee, for I and Jonathan my brother will go into the country of Galaad.

[18] So he left Joseph the son of Zacharias, and Azarias, captains of the people, with the remnant of the host in Judea to keep it. [19] Unto whom he gave commandment, saying, Take ye the charge of this people, and see that ye make not war against the heathen until the time that we come again. [20] Now unto Simon were given three thousand men to go into Galilee, and unto Judas eight thousand men for the country of Galaad.

[21] Then went Simon into Galilee, where he fought many battles with the heathen, so that the heathen were discomfited by him. [22] And he pursued them unto the gate of Ptolemais; and there were slain of the heathen about three thousand men, whose spoils he took. [23] And those that were in Galilee, and in Arbattis, with their wives and their children, and all that they had, took he away with him, and brought them into Judea with great joy.

[24] Judas Maccabeus also and his brother Jonathan went over Jordan, and travelled three days' journey in the wilderness, [25] Where they met with the Nabathites, who came unto them in a peaceable manner, and told them every thing that had happened to their brethren in the land of Galaad: [26] And how that many of them were shut up in Bosora, and Bosor, and Alema, Casphor, Maked, and Carnaim; all these cities are strong and great: [27] And that they were shut up in the rest of the cities of the country of Galaad, and that against to morrow they had appointed to bring their host against the forts, and to take them, and to destroy them all in one day.

[28] Hereupon Judas and his host turned suddenly by the way of the wilderness unto Bosora; and when he had won the city, he slew all the males with the edge of the sword, and took all their spoils, and burned the city with fire, [29] From whence he removed by night, and went till he came to the fortress.

[30] And betimes in the morning they looked up, and, behold, there was an innumerable people bearing ladders and other engines of war, to take the fortress: for they assaulted them. [31] When Judas therefore saw that the battle was begun, and that the cry of the city went up to heaven, with trumpets, and a great sound, [32] He said unto his host, Fight this day for your brethren. [33] So he went forth behind them in three companies, who sounded their trumpets, and cried with prayer.

[34] Then the host of Timotheus, knowing that it was Maccabeus, fled from him: wherefore he smote them with a great slaughter; so that there were killed of them that day about eight thousand men. [35] This done, Judas turned aside to Maspha; and after he had assaulted it he took and slew all the males therein, and received the spoils thereof and burnt it with fire. [36] From thence went he, and took Casphon, Maged, Bosor, and the other cities of the country of Galaad.

[37] After these things gathered Timotheus another host and encamped against Raphon beyond the brook. [38] So Judas sent men to espy the host, who brought him word, saying, All the heathen that be round about us are assembled unto them, even a very great host. [39] He hath also hired the Arabians to help them and they have pitched their tents beyond the brook, ready to come and fight against thee. Upon this Judas went to meet them.

[40] Then Timotheus said unto the captains of his host, When Judas and his host come near the brook, if he pass over first unto us, we shall not be able to withstand him; for he will mightily prevail against us: [41] But if he be afraid, and camp beyond the river, we shall go over unto him, and prevail against

[42] Now when Judas came near the brook, he caused the scribes of the people to remain by the brook: unto whom he gave commandment, saying, Suffer no man to remain in the camp, but let all come to the battle. [43] So he went first over unto them, and all the people after him: then all the heathen, being discomfited before him, cast away their weapons, and fled unto the temple that was at Carnaim. [44] But they took the city, and burned the temple with all that were therein. Thus was Carnaim subdued, neither could they stand any longer before Judas.

[45] Then Judas gathered together all the Israelites that were in the country of Galaad, from the least unto the greatest, even their wives, and their children, and their stuff, a very great host, to the end they might come into the land of Judea. [46] Now when they came unto Ephron, (this was a great city in the way as they should go, very well fortified) they could not turn from it, either on the right hand or the left, but must needs pass through the midst of it. [47] Then they of the city shut them out, and stopped up the gates with stones. [48] Whereupon Judas sent unto them in peaceable manner, saying, Let us pass through your land to go into our own country, and none shall do you any hurt; we will only pass through on foot: howbeit they would not open unto him.

[49] Wherefore Judas commanded a proclamation to be made throughout the host, that every man should pitch his tent in the place where he was. [50] So the soldiers pitched, and assaulted the city all that day and all that night, till at the length the city was delivered into his hands: [51] Who then slew all the males with the edge of the sword, and rased the city, and took the spoils thereof, and passed through the city over them that were slain.

[52] After this went they over Jordan into the great plain before Bethsan. [53] And Judas gathered together those that came behind, and exhorted the people all the way through, till they came into the land of Judea. [54] So they went up to mount Sion with joy and gladness, where they offered burnt offerings, because not one of them were slain until they had returned in peace.

[55] Now what time as Judas and Jonathan were in the land of Galaad, and Simon his brother in Galilee before Ptolemais, [56] Joseph the son of Zacharias, and Azarias, captains of the garrisons, heard of the valiant acts and warlike deeds which they had done. [57] Wherefore they said, Let us also get us a name, and go fight against the heathen that are round about us.

[58] So when they had given charge unto the garrison that was with them, they went toward Jamnia. [59] Then came Gorgias and his men out of the city to fight against them. [60] And so it was, that Joseph and Azarias were put to flight, and pursued unto the borders of Judea: and there were slain that day of the people of Israel about two thousand men. [61] Thus was there a great overthrow among the children of Israel, because they were not obedient unto Judas and his brethren, but thought to do some valiant act. [62] Moreover these men came not of the seed of those, by whose hand deliverance was given unto Israel. [63] Howbeit the man Judas and his brethren were greatly renowned in the sight of all Israel, and of all the heathen, wheresoever their name was heard of; [64] Insomuch as the people assembled unto them with joyful acclamations.

[65] Afterward went Judas forth with his brethren, and fought against the children of Esau in the land toward the south, where he smote Hebron, and the towns thereof, and pulled down the fortress of it, and burned the towers thereof round about. [66] From thence he removed to go into the land of the Philistines, and passed through Samaria.

[67] At that time certain priests, desirous to shew their valour, were slain in battle, for that they went out to fight unadvisedly. [68] So Judas turned to Azotus in the land of the Philistines, and when he had pulled down their altars, and burned their carved images with fire, and spoiled their cities, he returned into the land of Judea.

[1] About that time king Antiochus travelling through the high countries heard say, that Elymais in the country of Persia was a city greatly renowned for riches, silver, and gold; [2] And that there was in it a very rich temple, wherein were coverings of gold, and breastplates, and shields, which Alexander, son of Philip, the Macedonian king, who reigned first among the Grecians, had left there. [3] Wherefore he came and sought to take the city, and to spoil it; but he was not able, because they of the city, having had warning thereof, [4] Rose up against him in battle: so he fled, and departed thence with great heaviness, and returned to Babylon.

[5] Moreover there came one who brought him tidings into Persia, that the armies, which went against the land of Judea, were put to flight: [6] And that Lysias, who went forth first with a great power was driven away of the Jews; and that they were made strong by the armour, and power, and store of spoils, which they had gotten of the armies, whom they had destroyed: [7] Also that they had pulled down the abomination, which he had set up upon the altar in Jerusalem, and that they had compassed about the sanctuary with high walls, as before, and his city Bethsura.

[8] Now when the king heard these words, he was astonished and sore moved: whereupon he laid him down upon his bed, and fell sick for grief, because it had not befallen him as he looked for. [9] And there he continued many days: for his grief was ever more and more, and he made account that he should die. [10] Wherefore he called for all his friends, and said unto them, The sleep is gone from mine eyes, and my heart faileth for very care. [11] And I thought with myself, Into what tribulation am I come, and how great a flood of misery is it, wherein now I am! for I was bountiful and beloved in my power. [12] But now I remember the evils that I did at Jerusalem, and that I took all the vessels of gold and silver that were therein, and sent to destroy the inhabitants of Judea without a cause. [13] I perceive therefore that for this cause these troubles are come upon me, and, behold, I perish through great grief in a strange land.

[14] Then called he for Philip, one of his friends, who he made ruler over all his realm, [15] And gave him the crown, and his robe, and his signet, to the end he should bring up his son Antiochus, and nourish him up for the kingdom. [16] So king Antiochus died there in the hundred forty and ninth year. [17] Now when Lysias knew that the king was dead, he set up Antiochus his son, whom he had brought up being young, to reign in his stead, and his name he called Eupator.

[18] About this time they that were in the tower shut up the Israelites round about the sanctuary, and sought always their hurt, and the strengthening of the heathen. [19] Wherefore Judas, purposing to destroy them, called all the people together to besiege them. [20] So they came together, and besieged them in the hundred and fiftieth year, and he made mounts for shot against them, and other engines.

[21] Howbeit certain of them that were besieged got forth, unto whom some ungodly men of Israel joined themselves: [22] And they went unto the king, and said, How long will it be ere thou execute judgment, and avenge our brethren? [23] We have been willing to serve thy father, and to do as he would have us, and to obey his commandments; [24] For which cause they of our nation besiege the tower, and are alienated from us: moreover as many of us as they could light on they slew, and spoiled our inheritance.

[25] Neither have they stretched out their hand against us only, but also against their borders. [26] And, behold, this day are they besieging the tower at Jerusalem, to take it: the sanctuary also and Bethsura have they fortified. [27] Wherefore if thou dost not prevent them quickly, they will do the greater things than these, neither shalt thou be able to rule them.

[28] Now when the king heard this, he was angry, and gathered together all his friends, and the captains of his army, and those that had charge of the horse. [29] There came also unto him from other kingdoms, and from isles of the sea, bands of hired soldiers. [30] So that the number of his army was an hundred thousand footmen, and twenty thousand horsemen, and two and thirty elephants exercised in battle. [31] These went through Idumea, and pitched against Bethsura, which they assaulted many days, making engines of war; but they of Bethsura came out, and burned them with fire, and fought valiantly.

[32] Upon this Judas removed from the tower, and pitched in Bathzacharias, over against the king's camp. [33] Then the king rising very early marched fiercely with his host toward Bathzacharias, where his armies made them ready to battle, and sounded the trumpets.

[34] And to the end they might provoke the elephants to fight, they shewed them the blood of grapes and mulberries. [35] Moreover they divided the beasts among the armies, and for every elephant they appointed a thousand men, armed with coats of mail, and with helmets of brass on their heads; and beside this, for every beast were ordained five hundred horsemen of the best. [36] These were ready at every occasion: wheresoever the beast was, and whithersoever the beast went, they went also, neither departed they from him. [37] And upon the beasts were there strong towers of wood, which covered every one of them, and were girt fast unto them with devices: there were also upon every one two and thirty strong men, that fought upon them, beside the Indian that ruled him.

[38] As for the remnant of the horsemen, they set them on this side and that side at the two parts of the host giving them signs what to do, and being harnessed all over amidst the ranks. [39] Now when the sun shone upon the shields of gold and brass, the mountains glistened therewith, and shined like lamps of fire. [40] So part of the king's army being spread upon the high mountains, and part on the valleys below, they marched on safely and in order.

[41] Wherefore all that heard the noise of their multitude, and the marching of the company, and the rattling of the harness, were moved: for the army was very great and mighty.

[42] Then Judas and his host drew near, and entered into battle, and there were slain of the king's army six hundred men. [43] Eleazar also, surnamed Savaran, perceiving that one of the beasts, armed with royal harness, was higher than all the rest, and supposing that the king was upon him, [44] Put himself in jeopardy, to the end he might deliver his people, and get him a perpetual name: [45] Wherefore he ran upon him courageously through the midst of the battle, slaying on the right hand and on the left, so that they were divided from him on both sides. [46] Which done, he crept under the elephant, and thrust him under, and slew him: whereupon the elephant fell down upon him, and there he died. [47] Howbeit the rest of the Jews seeing the strength of the king, and the violence of his forces, turned away from them.

[48] Then the king's army went up to Jerusalem to meet them, and the king pitched his tents against Judea, and against mount Sion. [49] But with them that were in Bethsura he made peace: for they came out of the city, because they had no victuals there to endure the siege, it being a year of rest to the land.

[50] So the king took Bethsura, and set a garrison there to keep it. [51] As for the sanctuary, he besieged it many days: and set there artillery with engines and instruments to cast fire and stones, and pieces to cast darts and slings. [52] Whereupon they also made engines against their engines, and held them battle a long season. [53] Yet at the last, their vessels being without victuals, (for that it was the seventh year, and they in Judea that were delivered from the Gentiles, had eaten up the residue of the store;) [54] There were but a few left in the sanctuary, because the famine did so prevail against them, that they were fain to disperse themselves, every man to his own place.

[55] At that time Lysias heard say, that Philip, whom Antiochus the king, whiles he lived, had appointed to bring up his son Antiochus, that he might be king, [56] Was returned out of Persia and Media, and the king's host also that went with him, and that he sought to take unto him the ruling of the affairs. [57] Wherefore he went in all haste, and said to the king and the captains of the host and the company, We decay daily, and our victuals are but small, and the place we lay siege unto is strong, and the affairs of the kingdom lie upon us: [58] Now therefore let us be friends with these men, and make peace with them, and with all their nation; [59] And covenant with them, that they shall live after their laws, as they did before: for they are therefore displeased, and have done all these things, because we abolished their laws.

[60] So the king and the princes were content: wherefore he sent unto them to make peace; and they accepted thereof. [61] Also the king and the princes made an oath unto them: whereupon they went out of the strong hold. [62] Then the king entered into mount Sion; but when he saw the strength of the place, he broke his oath that he had made, and gave commandment to pull down the wall round about. [63] Afterward departed he in all haste, and returned unto Antiochia, where he found Philip to be master of the city: so he fought against him, and took the city by force.

[1] In the hundred and one and fiftieth year Demetrius the son of Seleucus departed from Rome, and came up with a few men unto a city of the sea coast, and reigned there.

[2] And as he entered into the palace of his ancestors, so it was, that his forces had taken Antiochus and Lysias, to bring them unto him. [3] Wherefore, when he knew it, he said, Let me not see their faces. [4] So his host slew them. Now when Demetrius was set upon the throne of his kingdom, [5] There came unto him all the wicked and ungodly men of Israel, having Alcimus, who was desirous to be high priest, for their captain: [6] And they accused the people to the king, saying, Judas and his brethren have slain all thy friends, and driven us out of our own land. [7] Now therefore send some man whom thou trustest, and let him go and see what havock he hath made among us, and in the king's land, and let him punish them with all them that aid them.

[8] Then the king chose Bacchides, a friend of the king, who ruled beyond the flood, and was a great man in the kingdom, and faithful to the king, [9] And him he sent with that wicked Alcimus, whom he made high priest, and commanded that he should take vengeance of the children of Israel. [10] So they departed, and came with a great power into the land of Judea, where they sent messengers to Judas and his brethren with peaceable words deceitfully. [11] But they gave no heed to their words; for they saw that they were come with a great power.

[12] Then did there assemble unto Alcimus and Bacchides a company of scribes, to require justice. [13] Now the Assideans were the first among the children of Israel that sought peace of them: [14] For said they, One that is a priest of the seed of Aaron is come with this army, and he will do us no wrong. [15] So he spake unto them, peaceably, and sware unto them, saying, we will procure the harm neither of you nor your friends. [16] Whereupon they believed him: howbeit he took of them threescore men, and slew them in one day, according to the words which he wrote, [17] The flesh of thy saints have they cast out, and their blood have they shed round about Jerusalem, and there was none to bury them. [18] Wherefore the fear and dread of them fell upon all the people, who said, There is neither truth nor righteousness in them; for they have broken the covenant and oath that they made.

[19] After this, removed Bacchides from Jerusalem, and pitched his tents in Bezeth, where he sent and took many of the men that had forsaken him, and certain of the people also, and when he had slain them, he cast them into the great pit. [20] Then committed he the country to Alcimus, and left with him a power to aid him: so Bacchides went to the king. [21] But Alcimus contended for the high priesthood. [22] And unto him resorted all such as troubled the people, who, after they had gotten the land of Juda into their power, did much hurt in Israel.

[23] Now when Judas saw all the mischief that Alcimus and his company had done among the Israelites, even above the heathen, [24] He went out into all the coasts of Judea round about, and took vengeance of them that had revolted from him, so that they durst no more go forth into the country.

[25] On the other side, when Alcimus saw that Judas and his company had gotten the upper hand, and knew that he was not able to abide their force, he went again to the king, and said all the worst of them that he could.

[26] Then the king sent Nicanor, one of his honourable princes, a man that bare deadly hate unto Israel, with commandment to destroy the people. [27] So Nicanor came to Jerusalem with a great force; and sent unto Judas and his brethren deceitfully with friendly words, saying, [28] Let there be no battle between me and you; I will come with a few men, that I may see you in peace. [29] He came therefore to Judas, and they saluted one another peaceably. Howbeit the enemies were prepared to take away Judas by violence. [30] Which thing after it was known to Judas, to wit, that he came unto him with deceit, he was sore afraid of him, and would see his face no more.

[31] Nicanor also, when he saw that his counsel was discovered, went out to fight against Judas beside Capharsalama: [32] Where there were slain of Nicanor's side about five thousand men, and the rest fled into the city of David.

[33] After this went Nicanor up to mount Sion, and there came out of the sanctuary certain of the priests and certain of the elders of the people, to salute him peaceably, and to shew him the burnt sacrifice that was offered for the king. [34] But he mocked them, and laughed at them, and abused them shamefully, and spake proudly, [35] And sware in his wrath, saying, Unless Judas and his host be now delivered into my hands, if ever I come again in safety, I will burn up this house: and with that he went out in a great rage.

[36] Then the priests entered in, and stood before the altar and the temple, weeping, and saying, [37] Thou, O Lord, didst choose this house to be called by thy name, and to be a house of prayer and petition for thy people: [38] Be avenged of this man and his host, and let them fall by the sword: remember their blasphemies, and suffer them not to continue any longer.

[39] So Nicanor went out of Jerusalem, and pitched his tents in Bethhoron, where an host out of Syria met him. [40] But Judas pitched in Adasa with three thousand men, and there he prayed, saying, [41] O Lord, when they that were sent from the king of the Assyrians blasphemed, thine angel went out, and smote an hundred fourscore and five thousand of them. [42] Even so destroy thou this host before us this day, that the rest may know that he hath spoken blasphemously against thy sanctuary, and judge thou him according to his wickedness.

[43] So the thirteenth day of the month Adar the hosts joined battle: but Nicanor's host was discomfited, and he himself was first slain in the battle.

[44] Now when Nicanor's host saw that he was slain, they cast away their weapons, and fled. [45] Then they pursued after them a day's journey, from Adasa unto Gazera, sounding an alarm after them with their trumpets. [46] Whereupon they came forth out of all the towns of Judea round about, and closed them in; so that they, turning back upon them that pursued them, were all slain with the sword, and not one of them was left.

[47] Afterwards they took the spoils, and the prey, and smote off Nicanor's head, and his right hand, which he stretched out so proudly, and brought them away, and hanged them up toward Jerusalem. [48] For this cause the people rejoiced greatly, and they kept that day a day of great gladness. [49] Moreover they ordained to keep yearly this day, being the thirteenth of Adar.

[50] Thus the land of Juda was in rest a little while.

[1] Now Judas had heard of the fame of the Romans, that they were mighty and valiant men, and such as would lovingly accept all that joined themselves unto them, and make a league of amity with all that came unto them; [2] And that they were men of great valour. It was told him also of their wars and noble acts which they had done among the Galatians, and how they had conquered them, and brought them under tribute; [3] And what they had done in the country of Spain, for the winning of the mines of the silver and gold which is there; [4] And that by their policy and patience they had conquered all the place, though it were very far from them; and the kings also that came against them from the uttermost part of the earth, till they had discomfited them, and given them a great overthrow, so that the rest did give them tribute every year:

[5] Beside this, how they had discomfited in battle Philip, and Perseus, king of the Citims, with others that lifted up themselves against them, and had overcome them: [6] How also Antiochus the great king of Asia, that came against them in battle, having an hundred and twenty elephants, with horsemen, and chariots, and a very great army, was discomfited by them; [7] And how they took him alive, and covenanted that he and such as reigned after him should pay a great tribute, and give hostages, and that which was agreed upon, [8] And the country of India, and Media and Lydia and of the goodliest countries, which they took of him, and gave to king Eumenes:

[9] Moreover how the Grecians had determined to come and destroy them; [10] And that they, having knowledge thereof sent against them a certain captain, and fighting with them slew many of them, and carried away captives their wives and their children, and spoiled them, and took possession of their lands, and pulled down their strong holds, and brought them to be their servants unto this day:

[11] It was told him besides, how they destroyed and brought under their dominion all other kingdoms and isles that at any time resisted them; [12] But with their friends and such as relied upon them they kept amity: and that they had conquered kingdoms both far and nigh, insomuch as all that heard of their name were afraid of them: [13] Also that, whom they would help to a kingdom, those reign; and whom again they would, they displace: finally, that they were greatly exalted: [14] Yet for all this none of them wore a crown or was clothed in purple, to be magnified thereby: [15] Moreover how they had made for themselves a senate house, wherein three hundred and twenty men sat in council daily, consulting alway for the people, to the end they might be well ordered: [16] And that they committed their government to one man every year, who ruled over all their country, and that all were obedient to that one, and that there was neither envy nor emulation among them.

[17] In consideration of these things, Judas chose Eupolemus the son of John, the son of Accos, and Jason the son of Eleazar, and sent them to Rome, to make a league of amity and confederacy with them, [18] And to intreat them that they would take the yoke from them; for they saw that the kingdom of the Grecians did oppress Israel with servitude.

[19] They went therefore to Rome, which was a very great journey, and came into the senate, where they spake and said. [20] Judas Maccabeus with his brethren, and the people of the Jews, have sent us unto you, to make a confederacy and peace with you, and that we might be registered your confederates and friends. [21] So that matter pleased the Romans well.

[22] And this is the copy of the epistle which the senate wrote back again in tables of brass, and sent to Jerusalem, that there they might have by them a memorial of peace and confederacy: [23] Good success be to the Romans, and to the people of the Jews, by sea and by land for ever: the sword also and enemy be far from them,

[24] If there come first any war upon the Romans or any of their confederates throughout all their dominion, [25] The people of the Jews shall help them, as the time shall be appointed, with all their heart: [26] Neither shall they give any thing unto them that make war upon them, or aid them with victuals, weapons, money, or ships, as it hath seemed good unto the Romans; but they shall keep their covenants without taking any thing therefore. [27] In the same manner also, if war come first upon the nation of the Jews, the Romans shall help them with all their heart, according as the time shall be appointed them: [28] Neither shall victuals be given to them that take part against them, or weapons, or money, or ships, as it hath seemed good to the Romans; but they shall keep their covenants, and that without deceit.

[29] According to these articles did the Romans make a covenant with the people of the Jews. [30] Howbeit if hereafter the one party or the other shall think to meet to add or diminish any thing, they may do it at their pleasures, and whatsoever they shall add or take away shall be ratified.

[31] And as touching the evils that Demetrius doeth to the Jews, we have written unto him, saying, Wherefore thou made thy yoke heavy upon our friends and confederates the Jews? [32] If therefore they complain any more against thee, we will do them justice, and fight with thee by sea and by land.

Chapter 9

[1] Furthermore, when Demetrius heard the Nicanor and his host were slain in battle, he sent Bacchides and Alcimus into the land of Judea the second time, and with them the chief strength of his host: [2] Who went forth by the way that leadeth to Galgala, and pitched their tents before Masaloth, which is in Arbela, and after they had won it, they slew much people. [3] Also the first month of the hundred fifty and second year they encamped before Jerusalem: [4] From whence they removed, and went to Berea, with twenty thousand footmen and two thousand horsemen.

[5] Now Judas had pitched his tents at Eleasa, and three thousand chosen men with him: [6] Who seeing the multitude of the other army to be so great were sore afraid; whereupon many conveyed themselves out of the host, insomuch as abode of them no more but eight hundred men.

[7] When Judas therefore saw that his host slept away, and that the battle pressed upon him, he was sore troubled in mind, and much distressed, for that he had no time to gather them together. [8] Nevertheless unto them that remained he said, Let us arise and go up against our enemies, if peradventure we may be able to fight with them. [9] But they dehorted him, saying, We shall never be able: let us now rather save our lives, and hereafter we will return with our brethren, and fight against them: for we are but few.

[10] Then Judas said, God forbid that I should do this thing, and flee away from them: if our time be come, let us die manfully for our brethren, and let us not stain our honour. [11] With that the host of Bacchides removed out of their tents, and stood over against them, their horsemen being divided into two troops, and their slingers and archers going before the host and they that marched in the foreward were all mighty men.

[12] As for Bacchides, he was in the right wing: so the host drew near on the two parts, and sounded their trumpets. [13] They also of Judas' side, even they sounded their trumpets also, so that the earth shook at the noise of the armies, and the battle continued from morning till night. [14] Now when Judas perceived that Bacchides and the strength of his army were on the right side, he took with him all the hardy men, [15] Who discomfited the right wing, and pursued them unto the mount Azotus. [16] But when they of the left wing saw that they of the right wing were discomfited, they followed upon Judas and those that were with him hard at the heels from behind: [17] Whereupon there was a sore battle, insomuch as many were slain on both parts. [18] Judas also was killed, and the remnant fled.

[19] Then Jonathan and Simon took Judas their brother, and buried him in the sepulchre of his fathers in Modin. [20] Moreover they bewailed him, and all Israel made great lamentation for him, and mourned many days, saying, [21] How is the valiant man fallen, that delivered Israel! [22] As for the other things concerning Judas and his wars, and the noble acts which he did, and his greatness, they are not written: for they were very many. 2

[3] Now after the death of Judas the wicked began to put forth their heads in all the coasts of Israel, and there arose up all such as wrought iniquity. [24] In those days also was there a very great famine, by reason whereof the country revolted, and went with them. [25] Then Bacchides chose the wicked men, and made them lords of the country. [26] And they made enquiry and search for Judas' friends, and brought them unto Bacchides, who took vengeance of them, and used them despitefully. [27] So was there a great affliction in Israel, the like whereof was not since the time that a prophet was not seen among them.

[28] For this cause all Judas' friends came together, and said unto Jonathan, [29] Since thy brother Judas died, we have no man like him to go forth against our enemies, and Bacchides, and against them of our nation that are adversaries to us. [30] Now therefore we have chosen thee this day to be our prince and captain in his stead, that thou mayest fight our battles. [31] Upon this Jonathan took the governance upon him at that time, and rose up instead of his brother Judas. [32] But when Bacchides gat knowledge thereof, he sought for to slay him

[33] Then Jonathan, and Simon his brother, and all that were with him, perceiving that, fled into the wilderness of Thecoe, and pitched their tents by the water of the pool Asphar. [34] Which when Bacchides understood, he came near to Jordan with all his host upon the sabbath day. [35] Now Jonathan had sent his brother John, a captain of the people, to pray his friends the Nabathites, that they might leave with them their carriage, which was much. [36] But the children of Jambri came out of Medaba, and took John, and all that he had, and went their way with it.

[37] After this came word to Jonathan and Simon his brother, that the children of Jambri made a great marriage, and were bringing the bride from Nadabatha with a great train, as being the daughter of one of the great princes of Chanaan. [38] Therefore they remembered John their brother, and went up, and hid themselves under the covert of the mountain: [39] Where they lifted up their eyes, and looked, and, behold, there was much ado and great carriage: and the bridegroom came forth, and his friends and brethren, to meet them with drums, and instruments of musick, and many weapons.

[40] Then Jonathan and they that were with him rose up against them from the place where they lay in ambush, and made a slaughter of them in such sort, as many fell down dead, and the remnant fled into the mountain, and they took all their spoils. [41] Thus was the marriage turned into mourning, and the noise of their melody into lamentation. [42] So when they had avenged fully the blood of their brother, they turned again to the marsh of Jordan.

[43] Now when Bacchides heard hereof, he came on the sabbath day unto the banks of Jordan with a great power. [44] Then Jonathan said to his company, Let us go up now and fight for our lives, for it standeth not with us to day, as in time past: [45] For, behold, the battle is before us and behind us, and the water of Jordan on this side and that side, the marsh likewise and wood, neither is there place for us to turn aside. [46] Wherefore cry ye now unto heaven, that ye may be delivered from the hand of your enemies. [47] With that they joined battle, and Jonathan stretched forth his hand to smite Bacchides, but he turned back from him. [48] Then Jonathan and they that were with him leapt into Jordan, and swam over unto the other bank: howbeit the other passed not over Jordan unto them. [49] So there were slain of Bacchides' side that day about a thousand men.

[50] Afterward returned Bacchides to Jerusalem and repaired the strong cites in Judea; the fort in Jericho, and Emmaus, and Bethhoron, and Bethel, and Thamnatha, Pharathoni, and Taphon, these did he strengthen with high walls, with gates and with bars. [51] And in them he set a garrison, that they might work malice upon Israel. [52] He fortified also the city Bethsura, and Gazera, and the tower, and put forces in them, and provision of victuals. [53] Besides, he took the chief men's sons in the country for hostages, and put them into the tower at Jerusalem to be kept.

[54] Moreover in the hundred fifty and third year, in the second month, Alcimus commanded that the wall of the inner court of the sanctuary should be pulled down; he pulled down also the works of the prophets [55] And as he began to pull down, even at that time was Alcimus plagued, and his enterprises hindered: for his mouth was stopped, and he was taken with a palsy, so that he could no more speak any thing, nor give order concerning his house. [56] So Alcimus died at that time with great torment.

[57] Now when Bacchides saw that Alcimus was dead, he returned to the king: whereupon the land of Judea was in rest two years. [58] Then all the ungodly men held a council, saying, Behold, Jonathan and his company are at ease, and dwell without care: now therefore we will bring Bacchides hither, who shall take them all in one night. [59] So they went and consulted with him. [60] Then removed he, and came with a great host, and sent letters privily to his adherents in Judea, that they should take Jonathan and those that were with him: howbeit they could not, because their counsel was known unto them. [61] Wherefore they took of the men of the country, that were authors of that mischief, about fifty persons, and slew them.

[62] Afterward Jonathan, and Simon, and they that were with him, got them away to Bethbasi, which is in the wilderness, and they repaired the decays thereof, and made it strong. [63] Which thing when Bacchides knew, he gathered together all his host, and sent word to them that were of Judea.

[64] Then went he and laid siege against Bethbasi; and they fought against it a long season and made engines of war. [65] But Jonathan left his brother Simon in the city, and went forth himself into the country, and with a certain number went he forth. [66] And he smote Odonarkes and his brethren, and the children of Phasiron in their tent. [67] And when he began to smite them, and came up with his forces, Simon and his company went out of the city, and burned up the engines of war, [68] And fought against Bacchides, who was discomfited by them, and they afflicted him sore: for his counsel and travail was in vain. [69] Wherefore he was very wroth at the wicked men that gave him counsel to come into the country, inasmuch as he slew many of them, and purposed to return into his own country.

[70] Whereof when Jonathan had knowledge, he sent ambassadors unto him, to the end he should make peace with him, and deliver them the prisoners. [71] Which thing he accepted, and did according to his demands, and sware unto him that he would never do him harm all the days of his life. [72] When therefore he had restored unto him the prisoners that he had taken aforetime out of the land of Judea, he returned and went his way into his own land, neither came he any more into their borders. [73] Thus the sword ceased from Israel: but Jonathan dwelt at Machmas, and began to govern the people; and he destroyed the ungodly men out of Israel.

[1] In the hundred and sixtieth year Alexander, the son of Antiochus surnamed Epiphanes, went up and took Ptolemais: for the people had received him, by means whereof he reigned there, [2] Now when king Demetrius heard thereof, he gathered together an exceeding great host, and went forth against him to fight. [3] Moreover Demetrius sent letters unto Jonathan with loving words, so as he magnified him. [4] For said he, Let us first make peace with him, before he join with Alexander against us: [5] Else he will remember all the evils that we have done against him, and against his brethren and his people. [6] Wherefore he gave him authority to gather together an host, and to provide weapons, that he might aid him in battle: he commanded also that the hostages that were in the tower should be delivered him.

[7] Then came Jonathan to Jerusalem, and read the letters in the audience of all the people, and of them that were in the tower: [8] Who were sore afraid, when they heard that the king had given him authority to gather together an host. [9] Whereupon they of the tower delivered their hostages unto Jonathan, and he delivered them unto their parents.

[10] This done, Jonathan settled himself in Jerusalem, and began to build and repair the city. [11] And he commanded the workmen to build the walls and the mount Sion and about with square stones for fortification; and they did so.

[12] Then the strangers, that were in the fortresses which Bacchides had built, fled away; [13] Insomuch as every man left his place, and went into his own country. [14] Only at Bethsura certain of those that had forsaken the law and the commandments remained still: for it was their place of refuge.

[15] Now when king Alexander had heard what promises Demetrius had sent unto Jonathan: when also it was told him of the battles and noble acts which he and his brethren had done, and of the pains that they had endured, [16] He said, Shall we find such another man? now therefore we will make him our friend and confederate.

[17] Upon this he wrote a letter, and sent it unto him, according to these words, saying, [18] King Alexander to his brother Jonathan sendeth greeting: [19] We have heard of thee, that thou art a man of great power, and meet to be our friend. [20] Wherefore now this day we ordain thee to be the high priest of thy nation, and to be called the king's friend; (and therewithal he sent him a purple robe and a crown of gold:) and require thee to take our part, and keep friendship with us. [21] So in the seventh month of the hundred and sixtieth year, at the feast of the tabernacles, Jonathan put on the holy robe, and gathered together forces, and provided much armour.

[22] Whereof when Demetrius heard, he was very sorry, and said, [23] What have we done, that Alexander hath prevented us in making amity with the Jews to strengthen himself? [24] I also will write unto them words of encouragement, and promise them dignities and gifts, that I may have their aid. [25] He sent unto them therefore to this effect: King Demetrius unto the people of the Jews sendeth greeting: [26] Whereas ye have kept covenants with us, and continued in our friendship, not joining yourselves with our enemies, we have heard hereof, and are glad. [27] Wherefore now continue ye still to be faithful unto us, and we will well recompense you for the things ye do in our behalf, [28] And will grant you many immunities, and give you rewards.

[29] And now do I free you, and for your sake I release all the Jews, from tributes, and from the customs of salt, and from crown taxes, [30] And from that which appertaineth unto me to receive for the third part or the seed, and the half of the fruit of the trees, I release it from this day forth, so that they shall not be taken of the land of Judea, nor of the three governments which are added thereunto out of the country of Samaria and Galilee, from this day forth for evermore.

[31] Let Jerusalem also be holy and free, with the borders thereof, both from tenths and tributes. [32] And as for the tower which is at Jerusalem, I yield up authority over it, and give the high priest, that he may set in it such men as he shall choose to keep it.

[33] Moreover I freely set at liberty every one of the Jews, that were carried captives out of the land of Judea into any part of my kingdom, and I will that all my officers remit the tributes even of their cattle. [34] Furthermore I will that all the feasts, and sabbaths, and new moons, and solemn days, and the three days before the feast, and the three days after the feast shall be all of immunity and freedom for all the Jews in my realm. [35] Also no man shall have authority to meddle with or to molest any of them in any matter.

[36] I will further, that there be enrolled among the king's forces about thirty thousand men of the Jews, unto whom pay shall be given, as belongeth to all king's forces. [37] And of them some shall be placed in the king's strong holds, of whom also some shall be set over the affairs of the kingdom, which are of trust: and I will that their overseers and governors be of themselves, and that they live after their own laws, even as the king hath commanded in the land of Judea.

[38] And concerning the three governments that are added to Judea from the country of Samaria, let them be joined with Judea, that they may be reckoned to be under one, nor bound to obey other authority than the high priest's.

[39] As for Ptolemais, and the land pertaining thereto, I give it as a free gift to the sanctuary at Jerusalem for the necessary expenses of the sanctuary. [40] Moreover I give every year fifteen thousand shekels of silver out of the king's accounts from the places appertaining. [41] And all the overplus, which the officers payed not in as in former time, from henceforth shall be given toward the works of the temple.

[42] And beside this, the five thousand shekels of silver, which they took from the uses of the temple out of the accounts year by year, even those things shall be released, because they appertain to the priests that minister. [43] And whosoever they be that flee unto the temple at Jerusalem, or be within the liberties hereof, being indebted unto the king, or for any other matter, let them be at liberty, and all that they have in my realm. [44] For the building also and repairing of the works of the sanctuary expenses shall be given of the king's accounts. [45] Yea, and for the building of the walls of Jerusalem, and the fortifying thereof round about, expenses shall be given out of the king's accounts, as also for the building of the walls in Judea.

[46] Now when Jonathan and the people heard these words, they gave no credit unto them, nor received them, because they remembered the great evil that he had done in Israel; for he had afflicted them very sore. [47] But with Alexander they were well pleased, because he was the first that entreated of true peace with them, and they were confederate with him always.

[48] Then gathered king Alexander great forces, and camped over against Demetrius. [49] And after the two kings had joined battle, Demetrius' host fled: but Alexander followed after him, and prevailed against them. [50] And he continued the battle very sore until the sun went down: and that day was Demetrius slain.

[51] Afterward Alexander sent ambassadors to Ptolemee king of Egypt with a message to this effect: [52] Forasmuch as I am come again to my realm, and am set in the throne of my progenitors, and have gotten the dominion, and overthrown Demetrius, and recovered our country; [53] For after I had joined battle with him, both he and his host was discomfited by us, so that we sit in the throne of his kingdom: [54] Now therefore let us make a league of amity together, and give me now thy daughter to wife: and I will be thy son in law, and will give both thee and her as according to thy dignity.

[55] Then Ptolemee the king gave answer, saying, Happy be the day wherein thou didst return into the land of thy fathers, and satest in the throne of their kingdom. [56] And now will I do to thee, as thou hast written: meet me therefore at Ptolemais, that we may see one another; for I will marry my daughter to thee according to thy desire.

[57] So Ptolemee went out of Egypt with his daughter Cleopatra, and they came unto Ptolemais in the hundred threescore and second year: [58] Where king Alexander meeting him, he gave unto him his daughter Cleopatra, and celebrated her marriage at Ptolemais with great glory, as the manner of kings is.

[59] Now king Alexander had written unto Jonathan, that he should come and meet him. [60] Who thereupon went honourably to Ptolemais, where he met the two kings, and gave them and their friends silver and gold, and many presents, and found favour in their sight.

[61] At that time certain pestilent fellows of Israel, men of a wicked life, assembled themselves against him, to accuse him: but the king would not hear them. [62] Yea more than that, the king commanded to take off his garments, and clothe him in purple: and they did so. [63] And he made him sit by himself, and said into his princes, Go with him into the midst of the city, and make proclamation, that no man complain against him of any matter, and that no man trouble him for any manner of cause.

[64] Now when his accusers saw that he was honoured according to the proclamation, and clothed in purple, they fled all away. [65] So the king honoured him, and wrote him among his chief friends, and made him a duke, and partaker of his dominion. [66] Afterward Jonathan returned to Jerusalem with peace and gladness.

[67] Furthermore in the; hundred threescore and fifth year came Demetrius son of Demetrius out of Crete into the land of his fathers: [68] Whereof when king Alexander heard tell, he was right sorry, and returned into Antioch.

[69] Then Demetrius made Apollonius the governor of Celosyria his general, who gathered together a great host, and camped in Jamnia, and sent unto Jonathan the high priest, saying, [70] Thou alone liftest up thyself against us, and I am laughed to scorn for thy sake, and reproached: and why dost thou vaunt thy power against us in the mountains?

[71] Now therefore, if thou trustest in thine own strength, come down to us into the plain field, and there let us try the matter together: for with me is the power of the cities. [72] Ask and learn who I am, and the rest that take our part, and they shall tell thee that thy foot is not able to stand before our face; for thy fathers have twice been put to flight in their own land. [73] Wherefore now thou shalt not be able to abide the horsemen and so great a power in the plain, where is neither stone nor flint, nor place to flee unto.

[74] So when Jonathan heard these words of Apollonius, he was moved in his mind, and choosing ten thousand men he went out of Jerusalem, where Simon his brother met him for to help him. [75] And he pitched his tents against Joppa: but; they of Joppa shut him out of the city, because Apollonius had a garrison there.

[76] Then Jonathan laid siege unto it: whereupon they of the city let him in for fear: and so Jonathan won Joppa. [77] Whereof when Apollonius heard, he took three thousand horsemen, with a great host of footmen, and went to Azotus as one that journeyed, and therewithal drew him forth into the plain. because he had a great number of horsemen, in whom he put his trust.

[78] Then Jonathan followed after him to Azotus, where the armies joined battle. [79] Now Apollonius had left a thousand horsemen in ambush. [80] And Jonathan knew that there was an ambushment behind him; for they had compassed in his host, and cast darts at the people, from morning till evening.

[81] But the people stood still, as Jonathan had commanded them: and so the enemies' horses were tired. [82] Then brought Simon forth his host, and set them against the footmen, (for the horsemen were spent) who were discomfited by him, and fled. [83] The horsemen also, being scattered in the field, fled to Azotus, and went into Bethdagon, their idol's temple, for safety.

[84] But Jonathan set fire on Azotus, and the cities round about it, and took their spoils; and the temple of Dagon, with them that were fled into it, he burned with fire. [85] Thus there were burned and slain with the sword well nigh eight thousand men. [86] And from thence Jonathan removed his host, and camped against Ascalon, where the men of the city came forth, and met him with great pomp. [87] After this returned Jonathan and his host unto Jerusalem, having any spoils.

[88] Now when king Alexander heard these things, he honoured Jonathan yet more. [89] And sent him a buckle of gold, as the use is to be given to such as are of the king's blood: he gave him also Accaron with the borders thereof in possession.

[1] And the king of Egypt gathered together a great host, like the sand that lieth upon the sea shore, and many ships, and went about through deceit to get Alexander's kingdom, and join it to his own. [2] Whereupon he took his journey into Syria in peaceable manner, so as they of the cities opened unto him, and met him: for king Alexander had commanded them so to do, because he was his brother in law.

[3] Now as Ptolemee entered into the cities, he set in every one of them a garrison of soldiers to keep it. [4] And when he came near to Azotus, they shewed him the temple of Dagon that was burnt, and Azotus and the suburbs thereof that were destroyed, and the bodies that were cast abroad and them that he had burnt in the battle; for they had made heaps of them by the way where he should pass. [5] Also they told the king whatsoever Jonathan had done, to the intent he might blame him: but the king held his peace.

[6] Then Jonathan met the king with great pomp at Joppa, where they saluted one another, and lodged. [7] Afterward Jonathan, when he had gone with the king to the river called Eleutherus, returned again to Jerusalem.

[8] King Ptolemee therefore, having gotten the dominion of the cities by the sea unto Seleucia upon the sea coast, imagined wicked counsels against Alexander. [9] Whereupon he sent ambassadors unto king Demetrius, saying, Come, let us make a league betwixt us, and I will give thee my daughter whom Alexander hath, and thou shalt reign in thy father's kingdom: [10] For I repent that I gave my daughter unto him, for he sought to slay me. [11] Thus did he slander him, because he was desirous of his kingdom.

[12] Wherefore he took his daughter from him, and gave her to Demetrius, and forsook Alexander, so that their hatred was openly known. [13] Then Ptolemee entered into Antioch, where he set two crowns upon his head, the crown of Asia, and of Egypt.

[14] In the mean season was king Alexander in Cilicia, because those that dwelt in those parts had revolted from him. [15] But when Alexander heard of this, he came to war against him: whereupon king Ptolemee brought forth his host, and met him with a mighty power, and put him to flight.

[16] So Alexander fled into Arabia there to be defended; but king Ptolemee was exalted: [17] For Zabdiel the Arabian took off Alexander's head, and sent it unto Ptolemee.

[18] King Ptolemee also died the third day after, and they that were in the strong holds were slain one of another. [19] By this means Demetrius reigned in the hundred threescore and seventh year.

[20] At the same time Jonathan gathered together them that were in Judea to take the tower that was in Jerusalem: and he made many engines of war against it. [21] Then came ungodly persons, who hated their own people, went unto the king, and told him that Jonathan besieged the tower, [22] Whereof when he heard, he was angry, and immediately removing, he came to Ptolemais, and wrote unto Jonathan, that he should not lay siege to the tower, but come and speak with him at Ptolemais in great haste.

[23] Nevertheless Jonathan, when he heard this, commanded to besiege it still: and he chose certain of the elders of Israel and the priests, and put himself in peril; [24] And took silver and gold, and raiment, and divers presents besides, and went to Ptolemais unto the king, where he found favour in his sight.

[25] And though certain ungodly men of the people had made complaints against him, [26] Yet the king entreated him as his predecessors had done before, and promoted him in the sight of all his friends, [27] And confirmed him in the high priesthood, and in all the honours that he had before, and gave him preeminence among his chief friends.

[28] Then Jonathan desired the king, that he would make Judea free from tribute, as also the three governments, with the country of Samaria; and he promised him three hundred talents. [29] So the king consented, and wrote letters unto Jonathan of all these things after this manner:

[30] King Demetrius unto his brother Jonathan, and unto the nation of the Jews, sendeth greeting: [31] We send you here a copy of the letter which we did write unto our cousin Lasthenes concerning you, that ye might see it.

[32] King Demetrius unto his father Lasthenes sendeth greeting: [33] We are determined to do good to the people of the Jews, who are our friends, and keep covenants with us, because of their good will toward us. [34] Wherefore we have ratified unto them the borders of Judea, with the three governments of Apherema and Lydda and Ramathem, that are added unto Judea from the country of Samaria, and all things appertaining unto them, for all such as do sacrifice in Jerusalem, instead of the payments which the king received of them yearly aforetime out of the fruits of the earth and of trees.

[35] And as for other things that belong unto us, of the tithes and customs pertaining unto us, as also the saltpits, and the crown taxes, which are due unto us, we discharge them of them all for their relief. [36] And nothing hereof shall be revoked from this time forth for ever.

[37] Now therefore see that thou make a copy of these things, and let it be delivered unto Jonathan, and set upon the holy mount in a conspicuous place.

[38] After this, when king Demetrius saw that the land was quiet before him, and that no resistance was made against him, he sent away all his forces, every one to his own place, except certain bands of strangers, whom he had gathered from the isles of the heathen: wherefore all the forces of his fathers hated him.

[39] Moreover there was one Tryphon, that had been of Alexander's part afore, who, seeing that all the host murmured against Demetrius, went to Simalcue the Arabian that brought up Antiochus the young son of Alexander, [40] And lay sore upon him to deliver him this young Antiochus, that he might reign in his father's stead: he told him therefore all that Demetrius had done, and how his men of war were at enmity with him, and there he remained a long season.

[41] In the mean time Jonathan sent unto king Demetrius, that he would cast those of the tower out of Jerusalem, and those also in the fortresses: for they fought against Israel. [42] So Demetrius sent unto Jonathan, saying, I will not only do this for thee and thy people, but I will greatly honour thee and thy nation, if opportunity serve. [43] Now therefore thou shalt do well, if thou send me men to help me; for all my forces are gone from me.

[44] Upon this Jonathan sent him three thousand strong men unto Antioch: and when they came to the king, the king was very glad of their coming. [45] Howbeit they that were of the city gathered themselves together into the midst of the city, to the number of an hundred and twenty thousand men, and would have slain the king. [46] Wherefore the king fled into the court, but they of the city kept the passages of the city, and began to fight.

[47] Then the king called to the Jews for help, who came unto him all at once, and dispersing themselves through the city slew that day in the city to the number of an hundred thousand. [48] Also they set fire on the city, and gat many spoils that day, and delivered the king.

[49] So when they of the city saw that the Jews had got the city as they would, their courage was abated: wherefore they made supplication to the king, and cried, saying, [50] Grant us peace, and let the Jews cease from assaulting us and the city. [51] With that they cast away their weapons, and made peace; and the Jews were honoured in the sight of the king, and in the sight of all that were in his realm; and they returned to Jerusalem, having great spoils.

[52] So king Demetrius sat on the throne of his kingdom, and the land was quiet before him. [53] Nevertheless he dissembled in all that ever he spake, and estranged himself from Jonathan, neither rewarded he him according to the benefits which he had received of him, but troubled him very sore.

[54] After this returned Tryphon, and with him the young child Antiochus, who reigned, and was crowned. [55] Then there gathered unto him all the men of war, whom Demetrius had put away, and they fought against Demetrius, who turned his back and fled. [56] Moreover Tryphon took the elephants, and won Antioch.

[57] At that time young Antiochus wrote unto Jonathan, saying, I confirm thee in the high priesthood, and appoint thee ruler over the four governments, and to be one of the king's friends. [58] Upon this he sent him golden vessels to be served in, and gave him leave to drink in gold, and to be clothed in purple, and to wear a golden buckle. [59] His brother Simon also he made captain from the place called The ladder of Tyrus unto the borders of Egypt.

[60] Then Jonathan went forth, and passed through the cities beyond the water, and all the forces of Syria gathered themselves unto him for to help him: and when he came to Ascalon, they of the city met him honourably.

[61] From whence he went to Gaza, but they of Gaza shut him out;

wherefore he laid siege unto it, and burned the suburbs thereof with fire, and spoiled them. [62] Afterward, when they of Gaza made supplication unto Jonathan, he made peace with them, and took the sons of their chief men for hostages, and sent them to Jerusalem, and passed through the country unto Damascus.

[63] Now when Jonathan heard that Demetrius' princes were come to Cades, which is in Galilee, with a great power, purposing to remove him out of the country, [64] He went to meet them, and left Simon his brother in the country.

[65] Then Simon encamped against Bethsura and fought against it a long season, and shut it up: [66] But they desired to have peace with him, which he granted them, and then put them out from thence, and took the city, and set a garrison in it.

[67] As for Jonathan and his host, they pitched at the water of Gennesar, from whence betimes in the morning they gat them to the plain of Nasor. [68] And, behold, the host of strangers met them in the plain, who, having laid men in ambush for him in the mountains, came themselves over against him.

[69] So when they that lay in ambush rose out of their places and joined battle, all that were of Jonathan's side fled; [70] Insomuch as there was not one of them left, except Mattathias the son of Absalom, and Judas the son of Calphi, the captains of the host.

[71] Then Jonathan rent his clothes, and cast earth upon his head, and prayed. [72] Afterwards turning again to battle, he put them to flight, and so they ran away. [73] Now when his own men that were fled saw this, they turned again unto him, and with him pursued them to Cades, even unto their own tents, and there they camped.

[74] So there were slain of the heathen that day about three thousand men: but Jonathan returned to Jerusalem.

[1] Now when Jonathan saw that time served him, he chose certain men, and sent them to Rome, for to confirm and renew the friendship that they had with them. [2] He sent letters also to the Lacedemonians, and to other places, for the same purpose.

[3] So they went unto Rome, and entered into the senate, and said, Jonathan the high priest, and the people of the Jews, sent us unto you, to the end ye should renew the friendship, which ye had with them, and league, as in former time. [4] Upon this the Romans gave them letters unto the governors of every place that they should bring them into the land of Judea peaceably. [5] And this is the copy of the letters which Jonathan wrote to the Lacedemonians:

[6] Jonathan the high priest, and the elders of the nation, and the priests, and the other of the Jews, unto the Lacedemonians their brethren send greeting:

[7] There were letters sent in times past unto Onias the high priest from Darius, who reigned then among you, to signify that ye are our brethren, as the copy here underwritten doth specify. [8] At which time Onias entreated the ambassador that was sent honourably, and received the letters, wherein declaration was made of the league and friendship.

[9] Therefore we also, albeit we need none of these things, that we have the holy books of scripture in our hands to comfort us, [10] Have nevertheless attempted to send unto you for the renewing of brotherhood and friendship, lest we should become strangers unto you altogether: for there is a long time passed since ye sent unto us.

[11] We therefore at all times without ceasing, both in our feasts, and other convenient days, do remember you in the sacrifices which we offer, and in our prayers, as reason is, and as it becometh us to think upon our brethren: [12] And we are right glad of your honour.

[13] As for ourselves, we have had great troubles and wars on every side, forsomuch as the kings that are round about us have fought against us. [14] Howbeit we would not be troublesome unto you, nor to others of our confederates and friends, in these wars: [15] For we have help from heaven that succoureth us, so as we are delivered from our enemies, and our enemies are brought under foot. [16] For this cause we chose Numenius the son of Antiochus, and Antipater he son of Jason, and sent them unto the Romans, to renew the amity that we had with them, and the former league. [17] We commanded them also to go unto you, and to salute and to deliver you our letters concerning the renewing of our brotherhood. [18] Wherefore now ye shall do well to give us an answer thereto.

[19] And this is the copy of the letters which Oniases sent. [20] Areus king of the Lacedemonians to Onias the high priest, greeting:

[21] It is found in writing, that the Lacedemonians and Jews are brethren, and that they are of the stock of Abraham: [22] Now therefore, since this is come to our knowledge, ye shall do well to write unto us of your prosperity. [23] We do write back again to you, that your cattle and goods are our's, and our's are your's We do command therefore our ambassadors to make report unto you on this wise.

[24] Now when Jonathan heard that Demetrius' princes were come to fight against him with a greater host than afore, [25] He removed from Jerusalem, and met them in the land of Amathis: for he gave them no respite to enter his country.

[26] He sent spies also unto their tents, who came again, and told him that they were appointed to come upon them in the night season. [27] Wherefore so soon as the sun was down, Jonathan commanded his men to watch, and to be in arms, that all the night long they might be ready to fight: also he sent forth sentinels round about the host.

[28] But when the adversaries heard that Jonathan and his men were ready for battle, they feared, and trembled in their hearts, and they kindled fires in their camp. [29] Howbeit Jonathan and his company knew it not till the morning: for they saw the lights burning. [30] Then Jonathan pursued after them, but overtook them not: for they were gone over the river Eleutherus. [31] Wherefore Jonathan turned to the Arabians, who were called Zabadeans, and smote them, and took their spoils. [32] And removing thence, he came to Damascus, and so passed through all the country,

[33] Simon also went forth, and passed through the country unto Ascalon, and the holds there adjoining, from whence he turned aside to Joppa, and won it. [34] For he had heard that they would deliver the hold unto them that took Demetrius' part; wherefore he set a garrison there to keep it. [35] After this came Jonathan home again, and calling the elders of the people together, he consulted with them about building strong holds in Judea, [36] And making the walls of Jerusalem higher, and raising a great mount between the tower and the city, for to separate it from the city, that so it might be alone, that men might neither sell nor buy in it. [37] Upon this they came together to build up the city, forasmuch as part of the wall toward the brook on the east side was fallen down, and they repaired that which was called Caphenatha. [38] Simon also set up Adida in Sephela, and made it strong with gates and bars.

[39] Now Tryphon went about to get the kingdom of Asia, and to kill Antiochus the king, that he might set the crown upon his own head. [40] Howbeit he was afraid that Jonathan would not suffer him, and that he would fight against him; wherefore he sought a way how to take Jonathan, that he might kill him. So he removed, and came to Bethsan.

[41] Then Jonathan went out to meet him with forty thousand men chosen for the battle, and came to Bethsan.

[42] Now when Tryphon saw Jonathan came with so great a force, he durst not stretch his hand against him; [43] But received him honourably, and commended him unto all his friends, and gave him gifts, and commanded his men of war to be as obedient unto him, as to himself.

[44] Unto Jonathan also he said, Why hast thou brought all this people to so great trouble, seeing there is no war betwixt us? [45] Therefore send them now home again, and choose a few men to wait on thee, and come thou with me to Ptolemais, for I will give it thee, and the rest of the strong holds and forces, and all that have any charge: as for me, I will return and depart: for this is the cause of my coming.

[46] So Jonathan believing him did as he bade him, and sent away his host, who went into the land of Judea. [47] And with himself he retained but three thousand men, of whom he sent two thousand into Galilee, and one thousand went with him.

[48] Now as soon as Jonathan entered into Ptolemais, they of Ptolemais shut the gates and took him, and all them that came with him they slew with the sword. [49] Then sent Tryphon an host of footmen and horsemen into Galilee, and into the great plain, to destroy all Jonathan's company. [50] But when they knew that Jonathan and they that were with him were taken and slain, they encouraged one another; and went close together, prepared to fight.

[51] They therefore that followed upon them, perceiving that they were ready to fight for their lives, turned back again. [52] Whereupon they all came into the land of Judea peaceably, and there they bewailed Jonathan, and them that were with him, and they were sore afraid; wherefore all Israel made great lamentation.

[53] Then all the heathen that were round about then sought to destroy them: for said they, They have no captain, nor any to help them: now therefore let us make war upon them, and take away their memorial from among men.

[1] Now when Simon heard that Tryphon had gathered together a great host to invade the land of Judea, and destroy it, [2] And saw that the people was in great trembling and fear, he went up to Jerusalem, and gathered the people together, [3] And gave them exhortation, saying, Ye yourselves know what great things I, and my brethren, and my father's house, have done for the laws and the sanctuary, the battles also and troubles which we have seen. [4] By reason whereof all my brethren are slain for Israel's sake, and I am left alone.

[5] Now therefore be it far from me, that I should spare mine own life in any time of trouble: for I am no better than my brethren. [6] Doubtless I will avenge my nation, and the sanctuary, and our wives, and our children: for all the heathen are gathered to destroy us of very malice.

[7] Now as soon as the people heard these words, their spirit revived. [8] And they answered with a loud voice, saying, Thou shalt be our leader instead of Judas and Jonathan thy brother. [9] Fight thou our battles, and whatsoever, thou commandest us, that will we do.

[10] So then he gathered together all the men of war, and made haste to finish the walls of Jerusalem, and he fortified it round about. [11] Also he sent Jonathan the son of Absalom, and with him a great power, to Joppa: who casting out them that were therein remained there in it.

[12] So Tryphon removed from Ptolemais with a great power to invade the land of Judea, and Jonathan was with him in ward. [13] But Simon pitched his tents at Adida, over against the plain.

[14] Now when Tryphon knew that Simon was risen up instead of his brother Jonathan, and meant to join battle with him, he sent messengers unto him, saying, [15] Whereas we have Jonathan thy brother in hold, it is for money that he is owing unto the king's treasure, concerning the business that was committed unto him. [16] Wherefore now send an hundred talents of silver, and two of his sons for hostages, that when he is at liberty he may not revolt from us, and we will let him go.

[17] Hereupon Simon, albeit he perceived that they spake deceitfully unto him yet sent he the money and the children, lest peradventure he should procure to himself great hatred of the people: [18] Who might have said, Because I sent him not the money and the children, therefore is Jonathan dead. [19] So he sent them the children and the hundred talents: howbeit Tryphon dissembled neither would he let Jonathan go.

[20] And after this came Tryphon to invade the land, and destroy it, going round about by the way that leadeth unto Adora: but Simon and his host marched against him in every place, wheresoever he went.

[21] Now they that were in the tower sent messengers unto Tryphon, to the end that he should hasten his coming unto them by the wilderness, and send them victuals. [22] Wherefore Tryphon made ready all his horsemen to come that night: but there fell a very great snow, by reason whereof he came not. So he departed, and came into the country of Galaad. [23] And when he came near to Bascama he slew Jonathan, who was buried there. [24] Afterward Tryphon returned and went into his own land.

[25] Then sent Simon, and took the bones of Jonathan his brother, and buried them in Modin, the city of his fathers. [26] And all Israel made great lamentation for him, and bewailed him many days.

[27] Simon also built a monument upon the sepulchre of his father and his brethren, and raised it aloft to the sight, with hewn stone behind and before. [28] Moreover he set up seven pyramids, one against another, for his father, and his mother, and his four brethren. [29] And in these he made cunning devices, about the which he set great pillars, and upon the pillars he made all their armour for a perpetual memory, and by the armour ships carved, that they might be seen of all that sail on the sea. [30] This is the sepulchre which he made at Modin, and it standeth yet unto this day.

[31] Now Tryphon dealt deceitfully with the young king Antiochus, and slew him. [32] And he reigned in his stead, and crowned himself king of Asia, and brought a great calamity upon the land.

[33] Then Simon built up the strong holds in Judea, and fenced them about with high towers, and great walls, and gates, and bars, and laid up victuals therein. [34] Moreover Simon chose men, and sent to king Demetrius, to the end he should give the land an immunity, because all that Tryphon did was to spoil.

[35] Unto whom king Demetrius answered and wrote after this manner: [36] King Demetrius unto Simon the high priest, and friend of kings, as also unto the elders and nation of the Jews, sendeth greeting: [37] The golden crown, and the scarlet robe, which ye sent unto us, we have received: and we are ready to make a stedfast peace with you, yea, and to write unto our officers, to confirm the immunities which we have granted. [38] And whatsoever covenants we have made with you shall stand; and the strong holds, which ye have builded, shall be your own. [39] As for any oversight or fault committed unto this day, we forgive it, and the crown tax also, which ye owe us: and if there were any other tribute paid in Jerusalem, it shall no more be paid. [40] And look who are meet among you to be in our court, let then be enrolled, and let there be peace betwixt us.

[41] Thus the yoke of the heathen was taken away from Israel in the hundred and seventieth year. [42] Then the people of Israel began to write in their instruments and contracts, In the first year of Simon the high priest, the governor and leader of the Jews.

[43] In those days Simon camped against Gaza and besieged it round about; he made also an engine of war, and set it by the city, and battered a certain tower, and took it. [44] And they that were in the engine leaped into the city; whereupon there was a great uproar in the city: [45] Insomuch as the people of the city rent their clothes, and climbed upon the walls with their wives and children, and cried with a loud voice, beseeching Simon to grant them peace. [46] And they said, Deal not with us according to our wickedness, but according to thy mercy.

[47] So Simon was appeased toward them, and fought no more against them, but put them out of the city, and cleansed the houses wherein the idols were, and so entered into it with songs and thanksgiving. [48] Yea, he put all uncleanness out of it, and placed such men there as would keep the law, and made it stronger than it was before, and built therein a dwellingplace for himself.

[49] They also of the tower in Jerusalem were kept so strait, that they could neither come forth, nor go into the country, nor buy, nor sell: wherefore they were in great distress for want of victuals, and a great number of them perished through famine. [50] Then cried they to Simon, beseeching him to be at one with them: which thing he granted them; and when he had put them out from thence, he cleansed the tower from pollutions: [51] And entered into it the three and twentieth day of the second month in the hundred seventy and first year, with thanksgiving, and branches of palm trees, and with harps, and cymbals, and with viols, and hymns, and songs: because there was destroyed a great enemy out of Israel.

[52] He ordained also that that day should be kept every year with gladness. Moreover the hill of the temple that was by the tower he made stronger than it was, and there he dwelt himself with his company. [53] And when Simon saw that John his son was a valiant man, he made him captain of all the hosts; and he dwelt in Gazera.

[1] Now in the hundred threescore and twelfth year king Demetrius gathered his forces together, and went into Media to get him help to fight against Tryphon.

[2] But when Arsaces, the king of Persia and Media, heard that Demetrius was entered within his borders, he sent one of his princes to take him alive: [3] Who went and smote the host of Demetrius, and took him, and brought him to Arsaces, by whom he was put in ward.

[4] As for the land of Judea, that was quiet all the days of Simon; for he sought the good of his nation in such wise, as that evermore his authority and honour pleased them well. [5] And as he was honourable in all his acts, so in this, that he took Joppa for an haven, and made an entrance to the isles of the sea, [6] And enlarged the bounds of his nation, and recovered the country, [7] And gathered together a great number of captives, and had the dominion of Gazera, and Bethsura, and the tower, out of the which he took all uncleanness, neither was there any that resisted him.

[8] Then did they till their ground in peace, and the earth gave her increase, and the trees of the field their fruit. [9] The ancient men sat all in the streets, communing together of good things, and the young men put on glorious and warlike apparel. [10] He provided victuals for the cities, and set in them all manner of munition, so that his honourable name was renowned unto the end of the world.

[11] He made peace in the land, and Israel rejoiced with great joy: [12] For every man sat under his vine and his fig tree, and there was none to fray them: [13] Neither was there any left in the land to fight against them: yea, the kings themselves were overthrown in those days. [14] Moreover he strengthened all those of his people that were brought low: the law he searched out; and every contemner of the law and wicked person he took away. [15] He beautified the sanctuary, and multiplied vessels of the temple.

[16] Now when it was heard at Rome, and as far as Sparta, that Jonathan was dead, they were very sorry. [17] But as soon as they heard that his brother Simon was made high priest in his stead, and ruled the country, and the cities therein: [18] They wrote unto him in tables of brass, to renew the friendship and league which they had made with Judas and Jonathan his brethren: [19] Which writings were read before the congregation at Jerusalem.

[20] And this is the copy of the letters that the Lacedemonians sent; The rulers of the Lacedemonians, with the city, unto Simon the high priest, and the elders, and priests, and residue of the people of the Jews, our brethren, send greeting: [21] The ambassadors that were sent unto our people certified us of your glory and honour: wherefore we were glad of their coming, [22] And did register the things that they spake in the council of the people in this manner; Numenius son of Antiochus, and Antipater son of Jason, the Jews' ambassadors, came unto us to renew the friendship they had with us.

[23] And it pleased the people to entertain the men honourably, and to put the copy of their ambassage in publick records, to the end the people of the Lacedemonians might have a memorial thereof: furthermore we have written a copy thereof unto Simon the high priest.

[24] After this Simon sent Numenius to Rome with a great shield of gold of a thousand pound weight to confirm the league with them. [25] Whereof when the people heard, they said, What thanks shall we give to Simon and his sons?

[26] For he and his brethren and the house of his father have established Israel, and chased away in fight their enemies from them, and confirmed their liberty.

[27] So then they wrote it in tables of brass, which they set upon pillars in mount Sion: and this is the copy of the writing; The eighteenth day of the month Elul, in the hundred threescore and twelfth year, being the third year of Simon the high priest, [28] At Saramel in the great congregation of the priests, and people, and rulers of the nation, and elders of the country, were these things notified unto us.

[29] Forasmuch as oftentimes there have been wars in the country, wherein for the maintenance of their sanctuary, and the law, Simon the son of Mattathias, of the posterity of Jarib, together with his brethren, put themselves in jeopardy, and resisting the enemies of their nation did their nation great honour:

[30] (For after that Jonathan, having gathered his nation together, and been their high priest, was added to his people, [31] Their enemies prepared to invade their country, that they might destroy it, and lay hands on the sanctuary: [32] At which time Simon rose up, and fought for his nation, and spent much of his own substance, and armed the valiant men of his nation and gave them wages, [33] And fortified the cities of Judea, together with Bethsura, that lieth upon the borders of Judea, where the armour of the enemies had been before; but he set a garrison of Jews there: [34] Moreover he fortified Joppa, which lieth upon the sea, and Gazera, that bordereth upon Azotus, where the enemies had dwelt before: but he placed Jews there, and furnished them with all things convenient for the reparation thereof.)

[35] The people therefore sang the acts of Simon, and unto what glory he thought to bring his nation, made him their governor and chief priest, because he had done all these things, and for the justice and faith which he kept to his nation, and for that he sought by all means to exalt his people.

[36] For in his time things prospered in his hands, so that the heathen were taken out of their country, and they also that were in the city of David in Jerusalem, who had made themselves a tower, out of which they issued, and polluted all about the sanctuary, and did much hurt in the holy place: [37] But he placed Jews therein. and fortified it for the safety of the country and the city, and raised up the walls of Jerusalem.

[38] King Demetrius also confirmed him in the high priesthood according to those things, [39] And made him one of his friends, and honoured him with great honour.

[40] For he had heard say, that the Romans had called the Jews their friends and confederates and brethren; and that they had entertained the ambassadors of Simon honourably; [41] Also that the Jews and priests were well pleased that Simon should be their governor and high priest for ever, until there should arise a faithful prophet; [42] Moreover that he should be their captain, and should take charge of the sanctuary, to set them over their works, and over the country, and over the armour, and over the fortresses, that, I say, he should take charge of the sanctuary; [43] Beside this, that he should be obeyed of every man, and that all the writings in the country should be made in his name, and that he should be clothed in purple, and wear gold:

[44] Also that it should be lawful for none of the people or priests to break any of these things, or to gainsay his words, or to gather an assembly in the country without him, or to be clothed in purple, or wear a buckle of gold; [45] And whosoever should do otherwise, or break any of these things, he should be punished. [46] Thus it liked all the people to deal with Simon, and to do as hath been said. [47] Then Simon accepted hereof, and was well pleased to be high priest, and captain and governor of the Jews and priests, and to defend them all.

[48] So they commanded that this writing should be put in tables of brass, and that they should be set up within the compass of the sanctuary in a conspicuous place; [49] Also that the copies thereof should be laid up in the treasury, to the end that Simon and his sons might have them.

[1] Moreover Antiochus son of Demetrius the king sent letters from the isles of the sea unto Simon the priest and prince of the Jews, and to all the people; [2] The contents whereof were these: King Antiochus to Simon the high priest and prince of his nation, and to the people of the Jews, greeting:

[3] Forasmuch as certain pestilent men have usurped the kingdom of our fathers, and my purpose is to challenge it again, that I may restore it to the old estate, and to that end have gathered a multitude of foreign soldiers together, and prepared ships of war; [4] My meaning also being to go through the country, that I may be avenged of them that have destroyed it, and made many cities in the kingdom desolate: [5] Now therefore I confirm unto thee all the oblations which the kings before me granted thee, and whatsoever gifts besides they granted.

[6] I give thee leave also to coin money for thy country with thine own stamp. [7] And as concerning Jerusalem and the sanctuary, let them be free; and all the armour that thou hast made, and fortresses that thou hast built, and keepest in thine hands, let them remain unto thee. [8] And if anything be, or shall be, owing to the king, let it be forgiven thee from this time forth for evermore. [9] Furthermore, when we have obtained our kingdom, we will honour thee, and thy nation, and thy temple, with great honour, so that your honour shall be known throughout the world.

[10] In the hundred threescore and fourteenth year went Antiochus into the land of his fathers: at which time all the forces came together unto him, so that few were left with Tryphon.

[11] Wherefore being pursued by king Antiochus, he fled unto Dora, which lieth by the sea side: [12] For he saw that troubles came upon him all at once, and that his forces had forsaken him.

[13] Then camped Antiochus against Dora, having with him an hundred and twenty thousand men of war, and eight thousand horsemen. [14] And when he had compassed the city round about, and joined ships close to the town on the sea side, he vexed the city by land and by sea, neither suffered he any to go out or in.

[15] In the mean season came Numenius and his company from Rome, having letters to the kings and countries; wherein were written these things:

[16] Lucius, consul of the Romans unto king Ptolemee, greeting: [17] The Jews' ambassadors, our friends and confederates, came unto us to renew the old friendship and league, being sent from Simon the high priest, and from the people of the Jews: [18] And they brought a shield of gold of a thousand pound. [19] We thought it good therefore to write unto the kings and countries, that they should do them no harm, nor fight against them, their cities, or countries, nor yet aid their enemies against them. [20] It seemed also good to us to receive the shield of them. [21] If therefore there be any pestilent fellows, that have fled from their country unto you, deliver them unto Simon the high priest, that he may punish them according to their own law.

[22] The same things wrote he likewise unto Demetrius the king, and Attalus, to Ariarathes, and Arsaces, [23] And to all the countries and to Sampsames, and the Lacedemonians, and to Delus, and Myndus, and Sicyon, and Caria, and Samos, and Pamphylia, and Lycia, and Halicarnassus, and Rhodus, and Aradus, and Cos, and Side, and Aradus, and Gortyna, and Cnidus, and Cyprus, and Cyrene. [24] And the copy hereof they wrote to Simon the high priest.

[25] So Antiochus the king camped against Dora the second day, assaulting it continually, and making engines, by which means he shut up Tryphon, that he could neither go out nor in.

[26] At that time Simon sent him two thousand chosen men to aid him; silver also, and gold, and much armour. [27] Nevertheless he would not receive them, but brake all the covenants which he had made with him afore, and became strange unto him.

[28] Furthermore he sent unto him Athenobius, one of his friends, to commune with him, and say, Ye withhold Joppa and Gazera; with the tower that is in Jerusalem, which are cities of my realm. [29] The borders thereof ye have wasted, and done great hurt in the land, and got the dominion of many places within my kingdom. [30] Now therefore deliver the cities which ye have taken, and the tributes of the places, whereof ye have gotten dominion without the borders of Judea: [31] Or else give me for them five hundred talents of silver; and for the harm that ye have done, and the tributes of the cities, other five hundred talents: if not, we will come and fight against you

[32] So Athenobius the king's friend came to Jerusalem: and when he saw the glory of Simon, and the cupboard of gold and silver plate, and his great attendance, he was astonished, and told him the king's message.

[33] Then answered Simon, and said unto him, We have neither taken other men's land, nor holden that which appertaineth to others, but the inheritance of our fathers, which our enemies had wrongfully in possession a certain time. [34] Wherefore we, having opportunity, hold the inheritance of our fathers. [35] And whereas thou demandest Joppa and Gazera, albeit they did great harm unto the people in our country, yet will we give thee an hundred talents for them.

Hereunto Athenobius answered him not a word; [36] But returned in a rage to the king, and made report unto him of these speeches, and of the glory of Simon, and of all that he had seen: whereupon the king was exceeding wroth. [37] In the mean time fled Tryphon by ship unto Orthosias.

[38] Then the king made Cendebeus captain of the sea coast, and gave him an host of footmen and horsemen, [39] And commanded him to remove his host toward Judea; also he commanded him to build up Cedron, and to fortify the gates, and to war against the people; but as for the king himself, he pursued Tryphon.

[40] So Cendebeus came to Jamnia and began to provoke the people and to invade Judea, and to take the people prisoners, and slay them. [41] And when he had built up Cedron, he set horsemen there, and an host of footmen, to the end that issuing out they might make outroads upon the ways of Judea, as the king had commanded him.

[1] Then came up John from Gazera, and told Simon his father what Cendebeus had done.

[2] Wherefore Simon called his two eldest sons, Judas and John, and said unto them, I, and my brethren, and my father's house, have ever from my youth unto this day fought against the enemies of Israel; and things have prospered so well in our hands, that we have delivered Israel oftentimes. [3] But now I am old, and ye, by God's mercy, are of a sufficient age: be ye instead of me and my brother, and go and fight for our nation, and the help from heaven be with you.

[4] So he chose out of the country twenty thousand men of war with horsemen, who went out against Cendebeus, and rested that night at Modin.

[5] And when as they rose in the morning, and went into the plain, behold, a mighty great host both of footmen and horsemen came against them: howbeit there was a water brook betwixt them. [6] So he and his people pitched over against them: and when he saw that the people were afraid to go over the water brook, he went first over himself, and then the men seeing him passed through after him. [7] That done, he divided his men, and set the horsemen in the midst of the footmen: for the enemies' horsemen were very many.

[8] Then sounded they with the holy trumpets: whereupon Cendebeus and his host were put to flight, so that many of them were slain, and the remnant gat them to the strong hold.

[9] At that time was Judas John's brother wounded; but John still followed after them, until he came to Cedron, which Cendebeus had built. [10] So they fled even unto the towers in the fields of Azotus; wherefore he burned it with fire: so that there were slain of them about two thousand men. Afterward he returned into the land of Judea in peace.

[11] Moreover in the plain of Jericho was Ptolemeus the son of Abubus made captain, and he had abundance of silver and gold: [12] For he was the high priest's son in law. [13] Wherefore his heart being lifted up, he thought to get the country to himself, and thereupon consulted deceitfully against Simon and his sons to destroy them.

[14] Now Simon was visiting the cities that were in the country, and taking care for the good ordering of them; at which time he came down himself to Jericho with his sons, Mattathias and Judas, in the hundred threescore and seventeenth year, in the eleventh month, called Sabat: [15] Where the son of Abubus receiving them deceitfully into a little hold, called Docus, which he had built, made them a great banquet: howbeit he had hid men there.

[16] So when Simon and his sons had drunk largely, Ptolemee and his men rose up, and took their weapons, and came upon Simon into the banqueting place, and slew him, and his two sons, and certain of his servants. [17] In which doing he committed a great treachery, and recompensed evil for good.

[18] Then Ptolemee wrote these things, and sent to the king, that he should send him an host to aid him, and he would deliver him the country and cities.

[19] He sent others also to Gazera to kill John: and unto the tribunes he sent letters to come unto him, that he might give them silver, and gold, and rewards. [20] And others he sent to take Jerusalem, and the mountain of the temple.

[21] Now one had run afore to Gazera and told John that his father and brethren were slain, and, quoth he, Ptolemee hath sent to slay thee also. [22] Hereof when he heard, he was sore astonished: so he laid hands on them that were come to destroy him, and slew them; for he knew that they sought to make him away.

[23] As concerning the rest of the acts of John, and his wars, and worthy deeds which he did, and the building of the walls which he made, and his doings, [24] Behold, these are written in the chronicles of his priesthood, from the time he was made high priest after his father.

II Maccabees

[1] The brethren, the Jews that be at Jerusalem and in the land of Judea, wish unto the brethren, the Jews that are throughout Egypt health and peace:

[2] God be gracious unto you, and remember his covenant that he made with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, his faithful servants; [3] And give you all an heart to serve him, and to do his will, with a good courage and a willing mind; [4] And open your hearts in his law and commandments, and send you peace, [5] And hear your prayers, and be at one with you, and never forsake you in time of trouble. [6] And now we be here praying for you.

[7] What time as Demetrius reigned, in the hundred threescore and ninth year, we the Jews wrote unto you in the extremity of trouble that came upon us in those years, from the time that Jason and his company revolted from the holy land and kingdom, [8] And burned the porch, and shed innocent blood: then we prayed unto the Lord, and were heard; we offered also sacrifices and fine flour, and lighted the lamps, and set forth the loaves. [9] And now see that ye keep the feast of tabernacles in the month Casleu.

[10] In the hundred fourscore and eighth year, the people that were at Jerusalem and in Judea, and the council, and Judas, sent greeting and health unto Aristobulus, king Ptolemeus' master, who was of the stock of the anointed priests, and to the Jews that were in Egypt:

[11] Insomuch as God hath delivered us from great perils, we thank him highly, as having been in battle against a king. [12] For he cast them out that fought within the holy city.

[13] For when the leader was come into Persia, and the army with him that seemed invincible, they were slain in the temple of Nanea by the deceit of Nanea's priests. [14] For Antiochus, as though he would marry her, came into the place, and his friends that were with him, to receive money in name of a dowry. [15] Which when the priests of Nanea had set forth, and he was entered with a small company into the compass of the temple, they shut the temple as soon as Antiochus was come in: [16] And opening a privy door of the roof, they threw stones like thunderbolts, and struck down the captain, hewed them in pieces, smote off their heads and cast them to those that were without.

[17] Blessed be our God in all things, who hath delivered up the ungodly.

[18] Therefore whereas we are now purposed to keep the purification of the temple upon the five and twentieth day of the month Casleu, we thought it necessary to certify you thereof, that ye also might keep it, as the feast of the tabernacles, and of the fire, which was given us when Neemias offered sacrifice, after that he had builded the temple and the altar. [19] For when our fathers were led into Persia, the priests that were then devout took the fire of the altar privily, and hid it in an hollow place of a pit without water, where they kept it sure, so that the place was unknown to all men.

[20] Now after many years, when it pleased God, Neemias, being sent from the king of Persia, did send of the posterity of those priests that had hid it to the fire: but when they told us they found no fire, but thick water; [21] Then commanded he them to draw it up, and to bring it; and when the sacrifices were laid on, Neemias commanded the priests to sprinkle the wood and the things laid thereupon with the water. [22] When this was done, and the time came that the sun shone, which afore was hid in the cloud, there was a great fire kindled, so that every man marvelled.

[23] And the priests made a prayer whilst the sacrifice was consuming, I say, both the priests, and all the rest, Jonathan beginning, and the rest answering thereunto, as Neemias did.

[24] And the prayer was after this manner; O Lord, Lord God, Creator of all things, who art fearful and strong, and righteous, and merciful, and the only and gracious King, [25] The only giver of all things, the only just, almighty, and everlasting, thou that deliverest Israel from all trouble, and didst choose the fathers, and sanctify them: [26] Receive the sacrifice for thy whole people Israel, and preserve thine own portion, and sanctify it. [27] Gather those together that are scattered from us, deliver them that serve among the heathen, look upon them that are despised and abhorred, and let the heathen know that thou art our God.

[28] Punish them that oppress us, and with pride do us wrong. [29] Plant thy people again in thy holy place, as Moses hath spoken. [30] And the priests sung psalms of thanksgiving.

[31] Now when the sacrifice was consumed, Neemias commanded the water that was left to be poured on the great stones. [32] When this was done, there was kindled a flame: but it was consumed by the light that shined from the altar.

[33] So when this matter was known, it was told the king of Persia, that in the place, where the priests that were led away had hid the fire, there appeared water, and that Neemias had purified the sacrifices therewith. [34] Then the king, inclosing the place, made it holy, after he had tried the matter.

[35] And the king took many gifts, and bestowed thereof on those whom he would gratify. [36] And Neemias called this thing Naphthar, which is as much as to say, a cleansing: but many men call it Nephi.

[1] It is also found in the records, that Jeremy the prophet commanded them that were carried away to take of the fire, as it hath been signified: [2] And how that the prophet, having given them the law, charged them not to forget the commandments of the Lord, and that they should not err in their minds, when they see images of silver and gold, with their ornaments. [3] And with other such speeches exhorted he them, that the law should not depart from their hearts.

[4] It was also contained in the same writing, that the prophet, being warned of God, commanded the tabernacle and the ark to go with him, as he went forth into the mountain, where Moses climbed up, and saw the heritage of God. [5] And when Jeremy came thither, he found an hollow cave, wherein he laid the tabernacle, and the ark, and the altar of incense, and so stopped the door.

[6] And some of those that followed him came to mark the way, but they could not find it. [7] Which when Jeremy perceived, he blamed them, saying, As for that place, it shall be unknown until the time that God gather his people again together, and receive them unto mercy. [8] Then shall the Lord shew them these things, and the glory of the Lord shall appear, and the cloud also, as it was shewed under Moses, and as when Solomon desired that the place might be honourably sanctified.

[9] It was also declared, that he being wise offered the sacrifice of dedication, and of the finishing of the temple. [10] And as when Moses prayed unto the Lord, the fire came down from heaven, and consumed the sacrifices: even so prayed Solomon also, and the fire came down from heaven, and consumed the burnt offerings. [11] And Moses said, Because the sin offering was not to be eaten, it was consumed. [12] So Solomon kept those eight days.

[13] The same things also were reported in the writings and commentaries of Neemias; and how he founding a library gathered together the acts of the kings, and the prophets, and of David, and the epistles of the kings concerning the holy gifts. [14] In like manner also Judas gathered together all those things that were lost by reason of the war we had, and they remain with us, [15] Wherefore if ye have need thereof, send some to fetch them unto you.

[16] Whereas we then are about to celebrate the purification, we have written unto you, and ye shall do well, if ye keep the same days. [17] We hope also, that the God, that delivered all his people, and gave them all an heritage, and the kingdom, and the priesthood, and the sanctuary, [18] As he promised in the law, will shortly have mercy upon us, and gather us together out of every land under heaven into the holy place: for he hath delivered us out of great troubles, and hath purified the place.

[19] Now as concerning Judas Maccabeus, and his brethren, and the purification of the great temple, and the dedication of the altar, [20] And the wars against Antiochus Epiphanes, and Eupator his son, [21] And the manifest signs that came from heaven unto those that behaved themselves manfully to their honour for Judaism: so that, being but a few, they overcame the whole country, and chased barbarous multitudes, [22] And recovered again the temple renowned all the world over, and freed the city, and upheld the laws which were going down, the Lord being gracious unto them with all favour: [23] All these things, I say, being declared by Jason of Cyrene in five books, we will assay to abridge in one volume.

[24] For considering the infinite number, and the difficulty which they find that desire to look into the narrations of the story, for the variety of the matter, [25] We have been careful, that they that will read may have delight, and that they that are desirous to commit to memory might have ease, and that all into whose hands it comes might have profit.

[26] Therefore to us, that have taken upon us this painful labour of abridging, it was not easy, but a matter of sweat and watching; [27] Even as it is no ease unto him that prepareth a banquet, and seeketh the benefit of others: yet for the pleasuring of many we will undertake gladly this great pains; [28] Leaving to the author the exact handling of every particular, and labouring to follow the rules of an abridgement. [29] For as the master builder of a new house must care for the whole building; but he that undertaketh to set it out, and paint it, must seek out fit things for the adorning thereof: even so I think it is with us. [30] To stand upon every point, and go over things at large, and to be curious in particulars, belongeth to the first author of the story: [31] But to use brevity, and avoid much labouring of the work, is to be granted to him that will make an abridgment.

[32] Here then will we begin the story: only adding thus much to that which hath been said, that it is a foolish thing to make a long prologue, and to be short in the story itself.

[1] Now when the holy city was inhabited with all peace, and the laws were kept very well, because of the godliness of Onias the high priest, and his hatred of wickedness, [2] It came to pass that even the kings themselves did honour the place, and magnify the temple with their best gifts; [3] Inasmuch that Seleucus of Asia of his own revenues bare all the costs belonging to the service of the sacrifices.

[4] But one Simon of the tribe of Benjamin, who was made governor of the temple, fell out with the high priest about disorder in the city. [5] And when he could not overcome Onias, he gat him to Apollonius the son of Thraseas, who then was governor of Celosyria and Phenice, [6] And told him that the treasury in Jerusalem was full of infinite sums of money, so that the multitude of their riches, which did not pertain to the account of the sacrifices, was innumerable, and that it was possible to bring all into the king's hand.

[7] Now when Apollonius came to the king, and had shewed him of the money whereof he was told, the king chose out Heliodorus his treasurer, and sent him with a commandment to bring him the foresaid money. [8] So forthwith Heliodorus took his journey; under a colour of visiting the cities of Celosyria and Phenice, but indeed to fulfil the king's purpose.

[9] And when he was come to Jerusalem, and had been courteously received of the high priest of the city, he told him what intelligence was given of the money, and declared wherefore he came, and asked if these things were so indeed.

[10] Then the high priest told him that there was such money laid up for the relief of widows and fatherless children: [11] And that some of it belonged to Hircanus son of Tobias, a man of great dignity, and not as that wicked Simon had misinformed: the sum whereof in all was four hundred talents of silver, and two hundred of gold: [12] And that it was altogether impossible that such wrongs should be done unto them, that had committed it to the holiness of the place, and to the majesty and inviolable sanctity of the temple, honoured over all the world.

[13] But Heliodorus, because of the king's commandment given him, said, That in any wise it must be brought into the king's treasury. [14] So at the day which he appointed he entered in to order this matter: wherefore there was no small agony throughout the whole city. [15] But the priests, prostrating themselves before the altar in their priests' vestments, called unto heaven upon him that made a law concerning things given to be kept, that they should safely be preserved for such as had committed them to be kept.

[16] Then whoso had looked the high priest in the face, it would have wounded his heart: for his countenance and the changing of his colour declared the inward agony of his mind. [17] For the man was so compassed with fear and horror of the body, that it was manifest to them that looked upon him, what sorrow he had now in his heart.

[18] Others ran flocking out of their houses to the general supplication, because the place was like to come into contempt. [19] And the women, girt with sackcloth under their breasts, abounded in the streets, and the virgins that were kept in ran, some to the gates, and some to the walls, and others looked out of the windows. [20] And all, holding their hands toward heaven, made supplication.

[21] Then it would have pitied a man to see the falling down of the multitude of all sorts, and the fear of the high priest being in such an agony. [22] They then called upon the Almighty Lord to keep the things committed of trust safe and sure for those that had committed them.

[23] Nevertheless Heliodorus executed that which was decreed.

[24] Now as he was there present himself with his guard about the treasury, the Lord of spirits, and the Prince of all power, caused a great apparition, so that all that presumed to come in with him were astonished at the power of God, and fainted, and were sore afraid. [25] For there appeared unto them an horse with a terrible rider upon him, and adorned with a very fair covering, and he ran fiercely, and smote at Heliodorus with his forefeet, and it seemed that he that sat upon the horse had complete harness of gold.

[26] Moreover two other young men appeared before him, notable in strength, excellent in beauty, and comely in apparel, who stood by him on either side; and scourged him continually, and gave him many sore stripes.

[27] And Heliodorus fell suddenly unto the ground, and was compassed with great darkness: but they that were with him took him up, and put him into a litter. [28] Thus him, that lately came with a great train and with all his guard into the said treasury, they carried out, being unable to help himself with his weapons: and manifestly they acknowledged the power of God. [29] For he by the hand of God was cast down, and lay speechless without all hope of life. [30] But they praised the Lord, that had miraculously honoured his own place: for the temple; which a little afore was full of fear and trouble, when the Almighty Lord appeared, was filled with joy and gladness.

[31] Then straightways certain of Heliodorus' friends prayed Onias, that he would call upon the most High to grant him his life, who lay ready to give up the ghost. [32] So the high priest, suspecting lest the king should misconceive that some treachery had been done to Heliodorus by the Jews, offered a sacrifice for the health of the man.

[33] Now as the high priest was making an atonement, the same young men in the same clothing appeared and stood beside Heliodorus, saying, Give Onias the high priest great thanks, insomuch as for his sake the Lord hath granted thee life: [34] And seeing that thou hast been scourged from heaven, declare unto all men the mighty power of God. And when they had spoken these words, they appeared no more.

[35] So Heliodorus, after he had offered sacrifice unto the Lord, and made great vows unto him that had saved his life, and saluted Onias, returned with his host to the king. [36] Then testified he to all men the works of the great God, which he had seen with his eyes.

[37] And when the king Heliodorus, who might be a fit man to be sent yet once again to Jerusalem, he said, [38] If thou hast any enemy or traitor, send him thither, and thou shalt receive him well scourged, if he escape with his life: for in that place, no doubt; there is an especial power of God.

[39] For he that dwelleth in heaven hath his eye on that place, and defendeth it; and he beateth and destroyeth them that come to hurt it.

[40] And the things concerning Heliodorus, and the keeping of the treasury, fell out on this sort.

[1] This Simon now, of whom we spake afore, having been a betrayer of the money, and of his country, slandered Onias, as if he ha terrified Heliodorus, and been the worker of these evils. [2] Thus was he bold to call him a traitor, that had deserved well of the city, and tendered his own nation, and was so zealous of the laws.

[3] But when their hatred went so far, that by one of Simon's faction murders were committed, [4] Onias seeing the danger of this contention, and that Apollonius, as being the governor of Celosyria and Phenice, did rage, and increase Simon's malice, [5] He went to the king, not to be an accuser of his countrymen, but seeking the good of all, both publick and private: [6] For he saw that it was impossible that the state should continue quiet, and Simon leave his folly, unless the king did look thereunto.

[7] But after the death of Seleucus, when Antiochus, called Epiphanes, took the kingdom, Jason the brother of Onias laboured underhand to be high priest, [8] Promising unto the king by intercession three hundred and threescore talents of silver, and of another revenue eighty talents: [9] Beside this, he promised to assign an hundred and fifty more, if he might have licence to set him up a place for exercise, and for the training up of youth in the fashions of the heathen, and to write them of Jerusalem by the name of Antiochians. [10] Which when the king had granted, and he had gotten into his hand the rule he forthwith brought his own nation to Greekish fashion.

[11] And the royal privileges granted of special favour to the Jews by the means of John the father of Eupolemus, who went ambassador to Rome for amity and aid, he took away; and putting down the governments which were according to the law, he brought up new customs against the law: [12] For he built gladly a place of exercise under the tower itself, and brought the chief young men under his subjection, and made them wear a hat.

[13] Now such was the height of Greek fashions, and increase of heathenish manners, through the exceeding profaneness of Jason, that ungodly wretch, and no high priest; [14] That the priests had no courage to serve any more at the altar, but despising the temple, and neglecting the sacrifices, hastened to be partakers of the unlawful allowance in the place of exercise, after the game of Discus called them forth; [15] Not setting by the honours of their fathers, but liking the glory of the Grecians best of all.

[16] By reason whereof sore calamity came upon them: for they had them to be their enemies and avengers, whose custom they followed so earnestly, and unto whom they desired to be like in all things. [17] For it is not a light thing to do wickedly against the laws of God: but the time following shall declare these things.

[18] Now when the game that was used every faith year was kept at Tyrus, the king being present, [19] This ungracious Jason sent special messengers from Jerusalem, who were Antiochians, to carry three hundred drachms of silver to the sacrifice of Hercules, which even the bearers thereof thought fit not to bestow upon the sacrifice, because it was not convenient, but to be reserved for other charges. [20] This money then, in regard of the sender, was appointed to Hercules' sacrifice; but because of the bearers thereof, it was employed to the making of gallies.

[21] Now when Apollonius the son of Menestheus was sent into Egypt for the coronation of king Ptolemeus Philometor, Antiochus, understanding him not to be well affected to his affairs, provided for his own safety: whereupon he came to Joppa, and from thence to Jerusalem: [22] Where he was honourably received of Jason, and of the city, and was brought in with torch alight, and with great shoutings: and so afterward went with his host unto Phenice.

[23] Three years afterward Jason sent Menelaus, the aforesaid Simon's brother, to bear the money unto the king, and to put him in mind of certain necessary matters. [24] But he being brought to the presence of the king, when he had magnified him for the glorious appearance of his power, got the priesthood to himself, offering more than Jason by three hundred talents of silver. [25] So he came with the king's mandate, bringing nothing worthy the high priesthood, but having the fury of a cruel tyrant, and the rage of a savage beast.

[26] Then Jason, who had undermined his own brother, being undermined by another, was compelled to flee into the country of the Ammonites. [27] So Menelaus got the principality: but as for the money that he had promised unto the king, he took no good order for it, albeit Sostratis the ruler of the castle required it: [28] For unto him appertained the gathering of the customs. Wherefore they were both called before the king.

[30] While those things were in doing, they of Tarsus and Mallos made insurrection, because they were given to the king's concubine, called Antiochus. [31] Then came the king in all haste to appease matters, leaving Andronicus, a man in authority, for his deputy.

[32] Now Menelaus, supposing that he had gotten a convenient time, stole certain vessels of gold out of the temple, and gave some of them to Andronicus, and some he sold into Tyrus and the cities round about. [33] Which when Onias knew of a surety, he reproved him, and withdrew himself into a sanctuary at Daphne, that lieth by Antiochia.

[34] Wherefore Menelaus, taking Andronicus apart, prayed, him to get Onias into his hands; who being persuaded thereunto, and coming to Onias in deceit, gave him his right hand with oaths; and though he were suspected by him, yet persuaded he him to come forth of the sanctuary: whom forthwith he shut up without regard of justice. [35] For the which cause not only the Jews, but many also of other nations, took great indignation, and were much grieved for the unjust murder of the man.

[36] And when the king was come again from the places about Cilicia, the Jews that were in the city, and certain of the Greeks that abhorred the fact also, complained because Onias was slain without cause. [37] Therefore Antiochus was heartily sorry, and moved to pity, and wept, because of the sober and modest behaviour of him that was dead. [38] And being kindled with anger, forthwith he took away Andronicus his purple, and rent off his clothes, and leading him through the whole city unto that very place, where he had committed impiety against Onias, there slew he the cursed murderer. Thus the Lord rewarded him his punishment, as he had deserved.

[39] Now when many sacrileges had been committed in the city by Lysimachus with the consent of Menelaus, and the fruit thereof was spread abroad, the multitude gathered themselves together against Lysimachus, many vessels of gold being already carried away. [40] Whereupon the common people rising, and being filled with rage, Lysimachus armed about three thousand men, and began first to offer violence; one Auranus being the leader, a man far gone in years, and no less in folly.

[41] They then seeing the attempt of Lysimachus, some of them caught stones, some clubs, others taking handfuls of dust, that was next at hand, cast them all together upon Lysimachus, and those that set upon them. [42] Thus many of them they wounded, and some they struck to the ground, and all of them they forced to flee: but as for the churchrobber himself, him they killed beside the treasury.

[43] Of these matters therefore there was an accusation laid against Menelaus. [44] Now when the king came to Tyrus, three men that were sent from the senate pleaded the cause before him: [45] But Menelaus, being now convicted, promised Ptolemee the son of Dorymenes to give him much money, if he would pacify the king toward him. [46] Whereupon Ptolemee taking the king aside into a certain gallery, as it were to take the air, brought him to be of another mind: [47] Insomuch that he discharged Menelaus from the accusations, who notwithstanding was cause of all the mischief: and those poor men, who, if they had told their cause, yea, before the Scythians, should have been judged innocent, them he condemned to death.

[48] Thus they that followed the matter for the city, and for the people, and for the holy vessels, did soon suffer unjust punishment. [49] Wherefore even they of Tyrus, moved with hatred of that wicked deed, caused them to be honourably buried. [50] And so through the covetousness of them that were of power Menelaus remained still in authority, increasing in malice, and being a great traitor to the citizens.

[1] About the same time Antiochus prepared his second voyage into Egypt: [2] And then it happened, that through all the city, for the space almost of forty days, there were seen horsemen running in the air, in cloth of gold, and armed with lances, like a band of soldiers, [3] And troops of horsemen in array, encountering and running one against another, with shaking of shields, and multitude of pikes, and drawing of swords, and casting of darts, and glittering of golden ornaments, and harness of all sorts. [4] Wherefore every man prayed that that apparition might turn to good.

[5] Now when there was gone forth a false rumour, as though Antiochus had been dead, Jason took at the least a thousand men, and suddenly made an assault upon the city; and they that were upon the walls being put back, and the city at length taken, Menelaus fled into the castle: [6] But Jason slew his own citizens without mercy, not considering that to get the day of them of his own nation would be a most unhappy day for him; but thinking they had been his enemies, and not his countrymen, whom he conquered. [7] Howbeit for all this he obtained not the principality, but at the last received shame for the reward of his treason, and fled again into the country of the Ammonites.

[8] In the end therefore he had an unhappy return, being accused before Aretas the king of the Arabians, fleeing from city to city, pursued of all men, hated as a forsaker of the laws, and being had in abomination as an open enemy of his country and countrymen, he was cast out into Egypt. [9] Thus he that had driven many out of their country perished in a strange land, retiring to the Lacedemonians, and thinking there to find succour by reason of his kindred: [10] And he that had cast out many unburied had none to mourn for him, nor any solemn funerals at all, nor sepulchre with his fathers.

[11] Now when this that was done came to the king's ear, he thought that Judea had revolted: whereupon removing out of Egypt in a furious mind, he took the city by force of arms, [12] And commanded his men of war not to spare such as they met, and to slay such as went up upon the houses. [13] Thus there was killing of young and old, making away of men, women, and children, slaying of virgins and infants. [14] And there were destroyed within the space of three whole days fourscore thousand, whereof forty thousand were slain in the conflict; and no fewer sold than slain.

[15] Yet was he not content with this, but presumed to go into the most holy temple of all the world; Menelaus, that traitor to the laws, and to his own country, being his guide: [16] And taking the holy vessels with polluted hands, and with profane hands pulling down the things that were dedicated by other kings to the augmentation and glory and honour of the place, he gave them away.

[17] And so haughty was Antiochus in mind, that he considered not that the Lord was angry for a while for the sins of them that dwelt in the city, and therefore his eye was not upon the place. [18] For had they not been formerly wrapped in many sins, this man, as soon as he had come, had forthwith been scourged, and put back from his presumption, as Heliodorus was, whom Seleucus the king sent to view the treasury.

[19] Nevertheless God did not choose the people for the place's sake, but the place for the people's sake. [20] And therefore the place itself, that was partaker with them of the adversity that happened to the nation, did afterward communicate in the benefits sent from the Lord: and as it was forsaken in the wrath of the Almighty, so again, the great Lord being reconciled, it was set up with all glory.

[21] So when Antiochus had carried out of the temple a thousand and eight hundred talents, he departed in all haste unto Antiochia, weening in his pride to make the land navigable, and the sea passable by foot: such was the haughtiness of his mind.

[22] And he left governors to vex the nation: at Jerusalem, Philip, for his country a Phrygian, and for manners more barbarous than he that set him there; [23] And at Garizim, Andronicus; and besides, Menelaus, who worse than all the rest bare an heavy hand over the citizens, having a malicious mind against his countrymen the Jews.

[24] He sent also that detestable ringleader Apollonius with an army of two and twenty thousand, commanding him to slay all those that were in their best age, and to sell the women and the younger sort: [25] Who coming to Jerusalem, and pretending peace, did forbear till the holy day of the sabbath, when taking the Jews keeping holy day, he commanded his men to arm themselves. [26] And so he slew all them that were gone to the celebrating of the sabbath, and running through the city with weapons slew great multitudes.

[27] But Judas Maccabeus with nine others, or thereabout, withdrew himself into the wilderness, and lived in the mountains after the manner of beasts, with his company, who fed on herbs continually, lest they should be partakers of the pollution.

[1] Not long after this the king sent an old man of Athens to compel the Jews to depart from the laws of their fathers, and not to live after the laws of God: [2] And to pollute also the temple in Jerusalem, and to call it the temple of Jupiter Olympius; and that in Garizim, of Jupiter the Defender of strangers, as they did desire that dwelt in the place.

[3] The coming in of this mischief was sore and grievous to the people: [4] For the temple was filled with riot and revelling by the Gentiles, who dallied with harlots, and had to do with women within the circuit of the holy places, and besides that brought in things that were not lawful. [5] The altar also was filled with profane things, which the law forbiddeth. [6] Neither was it lawful for a man to keep sabbath days or ancient fasts, or to profess himself at all to be a Jew.

[7] And in the day of the king's birth every month they were brought by bitter constraint to eat of the sacrifices; and when the fast of Bacchus was kept, the Jews were compelled to go in procession to Bacchus, carrying ivy.

[8] Moreover there went out a decree to the neighbour cities of the heathen, by the suggestion of Ptolemee, against the Jews, that they should observe the same fashions, and be partakers of their sacrifices: [9] And whoso would not conform themselves to the manners of the Gentiles should be put to death. Then might a man have seen the present misery.

[10] For there were two women brought, who had circumcised their children; whom when they had openly led round about the city, the babes handing at their breasts, they cast them down headlong from the wall. [11] And others, that had run together into caves near by, to keep the sabbath day secretly, being discovered by Philip, were all burnt together, because they made a conscience to help themselves for the honour of the most sacred day.

[12] Now I beseech those that read this book, that they be not discouraged for these calamities, but that they judge those punishments not to be for destruction, but for a chastening of our nation. [13] For it is a token of his great goodness, when wicked doers are not suffered any long time, but forthwith punished.

[14] For not as with other nations, whom the Lord patiently forbeareth to punish, till they be come to the fulness of their sins, so dealeth he with us, [15] Lest that, being come to the height of sin, afterwards he should take vengeance of us. [16] And therefore he never withdraweth his mercy from us: and though he punish with adversity, yet doth he never forsake his people. [17] But let this that we at spoken be for a warning unto us. And now will we come to the declaring of the matter in a few words.

[18] Eleazar, one of the principal scribes, an aged man, and of a well favoured countenance, was constrained to open his mouth, and to eat swine's flesh. [19] But he, choosing rather to die gloriously, than to live stained with such an abomination, spit it forth, and came of his own accord to the torment, [20] As it behoved them to come, that are resolute to stand out against such things, as are not lawful for love of life to be tasted.

[21] But they that had the charge of that wicked feast, for the old acquaintance they had with the man, taking him aside, besought him to bring flesh of his own provision, such as was lawful for him to use, and make as if he did eat of the flesh taken from the sacrifice commanded by the king; [22] That in so doing he might be delivered from death, and for the old friendship with them find favour.

[23] But he began to consider discreetly, and as became his age, and the excellency of his ancient years, and the honour of his gray head, whereon was come, and his most honest education from a child, or rather the holy law made and given by God: therefore he answered accordingly, and willed them straightways to send him to the grave.

[24] For it becometh not our age, said he, in any wise to dissemble, whereby many young persons might think that Eleazar, being fourscore years old and ten, were now gone to a strange religion; [25] And so they through mine hypocrisy, and desire to live a little time and a moment longer, should be deceived by me, and I get a stain to mine old age, and make it abominable. [26] For though for the present time I should be delivered from the punishment of men: yet should I not escape the hand of the Almighty, neither alive, nor dead.

[27] Wherefore now, manfully changing this life, I will shew myself such an one as mine age requireth, [28] And leave a notable example to such as be young to die willingly and courageously for the honourable and holy laws. And when he had said these words, immediately he went to the torment: [29] They that led him changing the good will they bare him a little before into hatred, because the foresaid speeches proceeded, as they thought, from a desperate mind.

[30] But when he was ready to die with stripes, he groaned, and said, It is manifest unto the Lord, that hath the holy knowledge, that whereas I might have been delivered from death, I now endure sore pains in body by being beaten: but in soul am well content to suffer these things, because I fear him. [31] And thus this man died, leaving his death for an example of a noble courage, and a memorial of virtue, not only unto young men, but unto all his nation.

[1] It came to pass also, that seven brethren with their mother were taken, and compelled by the king against the law to taste swine's flesh, and were tormented with scourges and whips.

[2] But one of them that spake first said thus, What wouldest thou ask or learn of us? we are ready to die, rather than to transgress the laws of our fathers.

[3] Then the king, being in a rage, commanded pans and caldrons to be made hot: [4] Which forthwith being heated, he commanded to cut out the tongue of him that spake first, and to cut off the utmost parts of his body, the rest of his brethren and his mother looking on.

[5] Now when he was thus maimed in all his members, he commanded him being yet alive to be brought to the fire, and to be fried in the pan: and as the vapour of the pan was for a good space dispersed, they exhorted one another with the mother to die manfully, saying thus, [6] The Lord God looketh upon us, and in truth hath comfort in us, as Moses in his song, which witnessed to their faces, declared, saying, And he shall be comforted in his servants.

[7] So when the first was dead after this number, they brought the second to make him a mocking stock: and when they had pulled off the skin of his head with the hair, they asked him, Wilt thou eat, before thou be punished throughout every member of thy body? [8] But he answered in his own language, and said, No. Wherefore he also received the next torment in order, as the former did. [9] And when he was at the last gasp, he said, Thou like a fury takest us out of this present life, but the King of the world shall raise us up, who have died for his laws, unto everlasting life.

[10] After him was the third made a mocking stock: and when he was required, he put out his tongue, and that right soon, holding forth his hands manfully. [11] And said courageously, These I had from heaven; and for his laws I despise them; and from him I hope to receive them again. [12] Insomuch that the king, and they that were with him, marvelled at the young man's courage, for that he nothing regarded the pains.

[13] Now when this man was dead also, they tormented and mangled the fourth in like manner. [14] So when he was ready to die he said thus, It is good, being put to death by men, to look for hope from God to be raised up again by him: as for thee, thou shalt have no resurrection to life.

[15] Afterward they brought the fifth also, and mangled him. [16] Then looked he unto the king, and said, Thou hast power over men, thou art corruptible, thou doest what thou wilt; yet think not that our nation is forsaken of God; [17] But abide a while, and behold his great power, how he will torment thee and thy seed.

[18] After him also they brought the sixth, who being ready to die said, Be not deceived without cause: for we suffer these things for ourselves, having sinned against our God: therefore marvellous things are done unto us. [19] But think not thou, that takest in hand to strive against God, that thou shalt escape unpunished.

[20] But the mother was marvellous above all, and worthy of honourable memory: for when she saw her seven sons slain within the space of one day, she bare it with a good courage, because of the hope that she had in the Lord.

[21] Yea, she exhorted every one of them in her own language, filled with courageous spirits; and stirring up her womanish thoughts with a manly stomach, she said unto them, [22] I cannot tell how ye came into my womb: for I neither gave you breath nor life, neither was it I that formed the members of every one of you; [23] But doubtless the Creator of the world, who formed the generation of man, and found out the beginning of all things, will also of his own mercy give you breath and life again, as ye now regard not your own selves for his laws' sake.

[24] Now Antiochus, thinking himself despised, and suspecting it to be a reproachful speech, whilst the youngest was yet alive, did not only exhort him by words, but also assured him with oaths, that he would make him both a rich and a happy man, if he would turn from the laws of his fathers; and that also he would take him for his friend, and trust him with affairs.

[25] But when the young man would in no case hearken unto him, the king called his mother, and exhorted her that she would counsel the young man to save his life. [26] And when he had exhorted her with many words, she promised him that she would counsel her son.

[27] But she bowing herself toward him, laughing the cruel tyrant to scorn, spake in her country language on this manner; O my son, have pity upon me that bare thee nine months in my womb, and gave thee such three years, and nourished thee, and brought thee up unto this age, and endured the troubles of education. [28] I beseech thee, my son, look upon the heaven and the earth, and all that is therein, and consider that God made them of things that were not; and so was mankind made likewise. [29] Fear not this tormentor, but, being worthy of thy brethren, take thy death that I may receive thee again in mercy with thy brethren.

[30] Whiles she was yet speaking these words, the young man said, Whom wait ye for? I will not obey the king's commandment: but I will obey the commandment of the law that was given unto our fathers by Moses. [31] And thou, that hast been the author of all mischief against the Hebrews, shalt not escape the hands of God.

[32] For we suffer because of our sins. [33] And though the living Lord be angry with us a little while for our chastening and correction, yet shall he be at one again with his servants. [34] But thou, O godless man, and of all other most wicked, be not lifted up without a cause, nor puffed up with uncertain hopes, lifting up thy hand against the servants of God: [35] For thou hast not yet escaped the judgment of Almighty God, who seeth all things.

[36] For our brethren, who now have suffered a short pain, are dead under God's covenant of everlasting life: but thou, through the judgment of God, shalt receive just punishment for thy pride. [37] But I, as my brethren, offer up my body and life for the laws of our fathers, beseeching God that he would speedily be merciful unto our nation; and that thou by torments and plagues mayest confess, that he alone is God; [38] And that in me and my brethren the wrath of the Almighty, which is justly brought upon our nation, may cease.

[39] Than the king' being in a rage, handed him worse than all the rest, and took it grievously that he was mocked. [40] So this man died undefiled, and put his whole trust in the Lord.

[41] Last of all after the sons the mother died.

[42] Let this be enough now to have spoken concerning the idolatrous feasts, and the extreme tortures.

[1] Then Judas Maccabeus, and they that were with him, went privily into the towns, and called their kinsfolks together, and took unto them all such as continued in the Jews' religion, and assembled about six thousand men.

[2] And they called upon the Lord, that he would look upon the people that was trodden down of all; and also pity the temple profaned of ungodly men; [3] And that he would have compassion upon the city, sore defaced, and ready to be made even with the ground; and hear the blood that cried unto him, [4] And remember the wicked slaughter of harmless infants, and the blasphemies committed against his name; and that he would shew his hatred against the wicked.

[5] Now when Maccabeus had his company about him, he could not be withstood by the heathen: for the wrath of the Lord was turned into mercy. [6] Therefore he came at unawares, and burnt up towns and cities, and got into his hands the most commodious places, and overcame and put to flight no small number of his enemies. [7] But specially took he advantage of the night for such privy attempts, insomuch that the fruit of his holiness was spread every where.

[8] So when Philip saw that this man increased by little and little, and that things prospered with him still more and more, he wrote unto Ptolemeus, the governor of Celosyria and Phenice, to yield more aid to the king's affairs.

[9] Then forthwith choosing Nicanor the son of Patroclus, one of his special friends, he sent him with no fewer than twenty thousand of all nations under him, to root out the whole generation of the Jews; and with him he joined also Gorgias a captain, who in matters of war had great experience.

[10] So Nicanor undertook to make so much money of the captive Jews, as should defray the tribute of two thousand talents, which the king was to pay to the Romans. [11] Wherefore immediately he sent to the cities upon the sea coast, proclaiming a sale of the captive Jews, and promising that they should have fourscore and ten bodies for one talent, not expecting the vengeance that was to follow upon him from the Almighty God.

[12] Now when word was brought unto Judas of Nicanor's coming, and he had imparted unto those that were with him that the army was at hand, [13] They that were fearful, and distrusted the justice of God, fled, and conveyed themselves away.

[14] Others sold all that they had left, and withal besought the Lord to deliver them, sold by the wicked Nicanor before they met together: [15] And if not for their own sakes, yet for the covenants he had made with their fathers, and for his holy and glorious name's sake, by which they were called.

[16] So Maccabeus called his men together unto the number of six thousand, and exhorted them not to be stricken with terror of the enemy, nor to fear the great multitude of the heathen, who came wrongly against them; but to fight manfully, [17] And to set before their eyes the injury that they had unjustly done to the holy place, and the cruel handling of the city, whereof they made a mockery, and also the taking away of the government of their forefathers: [18] For they, said he, trust in their weapons and boldness; but our confidence is in the Almighty who at a beck can cast down both them that come against us, and also all the world.

[19] Moreover, he recounted unto them what helps their forefathers had found, and how they were delivered, when under Sennacherib an hundred fourscore and five thousand perished. [20] And he told them of the battle that they had in Babylon with the Galatians, how they came but eight thousand in all to the business, with four thousand Macedonians, and that the Macedonians being perplexed, the eight thousand destroyed an hundred and twenty thousand because of the help that they had from heaven, and so received a great booty.

[21] Thus when he had made them bold with these words, and ready to die for the law and the country, he divided his army into four parts; [22] And joined with himself his own brethren, leaders of each band, to wit Simon, and Joseph, and Jonathan, giving each one fifteen hundred men. [23] Also he appointed Eleazar to read the holy book: and when he had given them this watchword, The help of God; himself leading the first band, [24] And by the help of the Almighty they slew above nine thousand of their enemies, and wounded and maimed the most part of Nicanor's host, and so put all to flight; [25] And took their money that came to buy them, and pursued them far: but lacking time they returned: [26] For it was the day before the sabbath, and therefore they would no longer pursue them.

[27] So when they had gathered their armour together, and spoiled their enemies, they occupied themselves about the sabbath, yielding exceeding praise and thanks to the Lord, who had preserved them unto that day, which was the beginning of mercy distilling upon them.

[28] And after the sabbath, when they had given part of the spoils to the maimed, and the widows, and orphans, the residue they divided among themselves and their servants. [29] When this was done, and they had made a common supplication, they besought the merciful Lord to be reconciled with his servants for ever.

[30] Moreover of those that were with Timotheus and Bacchides, who fought against them, they slew above twenty thousand, and very easily got high and strong holds, and divided among themselves many spoils more, and made the maimed, orphans, widows, yea, and the aged also, equal in spoils with themselves. [31] And when they had gathered their armour together, they laid them up all carefully in convenient places, and the remnant of the spoils they brought to Jerusalem.

[32] They slew also Philarches, that wicked person, who was with Timotheus, and had annoyed the Jews many ways. [33] Furthermore at such time as they kept the feast for the victory in their country they burnt Callisthenes, that had set fire upon the holy gates, who had fled into a little house; and so he received a reward meet for his wickedness.

[34] As for that most ungracious Nicanor, who had brought a thousand merchants to buy the Jews, [35] He was through the help of the Lord brought down by them, of whom he made least account; and putting off his glorious apparel, and discharging his company, he came like a fugitive servant through the midland unto Antioch having very great dishonour, for that his host was destroyed. [36] Thus he, that took upon him to make good to the Romans their tribute by means of captives in Jerusalem, told abroad, that the Jews had God to fight for them, and therefore they could not be hurt, because they followed the laws that he gave them.

Chapter ^[9]

[1] About that time came Antiochus with dishonour out of the country of Persia
[2] For he had entered the city called Persepolis, and went about to rob the temple, and to hold the city; whereupon the multitude running to defend themselves with their weapons put them to flight; and so it happened, that Antiochus being put to flight of the inhabitants returned with shame.

[3] Now when he came to Ecbatane, news was brought him what had happened unto Nicanor and Timotheus. [4] Then swelling with anger. he thought to avenge upon the Jews the disgrace done unto him by those that made him flee. Therefore commanded he his chariotman to drive without ceasing, and to dispatch the journey, the judgment of God now following him. For he had spoken proudly in this sort, That he would come to Jerusalem and make it a common burying place of the Jews.

[5] But the Lord Almighty, the God of Israel, smote him with an incurable and invisible plague: or as soon as he had spoken these words, a pain of the bowels that was remediless came upon him, and sore torments of the inner parts; [6] And that most justly: for he had tormented other men's bowels with many and strange torments.

[7] Howbeit he nothing at all ceased from his bragging, but still was filled with pride, breathing out fire in his rage against the Jews, and commanding to haste the journey: but it came to pass that he fell down from his chariot, carried violently; so that having a sore fall, all the members of his body were much pained.

[8] And thus he that a little afore thought he might command the waves of the sea, (so proud was he beyond the condition of man) and weigh the high mountains in a balance, was now cast on the ground, and carried in an horselitter, shewing forth unto all the manifest power of God. [9] So that the worms rose up out of the body of this wicked man, and whiles he lived in sorrow and pain, his flesh fell away, and the filthiness of his smell was noisome to all his army. [10] And the man, that thought a little afore he could reach to the stars of heaven, no man could endure to carry for his intolerable stink.

[11] Here therefore, being plagued, he began to leave off his great pride, and to come to the knowledge of himself by the scourge of God, his pain increasing every moment. [12] And when he himself could not abide his own smell, he said these words, It is meet to be subject unto God, and that a man that is mortal should not proudly think of himself if he were God.

[13] This wicked person vowed also unto the Lord, who now no more would have mercy upon him, saying thus, [14] That the holy city (to the which he was going in haste to lay it even with the ground, and to make it a common buryingplace,) he would set at liberty: [15] And as touching the Jews, whom he had judged not worthy so much as to be buried, but to be cast out with their children to be devoured of the fowls and wild beasts, he would make them all equals to the citizens of Athens: [16] And the holy temple, which before he had spoiled, he would garnish with goodly gifts, and restore all the holy vessels with many more, and out of his own revenue defray the charges belonging to the sacrifices: [17] Yea, and that also he would become a Jew himself, and go through all the world that was inhabited, and declare the power of God.

[18] But for all this his pains would not cease: for the just judgment of God was come upon him: therefore despairing of his health, he wrote unto the Jews the letter underwritten, containing the form of a supplication, after this manner:

[19] Antiochus, king and governor, to the good Jews his citizens wisheth much joy, health, and prosperity: [20] If ye and your children fare well, and your affairs be to your contentment, I give very great thanks to God, having my hope in heaven.

[21] As for me, I was weak, or else I would have remembered kindly your honour and good will returning out of Persia, and being taken with a grievous disease, I thought it necessary to care for the common safety of all: [22] Not distrusting mine health, but having great hope to escape this sickness. [23] But considering that even my father, at what time he led an army into the high countries. appointed a successor, [24] To the end that, if any thing fell out contrary to expectation, or if any tidings were brought that were grievous, they of the land, knowing to whom the state was left, might not be troubled:

[25] Again, considering how that the princes that are borderers and neighbours unto my kingdom wait for opportunities, and expect what shall be the event. I have appointed my son Antiochus king, whom I often committed and commended unto many of you, when I went up into the high provinces; to whom I have written as followeth:

[26] Therefore I pray and request you to remember the benefits that I have done unto you generally, and in special, and that every man will be still faithful to me and my son. [27] For I am persuaded that he understanding my mind will favourably and graciously yield to your desires.

[28] Thus the murderer and blasphemer having suffered most grievously, as he entreated other men, so died he a miserable death in a strange country in the mountains. [29] And Philip, that was brought up with him, carried away his body, who also fearing the son of Antiochus went into Egypt to Ptolemeus Philometor.

[1] Now Maccabeus and his company, the Lord guiding them, recovered the temple and the city: [2] But the altars which the heathen had built in the open street, and also the chapels, they pulled down.

[3] And having cleansed the temple they made another altar, and striking stones they took fire out of them, and offered a sacrifice after two years, and set forth incense, and lights, and shewbread. [4] When that was done, they fell flat down, and besought the Lord that they might come no more into such troubles; but if they sinned any more against him, that he himself would chasten them with mercy, and that they might not be delivered unto the blasphemous and barbarous nations.

[5] Now upon the same day that the strangers profaned the temple, on the very same day it was cleansed again, even the five and twentieth day of the same month, which is Casleu.

[6] And they kept the eight days with gladness, as in the feast of the tabernacles, remembering that not long afore they had held the feast of the tabernacles, when as they wandered in the mountains and dens like beasts. [7] Therefore they bare branches, and fair boughs, and palms also, and sang psalms unto him that had given them good success in cleansing his place. [8] They ordained also by a common statute and decree, That every year those days should be kept of the whole nation of the Jews.

[9] And this was the end of Antiochus, called Epiphanes.

[10] Now will we declare the acts of Antiochus Eupator, who was the son of this wicked man, gathering briefly the calamities of the wars. [11] So when he was come to the crown, he set one Lysias over the affairs of his realm, and appointed him his chief governor of Celosyria and Phenice.

[12] For Ptolemeus, that was called Macron, choosing rather to do justice unto the Jews for the wrong that had been done unto them, endeavoured to continue peace with them. [13] Whereupon being accused of the king's friends before Eupator, and called traitor at every word because he had left Cyprus, that Philometor had committed unto him, and departed to Antiochus Epiphanes, and seeing that he was in no honourable place, he was so discouraged, that he poisoned himself and died.

[14] But when Gorgias was governor of the holds, he hired soldiers, and nourished war continually with the Jews: [15] And therewithal the Idumeans, having gotten into their hands the most commodious holds, kept the Jews occupied, and receiving those that were banished from Jerusalem, they went about to nourish war.

[16] Then they that were with Maccabeus made supplication, and besought God that he would be their helper; and so they ran with violence upon the strong holds of the Idumeans, [17] And assaulting them strongly, they won the holds, and kept off all that fought upon the wall, and slew all that fell into their hands, and killed no fewer than twenty thousand.

[18] And because certain, who were no less than nine thousand, were fled together into two very strong castles, having all manner of things convenient to sustain the siege, [19] Maccabeus left Simon and Joseph, and Zaccheus also, and them that were with him, who were enough to besiege them, and departed himself unto those places which more needed his help.

[20] Now they that were with Simon, being led with covetousness, were persuaded for money through certain of those that were in the castle, and took seventy thousand drachms, and let some of them escape. [21] But when it was told Maccabeus what was done, he called the governors of the people together, and accused those men, that they had sold their brethren for money, and set their enemies free to fight against them. [22] So he slew those that were found traitors, and immediately took the two castles. [23] And having good success with his weapons in all things he took in hand, he slew in the two holds more than twenty thousand.

[24] Now Timotheus, whom the Jews had overcome before, when he had gathered a great multitude of foreign forces, and horses out of Asia not a few, came as though he would take Jewry by force of arms. [25] But when he drew near, they that were with Maccabeus turned themselves to pray unto God, and sprinkled earth upon their heads, and girded their loins with sackcloth, [26] And fell down at the foot of the altar, and besought him to be merciful to them, and to be an enemy to their enemies, and an adversary to their adversaries, as the law declareth. [27] So after the prayer they took their weapons, and went on further from the city: and when they drew near to their enemies, they kept by themselves.

[28] Now the sun being newly risen, they joined both together; the one part having together with their virtue their refuge also unto the Lord for a pledge of their success and victory: the other side making their rage leader of their battle

[29] But when the battle waxed strong, there appeared unto the enemies from heaven five comely men upon horses, with bridles of gold, and two of them led the Jews, [30] And took Maccabeus betwixt them, and covered him on every side weapons, and kept him safe, but shot arrows and lightnings against the enemies: so that being confounded with blindness, and full of trouble, they were killed. [31] And there were slain of footmen twenty thousand and five hundred, and six hundred horsemen.

[32] As for Timotheus himself, he fled into a very strong hold, called Gazara, where Chereas was governor.

[33] But they that were with Maccabeus laid siege against the fortress courageously four days. [34] And they that were within, trusting to the strength of the place, blasphemed exceedingly, and uttered wicked words.

[35] Nevertheless upon the fifth day early twenty young men of Maccabeus' company, inflamed with anger because of the blasphemies, assaulted the wall manly, and with a fierce courage killed all that they met withal. [36] Others likewise ascending after them, whiles they were busied with them that were within, burnt the towers, and kindling fires burnt the blasphemers alive; and others broke open the gates, and, having received in the rest of the army, took the city, [37] And killed Timotheus, that was hid in a certain pit, and Chereas his brother, with Apollophanes.

[38] When this was done, they praised the Lord with psalms and thanksgiving, who had done so great things for Israel, and given them the victory.

Chapter 11

[1] Not long after the, Lysias the king's protector and cousin, who also managed the affairs, took sore displeasure for the things that were done. [2] And when he had gathered about fourscore thousand with all the horsemen, he came against the Jews, thinking to make the city an habitation of the Gentiles, [3] And to make a gain of the temple, as of the other chapels of the heathen, and to set the high priesthood to sale every year: [4] Not at all considering the power of God but puffed up with his ten thousands of footmen, and his thousands of horsemen, and his fourscore elephants.

[5] So he came to Judea, and drew near to Bethsura, which was a strong town, but distant from Jerusalem about five furlongs, and he laid sore siege unto it.

[6] Now when they that were with Maccabeus heard that he besieged the holds, they and all the people with lamentation and tears besought the Lord that he would send a good angel to deliver Israel. [7] Then Maccabeus himself first of all took weapons, exhorting the other that they would jeopard themselves together with him to help their brethren: so they went forth together with a willing mind.

[8] And as they were at Jerusalem, there appeared before them on horseback one in white clothing, shaking his armour of gold. [9] Then they praised the merciful God all together, and took heart, insomuch that they were ready not only to fight with men, but with most cruel beasts, and to pierce through walls of iron. [10] Thus they marched forward in their armour, having an helper from heaven: for the Lord was merciful unto them [11] And giving a charge upon their enemies like lions, they slew eleven thousand footmen, and sixteen hundred horsemen, and put all the other to flight. [12] Many of them also being wounded escaped naked; and Lysias himself fled away shamefully, and so escaped.

[13] Who, as he was a man of understanding, casting with himself what loss he had had, and considering that the Hebrews could not be overcome, because the Almighty God helped them, he sent unto them, [14] And persuaded them to agree to all reasonable conditions, and promised that he would persuade the king that he must needs be a friend unto them. [15] Then Maccabeus consented to all that Lysias desired, being careful of the common good; and whatsoever Maccabeus wrote unto Lysias concerning the Jews, the king granted it.

[16] For there were letters written unto the Jews from Lysias to this effect: Lysias unto the people of the Jews sendeth greeting: [17] John and Absalon, who were sent from you, delivered me the petition subscribed, and made request for the performance of the contents thereof. [18] Therefore what things soever were meet to be reported to the king, I have declared them, and he hath granted as much as might be. [19] And if then ye will keep yourselves loyal to the state, hereafter also will I endeavour to be a means of your good. [20] But of the particulars I have given order both to these and the other that came from me, to commune with you. [21] Fare ye well. The hundred and eight and fortieth year, the four and twentieth day of the month Dioscorinthius.

[22] Now the king's letter contained these words: King Antiochus unto his brother Lysias sendeth greeting: [23] Since our father is translated unto the gods, our will is, that they that are in our realm live quietly, that every one may attend upon his own affairs. [24] We understand also that the Jews would not consent to our father, for to be brought unto the custom of the Gentiles, but had rather keep their own manner of living: for the which cause they require of us, that we should suffer them to live after their own laws. [25] Wherefore our mind is, that this nation shall be in rest, and we have determined to restore them their temple, that they may live according to the customs of their forefathers. [26] Thou shalt do well therefore to send unto them, and grant them peace, that when they are certified of our mind, they may be of good comfort, and ever go cheerfully about their own affairs.

[27] And the letter of the king unto the nation of the Jews was after this manner: King Antiochus sendeth greeting unto the council, and the rest of the Jews: [28] If ye fare well, we have our desire; we are also in good health. [29] Menelaus declared unto us, that your desire was to return home, and to follow your own business: [30] Wherefore they that will depart shall have safe conduct till the thirtieth day of Xanthicus with security. [31] And the Jews shall use their own kind of meats and laws, as before; and none of them any manner of ways shall be molested for things ignorantly done. [32] I have sent also Menelaus, that he may comfort you. [33] Fare ye well. In the hundred forty and eighth year, and the fifteenth day of the month Xanthicus.

[34] The Romans also sent unto them a letter containing these words: Quintus Memmius and Titus Manlius, ambassadors of the Romans, send greeting unto the people of the Jews. [35] Whatsoever Lysias the king's cousin hath granted, therewith we also are well pleased. [36] But touching such things as he judged to be referred to the king, after ye have advised thereof, send one forthwith, that we may declare as it is convenient for you: for we are now going to Antioch.

[37] Therefore send some with speed, that we may know what is your mind. [38] Farewell. This hundred and eight and fortieth year, the fifteenth day of the month Xanthicus.

[1] When these covenants were made, Lysias went unto the king, and the Jews were about their husbandry. [2] But of the governors of several places, Timotheus, and Apollonius the son of Genneus, also Hieronymus, and Demophon, and beside them Nicanor the governor of Cyprus, would not suffer them to be quiet and live in peace.

[3] The men of Joppa also did such an ungodly deed: they prayed the Jews that dwelt among them to go with their wives and children into the boats which they had prepared, as though they had meant them no hurt. [4] Who accepted of it according to the common decree of the city, as being desirous to live in peace, and suspecting nothing: but when they were gone forth into the deep, they drowned no less than two hundred of them.

[5] When Judas heard of this cruelty done unto his countrymen, he commanded those that were with him to make them ready. [6] And calling upon God the righteous Judge, he came against those murderers of his brethren, and burnt the haven by night, and set the boats on fire, and those that fled thither he slew. [7] And when the town was shut up, he went backward, as if he would return to root out all them of the city of Joppa.

[8] But when he heard that the Jamnites were minded to do in like manner unto the Jews that dwelt among them, [9] He came upon the Jamnites also by night, and set fire on the haven and the navy, so that the light of the fire was seen at Jerusalem two hundred and forty furlongs off.

[10] Now when they were gone from thence nine furlongs in their journey toward Timotheus, no fewer than five thousand men on foot and five hundred horsemen of the Arabians set upon him. [11] Whereupon there was a very sore battle; but Judas' side by the help of God got the victory; so that the Nomades of Arabia, being overcome, besought Judas for peace, promising both to give him cattle, and to pleasure him otherwise.

[12] Then Judas, thinking indeed that they would be profitable in many things, granted them peace: whereupon they shook hands, and so they departed to their tents.

[13] He went also about to make a bridge to a certain strong city, which was fenced about with walls, and inhabited by people of divers countries; and the name of it was Caspis. [14] But they that were within it put such trust in the strength of the walls and provision of victuals, that they behaved themselves rudely toward them that were with Judas, railing and blaspheming, and uttering such words as were not to be spoken. [15] Wherefore Judas with his company, calling upon the great Lord of the world, who without rams or engines of war did cast down Jericho in the time of Joshua, gave a fierce assault against the walls, [16] And took the city by the will of God, and made unspeakable slaughters, insomuch that a lake two furlongs broad near adjoining thereunto, being filled full, was seen running with blood.

[17] Then departed they from thence seven hundred and fifty furlongs, and came to Characa unto the Jews that are called Tubieni. [18] But as for Timotheus, they found him not in the places: for before he had dispatched any thing, he departed from thence, having left a very strong garrison in a certain hold. [19] Howbeit Dositheus and Sosipater, who were of Maccabeus' captains, went forth, and slew those that Timotheus had left in the fortress, above ten thousand men.

[20] And Maccabeus ranged his army by bands, and set them over the bands, and went against Timotheus, who had about him an hundred and twenty thousand men of foot, and two thousand and five hundred horsemen.

[21] Now when Timotheus had knowledge of Judas' coming, he sent the women and children and the other baggage unto a fortress called Carnion: for the town was hard to besiege, and uneasy to come unto, by reason of the straitness of all the places.

[22] But when Judas his first band came in sight, the enemies, being smitten with fear and terror through the appearing of him who seeth all things, fled amain, one running into this way, another that way, so as that they were often hurt of their own men, and wounded with the points of their own swords. [23] Judas also was very earnest in pursuing them, killing those wicked wretches, of whom he slew about thirty thousand men.

[24] Moreover Timotheus himself fell into the hands of Dositheus and Sosipater, whom he besought with much craft to let him go with his life, because he had many of the Jews' parents, and the brethren of some of them, who, if they put him to death, should not be regarded. [25] So when he had assured them with many words that he would restore them without hurt, according to the agreement, they let him go for the saving of their brethren.

[26] Then Maccabeus marched forth to Carnion, and to the temple of Atargatis, and there he slew five and twenty thousand persons.

[27] And after he had put to flight and destroyed them, Judas removed the host toward Ephron, a strong city, wherein Lysias abode, and a great multitude of divers nations, and the strong young men kept the walls, and defended them mightily: wherein also was great provision of engines and darts. [28] But when Judas and his company had called upon Almighty God, who with his power breaketh the strength of his enemies, they won the city, and slew twenty and five thousand of them that were within,

[29] From thence they departed to Scythopolis, which lieth six hundred furlongs from Jerusalem, [30] But when the Jews that dwelt there had testified that the Scythopolitans dealt lovingly with them, and entreated them kindly in the time of their adversity; [31] They gave them thanks, desiring them to be friendly still unto them: and so they came to Jerusalem, the feast of the weeks approaching.

[32] And after the feast, called Pentecost, they went forth against Gorgias the governor of Idumea, [33] Who came out with three thousand men of foot and four hundred horsemen. [34] And it happened that in their fighting together a few of the Jews were slain. [35] At which time Dositheus, one of Bacenor's company, who was on horseback, and a strong man, was still upon Gorgias, and taking hold of his coat drew him by force; and when he would have taken that cursed man alive, a horseman of Thracia coming upon him smote off his shoulder, so that Gorgias fled unto Marisa.

[36] Now when they that were with Gorgias had fought long, and were weary, Judas called upon the Lord, that he would shew himself to be their helper and leader of the battle. [37] And with that he began in his own language, and sung psalms with a loud voice, and rushing unawares upon Gorgias' men, he put them to flight. [38] So Judas gathered his host, and came into the city of Odollam, And when the seventh day came, they purified themselves, as the custom was, and kept the sabbath in the same place.

[39] And upon the day following, as the use had been, Judas and his company came to take up the bodies of them that were slain, and to bury them with their kinsmen in their fathers' graves. [40] Now under the coats of every one that was slain they found things consecrated to the idols of the Jamnites, which is forbidden the Jews by the law. Then every man saw that this was the cause wherefore they were slain. [41] All men therefore praising the Lord, the righteous Judge, who had opened the things that were hid, [42] Betook themselves unto prayer, and besought him that the sin committed might wholly be put out of remembrance. Besides, that noble Judas exhorted the people to keep themselves from sin, forsomuch as they saw before their eyes the things that came to pass for the sins of those that were slain.

[43] And when he had made a gathering throughout the company to the sum of two thousand drachms of silver, he sent it to Jerusalem to offer a sin offering, doing therein very well and honestly, in that he was mindful of the resurrection: [44] For if he had not hoped that they that were slain should have risen again, it had been superfluous and vain to pray for the dead. [45] And also in that he perceived that there was great favour laid up for those that died godly, it was an holy and good thought. Whereupon he made a reconciliation for the dead, that they might be delivered from sin.

[1] In the hundred forty and ninth year it was told Judas, that Antiochus Eupator was coming with a great power into Judea, [2] And with him Lysias his protector, and ruler of his affairs, having either of them a Grecian power of footmen, an hundred and ten thousand, and horsemen five thousand and three hundred, and elephants two and twenty, and three hundred chariots armed with hooks.

[3] Menelaus also joined himself with them, and with great dissimulation encouraged Antiochus, not for the safeguard of the country, but because he thought to have been made governor. [4] But the King of kings moved Antiochus' mind against this wicked wretch, and Lysias informed the king that this man was the cause of all mischief, so that the king commanded to bring him unto Berea, and to put him to death, as the manner is in that place.

[5] Now there was in that place a tower of fifty cubits high, full of ashes, and it had a round instrument which on every side hanged down into the ashes. [6] And whosoever was condemned of sacrilege, or had committed any other grievous crime, there did all men thrust him unto death. [7] Such a death it happened that wicked man to die, not having so much as burial in the earth; and that most justly: [8] For inasmuch as he had committed many sins about the altar, whose fire and ashes were holy, he received his death in ashes.

[9] Now the king came with a barbarous and haughty mind to do far worse to the Jews, than had been done in his father's time. [10] Which things when Judas perceived, he commanded the multitude to call upon the Lord night and day, that if ever at any other time, he would now also help them, being at the point to be put from their law, from their country, and from the holy temple: [11] And that he would not suffer the people, that had even now been but a little refreshed, to be in subjection to the blasphemous nations.

[12] So when they had all done this together, and besought the merciful Lord with weeping and fasting, and lying flat upon the ground three days long, Judas, having exhorted them, commanded they should be in a readiness.

[13] And Judas, being apart with the elders, determined, before the king's host should enter into Judea, and get the city, to go forth and try the matter in fight by the help of the Lord.

[14] So when he had committed all to the Creator of the world, and exhorted his soldiers to fight manfully, even unto death, for the laws, the temple, the city, the country, and the commonwealth, he camped by Modin: [15] And having given the watchword to them that were about him, Victory is of God; with the most valiant and choice young men he went in into the king's tent by night, and slew in the camp about four thousand men, and the chiefest of the elephants, with all that were upon him. [16] And at last they filled the camp with fear and tumult, and departed with good success. [17] This was done in the break of the day, because the protection of the Lord did help him.

[18] Now when the king had taken a taste of the manliness of the Jews, he went about to take the holds by policy, [19] And marched toward Bethsura, which was a strong hold of the Jews: but he was put to flight, failed, and lost of his men: [20] For Judas had conveyed unto them that were in it such things as were necessary.

[21] But Rhodocus, who was in the Jews' host, disclosed the secrets to the enemies; therefore he was sought out, and when they had gotten him, they put him in prison.

[22] The king treated with them in Bethsura the second time, gave his hand, took their's, departed, fought with Judas, was overcome; [23] Heard that Philip, who was left over the affairs in Antioch, was desperately bent, confounded, intreated the Jews, submitted himself, and sware to all equal conditions, agreed with them, and offered sacrifice, honoured the temple, and dealt kindly with the place, [24] And accepted well of Maccabeus, made him principal governor from Ptolemais unto the Gerrhenians; [25] Came to Ptolemais: the people there were grieved for the covenants; for they stormed, because they would make their covenants void:

[26] Lysias went up to the judgment seat, said as much as could be in defence of the cause, persuaded, pacified, made them well affected, returned to Antioch. Thus it went touching the king's coming and departing.

[1] After three years was Judas informed, that Demetrius the son of Seleucus, having entered by the haven of Tripolis with a great power and navy, [2] Had taken the country, and killed Antiochus, and Lysias his protector.

[3] Now one Alcimus, who had been high priest, and had defiled himself wilfully in the times of their mingling with the Gentiles, seeing that by no means he could save himself, nor have any more access to the holy altar, [4] Came to king Demetrius in the hundred and one and fiftieth year, presenting unto him a crown of gold, and a palm, and also of the boughs which were used solemnly in the temple: and so that day he held his peace.

[5] Howbeit having gotten opportunity to further his foolish enterprise, and being called into counsel by Demetrius, and asked how the Jews stood affected, and what they intended, he answered thereunto: [6] Those of the Jews that he called Assideans, whose captain is Judas Maccabeus, nourish war and are seditious, and will not let the rest be in peace.

[7] Therefore I, being deprived of mine ancestors' honour, I mean the high priesthood, am now come hither: [8] First, verily for the unfeigned care I have of things pertaining to the king; and secondly, even for that I intend the good of mine own countrymen: for all our nation is in no small misery through the unadvised dealing of them aforesaid.

[9] Wherefore, O king, seeing knowest all these things, be careful for the country, and our nation, which is pressed on every side, according to the clemency that thou readily shewest unto all. [10] For as long as Judas liveth, it is not possible that the state should be quiet. [11] This was no sooner spoken of him, but others of the king's friends, being maliciously set against Judas, did more incense Demetrius.

[12] And forthwith calling Nicanor, who had been master of the elephants, and making him governor over Judea, he sent him forth, [13] Commanding him to slay Judas, and to scatter them that were with him, and to make Alcimus high priest of the great temple. [14] Then the heathen, that had fled out of Judea from Judas, came to Nicanor by flocks, thinking the harm and calamities of the Jews to be their welfare.

[15] Now when the Jews heard of Nicanor's coming, and that the heathen were up against them, they cast earth upon their heads, and made supplication to him that had established his people for ever, and who always helpeth his portion with manifestation of his presence. [16] So at the commandment of the captain they removed straightways from thence, and came near unto them at the town of Dessau.

[17] Now Simon, Judas' brother, had joined battle with Nicanor, but was somewhat discomfited through the sudden silence of his enemies. [18] Nevertheless Nicanor, hearing of the manliness of them that were with Judas, and the courageousness that they had to fight for their country, durst not try the matter by the sword. [19] Wherefore he sent Posidonius, and Theodotus, and Mattathias, to make peace.

[20] So when they had taken long advisement thereupon, and the captain had made the multitude acquainted therewith, and it appeared that they were all of one mind, they consented to the covenants, [21] And appointed a day to meet in together by themselves: and when the day came, and stools were set for either of them, [22] Judas placed armed men ready in convenient places, lest some treachery should be suddenly practised by the enemies: so they made a peaceable conference.

[23] Now Nicanor abode in Jerusalem, and did no hurt, but sent away the people that came flocking unto him. [24] And he would not willingly have Judas out of his sight: for he love the man from his heart [25] He prayed him also to take a wife, and to beget children: so he married, was quiet, and took part of this life.

[26] But Alcimus, perceiving the love that was betwixt them, and considering the covenants that were made, came to Demetrius, and told him that Nicanor was not well affected toward the state; for that he had ordained Judas, a traitor to his realm, to be the king's successor. [27] Then the king being in a rage, and provoked with the accusations of the most wicked man, wrote to Nicanor, signifying that he was much displeased with the covenants, and commanding him that he should send Maccabeus prisoner in all haste unto Antioch.

[28] When this came to Nicanor's hearing, he was much confounded in himself, and took it grievously that he should make void the articles which were agreed upon, the man being in no fault. [29] But because there was no dealing against the king, he watched his time to accomplish this thing by policy. [30] Notwithstanding, when Maccabeus saw that Nicanor began to be churlish unto him, and that he entreated him more roughly than he was wont, perceiving that such sour behaviour came not of good, he gathered together not a few of his men, and withdrew himself from Nicanor. [31] But the other, knowing that he was notably prevented by Judas' policy, came into the great and holy temple, and commanded the priests, that were offering their usual sacrifices, to deliver him the man. [32] And when they sware that they could not tell where the man was whom he sought, [33] He stretched out his right hand toward the temple, and made an oath in this manner: If ye will not deliver me Judas as a prisoner, I will lay this temple of God even with the ground, and I will break down the altar, and erect a notable temple unto Bacchus.

[34] After these words he departed. Then the priests lifted up their hands toward heaven, and besought him that was ever a defender of their nation, saying in this manner; [35] Thou, O Lord of all things, who hast need of nothing, wast pleased that the temple of thine habitation should be among us: [36] Therefore now, O holy Lord of all holiness, keep this house ever undefiled, which lately was cleansed, and stop every unrighteous mouth.

Jerusalem, a lover of his countrymen, and a man of very good report, who for his kindness was called a father of the Jews. [38] For in the former times, when they mingled not themselves with the Gentiles, he had been accused of Judaism, and did boldly jeopard his body and life with all vehemency for the religion of the Jews.

[39] So Nicanor, willing to declare the hate that he bare unto the Jews, sent above five hundred men of war to take him: [40] For he thought by taking him to do the Jews much hurt. [41] Now when the multitude would have taken the tower, and violently broken into the outer door, and bade that fire should be brought to burn it, he being ready to be taken on every side fell upon his sword; [42] Choosing rather to die manfully, than to come into the hands of the wicked, to be abused otherwise than beseemed his noble birth: [43] But missing his stroke through haste, the multitude also rushing within the doors, he ran boldly up to the wall, and cast himself down manfully among the thickest of them. [44] But they quickly giving back, and a space being made, he fell down into the midst of the void place.

[45] Nevertheless, while there was yet breath within him, being inflamed with anger, he rose up; and though his blood gushed out like spouts of water, and his wounds were grievous, yet he ran through the midst of the throng; and standing upon a steep rock, [46] When as his blood was now quite gone, he plucked out his bowels, and taking them in both his hands, he cast them upon the throng, and calling upon the Lord of life and spirit to restore him those again, he thus died.

[1] But Nicanor, hearing that Judas and his company were in the strong places about Samaria, resolved without any danger to set upon them on the sabbath day.

[2] Nevertheless the Jews that were compelled to go with him said, O destroy not so cruelly and barbarously, but give honour to that day, which he, that seeth all things, hath honoured with holiness above all other days.

[3] Then the most ungracious wretch demanded, if there were a Mighty one in heaven, that had commanded the sabbath day to be kept. [4] And when they said, There is in heaven a living Lord, and mighty, who commanded the seventh day to be kept: [5] Then said the other, And I also am mighty upon earth, and I command to take arms, and to do the king's business. Yet he obtained not to have his wicked will done. [6] So Nicanor in exceeding pride and haughtiness determined to set up a publick monument of his victory over Judas and them that were with him.

[7] But Maccabeus had ever sure confidence that the Lord would help him: [8] Wherefore he exhorted his people not to fear the coming of the heathen against them, but to remember the help which in former times they had received from heaven, and now to expect the victory and aid, which should come unto them from the Almighty. [9] And so comforting them out of the law and the prophets, and withal putting them in mind of the battles that they won afore, he made them more cheerful.

[10] And when he had stirred up their minds, he gave them their charge, shewing them therewithal the falsehood of the heathen, and the breach of oaths. [11] Thus he armed every one of them, not so much with defence of shields and spears, as with comfortable and good words: and beside that, he told them a dream worthy to be believed, as if it had been so indeed, which did not a little rejoice them.

[12] And this was his vision: That Onias, who had been high priest, a virtuous and a good man, reverend in conversation, gentle in condition, well spoken also, and exercised from a child in all points of virtue, holding up his hands prayed for the whole body of the Jews. [13] This done, in like manner there appeared a man with gray hairs, and exceeding glorious, who was of a wonderful and excellent majesty. [14] Then Onias answered, saying, This is a lover of the brethren, who prayeth much for the people, and for the holy city, to wit, Jeremias the prophet of God. [15] Whereupon Jeremias holding forth his right hand gave to Judas a sword of gold, and in giving it spake thus, [16] Take this holy sword, a gift from God, with the which thou shalt wound the adversaries.

[17] Thus being well comforted by the words of Judas, which were very good, and able to stir them up to valour, and to encourage the hearts of the young men, they determined not to pitch camp, but courageously to set upon them, and manfully to try the matter by conflict, because the city and the sanctuary and the temple were in danger. [18] For the care that they took for their wives, and their children, their brethren, and folks, was in least account with them: but the greatest and principal fear was for the holy temple. [19] Also they that were in the city took not the least care, being troubled for the conflict abroad.

[20] And now, when as all looked what should be the trial, and the enemies were already come near, and the army was set in array, and the beasts conveniently placed, and the horsemen set in wings,

[21] Maccabeus seeing the coming of the multitude, and the divers preparations of armour, and the fierceness of the beasts, stretched out his hands toward heaven, and called upon the Lord that worketh wonders, knowing that victory cometh not by arms, but even as it seemeth good to him, he giveth it to such as are worthy: [22] Therefore in his prayer he said after this manner; O Lord, thou didst send thine angel in the time of Ezekias king of Judea, and didst slay in the host of Sennacherib an hundred fourscore and five thousand: [23] Wherefore now also, O Lord of heaven, send a good angel before us for a fear and dread unto them; [24] And through the might of thine arm let those be stricken with terror, that come against thy holy people to blaspheme. And he ended thus.

[25] Then Nicanor and they that were with him came forward with trumpets and songs. [26] But Judas and his company encountered the enemies with invocation and prayer. [27] So that fighting with their hands, and praying unto God with their hearts, they slew no less than thirty and five thousand men: for through the appearance of God they were greatly cheered.

[28] Now when the battle was done, returning again with joy, they knew that Nicanor lay dead in his harness. [29] Then they made a great shout and a noise, praising the Almighty in their own language.

[30] And Judas, who was ever the chief defender of the citizens both in body and mind, and who continued his love toward his countrymen all his life, commanded to strike off Nicanor's head, and his hand with his shoulder, and bring them to Jerusalem.

[31] So when he was there, and called them of his nation together, and set the priests before the altar, he sent for them that were of the tower, [32] And shewed them vile Nicanor's head, and the hand of that blasphemer, which with proud brags he had stretched out against the holy temple of the Almighty.

[33] And when he had cut out the tongue of that ungodly Nicanor, he commanded that they should give it by pieces unto the fowls, and hang up the reward of his madness before the temple. [34] So every man praised toward the heaven the glorious Lord, saying, Blessed be he that hath kept his own place undefiled. [35] He hanged also Nicanor's head upon the tower, an evident and manifest sign unto all of the help of the Lord.

[36] And they ordained all with a common decree in no case to let that day pass without solemnity, but to celebrate the thirtieth day of the twelfth month, which in the Syrian tongue is called Adar, the day before Mardocheus' day. [37] Thus went it with Nicanor: and from that time forth the Hebrews had the city in their power. And here will I make an end.

[38] And if I have done well, and as is fitting the story, it is that which I desired: but if slenderly and meanly, it is that which I could attain unto. [39] For as it is hurtful to drink wine or water alone; and as wine mingled with water is pleasant, and delighteth the taste: even so speech finely framed delighteth the ears of them that read the story. And here shall be an end.

III Maccabees

[1] Now Philopater, on learning from those who came back that Antiochus had made himself master of the places which belonged to himself, sent orders to all his footmen and horsemen, took with him his sister Arsinoe, and marched out as far as the parts of Raphia, where Antiochus and his forces encamped.

[2] And one Theodotus, intending to carry out his design, took with him the bravest of the armed men who had been before committed to his trust by Ptolemy, and got through at night to the tent of Ptolemy, to kill him on his own responsibility, and so to end the war. [3] But Dositheus, called the son of Drimulus, by birth a Jew, afterward a renegade from the laws and observances of his country, conveyed Ptolemy away, and made an obscure person lie down in his stead in the tent. It befell this man to receive the fate which was meant for the other.

[4] A fierce battle then took place; and the men of Antiochus prevailing, Arsinoe continually went up and down the ranks, and with dishevelled hair, with tears and entreaties, begged the soldiers to fight manfully for themselves, their children, and wives; and promised that if they proved conquerors, she would give them two minae of gold apiece. [5] It thus fell out that their enemies were defeated in hand-to-hand encounter, and that many of them were taken prisoners.

[6] Having vanquished this attempt, the king then decided to proceed to the neighbouring cities, and encourage them. [7] By doing this, and by making donations to their temples, he inspired his subjects with confidence. [8] The Jews sent some of their council and of their elders to him. The greetings, guest-gifts, and congratulations of the past, bestowed by them, filled him with the greater eagerness to visit their city.

[9] Having arrived at Jerusalem, sacrificed, and offered thank-offerings to the Greatest God, and done whatever else was suitable to the sanctity of the place, and entered the inner court, [10] he was so struck with the magnificence of the place, and so wondered at the orderly arrangements of the temple, that he considered entering the sanctuary itself.

[11] And when they told him that this was not permissible, none of the nation, no, nor even the priests in general, but only the supreme high priest of all, and he only once in a year, being allowed to go in, he would by no means give way. [12] Then they read the law to him; but he persisted in obtruding himself, exclaiming, that he ought to be allowed: and saying Be it that they were deprived of this honour, I ought not to be. [13] And he put the question, Why, when he entered all the temples, none of the priests who were present forbade him?

[14] He was thoroughly answered by some one, That he did wrong to boast of this. [15] Well; since I have done this, said he, be the cause what it may, shall I not enter with or without your consent? [16] And when the priests fell down in their sacred vestments imploring the Greatest God to come and help in time of need, and to avert the violence of the fierce aggressor, and when they filled the temple with lamentations and tears, [17] then those who had been left behind in the city were scared, and rushed forth, uncertain of the event.

[18] Virgins, who had been shut up within their chambers, came out with their mothers, scattering dust and ashes on their heads, and filling the streets with outcries. [19] Women, but recently separated off, left their bridal chambers, left the reserve that befitted them, and ran about the city in a disorderly manner. [20] New-born babes were deserted by the mothers or nurses who waited upon them; some here, some there, in houses, or in fields; these now, with an ardour which could not be checked, swarmed into the Most High temple. [21] Various were the prayers offered up by those who assembled in this place, on account of the unholy attempt of the king.

[22] Along with these there were some of the citizens who took courage, and would not submit to his obstinacy, and his intention of carrying out his purpose. [23] Calling out to arms, and to die bravely in defence of the law of their fathers, they created a great uproar in the place, and were with difficulty brought back by the aged and the elders to the station of prayer which they had occupied before.

[24] During this time the multitude kept on praying. [25] The elders who surrounded the king strove in many ways to divert his haughty mind from the design which he had formed. [26] He, in his hardened mood, insensible to all persuasion, was going onwards with the view of carrying out this design.

[27] Yet even his own officers, when they saw this, joined the Jews in an appeal to Him who has all power, to aid in the present crisis, and not wink at such overweening lawlessness. [28] Such was the frequency and the vehemence of the cry of the assembled crowd, that an indescribable noise ensued. [29] Not the men only, but the very walls and floor seemed to sound forth; all things preferring dissolution rather than to see the place defiled.

[1] Now was it that the high priest Simon bowed his knees over against the holy place, and spread out his hands in reverent form, and uttered the following supplication:

[2] O Lord, Lord, King of the heavens, and Ruler of the whole creation, Holy among the holy, sole Governor, Almighty, give ear to us who are oppressed by a wicked and profane one, who exulteth in his confidence and strength. [3] It is thou, the Creator of all, the Lord of the universe, who art a righteous Governor, and judgest all who act with pride and insolence.

[4] It was thou who didst destroy the former workers of unrighteousness, among whom were the giants, who trusted in their strength and hardihood, by covering them with a measureless flood. [5] It was thou who didst make the Sodomites, those workers of exceeding iniquity, men notorious for their vices, an example to after generations, when thou didst cover them with fire and brimstone.

[6] Thou didst make known thy power when thou causedst the bold Pharaoh, the enslaver of thy people, to pass through the ordeal of many and diverse inflictions. [7] And thou rolledst the depths of the sea over him, when he made pursuit with chariots, and with a multitude of followers, and gavest a safe passage to those who put their trust in thee, the Lord of the whole creation. [8] These saw and felt the works of thine hands, and praised thee the Almighty.

[9] Thou, O King, when thou createdst the illimitable and measureless earth, didst choose out this city: thou didst make this place sacred to thy name, albeit thou needest nothing: thou didst glorify it with thine illustrious presence, after constructing it to the glory of thy great and honourable name.

[10] And thou didst promise, out of love to the people of Israel, that should we fall away from thee, and become afflicted, and then come to this house and pray, thou wouldest hear our prayer. [11] Verily thou art faithful and true.

[12] And when thou didst often aid our fathers when hard pressed, and in low estate, and deliveredst them out of gret dangers, [13] see now, holy King, how through our many and great sins we are borne down, and made subject to our enemies, and are become weak and powerless. [14] We being in this low condition, this bold and profane man seeks to dishonour this thine holy place, consecrated out of the earth to the name of thy Majesty.

[15] Thy dwelling place, the heaven of heavens, is indeed unapproachable to men. [16] But since it seemed good to thee to exhibit thy glory among thy people Israel, thou didst sanctify this place. [16] Punish us not by means of the uncleanness of their men, nor chastise us by means of their profanity; lest the lawless ones should boast in their rage, and exult in exuberant pride of speech, and say, [18] We have trampled upon the holy house, as idolatrous houses are trampled upon.

[19] Blot out our iniquities, and do away with our errors, and shew forth thy compassion in this hour. [20] Let thy mercies quickly go before us. Grant us peace, that the cast down and broken hearted may praise thee with their mouth.

[21] At that time God, who seeth all things, who is beyond all Holy among the holy, heard that prayer, so suitable; and scourged the man greatly uplifted with scorn and insolence. [22] Shaking him to and fro as a reed is shaken with the wind, he cast him upon the pavement, powerless, with limbs paralyzed; by a righteous judgment deprived of the faculty of speech.

[23] His friends and bodyguards, beholding the swift recompense which had suddenly overtaken him, struck with exceeding terror, and fearing that he would die, speedily removed him. [24] When in course of time he had come to himself, this severe check caused no repentance within him, but he departed with bitter threatenings. [25] He proceeded to Egypt, grew worse in wickedness through his beforementioned companions in wine, who were lost to all goodness; [26] and not satisfied with countless acts of impiety, his audacity so increased that he raised evil reports there, and many of his friends, watching his purpose attentively, joined in furthering his will.

[27] His purpose was to indict a public stigma upon our race; wherefore he erected a pillar at the tower-porch, and caused the following inscription to be engraved upon it: [28] That entrance to their own temple was to be refused to all those who would not sacrifice; that all the Jews were to be registered among the common people; that those who resisted were to be forcibly seized and put to death; [29] that those who were thus registered, were to be marked on their persons by the ivy-leaf symbol of Dionysus, and to be set apart with these limited rights.

[30] To do away with the appearance of hating them all, he had it written underneath, that if any of them should elect to enter the community of those initiated in the rites, these should have equal rights with the Alexandrians.

[31] Some of those who were over the city, therefore, abhorring any approach to the city of piety, unhesitatingly gave in to the king, and expected to derive some great honour from a future connection with him. [32] A nobler spirit, however, prompted the majority to cling to their religious observances, and by paying money that they might live unmolested, these sought to escape the registration: [33] cheerfully looking forward to future aid, they abhorred their own apostates, considering them to be national foes, and debarring them from the common usages of social intercourse.

[1] On discovering this, so incensed was the wicked king, that he no longer confined his rage to the Jews in Alexandria. Laying his hand more heavily upon those who lived in the country, he gave orders that they should be quickly collected into one place, and most cruelly deprived of their lives.

[2] While this was going on, an invidious rumour was uttered abroad by men who had banded together to injure the Jewish race. The purport of their charge was, that the Jews kept them away from the ordinances of the law. [3] Now, while the Jews always maintained a feeling of un-swerving loyalty towards the kings, yet, as they worshipped God, and observed his law, they made certain distinctions, and avoided certain things. Hence some persons held them in odium; although, as they adorned their conversation with works of righteousness, they had established themselves in the good opinion of the world.

[6] What all the rest of mankind said, was, however, made of no account by the foreigners; [7] who said much of the exclusiveness of the Jews with regard to their worship and meats; they alleged that they were men unsociable, hostile to the king's interests, refusing to associate with him or his troops. By this way of speaking, they brought much odium upon them.

[8] Nor was this unexpected uproar and sudden conflux of people unobserved by the Greeks who lived in the city, concerning men who had never harmed them: yet to aid them was not in their power, since all was oppression around; but they encouraged them in their troubles, and expected a favourable turn of affairs: [9] He who knoweth all things, will not, [said they,] disregard so great a people. [10] Some of the neighbors, friends, and fellow dealers of the Jews, even called them secretly to an interview, pledged them their assistance, and promised to do their very utmost for them.

[11] Now the king, elated with his prosperous fortune, and not regarding the superior power of God, but thinking to persevere in his present purpose, wrote the following letter to the prejudice of the Jews.

[12] King Ptolemy Philopater, to the commanders and soldiers in Egypt, and in all places, health and happiness! [13] I am right well; and so, too, are my affairs. [14] Since our Asiatic campaign, the particulars of which ye know, and which by the aid of the gods, not lightly given, and by our own vigour, has been brought to a successful issue according to our expectation, [15] we resolved, not with strength of spear, but with gentleness and much humanity, as it were to nurse the inhabitants of Coele-Syria and Phoenicia, and to be their willing benefactors.

[16] So, having bestowed considerable sums of money upon the temples of the several cities, we proceeded even as far as Jerusalem; and went up to honour the temple of these wretched beings who never cease from their folly.

[17] To outward appearance they received us willingly; but belied that appearance by their deeds. When we were eager to enter their temple, and to honour it with the most beautiful and exquisite gifts, [18] they were so carried away by their old arrogance, as to forbid us the entrance; while we, out of our forbearance toward all men, refrained from exercising our power upon them. [19] And thus, exhibiting their enmity against us, they alone among the nations lift up their heads against kings and benefactors, as men unwilling to submit to any thing reasonable.

[20] We then, having endeavoured to make allowance for the madness of these persons, and on our victorious return treating all people in Egypt courteously, acted in a manner which was befitting. [21] Accordingly, bearing no ill-will against their kinsmen [at Jerusalem,] but rather remembering our connection with them, and the numerous matters with sincere heart from a remote period entrusted to them, we wished to venture a total alteration of their state, by bestowing upon them the rights of citizens of Alexandria, and to admit them to the everlasting rites of our solemnities.

[22] All this, however, they have taken in a very different spirit. With their innate malignity, they have spurned the fair offer; and constantly inclining to evil, [23] have rejected the inestimable rights. Not only so, but by using speech, and by refraining from speech, they abhor the few among them who are heartily disposed towards us; ever deeming that their ignoble course of procedure will force us to do away with our reform. [24] Having then, received certain proofs that these [Jews] bear us every sort of ill-will, we must look forward to the possibility of some sudden tumult among ourselves, when these impious men may turn traitors and barbarous enemies.

[25] As soon, therefore, as the contents of this letter become known to you, in that same hour we order those [Jews] who dwell among you, with wives and children, to be sent to us, vilified and abused, in chains of iron, to undergo a death, cruel and ignominious, suitable to men disaffected. [26] For by the punishment of them in one body we perceive that we have found the only means of establishing our affairs for the future on a firm and satisfactory basis.

[27] Whosoever shall shield a Jew, whether it be old man, child, or suckling, shall with his whole house be tortured to death. [28] Whoever shall inform against the [Jews,] besides receiving the property of the person charged, shall be presented with two thousand drachmae from the royal treasury, shall be made free, and shall be crowned.

[29] Whatever place shall shelter a Jew, shall, when he is hunted forth, be put under the ban of fire, and be for ever rendered useless to every living being for all time to come. [30] Such was the purport of the king's letter.

[1] Wherever this decree was received, the people kept up a revelry of joy and shouting; as if their long-pent-up, hardened hatred, were now to shew itself openly.

[2] The Jews suffered great throes of sorrow, and wept much; while their hearts, all things around being lamentable, were set on fire as they bewailed the sudden destruction which was decreed against them. [3] What home, or city, or place at all inhabited, or what streets were there, which their condition did not fill with wailing and lamentation?

[4] They were sent out unanimously by the generals in the several cities, with such stern and pitiless feeling, that the exceptional nature of the infliction moved even some of their enemies. These, influenced by sentiments of common humanity, and reflecting upon the uncertain issue of life, shed tears at this their miserable expulsion. [5] A multitude of aged hoary-haired old men, were driven along with halting bending feet, urged onward by the impulse of a violent, shameless force to quick speed.

[6] Girls who had entered the bridal chamber quite lately, to enjoy the partnership of marriage, exchanged pleasure for misery; and with dust scattered upon their myrrh-anointed heads, were hurried along unveiled; and, in the midst of outlandish insults, set up with one accord a lamentable cry in lieu of the marriage hymn. [7] Bound, and exposed to public gaze, they were hurried violently on board ship.

[8] The husbands of these, in the prime of their youthful vigour, instead of crowns wore halters round their necks; instead of feasting and youthful jollity, spent the rest of their nuptial days in wailings, and saw only the grave at hand. [9] They were dragged along by unyielding chains, like wild beasts: of these, some had their necks thrust into the benches of the rowers; while the feet of others were enclosed in hard fetters. [10] The planks of the deck above them barred out the light, and shut out the day on every side, so that they might be treated like traitors during the whole voyage.

[11] They were conveyed accordingly in this vessel, and at the end of it arrived at Schedia. The king had ordered them to be cast into the vast hippodrome, which was built in front of the city. This place was well adapted by its situation to expose them to the gaze of all comers into the city, and of those who went from the city into the country. Thus they could hold no communication with his forces; nay, were deemed unworthy of any civilized accommodation.

[12] When this was done, the king, hearing that their brethren in the city often went out and lamented the melancholy distress of these victims, [13] was full of rage, and commanded that they should be carefully subjected to the same (and not one whit milder) treatment. [14] The whole nation was now to be registered. Every individual was to be specified by name; not for that hard servitude of labour which we have a little before mentioned, but that he might expose them to the before-mentioned tortures; and finally, in the short space of a day, might extirpate them by his cruelties [15] The registering of these men was carried on cruelly, zealously, assiduously, from the rising of the sun to its going down, and was not brought to an end in forty days.

[16] The king was filled with great and constant joy, and celebrated banquets before the temple idols. His erring heart, far from the truth, and his profane mouth, gave glory to idols, deaf and incapable of speaking or aiding, and uttered unworthy speech against the Greatest God.

[17] At the end of the above-mentioned interval of time, the registrars brought word to the king that the multitude of the Jews was too great for registration, [18] inasmuch as there were many still left in the land, of whom some were in inhabited houses, and others were scattered about in various places; so that all the commanders in Egypt were insufficient for the work. [19] The king threatened them, and charged them with taking bribes, in order to contrive the escape of the Jews: but was clearly convinced of the truth of what had been said. [20] They said, and proved, that paper and pens had failed them for the carrying out of their purpose. [21] Now this was an active interference of the unconquerable Providence which assisted the Jews from heaven.

Chapter 5

[1] Then he called Hermon, who had charge of the elephants. Full of rage, altogether fixed in his furious design, [2] he commanded him, with a quantity of unmixed wine and handfuls of incense [infused] to drug the elephants early on the following day. These five hundred elephants were, when infuriated by the copious draughts of frankincense, to be led up to the execution of death upon the Jews. [3] The king, after issuing these orders, went to his feasting, and gathered together all those of his friends and of the army who hated the Jews the most.

[4] The master of the elephants, Hermon, fulfilled his commission punctually. [5] The underlings appointed for the purpose went out about eventide and bound the hands of the miserable victims, and took other precautions for their security at night, thinking that the whole race would perish together.

[6] The heathen believed the Jews to be destitute of all protection; for chains fettered them about. [7] they invoked the Almighty Lord, and ceaselessly besought with tears their merciful God and Father, Ruler of all, Lord of every power, [8] to overthrow the evil purpose which was gone out against them, and to deliver them by extraordinary manifestation from that death which was in store for them. [9] Their litany so earnest went up to heaven.

[10] Then Hermon, who had filled his merciless elephants with copious draughts of mingled wine and frankincense, came early to the palace to certify the kind thereof. [11] He, however, who has sent his good creature sleep from all time by night or by day thus gratifying whom he wills, diffused a portion thereof now upon the king. [12] By this sweet and profound influence of the Lord he was held fast, and thus his unjust purpose was quite frustrated, and his unflinching resolve greatly falsified.

[13] But the Jews, having escaped the hour which had been fixed, praised their holy God, and again prayed him who is easily reconciled to display the power of his powerful hand to the overweening Gentiles. [14] The middle of the tenth hour had well nigh arrived, when the master- bidder, seeing the guests who were bidden collected, came and shook the king. [15] He gained his attention with difficulty, and hinting that the mealtime was getting past, talked the matter over with him.

[16] The king listened to this, and then turning aside to his potatoes, commanded the guests to sit down before him. [17] This done, he asked them to enjoy themselves, and to indulge in mirth at this somewhat late hour of the banquet. [18] Conversation grew on, and the king sent for Hermon, and enquired of him, with fierce denunciations, why the Jews had been allowed to outlive that day. [19] Hermon explained that he had done his bidding over night; and in this he was confirmed by his friends. [20] The king, then, with a barbarity exceeding that of Phalaris, said, That they might thank his sleep of that day. Lose no time, and get ready the elephants against tomorrow, as you did before, for the destruction of these accursed Jews.

[21] When the king said this, the company present were glad, and approved; and then each man went to his own home. [22] Nor did they employ the night in sleep, so much as in contriving cruel mockeries for those deemed miserable.

[23] The morning cock had just crowed, and Hermon, having harnessed the brutes, was stimulating them in the great colonnade. [24] The city crowds were collected together to see the hideous spectacle, and waited impatiently for the dawn. [25] The Jews, breathless with momentary suspense, stretched forth their hands, and prayed the Greatest God, in mournful strains, again to help them speedily.

[26] The sun's rays were not yet shed abroad, and the king was waiting for his friends, when Hermon came to him, calling him out, and saying, That his desires could now be realized. [27] The king, receiving him, was astonished at his unwonted exit; and, overwhelmed with a spirit of oblivion about everything, enquired the object of this earnest preparation. [28] But this was the wroking of that Almighty God who had made him forget all his purpose.

[29] Hermon, and all his friends, pointed out the preparation of the animals. they are ready, O king, according to your own strict injunction. [30] The king was filled with fierce anger at these words; for, by the Providence of God regarding these things, his mind had become entirely confused. He looked hard at Hermon, and threatened him as follows: [31] Your parents, or your children, were they here, to these wild beasts a large repast they should have furnished; not these innocent Jews, who me and my forefathers loyally have served. [32] Had it not been for familar friendship, and the claims of your office, your life should have gone for theirs.

[33] Hermon, being threatened in this unexpected and alarming manner, was troubled in visage, and depressed in countenance. [34] The friends, too, stole out one by one, and dismissed the assembled multitudes to their respective occupations. [35] The Jews, having heard of these events, praised the glorious God and King of kings, because they had obtained this help, too, from him.

[36] Now the king arranged another banquet after the same manner, and proclaimed an invitation to mirth. [27] And he summoned Hermon to his presence, and said, with threats, How often, O wretch, must I repeat my orders to thee about these same persons? [28] Once more, arm the elephants against the morrow for the extermination of the Jews.

[39] His kinsmen, who were reclining with him, wondered at his instability, and thus expressed themselves: [40] O king, how long dost thou make trial of us, as of men bereft of reason? This is the third time that thou hast ordered their destruction. When the thing is to be done, thou changest thy mind, and recallest thy instructions. [41] For this cause the feeling of expectation causes tumult in the city: it swarms with factions; and is continually on the point of being plundered.

[42] The king, just like another Phalaris, a prey to thoughtlessness, made no account of the changes which his own mind had undergone, issuing in the deliverance of the Jews. He swore a fruitless oath, and determined forthwith to send them to hades, crushed by the knees and feet of the elephants. [43] He would also invade Judea, and level its towns with fire and the sword; and destroy that temple which the heathen might not enter, and prevent sacrifices ever after being offered up there.

[44] Joyfully his friends broke up, together with his kinsmen; and, trusting in his determination, arranged their forces in guard at the most convenient places of the city. [45] And the master of the elephants urged the beasts into an almost maniacal state, drenched them with incense and wine, and decked them with frightful instruments.

[46] About early morning, when the city was now filled with an immense number of people at the hippodrome, he entered the palace, and called the king to the business in hand. [47] The king's heart teemed with impious rage; and he rushed forth with the mass, along with the elephants. With feelings unsoftened, and eyes pitiless, he longed to gaze at the hard and wretched doom of the abovementioned [Jews].

[48] But the [Jews,] when the elephants went out at the gate, followed by the armed force; and when they saw the dust raised by the throng, and heard the loud cries of the crowd, [49] thought that they had come to the last moment of their lives, to the end of what they had tremblingly expected. They gave way, therefore, to lamentations and moans: they kissed each other: those nearest of kin to each other hung about one another's necks: fathers about their sons, mother their daughters: other women held their infants to their breasts, which drew what seemed their last milk.

[50] Nevertheless, when they reflected upon the succour before granted them from heaven, they prostrated themselves with one accord; removed even the sucking children from the breasts, and [51] sent up an exceeding great cry entreating the Lord of all power to reveal himself, and have mercy upon those who now lay at the gates of hades.

Chapter 6

[1] And Eleazar, an illustrious priest of the country, who had attained to length of day, and whose life had been adorned with virtue, caused the presbyters who were about him to cease to cry out to the holy God, and prayed thus:

[2] O king, mighty in power, most high, Almighty God, who regulates the whole creation with thy tender mercy, [3] look upon the seed of Abraham, upon the children of the sanctified Jacob, thy sanctified inheritance, O Father, now being wrongfully destroyed as strangers in a strange land.

[4] Thou destroyedst Pharaoh, with his hosts of chariots, when that lord of this same Egypt was uplifted with lawless hardihood and loud-sounding tongue. Shedding the beams of thy mercy upon the race of Israel, thou didst overwhelm him with his proud army. [5] When Sennacherim, the grievous king of the Assyrians, glorying in his countless hosts, had subdued the whole land with his spear, and was lifting himself against thine holy city, with boastings grievous to be endured, thou, O Lord, didst demolish him and didst shew forth thy might to many nations. [6] When the three friends in the land of Babylon of their own will exposed their lives to the fire rather than serve vain things, thou didst send a dewy coolness through the fiery furnace, and bring the fire upon all their adversaries. [7] It was thou who, when Daniel was hurled, through slander and envy, as a prey to lions down below, didst bring him back against unhurt to light. [8] When Jonah was pining away in the belly of the sea-bred monster, thou didst look upon him, O Father, and recover him to the sight of his own.

[9] And now, thou who hatest insolence; thou who dost abound in mercy; thou who art the protector of all things; appear quickly to those of the race of Israel, who are insulted by abhorred, lawless gentiles. [10] If our life has during our exile been stained with iniquity, deliver us from the hand of the enemy, and destroy us, O Lord, by the death which thou preferrest.

[11] Let not the vain-minded congratulate vain idols at the destruction of thy beloved, saying, Neither did their god deliver them. [12] Thou, who art All-powerful and Almighty, O Eternal One, behold! have mercy upon us who are being withdrawn from life, like traitors, by the unreasoning insolence of lawless men. [13] Let the heathen cower before thine invincible might today, O glorious One, who hast all power to save the race of Jacob. [14] The whole band of infants and their parents with tears beseech thee. [15] Let it be shewn to all the nations that thou art with us, O Lord, and hast not turned thy face away from us; but as thou saidst that thou wouldst not forget them even in the land of their enemies, so do thou fulfil this saying, O Lord.

[16] Now, at the time that Eleazar had ended his prayer, the king came along to the hippodrome, with the wild beasts, and with his tumultuous power. [17] When the Jews saw this, they uttered a loud cry to heaven, so that the adjacent valleys resounded, and caused an irrepressible lamentation throughout the army.

[18] Then the all-glorious, all-powerful, and true God, displayed his holy countenance, and opened the gates of heaven, from which two angels, dreadful of form, came down and were visible to all but the Jews. [19] And they stood opposite, and filled the enemies' host with confusion and cowardice; and bound them with immoveable fetters. [20] And a cold shudder came over the person of the king, and oblivion paralysed the vehemence of his spirit. [21] They turned back the animals upon the armed forces which followed them; and the animals trod them down, and destroyed them.

[22] The king's wrath was converted into compassion; and he wept at his own machinations. [23] For when he heard the cry, and saw them all on the verge of destruction, with tears he angrily threatened his friends, saying, [24] Ye have governed badly; and have exceeded tyrants in cruelty; and me your benefactor ye have laboured to deprive at once of my dominion and my life, by secretly devising measures injurious to the kingdom. [25] Who has gathered here, unreasonably removing each from his home, those who, in fidelity to us, had held the fortresses of the country? [26] Who has thus consigned to unmerited punishments those who in good will towards us from the beginning have in all things surpassed all nations, and who often have engaged in the most dangerous undertakings?

[27] Loose, loose the unjust bonds; send them to their homes in peace, and deprecate what has been done. [28] Release the sons of the almighty living God of heaven, who from our ancestors' times until now has granted a glorious and uninterrupted prosperity to our affairs.

[29] These things he said; and they, released the same moment, having now escaped death, praised God their holy Saviour. [30] The king then departed to the city, and called his financier to him, and bade him provide a seven days' quantity of wine and other materials for feasting for the Jews. He decided that they should keep a gladsome festival of deliverance in the very place in which they expected to meet with their destruction.

[31] Then they who were before despised and nigh unto hades, yea, rather advanced into it, partook of the cup of salvation, instead of a grievous and lamentable death. Full of exultation, they parted out the place intended for their fall and burial into banqueting booths. [32] Ceasing their miserable strain of woe, they took up the subject of their fatherland, hymning in praise God their wonder-working Saviour. All groans, all wailing, were laid aside: they formed dances in token of serene joy.

[33] So, also, the king collected a number of guests for the occasion, and returned unceasing thanks with much magnificence for the unexpected deliverance afforded him. [34] Those who had marked them out as for death and for carrion, and had registered them with joy, howled aloud, and were clothed with shame, and had the fire of their rage ingloriously put out.

[35] But the Jews, as we just said, instituted a dance, and then gave themselves up to feasting, glad thanksgivings, and psalms. [36] They made a public ordinance to commemorate these things for generations to come, as long as they should be sojourners. They thus established these days as days of mirth, not for the purpose of drinking or luxury, but because God had saved them. [37] They requested the king to send them back to their homes.

[38] They were being enrolled from the twenty-fifth of Pachon to the fourth of Epiphi, a period of forty days: the measures taken for their destruction lasted from the fifth of Epiphi till the seventh, that is, three days. [39] The Ruler over all did during this time manifest forth his mercy gloriously, and did deliver them all together unharmed.

[40] They feasted upon the king's provision up to the fourteenth day, and then asked to be sent away. [41] The king commended them, and wrote the subjoined letter, of magnanimous import for them, to the commanders of every city.

[1] King Ptolemy Philopator to the commanders throughout Egypt, and to all who are set over affairs, joy and strength. [2] We, too, and our children are well; and God has directed our affairs as we wish.

[3] Certain of our friends did of malice vehemently urge us to punish the Jews of our realm in a body, with the infliction of a monstrous punishment. [4] They pretended that our affairs would never be in a good state till this took place. Such, they said, was the hatred borne by the Jews to all other people. [5] They brought them fettered in grievous chains as slaves, nay, as traitors. Without enquiry or examination they endeavoured to annihilate them. They buckled themselves with a savage cruelty, worse than Scythian custom.

[6] For this cause we severely threatened them; yet, with the clemency which we are wont to extend to all men, we at length permitted them to live. Finding that the God of heaven cast a shield of protection over the Jews so as to preserve them, and that he fought for them as a father always fights for his sons; [7] and taking into consideration their constancy and fidelity towards us and towards our ancestors, we have, as we ought, acquitted them of every sort of charge. [8] And we have dismissed them to their several homes; bidding all men everywhere to do them no wrong, or unrighteously revile them about the past. [9] For know ye, that should we conceive any evil design, or in any way aggrieve them, we shall ever have as our opposite, not man, but the highest God, the ruler of all might. From Him there will be no escape, as the avenger of such deeds. Fare ye well.

[10] When they had received this letter, they were not forward to depart immediately. They petitioned the king to be allowed to inflict fitting punishment upon those of their race who had willingly transgressed the holy god, and the law of God. [11] They alleged that men who had for their bellies' sake transgressed the ordinances of God, would never be faithful to the interests of the king.

[12] The king admitted the truth of this reasoning, and commended them. Full power was given them, without warrant or special commission, to destroy those who had transgressed the law of God boldly in every part of the king's dominions. [13] Their priests, then, as it was meet, saluted him with good wishes, and all the people echoed with the Hallelujah. They then joyfully departed.

[14] Then they punished and destroyed with ignominy every polluted Jew that fell in their way; [15] slaying thus, in that day, above three hundred men, and esteeming this destruction of the wicked a season of joy. [16] They themselves having held fast their God unto death, and having enjoyed a full deliverance, departed from the city garlanded with sweet-flowered wreaths of every kind. Uttering exclamations of joy, with songs of praise, and melodious hymns they thanked the God of their fathers, the eternal Saviour of Israel.

[17] Having arrived at Ptolemais, called from the specialty of that district Rose-bearing, where the fleet, in accordance with the general wish, waited for them seven days, [18] they partook of a banquet of deliverance, for the king generously granted them severally the means of securing a return home. [19] They were accordingly brought back in peace, while they gave utterance to becoming thanks; and they determined to keep these days during their sojourn as days of joyfulness. [20] These they registered as sacred upon a pillar, when they had dedicated the place of their festivity to be one of prayer. They departed unharmed, free, abundant in joy, preserved by the king's command, by land, by sea, and by river, each to his own home.

[21] They had more weight than before among their enemies; and were honoured and feared, and no one in any way robbed them of their goods. [22] Every man received back his own, according to inventory; those who had obtained their goods, giving them up with the greatest terror. For the greatest God wrought with perfectness wonders for their salvation. [23] Blessed be the Redeemer of Israel unto everlasting. Amen.

IV Maccabees

Chapter I

[1] As I am going to demonstrate a most philosophical proposition, namely, that religious reasoning is absolute master of the passions, I would willingly advise you to give the utmost heed to philosophy. [2] For reason is necessary to every one as a step to science: and more especially does it embrace the praise of prudence, the highest virtue.

[3] If, then, reasoning appears to hold the mastery over the passions which stand in the way of temperance, such as gluttony and lust, [4] it surely also and manifestly has the rule over the affections which are contrary to justice, such as malice; and of those which are hindrances to manliness, as wrath, and pain, and fear. [5] How, then, is it, perhaps some may say, that reasoning, if it rule the affections, is not also master of forgetfulness and ignorance? They attempt a ridiculous argument. [6] For reasoning does not rule over its own affections, but over such as are contrary to justice, and manliness and temperance, and prudence; and yet over these, so as to withstand, without destroying them.

[7] I might prove to you, from many other considerations, that religious reasoning is sole master of the passions; [8] but I shall prove it with the greatest force from the fortitude of Eleazar, and seven brethren, and their mother, who suffered death in defence of virtue. [9] For all these, contemning pains even unto death, by this contempt, demonstrated that reasoning has command over the passions.

[10] For their virtues, then, it is right that I should commend those men who died with their mother at this time in behalf of rectitude; and for their honours, I may count them happy. [11] For they, winning admiration not only from men in general, but even from the persecutors, for their manliness and endurance, became the means of the destruction of the tyranny against their nation, having conquered the tyrant by their endurance, so that by them their country was purified.

[12] But we may now at once enter upon the question, having commenced, as is our wont, with laying down the doctrine, and so proceed to the account of these persons, giving glory to the all wise God.

[13] The question, therefore, is, whether reasoning be absolute master of the passions. [14] Let us determine, then, What is reasoning? and what passion? and how many forms of the passions? and whether reasoning bears sway over all of these?

[15] Reasoning is, then, intellect accompanied by a life of rectitude, putting foremost the consideration of wisdom. [16] And wisdom is a knowledge of divine and human things, and of their causes. [17] And this is contained in the education of the law; by means of which we learn divine things reverently, and human things profitably.

[18] And the forms of wisdom are prudence, and justice, and manliness, and temperance. [19] The leading one of these is prudence; by whose means, indeed, it is that reasoning bears rule over the passions. [20] Of the passions, pleasure and pain are the two most comprehensive; and they also by nature refer to the soul. [21] And there are many attendant affections surrounding pleasure and pain. [22] Before pleasure is lust; and after pleasure, joy. [23] And before pain is fear; and after pain is sorrow.

[24] Wrath is an affection, common to pleasure and to pain, if any one will pay attention when it comes upon him. [25] And there exists in pleasure a malicious disposition, which is the most multiform of all the affections. [26] In the soul it is arrogance, and love of money, and vaingloriousness, and contention, and faithlessness, and the evil eye. [27] In the body it is greediness and gormandizing, and solitary gluttony.

[28] As pleasure and pain are, therefore, two growth of the body and the soul, so there are many offshoots of these passions. [29] And reasoning, the universal husbandman, purging, and pruning these severally, and binding round, and watering, and transplanting, in every way improves the materials of the morals and affections. [30] For reasoning is the leader of the virtues, but it is the sole ruler of the passions. Observe then first, through the very things which stand in the way of temperance, that reasoning is absolute ruler of the passions.

[31] Now temperance consists of a command over the lusts. [32] But of the lusts, some belong to the soul, others to the body: and over each of these classes the reasoning appears to bear sway. [33] For whence is it, otherwise, that when urged on to forbidden meats, we reject the gratification which would ensue from them? Is it not because reasoning is able to command the appetites? I believe so. [34] Hence it is, then, that when lusting after water-animals and birds, and fourfooted beasts, and all kinds of food which are forbidden us by the law, we withhold ourselves through the mastery of reasoning. [35] For the affections of our appetites are resisted by the temperate understanding, and bent back again, and all the impulses of the body are reined in by reasoning.

[1] And what wonder? if the lusts of the soul, after participation with what is beautiful, are frustrated, [2] on this ground, therefore, the temperate Joseph is praised in that by reasoning, he subdued, on reflection, the indulgence of sense. [3] For, although young, and ripe for sexual intercourse, he abrogated by reasoning the stimulus of his passions.

[4] And it is not merely the stimulus of sensual indulgence, but that of every desire, that reasoning is able to master. [5] For instance, the law says, Thou shalt not covet thy neighbour's wife, nor anything that belongs to thy neighbour. [6] Now, then, since it is the law which has forbidden us to desire, I shall much the more easily persuade you, that reasoning is able to govern our lusts, just as it does the affections which are impediments to justice. [7] Since in what way is a solitary eater, and a glutton, and a drunkard reclaimed, unless it be clear that reasoning is lord of the passions?

[8] A man, therefore, who regulates his course by the law, even if he be a lover of money, straightway puts force upon his own disposition; lending to the needy without interest, and cancelling the debt of the incoming sabbath. [9] And should a man be parsimonious, he is ruled by the law acting through reasoning; so that he does not glean his harvest crops, nor vintage: and in reference to other points we may perceive that it is reasoning that conquers his passions.

[10] For the law conquers even affection toward parents, not surrendering virtue on their account. [11] And it prevails over marriage love, condemning it when transgressing law. [12] And it lords it over the love of parents toward their children, for they punish them for vice; and it domineers over the intimacy of friends, reproving them when wicked. [13] And think it not a strange assertion that reasoning can in behalf of the law conquer even enmity. [14] It alloweth not to cut down the cultivated herbage of an enemy, but preserveth it from the destroyers, and collecteth their fallen ruins.

[15] And reason appears to be master of the more violent passions, as love of empire and empty boasting, and slander. [16] For the temperate understanding repels all these malignant passions, as it does wrath: for it masters even this.

[17] Thus Moses, when angered against Dathan and Abiram, did nothing to them in wrath, but regulated his anger by reasoning. [18] For the temperate mind is able, as I said, to be superior to the passions, and to transfer some, and destroy others. [19] For why, else, does our most wise father Jacob blame Simeon and Levi for having irrationally slain the whole race of the Shechemites, saying, Cursed be their anger. [20] For if reasoning did not possess the power of subduing angry affections, he would not have spoken thus.

[21] For at the time when God created man, He implanted within him his passions and moral nature. [22] And at that time He enthroned above all the holy leader mind, through the medium of the senses. [23] And He gave a law to this mind, by living according to which it will maintain a temperate, and just, and good, and manly reign. [24] How, then, a man may say, if reasoning be master of the passions, has it no control over forgetfulness and ignorance?

Chapter 3

[1] The argument is exceedingly ridiculous: for reasoning does not appear to bear sway over its own affections, but over those of the body, [2] in such a way as that any one of you may not be able to root out desire, but reasoning will enable you to avoid being enslaved to it.

[3] One may not be able to root out anger from the soul, but it is possible to withstand anger. [4] Any one of you may not be able to eradicate malice, but reasoning has force to work with you to prevent you yielding to malice. [5] For reasoning is not an eradicator, but an antagonist of the passions. [6] And this may be more clearly comprehended from the thirst of king David. [7] For after David had been attacking the Philistines the whole day, he with the soldiers of his nation slew many of them; [8] then when evening came, sweating and very weary, he came to the royal tent, about which the entire host of our ancestors was encamped.

[9] Now all the rest of them were at supper; [10] but the king, being very much athirst, although he had numerous springs, could not by their means quench his thirst; [11] but a certain irrational longing for the water in the enemy's camp grew stronger and fiercer upon him, and consumed him with languish.

[12] Wherefore his body-guards being troubled at this longing of the king, two valiant young soldiers, reverencing the desire of the king, put on their panoplies, and taking a pitcher, got over the ramparts of the enemies: [13] and unperceived by the guardians of the gate, they went throughout the whole camp of the enemy in quest. [14] And having boldly discovered the fountain, they filled out of it the draught for the king.

[15] But he, though parched with thirst, reasoned that a draught reputed of equal value to blood, would be terribly dangerous to his soul. [16] Wherefore, setting up reasoning in opposition to his desire, he poured out the draught to God. [17] For the temperate mind has power to conquer the pressure of the passions, and to quench the fires of excitement, [18] and to wrestle down the pains of the body, however excessive; and, through the excellency of reasoning, to abominate all the assaults of the passions.

[19] But the occasion now invites us to give an illustration of temperate reasoning from history. [20] For at a time when our fathers were in possession of undisturbed peace through obedience to the law, and were prosperous, so that Seleucus Nicanor, the king of Asia, both assigned them money for divine service, and accepted their form of government, [21] then certain persons, bringing in new things contrary to the general unanimity, in various ways fell into calamities.

[1] For a certain man named Simon, who was in opposition to Onias, who once held the high priesthood for life, and was an honourable and good man, after that by slandering him in every way, he could not injure him with the people, went away as an exile, with the intention of betraying his country.

[2] Whence coming to Apollonius, the military governor of Syria, and Phoenicia, and Cilicia, he said, [3] Having good will to the king's affairs, I am come to inform thee that infinite private wealth is laid up in the treasuries of Jerusalem which do not belong to the temple, but pertain to king Seleucus.

[4] Apollonius, acquainting himself with the particulars of this, praised Simon for his care of the king's interests, and going up to Seleucus informed him of the treasure; [5] and getting authority about it, and quickly advancing into our country with the accursed Simon and a very heavy force, [6] he said that he came with the commands of the king that he should take the private money of the treasure. [7] And the nation, indignant at this proclamation, and replying to the effect that it was extremely unfair that those who had committed deposits to the sacred treasury should be deprived of them, resisted as well as they could. [8] But Appolonius went away with threats into the temple.

[9] And the priests, with the women and children, having supplicated God to throw his shield over the holy, despised place, [10] and Appolonius going up with his armed force to the seizure of the treasure, — there appeared from heaven angels riding on horseback, all radiant in armour, filling them with much fear and trembling. [11] And Apollonius fell half dead upon the court which is open to all nations, and extended his hands to heaven, and implored the Hebrews, with tears, to pray for him, and propitiate the heavenly host. [12] For he said that he had sinned, so as to be consequently worthy of death; and that if he were saved, he would celebrate to all men the blessedness of the holy place.

[13] Onias the high priest, induced by these words, although for other reasons anxious that king Seleucus should not suppose that Apollonius was slain by human device and not by Divine punishment, prayed for him; [14] and he being thus unexpectedly saved, departed to manifest to the king what had happened to him. [15] But on the death of Seleucus the king, his son Antiochus Epiphanes succeeds to the kingdom: a man of haughty pride and terrible. [16] Who having deposed Onias from the high priesthood, appointed his brother Jason to be high priest: [17] who had made a covenant, if he would give him this authority, to pay yearly three thousand six hundred and sixty talents.

[18] And he committed to him the high priesthood and rulership over the nation. [19] And he both changed the manner of living of the people, and perverted their civil customs into all lawlessness. [20] So that he not only erected a gymnasium on the very citadel of our country, [but neglected] the guardianship of the temple. [21] At which Divine vengeance being grieved, instigated Antiochus himself against them. [22] For being at war with Ptolemy in Egypt, he heard that on a report of his death being spread abroad, the inhabitants of Jerusalem had exceedingly rejoiced, and he quickly marched against them. [23] And having subdued them, he established a decree that if any of them lived according to the laws of his country he should die.

[24] And when he could by no means destroy by his decrees the obedience to the law of the nation, but saw all his threats and punishments without effect, [25] for even women, because they continued to circumcise their children, were flung down a precipice along with them, knowing beforehand of the punishment. [26] When, therefore, his decrees were disregarded by the people, he himself compelled by means of tortures every one of this race, by tasting forbidden meats, to abjure the Jewish religion.

[1] The tyrant Antiochus, therefore, sitting in public state with his assessors upon a certain lofty place, with his armed troops standing in a circle around him, commanded his spearbearers to seize every one of the Hebrews, and to compel them to taste swine's flesh, and things offered to idols. [2] 3 And should any of them be unwilling to eat the accursed food, they were to be tortured on the wheel, and so killed.

[4] And when many had been seized, a foremost man of the assembly, a Hebrew, by name Eleazar, a priest by family, by profession a lawyer, and advanced in years, and for this reason known to many of the king's followers, was brought near to him.

[5] And Antiochus seeing him, said, [6] I would counsel thee, old man, before thy tortures begin, to tasted the swine's flesh, and save your life; for I feel respect for your age and hoary head, which since you have had so long, you appear to me to be no philosopher in retaining the superstition of the Jews. [7] For wherefore, since nature has conferred upon you the most excellent flesh of this animal, do you loathe it? [8] It seems senseless not to enjoy what is pleasant, yet not disgraceful; and from notions of sinfulness, to reject the boons of nature.

[9] And you will be acting, I think, still more senselessly, if you follow vain conceits about the truth. [10] And you will, moreover, be despising me to your own punishment. [11] Will you not awake from your trifling philosophy? and give up the folly of your notions; and, regaining understanding worthy of your age, search into the truth of an expedient course? [12] and, reverencing my kindly admonition, have pity upon your own years? [13] For, bear in mind, that if there be any power which watches over this religion of yours, it will pardon you for all transgressions of the law which you commit through compulsion.

[14] While the tyrant incited him in this manner to the unlawful eating of flesh, Eleazar begged permission to speak. [15] And having received power to speak, he began thus to deliver himself: [16] We, O Antiochus, who are persuaded that we live under a divine law, consider no compulsion to be so forcible as obedience to that law; [17] wherefore we consider that we ought not in any point to transgress the law. [18] And indeed, were our law (as you suppose) not truly divine, and if we wrongly think it divine, we should have no right even in that case to destroy our sense of religion. [19] think not eating the unclean, then, a trifling offense. [20] For transgression of the law, whether in small or great matters, is of equal moment; [21] for in either case the law is equally slighted.

[22] But thou deridest our philosophy, as though we lived irrationally in it. [23] Yet it instructs us in temperance, so that we are superior to all pleasures and lusts; and it exercises us in manliness, so that we cheerfully undergo every grievance. [24] And it instructs us in justice, so that in all our dealings

we render what is due; and it teaches us piety, so that we worship the one only God becomingly. [25] Wherefore it is that we eat not the unclean; for believing that the law was established by God, we are convinced that the Creator of the world, in giving his laws, sympathises with our nature. [26] Those things which are convenient to our souls, he has directed us to eat; but those which are repugnant to them, he has interdicted.

[27] But, tyrant-like, thou not only forcest us to break the law, but also to eat, that thou mayest ridicule us as we thus profanely eat: [28] but thou shalt not have this cause of laughter against me; [29] nor will I transgress the sacred oaths of my forefathers to keep the law. [30] No, not if you pluck out my eyes, and consume my entrails. [31] I am not so old, and void of manliness, but that my rational powers are youthful in defence of my religion.

[32] Now then; prepare your wheels, and kindle a fiercer flame. [33] I will not so compassionate my old age, as on my account to break the law of my country. [34] I will not belie thee, O law, my instructor! or forsake thee, O beloved self-control! [35] I will not put thee to shame, O philosopher Reason; or deny thee, O honoured priesthood, and science of the law. [36] Mouth! thou shalt not pollute my old age, nor the full stature of a perfect life.

[37] My fathers shall receive me pure, not having quailed before your compulsion, though unto death. [38] For over the ungodly thou shalt tyrannize; but thou shalt not lord it over my thoughts about religion, either by thine arguments, or through deeds.

[1] When Eleazar had in this manner answered the exhortations of the tyrant, the spearbearers came up, and rudely haled Eleazar to the instruments of torture. [2] And first, they stripped the old man, adorned as he was with the comeliness of piety. [3] Then tying back his arms and hands, they disdainfully used him with stripes; [4] a herald opposite crying out, Obey the commands of the king.

[5] But Eleazar, the high-minded and truly noble, as one tortured in a dream, regarded it not all. [6] But raising his eyes on high to heaven, the old man's flesh was stripped off by the scourges, and his blood streamed down, and his sides were pierced through. [7] And falling upon the ground, from his body having no power to support the pains, he yet kept his reasoning upright and unbending. [8] then one of the harsh spearbearers leaped upon his belly as he was falling, to force him upright.

[9] But he endured the pains, and despised the cruelty, and persevered through the indignities; [10] and like a noble athlete, the old man, when struck, vanquished his torturers. [11] His countenance sweating, and he panting for breath, he was admired by the very torturers for his courage.

[12] Wherefore, partly in pity for his old age, [13] partly from the sympathy of acquaintance, and partly in admiration of his endurance, some of the attendants of the king said, Why do you unreasonably destroy yourself, O Eleazar, with these miseries? [15] We will bring you some meat cooked by yourself, and do you save yourself by pretending that you have eaten swine's flesh.

[16] And Eleazar, as though the advice more painfully tortured him, cried out, [17] Let not us who are children of Abraham be so evil advised as by giving way to make use of an unbecoming pretence; [18] for it were irrational, if having lived up to old age in all truth, and having scrupulously guarded our character for it, we should now turn back, [19] and ourselves should become a pattern of impiety to the young, as being an example of pollution eating. [20] It would be disgraceful if we should live on some short time, and that scorned by all men for cowardice, [21] and be condemned by the tyrant for unmanliness, by not contending to the death for our divine law. [22] Wherefore do you, O children of Abraham, die nobly for your religion. [23] Ye spearbearers of the tyrant, why do ye linger?

[24] Beholding him so high-minded against misery, and not changing at their pity, they led him to the fire: [25] then with their wickedly-contrived instruments they burnt him on the fire, and poured stinking fluids down into his nostrils.

[26] And he being at length burnt down to the bones, and about to expire, raised his eyes Godward, and said, [27] Thou knowest, O God, that when I might have been saved, I am slain for the sake of the law by tortures of fire.

[28] Be merciful to thy people, and be satisfied with the punishment of me on their account. [29] Let my blood be a purification for them, and take my life in recompense for theirs. [30] Thus speaking, the holy man departed, noble in his torments, and even to the agonies of death resisted in his reasoning for the sake of the law.

[31] Confessedly, therefore, religious reasoning is master of the passions. [32] For had the passions been superior to reasoning, I would have given them the witness of this mastery. [33] But now, since reasoning conquered the passions, we befittingly awarded it the authority of first place.

[34] And it is but fair that we should allow, that the power belongs to reasoning, since it masters external miseries. [35] Ridiculous would it be were it not so; and I prove that reasoning has not only mastered pains, but that it is also superior to the pleasures, and withstands them.

[1] The reasoning of our father Eleazar, like a first-rate pilot, steering the vessel of piety in the sea of passions, [2] and flouted by the threats of the tyrant, and overwhelmed with the breakers of torture, [3] in no way shifted the rudder of piety till it sailed into the harbour of victory over death.

[4] Not so has ever a city, when besieged, held out against many and various machines, as did that holy man, when his pious soul was tried with the fiery trial of tortures and rackings, move his besiegers through the religious reasoning that shielded him. [5] For father Eleazar, projecting his disposition, broke the raging waves of the passions as with a jutting promontory. [6] O priest worthy of the priesthood! thou didst not pollute thy sacred teeth; nor make thine appetite, which had always embraced the clean and lawful, a partaker of profanity. [7] O harmonizer with the law, and sage devoted to a divine life! [8] Of such a character ought those to be who perform the duties of the law at the risk of their own blood, and defend it with generous sweat by sufferings even unto death.

[9] Thou, father, hast gloriously established our right government by thy endurance; and making of much account our service past, prevented its destruction, and, by thy deeds, hast made credible the words of philosophy. [10] O aged man of more power than tortures, elder more vigorous than fire, greatest king over the passions, Eleazar!

[11] For as father Aaron, armed with a censer, hastening through the consuming fire, vanquished the flame-bearing angel, [12] so, Eleazar, the descendant of Aaron, wasted away by the fire, did not give up his reasoning. [13] And, what is most wonderful, though an old man, though the labours of his body were now spent, and his fibres were relaxed, and his sinews worn out, he recovered youth. [14] By the spirit of reasoning, and the reasoning of Isaac, he rendered powerless the many-headed instrument. [15] O blessed old age, and reverend hoar head, and life obedient to the law, which the faithful seal of death perfected. [16] O If, then, an old man, through religion, despised tortures even unto death, confessedly religious reasoning is ruler of the passions.

[17] But perhaps some might say, It is not all who conquer passions, as all do not possess wise reasoning. [18] But they who have meditated upon religion with their whole heart, these alone can master the passions of the flesh; [19] they who believe that to God they die not; for, as our forefathers, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, they live to God.

[20] This circumstance, then, is by no means an objection, that some who have weak reasoning, are governed by their passions: [21] since what person, walking religiously by the whole rule of philosophy, and believing in God, [22] and knowing that it is a blessed thing to endure all kinds of hardships for virtue, would not, for the sake of religion, master his passion? [23] For the wise and brave man only is lord over his passions. [24] Whence it is, that even boys, imbued with the philosophy of religious reasoning, have conquered still more bitter tortures: [25] for when the tyrant was manifestly vanquished in his first attempt, in being unable to force the old man to eat the unclean thing,-

Chapter 8

[1] Then, indeed, vehemently swayed with passion, he commanded to bring others of the adult Hebrews, and if they would eat of the unclean thing, to let them go when they had eaten; but if they objected, to torment them more grievously.

[2] The tyrant having given this charge, seven brethren were brought into his presence, along with their aged mother, handsome, and modest, and well-born, and altogether comely. [3] Whom, when the tyrant beheld, encircling their mother as in a dance, he was pleased at them; and being struck with their becoming and ingenuous mien, smiled upon them, and calling them near, said:

[4] O youths, with favourable feelings, I admire the beauty of each of you; and greatly honouring so numerous a band of brethren, I not only counsel you not to share the madness of the old man who has been tortured before, [5] but I do beg you to yield, and to enjoy my friendship; for I possess the power, not only of punishing those who disobey my commands, but of doing good to those who obey them.

[6] Put confidence in me, then, and you shall receive places of authority in my government, if you forsake your national ordinance, [7] and, conforming to the Greek mode of life, alter your rule, and revel in youth's delights. [8] For if you provoke me by your disobedience, you will compel me to destroy you, every one, with terrible punishments by tortures. [9] Have mercy, then, upon your own selves, whom I, although an enemy, compassionate for your age and comeliness. [10] Will you not reason upon this — that if you disobey, there will be nothing left for you but to die in tortures?

[11] Thus speaking, he ordered the instruments of torture to be brought forward, that very fear might prevail upon them to eat unclean meat. [12] And when the spearman brought forward the wheels, and the racks, and the hooks, and catapeltae, and caldrons, pans, and finger-racks, and iron hands and wedges, and bellows, the tyrant continue: [13] Fear, young men, and the righteousness which ye worship will be merciful to you if you err from compulsion. [14] Now they having listened to these words of persuasion, and seeing the fearful instruments, not only were not afraid, but even answered the arguments of the tyrant, and through their good reasoning destroyed his power.

[15] Now let us consider the matter: had any of them been weak-spirited and cowardly among them, what reasonings would they have employed but these?

[16] O wretched that we are, and exceeding senseless! when the king exhorts us, and calls us to his bounty, should we not obey him? [17] Why do we cheer ourselves with vain counsels, and venture upon a disobedience bringing death?

[18] Shall we not fear, O brethren, the instruments of torture and weigh the threatenings of torment and shun this vain-glory and destructive pride? [19] Let us have compassion upon our age and relent over the years of our mother. [20] And let us bear in mind that we shall be dying as rebels. [21] And Divine Justice will pardon us if we fear the king through necessity. [22] Why withdraw ourselves from a most sweet life, and deprive ourselves of this pleasant world? [23] Let us not oppose necessity, nor seek vain-glory by our own excruciation. [24] The law itself is not forward to put us to death, if we dread torture. [25] Whence has such angry zeal taken root in us, and such fatal obstinacy approved itself to us, when we might live unmolested by the king?

[26] But nothing of this kind did the young men say or think when about to be tortured. [27] For they were well aware of the sufferings, and masters of the pains. So that as soon as the tyrant had ceased counselling them to eat the unclean, they altogether with one voice, as from the same heart said:

[1] Why delayest thou, O tyrant? for we are readier to die than to transgress the injunctions of our fathers. [2] And we should be disgracing our fathers if we did not obey the law, and take knowledge for our guide.

[3] O tyrant, counsellor of law-breaking, do not, hating us as thou dost, pity us more than we pity ourselves. [4] For we account escape to be worse than death. [5] And you think to scare us, by threatening us with death by tortures, as though thou hadst learned nothing by the death of Eleazar. [6] But if aged men of the Hebrews have died in the cause of religion after enduring torture, more rightly should we younger men die, scorning your cruel tortures, which our aged instructor overcame.

[7] Make the attempt, then, O tyrant; and if thou putttest us to death for our religion, think not that thou harmest us by torturing us. [8] For we through this ill-treatment and endurance shall bear off the rewards of virtue. [9] But thou, for the wicked and despotic slaughter of us, shalt, from the Divine vengeance, endure eternal torture by fire.

[10] When they had thus spoken, the tyrant was not only exasperated against them as being refractory, but enraged with them as being ungrateful. [11] So that, at his bidding, the torturers brought forth the eldest of them, and tearing through his tunic, bound his hands and arms on each side with thongs. [12] And when they had laboured hard without effect in scourging him, they hurled him upon the wheel. [13] And the noble youth, extended upon this, became dislocated. [14] And with every member disjointed, he exclaimed in expostulation,

[15] O most accursed tyrant, and enemy of heavenly justice, and cruel-hearted, I am no murderer, nor sacrilegious man, whom thou thus ill-usest; but a defender of the Divine law. [16] And when the spearmen said, Consent to eat, that you may be releasted from your tortures, — [17] he answered, Not so powerful, O accursed ministers, is your wheel, as to stifle my reasoning; cut my limbs, and burn my flesh, and twist my joints. [18] For through all my torments I will convince you that the children of the Hebrews are alone unconquered in behalf of virtue.

[19] While he was saying this, they heaped up fuel, and setting fire to it, strained him upon the wheel still more. [20] And the wheel was defiled all over with blood, and the hot ashes were quenched by the droppings of gore, and pieces of flesh were scattered about the axles of the machine.

[21] And although the framework of his bones was now destroyed the high-minded and Abrahamic youth did not groan. [22] But, as though transformed by fire into immortality, he nobly endured the rackings, saying [23] Imitate me, O brethren, nor ever desert your station, nor abjure my brotherhood in courage: fight the holy and honourable fight of religion; [24] by which means our just and paternal Providence, becoming merciful to the nation, will punish the pestilent tyrant. [25] And saying this, the revered youth abruptly closed his life.

[26] And when all admired his courageous soul, the spearmen brought forward him who was second in point of age, and having put on iron hands, bound him with pointed hooks to the catapelt. [27] And when, on enquiring whether he would eat before he was tortured, they heard his noble sentiment, [28] after they with the iron hands had violently dragged all the flesh from the neck to the chin, the panther-like beasts tore off the very skin of his head: but he, bearing with firmness this misery, said, [29] How sweet is every form of death for the religion of our fathers! and he said to the tyrant,

[30] Thinkest thou not, most cruel of all tyrants, that thou art now tortured more than I, finding thine overweening conception of tyranny conquered by our patience in behalf of our religion? [31] For I lighten my suffering by the pleasures which are connected with virtue. [32] But thou art tortured with threatenings for impiety; and thou shalt not escape, most corrupt tyrant, the vengeance of Divine wrath.

[1] Now this one, having endured this praiseworthy death, the third was brought along, and exhorted by many to taste and save his life. [2] But he cried out and said, Know ye not, that the father of those who are dead, begat me also; and that the same mother bare me; and that I was brought up in the same tenets? [3] I abjure not the noble relationship of my brethren. [4] Now then, whatever instrument of vengeance ye have, apply it to my body, for ye are not able to touch, even if ye wish it, my soul.

[5] But they, highly incensed at his boldness of speech, dislocated his hands and feet with racking engines, and wrenching them from their sockets, dismembered him. [6] And they dragged round his fingers, and his arms, and his legs, and his ankles. [7] And not being able by any means to strangle him, they tore off his skin, together with the extreme tips of his fingers, flayed him, and then haled him to the wheel; [8] around which his vertebral joints were loosened, and he saw his own flesh torn to shreds, and streams of blood flowing from his entrails. [9] And when about to die, he said, [10] We, O accursed tyrant, suffer this for the sake of Divine education and virtue. [11] But thou, for thine impiety and blood-shedding, shalt endure indissoluble torments.

[12] And thus having died worthily of his brethren, they dragged forward the fourth, saying, [13] Do not thou share the madness of thy brethren: but give regard to the king, and save thyself. [14] But he said to them, You have not a fire so scorching as to make me play the coward. [15] By the blessed death of my brethren, and the eternal punishment of the tyrant, and the glorious life of the pious, I will not repudiate the noble brotherhood. [16] Invent, O tyrant, tortures; that you may learn, even through them, that I am the brother of those tormented before.

[17] When he had said this, the blood-thirsty, and murderous, and unhallowed Antiochus ordered his tongue to be cut out. [18] But he said, Even if you take away the organ of speech, yet God hears the silent. [19] Behold, my tongue is extended, cut it off; for not for that halt thou extirpate our reasoning. [20] Gladly do we lose our limbs in behalf of God. [21] But God shall speedily find you, since you cut off the tongue, the instrument of divine melody.

[1] And when he had died, disfigured in his torments, the fifth leaped forward, and said,

[2] I intend not, O tyrant, to get excused from the torment which is in behalf of virtue. [3] But I have come of mine own accord, that by the death of me, you may owe heavenly vengeance a punishment for more crimes. [4] O thou hater of virtue and of men, what have we done that thou thus revellest in our blood? [5] Does it seem evil to thee that we worship the Founder of all things, and live according to his surpassing law? [6] But this is worthy of honours, not torments; [7] hadst thou been capable of the higher feelings of men, and possessed the hope of salvation from God. [8] Behold now, being alien from God, thou makest war against those who are religious toward God.

[9] As he said this, the spearbearers bound him, and drew him to the catapelt: [10] to which binding him at his knees, and fastening them with iron fetters, they bent down his loins upon the wedge of the wheel; and his body was then dismembered, scorpion-fashion. [11] With his breath thus confined, and his body strangled, he said, [12] A great favour thou bestowest upon us, O tyrant, by enabling us to manifest our adherence to the law by means of nobler sufferings.

[13] He also being dead, the sixth, quite a youth, was brought out; and on the tyrant asking him whether he would eat and be delivered, he said,

[14] I am indeed younger than my brothers, but in understanding I am am as old; [15] for having been born and reared unto the same end, we are bound to die also in behalf of the same cause. [16] So that if ye think proper to torment us for not eating the unclean; — torment!

[17] As he said this, they brought him to the wheel. [18] Extended upon which, with limbs racked and dislocated, he was gradually roasted from beneath. [19] And having heated sharp spits, they approached them to his back; and having transfixed his sides, they burned away his entrails.

[20] And he, while tormented, said, O period good and holy, in which, for the sake of religion, we brethren have been called to the contest of pain, and have not been conquered. [21] For religious understanding, O tyrant, is unconquered. [22] Armed with upright virtue, I also shall depart with my brethren. [23] I, too, bearing with me a great avenger, O deviser of tortures, and enemy of the truly pious.

[24] We six youths have destroyed thy tyranny. [25] For is not your inability to overrule our reasoning, and to compel us to eat the unclean, thy destruction? [26] Your fire is cold to us, your catapelts are painless, and your violence harmless. [27] For the guards not of a tyrant but of a divine law are our defenders: through this we keep our reasoning unconquered.

[1] When he, too, had undergone blessed martyrdom, and died in the caldron into which he had been thrown, the seventh, the youngest of all, came forward: [2] whom the tyrant pitying, though he had been dreadfully reproached by his brethren, [3] seeing him already encompassed with chains, had him brought nearer, and endeavoured to counsel him, saying,

[4] Thou seest the end of the madness of thy brethren: for they have died to torture through disobedience; and you, if disobedient, having been miserably tormented, will yourself perish prematurely. [5] But if you obey, you shall be my friend, and have a charge over the affairs of the kingdom.

[6] And having thus exhorted him, he sent for the mother of the boy; that, by condoling with her for the loss of so many sons, he might incline her, through the hope of safety, to render the survivor obedient. [7] And he, after his mother had urged him on in the Hebrew tongue, (as we shall soon relate) saith, 8 Release me that I may speak to the king and all his friends. [9] And they, rejoicing exceedingly at the promise of the youth, quickly let him go.

[10] And he, running up to the pans, said, [11] Impious tyrant, and most blasphemous man, wert thou not ashamed, having received prosperity and a kingdom from God, to slay His servants, and to rack the doers of godliness? [12] Wherefore the divine vengeance is reserving thee for eternal fire and torments, which shall cling to thee for all time.

[13] Wert thou not ashamed, man as thou art, yet most savage, to cut out the tongues of men of like feeling and origin, and having thus abused to torture them? [14] But they, bravely dying, fulfilled their religion towards God. [15] But thou shalt groan according to thy deserts for having slain without cause the champions of virtue.

[16] Wherefore, he continued, I myself, being about to die, [17] will not forsake my brethren. [18] And I call upon the God of my fathers to be merciful to my race. [19] But thee, both living and dead, he will punish.

[20] Thus having prayed, he hurled himself into the pans; and so expired.

[1] If then, the seven brethren despised troubles even unto death, it is confessed on all sides that righteous reasoning is absolute master over the passions. [2] For just as if, had they as slaves to the passions, eaten of the unholy, we should have said that they had been conquered by the; [3] now it is not so: but by means of the reasoning which is praised by God, they mastered their passions.

[4] And it is impossible to overlook the leadership of reflection: for it gained the victory over both passions and troubles. [5] How, then, can we avoid according to these men mastery of passion through right reasoning, since they drew not back from the pains of fire? [6] For just as by means of towers projecting in front of harbours men break the threatening waves, and thus assure a still course to vessels entering port, [7] so that seven-towered right-reasoning of the young men, securing the harbour of religion, conquered the intermperance of passions.

[8] For having arranged a holy choir of piety, they encouraged one another, saying, [9] Brothers, may we die brotherly for the law. Let us imitate the three young men in Assyria who despised the equally afflicting furnace. [10] Let us not be cowards in the manifestation of piety. [11] And one said, Courage, brother; and another, Nobly endure. [12] And another, Remember of what stock ye are; and by the hand of our father Isaac endured to be slain for the sake of piety.

[13] And one and all, looking on each other serene and confident, said, Let us sacrifice with all our heart our souls to God who gave them, and employ our bodies for the keeping of the law. [14] Let us not fear him who thinketh he killeth; [15] for great is the trial of soul and danger of eternal torment laid up for those who transgress the commandment of God. [16] Let us arm ourselves, therefore, in the abnegation of the divine reasoning. [17] If we suffer thus, Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob will receive us, and all the fathers will commend us. [18] And as each one of the brethren was haled away, the rest exclaimed, Disgrace us not, O brother, nor falsify those who died before you.

[19] Now you are not ignorant of the charm of brotherhood, which the Divine and all wise Providence hath imparted through fathers to children, and hath engendered through the mother's womb. [20] In which these brothers having remained an equal time, and having been formed for the same period, and been increased by the same blood, and having been perfected through the same principle of life, [21] and having been brought forth at equal intervals, and having sucked milk from the same fountains, hence their brotherly souls are reared up lovingly together; [22] and increase the more powerfully by reason of this simultaneous rearing, and by daily intercourse, and by other education, and exercise in the law of God.

[23] Brotherly love being thus sympathetically constituted, the seven brethren had a more sympathetic mutual harmony. [24] For being educated in the same law, and practising the same virtues, and reared up in a just course of life, they increased this harmony with each other. [25] For a like ardour for what is right and honourable increased their fellow-feeling towards each other. [26] For it acting along with religion, made their brotherly feeling more desirable to them.

[27] And yet, although nature and intercourse and virtuous morals increased their brotherly love those who were left endured to behold their brethren, who were illused for their religion, tortured even unto death.

[1] And more that this, they even urged them on to this ill-treatment; so that they not only despised pains themselves, but they even got the better of their affections of brotherly love.

[2] O reasonings more royal than a king, and freer than freemen! [3] Sacred and harmonious concert of the seven brethren as concerning piety! [4] None of the seven youths turned cowardly, or shrank back from death. [5] But all of them, as though running the road to immortality, hastened on to death through tortures. [6] For just as hands and feet are moved sympathetically with the directions of the soul, so those holy youths agreed unto death for religion's sake, as through the immortal soul of religion.

[7] O holy seven of harmonious brethren! for as the seven days of creation, about religion, [8] so the youths, circling around the number seven, annulled the fear of torments. [9] We now shudder at the recital of the affliction of those young men; but they not only beheld, and not only heard the immediate execution of the threat, but undergoing it, persevered; and that through the pains of fire. [10] And what could be more painful? for the power of fire, being sharp and quick, speedily dissolved their bodies.

[11] And think it not wonderful that reasoning bore rule over those men in their torments, when even a woman's mind despised more manifold pains. [12] For the mother of those seven youths endured the rackings of each of her children.

[13] And consider how comprehensive is the love of offspring, which draws every one to sympathy of affection, [14] where irrational animals possess a similar sympathy and love for their offspring with men. [15] The tame birds frequenting the roofs of our houses, defend their fledglings. [16] Others build their nests, and hatch their young, in the tops of mountains and in the precipices of valleys, and the holes and tops of trees, and keep off the intruder. [17] And if not able to do this, they fly circling round them in agony of affection, calling out in their own note, and save their offspring in whatever manner they are able.

[18] But why should we point attention to the sympathy toward children shewn by irrational animals? [19] The very bees, at the season of honey-making, attack all who approach; and pierce with their sting, as with a sword, those who draw near their hive, and repel them even unto death.

[20] But sympathy with her children did not turn aside the mother of the young men, who had a spirit kindred with that of Abraham.

[1] O reasoning of the sons, lord over the passions, and religion more desirable to a mother than progeny! [2] The mother, when two things were set before here, religion and the safety of her seven sons for a time, on the conditional promise of a tyrant, [3] rather elected the religion which according to God preserves to eternal life.

[4] O in what way can I describe ethically the affections of parents toward their children, the resemblance of soul and of form engrafted into the small type of a child in a wonderful manner, especially through the greater sympathy of mothers with the feelings of those born of them! [5] for by how much mothers are by nature weak in disposition and prolific in offspring, by so much the fonder they are of children. [6] And of all mothers the mother of the seven was the fondest of children, who in seven childbirths had deeply engendered love toward them; [7] and through her many pains undergone in connection with each one, was compelled to feel sympathy with them; [8] yet, through fear of God, who neglected the temporary salvation of her children.

[9] Not but that, on account of the excellent disposition to the law, her maternal affection toward them was increased. [10] For they were both just and temperate, and manly, and high-minded, and fond of their brethren, and so fond of their mother that even unto death they obeyed her by observing the law.

[11] And yet, though there were so many circumstances connected with love of children to draw on a mother to sympathy, in the case of none of them were the various tortures able to pervert her principle. [12] But she inclined each one separately and all together to death for religion. [13] O holy nature and parental feeling, and reward of bringing up children, and unconquerable maternal affection!

[14] At the racking and roasting of each one of them, the observant mother was prevented by religion from changing. [15] She beheld her children's flesh dissolving around the fire; and their extremities quivering on the ground, and the flesh of their heads dropped forwards down to their beards, like masks. [16] O thou mother, who wast tried at this time with bitterer pangs than those of parturition! [17] O thou only woman who hast brought forth perfect holiness! [18] Thy first-born, expiring, turned thee not; nor the second, looking miserable in his torments; nor the third, breathing out his soul. [19] Nor when thou didst behold the eyes of each of them looking sternly upon their tortures, and their nostrils foreboding death, didst thou weep! [20] When thou didst see children's flesh heaped upon children's flesh that had been torn off, heads decapitated upon heads, dead falling upon the dead, and a choir of children turned through torture into a burying ground, thou lamentedst not.

[21] Not so do siren melodies, or songs of swans, attract the hearers to listening. O voices of children calling upon your mother in the midst of torments! [22] With what and what manner of torments was the mother herself tortured, as her sons were undergoing the wheel and the fires!

[23] But religious reasoning, having strengthened her courage in the midst of sufferings, enabled her to forego, for the time, parental love. [24] Although beholding the destruction of seven children, the noble mother, after one embrace, stripped off [her feelings] through faith in God. [25] For just as in a council-room, beholding in her own soul vehement counsellors, nature and parentage and love of her children, and the racking of her children, [26] she holding two votes, one for the death, the other for the preservation of her children, [27] did not lean to that which would have saved her children for the safety of a brief space. [28] But this daughter of Abraham remembered his holy fortitude.

[29] O holy mother of a nation avenger of the law, and defender of religion, and prime bearer in the battle of the affections! [30] O thou nobler in endurance than males, and more manly than men in patience! [31] For as the ark of Noah, bearing the world in the world-filling flood, bore up against the waves, [32] so thou, the guardian of the law, when surrounded on every side by the flood of passions, and straitened by violent storms which were the torments of thy children, didst bear up nobly against the storms against religion.

[1] If, then, even a woman, and that an aged one, and the mother of seven children, endured to see her children's torments even unto death, confessedly religious reasoning is master even of the passions.

[2] I have proved, then, that not only men have obtained the mastery of their passions, but also that a woman despised the greatest torments. [3] And not so fierce were the lions round Daniel, nor the furnace of Misael burning with most vehement fires as that natural love of children burned within her, when she beheld her seven sons tortured. [4] But with the reasoning of religion the mother quenched passions so great and powerful.

[5] For we must consider also this: that, had the woman been faint hearted, as being their other, she would have lamented over them; and perhaps might have spoken thus:

[6] Ah! wretched I, and many times miserable; who having born seven sons, have become the mother of none. [7] O seven useless childbirths, and seven profitless periods of labour, and fruitless givings of suck, and miserable nursings at the breast. [8] Vainly, for your sakes, O sons, have I endured many pangs, and the more difficult anxieties of rearing. [9] Alas, of my children, some of you unmarried, and some who have married to no profit, I shall not see your children, nor be felicitated as a grandmother. [10] Ah, that I who had many and fair children, should be a lone widow full of sorrows! [11] Nor, should I die, shall I have a son to bury me.

But with such a lament is this the holy and God-fearing mother bewailed none of them. [12] Nor did she divert any of them from death, nor grieve for them as for the dead. [13] But as one possessed with an adamant mind, and as one bringing forth again her full number of sons to immortality, she rather with supplication exhorted them to death in behalf of religion.

[14] O woman, soldier of God for religion, thou, aged and a female, hast conquered through endurance even a tyrant; and though but weak, hast been found more powerful in deeds and words. [15] For when thou wast seized along with thy children, thou stoodest looking upon Eleazar in torments, and saidst to thy sons in the Hebrew tongue,

[16] O sons, noble is the contest; to which you being called as a witness for the nation, strive zealously for the laws of your country. [17] For it were disgraceful that this old man should endure pains for the sake of righteousness, and that you who are younger should be afraid of the tortures.

[18] Remember that through God ye obtained existence, and have enjoyed it. [19] And on this second account ye ought to bear every affliction because of God. [20] For whom also our father Abraham was forward to sacrifice Isaac our progenitor, and shuddered not at the sight of his own paternal hand descending down with the sword upon him. [21] And the righteous Daniel was cast unto the lions; and Ananias, and Azarias, and Misael, were slung out into a furnace of fire; yet they endured through God. [22] You, then, having the same faith towards God, be not troubled. [23] For it is unreasonable that they who know religion should not stand up against troubles.

[24] With these arguments, the mother of seven, exhorting each of her sons, over-persuaded them from transgressing the commandment of God. [25] And they saw this, too, that they who die for God, live to God; as Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, and all the patriarchs.

Chapter 17

[1] And some of the spearbearers said, that when she herself was about to be seized for the purpose of being put to death, she threw herself upon the pile, rather than they should touch her person.

[2] O thou mother, who together with seven children didst destroy the violence of the tyrant, and render void his wicked intentions, and exhibit the nobleness of faith! [3] For thou, as an house bravely built upon the pillar of thy children, didst bear without swaying, the shock of tortures.

[4] Be of good cheer, therefore, O holy-minded mother! holding the firm [substance of the] hope of your steadfastness with God. [5] Not so gracious does the moon appear with the stars in heaven, as thou art established honourable before God, and fixed in the firmament with thy sons who thou didst illuminate with religion to the stars. [6] For thy bearing of children was after the fashion of a child of Abraham.

[7] And, were it lawful for us to paint as on a tablet the religion of thy story, the spectators would not shudder at beholding the mother of seven children enduring for the sake of religion various tortures even unto death. [8] And it had been a worth thing to have inscribed upon the tomb itself these words as a memorial to those of the nation, [9] Here an aged priest, and an aged woman, and seven sons, are buried through the violence of a tyrant, who wished to destroy the polity of the Hebrews. [10] These also avenged their nation, looking unto God, and enduring torments unto death.

[11] For it was truly a divine contest which was carried through by them. [12] For at that time virtue presided over the contest, approving the victory through endurance, namely, immortality, eternal life. [13] Eleazar was the first to contend: and the mother of the seven children entered the contest; and the brethren contended. [14] The tyrant was the opposite; and the world and living men were the spectators. [15] And reverence for God conquered, and crowned her own athletes.

[16] Who did not admire those champions of true legislation? who were not astonished? [17] The tyrant himself, and all their council, admired their endurance; [18] through which, also, they now stand beside the divine throne, and live a blessed life. [19] For Moses saith, And all the saints are under thine hands.

[20] These, therefore, having been sanctified through God, have been honoured not only with this honour, but that also by their means the enemy did not overcome our nation; [21] and that the tyrant was punished, and their country purified. [22] For they became the atnipoised to the sin of the nation; and the Divine Providence saved Israel, aforetime afflicted, by the blood of those pious ones, and the propitiatory death.

[23] For the tyrant Antiochus, looking to their manly virtue, and to their endurance in torture, proclaimed that endurance as an example to his soldiers.

[24] And they proved to be to him noble and brave for land battles and for sieges; and he conquered and stormed the towns of all his enemies.

Chapter 18

[1] O Israelitish children, descendants of the seed of Abraham, obey this law, and in every way be religious. [2] Knowing that religious reasoning is lord of the passions, and those not only inward but outward.

[3] When those persons giving up their bodies to pains for the sake of religion, were not only admired by men, but were deemed worthy of a divine portion. [4] And the nation through them obtained peace, and having renewed the observance of the law in their country, drove the enemy out of the land. [5] And the tyrant Antiochus was both punished upon earth, and is punished now he is dead; for when he was quite unable to compel the Israelites to adopt foreign customs, and to desert the manner of life of their fathers, [6] then, departing from Jerusalem, he made war against the Persians.

[7] And the righteous mother of the seven children spake also as follows to her offspring: I was a pure virgin, and went not beyond my father's house; but I took care of the built-up rib. [8] No destroyer of the desert, or ravisher of the plain, injured me; nor did the destructive, deceitful snake, make spoil of my chaste virginity; and I remained with my husband during the period of my prime.

[9] And these my children, having arrive at maturity, their father died: blessed was he! for having sought out a life of fertility in children, he was not grieved with a period of loss of children. [10] And he used to teach you, when yet with you, the law and the prophets.

[11] He used to read to you the slaying of Abel by Cain, and the offering up of Isaac, and the imprisonment of Joseph. [12] And he used to tell you of the zealous Phinehas; and informed you of Ananias and Azarias, and Misael in the fire. [13] And he used to glorify Daniel, who was in the den of lions, and pronounce him blessed.

[14] And he used to put you in mind of the scripture of Esaias, which saith, Even if thou pass through the fire, it shall not burn thee. [15] He chanted to you David, the hymn-writer, who saith, Many are the afflictions of the just. [16] He declared the proverbs of Solomon, who saith, He is a tree of life to all those who do His will. [17] He used to verify Ezekiel, who said, Shall these dry bones live? [18] For he did not forget the song which Moses taught, proclaiming, I will kill, and I will make to live. [19] This is our life, and the length of our days.

[20] O that bitter, and yet not bitter, day when the bitter tyrant of the Greeks, quenching fire with fire in his cruel caldrons, brought with boiling rage the seven sons of the daughter of Abraham to the catapelt, and to all his torments! [21] He pierced the balls of their eyes, and cut out their tongues, and put them to death with varied tortures. [22] Wherefore divine retribution pursued and will pursue the pestilent wretch.

[23] But the children of Abraham, with their victorious mother, are assembled together to the choir of their fathers; having received pure and immortal souls from God. [24] To whom be glory for ever and ever. Amen.

Job

Chapter 1

[1] There was a certain man in the land of Ausis, whose name was Job; and than man was true, blameless, righteous, and godly, abstaining from everything evil. [2] And he had seven sons and three daughters. [3] And his cattle consisted of seven thousand sheep, three thousand camels, five hundred yoke of oxen, five hundred she-asses in the pastures, and a very great household, and he had a great husbandry on the earth; and that man was most noble of the men of the east.

[4] And his sons visiting one another prepared a banquet every day, taking with them also their three sisters to eat and drink with them. [5] And when the days of the banquet were completed, Job sent and purified them, having risen up in the morning, and offered sacrifices for them, according to their number, and one calf for a sin-offering for their souls: for Job said, Lest peradventure my sons have thought evil in their minds against God. Thus, then Job did continually.

[6] And it came to pass on a day, that behold, the angels of God came to stand before the Lord, and the devil came with them. [7] And the Lord said to the devil, Whence art thou come? And the devil answered the Lord, and said, I am come from compassing the earth, and walking up and down in the world. [8] And the Lord said to him, Hast thou diligently considered my servant Job, that there is none like him on the earth, a man blameless, true, godly, abstaining from everything evil? [9] Then the devil answered, and said before the Lord, Does Job worship the Lord for nothing? [10] Hast thou not made a hedge about him, and about his household, and all his possessions round about? and hast thou not blessed the works of his hands, and multiplied his cattle upon the land? [11] But put forth thine hand, and touch all that he has: verily he will bless thee to thy face. [12] Then the Lord said to the devil, Behold, I give into thine hand all that he has, but touch not himself. So the devil went out from the presence of the Lord.

[13] And it came to pass on a certain day, that Job's sons and his daughters were drinking wine in the house of their elder brother. [14] And, behold, there came a messenger to Job, and said to him, The yokes of oxen were ploughing, and the she-asses were feeding near them; [15] and the spoilers came and took them for a prey, and slew the servants with the sword; and I having escaped alone am come to tell thee. [16] While he was yet speaking, there came another messenger, and said to Job, Fire has fallen from heaven, and burnt up the sheep, and devoured the shepherds like wise; and I having escaped alone am come to tell thee. [17] While he was yet speaking, there came another messenger, and said to Job, The horsemen formed three companies against us, and surrounded the camels, and took them for a prey, and slew the servants with the sword; and I only escaped, and am come to tell thee. [18] While he is yet speaking, another messenger comes, saying to Job, While thy sons and thy daughters were eating and drinking with their elder brother, ^[19] suddenly a great wind came on from the desert, and caught the four corners of the house, and the house fell upon thy children, and they are dead; and I have escaped alone, and am come to tell thee.

^[20] So Job arose, and rent his garments, and shaved the hair of his head, and fell on the earth, and worshipped, ^[21] and said, I myself came forth naked from my mother's womb, and naked shall I return thither; the Lord gave, the Lord has taken away: as it seemed good to the Lord, so has it come to pass; blessed be the name of the Lord. ^[22] In all these events that befell him Job sinned not at all before the Lord, and did not impute folly to God.

[1] And it came to pass on a certain day, that the angels of God came to stand before the Lord, and the devil came among them to stand before the Lord. [2] And the Lord, said to the devil, Whence comest thou? Then the devil said before the Lord, I am come from going through the world, and walking about the whole earth. [3] And the Lord said to the devil, Hast thou then observed my servant Job, that there is none of men upon the earth like him, a harmless, true, blameless, godly man, abstaining from all evil? and he yet cleaves to innocence, whereas thou has told me to destroy his substance without cause? [4] And the devil answered and said to the Lord, Skin for skin, all that a man has will he give as a ransom for his life. [5] Nay, but put forth thine hand, and touch his bones and his flesh: verily he will bless thee to thy face. [6] And the Lord said to the devil, Behold, I deliver him up to thee; only save his life. [7] So the devil went out from the Lord, and smote Job with sore boils from his feet to his head. [8] And he took a potsherd to scrape away the discharge, and sat upon a dung-heap outside the city. [9] And when much time had passed, his wife said to him, How long wilt thou hold out, saying, Behold, I wait yet a little while, expecting the hope of my deliverance? for, behold, thy memorial is abolished from the earth, even thy sons and daughters, the pangs and pains of my womb which I bore in vain with sorrows; and thou thyself sittest down to spend the nights in the open air among the corruption of worms, and I am a wanderer and a servant from place to place and house to house, waiting for the setting of the sun, that I may rest from my labours and my pangs which now beset me: but say some word against the Lord, and die. [10] But he looked on her, and said to her, Thou hast spoken like one of the foolish women. If we have received good things of the hand of the Lord, shall we not endure evil things?

In all these things that happened to him, Job sinned not at all with his lips before God.

[11] Now his three friends having heard of all the evil that was come upon him, came to him each from his own country: Eliphaz the king of the Thaumans, Baldad sovereign of the Sauchians, Sophar king of the Minaeans: and they came to him with one accord, to comfort and to visit him. [12] And when they saw him from a distance they did not know him; and they cried with a loud voice, and wept, and rent every one his garment, and sprinkled dust upon their heads, [13] and they sat down beside him seven days and seven nights, and no one of them spoke; for they saw that his affliction was dreadful and very great.

[1] After this Job opened his mouth, and cursed his day, [2] saying,

[3] Let the day perish in which I was born, and that night in which they said, Behold a man-child! [4] Let that night be darkness, and let not the Lord regard it from above, neither let light come upon it. [5] But let darkness and the shadow of death seize it; let blackness come upon it; [6] let that day and night be cursed, let darkness carry them away; let it not come into the days of the year, neither let it be numbered with the days of the months. [7] But let that night be pain, and let not mirth come upon it, nor joy. [8] But let him that curses that day curse it, even he that is ready to attack the great whale. [9] Let the stars of that night be darkened; let it remain dark, and not come into light; and let it not see the morning star arise: [10] because it shut not up the gates of my mother's womb, for so it would have removed sorrow from my eyes.

[11] For why died I not in the belly? and why did I not come forth from the womb and die immediately? [12] and why did the knees support me? and why did I suck the breasts? [13] Now I should have lain down and been quiet, I should have slept and been at rest, [14] with kings and councillors of the earth, who gloried in their swords; [15] or with rulers, whose gold was abundant, who filled their houses with silver: [16] or I should have been as an untimely birth proceeding from his mother's womb, or as infants who never saw light. [17] There the ungodly have burnt out the fury of rage; there the wearied in body rest. [18] And the men of old time have together ceased to hear the exactor's voice. [19] The small and great are there, and the servant that feared his lord.

[20] For why is light given to those who are in bitterness, and life to those souls which are in griefs? [21] who desire death, and obtain it not, digging for it as for treasures; [22] and would be very joyful if they should gain it? [23] Death is rest to such a man, for God has hedged him in. [24] For my groaning comes before my food, and I weep being beset with terror. [25] For the terror of which I meditated has come upon me, and that which I had feared has befallen me. [26] I was not at peace, nor quiet, nor had I rest; yet wrath came upon me.

[1] Then Eliphaz the Thaemanite answered and said,

[2] Hast thou been often spoken to in distress? but who shall endure the force of thy words? [3] For whereas thou hast instructed many, and hast strengthened the hands of the weak one, [4] and hast supported the failing with words, and hast imparted courage to feeble knees. [5] Yet now that pain has come upon thee, and touched thee, thou art troubled. [6] Is not thy fear founded in folly, thy hope also, and the mischief of thy way? [7] Remember then who has perished, being pure? or when were the true-hearted utterly destroyed? [8] Accordingly as I have seen men ploughing barren places, and they that sow them will reap sorrows for themselves. [9] They shall perish by the command of the Lord, and shall be utterly consumed by the breath of his wrath.

[10] The strength of the lion, and the voice of the lioness, and the exulting cry of serpents are quenched. [11] The old lion has perished for want of food, and the lions' whelps have forsaken one another.

[12] But if there had been any truth in thy words, none of these evils would have befallen thee. Shall not mine ear receive excellent revelations from him? [13] But as when terror falls upon men, with dread and a sound in the night, [14] horror and trembling seized me, and caused all my bones greatly to shake. [15] And a spirit came before my face; and my hair and flesh quivered. [16] I arose and perceived it not: I looked, and there, was no form before my eyes: but I only heard a breath and a voice, saying, [17] What, shall a mortal be pure before the Lord? or a man be blameless in regard to his works? [18] Whereas he trust not in his servants, and perceives perverseness in his angels.

[19] But as for them that dwell in houses of clay, of whom we also are formed of the same clay, he smites them like a moth. [20] And from the morning to evening they no longer exist: they have perished, because they cannot help themselves. [21] For he blows upon them, and they are withered: they have perished for lack of wisdom.

[1] But call, if any one will hearken to thee, or if thou shalt see any of the holy angels. [2] For wrath destroys the foolish one, and envy slays him that has gone astray. [3] And I have seen foolish ones taking root: but suddenly their habitation was devoured. [4] Let their children be far from safety, and let them be crushed at the doors of vile men, and let there be no deliverer. [5] For what they have collected, the just shall eat; but they shall not be delivered out of calamities: let their strength be utterly exhausted. [6] For labour cannot by any means come out of the earth, nor shall trouble spring out of the mountains: [7] yet man is born to labour, and even so the vulture's young seek the high places.

[8] Nevertheless I will beseech the Lord, and will call upon the Lord, the sovereign of all; [9] who does great things and untraceable, glorious things also, and marvellous, of which there is no number: [10] who gives rain upon the earth, sending water on the earth: [11] who exalts the lowly, and raises up them that are lost: [12] frustrating the counsels of the crafty, and their hands shall not perform the truth: [13] who takes the wise in their wisdom, and subverts the counsel of the crafty [14] In the day darkness shall come upon them, and let them grope in the noon-day even as in the night: [15] and let them perish in war, and let the weak escape from the hand of the mighty. [16] And let the weak have hope, but the mouth of the unjust be stopped.

[17] But blessed is the man whom the Lord has reproved; and reject not thou the chastening of the Almighty. [18] for he causes a man to be in pain, and restores him again: he smites, and his hands heal. [19] Six time he shall deliver thee out of distresses: and in the seventh harm shall not touch thee. [20] In famine he shall deliver thee from death: and in war he shall free thee from the power of the sword. [21] He shall hide thee from the scourge of the tongue: and thou shalt not be afraid of coming evils. [22] Thou shalt laugh at the unrighteous and the lawless: and thou shalt not be afraid of wild beasts. [23] For the wild beasts of the field shall be at peace with thee. [24] Then shalt thou know that thy house shall be at peace, and the provision for thy tabernacle shall not fail. [25] And thou shalt know that thy seed shall be abundant; and thy children shall be like the herbage of the field. [26] And thou shalt come to the grave like ripe corn reaped in its season, or as a heap of the corn-flour collected in proper time.

[27] Behold, we have thus sought out these matters; these are what we have heard: but do thou reflect with thyself, if thou hast done anything wrong.

[1] But Job answered and said,

[2] Oh that one would indeed weigh the wrath that is upon me, and take up my griefs in a balance together! [3] And verily they would be heavier than the sand by the seashore: but, as it seems, my words are vain. [4] For the arrows of the Lord are in my body, whose violence drinks up my blood: whenever I am going to speak, they pierce me. [5] What then? will the wild ass bray for nothing, if he is not seeking food? or again, will the ox low at the manger, when he has a fodder? [6] Shall bread be eaten without salt? or again, is there taste in empty words? [7] For my wrath cannot cease; for I perceive my food as the smell of a lion to be loathsome.

[8] For oh that he would grant my desire, and my petition might come, and the Lord would grant my hope! [9] Let the Lord begin and wound me, but let him not utterly destroy me. [10] Let the grave be my city, upon the walls of which I have leaped: I will not shrink from it; for I have not denied the holy words of my God. [11] For what is my strength, that I continue? what is my time, that my soul endures? [12] Is my strength the strength of stones? or is my flesh of brass? [13] Or have I not trusted in him? but help is far from me.

[14] Mercy has rejected me; and the visitation of the Lord has disregarded me. [15] My nearest relations have not regarded me; they have passed me by like a failing brook, or like a wave. [16] They who used to reverence me, now have come against me like snow or congealed ice. [17] When it has melted at the approach of heat, it is not known what it was. [18] Thus I also have been deserted of all; and I am ruined, and become an outcast. [19] Behold the ways of the Thaemanites, ye that mark the paths of the Sabaeans. [20] They too that trust in cities and riches shall come to shame. [21] But ye also have come to me without pity; so that beholding my wound ye are afraid. [22] What? have I made any demand of you? or do I ask for strength from you, [23] to deliver me from enemies, or to rescue me from the hand of the mighty ones?

[24] Teach ye me, and I will be silent: if in anything I have erred, tell me. [25] But as it seems, the words of a true man are vain, because I do not ask strength of you. [26] Neither will your reproof cause me to cease my words, for neither will I endure the sound of your speech. [27] Even because ye attack the fatherless, and insult your friend. [28] But now, having looked upon your countenances, I will not lie. [29] Sit down now, and let there not be unrighteousness; and unite again with the just. [30] For there is no injustice in my tongue; and does not my throat meditate understanding?

[1] Is not the life of man upon earth a state of trial? and his existence as that of a hireling by the day? [2] Or as a servant that fears his master, and one who has grasped a shadow? or as a hireling waiting for his pay? [3] So have I also endured months of vanity, and nights of pain have been appointed me. [4] Whenever I lie down, I say, When will it be day? and whenever I rise up, again I say when will it be evening? and I am full of pains from evening to morning. [5] And my body is covered with loathsome worms; and I waste away, scraping off clods of dust from my eruption. [6] And my life is lighter than a word, and has perished in vain hope. [7] Remember then that my life is breath, and mine eye shalt not yet again see good. [8] The eye of him that sees me shall not see me again: thine eyes are upon me, and I am no more. [9] I am as a cloud that is cleared away from the sky: for if a man go down to the grave, he shall not come up again: [10] and he shall surely not return to his own house, neither shall his place know him any more. [11] Then neither will I refrain my mouth: I will speak being in distress; being in anguish I will disclose the bitterness of my soul.

[12] Am I a sea, or a serpent, that thou hast set a watch over me? [13] I said that my bed should comfort me, and I would privately counsel with myself on my couch. [14] Thou scarest me with dreams, and dost terrify me with visions. [15] Thou wilt separate life from my spirit; and yet keep my bones from death. [16] For I shall not live for ever, that I should patiently endure: depart from me, for my life is vain. [17] For what is man, that thou hast magnified him? or that thou givest heed to him? [18] Wilt thou visit him till the morning, and judge him till the time of rest? [19] How long dost thou not let me alone, nor let me go, until I shall swallow down my spittle? [20] If I have sinned, what shall I be able to do, O thou that understandest the mind of men? why hast thou made me as thine accuser, and why am I a burden to thee? [21] Why hast thou not forgotten my iniquity, and purged my sin? but now I shall depart to the earth; and in the morning I am no more.

[1] Then Baldad the Sauchite answered, and said,

[2] How long wilt thou speak these things, how long shall the breath of thy mouth be abundant in words? [3] Will the Lord be unjust when he judges; or will he that has made all things pervert justice? [4] If thy sons have sinned before him, he has cast them away because of their transgression.

[5] But be thou early in prayer to the Lord Almighty. [6] If thou art pure and true, he will hearken to thy supplication, and will restore to thee the habitation of righteousness. [7] Though then thy beginning should be small, yet thy end should be unspeakably great.

[8] For ask of the former generation, and search diligently among the race of our fathers: [9] (for we are of yesterday, and know nothing; for our life upon the earth is a shadow:) [10] shall not these teach thee, and report to thee, and bring out words from their heart? [11] Does the rush flourish without water, or shall the flag grow up without moisture? [12] When it is yet on the root, and though it has not been cut down, does not any herb wither before it has received moisture? [13] Thus then shall be the end of all that forget the Lord: for the hope of the ungodly shall perish. [14] For his house shall be without inhabitants, and his tent shall prove a spider's web. [15] If he should prop up his house, it shall not stand: and when he has taken hold of it, it shall not remain. [16] For it is moist under the sun, and his branch shall come forth out of his dung-heap. [17] He lies down upon a gathering of stones, and shall live in the mist of flints. [18] If God should destroy him, his place shall deny him. Hast thou not seen such things, [19] that such is the overthrow of the ungodly? and out of the earth another shall grow.

[20] For the Lord will by no means reject the harmless man; but he will not receive any gift of the ungodly. [21] But he will fill with laughter the mouth of the sincere, and their lips with thanksgiving. [22] But their adversaries shall clothe themselves with shame; and the habitation of the ungodly shall perish.

[1] Then Job answered and said,

[2] I know of a truth that it is so: for how shall a mortal man be just before the Lord? [3] For if he would enter into judgment with him, God would not hearken to him, so that he should answer to one of his charges of a thousand. [4] For he is wise in mind, and mighty, and great: who has hardened himself against him and endured? [5] Who wears out the mountains, and men know it not: who overturns them in anger. [6] Who shakes the earth under heaven from its foundations, and its pillars totter. [7] Who commands the sun, and it rises not; and he seals up the stars. [8] Who alone has stretched out the heavens, and walks on the sea as on firm ground. [9] Who makes Pleias, and Hesperus, and Arcturus, and the chambers of the south. [10] Who does great and unsearchable things; glorious also and excellent things, innumerable.

[11] If ever he should go beyond me, I shall not see him: if he should pass by me, neither thus have I known it. [12] If he would take away, who shall turn him back? or who shall say to him, What hast thou done? [13] For if he has turned away his anger, the whales under heaven have stooped under him. [14] Oh then that he would hearken to me, or judge my cause. [15] For though I be righteous, he will not hearken to me: I will intreat his judgment. [16] And if I should call and he should not hearken, I cannot believe that he has listened to my voice.

[17] Let him not crush me with a dark storm: but he has made by bruises many without cause. [18] For he suffers me not to take breath, but he has filled me with bitterness. [19] For indeed he is strong in power: who then shall resist his judgment? [20] For though I should seem righteous, my mouth will be profane: and though I should seem blameless, I shall be proved perverse. [21] For even if I have sinned, I know it not in my soul: but my life is taken away.

[22] Wherefore I said, Wrath slays the great and mighty man. [23] For the worthless die, but the righteous are laughed to scorn. [24] For they are delivered into the hands of the unrighteous man: he covers the faces of the judges of the earth: but if it be not he, who is it? [25] But my life is swifter than a post: my days have fled away, and they knew it not. [26] Or again, is there a trace of their path left by ships? or is there one of the flying eagle as it seeks its prey? [27] And if I should say, I will forget to speak, I will bow down my face and groan; [28] I quake in all my limbs, for I know that thou wilt not leave me alone as innocent.

[29] But since I am ungodly, why have I not died? [30] For if I should wash myself with snow, and purge myself with pure hands, [31] thou hadst thoroughly plunged me in filth, and my garment had abhorred me. [32] For thou art not man like me, with whom I could contend, that we might come together to judgment. [33] Would that he our mediator were present, and a reprover, and one who should hear the cause between both. [34] Let him remove his rod from me, and let not his fear terrify me: [35] so shall I not be afraid, but I will speak: for I am not thus conscious of guilt.

[1] Weary in my soul, I will pour my words with groans upon him: I will speak being straitened in the bitterness of my soul. [2] And I will say to the Lord, Do not teach me to be impious; and wherefore hast thou thus judged me? [3] Is it good before thee if I be unrighteous? for thou hast disowned the work of thy hands, and attended to the counsel of the ungodly. [4] Or dost thou see as a mortal sees? or wilt thou look as a man sees? [5] Or is thy life human, or thy years the years of a man, [6] that thou hast enquired into mine iniquity, and searched out my sins? [7] For thou knowest that I have not committed iniquity: but who is he that can deliver out of thy hands?

[8] Thy hands have formed me and made me; afterwards thou didst change thy mind, and smite me. [9] Remember that thou hast made me as clay, and thou dost turn me again to earth. [10] Hast thou not poured me out like milk, and curdled me like cheese? [11] And thou didst clothe me with skin and flesh, and frame me with bones and sinews. [12] And thou didst bestow upon me life and mercy, and thy oversight has preserved my spirit. [13] Having these things in thyself, I know that thou canst do all things; for nothing is impossible with thee.

[14] And if I should sin, thou watchest me; and thou hast not cleared me from iniquity. [15] Or if I should be ungodly, woe is me: and if I should be righteous, I cannot lift myself up, for I am full of dishonour. [16] For I am hunted like a lion for slaughter; for again thou hast changed and art terribly destroying me; [17] renewing against me my torture: and thou hast dealt with me in great anger, and thou hast brought trials upon me.

[18] Why then didst thou bring me out of the womb? and why did I not die, and no eye see me, [19] and I become as if I had not been? for why was I not carried from the womb to the grave? [20] Is not the time of my life short? suffer me to rest a little, [21] before I go whence I shall not return, to a land of darkness and gloominess; [22] to a land of perpetual darkness, where there is no light, neither can any one see the life of mortals.

[1] Then Sophar the Minaean answered and said,

[2] He that speaks much, should also hear on the other side: or does the fluent speaker think himself to be righteous? blessed is the short lived offspring of woman. [3] Be not a speaker of many words; for is there none to answer thee? [4] For say not, I am pure in my works, and blameless before him.

[5] But oh that the Lord would speak to thee, and open his lips to thee! [6] Then shall he declare to thee the power of wisdom; for it shall be double of that which is with thee: and then shalt thou know, that a just recompence of thy sins has come to thee from the Lord.

[7] Wilt thou find out the traces of the Lord? or hast thou come to the end of that which the Almighty has made? [8] Heaven is high; and what wilt thou do? and there are deeper things than those in hell; what dost thou know? [9] Or longer than the measure of the earth, or the breadth of the sea.

[10] And if he should overthrow all things, who will say to him, What hast thou done? [11] For he knows the works of transgressors; and when he sees wickedness, he will not overlook it.

[12] But man vainly buoys himself up with words; and a mortal born of woman is like an ass in the desert.

[13] For if thou hast made thine heart pure, and liftest up thine hands towards him; [14] if there is any iniquity in thy hands, put it far from thee, and let not unrighteousness lodge in thy habitation. [15] For thus shall thy countenance shine again, as pure water; and thou shalt divest thyself of uncleanness, and shalt not fear. [16] And thou shalt forget trouble, as a wave that has passed by; and thou shalt not be scared. [17] And thy prayer shall be as the morning star, and life shall arise to thee as from the noonday. [18] And thou shalt be confident, because thou hast hope; and peace shall dawn to thee from out of anxiety and care. [19] For thou shalt be at ease, and there shall be no one to fight against thee; and many shall charge, and make supplication to thee. [20] But safety shall fail them; for their hope is destruction, and the eyes of the ungodly shall waste away.

[1] And Job answered and said,

[2] So then ye alone are men, and wisdom shall die with you? [3] But I also have a heart as well as you. [4] For a righteous and blameless man has become a subject for mockery. [5] For it had been ordained that he should fall under others at the appointed time, and that his houses should be spoiled by transgressors: let not however any one trust that, being evil, he shall be held guiltless, [6] even as many as provoke the Lord, as if there were indeed to be no inquisition made of them.

[7] But ask now the beasts, if they may speak to thee; and the birds of the air, if they may declare to thee. [8] Tell the earth, if it may speak to thee: and the fishes of the sea shall explain to thee. [9] Who then has not known in all these things, that the hand of the Lord has made them? [10] Whereas the life of all living things is in his hand, and the breath of every man.

[11] For the ear tries words, and the palate tastes meats. [12] In length of time is wisdom, and in long life knowledge. [13] With him are wisdom and power, with him counsel and understanding. [14] If he should cast down, who will build up? if he should shut up against man, who shall open? [15] If he should withhold the water, he will dry the earth: and if he should let it loose, he overthrows and destroys it. [16] With him are strength and power: he has knowledge and understanding. [17] He leads counsellors away captive, and maddens the judges of the earth. [18] He seats kings upon thrones, and girds their loins with a girdle. [19] He sends away priests into captivity, and overthrows the mighty ones of the earth. [20] He changes the lips of the trusty, and he knows the understanding of the elders. [21] He pours dishonour upon princes, and heals the lowly. [22] Revealing deep things out of darkness: and he has brought into light the shadow of death. [23] Causing the nations to wander, and destroying them: overthrowing the nations, and leading them away. [24] Perplexing the minds of the princes of the earth: and he causes them to wander in a way, they have not known, saying, [25] Let them grope in darkness, and let there be no light, and let them wander as a drunken man.

[1] Behold, mine eye has seen these things, and mine ear has heard them. [2] And I know all that ye too know; and I have not less understanding than you.

[3] Nevertheless I will speak to the Lord, and I will reason before him, if he will. [4] But ye are all bad physicians, and healers of diseases. [5] But would that ye were silent, and it would be wisdom to you in the end.

[6] But hear ye the reasoning of my mouth, and attend to the judgment of my lips. [7] Do ye not speak before the Lord, and utter deceit before him? [8] Or will ye draw back? nay do, ye yourselves be judges. [9] For it were well if he would thoroughly search you: for though doing all things in your power ye should attach yourselves to him, [10] he will not reprove you at all the less: but if moreover ye should secretly respect persons, [11] shall not his whirlpool sweep you round, and terror from him fall upon you? [12] And your glorying shall prove in the end to you like ashes, and your body like a body of clay.

[13] Be silent, that I may speak, and cease from mine anger, [14] while I may take my flesh in my teeth, and put my life in my hand. [15] Though the Mighty One should lay hand upon me, forasmuch as he has begun, verily I will speak, and plead before him. [16] And this shall turn to me for salvation; for fraud shall have no entrance before him. [17] Hear, hear ye my words, for I will declare in your hearing. [18] Behold, I am near my judgment: I know that I shall appear evidently just. [19] For who is he that shall plead with me, that I should now be silent, and expire?

[20] But grant me two things: then I will not hide myself from thy face. [21] Withhold thine hand from me: and let not thy fear terrify me. [22] Then shalt thou call, and I will hearken to thee: or thou shalt speak, and I will give thee an answer. [23] How many are my sins and my transgressions? teach me what they are.

[24] Wherefore hidest thou thyself from me, and deemest me thine enemy? [25] Wilt thou be startled at me, as at a leaf shaken by the wind? or wilt thou set thyself against me as against grass borne upon the breeze? [26] for thou hast written evil things against me, and thou hast compassed me with the sins of my youth. [27] And thou hast placed my foot in the stocks; and thou hast watched all my works, and hast penetrated my heels. [28] I am as that which waxes old like a bottle, or like a moth-eaten garment.

[1] For a mortal born of a woman is short lived, and full of wrath. [2] Or he falls like a flower that has bloomed; and he departs like a shadow, and cannot continue. [3] Hast thou not taken account even of him, and caused him to enter into judgment before thee? [4] For who shall be pure from uncleanness? not even one; [5] if even his life should be but one day upon the earth: and his months are numbered by him: thou hast appointed him for a time, and he shall by no means exceed it.

[6] Depart from him, that he may be quiet, and take pleasure in his life, though as a hireling. [7] For there is hope for a tree, even if it should be cut down, that it shall blossom again, and its branch shall not fail. [8] For though its root should grow old in the earth, and its stem die in the rock; [9] it will blossom from the scent of water, and will produce a crop, as one newly planted. [10] But a man that has died is utterly gone; and when a mortal has fallen, he is no more. [11] For the sea wastes in length of time, and a river fails and is dried up. [12] And man that has lain down in death shall certainly not rise again till the heaven be dissolved, and they shall not awake from their sleep.

[13] For oh that thou hadst kept me in the grave, and hadst hidden me until thy wrath should cease, and thou shouldest set me a time in which thou wouldest remember me! [14] For if a man should die, shall he live again, having accomplished the days of his life? I will wait till I exist again? [15] Then shalt thou call, and I will hearken to thee: but do not thou reject the work of thine hands. [16] But thou hast numbered my devices: and not one of my sins shall escape thee? [17] An thou hast sealed up my transgressions in a bag, and marked if I have been guilty of any transgression unawares.

[18] And verily a mountain falling will utterly be destroyed, and a rock shall be worn out of its place. [19] The waters wear the stones, and waters falling headlong overflow a heap of the earth: and thou destroyest the hope of man. [20] Thou drivest him to an end, and he is gone: thou settest thy face against him, and sendest him away; [21] and though his children be multiplied, he knows it not; and if they be few, he is not aware. [22] But his flesh is in pain, and his soul mourns.

[1] Then Eliphaz the Thaemanite answered and said,

[2] Will a wise man give for answer a mere breath of wisdom? and does he fill up the pain of his belly, [3] reasoning with improper sayings, and with words wherein is no profit? [4] Hast not thou moreover cast off fear, and accomplished such words before the Lord? [5] Thou art guilty by the words of thy mouth, neither hast thou discerned the words of the mighty. [6] Let thine own mouth, and not me, reprove thee: and thy lips shall testify against thee.

[7] What! art thou the first man that was born? or wert thou established before the hills? [8] Or hast thou heard the ordinance of the Lord? or has God used thee as his counsellor? and has wisdom come only to thee? [9] For what knowest thou, that, we know not? or what understandest thou, which we do not also? [10] Truly among us are both the old and very aged man, more advanced in days than thy father. [11] Thou hast been scourged for but few of thy sins: thou hast spoken haughtily and extravagantly.

[12] What has thine heart dared? or what have thine eyes aimed at, [13] that thou hast vented thy rage before the Lord, and delivered such words from thy mouth? [14] For who, being a mortal, is such that he shall be blameless? or, who that is born of a woman, that he should be just? [15] Forasmuch as he trusts not his saints; and the heaven is not pure before him. [16] Alas then, abominable and unclean is man, drinking unrighteousness as a draught.

[17] But I will tell thee, hearken to me; I will tell thee now what I have seen; [18] things wise men say, and their fathers have not hidden. [19] To them alone the earth was given, and no stranger came upon them. [20] All the life of the ungodly is spent in care, and the years granted to the oppressor are numbered. [21] And his terror is in his ears: just when he seems to be at peace, his overthrow will come. [22] Let him not trust that he shall return from darkness, for he has been already made over to the power of the sword. [23] And he has been appointed to be food for vultures; and he knows within himself that he is doomed to be a carcass: and a dark day shall carry him away as with a whirlwind. [24] Distress also and anguish shall come upon him: he shall fall as a captain in the first rank. [25] For he has lifted his hands against the Lord, and he has hardened his neck against the Almighty Lord. [26] And he has run against him with insolence, on the thickness of the back of his shield. [27] For he has covered his face with his fat, and made layers of fat upon his thighs. [28] And let him lodge in desolate cities, and enter into houses without inhabitant: and what they have prepared, others shall carry away.

[29] Neither shall he at all grow rich, nor shall his substance remain: he shall not cast a shadow upon the earth. [30] Neither shall he in any wise escape the darkness: let the wind blast his blossom, and let his flower fall off. [31] Let him not think that he shall endure; for his end shall be vanity. [32] His harvest shall perish before the time, and his branch shall not flourish. [33] And let him be gathered as the unripe grape before the time, and let him fall as the blossom of the olive. [34] For death is the witness of an ungodly man, and fire shall burn the houses of them that receive gifts. [35] And he shall conceive sorrows, and his end shall be vanity, and his belly shall bear deceit.

[1] But Job answered and said,

[2] I have heard many such things: poor comforters are ye all. [3] What! is there any reason in vain words? or what will hinder thee from answering? [4] I also will speak as ye do: if indeed your soul were in my soul's stead, [5] then would I insult you with words, and I would shake my head at you. [6] And would there were strength in my mouth, and I would not spare the movement of my lips. [7] For if I should speak, I shall not feel the pain of my wound: and if I should be silent, how shall I be wounded the less?

[8] But now he has made me weary, and a worn-out fool; and thou hast laid hold of me. [9] My falsehood has become a testimony, and has risen up against me: it has confronted me to my face.

[10] In his anger he has cast me down; he has gnashed his teeth upon me: the weapons of his robbers have fallen upon me. [11] He has attacked me with the keen glances of his eyes; with his sharp spear he has smitten me down upon my knees; and they have run upon me with one accord.

[12] For the Lord has delivered me into the hands of unrighteous men, and thrown me upon the ungodly. [13] When I was at peace he distracted me: he took me by the hair of the head, and plucked it out: he set me up as a mark. [14] They surrounded me with spears, aiming at my reins: without sparing me they poured out my gall upon the ground. [15] They overthrew me with fall upon fall: they ran upon me in their might. [16] They sewed sackcloth upon my skin, and my strength has been spent on the ground. [17] My belly has been parched with wailing, and darkness is on my eyelids. [18] Yet there was no injustice in my hands, and my prayer is pure.

[19] Earth, cover not over the blood of my flesh, and let my cry have no place. [20] And now, behold, my witness is in heaven, and my advocate is on high. [21] Let my supplication come to the Lord, and let mine eye weep before him. [22] Oh that a man might plead before the Lord, even as the son of man with his neighbor! [23] But my years are numbered and their end come, and I shall go by the way by which I shall not return.

[1] I perish, carried away by the wind, and I seek for burial, and obtain it not. [2] Weary I intreat; and what have I done? and strangers have stolen my goods. [3] Who is this? let him join hands with me. [4] For thou hast hid their heart from wisdom; therefore thou shalt not exalt them. [5] He shall promise mischief to his companions: but their eyes have failed for their children.

[6] But thou has made me a byword amount the nations, and I am become a scorn to them. [7] For my eyes are dimmed through pain; I have been grievously beset by all. [8] Wonder has seized true men upon this; and let the just rise up against the transgressor. [9] But let the faithful hold on his own way, and let him that is pure of hands take courage. [10] Howbeit, do ye all strengthen yourselves and come now, for I do not find truth in you.

[11] My days have passed in groaning, and my heart-strings are broken. [12] I have turned the night into day: the light is short because of darkness. [13] For if I remain, Hades is my habitation: and my bed has been made in darkness. [14] I have called upon death to be my father, and corruption to be my mother and sister. [15] Where then is yet my hope? or where shall I see my good? [16] Will they go down with me to Hades, or shall we go down together to the tomb?

[1] Then Baldad the Sauchite answered and said,

[2] How long wilt thou continue? forbear, that we also may speak. [3] For wherefore have we been silent before thee like brutes? [4] Anger has possessed thee: for what if thou shouldest die; would the earth under heaven be desolate? or shall the mountains be overthrown from their foundations?

[5] But the light of the ungodly shall be quenched, and their flame shall not go up. [6] His light shall be darkness in his habitation, and his lamp shall be put out with him. [7] Let the meanest of men spoil his goods, and let his counsel deceive him. [8] His foot also has been caught in a snare, and let it be entangled in a net. [9] And let snares come upon him: he shall strengthen those that thirst for his destruction. [10] His snare is hid in the earth, and that which shall take him is by the path. [11] Let pains destroy him round about, and let many enemies come about him, [12] vex him with distressing hunger: and a signal destruction has been prepared for him. [13] Let the soles of his feet be devoured: and death shall consume his beauty. [14] And let health be utterly banished from his tabernacle, and let distress seize upon him with a charge from the king. [15] It shall dwell in his tabernacle in his night: his excellency shall be sown with brimstone. [16] His roots shall be dried up from beneath, and his crop shall fall away from above. [17] Let his memorial perish out of the earth, and his name shall be publicly cast out. [18] Let one drive him from light into darkness. [19] He shall not be known among his people, nor his house preserved on the earth. [20] But strangers shall dwell in his possessions: the last groaned for him, and wonder seized the first.

[21] These are the houses of the unrighteous, and this is the place of them that know not the Lord.

[1] Then Job answered and said,

[2] How long will ye vex my soul, and destroy me with words? only know that the Lord has dealt with me thus. [3] Ye speak against me; ye do not feel for me, but bear hard upon me. [4] Yea verily, I have erred in truth, (but the error abides with myself) in having spoken words which it was not right to speak; and my words err, and are unreasonable. [5] But alas! for ye magnify yourselves against me, and insult me with reproach. [6] Know then that it is the Lord that has troubled me, and has raised his bulwark against me. [7] Behold, I laugh at reproach; I will not speak: or I will cry out, but there is nowhere judgment. [8] I am fenced round about, and can by no means escape: he has set darkness before my face. [9] And he has stripped me of my glory, and has taken the crown from my head. [10] He has torn me around about, and I am gone: and he has cut off my hope like a tree. [11] And he has dreadfully handled me in anger, and has counted me for an enemy. [12] His troops also came upon me with one accord, liars in wait compassed my ways.

[13] My brethren have stood aloof from me; they have recognized strangers rather than me: and my friends have become pitiless. [14] My nearest of kin have not acknowledged me, and they that knew my name, have forgotten me. [15] As for my household, and my maid-servants, I was a stranger before them. [16] I called my servant, and he hearkened not; and my mouth intreated him. [17] And I besought my wife, and earnestly intreated the sons of my concubines. [18] But they rejected me for ever; whenever I rise up, they speak against me. [19] They that saw me abhorred me: the very persons whom I had loved, rose up against me. [20] My flesh is corrupt under my skin, and my bones are held in my teeth. [21] Pity me, pity me, O friends; for it is the hand of the Lord that has touched me. [22] Wherefore do ye persecute me as also the Lord does, and are not satisfied with my flesh?

[23] For oh that my words were written, and that they were recorded in a book forever, [24] with an iron pen and lead, or graven in the rocks! [25] For I know that he is eternal who is about to deliver me, [26] and to raise up upon the earth my skin that endures these sufferings: for these things have been accomplished to me of the Lord; [27] which I am conscious of in myself, which mine eye has seen, and not another, but all have been fulfilled to me in my bosom.

[28] But if ye shall also say, What shall we say before him, and so find the root of the matter in him? [29] Do ye also beware of deceit: for wrath will come upon transgressors; and then shall they know where their substance is.

Chapter 20

[1] Then Sophar the Minaean answered and said,

[2] I did not suppose that thou wouldest answer thus: neither do ye understand more than I. [3] I will hear my shameful reproach; and the spirit of my understanding answers me.

[4] Hast thou not known these things of old, from the time that man was set upon the earth? [5] But the mirth of the ungodly is a signal downfall, and the joy of transgressors is destruction: [6] although his gifts should go up to heaven, and his sacrifice reach the clouds. [7] For when he shall seem to be now established, then he shall utterly perish: and they that knew him shall say, Where is he? [8] Like a dream that has fled away, he shall not be found; and he has fled like a vision of the night. [9] The eye has looked upon him, but shall not see him again; and his place shall no longer perceive him. [10] Let his inferiors destroy his children, and let his hands kindle the fire of sorrow. [11] His bones have been filled with vigour of his youth, and it shall lie down with him in the dust.

[12] Though evil be sweet in his mouth, though he will hide it under his tongue; [13] though he will not spare it, and will not leave it, but will keep it in the midst of his throat: [14] yet he shall not at all be able to help himself; the gall of an asp is in his belly.

[15] His wealth unjustly collected shall be vomited up; a messenger of wrath shall drag him out of his house. [16] And let him suck the poison of serpents, and let the serpent's tongue slay him. [17] Let him not see the milk of the pastures, nor the supplies of honey and butter. [18] He has laboured unprofitably and in vain, for wealth of which he shall not taste: it is as a lean thing, unfit for food, which he cannot swallow. [19] For he has broken down the houses of many mighty men: and he has plundered an habitation, though he built it not. [20] There is no security to his possessions; he shall not be saved by his desire. [21] There is nothing remaining of his provisions; therefore his goods shall not flourish. [22] But when he shall seem to be just satisfied, he shall be straitened; and all distress shall come upon him.

[23] If by any means he would fill his belly, let God send upon him the fury of wrath; let him bring a torrent of pains upon him. [24] And he shall by no means escape from the power of the sword; let the brazen bow wound him. [25] And let the arrow pierce through his body; and let the stars be against his dwelling-place: let terrors come upon him. [26] And let all darkness wait for him: a fire that burns not out shall consume him; and let a stranger plague his house. [27] And let the heaven reveal his iniquities, and the earth rise up against him. [28] Let destruction bring his house to an end; let a day of wrath come upon him. [29] This is the portion of an ungodly man from the Lord, and the possession of his goods appointed him by the all-seeing God.

[1] But Job answered and said,

[2] Hear ye, hear ye my words, that I may not have this consolation from you. [3] Raise me, and I will speak; then ye shall not laugh me to scorn. [4] What! is my reproof of man? and why should I not be angry? [5] Look upon me, and wonder, laying your hand upon your cheek.

[6] For even when I remember, I am alarmed, and pains seize my flesh. [7] Wherefore do the ungodly live, and grow old even in wealth? [8] Their seed is according to their desire, and their children are in their sight. [9] Their houses are prosperous, neither have they any where cause for fear, neither is there a scourge from the Lord upon them. [10] Their cow does not cast her calf, and their beast with young is safe, and does not miscarry. [11] And they remain as an unfailing flock, and their children play before them, taking up the psaltery and harp; [12] and they rejoice at the voice of a song. [13] And they spend their days in wealth, and fall asleep in the rest of the grave. [14] Yet such a man says to the Lord, Depart from me; I desire not to know thy ways. [15] What is the Mighty One, that we should serve him? and what profit is there that we should approach him?

[16] For their good things were in their hands, but he regards not the works of the ungodly. [17] Nevertheless, the lamp of the ungodly also shall be put out, and destruction shall come upon them, and pangs of vengeance shall seize them. [18] And they shall be as chaff before the wind, or as dust which the storm has taken up. [19] Let his substance fail to supply his children: God shall recompense him, and he shall know it. [20] Let his eyes see his own destruction, and let him not be saved by the Lord. [21] For his desire is in his house with him, and the number of his months has been suddenly cut off.

[22] Is it not the Lord who teaches understanding and knowledge? and does not he judge murders? [23] One shall die in his perfect strength, and wholly at ease and prosperous; [24] and his inwards are full of fat, and his marrow is diffused throughout him. [25] And another dies in bitterness of soul, not eating any good thing. [26] But they lie down in the earth together, and corruption covers them.

[27] So I know you, that ye presumptuously attack me: [28] so that ye will say, Where is the house of the prince? and where is the covering of the tabernacles of the ungodly? [29] Ask those that go by the way, and do not disown their tokens. [30] For the wicked hastens to the day of destruction: they shall be led away for the day of his vengeance. [31] Who will tell him his way to his face, whereas he has done it? who shall recompense him? [32] And he has been led away to the tombs, and he has watched over the heaps. [33] The stones of the valley have been sweet to him, and every man shall depart after him, and there are innumerable ones before him. [34] How then do ye comfort me in vain? whereas I have no rest from your molestation.

[1] Then Eliphaz the Thaemanite answered and said,

[2] Is it not the Lord that teaches understanding and knowledge? [3] For what matters it to the Lord, if thou wert blameless in thy works? or is it profitable that thou shouldest perfect thy way? [4] Wilt thou maintain and plead thine own cause? and will he enter into judgment with thee?

[5] Is not thy wickedness abundant, and thy sins innumerable? [6] And thou hast taken security of thy brethren for nothing, and hast taken away the clothing of the naked. [7] Neither hast thou given water to the thirsty to drink, but hast taken away the morsel of the hungry. [8] And thou hast accepted the persons of some; and thou hast established those that were already settled on the earth. [9] But thou hast sent widows away empty, and has afflicted orphans. [10] Therefore snares have compassed thee, and disastrous war has troubled thee. [11] The light has proved darkness to thee, and water has covered thee on thy lying down.

[12] Does not he that dwells in the high places observe? and has he not brought down the proud? [13] And thou has said, What does the Mighty One know? does he judge in the dark? [14] A cloud is his hiding-place, and he shall not be seen; and he passes through the circle of heaven. [15] Wilt thou not mark the old way, which righteous men have trodden? [16] who were seized before their time: their foundations are as an overflowing stream. [17] Who say, What will the Lord do to us? or what will the Almighty bring upon us? [18] Yet he filled their houses with good things: but the counsel for the wicked is far from him. [19] The righteous have seen it, and laughed, and the blameless one has derided them. [20] Verily their substance has been utterly destroyed, and the fire shall devour what is left of their property.

[21] Be firm, I pray thee, if thou canst endure; then thy fruit shall prosper. [22] And receive a declaration from his mouth, and lay up his words in thine heart. [23] And if thou shalt turn and humble thyself before the Lord, thou hast thus removed unrighteousness far from thy habitation. [24] Thou shalt lay up for thyself treasure in a heap on the rock; and Sophir shall be as the rock of the torrent. [25] So the Almighty shall be thy helper from enemies, and he shall bring thee forth pure as silver that has been tried by fire. [26] Then shalt thou have boldness before the Lord, looking up cheerfully to heaven. [27] And he shall hear thee when thou prayest to him, and he shall grant thee power to pay thy vows. [28] And he shall establish to thee again a habitation of righteousness and there shall be light upon thy paths. [29] Because thou hast humbled thyself; and thou shalt say, Man has behaved proudly, but he shall save him that is of lowly eyes. [30] He shall deliver the innocent, and do thou save thyself by thy pure hands.

[1] Then Job answered and said,

[2] Yea, I know that pleading is out of my reach; and his hand has been made heavy upon my groaning. [3] Who would then know that I might find him, and come to an end of the matter? [4] And I would plead my own cause, and he would fill my mouth with arguments. [5] And I would know the remedies which he would speak to me, and I would perceive what he would tell me. [6] Though he should come on me in his great strength, then he would not threaten me; [7] for truth and reproof are from him; and he would bring forth my judgment to an end. [8] For if I shall go first, and exist no longer, still what do I know concerning the latter end?

[9] When he wrought on the left hand, then I observed it not: his right hand shall encompass me but I shall not see it. [10] For he knows already my way; and he has tried me as gold. [11] And I will go forth according to his commandments, for I have kept his ways; and I shall not turn aside from his commandments, [12] neither shall I transgress; but I have hid his words in my bosom.

[13] And if too he has thus judged, who is he that has contradicted, for he has both willed a thing and done it. [14] 15 Therefore am I troubled at him; and when I was reproved, I thought of him. Therefore let me take good heed before him: I will consider, and be afraid of him.

[16] But the Lord has softened my heart, and the Almighty has troubled me. [17] For I knew not that darkness would come upon me, and thick darkness has covered me before my face.

Chapter 24

[1] But why have the seasons been hidden from the Lord, [2] while the ungodly have passed over the bound, carrying off the flock with the shepherd? [3] They have led away, the ass of the fatherless, and taken the widow's ox for a pledge.

[4] They have turned aside the weak from the right way: and the meek of the earth have hidden themselves together. [5] And they have departed like asses in the field, having gone forth on my account according to their own order: his bread is sweet to his little ones.

[6] They have reaped a field that was not their own before the time: the poor have laboured in the vineyards of the ungodly without pay and without food. [7] They have caused many naked to sleep without clothes, and they have taken away the covering of their body. [8] They are wet with the drops of the mountains: they have embraced the rock, because they had no shelter.

[9] They have snatched the fatherless from the breast, and have afflicted the outcast. [10] And they have wrongfully caused others to sleep without clothing, and taken away the morsel of the hungry.

[11] They have unrighteously laid wait in narrow places, and have not known the righteous way. [12] Who have cast forth the poor from the city and their own houses, and the soul of the children has groaned aloud.

[13] Why then has he not visited these? forasmuch as they were upon the earth, and took no notice, and they knew not the way of righteousness, neither have they walked in their appointed paths? [14] But having known their works, he delivered them into darkness: and in the night one will be as a thief: [15] and the eye of the adulterer has watched for the darkness, saying, Eye shall not perceive me, and he puts a covering on his face. [16] In darkness he digs through houses: by day they conceal themselves securely: they know not the light. [17] For the morning is to them all as the shadow of death, for each will be conscious of the terror of the shadow of death. [18] He is swift on the face of the water: let his portion be cursed on the earth; and let their plants be laid bare. [19] Let them be withered upon the earth; for they have plundered the sheaves of the fatherless.

[20] Then is his sin brought to remembrance, and he vanishes like a vapour of dew: but let what he has done be recompensed to him, and let every unrighteous one be crushed like rotten wood.

[21] For he has not treated the barren woman well, and has had no pity on a feeble woman. [22] And in wrath he has overthrown the helpless: therefore when he has arisen, a man will not feel secure of his own life. [23] When he has fallen sick, let him not hope to recover: but let him perish by disease. [24] For his exaltation has hurt many; but he has withered as mallows in the heat, or as an ear of corn falling off of itself from the stalk. [25] But if not, who is he that says I speak falsely, and will make my words of no account?

Chapter 25

[1] Then Baldad the Sauchite answered and said,

[2] What beginning or fear is his — even he that makes all things in the highest? [3] For let none think that there is a respite for robbers: and upon whom will there not come a snare from him? [4] For how shall a mortal be just before the Lord? or who that is born of a woman shall purify himself? [5] If he gives an order to the moon, then it shines not; and the stars are not pure before him. [6] But alas! man is corruption, and the son of man a worm.

[1] But Job answered and said,

[2] To whom dost thou attach thyself, or whom art thou going to assist? is it not he that has much strength, and he who has a strong arm? [3] To whom hast thou given counsel? is it not to him who has all wisdom? whom wilt thou follow? is it not one who has the greatest power? [4] To whom hast thou uttered words? and whose breath is it that has come forth from thee?

[5] Shall giants be born from under the water and the inhabitants thereof? [6] Hell is naked before him, and destruction has no covering. [7] He stretches out the north wind upon nothing, and he upon nothing hangs the earth; [8] binding water in his clouds, and the cloud is not rent under it. [9] He keeps back the face of his throne, stretching out his cloud upon it. [10] He has encompassed the face of the water by an appointed ordinance, until the end of light and darkness. [11] The pillars of heaven are prostrate and astonished at his rebuke. [12] He has calmed the sea with his might, and by his wisdom the whale has been overthrown. [13] And the barriers of heaven fear him, and by a command he has slain the apostate dragon. [14] Behold, these are parts of his way; and we will hearken to him at the least intimation of his word: but the strength of his thunder who knows, when he shall employ it?

[1] And Job further continued and said in his parable,

[2] As God lives, who has thus judge me; and the Almighty, who has embittered my soul; [3] verily, while my breath is yet in me, and the breath of God which remains to me is in my nostrils, [4] my lips shall not speak evil words, neither shall my soul meditate unrighteous thoughts. [5] Far be it from me that I should justify you till I die; for I will not let go my innocence, [6] but keeping fast to my righteousness I will by no means let it go: for I am not conscious to myself of having done any thing amiss. [7] Nay rather, but let mine enemies be as the overthrow of the ungodly, and they that rise up against me, as the destruction of transgressors.

[8] For what is the hope of the ungodly, that he holds to it? will he indeed trust in the Lord and be saved? [9] Will God hear his prayer? or, when distress has come upon him, [10] has he any confidence before him? or will God hear him as he calls upon him?

[11] Yet now I will tell you what is in the hand of the Lord: I will not lie concerning the things which are with the Almighty. [12] Behold, ye all know that ye are adding vanity to vanity. [13] This is the portion of an ungodly man from the Lord, and the possession of oppressors shall come upon them from the Almighty. [14] And if their children be many, they shall be for slaughter: and if they grow up, they shall beg. [15] And they that survive of him shall utterly perish, and no one shall pity their widows. [16] Even if he should gather silver as earth, and prepare gold as clay; [17] All these things shall the righteous gain, and the truehearted shall possess his wealth. [18] And his house is gone like moths, and like a spider's web. [19] The rich man shall lie down, and shall not continue: he has opened his eyes, and he is not. [20] Pains have come upon him as water, and darkness has carried him away by night. [21] And a burning wind shall catch him, and he shall depart, and it shall utterly drive him out of his place. [22] And God shall cast trouble upon him, and not spare: he would fain flee out of his hand. [23] He shall cause men to clap their hands against them, and shall hiss him out of his place.

[1] For there is a place for the silver, whence it comes, and a place for the gold, whence it is refined. [2] For iron comes out of the earth, and brass is hewn out like stone.

[3] He has set a bound to darkness, and he searches out every limit: a stone is darkness, and the shadow of death. [4] There is a cutting off the torrent by reason of dust: so they that forget the right way are weakened; they are removed from among men. [5] As for the earth, out of it shall come bread: under it has been turned up as it were fire. [6] Her stones are the place of the sapphire: and her dust supplies man with gold. [7] There is a path, the fowl has not known it, neither has the eye of the vulture seen it: [8] neither have the sons of the proud trodden it, a lion has not passed upon it. [9] He has stretched forth his hand on the sharp rock, and turned up mountains by the roots: [10] and he has interrupted the whirlpools of rivers, and mine eye has seen every precious thing. [11] And he has laid bare the depths of rivers, and has brought his power to light.

[12] But whence has wisdom been discovered? and what is the place of knowledge? [13] A mortal has not known its way, neither indeed has it been discovered among men. [14] The depth said, It is not in me: and the sea said, It is not with me. [15] One shall not give fine gold instead of it, neither shall silver be weighed in exchange for it. [16] Neither shall it be compared with gold of Sophir, with the precious onyx and sapphire. [17] Gold and crystal shall not be equalled to it, neither shall vessels of gold be its exchange. [18] Coral and fine pearl shall not be mentioned: but do thou esteem wisdom above the most precious things. [19] The topaz of Ethiopia shall not be equalled to it; it shall not be compared with pure gold.

[20] Whence then is wisdom found? and of what kind is the place of understanding? [21] It has escaped the notice of every man, and has been hidden from the birds of the sky. [22] Destruction and Death said, We have heard the report of it.

[23] God has well ordered the way of it, and he knows the place of it. [24] For he surveys the whole earth under heaven, knowing the things in the earth: [25] all that he has made; the weight of the winds, the measures of the water. [26] When he made them, thus he saw and numbered them, and made a way for the pealing of the thunder. [27] Then he saw it, and declared it: he prepared it and traced it out. [28] And he said to man, Behold, godliness is wisdom: and to abstain from evil is understanding.

[1] And Job continued and said in his parable,

[2] Oh that I were as in months past, wherein God preserved me! [3] As when his lamp shone over my head; when by his light I walked through darkness. [4] As when I steadfastly pursued my ways, when God took care of my house. [5] When I was very fruitful, and my children were about me; [6] when my ways were moistened with butter, and the mountains flowed for me with milk.

[7] When I went forth early in the city, and the seat was placed for me in the streets. [8] The young men saw me, and hid themselves: and all the old men stood up. [9] And the great men ceased speaking, and laid their finger on their mouth. [10] And they that heard me blessed me, and their tongue clave to their throat. [11] For the ear heard, and blessed me; and the eye saw me, and turned aside. [12] For I saved the poor out of the hand of the oppressor, and helped the fatherless who had no helper. [13] Let the blessing of the perishing one come upon me; yea, the mouth of the widow has blessed me. [14] Also I put on righteousness, and clothed myself with judgment like a mantle. [15] I was the eye of the blind, and the foot of the lame. [16] I was the father of the helpless; and I searched out the cause which I knew not. [17] And I broke the jaw-teeth of the unrighteous; I plucked the spoil out of the midst of their teeth. [18] And I said, My age shall continue as the stem of a palm-tree; I shall live a long while. [19] My root was spread out by the water, and the dew would lodge on my crop. [20] My glory was fresh in me, and by bow prospered in his hand.

[21] Men heard me, and gave heed, and they were silent at my counsel. [22] At my word they spoke not again, and they were very glad whenever I spoke to them. [23] As the thirsty earth expecting the rain, so they waited for my speech. [24] Were I to laugh on them, they would not believe it; and the light of my face has not failed. [25] I chose out their way, and sat chief, and dwelt as a king in the midst of warriors, as one comforting mourners.

[1] But now the youngest have laughed me to scorn, now they reprove me in their turn, whose fathers I set at nought; whom I did not deem worthy to be with my shepherd dogs. [2] Yea, why had I the strength of their hands? for them the full term of life was lost. [3] One is childless in want and famine, such as they that fled but lately the distress and misery of drought. [4] Who compass the salt places on the sounding shore, who had salt herbs for their food, and were dishonorable and of no repute, in want of every good thing; who also ate roots of trees by reason of great hunger.

[5] Thieves have risen up against me, [6] whose houses were the caves of the rocks, who lived under the wild shrubs. [7] They will cry out among the rustling bushes. [8] They are sons of fools and vile men, whose name and glory are quenched from off the earth. [9] But now I am their music, and they have me for a by-word. [10] And they stood aloof and abhorred me, and spared not to spit in my face. [11] For he has opened his quiver and afflicted me: they also have cast off the restraint of my presence. [12] They have risen up against me on the right hand of their offspring; they have stretched out their foot, and directed against me the ways of their destruction. [13] My paths are ruined; for they have stripped off my raiment: he has shot at me with his weapons. [14] And he has pleaded against me as he will: I am overwhelmed with pains. [15] My pains return upon me; my hope is gone like the wind, and my safety as a cloud.

[16] Even now my life shall be poured forth upon me; and days of anguish seize me. [17] And by night my bones are confounded; and my sinews are relaxed. [18] With great force my disease has taken hold of my garment: it has compassed me as the collar of my coat. [19] And thou hast counted me as clay; my portion in dust and ashes.

[20] And I have cried to thee, but thou hearest me not: but they stood still, and observed me. [21] They attacked me also without mercy: thou hast scourged me with a strong hand. [22] And thou hast put me to grief, and hast cast me away from safety. [23] For I know that death will destroy me: for the earth is the house appointed for every mortal. [24] Oh then that I might lay hands upon myself, or at least ask another, and he should do this for me. [25] Yet I wept over every helpless man; I groaned when I saw a man in distress. [26] But I, when I waited for good things, behold, days of evils came the more upon me.

[27] My belly boiled, and would not cease: the days of poverty prevented me. [28] I went mourning without restraint: and I have stood and cried out in the assembly. [29] I am become a brother of monsters, and a companion of ostriches. [30] And my skin has been greatly blackened, and my bones are burned with heat. [31] My harp also has been turned into mourning, and my song into my weeping.

[1] I made a covenant with mine eyes, and I will not think upon a virgin. [2] Now what portion has God given from above? and is there an inheritance given of the Mighty One from the highest? [3] Alas! destruction to the unrighteous, and rejection to them that do iniquity. [4] Will he not see my way, and number all my steps? [5] But if I had gone with scorers, and if too my foot has hastened to deceit: [6] (for I am weighed in a just balance, and the Lord knows my innocence:) [7] if my foot has turned aside out of the way, or if mine heart has followed mine eye, and if too I have touched gifts with my hands; [8] then let me sow, and let others eat; and let me be uprooted on the earth. [9] If my heart has gone forth after another man's wife, and if I laid wait at her doors; [10] then let my wife also please another, and let my children be brought low. [11] For the rage of anger is not to be controlled, in the case of defiling another man's wife. [12] For it is a fire burning on every side, and whomsoever it attacks, it utterly destroys.

[13] And if too I despised the judgment of my servant or my handmaid, when they pleaded with me; [14] what then shall I do if the Lord should try me? and if also he should at all visit me, can I make an answer? [15] Were not they too formed as I also was formed in the womb? yea, we were formed in the same womb.

[16] But the helpless missed not whatever need they had, and I did not cause the eye of the widow to fail. [17] And if too I ate my morsel alone, and did not impart of it to the orphan; [18] (for I nourished them as a father from my youth and guided them from my mother's womb.) [19] And if too I overlooked the naked as he was perishing, and did not clothe him; [20] and if the poor did not bless me, and their shoulders were not warmed with the fleece of my lambs; [21] if I lifted my hand against an orphan, trusting that my strength was far superior to his: [22] let them my shoulder start from the blade-bone, and my arm be crushed off from the elbow. [23] For the fear of the Lord constrained me, and I cannot bear up by reason of his burden.

[24] If I made gold my treasure, and if too I trusted the precious stone; [25] and if too I rejoiced when my wealth was abundant, and if too I laid my hand on innumerable treasures: [26] (do we not see the shining sun eclipsed, and the moon waning? for they have not power to continue;) [27] and if my heart was secretly deceived, and if I have laid my hand upon my mouth and kissed it: [28] let this also then be reckoned to me as the greatest iniquity: for I should have lied against the Lord Most High. [29] And if too I was glad at the fall of mine enemies, and mine heart said, Aha! [30] let then mine ear hear my curse, and let me be a byword among my people in my affliction.

[31] And if too my handmaids have often said, Oh that we might be satisfied with his flesh; (whereas I was very kind: [32] for the stranger did not lodge without, and my door was opened to every one that came:) [33] or if too having sinned unintentionally, I hid my sin; [34] (for I did not stand in awe of a great multitude, so as not to declare boldly before them:) and if too I permitted a poor man to go out of my door with an empty bosom: [35] (Oh that I had a hearer,) and if I had not feared the hand of the Lord; and as to the written charge which I had against any one, [36] I would place it as a chaplet on my shoulders, and read it. [37] And if I did not read it and return it, having taken nothing from the debtor:

[38] If at any time the land groaned against me, and if its furrows mourned together; [39] and if I ate its strength alone without price, and if I too grieved the heart of the owner of the soil, by taking aught from him: [40] then let the nettle come up to me instead of wheat, and a bramble instead of barley. And Job ceased speaking.

[1] And his three friends also ceased any longer to answer Job: for Job was righteous before them.

[2] Then Elius the son of Barachiel, the Buzite, of the kindred of Ram, of the country of Ausis, was angered: and he was very angry with Job, because he justified himself before the Lord. [3] And he was also very angry with his three friends, because they were not able to return answers to Job, yet set him down for an ungodly man. [4] But Elius had forbore to give an answer to Job, because they were older than he. [5] And Elius saw that there was no answer in the mouth of the three men; and he was angered in his wrath. [6] And Elius the Buzite the son of Barachiel answered and said,

I am younger in age, and ye are elder, wherefore I kept silence, fearing to declare to you my own knowledge. [7] And I said, It is not time that speaks, though in many years men know wisdom: [8] but there is a spirit in mortals; and the inspiration of the Almighty is that which teaches. [9] The long-lived are not wise as such; neither do the aged know judgment. [10] Wherefore I said, Hear me, and I will tell you what I know.

[11] Harken to my words; for I will speak in your hearing, until ye shall have tried the matter with words: [12] and I shall understand as far as you; and, behold, there was no one of you that answered Job his words in argument, [13] lest ye should say, We have found that we have added wisdom to the Lord. [14] And ye have commissioned a man to speak such words.

[15] They were afraid, they answered no longer; they gave up their speaking. [16] I waited, (for I had not spoken,) because they stood still, they answered not. [17] And Elius continued, and said, I will again speak, [18] for I am full of words, for the spirit of my belly destroys me. [19] And my belly is as a skin of sweet wine, bound up and ready to burst; or as a brazier's labouring bellows. [20] I will speak, that I may open my lips and relieve myself. [21] For truly I will not be awed because of man, nor indeed will I be confounded before a mortal. [22] For I know not how to respect persons: and if otherwise, even the moths would eat me.

[1] Howbeit hear, Job, my words, and hearken to my speech. [2] For behold, I have opened my mouth, and my tongue has spoken. [3] My heart shall be found pure by my words; and the understanding of my lips shall meditate purity. [4] The Divine Spirit is that which formed me, and the breath of the Almighty that which teaches me. [5] If thou canst, give me an answer: wait therefore; stand against me, and I will stand against thee. [6] Thou art formed out of the clay as also I: we have been formed out of the same substance. [7] My fear shall not terrify thee, neither shall my hand be heavy upon thee.

[8] But thou hast said in mine ears, (I have heard the voice of thy words;) because thou sayest, I am pure, not having sinned; [9] I am blameless, for I have not transgressed. [10] Yet he has discovered a charge against me, and he has reckoned me as an adversary. [11] And he has put my foot in the stocks, and has watched all my ways. [12] For how sayest thou, I am righteous, yet he has not hearkened to me? for he that is above mortals is eternal.

[13] But thou sayest, Why has he not heard every word of my cause? [14] For when the Lord speaks once, or a second time, [15] sending a dream, or in the meditation of the night; (as when a dreadful alarm happens to fall upon men, in slumberings on the bed:) [16] then opens he the understanding of men: he scares them with such fearful visions: [17] to turn a man from unrighteousness, and he delivers his body from a fall. [18] He spares also his soul from death, and suffers him not to fall in war.

[19] And again, he chastens him with sickness on his bed, and the multitude of his bones is benumbed. [20] And he shall not be able to take any food, though his soul shall desire meat; [21] until his flesh shall be consumed, and he shall shew his bones bare. [22] His soul also draws nigh to death, and his life is in Hades. [23] Though there should be a thousand messengers of death, not one of them shall wound him: if he should purpose in his heart to turn to the Lord, and declare to man his fault, and shew his folly; [24] he will support him, that he should not perish, and will restore his body as fresh plaster upon a wall; and he will fill his bones with morrow. [25] And he will make his flesh tender as that of a babe, and he will restore him among men in his full strength. [26] And he shall pray to the Lord, and his prayer shall be accepted of him; he shall enter with a cheerful countenance, with a full expression of praise: for he will render to men their due. [27] Even then a man shall blame himself, saying, What kind of things have I done? and he has not punished me according to the full amount of my sins. [28] Deliver my soul, that it may not go to destruction, and my life shall see the light.

[29] Behold, all these things, the Mighty One works in a threefold manner with a man. [30] And he has delivered my soul from death, that my life may praise him in the light. [31] Harken, Job, and hear me: be silent, and I will speak. [32] If thou hast words, answer me: speak, for I desire thee to be justified. ^[33] If not, do thou hear me: be silent, and I will teach thee.

Chapter 34

[1] And Elius continued, and said,

[2] Hear me, ye wise men; hearken, ye that have knowledge. [3] For the ears tries words, and the mouth tastes meat. [4] Let us choose judgment to ourselves: let us know amount ourselves what is right. [5] For Job has said, I am righteous: the Lord has removed my judgment. [6] And he has erred in my judgment: my wound is severe without unrighteousness of mine.

[7] What man is as Job, drinking scorning like water? [8] saying, I have not sinned, nor committed ungodliness, nor had fellowship with workers of iniquity, to go with the ungodly. [9] For thou shouldest not say, There shall be no visitation of a man, whereas there is a visitation on him from the Lord.

[10] Wherefore hear me, ye that are wise in heart: far be it from me to sin before the Lord, and to pervert righteousness before the almighty. [11] Yea, he renders to a man accordingly as each of them does, and in a man's path he will find him.

[12] And thinkest thou that the Lord will do wrong, or will the Almighty who made the earth wrest judgment? [13] And who is he that made the whole world under heaven, and all things therein? [14] For if he would confine, and restrain his spirit with himself; [15] all flesh would die together, and every mortal would return to the earth, whence also he was formed.

[16] Take heed lest he rebuke thee: hear this, hearken to the voice of words. [17] Behold then the one that hates iniquities, and that destroys the wicked, who is for ever just.

[18] He is ungodly that says to a king, Thou art a transgressor, that says to princes, O most ungodly one. [19] Such a one as would not reverence the face of an honourable man, neither knows how to give honour to the great, so as that their persons should be respected. [20] But it shall turn out vanity to them, to cry and beseech a man; for they dealt unlawfully, the poor being turned aside from their right. [21] For he surveys the works of men, and nothing of what they do has escaped him. [22] Neither shall there be a place for the workers of iniquity to hide themselves. [23] For he will not lay upon a man more than right. [24] For the Lord looks down upon all men, who comprehends unsearchable things, glorious also and excellent things without number. [25] Who discovers their works, and will bring night about upon them, and they shall be brought low. [26] And he quite destroys the ungodly, for they are seen before him. [27] Because they turned aside from the law of God, and did not regard his ordinances, [28] so as to bring before him the cry of the needy; for he will hear the cry of the poor.

[29] And he will give quiet, and who will condemn? and he will hide his face, and who shall see him? whether it be done against a nation, or against a man also: [30] causing a hypocrite to be king, because of the waywardness of the people.

[31] For there is one that says to the Mighty One, I have received blessings; I will not take a pledge: [32] I will see apart from myself: do thou shew me if I have done unrighteousness; I will not do so any more. [33] Will he take vengeance for it on thee, whereas thou wilt put it far from thee? for thou shalt choose, and not I; and what thou knowest, speak thou. [34] Because the wise in heart shall say this, and a wise man listens to my word. [35] But Job has not spoken with understanding, his words are not uttered with knowledge. [36] Howbeit do thou learn, Job: no longer make answer as the foolish: [37] that we add not to our sins: for iniquity will be reckoned against us, if we speak many words before the Lord.

[1] And Elius resumed and said,

[2] What is this that thou thinkest to be according to right? who art thou that thou hast said, I am righteous before the Lord? [3] I will answer thee, and thy three friends. [4] Look up to the sky and see; and consider the clouds, how high they are above thee. [5] If thou hast sinned, what wilt thou do? [6] and if too thou hast transgressed much, what canst thou perform? [7] And suppose thou art righteous, what wilt thou give him? or what shall he receive of thy hand? [8] Thy ungodliness may affect a man who is like to thee; or thy righteousness a son of man. [9] They that are oppressed of a multitude will be ready to cry out; they will call for help because of the arm of many. [10] But none said, Where is God that made me, who appoints the night-watches; [11] who makes me to differ from the four-footed beasts of the earth, and from the birds of the sky? [12] There they shall cry, and none shall hearken, even because of the insolence of wicked men.

[13] For the Lord desires not to look on error, for he is the Almighty One. [14] He beholds them that perform lawless deeds, and he will save me: and do thou plead before him, if thou canst praise him, as it is possible even now. [15] For he is not now regarding his wrath, nor has he noticed severely any trespass. [16] Yet Job vainly opens his mouth, in ignorance he multiplies words.

[1] And Elius further continued, and said,

[2] Wait for me yet a little while, that I may teach thee: for there is yet speech in me.

[3] Having fetched my knowledge from afar, and according to my works, [4] I will speak just things truly, and thou shalt not unjustly receive unjust words.

[5] But know that the Lord will not cast off an innocent man: being mighty in strength of wisdom, [6] he will not by any means save alive the ungodly: and he will grant the judgment of the poor. [7] He will not turn away his eyes from the righteous, but they shall be with kings on the throne: and he will establish them in triumph, and they shall be exalted. [8] But they that are bound in fetters shall be holden in cords of poverty. [9] And he shall recount to them their works, and their transgressions, for such will act with violence. [10] But he will hearken to the righteous: and he has said that they shall turn from unrighteousness. [11] If they should hear and serve him, they shall spend their days in prosperity, and their years in honour. [12] But he preserves not the ungodly; because they are not willing to know the Lord, and because when reproved they were disobedient.

[13] And the hypocrites in heart will array wrath against themselves; they will not cry, because he has bound them. [14] Therefore let their soul die in youth, and their life be wounded by messengers of death. [15] Because they afflicted the weak and helpless: and he will vindicate the judgment of the meek. [16] And he has also enticed thee out of the mouth of the enemy: [17] there is a deep gulf and a rushing stream beneath it, and thy table came down full of fatness. Judgment shall not fail from the righteous; [18] but there shall be wrath upon the ungodly, by reason of the ungodliness of the bribes which they received for iniquities.

[19] Let not thy mind willingly turn thee aside from the petition of the feeble that are in distress. [20] And draw not forth all the mighty men by night, so that the people should go up instead of them. [21] But take heed lest thou do that which is wrong: for of this thou has made choice because of poverty.

[22] Behold, the Mighty One shall prevail by his strength: for who is powerful as he is? [23] And who is he that examines his works? or who can say, he has wrought injustice? [24] Remember that his works are great beyond those which men have attempted. [25] Every man has seen in himself, how many mortals are wounded. [26] Behold, the Mighty One is great, and we shall not know him: the number of his years is even infinite. [27] And the drops of rain are numbered by him, and shall be poured out in rain to form a cloud. [28] The ancient heavens shall flow, and the clouds overshadow innumerable mortals: he has fixed a time to cattle, and they know the order of rest. Yet by all these things thy understanding is not astonished, neither is thy mind disturbed in thy body. [29] And though one should understand the outspreadings of the clouds, or the measure of his tabernacle; ^[30] behold he will stretch his bow against him, and he covers the bottom of the sea. ^[31] For by them he will judge the nations: he will give food to him that has strength. ^[32] He has hidden the light in his hands, and given charge concerning it to the interposing cloud. ^[33] The Lord will declare concerning this to his friend: but there is a portion also for unrighteousness.

[1] At this also my heart is troubled, and moved out of its place. [2] Hear thou a report by the anger of the Lord's wrath, and a discourse shall come out of his mouth. [3] His dominion is under the whole heaven, and his light is at the extremities of the earth. [4] After him shall be a cry with a loud voice; he shall thunder with the voice of his excellency, yet he shall not cause men to pass away, for one shall hear his voice. [5] The Mighty One shall thunder wonderfully with his voice: for he has done great things which we knew not; [6] commanding the snow, Be thou upon the earth, and the stormy rain, and the storm of the showers of his might. [7] He seals up the hand of every man, that every man may know his own weakness. [8] And the wild beasts come in under the covert, and rest in their lair. [9] Troubles come on out of the secret chambers, and cold from the mountain-tops. [10] And from the breath of the Mighty One he will send frost; and he guides the water in whatever way he pleases. [11] And if a cloud obscures what is precious to him, his light will disperse the cloud. [12] And he will carry round the encircling clouds by his governance, to perform their works: whatsoever he shall command them, [13] this has been appointed by him on the earth, whether for correction, or for his land, or if he shall find him an object for mercy.

[14] Hearken to this, O Job: stand still, and be admonished of the power of the Lord. [15] We know that god has disposed his works, having made light out of darkness. [16] And he knows the divisions of the clouds, and the signal overthrows of the ungodly. [17] But thy robe is warm, and there is quiet upon the land. [18] Wilt thou establish with him foundations for the ancient heavens? they are strong as a molten mirror. [19] Wherefore teach me, what shall we say to him? and let us cease from saying much. [20] Have I a book or a scribe my me, that I may stand and put man to silence?

[21] But the light is not visible to all: it shines afar off in the heavens, as that which is from him in the clouds. [22] From the north come the clouds shining like gold: in these great are the glory and honour of the Almighty; [23] and we do not find another his equal in strength: as for him that judges justly, dost thou not think that he listens? [24] Wherefore men shall fear him; and the wise also in heart shall fear him.

Chapter 38

[1] And after Elius had ceased from speaking, the Lord spoke to Job through the whirlwind and clouds, saying,

[2] Who is this that hides counsel from me, and confines words in his heart, and thinks to conceal them from me? [3] Gird thy loins like a man; and I will ask thee, and do thou answer me.

[4] Where wast thou when I founded the earth? tell me now, if thou hast knowledge, [5] who set the measures of it, if thou knowest? or who stretched a line upon it? [6] On what are its rings fastened? and who is he that laid the corner-stone upon it? [7] When the stars were made, all my angels praised me with a loud voice. [8] And I shut up the sea with gates, when it rushed out, coming forth out its mother's womb. [9] And I made a cloud its clothing, and swathed it in mist. [10] And I set bounds to it, surrounding it with bars and gates. [11] And I said to it, Hitherto shalt thou come, but thou shalt not go beyond, but thy waves shall be confined within thee.

[12] Or did I order the morning light in thy time; and did the morning star then first see his appointed place; [13] to lay hold of the extremities of the earth, to cast out the ungodly out of it? [14] Or didst thou take clay of the ground, and form a living creature, and set it with the power of speech upon the earth? [15] And hast thou removed light from the ungodly, and crushed the arm of the proud?

[16] Or hast thou gone to the source of the sea, and walked in the tracks of the deep? [17] And do the gates of death open to thee for fear; and did the porters of hell quake when they saw thee? [18] And hast thou been instructed in the breadth of the whole earth under heaven? tell me now, what is the extent of it?

[19] And in what kind of a land does the light dwell? and of what kind is the place of darkness? [20] If thou couldest bring me to their utmost boundaries, and if also thou knowest their paths; [21] I know then that thou wert born at that time, and the number of thy years is great.

[22] But hast thou gone to the treasures of snow? and hast thou seen the treasures of hail? [23] And is there a store of them, for thee against the time of thine enemies, for the day of wars and battle? [24] And whence proceeds the frost? or whence is the south wind dispersed over the whole world under heaven? [25] And who prepared a course for the violent rain, and a way for the thunders; [26] to rain upon the land where there is no man, the wilderness, where there is not a man in it; so as to feed the untrodden and uninhabited land, [27] and cause it to send forth a crop of green herbs?

[28] Who is the rain's father? and who has generated the drops of dew? [29] And out of whose womb comes the ice? and who has produced the frost in the sky, [30] which descends like flowing water? who has terrified the face of the ungodly?

[31] And dost thou understand the band of Pleias, and hast thou opened the barrier of Orion? [32] Or wilt thou reveal Mazuroth in his season, and the evening star with his rays? Wilt thou guide them? [33] And knowest thou the changes of heaven, or the events which take place together under heaven? [34] And wilt thou call a cloud with thy voice, and will it obey thee with a violent shower of much rain? [35] And wilt thou send lightnings, and they shall go? and shall they say to thee, What is thy pleasure? [36] And who has given to women skill in weaving, or knowledge of embroidery? [37] And who is he that numbers the clouds in wisdom, and has bowed the heaven down to the earth? [38] For it is spread out as dusty earth, and I have cemented it as one hewn stone to another.

[39] And wilt thou hunt a prey for the lions? and satisfy the desires of the serpents? [40] For they fear in their lairs, and lying in wait couch in the woods. [41] And who has prepared food for the raven? for its young ones wander and cry to the Lord, in search of food.

[1] Say if thou knowest the time of the bringing forth of the wild goats of the rock, and if thou hast marked the calving of the hinds: [2] and if thou has hast numbered the full months of their being with young, and if thou hast relieved their pangs: [3] and hast reared their young without fear; and wilt thou loosen their pangs? [4] Their young will break forth; they will be multiplied with offspring: their young will go forth, and will not return to them.

[5] And who is he that sent forth the wild ass free? and who loosed his bands? [6] whereas I made his habitation the wilderness, and the salt land his coverts. [7] He laughs to scorn the multitude of the city, and hears not the chiding of the tax-gatherer. [8] He will survey the mountains as his pasture, and he seeks after every green thing.

[9] And will the unicorn be willing to serve thee, or to lie down at thy manger? [10] And wilt thou bind his yoke with thongs, or will he plough furrows for thee in the plain? [11] And dost thou trust him, because his strength is great? and wilt thou commit thy works to him? [12] And wilt thou believe that he will return to thee thy seed, and bring it in to thy threshing-floor?

[13] The peacock has a beautiful wing: if the stork and the ostrich conceive, it is worthy of notice, [14] for the ostrich will leave her eggs in the ground, and warm them on the dust, [15] and has forgotten that the foot will scatter them, and the wild beasts of the field trample them. [16] She has hardened herself against her young ones, as though she bereaved not herself: she labours in vain without fear. [17] For God has witholden wisdom from her, and not given her a portion in understanding. [18] In her season she will lift herself on high; she will scorn the horse and his rider.

[19] Hast thou invested the horse with strength, and clothed his neck with terror? [20] And hast thou clad him in perfect armour, and made his breast glorious with courage? [21] He paws exulting in the plain, and goes forth in strength into the plain. [22] He laughs to scorn a king as he meets him, and will by no means turn back from the sword. [23] The bow and sword resound against him; and his rage will swallow up the ground: [24] and he will not believe until the trumpet sounds. [25] And when the trumpet sounds, he says, Aha! and afar off he smells the war with prancing and neighing.

[26] And does the hawk remain steady by thy wisdom, having spread out her wings unmoved, looking toward the region of the south? [27] And does the eagle rise at thy command, and the vulture remain sitting over his nest, [28] on a crag of a rock, and in a secret place? [29] Thence he seeks food, his eyes observe from far. [30] And his young ones roll themselves in blood, and wherever the carcasses may be, immediately they are found.

[31] And the Lord God answered Job, and said, [32] Will any one pervert judgment with the Mighty One? and he that reproves God, let him return it for answer.33 And Job answered and said to the Lord, [34] Why do I yet plead?

being rebuked even while reproving the Lord: hearing such things, whereas I am nothing: and what shall I answer to these arguments? I will lay my hand upon my mouth. ^[35] I have spoken once; but I will not do so a second time.

[1] And the Lord yet again answered and spoke to Job out of the cloud, saying,

[2] Nay, gird up now thy loins like a man; and I will ask thee, and do thou answer me. [3] Do not set aside my judgment: and dost thou think that I have dealt with thee in any other way, than that thou mightest appear to be righteous? [4] Hast thou an arm like the Lord's? or dost thou thunder with a voice like his? [5] Assume now a lofty bearing and power; and clothe thyself with glory and honour. [6] And send forth messengers with wrath; and lay low every haughty one. [7] Bring down also the proud man; and consume at once the ungodly. [8] And hide them together in the earth; and fill their faces with shame. [9] Then will I confess that thy right hand can save thee.

[10] But now look at the wild beasts with thee; they eat grass like oxen. [11] Behold now, his strength is in his loins, and his force is in the navel of his belly. [12] He sets up his tail like a cypress; and his nerves are wrapped together. [13] His sides are sides of brass; and his backbone is as cast iron. [14] This is the chief of the creation of the Lord; made to be played with by his angels. [15] And when he has gone up to a steep mountain, he causes joy to the quadrupeds in the deep. [16] He lies under trees of every kind, by the papyrus, and reed, and bulrush. [17] And the great trees make a shadow over him with their branches, and so do the bushes of the field. [18] If there should be a flood, he will not perceive it; he trust that Jordan will rush up into his mouth. [19] Yet one shall take him in his sight; one shall catch him with a cord, and pierce his nose.

[20] But wilt thou catch the serpent with a hook, and put a halter about his nose? [21] Or wilt thou fasten a ring in his nostril, and bore his lip with a clasp? [22] Will he address thee with a petition? softly, with the voice of a suppliant? [23] And will he make a covenant with thee? and wilt thou take him for a perpetual servant? [24] And wilt thou play with him as with a bird? or bind him as a sparrow for a child? [25] And do the nations feed upon him, and the nations of the Phoenicians share him? [26] And all the ships come together would not be able to bear the mere skin of his tail; neither shall they carry his head in fishing-vessels. [27] But thou shalt lay thy hand upon him once, remembering the war that is waged by his mouth; and let it not be done any more.

[1] Hast thou not seen him? and hast thou not wondered at the things said of him? Dost thou not fear because preparation has been made by me? for who is there that resists me? [2] Or who will resist me, and abide, since the whole world under heaven is mine?

[3] I will not be silent because of him: though because of his power one shall pity his antagonist. [4] Who will open the face of his garment? and who can enter within the fold of his breastplate? [5] Who will open the doors of his face? terror is round about his teeth. [6] His inwards are as brazen plates, and the texture of his skin as a smyrite stone. [7] One part cleaves fast to another, and the air cannot come between them. [8] They will remain united each to the other: they are closely joined, and cannot be separated. [9] At his sneezing a light shines, and his eyes are as the appearance of the morning star. [10] Out of his mouth proceed as it were burning lamps, and as it were hearths of fire are cast abroad. [11] Out of his nostrils proceeds smoke of a furnace burning with fire of coals. [12] His breath is as live coals, and a flame goes out of his mouth. [13] And power is lodged in his neck, before him destruction runs. [14] The flesh also of his body is joined together: if one pours violence upon him, he shall not be moved. [15] His heart is firm as a stone, and it stands like an unyielding anvil. [16] And when he turns, he is a terror to the four-footed wild beasts which leap upon the earth. [17] If spears should come against him, men will effect nothing, either with the spear or the breast-plate. [18] For he considers iron as chaff, and brass as rotten wood. [19] The bow of brass shall not wound him, he deems a slinger as grass. [20] Mauls are counted as stubble; and he laughs to scorn the waving of the firebrand. [21] His lair is formed of sharp points; and all the gold of the sea under him is an immense quantity of clay. [22] He makes the deep boil like a brazen caldron; and he regards the sea as a pot of ointment, [23] and the lowest part of the deep as a captive: he reckons the deep as his range. [24] There is nothing upon the earth like to him, formed to be sported with by my angels. [25] He beholds every high thing: and he is king of all that are in the waters.

Chapter 42

[1] Then Job answered and said to the Lord,

[2] I know that thou canst do all things, and nothing is impossible with thee.

[3] For who is he that hides counsel from thee? or who keeps back his words, and thinks to hide them from thee? and who will tell me what I knew not, great and wonderful things which I understood not?

[4] But hear me, O Lord, that I also may speak: and I will ask thee, and do thou teach me. [5] I have heard the report of thee by the ear before; but now mine eye has seen thee. [6] Wherefore I have counted myself vile, and have fainted: and I esteem myself dust and ashes.

[7] And it came to pass after the Lord had spoken all these words to Job, that the Lord said to Eliphaz the Thaemanite, Thou hast sinned, and thy two friends: for ye have not said anything true before me, as my servant Job has. [8] Now then take seven bullocks, and seven rams, and go to my servant Job, and he shall offer a burnt-offering for you. And my servant Job shall pray for you, for I will only accept him: for but his sake, I would have destroyed you, for ye have not spoken the truth against my servant Job.

[9] So Eliphaz the Thaemanite, and Baldad the Sauchite, and Sophar the Minaean, went and did as the Lord commanded them: and he pardoned their sin for the sake of Job.

[10] And the Lord prospered Job: and when he prayed also for his friends, he forgave them their sin: and the Lord gave Job twice as much, even the double of what he had before. [11] And all his brethren and his sisters heard all that had happened to him, and they came to him, and so did all that had known him from the first: and they ate and drank with him, and comforted him, and wondered at all that the Lord had brought upon him: and each one gave him a lamb, and four drachms' weight of gold, even of unstamped gold.

[12] And the Lord blessed the latter end of Job, more than the beginning: and his cattle were fourteen thousand sheep, six thousand camels, a thousand yoke of oxen, a thousand she-asses of the pastures. [13] And there were born to him seven sons and three daughters. [14] And he called the first Day, and the second Casia, and the third Amalthaea's horn. [15] And there were not found in comparison with the daughters of Job, fairer women than they in all the world: and their father gave them an inheritance among their brethren.

[16] And Job lived after his affliction a hundred and seventy years: and all the years he lived were two hundred and forty: and Job saw his sons and his sons' sons, the fourth generation. [17] And Job died, an old man and full of days: and it is written that he will rise again with those whom the Lord raises up.

This man is described in the Syriac book as living in the land of Ausis, on the borders of Idumea and Arabia: and his name before was Jobab; and having taken an Arabian wife, he begot a son whose name was Ennon. And he himself was the son of his father Zare, one of the sons of Esau, and of his mother Bosorrha, so that he was the fifth from Abraam. And these were the kings who reigned in Edom, which country he also ruled over: first, Balac, the son of Beor, and the name of his city was Dennaba: but after Balac, Jobab, who is called Job, and after him Asom, who was governor out of the country of Thaeman: and after him Adad, the son of Barad, who destroyed Madiam in the plain of Moab; and the name of his city was Gethaim. And his friends who came to him were Eliphaz, of the children of Esau, king of the Thaemanites, Baldad sovereign the Sauchaeans, Sophar king of the Minaeans.

Psalms

Psalm 1

[1] Blessed is the man who has not walked in the counsel of the ungodly, and has not stood in the way of sinners, and has not sat in the seat of evil men. [2] But his pleasure is in the law of the Lord; and in his law will he meditate day and night. [3] And he shall be as a tree planted by the brooks of waters, which shall yield its fruit in its season, and its leaf shall not fall off; and whatsoever he shall do shall be prospered.

[4] Not so the ungodly; — not so: but rather as the chaff which the wind scatters away from the face of the earth. [5] Therefore the ungodly shall not rise in judgment, nor sinners in the counsel of the just. [6] For the Lord knows the way of the righteous; but the way of the ungodly shall perish.

[1] Wherefore did the heathen rage, and the nations imagine vain things? [2] The kings of the earth stood up, and the rulers gathered themselves together, against the Lord, and against his Christ; [3] saying, Let us break through their bonds, and cast away their yoke from us.

[4] He that dwells in the heavens shall laugh them to scorn, and the Lord shall mock them. [5] Then shall he speak to them in his anger, and trouble them in his fury. [6] But I have been made king by him on Sion his holy mountain, [7] declaring the ordinance of the Lord: the Lord said to me, Thou art my Son, to-day have I begotten thee. [8] Ask of me, and I will give thee the heathen for thine inheritance, and the ends of the earth for thy possession. [9] Thou shalt rule them with a rod of iron; thou shalt dash them in pieces as a potter's vessel.

[10] Now therefore understand, ye kings: be instructed, all ye that judge the earth. [11] Serve the Lord with fear, and rejoice in him with trembling. [12] Accept correction, lest at any time the Lord be angry, and ye should perish from the righteous way: whensoever his wrath shall be suddenly kindled, blessed are all they that trust in him.

Psalm 3

A Psalm of David, when he fled from the presence of his son Abessalom.

[1] O Lord, why are they that afflict me multiplied? many rise up against me. [2] Many say concerning my soul, There is no deliverance for him in his God. Pause.

[3] But thou, O Lord, art my helper: my glory, and the one that lifts up my head. [4] I cried to the Lord with my voice, and he heard me out of his holy mountain. Pause. [5] I lay down and slept; I awaked; for the Lord will help me. [6] I will not be afraid of ten thousands of people, who beset me round about. [7] Arise, Lord; deliver me, my God: for thou hast smitten all who were without cause mine enemies; thou hast broken the teeth of sinners. [8] Deliverance is the Lord's, and thy blessing is upon thy people.

Psalm 4

For the End, a Song of David among the Psalms.

[1] When I called upon him, the God of my righteousness heard me: thou hast made room for me in tribulation; pity me, and hearken to my prayer.

[2] O ye sons on men, how long will ye be slow of heart? wherefore do ye love vanity, and seek falsehood? Pause. [3] But know ye that the Lord has done wondrous things for his holy one: the Lord will hear me when I cry to him. [4] Be ye angry, and sin not; feel compunction upon your beds for what ye say in your hearts. Pause. [5] Offer the sacrifice of righteousness, and trust in the Lord.

[6] Many say, Who will shew us good things? the light of thy countenance, O Lord, has been manifested towards us. [7] Thou hast put gladness into my heart: they have been satisfied with the fruit of their corn and wine and oil. [8] I will both lie down in peace and sleep: for thou, Lord, only hast caused me to dwell securely.

For the end, a Psalm of David, concerning her that inherits.

[1] Hearken to my words, O Lord, attend to my cry. [2] Attend to the voice of my supplication, my King, and my God: for to thee, O Lord, will I pray. [3] In the morning thou shalt hear my voice: in the morning will I wait upon thee, and will look up. [4] For thou art not a god that desires iniquity; neither shall the worker of wickedness dwell with thee. [5] Neither shall the transgressors continue in thy sight: thou hatest, O Lord, all them that work iniquity. [6] Thou wilt destroy all that speak falsehood: the Lord abhors the bloody and deceitful man. [7] But I will enter into thine house in the multitude of thy mercy: I will worship in thy fear toward thy holy temple.

[8] Lead me, O Lord, in thy righteousness because of mine enemies; make my way plain before thy face. [9] For there is no truth in their mouth; their heart is vain; their throat is an open sepulchre; with their tongues they have used deceit. [10] Judge them, O God; let them fail of their counsels: cast them out according to the abundance of their ungodliness; for they have provoked thee, O Lord.

[11] But let all that trust on thee be glad in thee: they shall exult for ever, and thou shalt dwell among them; and all that love thy name shall rejoice in thee. [12] For thou, Lord, shalt bless the righteous: thou hast compassed us as with a shield of favour.

Psalm 6

For the End, a Psalm of David among the Hymns for the eighth.

[1] O Lord, rebuke me not in thy wrath, neither chasten me in thine anger. [2] Pity me, O Lord; for I am weak: heal me, O Lord; for my bones are vexed. [3] My soul also is grievously vexed: but thou, O Lord, how long? [4] Return, O Lord, deliver my soul: save me for thy mercy's sake. [5] For in death no man remembers thee: and who will give thee thanks in Hades? [6] I am wearied with my groaning; I shall wash my bed every night; I shall water my couch with tears. [7] Mine eye is troubled because of my wrath; I am worn out because of all my enemies.

[8] Depart from me, all ye that work iniquity; for the Lord has heard the voice of my weeping. [9] The Lord has hearkened to my petition; the Lord has accepted my prayer. [10] Let all mine enemies be put to shame and sore troubled: let them be turned back and grievously put to shame speedily.

Psalm 7

A Psalm of David, which he sang to the Lord because of the words of Chusi the Benjamite.

[1] O Lord my God, in thee have I trusted: save me from all them that persecute me, and deliver me. [2] Lest at any time the enemy seize my soul as a lion, while there is none to ransom, nor to save.

[3] O Lord my God, if I have done this; (if there is unrighteousness in my hands;) [4] if I have requited with evil those who requited me with good; may I then perish empty by means of my enemies. [5] Let the enemy persecute my soul, and take it; and let him trample my life on the ground, and lay my glory in the dust. Pause.

[6] Arise, O Lord, in thy wrath; be exalted in the utmost boundaries of mine enemies: awake, O Lord my God, according to the decree which thou didst command. [7] And the congregation of the nations shall compass thee: and for this cause do thou return on high. [8] The Lord shall judge the nations: judge me, O Lord, according to my righteousness, and according to my innocence that is in me. [9] Oh let the wickedness of sinners come to an end; and then thou shalt direct the righteous, O God that searchest the hearts and reins.

[10] My help is righteous, coming from God who saves the upright in heart. [11] God is a righteous judge, and strong, and patient, not inflicting vengeance every day. [12] If ye will not repent, he will furbish his sword; he has bent his bow, and made it ready. [13] And on it he has fitted the instruments of death; he has completed his arrows for the raging ones.

[14] Behold, he has travailed with unrighteousness, he has conceived trouble, and brought forth iniquity. [15] He has opened a pit, and dug it up, and he shall fall into the ditch which he has made. [16] His trouble shall return on his own head, and his unrighteousness shall come down on his own crown. [17] I will give thanks to the Lord according to his righteousness; I will sing to the name of the Lord most high.

Psalm 8

For the end, concerning the wine-presses, a Psalm of David.

[1] O Lord, our Lord, how wonderful is thy name in all the earth! for thy magnificence is exalted above the heavens. [2] Out of the mouth of babes and sucklings hast thou perfected praise, because of thine enemies; that thou mightest put down the enemy and avenger.

[3] For I will regard the heavens, the work of thy fingers; the moon and stars, which thou hast established. [4] What is man, that thou art mindful of him? or the son of man, that thou visitest him? [5] Thou madest him a little less than angels, thou hast crowned him with glory and honour; [6] and thou hast set him over the works of thy hands: thou hast put all things under his feet: [7] sheep and all oxen, yea and the cattle of the field; [8] the birds of the sky, and the fish of the sea, the creatures passing through the paths of the sea. [9] O Lord our Lord, how wonderful is thy name in all the earth!

Psalm 9

For the end, a Psalm of David, concerning the secrets of the Son.

[1] I will give thanks to thee, O Lord, with my whole heart; I will recount all thy wonderful works. [2] I will be glad and exult in thee: I will sing to thy name, O thou Most High.

[3] When mine enemies are turned back, they shall be feeble and perish at thy presence. [4] For thou hast maintained my cause and my right; thou satest on the throne, that judgest righteousness. [5] Thou hast rebuked the nations, and the ungodly one has perished; thou hast blotted out their name for ever, even for ever and ever. [6] The swords of the enemy have failed utterly; and thou hast destroyed cities: their memorial has been destroyed with a noise, [7] but the Lord endures for ever: he has prepared his throne for judgment. [8] And he will judge the world in righteousness, he will judge the nations in uprightness. [9] The Lord also is become a refuge for the poor, a seasonable help, in affliction. [10] And let them that know thy name hope in thee: for thou, O Lord, hast not failed them that diligently seek thee.

[11] Sing praises to the Lord, who dwells in Sion: declare his dealings among the nations. [12] For he remembered them, in making inquisition for blood: he has not forgotten the supplication of the poor.

[13] Have mercy upon me, O Lord; look upon my affliction which I suffer of mine enemies, thou that liftest me up from the gates of death: [14] that I may declare all thy praises in the gates of the daughter of Sion: I will exult in thy salvation.

[15] The heathen are caught in the destruction which they planned: in the very snare which they hid is their foot taken. [16] The Lord is known as executing judgments: the sinner is taken in the works of his hands. A song of Pause. [17] Let sinners be driven away into Hades, even all the nations that forget God. [18] For the poor shall not be forgotten for ever: the patience of the needy ones shall not perish for ever. [19] Arise, O Lord, let not man prevail: let the heathen be judged before thee. [20] Appoint, O Lord, a lawgiver over them: let the heathen know that they are men. Pause.

[1] Why standest thou afar off, O Lord? why dost thou overlook us in times of need, in affliction? [2] While the ungodly one acts proudly, the poor is hotly pursued: the wicked are taken in the crafty counsels which they imagine. [3] Because the sinner praises himself for the desires of his heart; and the unjust one blesses himself. [4] The sinner has provoked the Lord: according to the abundance of his pride he will not seek after him: God is not before him. [5] His ways are profane at all times; thy judgments are removed from before him: he will gain the mastery over all his enemies. [6] For he has said in his heart, I shall not be moved, continuing without evil from generation to generation. [7] Whose mouth is full of cursing, and bitterness, and fraud: under his tongue are trouble and pain. [8] He lies in wait with rich men in secret places, in order to slay the innocent: his eyes are set against the poor. [9] He lies in wait in secret as a lion in his den: he lies in wait to ravish the poor, to ravish the poor when he draws him after him: he will bring him down in his snare. [10] He will bow down and fall when he has mastered the poor. [11] For he has said in his heart, God has forgotten: he has turned away his face so as never to look.

[12] Arise, O Lord God; let thy hand be lifted up: forget not the poor. [13] Wherefore, has the wicked provoked God? for he has said in his heart, He will not require it. [14] Thou seest it; for thou dost observe trouble and wrath, to deliver them into thy hands: the poor has been left to thee; thou wast a helper to the orphan. [15] Break thou the arm of the sinner and wicked man: his sin shall be sought for, and shall not be found.

[16] The Lord shall reign for ever, even for ever and ever: ye Gentiles shall perish out his land. [17] The Lord has heard the desire of the poor: thine ear has inclined to the preparation of their heart; [18] to plead for the orphan and afflicted, that man may no more boast upon the earth.

Psalm 11

For the end, a Psalm of David.

[1] In the Lord I have put my trust: how will ye say to my soul, Flee to the mountains as a sparrow? [2] For behold the sinners have bent their bow, they have prepared their arrows for the quiver, to shoot privily at the upright in heart. [3] For they have pulled down what thou didst frame, but what has the righteous done?

[4] The Lord is in his holy temple, as for the Lord, his throne is in heaven: his eyes look upon the poor, his eyelids try the sons of men. [5] The Lord tries the righteous and the ungodly: and he that loves unrighteousness hates his own soul. [6] He shall rain upon sinners snares, fire, and brimstone, and a stormy blast shall be the portion of their cup. [7] For the Lord is righteous, and loves righteousness; his face beholds uprightness.

Psalm 12

For the end, A Psalm of David, upon the eighth.

[1] Save me, O Lord; for the godly man has failed; for truth is diminished from among the children of men. [2] Every one has spoken vanity to his neighbour: their lips are deceitful, they have spoken with a double heart. [3] Let the Lord destroy all the deceitful lips, and the tongue that speaks great words: [4] who have said, We will magnify our tongue; our lips are our own: who is Lord of us?

[5] Because of the misery of the poor, and because of the sighing of the needy, now will I arise, saith the Lord, I will set them in safety; I will speak to them thereof openly. [6] The oracles of the Lord are pure oracles; as silver tried in the fire, proved in a furnace of earth, purified seven times. [7] Thou, O Lord, shalt keep us, and shalt preserve us, from this generation, and for ever. [8] The ungodly walk around: according to thy greatness thou has greatly exalted the sons of men.

For the end, a Psalm of David.

[1] How long, O Lord, wilt thou forget me? for ever? how long wilt thou turn away thy face from me? [2] How long shall I take counsel in my soul, having sorrows in my heart daily? how long shall my enemy be exalted over me? [3] Look on me, hearken to me, O Lord my God: lighten mine eyes, lest I sleep in death; [4] lest at any time mine enemy say, I have prevailed against him: my persecutors will exult if ever I should be moved.

[5] But I have hoped in thy mercy; my heart shall exult in thy salvation. [6] I will sing to the Lord who has dealt bountifully with me, and I will sing psalms to the name of the Lord most high.

For the end, Psalm of David.

[1] The fool has said in his heart, There is no God. They have corrupted themselves, and become abominable in their devices; there is none that does goodness, there is not even so much as one. [2] The Lord looked down from heaven upon the sons of men, to see if there were any that understood, or sought after god. [3] They are all gone out of the way, they are together become good for nothing, there is none that does good, no not one. Their throat is an open sepulchre; with their tongues they have used deceit; the poison of asps is under their lips: whose mouth is full of cursing and bitterness; their feet are swift to shed blood: destruction and misery are in their ways; and the way of peace they have not known: there is no fear of God before their eyes.

[4] Will not all the workers of iniquity know, who eat up my people as they would eat bread? they have not called upon the Lord. [5] There were they alarmed with fear, where there was no fear; for God is in the righteous generation. [6] Ye have shamed the counsel of the poor, because the Lord is his hope. [7] Who will bring the salvation of Israel out of Sion? when the Lord brings back the captivity of his people, let Jacob exult, and Israel be glad.

A Psalm of David.

[1] O Lord, who shall sojourn in thy tabernacle? and who shall dwell in thy holy mountain?

[2] He that walks blameless, and works righteousness, who speaks truth in his heart. [3] Who has not spoken craftily with is tongue, neither has done evil to his neighbour, nor taken up a reproach against them that dwelt nearest to him. [4] In his sight an evil-worker is set at nought, but he honours them that fear the Lord. He swears to his neighbour, and disappoints him not. [5] He has not lent his money on usury, and has not received bribes against the innocent. He that does these things shall never be moved.

Psalm 16

A writing of David.

[1] Keep me, O Lord; for I have hoped in thee. [2] I said to the Lord, Thou art my Lord; for thou has no need of my goodness. [3] On behalf of the saints that are in his land, he has magnified all his pleasure in them. [4] Their weaknesses have been multiplied; afterward they hasted. I will by no means assemble their bloody meetings, neither will I make mention of their names with my lips. [5] The Lord is the portion of mine inheritance and of my cup: thou art he that restores my inheritance to me. [6] The lines have fallen to me in the best places, yea, I have a most excellent heritage.

[7] I will bless the Lord who has instructed me; my reins too have chastened me even till night. [8] I foresaw the Lord always before my face; for he is on my right hand, that I should not be moved. [9] Therefore my heart rejoiced and my tongue exulted; moreover also my flesh shall rest in hope: [10] because thou wilt not leave my soul in hell, neither wilt thou suffer thine Holy One to see corruption. [11] Thou hast made known to me the ways of life; thou wilt fill me with joy with thy countenance: at thy right hand there are delights for ever.

A prayer of David.

[1] Hearken, O Lord of my righteousness, attend to my petition; give ear to my prayer not uttered with deceitful lips. [2] Let my judgment come forth from thy presence; let mine eyes behold righteousness. [3] Thou has proved mine heart; thou hast visited me by night; thou hast tried me as with fire, and unrighteousness has not been found in me: I am purposed that my mouth shall not speak amiss. [4] As for the works of men, by the words of thy lips I have guarded myself from hard ways. [5] Direct my steps in thy paths, that my steps slip not.

[6] I have cried, for thou heardest me, O God: incline thine ear to me, and hearken to my words. [7] Shew the marvels of thy mercies, thou that savest them that hope in thee. [8] Keep me as the apple of the eye from those that resist thy right hand: thou shalt screen me by the covering of thy wings, [9] from the face of the ungodly that have afflicted me: mine enemies have compassed about my soul. [10] They have enclosed themselves with their own fat: their mouth has spoken pride. [11] They have now cast me out and compassed me round about: they have set their eyes so as to bow them down to the ground. [12] They laid wait for me as a lion ready for prey, and like a lion's whelp dwelling in secret places. [13] Arise, O Lord, prevent them, and cast them down: deliver my soul from the ungodly: draw thy sword, [14] because of the enemies of thine hand: O Lord, destroy them from the earth; scatter them in their life, though their belly has been filled with thy hidden treasures: they have been satisfied with uncleanness, and have left the remnant of their possessions to their babes.

[15] But I shall appear in righteousness before thy face: I shall be satisfied when thy glory appears.

For the end, a Psalm of David, the servant of the Lord; the words which he spoke to the Lord, even the words of this Song, in the day in which the Lord delivered him out the hand of all his enemies, and out the hand of Saul: and he said:

[1] I will love thee, O Lord, my strength. [2] The Lord is my firm support, and my refuge, and my deliverer; my God is my helper, I will hope in him; he is my defender, and the horn of my salvation, and my helper. [3] I will call upon the Lord with praises, and I shall be saved from mine enemies. [4] The pangs of death compassed me, and the torrents of ungodliness troubled me exceedingly. [5] The pangs of hell came round about me: the snares of death prevented me.

[6] And when I was afflicted I called upon the Lord, and cried to my God: he heard my voice out of this holy temple, and my cry shall enter before him, even into his ears.

[7] Then the earth shook and quaked, and the foundations of the mountains were disturbed, and were shaken, because God was angry with them. [8] There went up a smoke in his wrath, and fire burst into a flame at his presence: coals were kindled at it. [9] And he bowed the heaven, and came down: and thick darkness was under his feet. [10] And he mounted on cherubs and flew: he flew on the wings of winds. [11] And he made darkness his secret place: round about him was his tabernacle, even dark water in the clouds of the air. [12] At the brightness before him the clouds passed, hail and coals of fire. [13] The Lord also thundered from heaven, and the Highest uttered his voice. [14] And he sent forth his weapons, and scattered them; and multiplied lightnings, and routed them. [15] And the springs of waters appeared, and the foundations of the world were exposed, at thy rebuke, O Lord, at the blasting of the breath of thy wrath.

[16] He sent from on high and took me, he drew me to himself out of many waters. [17] He will deliver me from my mighty enemies, and from them that hate me; for they are stronger than I. [18] They prevented me in the day of mine affliction: but the Lord was my stay against them. [19] And he brought me out into a wide place: he will deliver me, because he has pleasure in me. [20] And the Lord will recompense me according to my righteousness; even according to the purity of my hands will he recompense me. [21] For I have kept the way of the Lord and have not wickedly departed from my God. [22] For all his judgments were before me, and his ordinances departed not from me. [23] And I shall be blameless with hem, and shall keep myself from mine iniquity. [24] And the Lord shall recompense me according to my righteousness, and according to the purity of my hands before his eyes.

[25] With the holy thou wilt be holy; and with the innocent man thou wilt be innocent. [26] And with the excellent man thou wilt be excellent; and with the perverse thou wilt shew frowardness. [27] For thou wilt save the lowly people, and wilt humble the eyes of the proud. [28] For thou, O Lord, wilt light my lamp: my God, thou wilt lighten my darkness. [29] For by thee shall I be delivered from a troop; and by my God I will pass over a wall. [30] As for my God, his way is perfect: the oracles of the Lord are tried in the fire; he is a protector of all them that hope in him. [31] For who is God but the Lord? and who is a God except our God?

[32] It is God that girds me with strength, and has made my way blameless: [33] who strengthens my feet as hart's feet, and sets me upon high places. [34] He instructs my hands for war: and thou hast made my arms as a brazen bow. [35] And thou hast made me secure in my salvation: and thy right hand has helped me, and thy correction has upheld me to the end; yea, thy correction itself shall instruct me. [36] Thou has made room for my goings under me, and by footsteps did not fail. [37] I will pursue mine enemies, and overtake them; and I will not turn back until they are consumed. [38] I will dash them to pieces and they shall not be able to stand: they shall fall under my feet. [39] For thou hast girded me with strength for war: thou hast beaten down under me all that rose up against me. [40] And thou has made mine enemies turn their backs before me; and thou hast destroyed them that hated me. [41] They cried, but there was no deliverer: even to the Lord, but he hearkened not to them. [42] I will grind them as the mud of the streets: and I will beat them small as dust before the wind. [43] Deliver me from the vain sayings of the people: thou shalt make me head of the Gentiles: a people whom I knew not served me, [44] at the hearing of the ear they obeyed me: the strange children lied to me. [45] The strange children waxed old, and fell away from their paths through lameness.

[46] The Lord lives; and blessed be my God; and let the God of my salvation be exalted. [47] It is God that avenges me, and has subdued the nations under me; [48] my deliverer from angry enemies: thou shalt set me on high above them that rise up against me: thou shalt deliver me from the unrighteous man. [49] Therefore will I confess to thee, O Lord, among the Gentiles, and sing to thy name. [50] God magnifies the deliverances of his king; and deals mercifully with David his anointed, and his seed, for ever.

For the end, a Psalm of David.

[1] The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament proclaims the work of his hands. [2] Day to day utters speech, and night to night proclaims knowledge. [3] There are no speeches or words, in which their voices are not heard. [4] Their voice is gone out into all the earth, and their words to the ends of the world. [5] In the sun he has set his tabernacle; and he comes forth as a bridegroom out of his chamber: he will exult as a giant to run his course. [6] His going forth is from the extremity of heaven, and his circuit to the other end of heaven: and no one shall be hidden from his heat.

[7] The law of the Lord is perfect, converting souls: the testimony of the Lord is faithful, instructing babes. [8] The ordinances of the Lord are right, rejoicing the heart: the commandment of the Lord is bright, enlightening the eyes. [9] The fear of the Lord is pure, enduring for ever and ever: the judgments of the Lord are true, and justified altogether. [10] To be desired more than gold, and much precious stone: sweeter also than honey and the honeycomb. [11] For thy servant keeps to them: in the keeping of them there is great reward.

[12] Who will understand his transgressions? purge thou me from my secret sins. [13] And spare thy servant the attack of strangers: if they do not gain the dominion over me, then shall I be blameless, and I shall be clear from great sin. [14] So shall the sayings of my mouth, and the meditation of my heart, be pleasing continually before thee, O Lord my helper, and my redeemer.

For the end, a Psalm of David.

[1] The Lord hear thee in the day of trouble; the name of the God of Jacob defend thee. [2] Send thee help from the sanctuary, and aid thee out of Sion. [3] Remember all thy sacrifice, and enrich thy whole-burnt-offering. Pause. [4] Grant thee according to thy heart, and fulfill all thy desire. [5] We will exult in thy salvation, and in the name of our God shall we be magnified: the Lord fulfil all thy petitions.

[6] Now I know that the Lord has saved his Christ: he shall hear him from his holy heaven: the salvation of his right hand is mighty. [7] Some glory in chariots, and some in horses: but we will glory in the name of the Lord our God. [8] They are overthrown and fallen: but we are risen, and have been set upright. [9] O Lord, save the king: and hear us in whatever day we call upon thee.

For the end, a Psalm of David.

[1] O Lord, the king shall rejoice in thy strength; and in thy salvation he shall greatly exult. [2] Thou hast granted him the desire of his soul, and hast not withheld from him the request of his lips. Pause. [3] For thou hast prevented him with blessings of goodness: thou has set upon his head a crown of precious stone. [4] He asked life of thee, and thou gavest him length of days for ever and ever. [5] His glory is great in thy salvation: thou wilt crown him with glory and majesty. [6] For thou wilt give him a blessing for ever and ever: thou wilt gladden him with joy with thy countenance. [7] For the king trusts in the Lord, and through the mercy of the Highest he shall not be moved.

[8] Let thy hand be found by all thine enemies: let thy right hand find all that hate thee. [9] Thou shalt make them as a fiery oven at the time of thy presence: the Lord shall trouble them in his anger, and fire shall devour them. [10] Thou shalt destroy their fruit from the earth, and their seed from among the sons of men. [11] For they intended evils against thee; they imagined a device which they shall by no means be able to perform. [12] For thou shalt make them turn their back in thy latter end, thou wilt prepare their face. [13] Be thou exalted, O Lord, in thy strength: we will sing and praise thy mighty acts.

For the end, concerning the morning aid, a Psalm of David.

[1] O God, my God, attend to me: why hast thou forsaken me? the account of my transgressions is far from my salvation. [2] O my God, I will cry to thee by day, but thou wilt not hear: and by night, and it shall not be accounted for folly to me.

[3] But thou, the praise of Israel, dwellest in a sanctuary. [4] Our fathers hoped in thee; they hoped, and thou didst deliver them. [5] They cried to thee, and were saved: they hoped in thee, and were not ashamed. [6] But I am a worm, and not a man; a reproach of men, and scorn of the people. [7] All that saw me mocked me: they spoke with their lips, they shook the head, saying, [8] He hoped in the Lord: let him deliver him, let him save him, because he takes pleasure in him. [9] For thou art he that drew me out of the womb; my hope from my mother's breasts. [10] I was cast on thee from the womb: thou art my God from my mother's belly.

[11] Stand not aloof from me; for affliction is near; for there is no helper. [12] Many bullocks have compassed me: fat bulls have beset me round. [13] They have opened their mouth against me, as a ravening and roaring lion. [14] I am poured out like water, and all my bones are loosened: my heart in the midst of my belly is become like melting wax. [15] My strength is dried up, like a potsherd; and my tongue is glued to my throat; and thou hast brought me down to the dust of death. [16] For many dogs have compassed me: the assembly of the wicked doers has beset me round: they pierced my hands and my feet. [17] They counted all my bones; and they observed and looked upon me. [18] They parted my garments among themselves, and cast lots upon my raiment.

[19] But thou, O Lord, remove not my help afar off: be ready for mine aid. [20] Deliver my soul from the sword; my only-begotten one from the power of the dog. [21] Save me from the lion's mouth; and regard my lowliness from the horns of the unicorns.

[22] I will declare thy name to my brethren: in the midst of the church will I sing praise to thee. [23] Ye that fear the Lord, praise him; all ye seed of Jacob, glorify him: let all the seed of Israel fear him. [24] For he has not despised nor been angry at the supplication of the poor; nor turned away his face from me; but when I cried to him, he heard me. [25] My praise is of thee in the great congregation: I will pay my vows before them that fear him.

[26] The poor shall eat and be satisfied; and they shall praise the Lord that seek him: their heart shall live for ever. [27] All the ends of the earth shall remember and turn to the Lord: and all the kindreds of the nations shall worship before him. [28] For the kingdom is the Lord's; and he is the governor of the nations. [29] All the fat ones of the earth have eaten and worshipped: all that go down to the earth shall fall down before him: my soul also lives to him. ^[30] And my seed shall serve him: the generation that is coming shall be reported to the Lord. ^[31] And they shall report his righteousness to the people that shall be born, whom the Lord has made.

A Psalm of David.

[1] The Lord tends me as a shepherd, and I shall want nothing. [2] In a place of green grass, there he has made me dwell: he has nourished me by the water of rest. [3] He has restored my soul: he has guided me into the paths of righteousness, for his name's sake. [4] Yea, even if I should walk in the midst of the shadow of death, I will not be afraid of evils: for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff, these have comforted me. [5] Thou has prepared a table before me in presence of them that afflict me: thou hast thoroughly anointed my head with oil; and thy cup cheers me like the best wine. [6] Thy mercy also shall follow me all the days of my life: and my dwelling shall be in the house of the Lord for a very long time.

Psalm 24

A Psalm for David on the first day of the week.

[1] The earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof; the world, and all that dwell in it. [2] He has founded it upon the seas, and prepared it upon the rivers.

[3] Who shall go up to the mountain of the Lord, and who shall stand in his holy place? [4] He that is innocent in his hands and pure in his heart; who has not lifted up his soul to vanity, nor sworn deceitfully to his neighbour. [5] He shall receive a blessing from the Lord, and mercy from God his Saviour. [6] This is the generation of them that seek him, that seek the face of the God of Jacob. Pause.

[7] Lift up your gates, ye princes, and be ye lifted up, ye everlasting doors; and the king of glory shall come in. [8] Who is this king of Glory? the Lord strong and mighty, the Lord mighty in battle. [9] Lift up your gates, ye princes; and be ye lift up, ye everlasting doors; and the king of glory shall come in. [10] Who is this king of glory? The Lord of hosts, he is this king of glory.

A Psalm of David.

[1] To thee, O Lord, have I lifted up my soul. [2] O my God, I have trusted in thee: let me not be confounded, neither let mine enemies laugh me to scorn. [3] For none of them that wait on thee shall in any wise be ashamed: let them be ashamed that transgress without cause. [4] Shew me thy ways, O Lord; and teach me thy paths. [5] Lead me in thy truth, and teach me: for thou art God my Saviour: and I have waited on thee all the day. [6] Remember thy compassions, O Lord, and thy mercies, for they are from everlasting. [7] Remember not the sins of my youth, nor my sins of ignorance: remember me according to thy mercy, for thy goodness' sake, O Lord.

[8] Good and upright is the Lord: therefore will he instruct sinners in the way. [9] The meek will he guide in judgment: the meek will he teach his ways. [10] All the ways of the Lord are mercy and truth to them that seek his covenant and his testimonies. [11] For thy name's sake, O Lord, do thou also be merciful to my sin; for it is great. [12] Who is the man that fears the Lord? he shall instruct him in the way which he has chosen. [13] His soul shall dwell in prosperity; and his seed shall inherit the earth. [14] The Lord is the strength of them that fear him; and his covenant is to manifest truth to them.

[15] Mine eyes are continually to the Lord; for he shall draw my feet out of the snare. [16] Look upon me, and have mercy upon me; for I am an only child and poor. [17] The afflictions of my heart have been multiplied; deliver me from my distresses. [18] Look upon mine affliction and my trouble; and forgive all my sins. [19] Look upon mine enemies; for they have been multiplied; and they have hated me with unjust hatred. [20] Keep my soul, and deliver me: let me not be ashamed; for I have hoped in thee. [21] The harmless and upright joined themselves to me: for I waited for thee, O Lord. [22] Deliver Israel, O God, out of all his afflictions.

Psalm 26

A Psalm of David.

[1] Judge me, O Lord; for I have walked in my innocence: and hoping in the Lord I shall not be moved. [2] Prove me, O Lord, and try me; purify as with fire my reins and my heart.

[3] For thy mercy is before mine eyes: and I am well pleased with thy truth. [4] I have not sat with the council of vanity, and will in nowise enter in with transgressors. [5] I have hated the assembly of wicked doers; and will not sit with ungodly men. [6] I will wash my hands in innocency, and compass thine altar, O Lord: [7] to hear the voice of praise, and to declare all thy wonderful works. [8] O Lord, I have loved the beauty of thy house, and the place of the tabernacle of thy glory. [9] Destroy not my soul together with the ungodly, nor my life with bloody men: [10] in whose hands are iniquities, and their right hand is filled with bribes. [11] But I have walked in my innocence: redeem me, and have mercy upon me. [12] My foot stands in an even place: in the congregations will I bless thee, O Lord.

Psalm 27

A Psalm of David, before he was anointed.

[1] The Lord is my light and my Saviour; whom shall I fear? the Lord is the defender of my life; of whom shall I be afraid? [2] When evil-doers drew nigh against me to eat up my flesh, my persecutors and mine enemies, they fainted and fell. [3] Though an army should set itself in array against me, my heart shall not be afraid: though war should rise up against me, in this am I confident. [4] One thing have I asked of the Lord, this will I earnestly seek: that I should dwell in the house of the Lord, all the days of my life, that I should behold the fair beauty of the Lord, and survey his temple. [5] For in the day of mine afflictions he hid me in his tabernacle: he sheltered me in the secret of his tabernacle; he set me up on a rock. [6] And now, behold, he has lifted up mine head over mine enemies: I went round and offered in his tabernacle the sacrifice of joy; I will sing even sing psalms to the Lord.

[7] Hear, O Lord, my voice which I have uttered aloud: pity me, and hearken to me. [8] My heart said to thee, I have diligently sought thy face: thy face, O Lord, I will seek. [9] Turn not thy face away from me, turn not thou away from thy servant in anger: be thou my helper, forsake me not; and, O God my Saviour, overlook me not. [10] For my father and my mother have forsaken me, but the Lord has taken me to himself. [11] Teach me, O Lord, in thy way, and guide me in a right path, because of mine enemies. [12] Deliver me not over to the desire of them that afflict me; for unjust witnesses have risen up against me, and injustice has lied within herself.

[13] I believe that I shall see the goodness of the Lord in the land of the living. [14] Wait on the Lord: be of good courage, and let thy heart be strengthened: yea wait on the Lord.

A Psalm of David.

[1] To thee, O Lord, have I cried; my God, be not silent toward me: lest thou be silent toward me, and so I should be likened to them that go down to the pit. [2] Hearken to the voice of my supplication, when I pray to thee, when I lift up my hands toward thy holy temple. [3] Draw not away my soul with sinners, and destroy me not with the workers of iniquity, who speak peace with their neighbours, but evils are in their hearts. [4] Give them according to their works, and according to the wickedness of their devices: give them according to the works of their hands; render their recompense unto them. [5] Because they have not attended to the works of the Lord, even to the works of his hands, thou shalt pull them down, and shalt not build them up.

[6] Blessed be the Lord, for he has hearkened to the voice of my petition. [7] The Lord is my helper and my defender; my heart has hoped in him, and I am helped: my flesh has revived, and willingly will I give praise to him. [8] The Lord is the strength of his people, and the saving defender of his anointed.

[9] Save thy people, and bless thine inheritance: and take care of them, and lift them up for ever.

Psalm 29

A Psalm of David on the occasion of the solemn assembly of the Tabernacle.

[1] Bring to the Lord, ye sons of God, bring to the Lord young rams; bring to the Lord glory and honour. [2] Bring to the Lord glory, due to his name; worship the lord in his holy court.

[3] The voice of the Lord is upon the waters: the God of glory has thundered: the Lord is upon many waters. [4] The voice of the Lord is mighty; the voice of the Lord is full of majesty. [5] There is the voice of the Lord who breaks the cedars; the Lord will break the cedars of Libanus. [6] And he will beat them small, even Libanus itself, like a calf; and the beloved one is as a young unicorn. [7] There is a voice of the Lord who divides a flame of fire. [8] A voice of the Lord who shakes the wilderness; the Lord will shake the wilderness of Cades. [9] The voice of the Lord strengthens the hinds, and will uncover the thickets: and in his temple every one speaks of his glory. [10] The Lord will dwell on the waterflood: and the Lord will sit a king for ever. [11] The Lord will give strength to his people; the Lord will bless his people with peace.

Psalm 30

For the end, a Psalm and Song at the dedication of the house of David.

[1] I will exalt thee, O Lord; for thou hast lifted me up, and not caused mine enemies to rejoice over me. [2] O Lord my God, I cried to thee, and thou didst heal me. [3] O Lord, thou hast brought up my soul from Hades, thou hast delivered me from among them that go down to the pit.

[4] Sing to the Lord, ye his saints, and give thanks for the remembrance of his holiness. [5] For anger is in his wrath, but life in his favour: weeping shall tarry for the evening, but joy shall be in the morning.

[6] And I said in my prosperity, I shall never be moved. [7] O Lord, in thy good pleasure thou didst add strength to my beauty: but thou didst turn away thy face, and I was troubled. [8] To thee, O Lord, will I cry; and to my God will I make supplication. [9] What profit is there in my blood, when I go down to destruction? Shall the dust give praise to thee? or shall it declare thy truth? [10] The Lord heard, and had compassion upon me; the Lord is become my helper. [11] Thou hast turned my mourning into joy for me: thou hast rent off my sackcloth, and girded me with gladness; [12] that my glory may sing praise to thee, and I may not be pierced with sorrow. O Lord my God, I will give thanks to thee for ever.

For the end, a Psalm of David, an utterance of extreme fear.

[1] O Lord, I have hoped in thee; let me never be ashamed: deliver me in thy righteousness and rescue me. [2] Incline thine ear to me; make haste to rescue me: be thou to me for a protecting God, and for a house of refuge to save me. [3] For thou art my strength and my refuge; and thou shalt guide me for thy name's sake, and maintain me. [4] Thou shalt bring me out of the snare which they have hidden for me; for thou, O Lord, art my defender. [5] Into thine hands I will commit my spirit: thou hast redeemed me, O Lord God of truth. [6] Thou has hated them that idly persist in vanities: but I have hoped in the Lord. [7] I will exult and be glad in thy mercy: for thou hast looked upon mine affliction; thou hast saved my soul from distresses. [8] And thou hast not shut me up into the hands of the enemy: thou hast set my feet in a wide place.

[9] Pity me, O Lord, for I am afflicted: my eye is troubled with indignation, my soul and by belly. [10] For my life is spent with grief, and my years with groanings: my strength has been weakened through poverty, and my bones are troubled. [11] I became a reproach among all mine enemies, but exceedingly so to my neighbours, and a fear to mine acquaintance: they that saw me without fled from me. [12] I have been forgotten as a dead man out of mind: I am become as a broken vessel. [13] For I heard the slander of many that dwelt round about: when they were gathered together against me, they took counsel to take my life.

[14] But I hoped in thee, O Lord: I said, Thou art my God. [15] My lots are in thy hands: deliver me from the hand of mine enemies, [16] and from them that persecute me. Make thy face to shine upon thy servant: save me in thy mercy. [17] O Lord, let me not be ashamed, for I have called upon thee: let the ungodly be ashamed, and brought down to Hades. [18] Let the deceitful lips become dumb, which speak iniquity against the righteous with pride and scorn.

[19] How abundant is the multitude of thy goodness, O Lord, which thou hast laid up for them that fear thee! thou hast wrought it out for them that hope on thee, in the presence of the sons of men. [20] Thou wilt hide them in the secret of thy presence from the vexation of man: thou wilt screen them in a tabernacle from the contradiction of tongues. [21] Blessed be the Lord: for he has magnified his mercy in a fortified city. [22] But I said in my extreme fear, I am cast out from the sight of thine eyes: therefore thou didst hearken, O Lord, to the voice of my supplication when I cried to thee.

[23] Love the Lord, all ye his saints: for the Lord seeks for truth, and renders a reward to them that deal very proudly. [24] Be of good courage, and let your heart be strengthened, all ye that hope in the Lord.

Psalm 32

A Psalm of instruction by David.

[1] Blessed are they whose transgressions are forgiven, and who sins are covered. [2] Blessed is the man to whom the Lord will not impute sin, and whose mouth there is no guile.

[3] Because I kept silence, my bones waxed old, from my crying all the day. [4] For day and night thy hand was heavy upon me: I became thoroughly miserable while a thorn was fastened in me. Pause. [5] I acknowledged my sin, and hid not mine iniquity: I said, I will confess mine iniquity to the Lord against myself; and thou forgavest the ungodliness of my heart. Pause. [6] Therefore shall every holy one pray to thee in a fit time: only in the deluge of many waters they shall not come nigh to him. [7] Thou art my refuge from the affliction that encompasses me; my joy, to deliver me from them that have compassed me. Pause.

[8] I will instruct thee and guide thee in this way wherein thou shalt go: I will fix mine eyes upon thee. [9] Be ye not as horse and mule, which have no understanding; but thou must constrain their jaws with bit and curb, lest they should come nigh to thee. [10] Many are the scourges of the sinner: but him that hopes in the Lord mercy shall compass about. [11] Be glad in the Lord, and exult, ye righteous: and glory, all ye that are upright in heart.

Psalm 33

A Psalm of David.

[1] Rejoice in the Lord, ye righteous; praise becomes the upright. [2] Praise the Lord on the harp; play to him on a psaltery of ten strings. [3] Sing to him a new song; play skillfully with a loud noise.

[4] For the word of the Lord is right; and all his works are faithful. [5] He loves mercy and judgment; the earth is full the mercy of the Lord. [6] By the word of the Lord the heavens were established; and all the host of them by the breath of his mouth. [7] Who gathers the waters of the sea as in a bottle; who lays up the deeps in treasures. [8] Let all the earth fear the Lord; and let all that dwell in the world be moved because of him. [9] For he spoke, and they were made; he commanded, and they were created. [10] The Lord frustrates the counsels of the nations; he brings to nought also the reasonings of the peoples, and brings to nought the counsels of princes. [11] But the counsel of the Lord endures for ever, the thoughts of his heart from generation to generation. [12] Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord; the people whom he has chosen for his own inheritance. [13] The Lord looks out of heaven; he beholds all the sons of men. [14] He looks from his prepared habitation on all the dwellers on the earth; [15] who fashioned their hearts alone; who understands all their works. [16] A king is not saved by reason of a great host; and a giant shall not be delivered by the greatness of his strength. [17] A horse is vain for safety; neither shall he be delivered by the greatness of his power.

[18] Behold, the eyes of the Lord are on them that fear him, those that hope in his mercy; [19] to deliver their souls from death, and to keep them alive in famine. [20] Our soul waits on the Lord; for he is our helper and defender. [21] For our heart shall rejoice in him, and we have hoped in his holy name. [22] Let thy mercy, O Lord, be upon us, according as we have hoped in thee.

Psalm 34

A Psalm of David, when he changed his countenance before Abimelech; and he let him go, and he departed.

[1] I will bless the Lord at all times: his praise shall be continually in my mouth. [2] My soul shall boast herself in the Lord: let the meek hear, and rejoice. [3] Magnify ye the Lord with me, and let us exalt his name together.

[4] I sought the Lord diligently, and he hearkened to me, and delivered me from all my sojournings. [5] Draw near to him, and be enlightened: and your faces shall not by any means be ashamed. [6] This poor man cried, and the Lord hearkened to him, and delivered him out of all his afflictions. [7] The angel of the Lord will encamp round about them that fear him, and will deliver them. [8] Taste and see that the Lord is good: blessed is the man who hopes in him. [9] Fear the Lord, all ye his saints: for there is no want to them that fear him. [10] The rich have become poor and hungry: but they that seek the Lord diligently shall not want any good thing. Pause.

[11] Come, ye children, hear me: I will teach you the fear of the Lord. [12] What man is there that desires life, loving to see good days? [13] Keep thy tongue from evil, and thy lips from speaking guile. [14] Turn away from evil, and do good; seek peace, and pursue it.

[15] The eyes of the Lord are over the righteous, and his ears are open to their prayer: [16] but the face of the Lord is against them that do evil, to destroy their memorial from the earth. The righteous cried, and the Lord hearkened to them, [17] and delivered them out of all their afflictions. [18] The Lord is near to them that are of a contrite heart; and will save the lowly in spirit. [19] Many are the afflictions of the righteous: but out of them all Lord will deliver them. [20] He keeps all their bones: not one of them shall be broken. [21] The death of sinners is evil: and they that hate righteousness will go wrong. [22] The Lord will redeem the souls of his servants: and none of those that hope in him shall go wrong.

Psalm 35

A Psalm of David.

[1] Judge thou, O Lord, them that injure me, fight against them that fight against me. [2] Take hold of shield and buckler, and arise for my help. [3] Bring forth a sword, and stop the way against them that persecute me: say to my soul, I am thy salvation. [4] Let them that seek my soul be ashamed and confounded: let them that devise evils against me be turned back and put to shame. [5] Let them be as dust before the wind, and an angel of the Lord afflicting them. [6] Let their way be dark and slippery, and an angel of the Lord persecuting them. [7] For without cause they have hid for me their destructive snare: without a cause they have reproached my soul.

[8] Let a snare which they know not come upon them; and the gin which they hid take them; and let them fall into the very same snare. [9] But my soul shall exult in the Lord: it shall delight in his salvation. [10] All my bones shall say, O Lord, who is like to thee? delivering the poor out of the hand of them that are stronger than he, yea, the poor and needy one from them that spoil him.

[11] Unjust witnesses arose, and asked me of things I new not. [12] They rewarded me evil for good, and bereavement to my soul. [13] But I, when they troubled me, put on sackcloth, and humbled my soul with fasting: and my prayer shall return to my own bosom. [14] I behaved agreeably towards them as if it had been our neighbour or brother: I humbled myself as one mourning and sad of countenance. [15] Yet they rejoiced against me, and plagues were plentifully brought against me, and I knew it not: they were scattered, but repented not. [16] They tempted me, they sneered at me most contemptuously, they gnashed their teeth upon me.

[17] O Lord, when wilt thou look upon me? Deliver my soul from their mischief, mine only-begotten one from the lions. [18] I will give thanks to thee even in a great congregation: in an abundant people I will praise thee. [19] Let not them that are mine enemies without a cause rejoice against me; who hate me for nothing, and wink with their eyes. [20] For to me they spoke peaceably, but imagined deceits in their anger. [21] And they opened wide their mouth upon me; they said Aha, aha, our eyes have seen it.

[22] Thou hast seen it, O Lord: keep not silence: O Lord, withdraw not thyself from me. [23] Awake, O Lord, and attend to my judgment, even to my cause, my God and my Lord. [24] Judge me, O Lord, according to thy righteousness, O Lord my God; and let them not rejoice against me. [25] Let them not say in their hearts, Aha, aha, it is pleasing to our soul: neither let them say, We have devoured him. [26] Let them be confounded and ashamed together that rejoice at my afflictions: let them be clothed with shame and confusion that speak great swelling words against me. [27] Let them that rejoice in my righteousness exult and be glad: and let them say continually, The Lord be magnified, who desire the peace of his servant. ^[28] And my tongue shall meditate on thy righteousness, and on thy praise all the day.

Psalm 36

For the end, by David the servant of the Lord.

[1] The transgressor, that he may sin, says within himself, that there is no fear of God before his eyes. [2] For he has dealt craftily before him, to discover his iniquity and hate it. [3] The words of his mouth are transgression and deceit: he is not inclined to understand how to do good. [4] He devises iniquity on his bed; he gives himself to every evil way; and does not abhor evil.

[5] O Lord, thy mercy is in the heaven; and thy truth reaches to the clouds. [6] Thy righteousness is as the mountains of God, thy judgments are as a great deep: O Lord, thou wilt preserve men and beasts. [7] How hast thou multiplied thy mercy, O God! so the children of men shall trust in the shelter of thy wings. [8] They shall be fully satisfied with the fatness of thine house; and thou shalt cause them to drink of the full stream of thy delights. [9] For with thee is the fountain of life: in thy light we shall see light.

[10] Extend thy mercy to them that know thee; and thy righteousness to the upright in heart. [11] Let not the foot of pride come against me, and let not the hand of sinners move me.

[12] There have all the workers of iniquity fallen: they are cast out, and shall not be able to stand.

Psalm 37

A Psalm of David.

[1] Fret not thyself because of evil-doers, neither be envious of them that do iniquity. [2] For they shall soon be withered as the grass, and shall soon fall away as the green herbs. [3] Hope in the Lord, and do good; and dwell on the land, and thou shalt be fed with the wealth of it. [4] Delight thyself in the Lord; and he shall grant thee the requests of thine heart. [5] Disclose thy way to the Lord, and hope in him; and he shall bring it to pass. [6] And he shall bring forth thy righteousness as the light, and thy judgment as the noon-day.

[7] Submit thyself to the Lord, and supplicate him: fret not thyself because of him that prospers in his way, at the man that does unlawful deeds. [8] ease from anger, and forsake wrath: fret not thyself so as to do evil. [9] For evil-doers shall be destroyed: but they that wait on the Lord, they shall inherit the land. [10] And yet a little while, and the sinner shall not be, and thou shalt seek for his place, and shalt not find it. [11] But the meek shall inherit the earth; and shall delight themselves in the abundance of peace.

[12] The sinner will watch for the righteous, and gnash his teeth upon him. [13] But the Lord shall laugh at him: for he foresees that his day will come. [14] Sinners have drawn their swords, they have bent their bow, to cast down the poor and needy one, and to slay the upright in heart. [15] Let their sword enter into their own heart, and their bows be broken.

[16] A little is better to the righteous than abundant wealth of sinners. [17] For the arms of sinners shall be broken; but the Lord supports the righteous.

[18] The Lord knows the ways of the perfect; and their inheritance shall be for ever. [19] They shall not be ashamed in an evil time; and in days of famine they shall be satisfied. [20] For the sinners shall perish; and the enemies of the Lord at the moment of their being honoured and exalted have utterly vanished like smoke. [21] The sinner borrows, and will not pay again: but the righteous has compassion, and gives. [22] For they that bless him shall inherit the earth; and they that curse him shall be utterly destroyed.

[23] The steps of a man are rightly ordered by the Lord: and he will take pleasure in his way. [24] When he falls, he shall not be ruined: for the Lord supports his hand. [25] I was once young, indeed I am now old; yet I have not seen the righteous forsaken, nor his seed seeking bread. [26] He is merciful, and lends continually; and his seed shall be blessed.

[27] Turn aside from evil, and do good; and dwell for ever. [28] For the Lord loves judgment, and will not forsake his saints; they shall be preserved for ever: the blameless shall be avenged, but the seed of the ungodly shall be utterly destroyed. [29] But the righteous shall inherit the earth, and dwell upon it for ever.

[30] The mouth of the righteous will meditate wisdom, and his tongue will speak of judgment. [31] The law of his God is in his heart; and his steps shall not slide. [32] The sinner watches the righteous, and seeks to slay him. [33] But the Lord will not leave him in his hands, nor by any means condemn him when he is judged. [34] Wait on the Lord, and keep his way, and he shall exalt thee to inherit the land: when the wicked are destroyed, thou shalt see it.

[35] I saw the ungodly very highly exalting himself, and lifting himself up like the cedars of Libanus. [36] Yet I passed by, and lo! he was not: and I sought him, but his place was not found. [37] Maintain innocence, and behold uprightness: for there is a remnant to the peaceable man. [38] But the transgressors shall be utterly destroyed together: the remnants of the ungodly shall be utterly destroyed. [39] But the salvation of the righteous is of the Lord; and he is their defender in the time of affliction. [40] And the Lord shall help them, and deliver them: and he shall rescue them from sinners, and save them, because they have hoped in him.

Psalm 38

A Psalm of David for remembrance concerning the Sabbath-day.

[1] O Lord, rebuke me not in thy wrath, neither chasten me in thine anger. [2] For thy weapons are fixed in me, and thou hast pressed thy hand heavily upon me.

[3] For there is no health in my flesh because of thine anger; there is no peace to my bones because of my sins. [4] For my transgressions have gone over mine head: they have pressed heavily upon me like a weighty burden. [5] My bruises have become noisome and corrupt, because of my foolishness. [6] I have been wretched and bowed down continually: I went with a mourning countenance all the day. [7] For my soul is filled with mockings; and there is no health in my flesh. [8] I have been afflicted and brought down exceedingly: I have roared for the groaning of my heart.

[9] But all my desire is before thee; and my groaning is not hidden from thee. [10] My heart is troubled, my strength has failed me; and the light of mine eyes is not with me. [11] My friends and my neighbours drew near before me, and stood still; and my nearest of kin stood afar off. [12] While they pressed hard upon me that sought my soul: and they that sought my hurt spoke vanities, and devised deceits all the day. [13] But I, as a deaf man, heard not; and was as a dumb man not opening his mouth. [14] And I was as a man that hears not, and who has no reproofs in his mouth.

[15] For I hoped in thee, O Lord: thou wilt hear, O Lord my God. [16] For I said, Lest mine enemies rejoice against me: for when my feet were moved, they spoke boastingly against me. [17] For I am ready for plagues, and my grief is continually before me. [18] For I will declare mine iniquity, and be distressed for my sin. [19] But mine enemies live, and are mightier than I: and they that hate me unjustly are multiplied. [20] They that reward evil for good slandered me; because I followed righteousness. [21] Forsake me not, O Lord my God: depart not from me. [22] Draw nigh to my help, O Lord of my salvation.

For the end, a Song of David, to Idithun.

[1] I said, I will take heed to my ways, that I sin not with my tongue: I set a guard on my mouth, while the sinner stood in my presence. [2] I was dumb, and humbled myself, and kept silence from good words; and my grief was renewed. [3] My heart grew hot within me, and a fire would kindle in my meditation: I spoke with my tongue,

[4] O Lord, make me to know mine end, and the number of my days, what it is; that I may know what I lack. [5] Behold, thou hast made my days old; and my existence is as nothing before thee: nay, every man living is altogether vanity. Pause. [6] Surely man walks in a shadow; nay, he is disquieted in vain: he lays up treasures, and knows not for whom he shall gather them.

[7] And now what is my expectation? is it not the Lord? and my ground of hope is with thee. Pause. [8] Deliver me from all my transgressions: thou hast made me a reproach to the foolish. [9] I was dumb, and opened not my mouth; for thou art he that made me. [10] Remove thy scourges from me: I have fainted by reason of the strength of thine hand. [11] Thou chastenest man with rebukes for iniquity, and thou makest his life to consume away like a spider's web; nay, every man is disquieted in vain. Pause.

[12] O Lord, hearken to my prayer and my supplication: attend to my tears: be not silent, for I am a sojourner in the land, and a stranger, as all my fathers were. [13] Spare me, that I may be refreshed, before I depart, and be no more.

For the end, a Psalm of David.

[1] I waited patiently for the Lord; and he attended to me, and hearkened to my supplication. [2] And he brought me up out of a pit of misery, and from miry clay: and he set my feet on a rock, and ordered my goings aright. [3] And he put a new song into my mouth, even a hymn to our God: many shall see it, and fear, and shall hope in the Lord. [4] Blessed is the man whose hope is in the name of the Lord, and who has not regarded vanities and false frenzies.

[5] O Lord my God, thou hast multiplied thy wonderful works, and in thy thoughts there is none who shall be likened to thee: I declared and spoke of them: they exceeded number. [6] Sacrifice and offering thou wouldest not; but a body hast thou prepared me: whole-burnt-offering and sacrifice for sin thou didst not require. [7] Then I said, Behold, I come: in the volume of the book it is written concerning me, [8] I desired to do thy will, O my God, and thy law in the midst of mine heart. [9] I have preached righteousness in the great congregation; lo! I will not refrain my lips; O Lord, thou knowest my righteousness. [10] I have not hid thy truth within my heart, and I have declared thy salvation; I have not hid thy mercy and thy truth from the great congregation.

[11] But thou, Lord, remove not thy compassion far from me; thy mercy and thy truth have helped me continually. [12] For innumerable evils have encompassed me; my transgressions have taken hold of me, and I could not see; they are multiplied more than the hairs of my head; and my heart has failed me. [13] Be pleased, O Lord, to deliver me; O Lord, draw nigh to help me. [14] Let those that seek my soul, to destroy it, be ashamed and confounded together; let those that wish me evil be turned backward and put to shame. [15] Let those that say to me, Aha, aha, quickly receive shame for their reward. [16] Let all those that seek thee, O Lord, exult and rejoice in thee; and let them that love thy salvation say continually, The Lord be magnified. [17] But I am poor and needy; the Lord will take care of me; thou art my helper, and my defender, O my God, delay not.

For the end, a Psalm of David.

[1] Blessed is the man who thinks, on the poor and needy: the Lord shall deliver him in an evil day. [2] May the Lord preserve him and keep him alive, and bless him on the earth, and not deliver him into the hands of his enemy. [3] May the Lord help him upon the bed of his pain; thou hast made all his bed in his sickness.

[4] I said, O Lord, have mercy upon me; heal my soul; for I have sinned against thee. [5] Mine enemies have spoken evil against me, saying, When shall he die, and his name perish? [6] And if he came to see me, his heart spoke vainly; he gathered iniquity to himself; he went forth and spoke in like manner. [7] All my enemies whispered against me; against me they devised my hurt. [8] They denounced a wicked word against me, saying, Now that he lies, shall he not rise up again? [9] For even the man of my peace, in whom I trusted, who ate my bread, lifted up his heel against me.

[10] But thou, O Lord, have compassion upon me, and raise me up, and I shall requite them. [11] By this I know that thou hast delighted in me, because mine enemy shall not rejoice over me. [12] But thou didst help me because of mine innocence, and hast established me before thee for ever. [13] Blessed be the Lord God of Israel from everlasting, and to everlasting. So be it, so be it.

For the end, a Psalm for instruction, for the sons of Core.

[1] As the hart earnestly desires the fountains of water, so my soul earnestly longs for thee, O God. [2] My soul has thirsted for the living God: when shall I come and appear before God? [3] My tears have been bread to me day and night, while they daily said to me, Where is thy God? [4] I remembered these things, and poured out my soul in me, for I will go to the place of thy wondrous tabernacle, even to the house of God, with a voice of exultation and thanksgiving and of the sound of those who keep festival.

[5] Wherefore art thou very sad, O my soul? and wherefore dost thou trouble me? hope in God; for I will give thanks to him; he is the salvation of my countenance.

[6] O my God, my soul has been troubled within me: therefore will I remember thee from the land of Jordan, and of the Ermonites, from the little hill. [7] Deep calls to deep at the voice of thy cataracts: all thy billows and thy waves have gone over me. [8] By day the Lord will command his mercy, and manifest it by night: with me is prayer to the God of my life. [9] I will say to God, Thou art my helper; why hast thou forgotten me? wherefore do I go sad of countenance, while the enemy oppresses me? [10] While my bones were breaking, they that afflicted me reproached me; while they said to me daily, Where is thy God?

[11] Wherefore art thou very sad, O my soul? and wherefore dost thou trouble me? hope in God; for I will give thanks to him; he is the health of my countenance, and my God.

Psalm 43

A Psalm of David.

[1] Judge me, o God, and plead my cause, against an ungodly nation: deliver me from the unjust and crafty man. [2] For thou, O God, art my strength: wherefore hast thou cast me off? and why do I go sad of countenance, while the enemy oppresses me? [3] Send forth thy light and thy truth: they have led me, and brought me to thy holy mountain, and to thy tabernacles. [4] And I will go in to the altar of God, to God who gladdens my youth: I will give thanks to thee on the harp, O God, my God.

[5] Wherefore art thou very sad, O my soul? and wherefore dost thou trouble me? Hope in God; for I will give thanks to him, who is the health of my countenance, and my God.

Psalm 44

For the end, a Psalm for instruction, for the sons of Core.

[1] O God, we have heard with our ears, our fathers have told us, the work which thou wroughtest in their days, in the days of old. [2] Thine hand utterly destroyed the heathen, and thou didst plant them: thou didst afflict the nations, and cast them out. [3] For they inherited not the land by their own sword, and their own arm did not deliver them; but thy right hand, and thine arm, and the light of thy countenance, because thou wert well pleased in them.

[4] Thou art indeed my King and my God, who commandest deliverances for Jacob. [5] In thee will we push down our enemies, and in thy name will we bring to nought them that rise up against us. [6] For I will not trust in my bow, and my sword shall not save me. [7] For thou hast saved us from them that afflicted us, and hast put to shame them that hated us. [8] In God will we make our boast all the day, and to thy name will we give thanks for ever. Pause.

[9] But now thou hast cast off, and put us to shame; and thou wilt not go forth with our hosts. [10] Thou hast turned us back before our enemies; and they that hated us spoiled for themselves. [11] Thou madest us as sheep for meat; and thou scatteredst us among the nations. [12] Thou hast sold thy people without price, and there was no profit by their exchange. [13] Thou hast made us a reproach to our neighbours, a scorn and derision them that are round about us. [14] Thou hast made us a proverb among the Gentiles, a shaking of the head among the nations. [15] All the day my shame is before me, and the confusion of my face has covered me, [16] because of the voice of the slanderer and reviler; because of the enemy and avenger.

[17] All these things are come upon us: but we have not forgotten thee, neither have we dealt unrighteously in thy covenant. [18] And our heart has not gone back; but thou hast turned aside our paths from thy way. [19] For thou hast laid us low in a place of affliction, and the shadow of death has covered us. [20] If we have forgotten the name of our God, and if we have spread out our hands to a strange god; shall not God search these things out? [21] for he knows the secrets of the heart. [22] For, for thy sake we are killed all the day long; we are counted as sheep for slaughter.

[23] Awake, wherefore sleepest thou, O Lord? arise, and do not cast us off for ever. [24] Wherefore turnest thou thy face away, and forgettest our poverty and our affliction? [25] For our soul has been brought down to the dust; our belly has cleaved to the earth. [26] Arise, O Lord, help us, and redeem us for thy name's sake.

For the end, for alternate strains by the sons of Core; for instruction, a Song concerning the beloved.

[1] My heart has uttered a good matter: I declare my works to the king: my tongue is the pen of a quick writer. [2] Thou art more beautiful than the sons of men: grace has been shed forth on thy lips: therefore God has blessed thee for ever. [3] Gird thy sword upon thy thigh, O Mighty One, in thy comeliness, and in thy beauty; [4] and bend thy bow, and prosper, and reign, because of truth and meekness and righteousness; and thy right hand shall guide thee wonderfully. [5] Thy weapons are sharpened, Mighty One, (the nations shall fall under thee) they are in the heart of the king's enemies.

[6] Thy throne, O God, is for ever and ever: the sceptre of thy kingdom is a sceptre of righteousness. [7] Thou hast loved righteousness, and hated iniquity: therefore God, thy God, has anointed thee with the oil of gladness beyond thy fellows.

[8] Myrrh, and stacte, and cassia are exhaled from thy garments, and out of the ivory palaces, [9] with which kings' daughters have gladdened thee for thine honour: the queen stood by on thy right hand, clothed in vesture wrought with gold, and arrayed in divers colours. [10] Hear, O daughter, and see, and incline thine ear; forget also thy people, and thy father's house. [11] Because the king has desired thy beauty; for he is thy Lord. [12] And the daughter of Tyre shall adore him with gifts; the rich of the people of the land shall supplicate thy favour.

[13] All her glory is that of the daughter of the king of Esebon, robed as she is in golden fringed garments, [14] in embroidered clothing: virgins shall be brought to the king after her: her fellows shall be brought to thee. [15] They shall be brought with gladness and exultation: they shall be led into the king's temple. [16] Instead of thy fathers children are born to thee: thou shalt make them princes over all the earth. [17] They shall make mention of thy name from generation to generation: therefore shall the nations give thanks to thee for ever, even for ever and ever.

For the end, for the sons of Core; a Psalm concerning secret things.

[1] God is our refuge and strength, a help in the afflictions that have come heavily upon us. [2] Therefore will we not fear when the earth is troubled, and the mountains are removed into the depths of the seas. [3] Their waters have roared and been troubled, the mountains have been troubled by his might. Pause. [4] The flowings of the river gladden the city of God: the Most High has sanctified his tabernacle. [5] God is in the midst of her; she shall not be moved: God shall help her with his countenance. [6] The nations were troubled, the kingdoms tottered: he uttered his voice, the earth shook. [7] The Lord of hosts is with us; the God of Jacob is our helper. Pause.

[8] Come, and behold the works of the Lord, what wonders he has achieved on the earth. [9] Putting an end to wars as for the ends of the earth; he will crush the bow, and break in pieces the weapon, and burn the bucklers with fire. [10] Be still, and know that I am God: I will be exalted among the nations, I will be exalted in the earth. [11] The Lord of hosts is with us; the God of Jacob is our helper.

Psalm 47

For the end, a Psalm for the sons of Core.

[1] Clap your hands, all ye nations; shout to God with a voice of exultation. [2] For the Lord most high is terrible; he is a great king over all the earth. [3] He has subdued the peoples under us, and the nations under our feet. [4] He has chosen out his inheritance for us, the beauty of Jacob which he loved. Pause.

[5] God is gone up with a shout, the Lord with a sound of a trumpet. [6] Sing praises to our God, sing praises: sing praises to our King, sing praises. [7] For God is king of all the earth: sing praises with understanding. [8] God reigns over the nations: God sits upon the throne of his holiness. [9] The rulers of the people are assembled with the God of Abraam: for God's mighty ones of the earth have been greatly exalted.

Psalm 48

A Psalm of praise for the sons of Core on the second day of the week.

[1] Great is the Lord, and greatly to be praised in the city of our God, in his holy mountain. [2] The city of the great King is well planted on the mountains of Sion, with the joy of the whole earth, on the sides of the north. [3] God is known in her palaces, when he undertakes to help her.

[4] For, behold the kings of the earth were assembled, they came together. [5] They saw, and so they wondered: they were troubled, they were moved. [6] Trembling took hold on them: there were the pangs as of a woman in travail. [7] Thou wilt break the ships of Tharsis with a vehement wind. [8] As we have heard, so have we also seen, in the city of the Lord of hosts, in the city of our God: God has founded it for ever. Pause.

[9] We have thought of thy mercy, O God, in the midst of thy people. [10] According to thy name, O God, so is also thy praise to the ends of the earth: thy right hand is full of righteousness. [11] Let mount Sion rejoice, let the daughters of Judaea exult, because of thy judgments, O Lord.

[12] Go round about Sion, and encompass her: tell ye her towers. [13] Mark ye well her strength, and observe her palaces; that ye may tell the next generation. [14] For this is our God for ever and ever: he will be our guide for evermore.

Psalm 49

For the end, a Psalm for the sons of Core.

[1] Hear these words, all ye nations, hearken, all ye that dwell upon the earth: [2] both the sons of mean men, and sons of great men; the rich and poor man together. [3] My mouth shall speak of wisdom; and the meditation of my heart shall bring forth understanding. [4] I will incline mine ear to a parable: I will open my riddle on the harp.

[5] Wherefore should I fear in the evil day? the iniquity of my heel shall compass me. [6] They that trust in their strength, and boast themselves in the multitude of their wealth — [7] A brother does not redeem, shall a man redeem? he shall not give to God a ransom for himself, [8] or the price of the redemption of his soul, though he labour for ever, [9] and live to the end, so that he should not see corruption.

[10] When he shall see wise men dying, the fool and the senseless one shall perish together; and they shall leave their wealth to strangers. [11] And their sepulchres are their houses for ever, even their tabernacles to all generations: they have called their lands after their own names. [12] And man being in honour, understands not: he is compared to the senseless cattle, and is like to them. [13] This their way is an offence to them: yet afterwards men will commend their sayings. Pause. [14] They have laid them as sheep in Hades; death shall feed on them; and the upright shall have dominion over them in the morning, and their help shall fail in Hades from their glory. [15] But God shall deliver my soul from the power of Hades, when he shall receive me. Pause.

[16] Fear not when a man is enriched, and when the glory of his house is increased. [17] For he shall take nothing when he dies; neither shall his glory descend with him. [18] For his soul shall be blessed in his life: he shall give thanks to thee when thou dost well to him. [19] Yet he shall go in to the generation of his fathers; he shall never see light. [20] Man that is in honour, understands not: he is compared to the senseless cattle, and is like them.

A Psalm for Asaph.

[1] The God of gods, the Lord, has spoken, and called the earth from the rising of the sun to the going down thereof. [2] Out of Sion comes the excellence of his beauty. [3] God, our God, shall come manifestly, and shall not keep silence: a fire shall be kindled before him, and round about him there shall be a very great tempest. [4] He shall summon the heaven above, and the earth, that he may judge his people. [5] Assemble ye his saints to him, those that have engaged in a covenant with him upon sacrifices. [6] And the heavens shall declare his righteousness: for God is judge. Pause.

[7] Hear, my people, and I will speak to thee, O Israel: and I will testify to thee: I am God, thy God. [8] I will not reprove thee on account of thy sacrifices; for thy whole-burnt-offerings are before me continually. [9] I will take no bullocks out of thine house, nor he-goats out of thy flocks. [10] For all the wild beasts of the thicket are mine, the cattle on the mountains, and oxen. [11] I know all the birds of the sky; and the beauty of the field is mine. [12] If I should be hungry, I will not tell thee: for the world is mine, and the fullness of it. [13] Will I eat the flesh of bulls, or drink the blood of goats? [14] Offer to God the sacrifice of praise; and pay thy vows to the Most High. [15] And call upon me in the day of affliction; and I will deliver thee, and thou shalt glorify me. Pause.

[16] But to the sinner God has said, Why dost thou declare my ordinances, and take up my covenant in thy mouth? [17] Whereas thou hast hated instruction, and hast cast my words behind thee. [18] If thou sawest a thief, thou rannest along with him, and hast cast in thy lot with adulterers. [19] Thy mouth has multiplied wickedness, and thy tongue has framed deceit. [20] Thou didst sit and speak against thy brother, and didst scandalize thy mother's son.

[21] These things thou didst, and I kept silence: thou thoughtest wickedly that I should be like thee, but I will reprove thee, and set thine offences before thee. [22] Now consider these things, ye that forget God, lest he rend you, and there is no deliverer.

[23] The sacrifice of praise will glorify me: and that is the way wherein I will shew to him the salvation of God.

Psalm 51

For the end, a Psalm of David, when Nathan the prophet came to him, when he had gone to Bersabee.

[1] Have mercy upon me, O God, according to thy great mercy; and according to the multitude of thy compassions blot out my transgression. [2] Wash me thoroughly from mine iniquity, and cleanse me from my sin.

[3] For I am conscious of mine iniquity; and my sin is continually before me. [4] Against thee only have I sinned, and done evil before thee: that thou mightest be justified in thy sayings, and mightest overcome when thou art judged. [5] For, behold, I was conceived in iniquities, and in sins did my mother conceive me.

[6] For, behold, thou lovest truth: thou hast manifested to me the secret and hidden things of thy wisdom. [7] Thou shalt sprinkle me with hyssop, and I shall be purified: thou shalt wash me, and I shall be made whiter than snow. [8] Thou shalt cause me to hear gladness and joy: the afflicted bones shall rejoice. [9] Turn away thy face from my sins, and blot out all mine iniquities. [10] Create in me a clean heart, O God; and renew a right spirit in my inward parts. [11] Cast me not away from thy presence; and remove not thy holy Spirit from me. [12] Restore to me the joy of thy salvation: establish me with thy directing Spirit.

[13] Then will I teach transgressors thy ways; and ungodly men shall turn to thee. [14] Deliver me from blood-guiltiness, O God, the God of my salvation: and my tongue shall joyfully declare thy righteousness. [15] O Lord, thou shalt open my lips; and my mouth shall declare thy praise. [16] For if thou desiredst sacrifice, I would have given it: thou wilt not take pleasure in whole-burnt-offerings. [17] Sacrifice to God is a broken spirit: a broken and humbled heart God will not despise.

[18] Do good, O Lord, to Sion in thy good pleasure; and let the walls of Jerusalem be built. [19] Then shalt thou be pleased with a sacrifice of righteousness, offering, and whole-burnt-sacrifices: then shall they offer calves upon thine altar.

Psalm 52

For the end, a Psalm of instruction by David, when Doeg the Idumean came and told Saul, and said to him, David is gone to the house of Abimelech.

[1] Why dost thou, O mighty man, boast of iniquity in thy mischief? All the day [2] thy tongue has devised unrighteousness; like a sharpened razor thou hast wrought deceit. [3] Thou hast loved wickedness more than goodness; unrighteousness better than to speak righteousness. Pause. [4] Thou has loved all words of destruction, and a deceitful tongue.

[5] Therefore may God destroy thee for ever, may he pluck thee up and utterly remove thee from thy dwelling, and thy root from the land of the living. Pause. [6] And the righteous shall see, and fear, and shall laugh at him, and say, [7] Behold the man who made not God his help; but trusted in the abundance of his wealth, and strengthened himself in his vanity.

[8] But I am as a fruitful olive in the house of God: I have trusted in the mercy of God for ever, even for evermore. [9] I will give thanks to thee for ever, for thou hast done it: and I will wait on thy name; for it is good before the saints.

[1] The fool has said in his heart, There is no God. They have corrupted themselves, and become abominable in iniquities: there is none that does good. [2] God looked down from heaven upon the sons of men, to see if there were any that understood, or sought after God. [3] They have all gone out of the way, they are together become unprofitable; there is none that does good, there is not even one.

[4] Will none of the workers of iniquity know, who devour my people as they would eat bread? they have not called upon God. There were they greatly afraid, where there was no fear: [5] or God has scattered the bones of the men-pleasers; they were ashamed, for God despised them. [6] Who will bring the salvation of Israel out of Sion? When the Lord turns the captivity of his people, Jacob shall exult, and Israel shall be glad.

For the end, among Hymns of instruction by David, when the Ziphites came and said to Saul, Lo, is not David hid with us?

[1] Save me, O God, by thy name, and judge me by thy might. [2] O God, hear my prayer; hearken to the words of my mouth. [3] For strangers have risen up against me, and mighty men have sought my life: they have not set God before them. Pause.

[4] For lo! God assists me; and the Lord is the helper of my soul. [5] He shall return evil to mine enemies; utterly destroy them in thy truth. [6] I will willingly sacrifice to thee: I will give thanks to thy name, O Lord; for it is good. [7] For thou hast delivered me out of all affliction, and mine eye has seen my desire upon mine enemies.

For the end, among Hymns of instruction by David.

[1] Hearken, O God, to my prayer; and disregard not my supplication. [2] Attend to me, and hearken to me: I was grieved in my meditation, and troubled; [3] because of the voice of the enemy, and because of the oppression of the sinner: for they brought iniquity against me, and were wrathfully angry with me.

[4] My heart was troubled within me; and the fear of death fell upon me. [5] Fear and trembling came upon me, and darkness covered me. [6] And I said, O that I had wings as those of a dove! then would I flee away, and be at rest. [7] Lo! I have fled afar off, and lodged in the wilderness. Pause. [8] I waited for him that should deliver me from distress of spirit and tempest.

[9] Destroy, O Lord, and divide their tongues: for I have seen iniquity and gain saying in the city. [10] Day and night he shall go round about it upon its walls: iniquity and sorrow and unrighteousness are in the midst of it; [11] and usury and craft have not failed from its streets.

[12] For if an enemy had reproached me, I would have endured it; and if one who hated me had spoken vauntingly against me, I would have hid myself from him. [13] But thou, O man like minded, my guide, and my acquaintance, [14] who in companionship with me sweetened our food: we walked in the house of God in concord. [15] Let death come upon them, and let them go down alive into Hades, for iniquity is in their dwellings, in the midst of them.

[16] I cried to God, and the Lord hearkened to me. [17] Evening, and morning, and at noon I will declare and make known my wants: and he shall hear my voice. [18] He shall deliver my soul in peace from them that draw nigh to me: for they were with me in many cases. [19] God shall hear, and bring them low, even he that has existed from eternity. Pause.

For they suffer no reverse, and therefore they have not feared God. [20] He has reached forth his hand for retribution; they have profaned his covenant. [21] They were scattered at the anger of his countenance, and his heart drew nigh them. His words were smoother than oil, yet are they darts.

[22] Cast thy care upon the Lord, and he shall sustain thee; he shall never suffer the righteous to be moved. [23] But thou, O God, shalt bring them down to the pit of destruction; bloody and crafty men shall not live out half their days; but I will hope in thee, O Lord.

Psalm 56

For the end, concerning the people that were removed from the sanctuary, by David for a memorial, when the Philistines caught him in Geth.

[1] Have mercy upon me, O God; for man has trodden me down; all the day long he warring has afflicted me. [2] Mine enemies have trodden me down all the day from the dawning of the day; for there are many warring against me.

[3] They shall be afraid, but I will trust in thee. [4] In God I will praise my words; all the day have I hoped in God; I will not fear what flesh shall do to me.

[5] All the day long they have abominated my words; all their devices are against me for evil. [6] They will dwell near and hide themselves; they will watch my steps, accordingly as I have waited patiently in my soul. [7] Thou wilt on no account save them; thou wilt bring down the people in wrath. [8] O God, I have declared my life to thee; thou has set my tears before thee, even according to thy promise.

[9] Mine enemies shall be turned back, in the day wherein I shall call upon thee; behold, I know that thou art my God. [10] In God, will I praise his word; in the Lord will I praise his saying. [11] I have hoped in God; I will not be afraid of what man shall do to me. [12] The vows of thy praise, O God, which I will pay, are upon me. [13] For thou hast delivered my soul from death, and my feet from sliding, that I should be well-pleasing before God in the land of the living.

For the end. Destroy not: by David, for a memorial, when he fled from the presence of Saul to the cave.

[1] Have mercy, upon me, O God, have mercy upon me: for my soul has trusted in thee: and in the shadow of thy wings will I hope, until the iniquity have passed away. [2] I will cry to God most high; the God who has benefited me. Pause. [3] He sent from heaven and saved me; he gave to reproach them that trampled on me: God has sent forth his mercy and his truth; [4] and he has delivered my soul from the midst of lions 'whelps: I lay down to sleep, though troubled. As for the sons of men, their teeth are arms and missile weapons, and their tongue a sharp sword.

[5] Be thou exalted, O God, above the heavens; and thy glory above all the earth. [6] They have prepared snares for my feet, and have bowed down my soul: they have dug a pit before my face, and fallen into it themselves. Pause. [7] My heart, O God, is ready, my heart is ready: I will sing, yea will sing psalms. [8] Awake, my glory; awake, psaltery and harp: I will awake early. [9] O Lord, I will give thanks to thee among the nations: I will sing to thee among the Gentiles. [10] For thy mercy has been magnified even to the heavens, and thy truth to the clouds. [11] Be thou exalted, O God, above the heavens; and thy glory above all the earth.

For the end. Destroy not: by David, for a memorial.

[1] If ye do indeed speak righteousness, then do ye judge rightly, ye sons of men. [2] For ye work iniquities in your hearts in the earth: your hands plot unrighteousness. [3] Sinners have gone astray from the womb: they go astray from the belly: they speak lies. [4] Their venom is like that of a serpent; as that of a deaf asp, and that stops her ears; [5] which will not hear the voice of charmers, nor heed the charm prepared skillfully by the wise.

[6] God has crushed their teeth in their mouth: God has broken the cheek-teeth of the lions. [7] They shall utterly pass away like water running through: he shall bend his bow till they shall fail. [8] They shall be destroyed as melted wax: the fire has fallen and they have not seen the sun. [9] Before your thorns feel the white thorn, he shall swallow you up as living, as in his wrath.

[10] The righteous shall rejoice when he sees the vengeance of the ungodly: he shall wash his hands in the blood of the sinner. [11] And a man shall say, Verily then there is a reward for the righteous: verily there is a God that judges them in the earth.

Psalm 59

For the end. Destroy not: by David for a memorial, when Saul sent, and watched his house to kill him.

[1] Deliver me from mine enemies, O God; and ransom me from those that rise up against me. [2] Deliver me from the workers of iniquity, and save me from bloody men.

[3] For, behold, they have hunted after my soul; violent men have set upon me: neither is it my iniquity, nor my sin, O Lord. [4] Without iniquity I ran and directed my course aright: awake to help me, and behold. [5] And thou, Lord God of hosts, the God of Israel, draw nigh to visit all the heathen; pity not any that work iniquity. Pause. [6] They shall return at evening, and hunger like a dog, and go round about the city.

[7] Behold, they shall utter a voice with their mouth, and a sword is in their lips; for who, say they, has heard? [8] But thou, Lord, wilt laugh them to scorn; thou wilt utterly set at nought all the heathen. [9] will keep my strength, looking to thee; for thou, O God, art my helper. [10] As for my God, his mercy shall go before me: my God will shew me vengeance on mine enemies.

[11] Slay them not, lest they forget thy law; scatter them by thy power; and bring them down, O Lord, my defender. [12] For the sin of their mouth, and the word of their lips, let them be even taken in their pride. [13] And for their cursing and falsehood shall utter destruction be denounced: they shall fall by the wrath of utter destruction, and shall not be; so shall they know that the God of Jacob is Lord of the ends of the earth. Pause. [14] They shall return at evening, and be hungry as a dog, and go round about the city. [15] They shall be scattered hither and thither for meat; and if they be not satisfied, they shall even murmur.

[16] But I will sing to thy strength, and in the morning will I exult in thy mercy; for thou hast been my supporter, and my refuge in the day of mine affliction. [17] Thou art my helper; to thee, my God, will I sing; thou art my supporter, O my God, and my mercy.

Psalm 60

For the end, for them that shall yet be changed; for an inscription by David for instruction, when he had burned Mesopotamia of Syria, and Syria Sobal, and Joab had returned and smitten in the valley of salt twelve thousand.

[1] O God, thou hast rejected and destroyed us; thou hast been angry, yet hast pitied us. [2] Thou hast shaken the earth, and troubled it; heal its breaches, for it has been shaken. [3] Thou hast shewn thy people hard things: thou has made us drink the wine of astonishment. [4] Thou hast given a token to them that fear thee, that they might flee from the bow. Pause. [5] That thy beloved ones may be delivered; save with thy right hand, and hear me.

[6] God has spoken in his holiness; I will rejoice, and divide Sicima, and measure out the valley of tents. [7] Galaad is mine, and Manasse is mine; and Ephraim is the strength of my head; [8] Judas is my king; Moab is the caldron of my hope; over Idumea will I stretch out my shoe; the Philistines have been subjected to me.

[9] Who will lead me into the fortified city? who will guide me as far as Idumea? [10] Wilt not thou, O God, who hast cast us off? and wilt not thou, O God, go forth with our forces? [11] Give us help from trouble: for vain is the deliverance of man.

[12] In God will we do valiantly; and he shall bring to nought them that harass us.

Psalm 61

For the end, among the Hymns of David.

[1] O God, hearken to my petition; attend to my prayer. [2] From the ends of the earth have I cried to thee, when my heart was in trouble: thou liftedst me up on a rock thou didst guide me: [3] because thou wert my hope, a tower of strength from the face of the enemy. [4] I will dwell in thy tabernacle for ever; I will shelter myself under the shadow of thy wings. Pause.

[5] For thou, o God, hast heard my prayers; thou hast given an inheritance to them that fear thy name. [6] Thou shalt add days to the days of the king; thou shalt lengthen his years to all generations. [7] He shall endure for ever before God: which of them will seek out his mercy and truth? [8] So will I sing to thy name for ever and ever, that I may daily perform my vows.

For the end, a Psalm of David for Idithun.

[1] Shall not my soul be subjected to God? for of him is my salvation. [2] For he is my God, and my saviour; my helper, I shall not be moved very much. [3] How long will ye assault a man? ye are all slaughtering as with a bowed wall and a broken hedge. [4] They only took counsel to set at nought mine honour: I ran in thirst: with their mouth they blessed, but with their heart they cursed. Pause.

[5] Nevertheless do thou, my soul, be subjected to God; for of him is my patient hope. [6] For he is my God and my Saviour; my helper, I shall not be moved. [7] In God is my salvation and my glory: he is the God of my help, and my hope is in God. [8] Hope in him, all ye congregation of the people; pour out your hearts before him, for God is our helper. Pause.

[9] But the sons of men are vain; the sons of men are false, so as to be deceitful in the balances; they are all alike formed out of vanity. [10] Trust not in unrighteousness, and lust not after robberies: if wealth should flow in, set not your heart upon it. [11] God has spoken once, and I have heard these two things, that power is of God; [12] and mercy is thine, O Lord; for thou wilt recompense every one according to his works.

A Psalm of David, when he was in the wilderness of Idumea.

[1] O God, my God, I cry to thee early; my soul has thirsted for thee: how often has my flesh longed after thee, in a barren and trackless and dry land! [2] Thus have I appeared before thee in the sanctuary, that I might see thy power and thy glory. [3] For thy mercy is better than life: my lips shall praise thee. [4] Thus will I bless thee during my life: I will lift up my hands in thy name. [5] Let my soul be filled as with marrow and fatness; and my joyful lips shall praise thy name.

[6] Forasmuch as I have remembered thee on my bed: in the early seasons I have meditated on thee. [7] For thou hast been my helper, and in the shelter of thy wings will I rejoice. [8] My soul has kept very close behind thee: thy right hand has upheld me. [9] But they vainly sought after my soul; they shall go into the lowest parts of the earth. [10] They shall be delivered up to the power of the sword; they shall be portions for foxes. [11] But the king shall rejoice in God; every one that swears by him shall be praised; for the mouth of them that speak unjust things has been stopped.

For the end, a Psalm of David.

[1] Hear my prayer, O God, when I make my petition to thee; deliver my soul from fear of the enemy. [2] Thou hast sheltered me from the conspiracy of them that do wickedly; from the multitude of them that work iniquity; [3] who have sharpened their tongues as a sword; they have bent their bow maliciously; [4] to shoot in secret at the blameless; they will shoot him suddenly, and will not fear. [5] They have set up for themselves an evil matter, they have given counsel to hide snares; they have said, Who shall see them? [6] They have searched out iniquity; they have wearied themselves with searching diligently, a man shall approach and the heart is deep, [7] and God shall be exalted, their wounds were caused by the weapon of the foolish children, [8] and their tongues have set him at nought, all that saw them were troubled; [9] and every man was alarmed, and they related the works of God, and understood his deeds. [10] The righteous shall rejoice in the Lord, and hope on him, and all the upright in heart shall be praised.

Psalm 65

For the end, a Psalm and Song of David.

[1] Praise becomes thee, O God, in Sion; and to thee shall the vow be performed. [2] Hear my prayer; to thee all flesh shall come. [3] The words of transgressors have overpowered us; but do thou pardon our sins. [4] Blessed is he whom thou hast chosen and adopted; he shall dwell in thy courts; we shall be filled with the good things of thy house; thy temple is holy. [5] Thou art wonderful in righteousness. Harken to us, O God our Saviour; the hope of all the ends of the earth, and of them that are on the sea afar off: [6] who dost establish the mountains in thy strength, being girded about with power; [7] who troublest the depth of the sea, the sounds of its waves. [8] The nations shall be troubled, and they that inhabit the ends of the earth shall be afraid of thy signs; thou wilt cause the outgoings of morning and evening to rejoice.

[9] Thou hast visited the earth, and saturated it; thou hast abundantly enriched it. The river of God is filled with water; thou hast prepared their food, for thus is the preparation of it. [10] Saturate her furrows, multiply her fruits; the crop springing up shall rejoice in its drops. [11] Thou wilt bless the crown of the year because of thy goodness; and thy plains shall be filled with fatness. [12] The mountains of the wilderness shall be enriched; and the hills shall gird themselves with joy. [13] The rams of the flock are clothed with wool, and the valleys shall abound in corn; they shall cry aloud, yea they shall sing hymns.

For the end, a Song of Psalm of resurrection.

[1] Shout unto God, all the earth. [2] O sing praises to his name; give glory to his praise. [3] Say unto God, How awful are thy works! through the greatness of thy power thine enemies shall lie to thee. [4] Let all the earth worship thee, and sing to thee; let them sing to thy name. Pause.

[5] Come and behold the works of God; he is terrible in his counsels beyond the children of men. [6] Who turns the sea into dry land; they shall go through the river on foot; there shall we rejoice in him, [7] who by his power is Lord over the age, his eyes look upon the nations; let not them that provoke him be exalted in themselves. Pause.

[8] Bless our God, ye Gentiles, and make the voice of his praise to be heard; [9] who quickens my soul in life, and does not suffer my feet to be moved. [10] For thou, O God, has proved us; thou hast tried us with fire as silver is tried. [11] Thou broughtest us into the snare; thou laidst afflictions on our back. [12] Thou didst mount men upon our heads; we went through the fire and water; but thou broughtest us out into a place of refreshment.

[13] I will go into thine house with whole-burnt-offerings; I will pay thee my vows, [14] which my lips framed, and my mouth uttered in my affliction. [15] I will offer to thee whole-burnt-sacrifices full of marrow, with incense and rams; I will sacrifice to thee oxen with goats. Pause.

[16] Come, hear, and I will tell, all ye that fear God, how great things he has done for my soul. [17] I cried to him with my mouth, and exalted him with my tongue. [18] If I have regarded iniquity in my heart, let not the Lord hearken to me. [19] Therefore God has hearkened to me; he has attended to the voice of my prayer. [20] Blessed be God, who has not turned away my prayer, nor his mercy from me.

For the end, a Psalm of David among the Hymns.

[1] God be merciful to us, and bless us; and cause his face to shine upon us. Pause. [2] That men may know thy way on the earth, thy salvation among all nations. [3] Let the nations, O God, give thanks to thee; let all the nations give thanks to thee. [4] Let the nations rejoice and exult, for thou shalt judge the peoples in equity, and shalt guide the nations on the earth. Pause. [5] Let the peoples, O God, give thanks to thee; let all the peoples give thanks to thee. [6] The earth has yielded her fruit; let God, our God bless us. [7] Let God bless us; and let all the ends of the earth fear him.

Psalm 68

For the end, a Psalm of a Song by David.

[1] Let God arise, and let his enemies be scattered; and let them that hate him flee from before him. [2] As smoke vanishes, let them vanish: as wax melts before the fire, so let the sinners perish from before God. [3] But let the righteous rejoice; let them exult before God: let them be delighted with joy.

[4] Sing to God, sing praises to his name: make a way for him that rides upon the west (the Lord is his name) and exult before him. They shall be troubled before the face of him, [5] who is the father of the orphans, and judge of the widows: such is God in his holy place. [6] God settles the solitary in a house; leading forth prisoners mightily, also them that act provokingly, even them that dwell in tombs.

[7] O God, when thou wentest forth before thy people, when thou wentest through the wilderness; Pause: [8] the earth quaked, yea, the heavens dropped water at the presence of the God of Sina, at the presence of the God of Israel. [9] O God, thou wilt grant to thine inheritance a gracious rain; for it was weary, but thou didst refresh it.

[10] Thy creatures dwell in it: thou hast in thy goodness prepared for the poor. [11] The Lord God will give a word to them that preach it in a great company. [12] The king of the forces of the beloved, of the beloved, will even grant them for the beauty of the house to divide the spoils. [13] Even if ye should lie among the lots, ye shall have the wings of a dove covered with silver, and her breast with yellow gold. [14] When the heavenly One scatters kings upon it, they shall be made snow-white in Selmon. [15] The mountain of God is a rich mountain; a swelling mountain, a rich mountain. [16] Wherefore do ye conceive evil, ye swelling mountains? this is the mountain which God has delighted to dwell in; yea, the Lord will dwell in it for ever.

[17] The chariots of God are ten thousand fold, thousands of rejoicing ones: the Lord is among them, in Sina, in the holy place. [18] Thou art gone up on high, thou hast led captivity captive, thou hast received gifts for man, yea, for they were rebellious, that thou mightest dwell among them.

[19] Blessed be the Lord God, blessed be the Lord daily; and the God of our salvation shall prosper us. Pause. [20] Our God is the God of salvation; and to the Lord belong the issues from death. [21] But God shall crust the heads of his enemies; the hairy crown of them that go on in their trespasses. [22] The Lord said, I will bring again from Basan, I will bring my people again through the depths of the sea. [23] That thy foot may be dipped in blood, and the tongue of thy dogs be stained with that of thine enemies.

[24] Thy goings, O God, have been seen; the goings of my God, the king, in the sanctuary. [25] The princes went first, next before the players on instruments, in the midst of damsels playing on timbrels. [26] Praise God in the congregations, the Lord from the fountains of Israel. [27] There is Benjamin the younger one in ecstasy, the princes of Juda their rulers, the princes of Zabulon, the princes of Nephthali.

[28] O God, command thou thy strength: strengthen, O God, this which thou hast wrought in us. [29] Because of thy temple at Jerusalem shall kings bring presents to thee. [30] Rebuke the wild beasts of the reed: let the crowd of bulls with the heifers of the nations be rebuked, so that they who have been proved with silver may not be shut out: scatter thou the nations that wish for wars. [31] Ambassadors shall arrive out of Egypt; Ethiopia shall hasten to stretch out her hand readily to God.

[32] Sing to God, ye kingdoms of the earth; sing psalms to the Lord. Pause. [33] Sing to God that rides on the heaven of heaven, eastward: lo, he will utter a mighty sound with his voice. [34] Give ye glory to God: his excellency is over Israel, and his power is in the clouds. [35] God is wonderful in his holy places, the God of Israel: he will give power and strength to his people: blessed be God.

For the end, a Psalm of David, for alternate strains.

[1] Save me, O God; for the waters have come in to my soul. [2] I am stuck fast in deep mire, and there is no standing; I am come in to the depths of the sea, and a storm has overwhelmed me. [3] I am weary of crying, my throat has become hoarse; mine eyes have failed by my waiting on my God. [4] They that hate me without a cause are more than the hairs of my head: my enemies that persecute me unrighteously are strengthened: then I restored that which I took not away.

[5] O God, thou knowest my foolishness; and my transgressions are not hidden from thee. [6] Let not them that wait on thee, O Lord of hosts, be ashamed on my account: let not them that seek thee, be ashamed on my account, O God of Israel. [7] For I have suffered reproach for thy sake; shame has covered my face. [8] I became strange to my brethren, and a stranger to my mother's children. [9] For the zeal of thine house has eaten me up; and the reproaches of them that reproached thee are fallen upon me. [10] And I bowed down my soul with fasting, and that was made my reproach. [11] And I put on sackcloth for my covering; and I became a proverb to them. [12] They that sit in the gate talked against me, and they that drank wine sang against me.

[13] But I will cry to thee, O Lord, in my prayer; O God, it is a propitious time: in the multitude of thy mercy hear me, in the truth of thy salvation. [14] Save me from the mire, that I stick not in it: let me be delivered from them that hate me, and from the deep waters. [15] Let not the waterflood drown me, nor let the deep swallow me up; neither let the well shut its mouth upon me. [16] Hear me, O Lord; for thy mercy is good: according to the multitude of thy compassions look upon me. [17] And turn not away thy face from thy servant; for I am afflicted: hear me speedily. [18] Draw nigh to my soul and redeem it: deliver me because of mine enemies.

[19] For thou knowest my reproach, and my shame, and my confusion; all that afflict me are before thee. [20] My soul has waited for reproach and misery; and I waited for one to grieve with me, but there was none; and for one to comfort me, but I found none. [21] They gave me also gall for my food, and made me drink vinegar for my thirst. [22] Let their table before them be for a snare, and for a recompense, and for a stumbling-block. [23] Let their eyes be darkened that they should not see; and bow down their back continually. [24] Pour out thy wrath upon them, and let the fury of thine anger take hold on them. [25] Let their habitation be made desolate; and let there be no inhabitant in their tents: [26] Because they persecuted him whom thou hast smitten; and they have added to the grief of my wounds. [27] Add iniquity to their iniquity; and let them not come into thy righteousness. [28] Let them be blotted out of the book of the living, and let them not be written with the righteous.

[29] I am poor and sorrowful; but the salvation of thy countenance has helped me. ^[30] I will praise the name of my God with a song, I will magnify him with praise; ^[31] and this shall please God more than a young calf having horns and hoofs. ^[32] Let the poor see and rejoice; seek the Lord diligently, and ye shall live. ^[33] For the Lord hears the poor, and does not set at nought his fettered ones. ^[34] Let the heavens and the earth raise him, the sea, and all things moving in them. ^[35] For God will save Sion, and the cities of Judea shall be built; and men shall dwell there, and inherit it. ^[36] And the seed of his servants shall possess it, and they that love his name shall dwell therein.

Psalm 70

For the end, by David for a remembrance, that the Lord may save me.

[1] Draw nigh, O God, to my help. [2] Let them be ashamed and confounded that seek my soul: let them be turned backward and put to shame, that wish me evil. [3] Let them that say to me, Aha, aha, be turned back and put to shame immediately. [4] Let all that seek thee exult and be glad in thee: and let those that love thy salvation say continually, Let God be magnified. [5] But I am poor and needy; O God, help me: thou art my helper and deliverer, O Lord, delay not.

By David, a Psalm sung by the sons of Jonadab, and the first that were taken captive.

[1] O Lord, I have hoped in thee: let me never be put to shame. [2] In thy righteousness deliver me and rescue me: incline thine ear to me, and save me. [3] Be to me a protecting God, and a strong hold to save me: for thou art my fortress and my refuge. [4] Deliver me, O my God, from the hand of the sinner, from the hand of the transgressor and unjust man. [5] For thou art my support, O Lord; O Lord, thou art my hope from my youth. [6] On thee have I been stayed from the womb: from the belly of my mother thou art my protector: of thee is my praise continually.

[7] I am become as it were a wonder to many: but thou art my strong helper. [8] Let my mouth be filled with praise, that I may hymn thy glory, and thy majesty all the day. [9] Cast me not off at the time of old age; forsake me not when my strength fails. [10] For mine enemies have spoken against me; and they that lay wait for my soul have taken counsel together, [11] saying, God has forsaken him: persecute ye and take him; for there is none to deliver him. [12] O God, go not far from me, O my God, draw nigh to my help. [13] Let those that plot against my soul be ashamed and utterly fail: let those that seek my hurt be clothed with shame and dishonour.

[14] But I will hope continually, and will praise thee more and more. [15] My mouth shall declare thy righteousness openly, and thy salvation all the day; for I am not acquainted with the affairs of men. [16] I will go on in the might of the Lord: O Lord, I will make mention of thy righteousness only. [17] O God, thou hast taught me from my youth, and until now will I declare thy wonders; [18] even until I am old and advanced in years. O God, forsake me not; until I shall have declared thine arm to all the generation that is to come: [19] even thy power and thy righteousness, O God, up to the highest heavens, even the mighty works which thou has done: O God, who is like to thee?

[20] What afflictions many and sore hast thou shewed me! yet thou didst turn and quicken me, and broughtest me again from the depths of the earth. [21] Thou didst multiply thy righteousness, and didst turn and comfort me, and broughtest me again out of the depths of the earth. [22] I will also therefore give thanks to thee, O God, because of thy truth, on an instrument of psalmody: I will sing psalms to thee on the harp, O Holy One of Israel. [23] My lips shall rejoice when I sing to thee; and my soul, which thou hast redeemed. [24] Moreover also my tongue shall dwell all the day upon thy righteousness; when they shall be ashamed and confounded that seek my hurt.

Psalm 72

For Solomon.

[1] O God, give thy judgment to the king, and thy righteousness to the king's son; [2] that he may judge thy people with righteousness, and thy poor with judgment.

[3] Let the mountains and the hills raise peace to thy people: [4] he shall judge the poor of the people in righteousness, and save the children of the needy; and shall bring low the false accuser. [5] And he shall continue as long as the sun, and before the moon for ever. [6] He shall come down as rain upon a fleece; and as drops falling upon the earth. [7] In his days shall righteousness spring up; and abundance of peace till the moon be removed. [8] And he shall have dominion from sea to sea, and from the river to the ends of the earth. [9] The Ethiopians shall fall down before him; and his enemies shall lick the dust. [10] The kings of Tharsis, and the isles, shall bring presents: the kings of the Arabians and Saba shall offer gifts. [11] And all kings shall worship him; all the Gentiles shall serve him. [12] For he has delivered the poor from the oppressor; and the needy who had no helper. [13] He shall spare the poor and needy, and shall deliver the souls of the needy. [14] He shall redeem their souls from usury and injustice: and their name shall be precious before him. [15] And he shall live, and there shall be given him of the gold of Arabia: and men shall pray for him continually; and all the day shall they praise him. [16] There shall be an establishment on the earth on the tops of the mountains: the fruit thereof shall be exalted above Libanus, and they of the city shall flourish as grass of the earth.

[17] Let his name be blessed for ever: his name shall endure longer than the sun: and all the tribes of the earth shall be blessed in him: all nations shall call him blessed.

[18] Blessed is the Lord God of Israel, who alone does wonders. [19] And blessed is his glorious name for ever, even for ever and ever: and all the earth shall be filled with his glory. So be it, so be it. [20] The hymns of David the son of Jessae are ended.

Psalm 73

A Psalm for Asaph.

[1] How good is God to Israel, to the upright in heart! [2] But my feet were almost overthrown; my goings very nearly slipped. [3] For I was jealous of the transgressors, beholding the tranquility of sinners.

[4] For there is no sign of reluctance in their death: and they have firmness under their affliction. [5] They are not in the troubles of other men; and they shall not be scourged with other men. [6] Therefore pride has possessed them; they have clothed themselves with their injustice and ungodliness. [7] Their injustice shall go forth as out of fatness: they have fulfilled their intention. [8] They have taken counsel and spoken in wickedness: they have uttered unrighteousness loftily. [9] They have set their mouth against heaven, and their tongue has gone through upon the earth. [10] Therefore shall my people return hither: and full days shall be found with them. [11] And they said, How does God know? and is there knowledge in the Most High? [12] Behold, these are the sinners, and they that prosper always: they have possessed wealth.

[13] And I said, Verily in vain have I justified my heart, and washed my hands in innocency. [14] For I was plagued all the day, and my reproof was every morning. [15] If I said, I will speak thus; behold, I should have broken covenant with the generation of thy children. [16] And I undertook to understand this, but it is too hard for me, [17] until I go into the sanctuary of God; and so understand the latter end.

[18] Surely thou hast appointed judgments to them because of their crafty dealings: thou hast cast them down when they were lifted up. [19] How have they become desolate! suddenly they have failed: they have perished because of their iniquity. [20] As the dream of one awakening, O Lord, in thy city thou wilt despise their image.

[21] For my heart has rejoiced, and my reins have been gladdened. [22] But I was vile and knew not: I became brutish before thee. [23] Yet I am continually with thee: thou hast holden my right hand. [24] Thou hast guided me by thy counsel, and thou hast taken me to thyself with glory. [25] For what have I in heaven but thee? and what have I desired upon the earth beside thee? [26] My heart and my flesh have failed: but God is the strength of my heart, and God is my portion for ever.

[27] For, behold, they that remove themselves far from thee shall perish: thou hast destroyed every one that goes a whoring from thee. [28] But it is good for me to cleave close to God, to put my trust in the Lord; that I may proclaim all thy praises in the gates of the daughter of Sion.

Psalm 74

A Psalm of instruction for Asaph.

[1] Wherefore hast thou rejected us, O God, for ever? wherefore is thy wrath kindled against the sheep of thy pasture? [2] Remember thy congregation which thou hast purchased from the beginning; thou didst ransom the rod of thine inheritance; this mount Sion wherein thou hast dwelt. [3] Lift up thine hands against their pride continually; because of all that the enemy has done wickedly in thy holy places.

[4] And they that hate thee have boasted in the midst of thy feast; they have set up their standards for signs, [5] ignorantly as it were in the entrance above; [6] they cut down its doors at once with axes as in a wood of trees; they have broken it down with hatchet and stone cutter. [7] They have burnt thy sanctuary with fire to the ground; they have profaned the habitation of thy name. [8] They have said in their heart, even all their kindred together, Come, let us abolish the feasts of the Lord from the earth. [9] We have not seen our signs; there is no longer a prophet; and God will not know us any more.

[10] How long, O God, shall the enemy reproach? shall the enemy provoke thy name forever? [11] Wherefore turnest thou away thine hand, and thy right hand from the midst of thy bosom for ever? [12] But God is our King of old; he has wrought salvation in the midst of the earth. [13] Thou didst establish the sea, in thy might, thou didst break to pieces the heads of the dragons in the water. [14] Thou didst break to pieces the heads of the dragon; thou didst give him for meat to the Ethiopian nations. [15] Thou didst cleave fountains and torrents; thou driedst up mighty rivers. [16] The day is thine, and the night is thine; thou hast prepared the sun and the moon. [17] Thou hast made all the borders of the earth; thou hast made summer and spring.

[18] Remember this thy creation: an enemy has reproached the Lord, and a foolish people has provoked thy name. [19] Deliver not to the wild beasts a soul that gives praise to thee: forget not for ever the souls of thy poor. [20] Look upon thy covenant: for the dark places of the earth are filled with the habitations of iniquity. [21] let not the afflicted and shamed one be rejected: the poor and needy shall praise thy name. [22] Arise, O God, plead thy cause: remember thy reproaches that come from the foolish one all the day. [23] Forget not the voice of thy suppliants: let the pride of them that hate thee continually ascend before thee.

For the end, Destroy not, a Psalm of a Song for Asaph.

[1] We will give thanks to thee, O God, we will give thanks, and call upon thy name: I will declare all thy wonderful works. [2] When I shall take a set time, I will judge righteously. [3] The earth is dissolved, and all that dwell in it: I have strengthened its pillars. Pause.

[4] I said unto the transgressors, Do not transgress; and to the sinners, Lift not up the horn. [5] Lift not up your horn on high; speak not unrighteousness against God. [6] For good comes neither from the east, nor from the west, nor from the desert mountains. [7] For God is the judge; he puts down one, and raises up another. [8] For there is a cup in the hand of the Lord, full of unmingled wine; and he has turned it from side to side, but its dregs have not been wholly poured out; all the sinners of the earth shall drink them.

[9] But I will exult for ever: I will sing praises to the God of Jacob. [10] And I will break all the horns of sinners; but the horns of the righteous one shall be exalted.

Psalm 76

For the end, among the Hymns, a Psalm for Asaph; a Song for the Assyrian.

[1] God is known in Judea: his name is great in Israel. [2] And his place has been in peace, and his dwelling-place in Sion. [3] There he broke the power of the bows, the shield, and the sword, and the battle. Pause.

[4] Thou dost wonderfully shine forth from the everlasting mountains. [5] All the simple ones in heart were troubled; all the men of wealth have slept their sleep, and have found nothing in their hands. [6] At thy rebuke, O God of Jacob, the riders on horses slumbered. [7] Thou art terrible; and who shall withstand thee, because of thine anger? [8] Thou didst cause judgment to be heard from heaven; the earth feared, and was still, [9] when God arose to judgment, to save all the meek in heart. Pause.

[10] For the inward thought of man shall give thanks to thee: and the memorial of his inward thought shall keep a feast to thee. [11] Vow, and pay your vows to the Lord our God; all that are round about him shall bring gifts, even to him that is terrible, [12] and that takes away the spirits of princes; to him that is terrible among the kings of the earth.

For the end, for Idithun, a Psalm of Asaph.

[1] I cried to the Lord with my voice, yea, my voice was addressed to God; and he gave heed to me. [2] In the day of mine affliction I earnestly sought the Lord; even with my hands by night before him, and I was not deceived; my soul refused to be comforted. [3] I remembered God, and rejoiced; I poured out my complaint, and my soul fainted. Pause. [4] All mine enemies set a watch against me: I was troubled, and spoke not.

[5] I considered the days of old, and remembered ancient years. [6] And I meditated; I communed with my heart by night, and diligently searched my spirit, saying, [7] Will the Lord cast off for ever? and will he be well pleased no more? [8] Will he cut off his mercy for ever, even for ever and ever? [9] Will God forget to pity? or will he shut up his compassions in his wrath? Pause.

[10] And I said, Now I have begun; this is the change of the right hand of the Most High. [11] I remembered the works of the Lord; for I will remember thy wonders from the beginning. [12] And I will meditate on all thy works, and will consider thy doings.

[13] O God, thy way is in the sanctuary; who is a great God as our God? [14] Thou art the God that doest wonders; thou hast made known thy power among the nations. [15] Thou hast with thine arm redeemed thy people, the sons of Jacob and Joseph. Pause. [16] The waters saw thee, O God, the waters saw thee, and feared; and the depths were troubled. [17] There was an abundant sound of waters: the clouds uttered a voice; for thine arrows went abroad. [18] The voice of thy thunder was abroad, and around thy lightnings appeared to the world; the earth trembled a quaked. [19] Thy way is in the sea, and thy paths in many waters, and thy footsteps cannot be known. [20] Thou didst guide thy people as sheep by the hand of Moses and Aaron.

A Psalm of instruction for Asaph.

[1] Give heed, O my people, to my law: incline your ear to the words of my mouth. [2] I will open my mouth in parables: I will utter dark sayings which have been from the beginning. [3] All which we have heard and known, and our fathers have declared to us. [4] They were not hid from their children to a second generations; the fathers declaring the praises of the Lord, and his mighty acts, and his wonders which he wrought.

[5] And he raised up a testimony in Jacob, and appointed a law in Israel, which he commanded our fathers, to make it known to their children: [6] that another generation might know, even the sons which should be born; and they should arise and declare them to their children. [7] That they might set their hope on God, and not forget the works of God, but diligently seek his commandments. [8] That they should not be as their fathers, a perverse and provoking generation; a generation which set not its heart aright, and its spirit was not steadfast with God.

[9] The children of Ephraim, bending and shooting with the bow, turned back in the day of battle. [10] They kept not the covenant of God, and would not walk in his law. [11] And they forgot his benefits, and his miracles which he had shewed them; [12] the miracles which he wrought before their fathers, in the land of Egypt, in the plain of Tanes. [13] He clave the sea, and led them through: he made the waters to stand as in a bottle. [14] And he guided them with a cloud by day, and all the night with a light of fire. [15] he clave a rock in the wilderness, and made them drink as in a great deep. [16] And he brought water out of the rock, and caused waters to flow down as rivers.

[17] And they sinned yet more against him; they provoked the Most High in the wilderness. [18] And they tempted God in their hearts, in asking meat for the desire of their souls. [19] They spoke also against God, and said, Will God be able to prepare a table in the wilderness? [20] Forasmuch as he smote the rock, and the waters flowed, and the torrents ran abundantly; will he be able also to give bread, or prepare a table for his people?

[21] Therefore the Lord heard, and was provoked: and fire was kindled in Jacob, and wrath went up against Israel. [22] Because they believed not in God, and trusted not in his salvation. [23] Yet he commanded the clouds from above, and opened the doors of heaven, [24] and rained upon them manna to eat, and gave them the bread of heaven. [25] Man ate angels' bread; he sent them provision to the full.

[26] He removed the south wind from heaven; and by his might he brought in the south-west wind. [27] And he rained upon them flesh like dust, and feathered birds like the sand of the seas. [28] And they fell into the midst of their camp, round about their tents. [29] So they ate, and were completely filled; and he gave them their desire.

[30] They were not disappointed of their desire: but when their food was yet in their mouth, [31] then the indignation of God rose up against them, and slew the fattest of them, and overthrew the choice men of Israel.

[32] In the midst of all this they sinned yet more, and believed not his miracles. [33] And their days were consumed in vanity, and their years with anxiety.

[34] When he slew them, they sought him: and they returned and called betimes upon God. [35] And they remembered that God was their helper, and the most high God was their redeemer. [36] Yet they loved him only with their mouth, and lied to him with their tongue. [37] For their heart was not right with him, neither were they steadfast in his covenant.

[38] But he is compassionate, and will forgive their sins, and will not destroy them: yea, he will frequently turn away his wrath, and will not kindle all his anger. [39] And he remembered that they are flesh; a wind that passes away, and returns not.

[40] How often did they provoke him in the wilderness, and anger him in a dry land! [41] Yea, they turned back, and tempted God, and provoked the Holy One of Israel. [42] They remembered not his hand, the day in which he delivered them from the hand of the oppressor. [43] How he had wrought his signs in Egypt, and his wonders in the field of Tanes: [44] and had changed their rivers into blood; and their streams, that they should not drink. [45] He sent against them the dog-fly, and it devoured them; and the frog, and it spoiled them. [46] And he gave their fruit to the canker worm, and their labours to the locust. [47] He killed their vines with hail, and their sycamores with frost. [48] And he gave up their cattle to hail, and their substance to the fire. [49] He sent out against them the fury of his anger, wrath, and indignation, and affliction, a message by evil angels. [50] He made a way for his wrath; he spared not their souls from death, but consigned their cattle to death; [51] and smote every first-born in the land of Egypt; the first-fruits of their labours in the tents of Cham. [52] And he removed his people like sheep; he led them as a flock in the wilderness. [53] And he guided them with hope, and they feared not: but the sea covered their enemies. [54] And he brought them in to the mountain of his sanctuary, this mountain which his right hand had purchased. [55] And he cast out the nations from before them, and made them to inherit by a line of inheritance, and made the tribes of Israel to dwell in their tents.

[56] Yet they tempted and provoked the most high God, and kept not his testimonies. [57] And they turned back, and broke covenant, even as also their fathers: they became like a crooked bow. [58] And they provoked him with their high places, and moved him to jealousy with their graven images.

[59] God heard and lightly regarded them, and greatly despised Israel. [60] And he rejected the tabernacle of Selom, his tent where he dwelt among men. [61] And he gave their strength into captivity, and their beauty into the enemy's hand. [62] And he gave his people to the sword; and disdained his inheritance. [63] Fire devoured their young men; and their virgins mourned not. [64] Their priests fell by the sword; and their widows shall not be wept for.

[65] So the Lord awaked as one out of sleep, and as a mighty man who has been heated with wine. [66] And he smote his enemies in the hinder parts: he brought on them a perpetual reproach.

[67] And he rejected the tabernacle of Joseph, and chose not the tribe of Ephraim; [68] but chose the tribe of Juda, the mount Sion which he loved. [69] And he built his sanctuary as the place of unicorns; he founded it for ever on the earth. [70] He chose David also his servant, and took him up from the flocks of sheep. [71] He took him from following the ewes great with young, to be the shepherd of Jacob his servant, and Israel his inheritance. [72] So he tended them in the innocency of his heart; and guided them by the skillfulness of his hands.

A Psalm for Asaph.

[1] O God, the heathen are come into thine inheritance; they have polluted thy holy temple; they have made Jerusalem a storehouse of fruits. [2] They have given the dead bodies of thy servants to be food for the birds of the sky, the flesh of thy holy ones for the wild beasts of the earth. [3] They have shed their blood as water, round about Jerusalem; and there was none to bury them. [4] We are become a reproach to our neighbours, a scorn and derision to them that are round about us.

[5] How long, O Lord? wilt thou be angry for ever? shall thy jealousy burn like fire? [6] Pour out thy wrath upon the heathen that have not known thee, and upon the kingdoms which have not called upon thy name. [7] For they have devoured Jacob, and laid his place waste.

[8] Remember not our old transgressions; let thy tender mercies speedily prevent us; for we are greatly impoverished. [9] Help us, O God our Saviour; for the glory of thy name, O Lord, deliver us; and be merciful to our sins, for thy name's sake. [10] Let's haply they should say among the heathen, Where is their God? and let the avenging of thy servant's blood that has been shed be known among the heathen before our eyes.

[11] Let the groaning of the prisoners come in before thee; according to the greatness of thine arm preserve the sons of the slain ones. [12] Repay to our neighbours sevenfold into their bosom their reproach, with which they have reproached thee, O Lord. [13] For we are thy people and the sheep of thy pasture; we will give thee thanks for ever; we will declare thy praise throughout all generations.

Psalm 80

For the end, for alternate strains, a testimony for Asaph, a Psalm concerning the Assyrian.

[1] Attend, O Shepherd of Israel, who guidest Joseph like a flock; thou who sittest upon the cherubs, manifest thyself; [2] before Ephraim and Benjamin and Manasse, stir up thy power, and come to deliver us. [3] Turn us, O God, and cause thy face to shine; and we shall be delivered.

[4] O Lord God of hosts, how long art thou angry with the prayer of thy servant? [5] Thou wilt feed us with bread of tears; and wilt cause us to drink tears by measure. [6] Thou has made us a strife to our neighbours; and our enemies have mocked at us. [7] Turn us, O Lord God of hosts, and cause thy face to shine; and we shall be saved. Pause.

[8] Thou hast transplanted a vine out of Egypt: thou hast cast out the heathen, and planted it. [9] Thou madest a way before it, and didst cause its roots to strike, and the land was filled with it. [10] Its shadow covered the mountains, and its shoots equalled the goodly cedars. [11] It sent forth its branches to the sea, and its shoots to the river. [12] Wherefore hast thou broken down its hedge, while all that pass by the way pluck it? [13] The boar out of the wood has laid it waste, and the wild beast has devoured it. [14] O God of hosts, turn, we pray thee: look on us from heaven, and behold and visit this vine; [15] and restore that which thy right hand has planted: and look on the son of man whom thou didst strengthen for thyself. [16] It is burnt with fire and dug up: they shall perish at the rebuke of thy presence. [17] Let thy hand be upon the man of thy right hand, and upon the son of man whom thou didst strengthen for thyself.

[18] So will we not depart from thee: thou shalt quicken us, and we will call upon thy name. [19] Turn us, O Lord God of hosts, and make thy face to shine; and we shall be saved.

Psalm 81

For the end, a Psalm for Asaph, concerning the wine-presses.

[1] Rejoice ye in God our helper; shout aloud to the God of Jacob. [2] Take a psalm, and produce the timbrel, the pleasant psaltery with the harp. [3] Blow the trumpet at the new moon, in the glorious day of your feast.

[4] For this is an ordinance for Israel, and a statute of the God of Jacob. [5] He made it to be a testimony in Joseph, when he came forth out of the land of Egypt: he heard a language which he understood not.

[6] He removed his back from burdens: his hands slaved in making the baskets. [7] Thou didst call upon me in trouble, and I delivered thee; I heard thee in the secret place of the storm: I proved thee at the water of Strife. Pause. [8] Hear, my people, and I will speak to thee, O Israel; and I will testify to thee: if thou wilt hearken to me; [9] there shall be no new god in thee; neither shalt thou worship a strange god. [10] For I am the Lord thy God, that brought thee out of the land of Egypt: open thy mouth wide, and I will fill it. [11] But my people hearkened not to my voice; and Israel gave no heed to me. [12] So I let them go after the ways of their own hearts: they will go on in their own ways.

[13] If my people had hearkened to me, if Israel had walked in my ways, [14] I should have put down their enemies very quickly, and should have laid my hand upon those that afflicted them. [15] The Lord's enemies should have lied to him: but their time shall be for ever. [16] And he fed them with the fat of wheat; and satisfied them with honey out of the rock.

A Psalm for Asaph.

[1] God stands in the assembly of gods; and in the midst of them will judge gods. [2] How long will ye judge unrighteously, and accept the persons of sinners? Pause. [3] Judge the orphan and poor: do justice to the low and needy.

[4] Rescue the needy, and deliver the poor out of the hand of the sinner.

[5] They know not, nor understand; they walk on in darkness: all the foundations of the earth shall be shaken. [6] I have said, Ye are gods; and all of you children of the Most High. [7] But ye die as men, and fall as one of the princes.

[8] Arise, O God, judge the earth: for thou shalt inherit all nations.

Psalm 83

A Song of a Psalm for Asaph.

[1] O God, who shall be compared to thee? be not silent, neither be still, O God.

[2] For behold, thine enemies have made a noise; and they that hate thee have lifted up the head. [3] Against thy people they have craftily imagined a device, and have taken counsel against thy saints. [4] They have said, Come, and let us utterly destroy them out of the nation; and let the name of Israel be remembered no more at all. [5] For they have taken counsel together with one consent: they have made a confederacy against thee; [6] even the tents of the Idumeans, and the Ismaelites; Moab, and the Agarenes; [7] Gebal, and Ammon, and Amalec; the Philistines also, with them that dwell at Tyre. [8] Yea, Assur too is come with them: they have become a help to the children of Lot. Pause.

[9] Do thou to them as to Madiam, and to Sisera; as to Jabin at the brook of Kison. [10] They were utterly destroyed at Aendor: they became as dung for the earth. [11] Make their princes as Oreb and Zeb, and Zebee and Salmana; even all their princes: [12] who said, let us take to ourselves the altar of God as an inheritance. [13] O my God, make them as a wheel; as stubble before the face of the wind. [14] As fire which shall burn up a wood, as the flame may consume the mountains; [15] so shalt thou persecute them with thy tempest, and trouble them in thine anger. [16] Fill their faces with dishonour; so shall they seek thy name, O Lord. [17] Let them be ashamed and troubled for evermore; yea, let them be confounded and destroyed. [18] And let them know that thy name is Lord; that thou alone art Most High over all the earth.

For the end, a Psalm for the sons of Core, concerning the wine-presses.

[1] How amiable are thy tabernacles, O Lord of hosts! [2] My soul longs, and fains for the courts of the Lord: my heart and my flesh have exulted in the living god. [3] Yea, the sparrow has found himself a home, and the turtle-dove a nest for herself, where she may lay her young, even thine altars, O Lord of hosts, my King, and my God.

[4] Blessed are they that dwell in thy house: they will praise thee evermore. Pause. [5] Blessed is the man whose help is of thee, O Lord; in his heart he has purposed to go up [6] the valley of weeping, to the place which he has appointed, for there the law-giver will grant blessings. [7] They shall go from strength to strength: the God of gods shall be seen in Sion.

[8] O Lord God of hosts, hear my prayer: hearken, O God of Jacob. Pause. [9] Behold, O God our defender, and look upon the face of thine anointed. [10] For one day in thy courts is better than thousands. I would rather be an abject in the house of God, than dwell in the tents of sinners. [11] For the Lord loves mercy and truth: God will give grace and glory: the Lord will not withhold good things from them that walk in innocence. [12] O Lord of hosts, blessed is the man that trusts in thee.

For the end, a Psalm for the sons of Core.

[1] O Lord, thou has taken pleasure in thy land: thou hast turned back the captivity of Jacob. [2] Thou hast forgiven thy people their transgressions; thou has covered all their sins. Pause. [3] Thou has caused all thy wrath to cease: thou hast turned from thy fierce anger.

[4] Turn us, O God of our salvation, and turn thy anger away from us. [5] Wouldest thou be angry with us for ever? or wilt thou continue thy wrath from generation to generation? [6] O God, thou wilt turn and quicken us; and thy people shall rejoice in thee. [7] Shew us thy mercy, O Lord, and grant us thy salvation.

[8] I will hear what the Lord God will say concerning me: for he shall speak peace to his people, and to his saints, and to those that turn their heart toward him. [9] Moreover his salvation is near them that fear him; that glory may dwell in our land. [10] Mercy and truth are met together: righteousness and peace have kissed each other. [11] Truth has sprung out of the earth; and righteousness has looked down from heaven. [12] For the Lord will give goodness; and our land shall yield her fruit. [13] Righteousness shall go before him; and shall set his steps in the way.

Psalm 86

A Prayer of David.

[1] O Lord, incline thine ear, and hearken to me; for I am poor and needy. [2] Preserve my soul, for I am holy; save thy servant, O God, who hopes in thee. [3] Pity me, O Lord: for to thee will I cry all the day. [4] Rejoice the sold of thy servant: for to thee, O Lord, have I lifted up my soul. [5] For thou, O Lord, art kind, and gentle; and plenteous in mercy to all that call upon thee. [6] Give ear to my prayer, o Lord; and attend to the voice of my supplication. [7] In the day of my trouble I cried to thee: for thou didst hear me.

[8] There is none like to thee, O Lord, among the god; and there are no works like to thy works. [9] All nations whom thou hast made shall come, and shall worship before thee, O Lord; and shall glorify thy name. [10] For thou art great, and doest wonders: thou art the only and the great God. [11] Guide me, O Lord, in thy way, and I will walk in thy truth: let my heart rejoice, that I may fear thy name. [12] I will give thee thanks, O Lord my God, with all my heart; and I will glorify thy name for ever. [13] For thy mercy is great toward me; and thou hast delivered my soul from the lowest hell.

[14] O God, transgressors have risen up against me, and an assembly of violent men have sought my life; and have not set thee before them. [15] But thou, O Lord God, art compassionate and merciful, long-suffering, and abundant in mercy and true. [16] Look thou upon me, and have mercy upon me: give thy strength to thy servant, and save the son of thine handmaid. [17] Establish with me a token for good; and let them that hate me see it and be ashamed; because thou, O Lord, hast helped me, and comforted me.

Psalm 87

A Psalm of a Song for the sons of Core.

[1] His foundations are in the holy mountains. [2] The Lord loves the gates of Sion, more than all the tabernacles of Jacob. [3] Glorious things have been spoken of thee, O city of God. Pause.

[4] I will make mention of Raab and Babylon to them that know me: behold also the Philistines, and Tyre, and the people of the Ethiopians: these were born there. [5] A man shall say, Sion is my mother; and such a man was born in her; and the Highest himself has founded her. [6] The Lord shall recount it in the writing of the people, and of these princes that were born in her. [7] The dwelling of all within thee is as the dwelling of those that rejoice.

Psalm 88

A song of a Psalm for the sons of Core for the end, upon Maeleth for responsive strains, of instruction for Æman the Israelite.

[1] O Lord God of my salvation, I have cried by day and in the night before thee. [2] Let my prayer come in before thee; incline thine ear to my supplication, O Lord.

[3] For my soul is filled with troubles, and my life has drawn nigh to Hades. [4] I have been reckoned with them that go down to the pit; I became as a man without help; [5] free among the dead, as the slain ones cast out, who sleep in the tomb; whom thou rememberest no more; and they are rejected from thy hand. [6] They laid me in the lowest pit, in dark places, and in the shadow of death. [7] Thy wrath has pressed heavily upon me, and thou hast brought upon me all thy billows. Pause. [8] Thou hast removed my acquaintance far from me; they have made me an abomination to themselves; I have been delivered up, and have not gone forth. [9] Mine eyes are dimmed from poverty; but I cried to thee, O Lord, all the day; I spread forth my hands to thee.

[10] Wilt thou work wonders for the dead? or shall physicians raise them up, that they shall praise thee? [11] Shall any one declare thy mercy in the tomb? and thy truth in destruction? [12] Shall thy wonders be known in darkness? and thy righteousness in a forgotten land? [13] But I cried to thee, O Lord; and in the morning shall my prayer prevent thee.

[14] Wherefore, O Lord, dost thou reject my prayer, and turn thy face away from me? [15] I am poor and in troubles from my youth; and having been exalted, I was brought low and into despair. [16] Thy wrath has passed over me; and thy terrors have greatly disquieted me. [17] They compassed me like water; all the day they beset me together. [18] Thou hast put far from me every friend, and mine acquaintances because of my wretchedness.

A Psalm of instruction for Ætham the Israelite.

[1] I will sing of thy mercies, O Lord, for ever: I will declare thy truth with my mouth to all generations. [2] For thou hast said, Mercy shall be built up for ever: thy truth shall be established in the heavens. [3] I made a covenant with my chosen ones, I sware unto David my servant. [4] I will establish thy seed for ever, and build up thy throne to all generations. Pause.

[5] The heavens shall declare thy wonders, O Lord; and thy truth in the assembly of the saints. [6] For who in the heavens shall be compared to the Lord? and who shall be likened to the Lord among the sons of God? [7] God is glorified in the council of the saints; great and terrible toward all that are round about him. [8] O Lord God of hosts, who is like to thee? thou art mighty, O Lord, and thy truth is round about thee. [9] Thou rulest the power of the sea; and thou calmest the tumult of its waves. [10] Thou has brought down the proud as one that is slain; and with the arm of thy power thou has scattered thine enemies. [11] The heavens are thine, and the earth is thine: thou hast founded the world, and the fullness of it. [12] Thou hast created the north and the west: Thabor and Hermon shall rejoice in thy name. [13] Thine is the mighty arm: let thy hand be strengthened, let thy right hand be exalted. [14] Justice and judgment are the establishment of thy throne: mercy and truth shall go before thy face.

[15] Blessed is the people that knows the joyful sound: they shall walk, O Lord, in the light of thy countenance. [16] And in thy name shall they rejoice all the day: and in thy righteousness shall they be exalted. [17] For thou art the boast of their strength; and in thy good pleasure shall our horn be exalted, [18] for our help is of the Lord; and of the Holy One of Israel, our king.

[19] Then thou spokest in vision to thy children, and saidst, I have laid help on a mighty one; I have exalted one chosen out of my people. [20] I have found David my servant; I have anointed him by my holy mercy. [21] For my hand shall support him; and mine arm shall strengthen him. [22] The enemy shall have no advantage against him; and the son of transgression shall not hurt him again. [23] And I will hew down his foes before him, and put to flight those that hate him. [24] But my truth and my mercy shall be with him; and in my name shall his horn be exalted. [25] And I will set his hand in the sea, and his right hand in the rivers. [26] He shall call upon me, saying, Thou art my Father, my God, and the helper of my salvation. [27] And I will make him my first-born, higher than the kings of the earth. [28] I will keep my mercy for him for ever, and my covenant shall be firm with him. [29] And I will establish his seed for ever and ever, and his throne as the days of heaven.

[30] If his children should forsake my law, and walk not in my judgments; [31] if they should profane my ordinances, and not keep my commandments; [32] I will visit their transgressions with a rod, and their sins with scourges. [33] But my mercy I will not utterly remove from him, nor wrong my truth. [34] Neither will I by any means profane my covenant; and I will not make void the things that proceed out of my lips. [35] Once have I sworn by my holiness, that I will not lie to David. [36] His see shall endure for ever, and his throne as the sun before me; [37] and as the moon that is established for ever, and as the faithful witness in heaven. Pause.

[38] But thou hast cast off and set at nought, thou has rejected thine anointed. [39] Thou hast overthrown the covenant of thy servant; thou has profaned his sanctuary, casting it to the ground. [40] Thou hast broken down all his hedges; thou hast made his strong holds a terror. [41] All that go by the way have spoiled him: he is become a reproach to his neighbours. [42] Thou hast exalted the right hand of his enemies; thou hast made all his enemies to rejoice. [43] Thou hast turned back the help of his sword, and hast not helped him in the battle. [44] Thou hast deprived him of glory: thou hast broken down his throne to the ground. [45] Thou hast shortened the days of his throne: thou hast poured shame upon him. Pause.

[46] How long, O Lord, wilt thou turn away, for ever? shall thine anger flame out as fire? [47] Remember what my being is: for hast thou created all the sons of men in vain? [48] What man is there who shall live, and not see death? shall any one deliver his soul from the hand of Hades? Pause. [49] Where are thine ancient mercies, O Lord, which thou swarest to David in thy truth? [50] Remember, O Lord, the reproach of thy servants, which I have borne in my bosom, even the reproach of many nations; [51] wherewith thine enemies have reviled, O Lord: wherewith they have reviled the recompense of thine anointed. [52] Blessed be the Lord for ever. So be it, so be it.

A Prayer of Moses the man of God.

[1] Lord, thou hast been our refuge in all generations. [2] Before the mountains existed, and before the earth and the world were formed, even from age to age, Thou art. [3] Turn not man back to his low place, whereas thou saidst, Return, ye sons of men? [4] For a thousand years in thy sight are as the yesterday which is past, and as a watch in the night. [5] Years shall be vanity to them: let the morning pass away as grass. [6] In the morning let it flower, and pass away: in the evening let it droop, let it be withered and dried up. [7] For we have perished in thine anger, and in thy wrath we have been troubled. [8] Thou hast set our transgressions before thee: our age is in the light of thy countenance. [9] For all our days are gone, and we have passed away in thy wrath: our years have spun out their tale as a spider. [10] As for the days of our years, in them are seventy years; and if men should be in strength, eighty years: and the greater part of them would be labour and trouble; for weakness overtakes us, and we shall be chastened. [11] Who knows the power of thy wrath? [12] and who knows how to number his days because of the fear of thy wrath? So manifest thy right hand, and those that are instructed in wisdom in the heart.

[13] Return, O Lord, how long? and be intreated concerning thy servants. [14] We have been satisfied in the morning with thy mercy; and we did exult and rejoice: [15] let us rejoice in all our days, in return for the days wherein thou didst afflict us, the years wherein we saw evil. [16] And look upon thy servants, and upon thy works; and guide their children. [17] And let the brightness of the Lord our God be upon us: and do thou direct for us the works of our hands.

Praise of a Song, by David.

[1] He that dwells in the help of the Highest, shall sojourn under the shelter of the God of heaven. [2] He shall say to the Lord, Thou art my helper and my refuge: my God; I will hope in him. [3] For he shall deliver thee from the snare of the hunters, from every troublesome matter. [4] He shall overshadow thee with his shoulders, and thou shalt trust under his wings: his truth shall cover thee with a shield. [5] Thou shalt not be afraid of terror by night; nor of the arrow flying by day; [6] nor of the evil thing that walks in darkness; nor of calamity, and the evil spirit at noon-day. [7] A thousand shall fall at thy side, and ten thousand at thy right hand; but it shall not come nigh thee. [8] Only with thine eyes shalt thou observe and see the reward of sinners.

[9] For thou, O Lord, art my hope: thou, my soul, hast made the Most High thy refuge. [10] No evils shall come upon thee, and no scourge shall draw nigh to thy dwelling. [11] For he shall give his angels charge concerning thee, to keep thee in all thy ways. [12] They shall bear thee up on their hands, lest at any time thou dash thy foot against a stone. [13] Thou shalt tread on the asp and basilisk: and thou shalt trample on the lion and dragon.

[14] For he has hoped in me, and I will deliver him: I will protect him, because he has known my name. [15] He shall call upon me, and I will hearken to him: I am with him in affliction; and I will deliver him, and glorify him. [16] I will satisfy him with length of days, and shew him my salvation.

Psalm 92

A Psalm of a Song for the Sabbath-day.

[1] It is a good thing to give thanks to the Lord, and to sing praises to thy name, O thou Most High; [2] to proclaim thy mercy in the morning, and thy truth by night, [3] on a psaltery of ten strings, with a song on the harp. [4] For thou, O Lord, hast made me glad with thy work: and in the operations of thy hands will I exult.

[5] How have thy works been magnified, O Lord! thy thoughts are very deep. [6] A foolish man will not know, and a senseless man will not understand this. [7] When the sinners spring up as the grass, and all the workers of iniquity have watched; it is that they may be utterly destroyed for ever. [8] But thou, O Lord, art most high for ever.

[9] For, behold, thine enemies shall perish; and all the workers of iniquity shall be scattered. [10] But my horn shall be exalted as the horn of a unicorn; and mine old age with rich mercy. [11] And mine eye has seen mine enemies, and mine ear shall hear the wicked that rise up against me.

[12] The righteous shall flourish as a palm-tree: he shall be increased as the cedar in Libanus. [13] They that are planted in the house of the Lord shall flourish in the courts of our God. [14] Then shall they be increased in a fine old age; and they shall be prosperous; that they may declare [15] that the Lord my God is righteous, and there is no iniquity in him.

For the day before the Sabbath, when the land was first inhabited, the praise of a Song by David.

[1] The Lord reigns; he has clothed himself with honour: the Lord has clothed and girded himself with strength; for he has established the world, which shall not be moved. [2] Thy throne is prepared of old: thou art from everlasting. [3] The rivers have lifted up, O Lord, the rivers have lifted up their voices, [4] at the voices of many waters: the billows of the sea are wonderful: the Lord is wonderful in high places. [5] Thy testimonies are made very sure: holiness becomes thine house, O Lord, for ever.

Psalm 94

A Psalm of David for the fourth day of the week.

[1] The Lord is a God of vengeance; the God of vengeance has declared himself. [2] Be thou exalted, thou that judgest the earth: render a reward to the proud.

[3] How long shall sinners, O Lord, how long shall sinners boast? [4] They will utter and speak unrighteousness; all the workers of iniquity will speak so. [5] They have afflicted thy people, O Lord, and hurt thine heritage. [6] They have slain the widow and fatherless, and murdered the stranger. [7] And they said, The Lord shall not see, neither shall the God of Jacob understand.

[8] Understand now, ye simple among the people; and ye fools, at length be wise. [9] He that planted the ear, does he not hear? or he that formed the eye, does not he perceive? [10] He that chastises the heathen, shall not he punish, even he that teaches man knowledge? [11] The Lord knows the thoughts of men, that they are vain.

[12] Blessed is the man whomsoever thou shalt chasten, O Lord, and shalt teach him out of thy law; [13] to give him rest from evil days, until a pit be digged for the sinful one. [14] For the Lord will not cast off his people, neither will he forsake his inheritance; [15] until righteousness return to judgment, and all the upright in heart shall follow it. Pause.

[16] Who will rise up for me against the transgressors? or who will stand up with me against the workers of iniquity? [17] If the Lord had not helped me, my soul had almost sojourned in Hades. [18] If I said, My foot has been moved; [19] thy mercy, O Lord, helped me. O Lord, according to the multitude of my griefs within my heart, thy consolation have soothed my soul.

[20] Shall the throne of iniquity have fellowship with thee, which frames mischief by an ordinance? [21] They will hunt for the soul of the righteous, and condemn innocent blood. [22] But the Lord was my refuge; and my God the helper of my hope. [23] And he will recompense to them their iniquity and their wickedness: the Lord our God shall utterly destroy them.

The praise of a Song by David.

[1] Come, let us exult in the Lord; let us make a joyful noise to God our Saviour. [2] Let us come before his presence with thanksgiving, and make a joyful noise to him with psalms. [3] For the Lord is a great God, and a great king over all gods: for the Lord will not cast off his people. [4] For the ends of the earth are in his hands; and the heights of the mountains are his. [5] For the sea is his, and he made it: and his hands formed the dry land.

[6] Come, let us worship and fall down before him; and weep before the Lord that made us. [7] For he is our God; and we are the people of his pasture, and the sheep of his hand. [8] To-day, if ye will hear his voice, harden not your hearts, as in the provocation, according to the day of irritation in the wilderness: [9] where your fathers tempted me, proved me, and saw my works. [10] Forty years was I grieved with this generation, and said, They do always err in their heart, and they have not known my ways. [11] So I swore in my wrath, They shall not enter into my rest.

Psalm 96

When the house was built after the Captivity, a Song of David.

[1] Sing to the Lord a new song; sing to the Lord, all the earth. [2] Sing to the Lord, bless his name: proclaim his salvation from day to day. [3] Publish his glory among the Gentiles, his wonderful works among all people.

[4] For the Lord is great, and greatly to be praised: he is terrible above all gods. [5] For all the gods of the heathen are devils: but the Lord made the heavens. [6] Thanksgiving and beauty are before him: holiness and majesty are in his sanctuary.

[7] Bring to the Lord, ye families of the Gentiles, bring to the Lord glory and honour. [8] Bring to the Lord the glory becoming his name: take offerings, and go into his courts. [9] Worship the Lord in his holy court: let all the earth tremble before him. [10] Say among the heathen, The Lord reigns: for he has established the world so that it shall not be moved: he shall judge the people in righteousness. [11] Let the heavens rejoice, and the earth exult; let the sea be moved, and the fullness of it. [12] The plains shall rejoice, and all things in them: then shall all the trees of the wood exult before the presence of the Lord: [13] for he comes, for he comes to judge the earth; he shall judge the world in righteousness, and the people with his truth.

Psalm 97

For David, when his land is established.

[1] The Lord reigns, let the earth exult, let many islands rejoice.

[2] Cloud, and darkness are round about him; righteousness and judgment are the establishment of his throne. [3] Fire shall go before him, and burn up his enemies round about. [4] His lightnings appeared to the world; the earth saw, and trembled. [5] The mountains melted like wax at the presence of the Lord, at the presence of the Lord of the whole earth. [6] The heavens have declared his righteousness, and all the people have seen his glory.

[7] Let all that worship graven images be ashamed, who boast of their idols; worship him, all ye his angels.

[8] Sion heard and rejoiced; and the daughters of Judea exulted, because of thy judgments, O Lord. [9] For thou art Lord most high over all the earth; thou art greatly exalted above all gods.

[10] Ye that love the Lord, hate evil; the Lord preserves the souls of his saints; he shall deliver them from the hand of sinners. [11] Light is sprung up for the righteous, and gladness for the upright in heart. [12] Rejoice in the Lord, ye righteous; and give thanks for a remembrance of his holiness.

Psalm 98

A Psalm of David.

[1] Sing to the Lord a new song; for the Lord has wrought wonderful works, his right hand, and his holy arm, have wrought salvation for him.

[2] The Lord has made known his salvation, he has revealed his righteousness in the sight of the nations. [3] He has remembered his mercy to Jacob, and his truth to the house of Israel; all the ends of the earth have seen the salvation of our God.

[4] Shout to God, all the earth; sing, and exult, and sing psalms. [5] Sing to the Lord with a harp, with a harp, and the voice of a psalm. [6] With trumpets of metal, and the sound of a trumpet of horn make a joyful noise to the Lord before the king. [7] Let the sea be moved, and the fullness of it; the world, and they that dwell in it. [8] The rivers shall clap their hands together; the mountains shall exult. [9] For he is come to judge the earth; he shall judge the world in righteousness, and the nations in uprightness.

A Psalm of David.

[1] The Lord reigns; — let the people rage; it is he that sits upon the cherubs, let the earth be moved. [2] The Lord is great in Sion, and is high over all the people. [3] Let them give thanks to thy great name; for it is terrible and holy. [4] And the king's honour loves judgment; thou hast prepared equity, thou hast wrought judgment and justice in Jacob. [5] Exalt ye the Lord our God, and worship at his footstool; for he is holy.

[6] Moses and Aaron among his priests, and Samuel among them that call upon his name; they called upon the Lord, and he heard them. [7] He spoke to them in a pillar of cloud; they kept his testimonies, and the ordinances which he gave them. [8] O Lord our God, thou heardest them; O God, thou becamest propitious to them, though thou didst take vengeance on all their devices. [9] Exalt ye the Lord our God, and worship at his holy mountain; for the Lord our God is holy.

A Psalm for Thanksgiving.

[1] Make a joyful noise to the Lord, all the earth. [2] Serve the Lord with gladness; come before his presence with exultation. [3] Know that the Lord he is God; he made us, and not we ourselves; we are his people, and the sheep of his pasture. [4] Enter into his gates with thanksgiving, and his courts with hymns; give thanks to him, praise his name. [5] For the Lord is good, his mercy is for ever; and his truth endures to generation and generation.

A Psalm of David.

[1] I will sing to thee, O Lord, of mercy and judgment; I will sing a psalm, [2] and I will be wise in a blameless way. When wilt thou come to me? I walked in the innocence of my heart, in the midst of my house. [3] I have not set before mine eyes any unlawful ting; I have hated transgressors. [4] A perverse heart has not cleaved to me; I have not known an evil man, forasmuch as he turns away from me. [5] Him that privily speaks against his neighbour, him have I driven from me: he that is proud in look and insatiable in heart, — with him I have not eaten. [6] Mine eyes shall be upon the faithful of the land, that they may dwell with me: he that walked in a perfect way, the same ministered to me. [7] The proud doer dwelt not in the midst of my house; the unjust speaker prospered not in my sight. [8] Early did I slay all the sinners of the land, that I might destroy out of the city of the Lord all that work iniquity.

Psalm 102

A Prayer for the Poor; when he is deeply afflicted, and pours out his supplication before the Lord.

[1] Hear my prayer, O Lord, and let my cry come to thee. [2] Turn not away thy face from me: in the day when I am afflicted, incline thine ear to me: in the day when I shall call upon thee, speedily hear me.

[3] For my days have vanished like smoke, and my bones have been parched like a stick. [4] I am blighted like grass, and my heart is dried up; for I have forgotten to eat my bread. [5] By reason of the voice of my groaning, my bone has cleaved to my flesh. [6] I have become like a pelican of the wilderness; [7] I have become like an owl in a ruined house. I have watched, and am become as a sparrow dwelling alone on a roof. [8] All the day long mine enemies have reproached me; and they that praised me have sworn against me. [9] For I have eaten ashes as it were bread, and mingled my drink with weeping; [10] because of thine anger and thy wrath: for thou hast lifted me up, and dashed me down.

[11] My days have declined like a shadow; and I am withered like grass. [12] But thou, Lord, endurest for ever, and thy memorial to generation and generation. [13] Thou shalt arise, and have mercy upon Sion: for it is time to have mercy upon her, for the set time is come. [14] For thy servants have taken pleasure in her stones, and they shall pity her dust. [15] So the nations shall fear thy name, O Lord, and all kings thy glory.

[16] For the Lord shall build up Sion, and shall appear in his glory. [17] He has had regard to the prayer of the lowly, and has not despised their petition. [18] Let this be written for another generation; and the people that shall be created shall praise the Lord. [19] For he has looked out from the height of his sanctuary; the Lord looked upon the earth from heaven; [20] to hear the groaning of the fettered ones, to loosen the sons of the slain; [21] to proclaim the name of the Lord in Sion, and his praise in Jerusalem; [22] when the people are gathered together, and the kings, to serve the Lord.

[23] He answered him in the way of his strength: tell me the fewness of my days. [24] Take me not away in the midst of my days: thy years are through all generations. [25] In the beginning thou, O Lord, didst lay the foundation of the earth; and the heavens are the works of thine hands. [26] They shall perish, but thou remainest: and they all shall wax old as a garment; and as a vesture shalt thou fold them, and they shall be changed. [27] But thou art the same, and thy years shall not fail. [28] The children of thy servants shall dwell securely, and their seed shall prosper for ever.

A Psalm of David.

[1] Bless the Lord, O my soul; and all that is within me, bless his holy name. [2] Bless the Lord, O my soul, and forget not all his praises: [3] who forgives all thy transgressions, who heals all thy diseases; [4] who redeems thy life from corruption; who crowns thee with mercy and compassion; [5] who satisfies thy desire with good things: so that thy youth shall be renewed like that of the eagle.

[6] The Lord executes mercy and judgment for all that are injured. [7] He made known his ways to Moses, his will to the children of Israel. [8] The Lord is compassionate and pitiful, long-suffering, and full of mercy. [9] He will not be always angry; neither will he be wrathful for ever. [10] He has not dealt with us according to our sins, nor recompensed us according to our iniquities. [11] For as the heaven is high above the earth, the Lord has so increased his mercy toward them that fear him. [12] As far as the east is from the west, so far has he removed our transgressions from us. [13] As a father pities his children, the Lord pities them that fear him. [14] For he knows our frame: remember that we are dust.

[15] As for man, his days are as grass; as a flower of the field, so shall he flourish. [16] For the wind passes over it, and it shall not be; and it shall know its place no more. [17] But the mercy of the Lord is from generation to generation upon them that fear him, and his righteousness to children's children; [18] to them that keep his covenant, and remember his commandments to do them.

[19] The Lord has prepared his throne in the heaven; and his kingdom rules over all. [20] Bless the Lord, all ye his angels, mighty in strength, who perform his bidding, ready to hearken to the voice of his words. [21] Bless the Lord, all ye his hosts; ye ministers of his that do his will. [22] Bless the Lord, all his works, in every place of his dominion: bless the Lord, O my soul.

A Psalm of David.

[1] Bless the Lord, O my soul. O Lord my God, thou art very great; thou hast clothed thyself with praise and honour: [2] who dost robe thyself with light as with a garment; spreading out the heaven as a curtain. [3] Who covers his chambers with waters; who makes the clouds his chariot; who walks on the wings of the wind. [4] Who makes his angels spirits, and his ministers a flaming fire.

[5] Who establishes the earth on her sure foundation: it shall not be moved for ever. [6] The deep, as it were a garment, is his covering: the waters shall stand on the hills. [7] At thy rebuke they shall flee; at the voice of thy thunder they shall be alarmed. [8] They go up to the mountains, and down to the plains, to the place which thou hast founded for them. [9] Thou hast set a bound which they shall not pass, neither shall they turn again to cover the earth.

[10] He sends forth his fountains among the valleys: the waters shall run between the mountains. [11] They shall give drink to all the wild beasts of the field: the wild asses shall take of them to quench their thirst. [12] By them shall the birds of the sky lodge: they shall utter a voice out of the midst of the rocks. [13] He waters the mountains from his chambers: the earth shall be satisfied with the fruit of thy works.

[14] He makes grass to grow for the cattle, and green herb for the service of men, to bring bread out of the earth; [15] and wine makes glad the heart of man, to make his face cheerful with oil: and bread strengthens man's heart. [16] The trees of the plain shall be full of sap; even the cedars of Libanus which he has planted. [17] There the sparrows will build their nests; and the house of the heron takes the lead among them. [18] The high mountains are a refuge for the stags, and the rock for the rabbits.

[19] He appointed the moon for seasons: the sun knows his going down. [20] Thou didst make darkness, and it was night; in it all the wild beasts of the forest will be abroad: [21] even young lions roaring for prey, and to seek meat for themselves from God. [22] The sun arises, and they shall be gathered together, and shall lie down in their dens. [23] Man shall go forth to his work, and to his labour till evening.

[24] How great are thy works, O Lord! in wisdom hast thou wrought them all: the earth is filled with thy creation. [25] So is this great and wide sea: there are things creeping innumerable, small animals and great. [26] There go the ships; and this dragon whom thou hast made to play in it. [27] All wait upon thee, to give them their food in due season. [28] When thou hast given it them, they will gather it; and when thou hast opened thine hand, they shall all be filled with good. [29] But when thou hast turned away thy face, they shall be troubled: thou wilt take away their breath, and they shall fail, and return to their dust. [30] Thou shalt send forth thy Spirit, and they shall be created; and thou shalt renew the face of the earth.

[31] Let the glory of the Lord be for ever: the Lord shall rejoice in his works;
[32] who looks upon the earth, and makes it tremble; who touches the mountains, and they smoke. [33] I will sing to the Lord while I live; I will sing praise to my God while I exist. [34] Let my meditation be sweet to him: and I will rejoice in the Lord. [35] Let the sinners fail from off the earth, and transgressors, so that they shall be no more. Bless the Lord, O my soul.

Alleluia.

[1] Give thanks to the Lord, and call upon his name; declare his works among the heathen. [2] Sing to him, yea, sing praises to him: tell forth all his wonderful works. [3] Glory in his holy name: let the heart of them that seek the Lord rejoice. [4] Seek ye the Lord, and be strengthened; seek his face continually. [5] Remember his wonderful works that he has done; his wonders, and the judgments of his mouth; [6] ye seed of Abraam, his servants, ye children of Jacob, his chosen ones.

[7] He is the Lord our God; his judgments are in all the earth. [8] He has remembered his covenant for ever, the word which he commanded for a thousand generation: [9] which he established as a covenant to Abraam, and he remembered his oath to Isaac. [10] And he established it to Jacob for an ordinance, and to Israel for an everlasting covenant; [11] saying To thee will I give the land of Chanaan, the line of your inheritance: [12] when they were few in number, very few, and sojourners in it. [13] And they went from nation to nation, and from one kingdom to another people. [14] He suffered no man to wrong them; and he rebuked kings for their sakes: [15] saying, Touch not my anointed ones; and do my prophets no harm. [16] Moreover he called for a famine upon the land; he broke the whole support of bread.

[17] He sent a man before them; Joseph was sold for a slave. [18] They hurt his feet with fetters; his soul passed into iron, [19] until the time that his cause came on; the word of the Lord tried him as fire. [20] The king sent and loosed him; even the prince of the people, and let him go free. [21] He made him Lord over his house, and ruler of all his substance; [22] to chastise his rulers at his pleasure, and to teach his elders wisdom.

[23] Israel also came into Egypt, and Jacob sojourned in the land of Cham. [24] And he increased his people greatly, and made them stronger than their enemies. [25] And he turned their heart to hate his people, to deal craftily with his servants. [26] He sent forth Moses his servant, and Aaron whom he had chosen.

[27] He established among them his signs, and his wonders in the land of Cham. [28] He sent forth darkness, and made it dark; yet they rebelled against his words. [29] He turned their waters into blood, and slew their fish. [30] Their land produced frogs abundantly, in the chambers of their kings. [31] He spoke, and the dog-fly came, and lice in all their coasts. [32] He turned their rain into hail, and sent flaming fire in their land. [33] And he smote their vines and their fig trees; and broke every tree of their coast. [34] He spoke, and the locust came, and caterpillars innumerable, [35] and devoured all the grass in their land, and devoured the fruit of the ground. [36] He smote also every first-born of their land, the first-fruits of all their labour. [37] And he brought them out with silver and gold; and there was not a feeble one among their tribes. [38]

Egypt rejoiced at their departing; for the fear of them fell upon them. [39] He spread out a cloud for a covering to them, and fire to give them light by night. [40] They asked, and the quail came, and he satisfied them with the bread of heaven. [41] He clave the rock, and the waters flowed, rivers ran in dry places.

[42] For he remembered his holy word, which he promised to Abraam his servant. [43] And he brought out his people with exultation, and his chosen with joy; [44] and gave them the lands of the heathen; and they inherited the labours of the people; [45] that they might keep his ordinances, and diligently seek his law.

Psalm 106

Alleluia.

[1] Give thanks to the Lord; for he is good: for his mercy endures for ever. [2] Who shall tell the mighty acts of the Lord? who shall cause all his praises to be heard? [3] Blessed are they that keep judgment, and do righteousness at all times.

[4] Remember us, O Lord, with the favour thou hast to thy people: visit us with thy salvation; [5] that we may behold the good of thine elect, that we may rejoice in the gladness of thy nation, that we may glory with thine inheritance.

[6] We have sinned with our fathers, we have transgressed, we have done unrighteously. [7] Our fathers in Egypt understood not thy wonders, and remembered not the multitude of thy mercy; but provoked him as they went up by the Red Sea. [8] Yet he saved them for his name's sake, that he might cause his mighty power to be known. [9] And he rebuked the Red Sea, and it was dried up: so he led them through the deep as through the wilderness. [10] And he saved them out of the hand of them that hated them, and redeemed them out of the hand of the enemy. [11] The water covered those that oppressed them: there was not one of them left. [12] Then they believed his words, and celebrated his praise. [13] They made haste, they forgot his works; they waited not for his counsel. [14] And they lusted exceedingly in the wilderness, and tempted God in the dry land. [15] And he gave them their request, and sent fullness into their souls.

[16] They provoked Moses also in the camp, and Aaron the holy one of the Lord. [17] The earth opened and swallowed up Dathan, and closed upon the congregation of Abiron. [18] And a fire was kindled in their congregation, and a flame burnt up the sinners.

[19] And they made a calf in Choreb, and worshipped the graven image, [20] and they changed their glory into the similitude of a calf that feeds on grass. [21] They forgot God that saved them, who had wrought great deeds in Egypt; [22] wondrous works in the land of Cham, and terrible things at the Red Sea. [23] So he said that he would have destroyed them, had not Moses his chosen stood before him in the breach, to turn him away from the fierceness of his anger, so that he should not destroy them.

[24] Moreover they set at nought the desirable land, and believed not his word. [25] And they murmured in their tents: they hearkened not to the voice of the Lord. [26] So he lifted up his hand against them, to cast them down in the wilderness; [27] and to cast down their seed among the nations, and to scatter them in the countries.

[28] They were joined also to Beelphegor, and ate the sacrifices of the dead. And they provoked him with their devices; [29] and destruction, was multiplied among them. [30] Then Phinees stood up, and made atonement: and the plague ceased. [31] And it was counted to him for righteousness, to all generations for ever.

[32] They provoked him also at the water of Strife, and Moses was hurt for their sakes; [33] for they provoked his spirit, and he spoke unadvisedly with his lips.

[34] They destroyed not the nations which the Lord told them to destroy; [35] but were mingled with the heathen, and learned their works. [36] And they served their graven images; and it became an offence to them. [37] And they sacrificed their sons and their daughters to devils, [38] and shed innocent blood, the blood of their sons and daughters, whom they sacrificed to the idols of Chanaan; and the land was defiled with blood. [39] and was polluted with their works; and they went a whoring with their own devices.

[40] So the Lord was very angry with his people, and he abhorred his inheritance. [41] And he delivered them into the hands of their enemies; and they that hated them ruled over them. [42] And their enemies oppressed them, and they were brought down under their hands. [43] Many a time he delivered them; but they provoked him by their counsel, and they were brought low by their iniquities. [44] Ye the Lord looked upon their affliction, when he heard their petition. [45] And he remembered his covenant, and repented according to the multitude of his mercy. [46] And he caused them to be pitied in the sight of all who carried them captive.

[47] Save us, O Lord our God, and gather us from among the heathen, that we may give thanks to thy holy name, that we may glory in thy praise. [48] Blessed be the Lord God of Israel from everlasting and to everlasting; and all the people shall say, Amen, Amen.

Alleluia.

[1] Give thanks to the Lord, for he is good; for his mercy endures for ever. [2] Let them say so who have been redeemed by the Lord, whom he has redeemed from the hand of the enemy; [3] and gathered them out of the countries, from the east, and west, and north, and south.

[4] They wandered in the wilderness in a dry land; they found no way to a city of habitation. [5] Hungry and thirsty, their soul fainted in them. [6] Then they cried to the Lord in their affliction, and he delivered them out of their distresses. [7] And he guided them into a straight path, that they might go to a city of habitation.

[8] Let them acknowledge to the Lord his mercies, and his wonderful works to the children of men. [9] For he satisfies the empty soul, and fills the hungry soul with good things, [10] even them that sit in darkness and the shadow of death, fettered in poverty and iron; [11] because they rebelled against the words of God, and provoked the counsel of the Most High. [12] So their heart was brought low with troubles; they were weak, and there was no helper. [13] Then they cried to the Lord in their affliction, and he saved them out of their distresses. [14] And he brought them out of darkness and the shadow of death, and broke their bonds asunder.

[15] Let them acknowledge to the Lord his mercies, and his wonders to the children of men. [16] For he broke to pieces the brazen gates, and crushed the iron bars.

[17] He helped them out of the way of their iniquity; for they were brought low because of their iniquities. [18] Their soul abhorred all meat; and they drew near to the gates of death. [19] Then they cried to the Lord in their affliction, and he saved them out of their distresses. [20] He sent his word, and healed them, and delivered them out of their destructions.

[21] Let them acknowledge to the Lord his mercies, and his wonderful works to the children of men. [22] And let them offer to him the sacrifice of praise, and proclaim this works with exultation.

[23] They that go down to the sea in ships, doing business in many waters; [24] these men have seen the works of the Lord, and his wonders in the deep. [25] He speaks, and the stormy wind arises, and its waves are lifted up. [26] They go up to the heavens, and go down to the depths; their soul melts because of troubles. [27] They are troubled, they stagger as a drunkard, and all their wisdom is swallowed up. [28] Then they cry to the Lord in their affliction, and he brings them out of their distresses. [29] And he commands the storm, and it is calmed into a gentle breeze, and its waves are still. [30] And they are glad, because they are quiet; and he guides them to their desire haven.

[31] Let them acknowledge to the Lord his mercies, and his wonderful works to the children of men. [32] Let them exalt him in the congregation of the people, and praise him in the seat of the elders.

[33] He turns rivers into a desert, and streams of water into a dry land; [34] a fruitful land into saltness, for the wickedness of them that dwell in it. [35] He turns a wilderness into pools of water, and a dry land into streams of water. [36] And there he causes the hungry to dwell, and they establish for themselves cities of habitation. [37] And they sow fields, and plant vineyards, and they yield fruit of increase. [38] And he blesses them, and they multiply exceedingly, and he diminishes not the number of their cattle. [39] Again they become few, and are brought low, by the pressure of evils and pain. [40] Contempt is poured upon their princes, and he causes them to wander in a desert and trackless land. [41] But he helps the poor out of poverty, and makes him families as a flock. [42] The upright shall see and rejoice; and all iniquity shall stop her mouth. [43] Who is wise, and will observe these things, and understand the mercies of the Lord?

Song of a Psalm by David.

[1] O God, my heart is ready, my heart is ready; I will sing and sing psalms with my glory. [2] Awake, psaltery and harp; I will awake early. [3] I will give thanks to thee, O Lord, among the people; I will sing praise to thee among the Gentiles. [4] For thy mercy is great above the heavens, and thy truth reaches to the clouds. [5] Be thou exalted, O God, above the heavens; and thy glory above all the earth. [6] That thy beloved ones may be delivered, save with thy right hand, and hear me. God has spoken in his sanctuary; [7] I will be exalted, and will divide Sicima, and will measure out the valley of tents. [8] Galaad is mine; and Manasses is mine; and Ephraim is the help of mine head; Judas is my king; [9] Moab is the caldron of my hope; over Idumea will I cast my sandal; the Philistines are made subject to me.

[10] Who will bring me into the fortified city? or who will guide me to Idumea? [11] Wilt not thou, O God, who hast rejected us? and wilt not thou, O God, go forth with our hosts? [12] Give us help from tribulation: for vain is the help of man. [13] Through God we shall do valiantly; and he will bring to nought our enemies.

For the end, a Psalm of David.

[1] O God, pass not over my praise in silence; [2] for the mouth of the sinner and the mouth of the crafty man have been opened against me: they have spoken against me with a crafty tongue. [3] And they have compassed me with words of hatred; and fought against me without a cause. [4] Instead of loving me, they falsely accused me: but I continued to pray. [5] And they rewarded me evil for good, and hatred for my love.

[6] Set thou a sinner against him; and let the devil stand at his right hand. [7] When he is judged, let him go forth condemned: and let his prayer become sin. [8] Let his days be few: and let another take his office of overseer. [9] Let his children be orphans, and his wife a widow. [10] Let his children wander without a dwelling-place, and beg: let them be cast out of their habitations. [11] Let his creditor exact all that belongs to him: and let strangers spoil his labours. [12] Let him have no helper; neither let there be any one to have compassion on his fatherless children. [13] Let his children be given up to utter destruction: in one generation let his name be blotted out. [14] Let the iniquity of his fathers be remembered before the Lord; and let not the sin of his mother be blotted out. [15] Let them be before the Lord continually; and let their memorial be blotted out from the earth.

[16] Because he remembered not to shew mercy, but persecuted the needy and poor man, and that to slay him that was pricked in the heart. [17] He loved cursing also, and it shall come upon him; and he took not pleasure in blessing, so it shall be removed far from him. [18] Yea, he put on cursing as a garment, and it is come as water into his bowels, and as oil into his bones. [19] Let it be to him as a garment which he puts on, and as a girdle with which he girds himself continually. [20] This is the dealing of the Lord with those who falsely accuse me, and of them that speak evil against my soul.

[21] But thou, O Lord, Lord, deal mercifully with me, for thy name's sake: for thy mercy is good. [22] Deliver me, for I am poor and needy; and my heart is troubled within me. [23] I am removed as a shadow in its going down: I am tossed up and down like locusts. [24] My knees are weakened through fasting, and my flesh is changed by reason of the want of oil. [25] I became also a reproach to them: when they saw me they shook their heads.

[26] Help me, O Lord my God; and save me according to thy mercy. [27] And let them know that this is thy hand; and that thou, Lord, hast wrought it. [28] Let them curse, but thou shalt bless: let them that rise up against me be ashamed, but let thy servant rejoice. [29] Let those that falsely accuse me be clothed with shame, and let them cover themselves with their shame as with a mantle. [30] I will give thanks to the Lord abundantly with my mouth; and in the midst of many I will praise him. [31] For he stood on the right hand of the poor, to save me from them that persecute my soul.

A Psalm of David.

[1] The Lord said to my Lord, Sit thou on my right hand, until I make thine enemies thy footstool. [2] The Lord shall send out a rod of power for thee out of Sion: rule thou in the midst of thine enemies. [3] With thee is dominion in the day of thy power, in the splendours of thy saints: I have begotten thee from the womb before the morning. [4] The Lord sware, and will not repent, Thou art a priest for ever, after the order of Melchisedec. [5] The Lord at thy right hand has dashed in pieces kings in the day of his wrath. [6] He shall judge among the nations, he shall fill up the number of corpses, he shall crush the heads of many on the earth. [7] He shall drink of the brook in the way; therefore shall he lift up the head.

Psalm 111

Alleluia.

[1] I will give thee thanks, O Lord, with my whole heart, in the council of the upright, and in the congregation. [2] The works of the Lord are great, sought out according to all his will. [3] His work is worthy of thanksgiving and honour: and his righteousness endures for ever and ever. [4] He has caused his wonderful works to be remembered: the Lord is merciful and compassionate. [5] He has given food to them that fear him: he will remember his covenant for ever. [6] He has declared to his people the power of his works, to give them the inheritance of the heathen. [7] The works of his hands are truth and judgment: all his commandments are sure: [8] established for ever and ever, done in truth and uprightness. [9] He sent redemption to his people: he commanded his covenant for ever: holy and fearful is his name. [10] The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom, and all that act accordingly have a good understanding; his praise endures for ever and ever.

Psalm 112

Alleluia.

[1] Blessed is the man that fears the Lord: he will delight greatly in his commandments. [2] His seed shall be mighty in the earth: the generation of the upright shall be blessed. [3] Glory and riches shall be in his house; and his righteousness endures for evermore. [4] To the upright light has sprung up in darkness: he is pitiful, and merciful, and righteous. [5] The good man is he that pities and lends: he will direct his affairs with judgment. [6] For he shall not be moved for ever; the righteous shall be in everlasting remembrance. [7] He shall not be afraid of any evil report: his heart is ready to trust in the Lord. [8] His heart is established, he shall not fear, till he shall see his desire upon his enemies. [9] He has dispersed abroad; he has given to the poor; his righteousness endures for evermore: his horn shall be exalted with honour. [10] The sinner shall see and be angry, he shall gnash his teeth, and consume away: the desire of the sinner shall perish.

Psalm 113

Alleluia.

[1] Praise the Lord, ye servants of his, praise, the name of the Lord. [2] Let the name of the Lord be blessed, from this present time and for ever. [3] From the rising of the sun to his setting, the name of the Lord is to be praised. [4] The Lord is high above all the nations; his glory is above the heavens.

[5] Who is as the Lord our God? who dwells in the high places, [6] and yet looks upon the low things in heaven, and on the earth: [7] who lifts up the poor from the earth, and raises up the needy from the dunghill; [8] to set him with princes, even with the princes of his people: [9] who settles the barren woman in a house, as a mother rejoicing over children.

Psalm 114

Alleluia.

[1] At the going forth of Israel from Egypt, of the house of Jacob from a barbarous people, [2] Judea became his sanctuary, and Israel his dominion. [3] The sea saw and fled: Jordan was turned back. [4] The mountains skipped like rams, and the hills like lambs.

[5] What ailed thee, O sea, that thou fleddest? and thou Jordan, that thou wast turned back? [6] Ye mountains, that ye skipped like rams, and ye hills, like lambs? [7] The earth trembled at the presence of the Lord, at the presence of the God of Jacob; [8] who turned the rock into pools of water, and the flint into fountains of water.

[1] Not to us, O Lord, not to us, but to thy name give glory, because of thy mercy and thy truth; [2] lest at any time the nations should say, Where is their God? [3] But our God has done in heaven and on earth, whatsoever he has pleased.

[4] The idols of the nations are silver and gold, the works of men's hands. [5] They have a mouth, but they cannot speak; they have eyes, but they cannot see: [6] they have ears, but they cannot hear; they have noses, but they cannot smell; [7] they have hands, but they cannot handle; they have feet, but they cannot walk: they cannot speak through their throat. [8] Let those that make them become like to them, and all who trust in them.

[9] The house of Israel trusts in the Lord: he is their helper and defender. [10] The house of Aaron trusts in the Lord: he is their helper and defender. [11] They that fear the Lord trust in the Lord: he is their helper and defender.

[12] The Lord has remembered us, and blessed us: he has blessed the house of Israel, he has blessed the house of Aaron. [13] He has blessed them that fear the Lord, both small and great. [14] The Lord add blessings to you and to your children. [15] Blessed are ye of the Lord, who made the heaven and the earth.

[16] The heaven of heavens belongs to the Lord: but he has given the earth to the sons of men. [17] The dead shall not praise thee, O Lord, nor any that go down to Hades. [18] But we, the living, will bless the Lord, from henceforth and for ever.

Alleluia.

[1] I am well pleased, because the Lord will hearken to the voice of my supplication. [2] Because he has inclined his ear to me, therefore will I call upon him while I live. [3] The pangs of death compassed me; the dangers of hell found me: I found affliction and sorrow. [4] Then I called on the name of the Lord: O Lord, deliver my soul.

[5] The Lord is merciful and righteous; yea, our God has pity. [6] The Lord preserves the simple: I was brought low, and he delivered me.

[7] Return to thy rest, O my soul; for the Lord has dealt bountifully with thee. [8] For he has delivered my soul from death, mine eyes from tears, and my feet from falling. [9] I shall be well-pleasing before the Lord in the land of the living.

Alleluia:

[10] I believed, wherefore I have spoken: but I was greatly afflicted. [11] And I said in mine amazement, Every man is a liar. [12] What shall I render to the Lord for all the things wherein he has rewarded me? [13] I will take the cup of salvation, and call upon the name of the Lord. [14] I will pay my vows to the Lord, in the presence of all his people.

[15] Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of his saints. [16] O Lord, I am thy servant; I am thy servant, and the son of thine handmaid: thou hast burst by bonds asunder. [17] I will offer to thee the sacrifice of praise, and will call upon the name of the Lord. [18] I will pay my vows unto the Lord, in the presence of all his people, [19] in the courts of the Lord's house, in the midst of thee, Jerusalem.

Alleluia.

^[1] Praise the Lord, all ye nations: praise him, all ye peoples. ^[2] For his mercy has been abundant toward us: and the truth of the Lord endures for ever.

Psalm 118

Alleluia.

[1] Give thanks to the Lord; for he is good: for his mercy endures for ever. [2] Let now the house of Israel say, that he is good: for his mercy endures for ever. [3] Let now the house of Aaron say, that he is good: for his mercy endures for ever. [4] Let now all that fear the Lord say, that he is good: for his mercy endures for ever.

[5] I called on the Lord out of affliction: and he hearkened to me, so as to bring me into a wide place. [6] The Lord is my helper; and I will not fear what man shall do to me. [7] The Lord is my helper; and I shall see my desire upon mine enemies. [8] It is better to trust in the Lord than to trust in man. [9] It is better to hope in the Lord, than to hope in princes.

[10] All nations compassed me about: but in the name of the Lord I repulsed them. [11] They completely compassed me about: but in the name of the Lord I repulsed them. [12] They compassed me about as bees do a honeycomb, and they burst into flame as fire among thorns: but in the name of the Lord I repulsed them. [13] I was thrust, and sorely shaken, that I might fall: but the Lord helped me.

[14] The Lord is my strength and my song, and is become my salvation. [15] The voice of exultation and salvation is in the tabernacles of the righteous: the right hand of the Lord has wrought mightily. [16] The right hand of the Lord has exalted me: the right hand of the Lord has wrought powerfully. [17] I shall not die, but live, and recount the works of the Lord. [18] The Lord has chastened me sore: but he has not given me up to death.

[19] Open to me the gates of righteousness: I will go into them, and give praise to the Lord. [20] This is the gate of the Lord: the righteous shall enter by it. [21] I will give thanks to thee; because thou hast heard me, and art become my salvation. [22] The stone which the builders rejected, the same is become the head of the corner. [23] This has been done of the Lord; and it is wonderful in our eyes. [24] This is the day which the Lord has made: let us exult and rejoice in it. [25] O Lord, save now: O Lord, send now prosperity. [26] Blessed is he that comes in the name of the Lord: we have blessed you out of the house of the Lord.

[27] God is the Lord, and he has shined upon us: celebrate the feast with thick branches, binding the victims even to the horns of the altar. [28] Thou art my God, and I will give thee thanks: thou art my God, and I will exalt thee. I will give thanks to thee, for thou hast heard me, and art become my salvation. [29] Give thanks to the Lord; for he is good: for his mercy endures for ever.

Alleluia.

[1] Blessed are the blameless in the way, who walk in the law of the Lord. [2] Blessed are they that search out his testimonies: they will diligently seek him with the whole heart. [3] For they that work iniquity have not walked in his ways. [4] Thou hast commanded us diligently to keep thy precepts. [5] O that my ways were directed to keep thine ordinances. [6] Then shall I not be ashamed, when I have respect to all thy commandments. [7] I will give thee thanks with uprightness of heart, when I have learnt the judgments of thy righteousness. [8] I will keep thine ordinances: O forsake me not greatly.

[9] Wherewith shall a young man direct his way? by keeping thy words. [10] With my whole heart have I diligently sought thee: cast me not away from thy commandments. [11] I have hidden thine oracles in my heart, that I might not sin against thee. [12] Blessed art thou, O Lord: teach me thine ordinances. [13] With my lips have I declared all the judgments of thy mouth. [14] I have delighted in the way of thy testimonies, as much as in all riches. [15] I will meditate on thy commandments, and consider thy ways. [16] I will meditate on thine ordinances: I will not forget thy words.

[17] Render a recompense to thy servant: so shall I live, and keep thy words. [18] Unveil thou mine eyes, and I shall perceive wondrous things of thy law. [19] I am a stranger in the earth: hide not thy commandments from me. [20] My soul has longed exceedingly for thy judgments at all times. [21] Thou has rebuked the proud: cursed are they that turn aside from thy commandments. [22] Remove from me reproach and contempt; for I have sought out thy testimonies. [23] For princes sat and spoke against me: but thy servant was meditating on thine ordinances. [24] For thy testimonies are my meditation, and thine ordinances are my counsellors.

[25] My soul has cleaved to the ground; quicken thou me according to thy word. [26] I declared my ways, and thou didst hear me: teach me thine ordinances. [27] Instruct me in the way of thine ordinances; and I will meditate on thy wondrous works. [28] My soul has slumbered for sorrow; strengthen thou me with thy words. [29] Remove from me the way of iniquity; and be merciful to me by thy law. [30] I have chosen the way of truth; and have not forgotten thy judgments. [31] I have cleaved to thy testimonies, O Lord; put me not to shame. [32] I ran the way of thy commandments, when thou didst enlarge my heart.

[33] Teach me, O Lord, the way of thine ordinances, and I will seek it out continually. [34] Instruct me, and I will search out thy law, and will keep it with my whole heart. [35] Guide me in the path of thy commandments; for I have delighted in it. [36] Incline mine heart to thy testimonies, and not to covetousness. [37] Turn away mine eyes that I may not behold vanity: quicken thou me in thy way. [38] Confirm thine oracle to thy servant, that he may fear thee. [39] Take away my reproach which I have feared: for thy judgments are good. [40] Behold, I have desired thy commandments: quicken me in thy righteousness.

[41] And let thy mercy come upon me, O Lord; even thy salvation, according to thy word. [42] And so I shall render an answer to them that reproach me: for I have trusted in thy words. [43] And take not the word of truth utterly out of my mouth; for I have hoped in thy judgments. So shall I keep thy law continually, for ever and ever. [45] I walked also at large: for I sought out thy commandments. [46] And I spoke of thy testimonies before kings, and was not ashamed. [47] And I meditated on thy commandments, which I loved exceedingly. [48] And I lifted up my hands to thy commandments which I loved; and I meditated in thine ordinances.

[49] Remember thy words to thy servant, wherein thou hast made me hope. [50] This has comforted me in mine affliction: for thine oracle has quickened me. [51] The proud have transgressed exceedingly; but I swerved not from thy law. [52] I remembered thy judgements of old, O Lord; and was comforted. [53] Despair took hold upon me, because of the sinners who forsake thy law. [54] Thine ordinances were my songs in the place of my sojourning. [55] I remembered thy name, O Lord, in the night, and kept thy law. [56] This I had, because I diligently sought thine ordinances.

[57] Thou art my portion, O Lord: I said that I would keep thy law. [58] I besought thy favour with my whole heart: have mercy upon me according to thy word. [59] I thought on thy ways, and turned my feet to thy testimonies. [60] I prepared myself, (and was not terrified,) to keep thy commandments. [61] The snares of sinners entangled me: but I forgot not thy law. [62] At midnight I arose, to give thanks to thee for the judgments of thy righteousness. [63] I am a companion of all them that fear thee, and of them that keep thy commandments. [64] O Lord, the earth is full of thy mercy: teach me thine ordinances.

[65] Thou hast wrought kindly with thy servant, o Lord, according to thy word. [66] Teach me kindness, and instruction, and knowledge: for I have believed thy commandments. [67] Before I was afflicted, I transgressed; therefore have I kept thy word. [68] Good art thou, O Lord; therefore in thy goodness teach me thine ordinances. [69] The injustice of the proud has been multiplied against me: but I will search out thy commandments with all my heart. [70] Their heart has been curdled like milk; but I have meditated on thy law. [71] It is good for me that thou hast afflicted me; that I might learn thine ordinances. [72] The law of thy mouth is better to me than thousands of gold and silver.

[73] Thy hands have made me, and fashioned me: instruct me, that I may learn thy commandments. [74] They that fear thee will see me and rejoice: for I have hoped in thy words. [75] I know, O Lord, that thy judgments are righteousness, and that thou in truthfulness hast afflicted me. [76] Let, I pray thee, thy mercy be to comfort me, according to thy word to thy servant. [77] Let thy compassions come to me, that I may live: for thy law is my meditation. [78] Let the proud be ashamed; for they transgressed against me unjustly: but I will meditate in thy commandments. [79] Let those that fear thee, and those that know thy testimonies, turn to me. [80] Let mine heart be blameless in thine ordinances, that I may not be ashamed.

[81] My soul faints for thy salvation: I have hoped in thy words. [82] Mine eyes failed in waiting for thy word, saying, When wilt thou comfort me? [83] For I am become as a bottle in the frost: yet I have not forgotten thine ordinances. [84] How many are the days of thy servant? when wilt thou execute judgment for me on them that persecute me? [85] Transgressors told me idle tales; but not according to thy law, O Lord. [86] All thy commandments are truth; they persecuted me unjustly; help thou me. [87] They nearly made an end of me in the earth; but I forsook not thy commandments. [88] Quicken me according to thy mercy; so shall I keep the testimonies of thy mouth.

[89] Thy word, O Lord, abides in heaven for ever. [90] Thy truth endures to all generations; thou hast founded the earth, and it abides. [91] The day continues by thy arrangement; for all things are thy servants. [92] Were it not that thy law is my meditation, then I should have perished in mine affliction. [93] I will never forget thine ordinances; for with them thou hast quickened me. [94] I am thine, save me; for I have sought out thine ordinances. [95] Sinners laid wait for me to destroy me; but I understood thy testimonies. [96] I have seen an end of all perfection; but thy commandment is very broad.

[97] How I have loved thy law, O Lord! it is my meditation all the day. [98] Thou hast made me wiser than mine enemies in thy commandment; for it is mine for ever. [99] I have more understanding than all my teachers; for thy testimonies are my medication. [100] I understand more than the aged; because I have sought out thy commandments. [101] I have kept back my feet from every evil way, that I might keep thy words. [102] I have not declined from thy judgments; for thou hast instructed me.

[103] How sweet are thine oracles to my throat! more so than honey to my mouth! [104] I gain understanding by thy commandments: therefore I have hated every way of unrighteousness.

[105] Thy law is a lamp to my feet, and a light to my paths. [106] I have sworn and determined to keep the judgments of thy righteousness. [107] I have been very greatly afflicted, O Lord: quicken me, according to thy word. [108] Accept, I pray thee, O Lord, the freewill-offerings of my mouth, and teach me thy judgments. [109] My soul is continually in thine hands; and I have not forgotten thy law. [110] Sinners spread a snare for me; but I erred not from thy commandments. [111] I have inherited thy testimonies for ever; for they are the joy of my heart. [112] I have inclined my heart to perform thine ordinances for ever, in return for thy mercies.

[113] I have hated transgressors; but I have loved thy law. [114] Thou art my helper and my supporter; I have hoped in thy words. [115] Depart from me, ye evil-doers; for I will search out the commandments of my God. [116] Uphold me according to thy word, and quicken me; and make me not ashamed of my expectation. [117] Help me, and I shall be saved; and I will meditate in thine ordinances continually. [118] Thou hast brought to nought all that depart from thine ordinances; for their inward thought is unrighteous. [119] I have reckoned all the sinners of the earth as transgressors; therefore have I loved thy testimonies. [120] Penetrate my flesh with thy fear; for I am afraid of thy judgments.

[121] I have done judgment and justice; deliver me not up to them that injure me. [122] Receive thy servant for good: let not the proud accuse me falsely. [123] Mine eyes have failed for thy salvation, and for the word of thy righteousness. [124] Deal with thy servant according to thy mercy, and teach me thine ordinances. [125] I am thy servant; instruct me, and I shall know thy testimonies. [126] It is time for the Lord to work: they have utterly broken thy law. [127] Therefore have I loved thy commandments more than gold, or the topaz. [128] Therefore I directed myself according to all thy commandments: I have hated every unjust way.

[129] Thy testimonies are wonderful: therefore my soul has sought them out. [130] The manifestation of thy words will enlighten, and instruct the simple. [131] I opened my mouth, and drew breath: for I earnestly longed after thy commandments. [132] Look upon me and have mercy upon me, after the manner of them that love thy name. [133] Order my steps according to thy word: and let not any iniquity have dominion over me. [134] Deliver me from the false accusation of men: so will I keep thy commandments. [135] Cause thy face to shine upon thy servant: and teach me thine ordinances. [136] Mine eyes have been bathed in streams of water, because I kept not thy law.

[137] Righteous art thou, O Lord, and upright are thy judgments. [138] Thou has commanded righteousness and perfect truth, as thy testimonies. [139] Thy zeal has quite wasted me: because mine enemies have forgotten thy words. [140] Thy word has been very fully tried; and thy servant loves it. [141] I am young and despised: yet I have not forgotten thine ordinances. [142] Thy righteousness is an everlasting righteousness, and thy law is truth. [143] Afflictions and distresses found me: but thy commandments were my meditation. [144] Thy testimonies are an everlasting righteousness: instruct me, and I shall live.

[145] I cried with my whole heart; hear me, O Lord: I will search out thine ordinances. [146] I cried to thee; save me, and I will keep thy testimonies. [147] I arose before the dawn, and cried: I hoped in thy words. [148] Mine eyes prevented the dawn, that I might meditate on thine oracles. [149] Hear my voice, O Lord, according to thy mercy; quicken me according to thy judgment. [150] They have drawn nigh who persecuted me unlawfully; and they are far removed from thy law. [151] Thou art near, O Lord; and all thy ways are truth. [152] I have known of old concerning thy testimonies, that thou hast founded them for ever.

[153] Look upon mine affliction, and rescue me; for I have not forgotten thy law. [154] Plead my cause, and ransom me: quicken me because of thy word.

[155] Salvation is far from sinners: for they have not searched out thine ordinances. [156] Thy mercies, O Lord, are many: quicken me according to thy judgment. [157] Many are they that persecute me and oppress me: but I have not declined from thy testimonies. [158] I beheld men acting foolishly, and I pined away; for they kept not thine oracles. [159] Behold, I have loved thy commandments, O Lord: quicken me in thy mercy. [160] The beginning of thy words is truth; and all the judgments of thy righteousness endure for ever.

[161] Princes persecuted me without a cause, but my heart feared because of thy words. [162] I will exult because of thine oracles, as one that finds much spoil. [163] I hate and abhor unrighteousness; but I love thy law. [164] Seven times in a day have I praised thee because of the judgments of thy righteousness. [165] Great peace have they that love thy law: and there is no stumbling-block to them. [166] I waited for thy salvation, O Lord, and have loved thy commandments. [167] My soul has kept thy testimonies, and loved them exceedingly. [168] I have kept thy commandments and thy testimonies; for all my ways are before thee, O Lord.

[169] Let my supplication come near before thee, o Lord; instruct me according to thine oracle. [170] Let my petition come in before thee, O Lord; deliver me according to thine oracle. [171] Let my lips utter a hymn, when thou shalt have taught me thine ordinances. [172] Let my tongue utter thine oracles; for all thy commandments are righteous. [173] Let thine hand be prompt to save me; for I have chosen thy commandments. [174] I have longed after thy salvation, O Lord; and thy law is my meditation. [175] My soul shall live, and shall praise thee; and thy judgments shall help me. [176] I have gone astray like a lost sheep; seek thy servant; for I have not forgotten thy commandments.

A Song of Degrees.

[1] In mine affliction I cried to the Lord, and he hearkened to me. [2] Deliver my soul, O Lord, from unjust lips, and from a deceitful tongue.

[3] What should be given to thee, and what should be added to thee, for thy crafty tongue? [4] Sharpened weapons of the mighty, with coals of the desert.

[5] Woe is me, that my sojourning is prolonged; I have tabernacled among the tents of Kedar. [6] My soul has long been a sojourner; [7] I was peaceable among them that hated peace; when I spoke to them, they warred against me without a cause.

Psalm 121

A Song of Degrees.

[1] I lifted up mine eyes to the mountains, whence my help shall come. [2] My help shall come from the Lord, who made the heaven and the earth. [3] Let not thy foot be moved; and let not thy keeper slumber. [4] Behold, he that keeps Israel shall not slumber nor sleep. [5] The Lord shall keep thee: the Lord is thy shelter upon thy right hand. [6] The sun shall not burn thee by day, neither the moon by night. [7] May the Lord preserve thee from all evil: the Lord shall keep thy soul. [8] The Lord shall keep thy coming in, and thy going out, from henceforth and even for ever.

Psalm 122

A Song of Degrees.

[1] I was glad when they said to me, Let us go into the house of the Lord. [2] Our feet stood in thy courts, O Jerusalem. [3] Jerusalem is built as a city whose fellowship is complete. [4] For thither the tribes went up, the tribes of the Lord, as a testimony for Israel, to give thanks unto the name of the Lord. [5] For there are set thrones for judgement, even thrones for the house of David.

[6] Pray now for the peace of Jerusalem: and let there be prosperity to them that love thee. [7] Let peace, I pray, be within thine host, and prosperity in thy palaces. [8] For the sake of my brethren and my neighbours, I have indeed spoken peace concerning thee. [9] Because of the house of the Lord our God, I have diligently sought thy good.

A Song of Degrees.

[1] Unto thee who dwellest in heaven have I lifted up mine eyes. [2] Behold, as the eyes of servants are directed to the hands of their masters, and as the eyes of a maidservant to the hands of her mistress; so our eyes are directed to the Lord our God, until he have mercy upon us. [3] Have pity upon us, O Lord, have pity upon us: for we are exceedingly filled with contempt. [4] Yea, our soul has been exceedingly filled with it: let the reproach be to them that are at ease, and contempt to the proud.

A Song of Degrees.

[1] If it had not been that the Lord was among us, let Israel now say; [2] if it had not been that the Lord was among us, when men rose up against us; [3] verily they would have swallowed us up alive, when their wrath was kindled against us: [4] verily the water would have drowned us, our soul would have gone under the torrent. [5] Yea, our soul would have gone under the overwhelming water.

[6] Blessed be the Lord, who has not given us for a prey to their teeth. [7] Our soul has been delivered as a sparrow from the snare of the fowlers: the snare is broken, and we are delivered. [8] Our help is in the name of the Lord, who made heaven and earth.

A Song of Degrees.

[1] They that trust in the Lord shall be as mount Sion: he that dwells in Jerusalem shall never be moved. [2] The mountains are round about her, and so the Lord is round about his people, from henceforth and even for ever. [3] For the Lord will not allow the rod of sinners to be upon the lot of the righteous; lest the righteous should stretch forth their hands to iniquity.

[4] Do good, O Lord, to them that are good, and to them that are upright in heart. [5] But them that turn aside to crooked ways the Lord will lead away with the workers of iniquity: but peace shall be upon Israel.

Psalm 126

A Song of Degrees.

[1] When the Lord turned the captivity of Sion, we became as comforted ones. [2] Then was our mouth filled with joy, and our tongue with exultation: then would they say among the Gentiles, [3] The Lord has done great things among them. The Lord has done great things for us, we became joyful.

[4] Turn, O Lord, our captivity, as the streams in the south. [5] They that sow in tears shall reap in joy. [6] They went on and wept as they cast their seeds; but they shall surely come with exultation, bringing their sheaves with them.

Psalm 127

A Song of Degrees.

[1] Except the Lord build the house, they that build labour in vain: except the Lord keep the city, the watchman watches in vain. [2] It is vain for you to rise early: ye rise up after resting, ye that eat the bread of grief; while he gives sleep to his beloved.

[3] Behold, the inheritance of the Lord, children, the reward of the fruit of the womb. [4] As arrows in the hand of a mighty man; so are the children of those who were outcasts. [5] Blessed is the man who shall satisfy his desire with them: they shall not be ashamed when they shall speak to their enemies in the gates.

Psalm 128

A Song of Degrees.

[1] Blessed are all they that fear the Lord; who walk in his ways. [2] Thou shalt eat the labours of thy hands: blessed art thou, and it shall be well with thee. [3] Thy wife shall be as a fruitful vine on the sides of thy house: thy children as young olive-plants round about thy table.

[4] Behold, thus shall the man be blessed that fears the Lord. [5] May the Lord bless thee out of Sion; and mayest thou see the prosperity of Jerusalem all the days of thy life. [6] And mayest thou see thy children's children. Peace be upon Israel.

Psalm 129

A Song of Degrees.

[1] Many a time have they warred against me from my youth, let Israel now say: [2] Many a time have they warred against me from my youth: and yet they prevailed not against me. [3] The sinners wrought upon my back: they prolonged their iniquity. [4] The righteous Lord has cut asunder the necks of sinners.

[5] Let all that hate Sion be put to shame and turned back. [6] Let them be as the grass of the house-tops, which withers before it is plucked up. [7] Wherewith the reaper fills not his hand, nor he that makes up the sheaves, his bosom. [8] Neither do they that go by say, The blessing of the Lord be upon you: we have blessed you in the name of the Lord.

A Song of Degrees.

[1] Out of the depths have I cried to thee, O Lord. [2] O Lord, hearken to my voice; let thine ears be attentive to the voice of my supplication. [3] If thou, O Lord, shouldest mark iniquities, O Lord, who shall stand? [4] For with thee is forgiveness: for thy name's sake [5] have I waited for thee, O Lord, my soul has waited for thy word. [6] My soul has hoped in the Lord; from the morning watch till night.

[7] Let Israel hope in the Lord: for with the Lord is mercy, and with him is plenteous redemption. [8] And he shall redeem Israel from all his iniquities.

Psalm 131

A Song of Degrees.

[1] O Lord, my heart is not exalted, neither have mine eyes been haughtily raised: neither have I exercised myself in great matters, nor in things too wonderful for me. [2] I shall have sinned if I have not been humble, but have exulted my soul: according to the relation of a weaned child to his mother, so wilt thou recompense my soul. [3] Let Israel hope in the Lord, from henceforth and for ever.

Psalm 132

A Song of Degrees.

[1] Lord, remember David, and all his meekness: [2] how he swore to the Lord, and vowed to the God of Jacob, saying, [3] I will not go into the tabernacle of my house; I will not go up to the couch of my bed; [4] I will not give sleep to mine eyes, nor slumber to mine eyelids, nor rest to my temples, [5] until I find a place for the Lord, a tabernacle for the God of Jacob. [6] Behold, we heard of it in Ephratha; we found it in the fields of the wood. [7] Let us enter into his tabernacles: let us worship at the place where his feet stood.

[8] Arise, O Lord, into thy rest; thou, and the ark of thine holiness. [9] Thy priests shall clothe themselves with righteousness; and thy saints shall exult. [10] For the sake of thy servant David turn not away the face of thine anointed.

[11] The Lord swore in truth to David, and he will not annul it, saying, Of the fruit of thy body will I set a king upon thy throne. [12] If thy children will deep my covenant, and these my testimonies which I shall teach them, their children also shall sit upon thy throne for ever. [13] For the Lord has elected Sion, he has chosen her for a habitation for himself, saying, [14] This is my rest for ever: here will I dwell; for I have chosen it. [15] I will surely bless her provision: I will satisfy her poor with bread. [16] I will clothe her priests with salvation; and her saints shall greatly exult. [17] There will I cause to spring up a horn to David: I have prepared a lamp for mine anointed. [18] His enemies will I clothe with a shame; but upon himself shall my holiness flourish.

Psalm 133

A Song of Degrees.

[1] See now! what is so good, or what so pleasant, as for brethren to dwell together? [2] It is as ointment on the head, that ran down to the beard, even the beard of Aaron; that ran down to the fringe of his clothing. [3] As the dew of Aermmon, that comes down on the mountains of Sion: for there, the Lord commanded the blessing, even life for ever.

Psalm 134

A Song of Degrees.

[1] Behold now, bless ye the Lord, all the servants of the Lord, who stand in the house of the Lord, in the courts of the house of our God. [2] Lift up your hands by night in the sanctuaries, and bless the Lord. [3] May the Lord, who made heaven and earth, bless thee out of Sion.

Psalm 135

Alleluia.

[1] Praise ye the name of the Lord; praise the Lord, ye his servants, [2] who stand in the house of the Lord, in the courts of the house of our God. [3] Praise ye the Lord; for the Lord is good: sing praises to his name; for it is good.

[4] For the Lord has chosen Jacob for himself, and Israel for his peculiar treasure. [5] For I know that the Lord is great, and our Lord is above all gods; [6] all that the Lord willed, he did in heaven, and on the earth, in the sea, and in all deeps. [7] Who brings up clouds from the extremity of the earth: he has made lightnings for the rain: he brings winds out of his treasures. [8] Who smote the first-born of Egypt, both of man and beast. [9] He sent signs and wonders into the midst of thee, O Egypt, on Pharaoh, and on all his servants. [10] Who smote many nations, and slew mighty kings; [11] Seon king of the Amorites, and Og king of Basan, and all the kingdoms of Chanaan: [12] and gave their land for an inheritance, an inheritance to Israel his people.

[13] O Lord, thy name endures for ever, and thy memorial to all generations. [14] For the Lord shall judge his people, and comfort himself concerning his servants. [15] The idols of the heathen are silver and gold, the works of men's hands. [16] They have a mouth, but they cannot speak; they have eyes, but they cannot see; [17] they have ears, but they cannot hear; for there is no breath in their mouth. [18] Let those who make them be made like to them; and all those who trust in them.

[19] O house of Israel, bless ye the Lord: O house of Aaron, bless ye the Lord: [20] O house of Levi, bless ye the Lord: ye that fear the Lord, bless the Lord. [21] Blessed in Sion be the Lord, who dwells in Jerusalem.

Psalm 136

Alleluia.

[1] Give thanks to the Lord: for he is good: for his mercy endures for ever. [2] Give thanks to the God of gods; for his mercy endures for ever. [3] Give thanks to the Lord of lords: for his mercy endures for ever.

[4] To him who along has wrought great wonders: for his mercy endures for ever. [5] To him who made the heavens by understanding; for his mercy endures for ever. [6] To him who established the earth on the waters; for his mercy endures for ever. [7] To him who alone made great lights; for his mercy endures for ever. [8] The sun to rule by day; for his mercy endures for ever. [9] The moon and the stars to rule the night; for his mercy endures for ever.

[10] To him who smote Egypt with their first-born; for his mercy endures for ever. [11] And brought Israel out of the midst of them; for his mercy endures for ever: [12] with a strong hand, and a high arm: for his mercy endures for ever. [13] To him who divided the Red Sea into parts: for his mercy endures for ever: [14] and brought Israel through the midst of it: for his mercy endures for ever: [15] and overthrew Pharaoh and his host in the Red Sea: for his mercy endures for ever. [16] To him who led his people through the wilderness: for his mercy endures for ever.

[17] To him who smote great kings: for his mercy endures for ever: [18] and slew mighty kings; for his mercy endures for ever: [19] Seon king of the Amorites: for his mercy endures for ever: [20] and Og king of Basan: for his mercy endures for ever: [21] and gave their land for an inheritance: for his mercy endures for ever: [22] even an inheritance to Israel his servant: for his mercy endures for ever.

[23] For the Lord remembered us in our low estate; for his mercy endures for ever: [24] and redeemed us from our enemies; for his mercy endures for ever. [25] Who gives food to all flesh; for his mercy endures for ever. [26] Give thanks to the God of heaven; for his mercy endures for ever.

Psalm 137

For David, a Psalm of Jeremias.

[1] By the rivers of Babylon, there we sat; and wept when we remembered Sion. [2] We hung our harps on the willows in the midst of it. [3] For there they that had taken us captive asked of us the words of a song; and they that had carried us away asked a hymn, saying, Sing us one of the songs of Sion.

[4] How should we sing the Lord's song in a strange land? [5] If I forget thee, O Jerusalem, let my right hand forget its skill. [6] May my tongue cleave to my throat, if I do not remember thee; if I do not prefer Jerusalem as the chief of my joy.

[7] Remember, O Lord, the children of Edom in the day of Jerusalem; who said, Rase it, rase it, even to its foundations. [8] Wretched daughter of Babylon! blessed shall he be who shall reward thee as thou hast rewarded us. [9] Blessed shall he be who shall seize and dash thine infants against the rock.

A Psalm for David, of Aggaeus and Zacharias.

[1] I will give thee thanks, O Lord, with my whole heart; and I will sing psalms to thee before the angels; for thou hast heard all the words of my mouth. [2] I will worship toward thy holy temple, and give thanks to thy name, on account of thy mercy and thy truth; for thou hast magnified thy holy name above every thing. [3] In whatsoever day I shall call upon thee, hear me speedily; thou shalt abundantly provide me with thy power in my soul. [4] Let all the kings of the earth, o Lord, give thanks unto thee; for they have heard all the words of thy mouth. [5] And let them sing in the ways of the Lord; for great is the glory of the Lord.

[6] For the Lord is high, and yet regards the lowly; and he knows high things from afar off. [7] Though I should walk in the midst of affliction, thou wilt quicken me; thou hast stretched forth thine hands against the wrath of mine enemies, and thy right hand has saved me. [8] O Lord, thou shalt recompense them on my behalf: thy mercy, O Lord, endures for ever: overlook not the works of thine hands.

For the end, a Psalm of David.

[1] O Lord, thou hast proved me, and known me. [2] Thou knowest my down-sitting and mine up-rising: thou understandest my thoughts long before. [3] Thou hast traced my path and my bed, and hast foreseen all my ways. [4] For there is no unrighteous word in my tongue: behold, O Lord, thou hast known all things, [5] the last and the first: thou hast fashioned me, and laid thine hand upon me.

[6] The knowledge of thee is too wonderful for me; it is very difficult, I cannot attain to it. [7] Whither shall I go from thy Spirit? and whither shall I flee from my presence? [8] If I should go up to heaven, thou art there: if I should go down to hell, thou art present. [9] If I should spread my wings to fly straight forward, and sojourn at the extremity of the sea, it would be vain, [10] for even there thy hand would guide me, and thy right hand would hold me. [11] When I said, Surely the darkness will cover me; even the night was light in my luxury. [12] For darkness will not be darkness with thee; but night will be light as day: as its darkness, so shall its light be to thee. [13] For thou, O Lord, hast possessed my reins; thou hast helped me from my mother's womb. [14] I will give thee thanks; for thou art fearfully wondrous; wondrous are thy works; and my soul knows it well. [15] My bones, which thou madest in secret were not hidden from thee, nor my substance, in the lowest parts of the earth. [16] Thine eyes saw my unwrought substance, and all men shall be written in thy book; they shall be formed by day, though there should for a time be no one among them.

[17] But thy friends, O God, have been greatly honoured by me; their rule has been greatly strengthened. [18] I will number them, and they shall be multiplied beyond the sand; I awake, and am still with thee.

[19] Oh that thou wouldest slay the wicked, O God; depart from me, ye men of blood. [20] For thou wilt say concerning their thought, that they shall take thy cities in vain. [21] Have I not hated them, O Lord, that hate thee? and wasted away because of thine enemies? [22] I have hated them with perfect hatred; they were counted my enemies. [23] Prove me, O God, and know my heart; examine me, and know my paths; [24] and see if there is any way of iniquity in me, and lead me in an everlasting way.

Psalm 140

For the end, a Psalm of David.

[1] Rescue me, O Lord, from the evil man; deliver me from the unjust man. [2] Who have devised injustice in their hearts; all the day they prepared war. [3] They have sharpened their tongue as the tongue of a serpent; the poison of asps is under their lips. Pause. [4] Keep me, O Lord, from the hand of the sinner; rescue me from unjust men; who have purposed to overthrow my goings. [5] The proud have hid a snare for me, and have stretched out ropes for snares for my feet; they set a stumbling-block for me near the path. Pause.

[6] I said to the Lord, Thou art my God; hearken, O Lord, to the voice of my supplication. [7] O Lord God, the strength of my salvation; thou hast screened my head in the day of battle. [8] Deliver me not, O Lord, to the sinner, according to my desire: they have devised mischief against me; forsake me not, lest they should be exalted. Pause.

[9] As for the head of them that compass me, the mischief of their lips shall cover them. [10] Coals of fire shall fall upon them on the earth; and thou shalt cast them down in afflictions: they shall not bear up under them. [11] A talkative man shall not prosper on the earth: evils shall hunt the unrighteous man to destruction. [12] I know that the Lord will maintain the cause of the poor, and the right of the needy ones. [13] Surely the righteous shall give thanks to thy name: the upright shall dwell in thy presence.

Psalm 141

A Psalm of David.

[1] O Lord, I have cried to thee; hear me: attend to the voice of my supplication, when I cry to thee. [2] Let my prayer be set forth before thee as incense; the lifting up of my hands as an evening sacrifice. [3] Set a watch, O Lord, on my mouth, and a strong door about by lips. [4] Incline not my heart to evil things, to employ pretexts for sins, with me who work iniquity: and let me not unite with their choice ones. [5] The righteous shall chasten me with mercy, and reprove me: but let not the oil of the sinner anoint my head: for yet shall my prayer also be in their pleasures.

[6] Their mighty ones have been swallowed up near the rock: they shall hear my words, for they are sweet. [7] As a lump of earth is crushed upon the ground, our bones have been scattered by the mouth of the grave. [8] For mine eyes are to thee, O Lord God: I have hoped in thee; take not away my life. [9] Keep me from the snare which they have set for me, and from the stumbling blocks of them that work iniquity. [10] Sinners shall fall by their own net: I am alone until I shall escape.

A Psalm of instruction for David, when he was in the cave, — a Prayer.

[1] I cried to the Lord with my voice; with my voice I made supplication to the Lord. [2] I will pour out before him my supplication: I will declare before him mine affliction. [3] When my spirit was fainting within me, then thou knewest my paths; in the very way wherein I was walking, they hid a snare for me. [4] I looked on my right hand, and behold, for there was none that noticed me; refuge failed me; and there was none that cared for my soul. [5] I cried unto thee, O Lord, and said, Thou art my hope, my portion in the land of the living. [6] Attend to my supplication, for I am brought very low; deliver me from them that persecute me; for they are stronger than I. [7] Bring my soul out of prison, that I may give thanks to thy name, O Lord; the righteous shall wait for me, until thou recompense me.

Psalm 143

A Psalm of David, when his son pursued him.

[1] O Lord, attend to my prayer: hearken to my supplication in thy truth; hear me in thy righteousness. [2] And enter not into judgment with thy servant, for in thy sight shall no man living be justified.

[3] For the enemy has persecuted my soul; he has brought my life down to the ground; he has made me to dwell in a dark place, as those that have been long dead. [4] Therefore my spirit was grieved in me; my heart was troubled within me. [5] I remembered the days of old; and I meditated on all thy doings: yea, I meditated on the works of thine hands. [6] I spread forth my hands to thee; my soul thirsts for thee, as a dry land. Pause.

[7] Hear me speedily, O Lord; my spirit has failed; turn not away thy face from me, else I shall be like to them that go down to the pit. [8] Cause me to hear thy mercy in the morning; for I have hoped in thee; make known to me, O Lord, the way wherein I should walk; for I have lifted up my soul to thee. [9] Deliver me from mine enemies, O Lord; for I have fled to thee for refuge. [10] Teach me to do thy will; for thou art my God; thy good Spirit shall guide me in the straight way. [11] Thou shalt quicken me, O Lord, for thy name's sake; in thy righteousness thou shalt bring my soul out of affliction. [12] And in thy mercy thou wilt destroy mine enemies, and wilt destroy all those that afflict my soul; for I am thy servant.

A Psalm of David concerning Goliath.

[1] Blessed be the Lord my God, who instructs my hands for battle, and my fingers for war. [2] My mercy, and my refuge; my helper, and my deliverer; my protector, in whom I have trusted; who subdues my people under me.

[3] Lord, what is man, that thou art made known to him? or the son of man, that thou takest account of him? [4] Man is like to vanity: his days pass as a shadow.

[5] O Lord, bow thy heavens, and come down: touch the mountains, and they shall smoke. [6] Send lightning, and thou shalt scatter them: send forth thine arrows, and thou shalt discomfit them. [7] Send forth thine hand from on high; rescue me, and deliver me out of great waters, out of the hand of strange children; [8] whose mouth has spoken vanity, and their right hand is a right hand of iniquity.

[9] O God, I will sing a new song to thee: I will play to thee on a psaltery of ten strings. [10] Even to him who gives salvation to kings: who redeems his servant David from the hurtful sword. [11] Deliver me, and rescue me from the hand of strange children, whose mouth has spoken vanity, and their right hand is a right hand of iniquity; [12] whose children are as plants, strengthened in their youth: their daughters are beautiful, sumptuously adorned after the similitude of a temple. [13] Their garners are full, and bursting with one kind of store after another; their sheep are prolific, multiplying in their streets. [14] Their oxen are fat: there is no falling down of a hedge, nor going out, nor cry in their folds. [15] Men bless the people to whom this lot belongs, but blessed is the people whose God is the Lord.

David's Psalm of praise.

[1] I will exalt thee, my God, my king; and I will bless thy name for ever and ever. [2] Every day will I bless thee, and I will praise thy name for ever and ever. [3] The Lord is great, and greatly to be praised; and there is no end to his greatness. [4] Generation after generation shall praise thy works, and tell of thy power. [5] And they shall speak of the glorious majesty of thy holiness, and recount thy wonders. [6] And they shall speak of the power of thy terrible acts; and recount thy greatness. [7] They shall utter the memory of the abundance of thy goodness, and shall exult in thy righteousness.

[8] The Lord is compassionate, and merciful; long suffering, and abundant in mercy. [9] The Lord is good to those that wait on him; and his compassions are over all his works. [10] Let all thy works, O Lord, give thanks to thee; and let thy saints bless thee. [11] They shall speak of the glory of thy kingdom, and talk of thy dominion; [12] to make known to the sons of men thy power, and the glorious majesty of thy kingdom. [13] Thy kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and thy dominion endures through all generations. The Lord is faithful in his words, and holy in all his works.

[14] The Lord supports all that are falling, and sets up all that are broken down. [15] The eyes of all wait upon thee; and thou givest them their food in due season. [16] Thou openest thine hands, and fillest every living thing with pleasure. [17] The Lord is righteous in all his ways, and holy in all his works.

[18] The Lord is near to all that call upon him, to all that call upon him in truth. [19] He will perform the desire of them that fear him: and he will hear their supplication, and save them. [20] The Lord preserves all that love him: but all sinners he will utterly destroy. [21] My mouth shall speak the praise of the Lord: and let all flesh bless his holy name for ever and ever.

Alleluia, a Psalm of Aggaeus and Zacharias.

[1] My soul, praise the Lord. [2] While I live will I praise the Lord: I will sing praises to my God as long as I exist. [3] Trust not in princes, nor in the children of men, in whom there is no safety. [4] His breath shall go forth, and he shall return to his earth; in that day all his thoughts shall perish.

[5] Blessed is he whose helper is the God of Jacob, whose hope is in the Lord his God: [6] who made heaven, and earth, the sea, and all things in them: who keeps truth for ever: [7] who executes judgment for the wronged: who gives food to the hungry. The Lord looses the fettered ones: [8] the Lord gives wisdom to the blind:

The Lord sets up the broken down: the Lord loves the righteous: the Lord preserves the strangers; [9] he will relieve the orphan and widow: but will utterly remove the way of sinners. [10] The Lord shall reign for ever, even thy God, O Sion, to all generations.

Alleluia, a Psalm of Aggaeus and Zacharias.

[1] Praise ye the Lord: for psalmody is a good thing; let praise be sweetly sung to our God. [2] The Lord builds up Jerusalem; and he will gather together the dispersed of Israel. [3] He heals the broken in heart, and binds up their wounds. [4] He numbers the multitudes of stars; and calls them all by names. [5] Great is our Lord, and great is his strength; and his understanding is infinite. [6] The Lord lifts up the meek; but brings sinners down to the ground.

[7] Begin the song with thanksgiving to the Lord; sing praises on the harp to our God: [8] who covers the heaven with clouds, who prepares rain for the earth, who causes grass to spring up on the mountains, [and green herb for the service of men;] [9] and gives cattle their food, and to the young ravens that call upon him. [10] He will not take pleasure in the strength of a horse; neither is he well-pleased with the legs of a man. [11] The Lord takes pleasure in them that fear him, and in all that hope in his mercy.

Alleluia, a Psalm of Aggaeus and Zacharias.

[12] Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem; praise thy God, O Sion. [13] For he has strengthened the bars of thy gates; he has blessed thy children within thee. [14] He makes thy borders peaceful, and fills thee with the flour of wheat. [15] He sends his oracle to the earth: his word will run swiftly. [16] He gives snow like wool: he scatters the mist like ashes. [17] Casting forth his ice like morsels: who shall stand before his cold? [18] He shall send out his word, and melt them: he shall blow with his wind, and the waters shall flow. [19] He sends his word to Jacob, his ordinances and judgments to Israel. [20] He has not done so to any other nation; and he has not shewn them his judgments.

Psalm 148

Alleluia, a Psalm of Aggaeus and Zacharias.

[1] Praise ye the Lord from the heavens: praise him in the highest. [2] Praise ye him, all his angels: praise ye him, all his hosts. [3] Praise him, sun and moon; praise him, all ye stars and light. [4] Praise him, ye heavens of heavens, and the water that is above the heavens. [5] Let them praise the name of the Lord: for he spoke, and they were made; he commanded, and they were created. [6] He has established them for ever, even for ever and ever: he has made an ordinance, and it shall not pass away.

[7] Praise the Lord from the earth, ye serpents, and all deeps. [8] Fire, hail, snow, ice, stormy wind; the things that perform his word. [9] Mountains, and all hills; fruitful trees, and all cedars: [10] wild beasts, and all cattle; reptiles, and winged birds: [11] kings of the earth, and all peoples; princes, and all judges of the earth: [12] young men and virgins, old men with youths: [13] let them praise the name of the Lord: for his name only is exalted; his praise is above the earth and heaven, [14] and he shall exalt the horn of his people, there is a hymn for all his saints, even of the children of Israel, a people who draw near to him.

Alleluia.

[1] Sing to the Lord a new song: his praise is in the assembly of the saints. [2] Let Israel rejoice in him that made him; and let the children of Sion exult in their king. [3] Let them praise his name in the dance: let them sing praises to him with timbrel and psaltery. [4] For the Lord takes pleasure in his people; and will exalt the meek with salvation.

[5] The saints shall rejoice in glory; and shall exult on their beds. [6] The high praises of God shall be in their throat, and two-edged swords in their hands; [7] to execute vengeance on the nations, and punishments among the peoples; [8] to bind their kings with fetters, and their nobles with manacles of iron; [9] to execute on them the judgment written: this honour have all his saints.

Psalm 150

Alleluia.

[1] Praise God in his holy places: praise him in the firmament of his power.
[2] Praise him on account of his mighty acts: praise him according to his abundant greatness. [3] Praise him with the sound of a trumpet: praise him with psaltery and harp. [4] Praise him with timbrel and dance: praise him with stringed instruments and the organ. [5] Praise him with melodious cymbals: praise him with loud cymbals. [6] Let every thing that has breath praise the Lord.

Psalm 151

This Psalm is a genuine one of David, though supernumerary, composed when he fought in single combat with Goliath.

1 I was small among my brethren, and youngest in my father's house: I tended my father's sheep. [2] My hands formed a musical instrument, and my fingers tuned a psaltery. [3] And who shall tell my Lord? the Lord himself, he himself hears. [5] He sent forth his angel, and took me from my father's sheep, and he anointed me with the oil of his anointing. [5] My brothers were handsome and tall; but the Lord did not take pleasure in them. [6] I went forth to meet the Philistine; and he cursed me by his idols. [7] But I drew his own sword, and beheaded him, and removed reproach from the children of Israel.

Psalm 152

Prayer of Manasses

[1] O Lord, Almighty God of our fathers, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and of their righteous seed; [2] who hast made heaven and earth, with all the ornament thereof; [3] who hast bound the sea by the word of thy commandment; who hast shut up the deep, and sealed it by thy terrible and glorious name; [4] whom all men fear, and tremble before thy power; [5] for the majesty of thy glory cannot be borne, and thine angry threatening toward sinners is importable: [6] but thy merciful promise is unmeasurable and unsearchable; [7] for thou art the most high Lord, of great compassion, longsuffering, very merciful, and repentest of the evils of men. Thou, O Lord, according to thy great goodness hast promised repentance and forgiveness to them that have sinned against thee: and of thine infinite mercies hast appointed repentance unto sinners, that they may be saved. [8] Thou therefore, O Lord, that art the God of the just, hast not appointed repentance to the just, as to Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, which have not sinned against thee; but thou hast appointed repentance unto me that am a sinner: [9] for I have sinned above the number of the sands of the sea. My transgressions, O Lord, are multiplied: my transgressions are multiplied, and I am not worthy to behold and see the height of heaven for the multitude of mine iniquities. [10] I am bowed down with many iron bands, that I cannot lift up mine head, neither have any release: for I have provoked thy wrath, and done evil before thee: I did not thy will, neither kept I thy commandments: I have set up abominations, and have multiplied offences. [11] Now therefore I bow the knee of mine heart, beseeching thee of grace. [12] I have sinned, O Lord, I have sinned, and I acknowledge mine iniquities: [13] wherefore, I humbly beseech thee, forgive me, O Lord, forgive me, and destroy me not with mine iniquities. Be not angry with me for ever, by reserving evil for me; neither condemn me to the lower parts of the earth. For thou art the God, even the God of them that repent; [14] and in me thou wilt shew all thy goodness: for thou wilt save me, that am unworthy, according to thy great mercy. [15] Therefore I will praise thee for ever all the days of my life: for all the powers of the heavens do praise thee, and thine is the glory for ever and ever. Amen.

Proverbs

[1] The Proverbs of Solomon son of David, who reigned in Israel; [2] to know wisdom and instruction, and to perceive words of understanding; [3] to receive also hard saying, and to understand true justice, and how to direct judgement; [4] that he might give subtlety to the simple, and to the young man discernment and understanding. [5] For by the hearing of these a wise man will be wiser, and man of understanding will gain direction; [6] and will understand a parable, and a dark speech; the saying of the wise also, and riddles.

[7] The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom; and there is good understanding to all that practise it: and piety toward God is the beginning of discernment; but the ungodly will set at nought wisdom and instruction. [8] Hear, my son, the instruction of thy father, and reject not the rules of thy mother. [9] For thou shalt receive for thine head a crown of graces, and a chain of gold round thy neck.

[10] My son, let not ungodly men lead thee astray, neither consent thou to them. [11] If they should exhort thee, saying, Come with us, partake in blood, and let us unjustly hide the just man in the earth: [12] and let us swallow him alive, as Hades would, and remove the memorial of him from the earth: [13] let us seize on his valuable property, and let us fill our houses with spoils: [14] but do thou cast in thy lot with us, and let us all provide a common purse, and let us have one pouch: [15] go not in the way with them, but turn aside thy foot from their paths: [16] 17 for nets are not without cause spread for birds. [18] For they that are concerned in murder store up evils for themselves; and the overthrow of transgressors is evil. [19] These are the ways of all that perform lawless deeds; for by ungodliness they destroy their own life.

[20] Wisdom sings aloud in passages, and in the broad places speaks boldly. [21] And she makes proclamation on the top of the walls, and sits by the gates of princes; and at the gates of the city boldly says, [22] So long as the simple cleave to justice, they shall not be ashamed: but the foolish being lovers of haughtiness, having become ungodly have hated knowledge, and are become subject to reproofs. [23] Behold, I will bring forth to you the utterance of my breath, and I will instruct you in my speech.

[24] Since I called, and ye did not hearken; and I spoke at length, and ye gave no heed; [25] but ye set at nought my counsels, and disregarded my reproofs; [26] therefore I also will laugh at your destruction; and I will rejoice against you when ruin comes upon you: [27] yea when dismay suddenly comes upon you, and your overthrow shall arrive like a tempest; and when tribulation and distress shall come upon you, or when ruin shall come upon you. [28] For it shall be that when ye call upon me, I will not hearken to you: wicked men shall seek me, but shall not find me. [29] For they hated wisdom, and did not choose the word of the Lord: [30] neither would they attend to my counsels, but derided my reproofs. [31] Therefore shall they eat the fruits of their own way, and shall be filled with their own ungodliness. [32] For because they wronged the simple, they shall be slain; and an inquisition shall ruin the ungodly. [33] But he that hearkens to me shall dwell in confidence, and shall rest securely from all evil.

Chapter 2

[1] My son, if thou wilt receive the utterance of my commandment, and hide it with thee; [2] thine ear shall hearken to wisdom; thou shalt also apply thine heart to understanding, and shalt apply it to the instruction of thy son.

[3] For it thou shalt call to wisdom, and utter thy voice for understanding; [4] and if thou shalt seek it as silver, and search diligently for it as for treasures; [5] then shalt thou understand the fear of the Lord, and find the knowledge of God.

[6] For the Lord gives wisdom; and from his presence come knowledge and understanding, [7] and he treasures up salvation for them that walk uprightly: he will protect their way; [8] that he may guard the righteous ways: and he will preserve the way of them that fear him. [9] Then shalt thou understand righteousness, and judgement; and shalt direct all thy course aright.

[10] For if wisdom shall come into thine understanding, and discernment shall seem pleasing to thy soul, [11] good counsel shall guard thee, and holy understanding shall keep thee; [12] to deliver thee from the evil way, and from the man that speaks nothing faithfully.

[13] Alas for those who forsake right paths, to walk in ways of darkness; [14] who rejoice in evils, and delight in wicked perverseness; [15] whose paths are crooked, and their courses winding; [16] to remove thee far from the straight way, and to estrange thee from a righteous purpose. My son, let not evil counsel overtake thee, [17] of her who has forsaken the instruction of her youth, and forgotten the covenant of God. [18] For she has fixed her house near death, and guided her wheels near Hades with the giants. [19] None that go by her shall return, neither shall they take hold of right paths, for they are not apprehended of the years of life. [20] For had they gone in good paths, they would have found the paths of righteousness easy. [21] For the upright shall dwell in the earth, and the holy shall be left behind in it. [22] The paths of the ungodly shall perish out of the earth, and transgressors shall be driven away from it.

[1] My son, forget not my laws; but let thine heart keep my words: [2] for length of existence, and years of life, and peace, shall they add to thee. [3] Let not mercy and truth forsake thee; but bind them about thy neck: [4] so shalt thou find favour: and do thou provide things honest in the sight of the Lord, and of men.

[5] Trust in God with all thine heart; and be not exalted in thine own wisdom. [6] In all thy ways acquaint thyself with her, that she may rightly direct thy paths. [7] Be not wise in thine own conceit; but fear God, and depart from all evil. [8] Then shall there be health to thy body, and good keeping to thy bones.

[9] Honour the Lord with thy just labours, and give him the first of thy fruits of righteousness: [10] that thy storehouses may be completely filled with corn, and that thy presses may burst forth with wine.

[11] My son, despise not the chastening of the Lord; nor faint when thou art rebuked of him: [12] for whom the Lord loves, he rebukes, and scourges every son whom he receives.

[13] Blessed is the man who has found wisdom, and the mortal who knows prudence. [14] For it is better to traffic for her, than for treasures of gold and silver. [15] And she is more valuable than precious stones: no evil thing shall resist her: she is well known to all that approach her, and no precious thing is equal to her in value. [16] For length of existence and years of life are in her right hand; and in her left hand are wealth and glory: out of her mouth proceeds righteousness, and she carries law and mercy upon her tongue. [17] Her ways are good ways, and all her paths are peaceful. [18] She is a tree of life to all that lay hold upon her; and she is a secure help to all that stay themselves on her, as on the Lord.

[19] God by wisdom founded the earth, and by prudence he prepared the heavens. [20] By understanding were the depths broken up, and the clouds dropped water.

[21] My son, let them not pass from thee, but keep my counsel and understanding: [22] that thy soul may live, and that there may be grace round thy neck; and it shall be health to thy flesh, and safety to thy bones: [23] that thou mayest go confidently in peace in all thy ways, and that thy foot may not stumble. [24] For if thou rest, thou shalt be undismayed; and if thou sleep, thou shalt slumber sweetly. [25] And thou shalt not be afraid of alarm coming upon thee, neither of approaching attacks of ungodly men. [26] For the Lord shall be over all thy ways, and shall establish thy foot that thou be not moved.

[27] Forbear not to do good to the poor, whensoever thy hand may have power to help him. [28] Say not, Come back another time, to-morrow I will give; while thou art able to do him good: for thou knowest not what the next day will bring forth. [29] Devise not evil against thy friend, living near thee and trusting in thee.

[30] Be not ready to quarrel with a man without a cause, lest he do thee some harm.

[31] Procure not the reproaches of bad men, neither do thou covet their ways. [32] For every transgressor is unclean before the Lord; neither does he sit among the righteous. [33] The curse of God is in the houses of the ungodly; but the habitations of the just are blessed. [34] The Lord resists the proud; but he gives grace to the humble. [35] The wise shall inherit glory; but the ungodly have exalted their own dishonour.

Chapter 4

[1] Hear, ye children, the instruction of a father, and attend to know understanding. [2] For I give you a good gift; forsake ye not my law. [3] For I also was a son obedient to my father, and loved in the sight of my mother: [4] who spoke and instructed me, saying, Let our speech be fixed in thine heart, keep our commandments, forget them not: [5] and do not neglect the speech of my mouth. [6] And forsake it not, and it shall cleave to thee: love it, and it shall keep thee. [7] 8 Secure it, and it shall exalt thee: honour it, that it may embrace thee; [9] that it may give unto thy head a crown of graces, and may cover thee with a crown of delight.

[10] Hear, my son, and receive my words; and the years of thy life shall be increased, that the resources of thy life may be many. [11] For I teach thee the ways of wisdom; and I cause thee to go in right paths. [12] For when thou goest, thy steps shall not be straitened; and when thou runnest, thou shalt not be distressed. [13] Take hold of my instruction; let it not go, — but keep it for thyself for thy life.

[14] Go not in the ways of the ungodly, neither covet the ways of transgressors. [15] In whatever place they shall pitch their camp, go not thither; but turn from them, and pass away. [16] For they cannot sleep, unless they have done evil: their sleep is taken away, and they rest not. [17] For these live upon the bread of ungodliness, and are drunken with wine of transgression. [18] But the ways of the righteous shine like light; they go on and shine, until the day be fully come. [19] But the ways of the ungodly are dark; they know not how they stumble.

[20] My son, attend to my speech; and apply thine ear to my words: [21] that thy fountains may not fail thee; keep them in thine heart. [22] For they are life to those that find them, and health to all their flesh. [23] Keep thine heart with the utmost care; for out of these are the issues of life. [24] Remove from thee a froward mouth, and put far away from thee unjust lips. [25] Let thine eyes look right on, and let thine eyelids assent to just things. [26] Make straight paths for thy feet, and order thy ways aright. [27] Turn not aside to the right hand nor to the left, but turn away thy foot from an evil way: [for God knows the ways on the right hand, but those on the left are crooked:] and he will make thy ways straight, and will guide thy steps in peace.

[1] My son, attend to my wisdom, and apply thine ear to my words; [2] that thou mayest keep good understanding, and the discretion of my lips gives thee a charge.

Give no heed to a worthless woman; [3] for honey drops from the lips of a harlot, who for a season pleases thy palate: [4] but afterwards thou wilt find her more bitter than gall, and sharper than a two-edged sword. [5] For the feet of folly lead those who deal with her down to the grave with death; and her steps are not established. [6] For she goes not upon the paths of life; but her ways are slippery, and not easily known.

[7] Now then, my son, hear me, and make not my words of none effect. [8] Remove thy way far from her; draw not near to the doors of her house: [9] lest thou give away thy life to others, and thy substance to the merciless: [10] lest strangers be filled with thy strength, and thy labours come into the houses of strangers; [11] And thou repent at last, when the flesh of thy body is consumed, [12] and thou shalt say, How have I hated instruction, and my heart avoided reproofs! [13] I heard not the voice of him that instructed me, and taught me, neither did I apply mine ear. [14] I was almost in all evil in the midst of the congregation and assembly.

[15] Drink waters out of thine own vessels, and out of thine own springing wells. [16] Let not waters out of thy fountain be spilt by thee, but let thy waters go into thy streets. [17] Let them be only thine own, and let no stranger partake with thee. [18] Let thy fountain of water be truly thine own; and rejoice with the wife of thy youth. [19] Let thy loving hart and thy graceful colt company with thee, and let her be considered thine own, and be with thee at all times; for ravished with her love thou shalt be greatly increased. [20] Be not intimate with a strange woman, neither fold thyself in the arms of a woman not thine own. [21] For the ways of a man are before the eyes of God, and he looks on all his paths. [22] Iniquities ensnare a man, and every one is bound in the chains of his own sins. [23] Such a man dies with the uninstructed; and he is cast forth from the abundance of his own substance, and has perished through folly.

[1] My son, if thou become surety for thy friend, thou shalt deliver thine hand to an enemy. [2] For a man's own lips become a strong snare to him, and he is caught with the lips of his own mouth. [3] My son, do what I command thee, and deliver thyself; for on thy friend's account thou art come into the power of evil men: faint not, but stir up even thy friend for whom thou art become surety. [4] Give not sleep to thine eyes, nor slumber with thine eyelids; [5] that thou mayest deliver thyself as a doe out of the toils, and as a bird out of a snare.

[6] Go to the ant, O sluggard; and see, and emulate his ways, and become wiser than he. [7] For whereas he has no husbandry, nor any one to compel him, and is under no master, [8] he prepares food for himself in the summer, and lays by abundant store in harvest. Or go to the bee, and learn how diligent she is, and how earnestly she is engaged in her work; whose labours kings and private men use for health, and she is desired and respected by all: though weak in body, she is advanced by honouring wisdom. [9] How long wilt thou lie, O sluggard? and when wilt thou awake out of sleep? [10] Thou sleepest a little, and thou retest a little, and thou slumberest a short time, and thou foldest thine arms over thy breast a little. [11] Then poverty comes upon thee as an evil traveller, and want as a swift courier: but if thou be diligent, thine harvest shall arrive as a fountain, and poverty shall flee away as a bad courier.

[12] A foolish man and a transgressor goes in ways that are not good. [13] And the same winks with the eye, and makes a sign with his foot, and teaches with the beckonings of his fingers. [14] His perverse heart devises evils: at all times such a one causes troubles to a city. [15] Therefore his destruction shall come suddenly; overthrow and irretrievable ruin.

[16] For he rejoices in all things which God hates, and he is ruined by reason of impurity of soul. [17] The eye of the haughty, a tongue unjust, hands shedding the blood of the just; [18] and a heart devising evil thoughts, and feet hastening to do evil, — are hateful to God. [19] An unjust witness kindles falsehoods, and brings on quarrels between brethren.

[20] My son, keep the laws of thy father, and reject not the ordinances of thy mother: [21] but bind them upon thy soul continually, and hang them as a chain about thy neck. [22] Whensoever thou walkest, lead this along and let it be with thee; that it may talk with thee when thou wakest. [23] For the commandment of the law is a lamp and a light; a way of life; reproof also and correction: [24] to keep thee continually from a married woman, and from the calumny of a strange tongue.

[25] Let not the desire of beauty overcome thee, neither be thou caught by thine eyes, neither be captivated with her eyelids. [26] For the value of a harlot is as much as of one loaf; and a woman hunts for the precious souls of men. [27] Shall any one bind fire in his bosom, and not burn his garments? [28] or will any one walk on coals of fire, and not burn his feet? [29] So is he that goes in to a married woman; he shall not be held guiltless, neither any one that touches her. [30] It is not to be wondered at if one should be taken stealing, for he steals that when hungry he may satisfy his soul: [31] but if he should be taken, he shall repay sevenfold, and shall deliver himself by giving all his goods. [32] But the adulterer through want of sense procures destruction to his soul. [33] He endures both pain and disgrace, and his reproach shall never be wiped off. [34] For the soul of her husband is full of jealousy: he will not spare in the day of vengeance. [35] He will not forego his enmity for any ransom: neither will he be reconciled for many gifts.

Chapter 7

[1] My son, keep my words, and hide with thee my commandments. My son, honour the Lord, and thou shalt be strong; and fear none but him: [2] keep my commandments, and thou shalt live; and keep my words as the pupils of thine eyes. [3] And bind them on thy fingers, and write them on the table of thine heart.

[4] Say that wisdom is thy sister, and gain prudence as an acquaintance for thyself; [5] that she may keep thee from the strange and wicked woman, if she should assail thee with flattering words.

[6] For she looks from a window out of her house into the streets, at one whom she may see of the senseless ones, a young man void of understanding, [7] passing by the corner in the passages near her house, [8] and speaking, in the dark of the evening, [9] when there happens to be the stillness of night and of darkness: [10] and the woman meets him having the appearance of a harlot, that causes the hearts of young men to flutter. [11] And she is fickle, and debauched, and her feet abide not at home. [12] For at one time she wanders without, and at another time she lies in wait in the streets, at every corner. [13] Then she caught him, and kissed him, and with an impudent face said to him, [14] I have a peace-offering; today I pay my vows: [15] therefore I came forth to meet thee, desiring thy face; and I have found thee. [16] I have spread my bed with sheets, and I have covered it with double tapestry from Egypt. [17] I have sprinkled my couch with saffron, and my house with cinnamon. [18] Come, and let us enjoy love until the morning; come, and let us embrace in love. [19] For my husband is not at home, but is gone on a long journey, [20] having taken in his hand a bundle of money: after many days he will return to his house.

[21] So with much converse she prevailed on him to go astray, and with the snares of her lips forced him from the right path. [22] And he followed her, being gently led on, and that as an ox is led to the slaughter, and as a dog to bonds, or as a hart shot in the liver with an arrow: [23] and he hastens as a bird into a snare, not knowing that he is running for his life.

[24] Now then, my son, hearken to me, and attend to the words of my mouth. [25] Let not thine heart turn aside to her ways: [26] for she has wounded and cast down many, and those whom she has slain are innumerable. [27] Her house is the way of hell, leading down to the chambers of death.

Chapter 8

[1] Thou shalt proclaim wisdom, that understanding may be obedient to thee. [2] For she is on lofty eminences, and stands in the midst of the ways. [3] For she sits by the gates of princes, and sings in the entrances, saying, [4] You, O men, I exhort; and utter my voice to the sons of men. [5] O ye simple, understand subtlety, and ye that are untaught, imbibe knowledge. [6] Hearken to me; for I will speak solemn truths; and will produce right sayings from my lips. [7] For my throat shall meditate truth; and false lips are an abomination before me. [8] All the words of my mouth are in righteousness; there is nothing in them wrong or perverse. [9] They are all evident to those that understand, and right to those that find knowledge. [10] Receive instruction, and not silver; and knowledge rather than tried gold. [11] For wisdom is better than precious stones; and no valuable substance is of equal worth with it.

[12] I wisdom have dwelt with counsel and knowledge, and I have called upon understanding. [13] The fear of the Lord hates unrighteousness, and insolence, and pride, and the ways of wicked men; and I hate the perverse ways of bad men. [14] Counsel and safety are mine; prudence is mine, and strength is mine. [15] By me kings reign, and princes decree justice. [16] By me nobles become great, and monarchs by me rule over the earth. [17] I love those that love me; and they that seek me shall find me.

[18] Wealth and glory belong to me; yea, abundant possessions and righteousness. [19] It is better to have my fruit than to have gold and precious stones; and my produce is better than choice silver. [20] I walk in ways of righteousness, and am conversant with the paths of judgement; [21] that I may divide substance to them that love me, and may fill their treasures with good things. If I declare to you the things that daily happen, I will remember also to recount the things of old.

[22] The Lord made me the beginning of his ways for his works. [23] He established me before time was in the beginning, before he made the earth: [24] even before he made the depths; before the fountains of water came forth: [25] before the mountains were settled, and before all hills, he begets me. [26] The Lord made countries and uninhabited tracks, and the highest inhabited parts of the world. [27] When he prepared the heaven, I was present with him; and when he prepared his throne upon the winds: [28] and when he strengthened the clouds above; and when he secured the fountains of the earth: [29] and when he strengthened the foundations of the earth: [30] I was by him, suiting myself to him, I was that wherein he took delight; and daily I rejoiced in his presence continually. [31] For he rejoiced when he had completed the world, and rejoiced among the children of men.

[32] Now then, my son, hear me: blessed is the man who shall hearken to me, and the mortal who shall keep my ways; [33] 34 watching daily at my doors, waiting at the posts of my entrances. [35] For my outgoings are the outgoings of life, and in them is prepared favour from the Lord. ^[36] But they that sin against me act wickedly against their own souls: and they that hate me love death.

Chapter 9

[1] Wisdom has built a house for herself, and set up seven pillars. [2] She has killed her beasts; she has mingled her wine in a bowl, and prepared her table. [3] She has sent forth her servants, calling with a loud proclamation to the feast, saying, [4] Whoso is foolish, let him turn aside to me: and to them that want understanding she says, [5] Come, eat of my bread, and drink wine which I have mingled for you.

[6] Leave folly, that ye may reign for ever; and seek wisdom, and improve understanding by knowledge. [7] He that reproves evil men shall get dishonour to himself; and he that rebukes an ungodly man shall disgrace himself. [8] Rebuke not evil men, lest they should hate thee: rebuke a wise man, and he will love thee. [9] Give an opportunity to a wise man, and he will be wiser: instruct a just man, and he will receive more instruction. [10] The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom, and the counsel of saints is understanding: for to know the law is the character of a sound mind. [11] For in this way thou shalt live long, and years of thy life shall be added to thee.

[12] Son, if thou be wise for thyself, thou shalt also be wise for thy neighbours; and if thou shouldest prove wicked, thou alone wilt bear the evil. He that stays himself upon falsehoods, attempts to rule the winds, and the same will pursue birds in their fight: for he has forsaken the ways of his own vineyard, and he has caused the axles of his own husbandry to go astray; and he goes through a dry desert, and a land appointed to drought, and he gathers barrenness with his hands.

[13] A foolish and bold woman, who knows not modesty, comes to want a morsel. [14] She sits at the doors of her house, on a seat openly in the streets, [15] calling to passers by, and to those that are going right on their ways; [16] saying, Whoso is most senseless of you, let him turn aside to me; and I exhort those that want prudence, saying, [17] Take and enjoy secret bread, and the sweet water of theft.

[18] But he knows that mighty men die by her, and he falls in with a snare of hell. But hasten away, delay not in the place, neither fix thine eye upon her: for thus shalt thou go through strange water; but do thou abstain from strange water, and drink not of a strange fountain, that thou mayest live long, and years of life may be added to thee.

Chapter 10

[1] A wise son makes his father glad: but a foolish son is a grief to his mother. [2] Treasures shall not profit the lawless: but righteousness shall deliver from death. [3] The Lord will not famish a righteous soul: but he will overthrow the life of the ungodly.

[4] Poverty brings a man low: but the hands of the vigorous make rich. A son who is instructed shall be wise, and shall use the fool for a servant. [5] A wise son is saved from heat: but a lawless son is blighted of the winds in harvest.

[6] The blessing of the Lord is upon the head of the just: but untimely grief shall cover the mouth of the ungodly. [7] The memory of the just is praised; but the name of the ungodly man is extinguished. [8] A wise man in heart will receive commandments; but he that is unguarded in his lips shall be overthrown in his perverseness. [9] He that walks simply, walks confidently; but he that perverts his ways shall be known. [10] He that winks with his eyes deceitfully, procures griefs for men; but he that reproves boldly is a peacemaker. [11] There is a fountain of life in the hand of a righteous man; but destruction shall cover the mouth of the ungodly.

[12] Hatred stirs up strife; but affection covers all that do not love strife. [13] He that brings forth wisdom from his lips smites the fool with a rod. [14] The wise will hide discretion; but the mouth of the hasty draws near to ruin. [15] The wealth of rich men is a strong city; but poverty is the ruin of the ungodly. [16] The works of the righteous produce life; but the fruits of the ungodly produce sins. [17] Instruction keeps the right ways of life; but instruction unchastened goes astray.

[18] Righteous lips cover enmity; but they that utter railings are most foolish. [19] By a multitude of words thou shalt not escape sin; but if thou refrain thy lips thou wilt be prudent. [20] The tongue of the just is tried silver; but the heart of the ungodly shall fail. [21] The lips of the righteous know sublime truths: but the foolish die in want. [22] The blessing of the Lord is upon the head of the righteous; it enriches him, and grief of heart shall not be added to it.

[23] A fool does mischief in sport; but wisdom brings forth prudence for a man.

[24] The ungodly is engulfed in destruction; but the desire of the righteous is acceptable. [25] When the storm passes by, the ungodly vanishes away; but the righteous turns aside and escapes for ever. [26] As a sour grape is hurtful to the teeth, and smoke to the eyes, so iniquity hurts those that practise it. [27] The fear of the Lord adds length of days: but the years of the ungodly shall be shortened. [28] Joy rests long with the righteous: but the hope of the ungodly shall perish. [29] The fear of the Lord is a strong hold of the saints: but ruin comes to them that work wickedness.

[30] The righteous shall never fail: but the ungodly shall not dwell in the earth. [31] The mouth of the righteous drops wisdom: but the tongue of the unjust shall perish. [32] The lips of just men drop grace: but the mouth of the ungodly is perverse.

[1] False balances are an abomination before the Lord: but a just weight is acceptable unto him. [2] Wherever pride enters, there will be also disgrace: but the mouth of the lowly meditates wisdom. [3] When a just man dies he leaves regret: but the destruction of the ungodly is speedy, and causes joy. [4] 5 Righteousness traces out blameless paths: but ungodliness encounters unjust dealing.

[6] The righteousness of upright men delivers them: but transgressors are caught in their own destruction. [7] At the death of a just man his hope does not perish: but the boast of the ungodly perishes. [8] A righteous man escapes from a snare, and the ungodly man is delivered up in his place. [9] In the mouth of ungodly men is a snare to citizens: but the understanding of righteous men is prosperous. [10] In the prosperity of righteous men a city prospers: [11] but by the mouth of ungodly men it is overthrown.

[12] A man void of understanding sneers at his fellow citizens: but a sensible man is quiet. [13] A double-tongued man discloses the secret counsels of an assembly: but he that is faithful in spirit conceals matters. [14] They that have no guidance fall like leaves: but in much counsel there is safety.

[15] A bad man does harm wherever he meets a just man: and he hates the sound of safety. [16] A gracious wife brings glory to her husband: but a woman hating righteousness is a theme of dishonour. The slothful come to want: but the diligent support themselves with wealth. [17] A merciful man does good to his own soul: but the merciless destroys his own body.

[18] An ungodly man performs unrighteous works: but the seed of the righteous is a reward of truth. [19] A righteous son is born for life: but the persecution of the ungodly ends in death. [20] Perverse ways are an abomination to the Lord: but all they that are blameless in their ways are acceptable to him. [21] He that unjustly strikes hands shall not be unpunished: but he that sows righteousness he shall receive a faithful reward. [22] As an ornament in a swine's snout, so is beauty to an ill-minded women. [23] All the desire of the righteous is good: but the hope of the ungodly shall perish.

[24] There are some who scatter their own, and make it more: and there are some also who gather, yet have less. [25] Every sincere soul is blessed: but a passionate man is not graceful. [26] May he that hoards corn leave it to the nation: but blessing be on the head of him that gives it. [27] He that devises good counsels seeks good favour: but as for him that seeks after evil, evil shall overtake him. [28] He that trusts in wealth shall fall; but he that helps righteous men shall rise. [29] He that deals not graciously with his own house shall inherit the wind; and the fool shall be servant to the wise man. [30] Out of the fruit of righteousness grows a tree of life; but the souls of transgressors are cut off before their time. [31] If the righteous scarcely be saved, where shall the ungodly and the sinner appear?

Chapter 12

[1] He that loves instruction loves sense, but he that hates reproofs is a fool. [2] He that has found favour with the Lord is made better; but a transgressor shall be passed over in silence. [3] A man shall not prosper by wickedness; but the roots of the righteous shall not be taken up. [4] A virtuous woman is a crown to her husband; but as a worm in wood, so a bad woman destroys her husband.

[5] The thoughts of the righteous are true judgments; but ungodly men devise deceits.

[6] The words of ungodly men are crafty; but the mouth of the upright shall deliver them. [7] When the ungodly is overthrown, he vanishes away; but the houses of the just remain. [8] The mouth of an understanding man is praised by a man; but he that is dull of heart is had in derision. [9] Better is a man in dishonour serving himself, than one honouring himself and wanting bread.

[10] A righteous man has pity for the lives of his cattle; but the bowels of the ungodly are unmerciful. [11] He that tills his own land shall be satisfied with bread; but they that pursue vanities are void of understanding. He that enjoys himself in banquets of wine, shall leave dishonour in his own strong holds.

[12] The desires of the ungodly are evil; but the roots of the godly are firmly set. [13] For the sin of his lips a sinner falls into snare; but a righteous man escapes from them. He whose looks are gentle shall be pitied, but he that contends in the gates will afflict souls. [14] The soul of a man shall be filled with good from the fruits of his mouth; and the recompence of his lips shall be given to him. [15] The ways of fools are right in their own eyes; but a wise man hearkens to counsels. [16] A fool declares his wrath the same day; but a prudent man hides his own disgrace. [17] A righteous man declares the open truth; but an unjust witness is deceitful.

[18] Some wound as they speak, like swords; but the tongues of the wise heal. [19] True lips establish testimony; but a hasty witness has an unjust tongue. [20] There is deceit in the heart of him that imagines evil; but they that love peace shall rejoice. [21] No injustice will please a just man; but the ungodly will be filled with mischief. [22] Lying lips are a abomination to the Lord; but he that deals faithfully is accepted with him. [23] An understanding man is a throne of wisdom; but the heart of fools shall meet with curses.

[24] The hand of chosen men shall easily obtain rule; but the deceitful shall be for a prey. [25] A terrible word troubles the heart of a righteous man; but a good message rejoices him. [26] A just arbitrator shall be his own friend; but mischief shall pursue sinners; and the way of ungodly men shall lead them astray. [27] A deceitful man shall catch no game; but a blameless man is a precious possession. [28] In the ways of righteousness is life; but the ways of those that remember injuries lead to death.

[1] A wise son is obedient to his father: but a disobedient son will be destroyed. [2] A good man shall eat of the fruits of righteousness: but the lives of transgressors shall perish before their time. [3] He that keeps his own mouth keeps his own life: but he that is hasty with his lips shall bring terror upon himself. [4] Every slothful man desires, but the hands of the active are diligent. [5] A righteous man hates an unjust word: but an ungodly man is ashamed, and will have no confidence. 6 [7] There are some who, having nothing, enrich themselves: and there are some who bring themselves down in the midst of much wealth.

[8] A man's own wealth is the ransom of his life: but the poor endures not threatening. [9] The righteous always have light: but the light of the ungodly is quenched. Crafty souls go astray in sins: but just men pity, and are merciful. [10] A bad man does evil with insolence: but they that are judges of themselves are wise. [11] Wealth gotten hastily with iniquity is diminished: but he that gathers for himself with godliness shall be increased. The righteous is merciful, and lends. [12] Better is he that begins to help heartily, than he that promises and leads another to hope: for a good desire is a tree of life. [13] He that slights a matter shall be slighted of it: but he that fears the commandment has health of soul. To a crafty son there shall be nothing good: but a wise servant shall have prosperous doings, and his way shall be directed aright.

[14] The law of the wise is fountain of life: but the man void of understanding shall die by a snare. [15] Sound discretion gives favour, and to know the law is the part of a sound understanding: but the ways of scorers tend to destruction.

[16] Every prudent man acts with knowledge: but the fool displays his own mischief. [17] A rash king shall fall into mischief: but a wise messenger shall deliver him. [18] Instruction removes poverty and disgrace: but he that attends to reproofs shall be honoured. [19] The desires of the godly gladden the soul, but the works of the ungodly are far from knowledge. [20] If thou walkest with wise men thou shalt be wise: but he that walks with fools shall be known. [21] Evil shall pursue sinners; but good shall overtake the righteous. [22] A good man shall inherit children's children; and the wealth of ungodly men is laid up for the just. [23] The righteous shall spend many years in wealth: but the unrighteous shall perish suddenly.

[24] He that spares the rod hates his son: but he that loves, carefully chastens him. [25] A just man eats and satisfies his soul: but the souls of the ungodly are in want.

Chapter 14

[1] Wise women build houses: but a foolish one digs hers down with her hands. [2] He that walks uprightly fears the Lord; but he that is perverse in his ways shall be dishonoured. [3] Out of the mouth of fools comes a rod of pride; but the lips of the wise preserve them. [4] Where no oxen are, the cribs are clean; but where there is abundant produce, the strength of the ox is apparent. [5] A faithful witness does not lie; but an unjust witness kindles falsehoods. [6] Thou shalt seek wisdom with bad men, and shalt not find it; but discretion is easily available with the prudent.

[7] All things are adverse to a foolish man; but wise lips are the weapons of discretion. [8] The wisdom of the prudent will understand their ways; but the folly of fools leads astray. [9] The houses of transgressors will need purification; but the houses of the just are acceptable.

[10] If a man's mind is intelligent, his soul is sorrowful; and when he rejoices, he has no fellowship with pride. [11] The houses of ungodly men shall be utterly destroyed; but the tabernacles of them that walk uprightly shall stand. [12] There is a way which seems to be right with men, but the ends of it reach to the depths of hell. [13] Grief mingles not with mirth; and joy in the end comes to grief. [14] A stout-hearted man shall be filled with his own ways; and a good man with his own thoughts. [15] The simple believes every word: but the prudent man betakes himself to after-thought. [16] A wise man fears, and departs from evil; but the fool trusts in himself, and joins himself with the transgressor. [17] A passionate man acts inconsiderately; but a sensible man bears up under many things.

[18] Fools shall have mischief for their portion; but the prudent shall take fast hold of understanding. [19] Evil men shall fall before the good; and the ungodly shall attend at the gates of the righteous. [20] Friends will hate poor friends; but the friends of the rich are many. [21] He that dishonours the needy sins: but he that has pity on the poor is most blessed. [22] They that go astray devise evils: but the good devise mercy and truth. The framers of evil do not understand mercy and truth: but compassion and faithfulness are with the framers of good. [23] With every one who is careful there is abundance: but the pleasure-taking and indolent shall be in want. [24] A prudent man is the crown of the wise: but the occupation of fools is evil.

[25] A faithful witness shall deliver a soul from evil: but a deceitful man kindles falsehoods. [26] In the fear of the Lord is strong confidence: and he leaves his children a support. [27] The commandment of the Lord is a fountain of life; and it causes men to turn aside from the snare of death. [28] In a populous nation is the glory of a king: but in the failure of people is the ruin of a prince. [29] A man slow to wrath abounds in wisdom: but a man of impatient spirit is very foolish. [30] A meek-spirited man is a healer of the heart: but a sensitive heart is a corruption of the bones. [31] He that oppresses the needy provokes his Maker: but he that honours him has pity upon the poor. [32] The ungodly shall be driven away in his wickedness: but he who is secure in his own holiness is just.

[33] There is wisdom in the good heart of a man: but in the heart of fools it is not discerned. [34] Righteousness exalts a nation: but sins diminish tribes. [35] An understanding servant is acceptable to a king; and by his good behaviour he removes disgrace.

Chapter 15

[1] Anger slays even wise men; yet a submissive answer turns away wrath: but a grievous word stirs up anger. [2] The tongue of the wise knows what is good: but the mouth of the foolish tells out evil things.

[3] The eyes of the Lord behold both the evil and the good in every place. [4] The wholesome tongue is a tree of life, and he that keeps it shall be filled with understanding. [5] A fool scorns his father's instruction; but he that keeps his commandments is more prudent. In abounding righteousness is great strength: but the ungodly shall utterly perish from the earth.

[6] In the houses of the righteous is much strength: but the fruits of the ungodly shall perish. [7] The lips of the wise are bound by discretion: but the hearts of the foolish are not safe. [8] The sacrifices of the ungodly are an abomination to the Lord; but the prayers of them that walk honestly are acceptable with him. [9] The ways of an ungodly man are an abomination to the Lord; but he loves those that follow after righteousness. [10] The instruction of the simple is known by them that pass by; but they that hate reproofs die disgracefully.

[11] Hell and destruction are manifest to the Lord; how shall not also be the hearts of men? [12] An uninstructed person will not love those that reprove him; neither will he associate with the wise. [13] When the heart rejoices the countenance is cheerful; but when it is in sorrow, the countenance is sad. [14] An upright heart seeks discretion; but the mouth of the uninstructed will experience evils.

[15] The eyes of the wicked are always looking for evil things; but the good are always quiet. [16] Better is a small portion with the fear of the Lord, than great treasures without the fear of the Lord. [17] Better is an entertainment of herbs with friendliness and kindness, than a feast of calves, with enmity. [18] A passionate man stirs up strife; but he that is slow to anger appeases even a rising one. A man slow to anger will extinguish quarrels; but an ungodly man rather stirs them up. [19] The ways of sluggards are strewn with thorns; but those of the diligent are made smooth. [20] A wise son gladdens his father; but a foolish son sneers at his mother. [21] The ways of a foolish man are void of sense; but a wise man proceeds on his way aright. [22] They that honour not councils put off deliberation; but counsel abides in the hearts of counsellors.

[23] A bad man will by no means attend to counsel; neither will he say anything seasonable, or good for the common weal.

[24] The thoughts of the wise are ways of life, that he may turn aside and escape from hell. [25] The Lord pulls down the houses of scorers; but he establishes the border of the widow. [26] An unrighteous thought is abomination to the Lord; but the sayings of the pure are held in honour. [27] A receiver of bribes destroys himself; but he that hates the receiving of bribes is safe. [By alms and by faithful dealings sins are purged away;] but by the fear of the Lord every one departs from evil.

[28] The hearts of the righteous meditate faithfulness; but the mouth of the ungodly answers evil things. The ways of righteous men are acceptable with the Lord; and through them even enemies become friends. [29] God is far from the ungodly; but he hearkens to the prayers of the righteous. Better are small receipts with righteousness, than abundant fruits with unrighteousness.

Chapter 16

[1] Let the heart of a man think justly, that his steps may be rightly ordered of God. The eye that sees rightly rejoices the heart; and a good report fattens the bones. 31 [32] He that rejects instruction hates himself; but he that mind reproofs loves his soul. [33] The fear of the Lord is instruction and wisdom; and the highest honour will correspond therewith. All the works of the humble man are manifest with God; but the ungodly shall perish in an evil day. [5] Every one that is proud in heart is unclean before God, and he that unjustly strikes hands with hand shall not be held guiltless. The beginning of a good way is to do justly; and it is more acceptable with God than to offer sacrifices. He that seeks the Lord shall find knowledge with righteousness: and they that rightly seek him shall find peace. All of the works of the Lord are done with righteousness; and the ungodly man is kept for the evil day.

[10] There is an oracle upon the lips of a king; and his mouth shall not err in judgement. [11] The poise of the balance is righteousness with the Lord; and his works are righteous measures. [12] An evil-doer is an abomination to a king; for the throne of rule is established by righteousness. [13] Righteous lips are acceptable to a king; and he loves right words. [14] The anger of a king is a messenger of death; but a wise man will pacify him. [15] The son of a king is in the light of life; and they that are in favour with him are as a cloud of latter rain. [16] The brood of wisdom is more to be chosen than gold, and the brood of prudence more to be chosen than silver. [17] The paths of life turn aside from evil; and the ways of righteousness are length of life. He that receives instruction shall be in prosperity; and he that regards reproofs shall be made wise. He that keeps his ways, preserves his own soul; and he that loves his life will spare his mouth.

[18] Pride goes before destruction, and folly before a fall. [19] Better is a meek-spirited man with lowliness, than one who divides spoils with the proud. [20] He who is skillful in business finds good: but he that trusts in God is most blessed. [21] Men call the wise and understanding evil: but they that are pleasing in speech shall hear more. [22] Understanding is a fountain of life to its possessors; but the instruction of fools is evil.

[23] The heart of the wise will discern the things which proceed from his own mouth; and on his lips he will wear knowledge. [24] Good words are honeycombs, and the sweetness thereof is a healing of the soul. [25] There are ways that seem to be right to a man, but the end of them looks to the depth of hell. [26] A man who labours, labours for himself, and drives from him his own ruin. [27] But the perverse bears destruction upon his own mouth: a foolish man digs up evil for himself, and treasures fire on his own lips. [28] A perverse man spreads mischief, and will kindle a torch of deceit with mischiefs; and he separates friends. [29] A transgressor tries to ensnare friends, and leads them in ways that are not good.

[30] And the man that fixes his eyes devises perverse things, and marks out with his lips all evil: he is a furnace of wickedness. [31] Old age is a crown of honour, but it is found in the ways of righteousness. [32] A man slow to anger is better than a strong man; and he that governs his temper better than he that takes a city. [33] All evils come upon the ungodly into their bosoms; but all righteous things come of the Lord.

[1] Better is a morsel with pleasure in peace, than a house full of many good things and unjust sacrifices, with strife. [2] A wise servant shall have rule over foolish masters, and shall divide portions among brethren. [3] As silver and gold are tried in a furnace, so are choice hearts with the Lord. [4] A bad man hearkens to the tongue of transgressors: but a righteous man attends not to false lips. [5] He that laughs at the poor provokes him that made him; and he that rejoices at the destruction of another shall not be held guiltless: but he that has compassion shall find mercy.

[6] Children's children are the crown of old men; and their fathers are the glory of children. The faithful has the whole world full of wealth; but the faithless not even a farthing. [7] Faithful lips will not suit a fool; nor lying lips a just man. [8] Instruction is to them that use it a gracious reward; and whithersoever it may turn, it shall prosper. [9] He that conceals injuries seeks love; but he that hates to hide them separates friends and kindred. [10] A threat breaks down the heart of a wise man; but a fool, though scourged, understands not. [11] Every bad man stirs up strifes: but the Lord will send out against him an unmerciful messenger.

[12] Care may befall a man of understanding; but fools will meditate evils. [13] Whoso rewards evil for good, evil shall not be removed from his house. [14] Rightful rule gives power to words; but sedition and strife precede poverty. [15] He that pronounces the unjust just, and the just unjust, is unclean and abominable with God. [16] Why has the fool wealth? for a senseless man will not be able to purchase wisdom. He that exalts his own house seeks ruin; and he that turns aside from instruction shall fall into mischief. [17] Have thou a friend for every time, and let brethren be useful in distress; for on this account are they born. [18] A foolish man applauds and rejoices over himself, as he also that becomes surety would make himself responsible for his own friends.

[19] A lover of sin rejoices in strifes; [20] and the hard-hearted man comes not in for good. A man of a changeful tongue will fall into mischiefs; [21] and the heart of a fool is grief to its possessor. A father rejoices not over an uninstructed son; but a wise son gladdens his mother. [22] A glad heart promotes health; but the bones of a sorrowful man dry up. [23] The ways of a man who unjustly receives gifts in his bosom do not prosper; and an ungodly man perverts the ways of righteousness. [24] The countenance of a wise man is sensible; but the eyes of a fool go to the ends of the earth. [25] A foolish son is a cause of anger to his father, and grief to her that bore him.

[26] It is not right to punish a righteous man, nor is it holy to plot against righteous princes. [27] He that forbears to utter a hard word is discreet, and a patient man is wise. [28] Wisdom shall be imputed to a fool who asks after wisdom: and he who holds his peace shall seem to be sensible.

[1] A man who wishes to separate from friends seeks excuses; but at all times he will be liable to reproach. [2] A senseless man feels no need of wisdom, for he is rather led by folly. [3] When an ungodly man comes into a depth of evils, he despises them; but dishonour and reproach come upon him. [4] A word in the heart of a man is a deep water, and a river and fountain of life spring forth. [5] It is not good to accept the person of the ungodly, nor is it holy to pervert justice in judgment.

[6] The lips of a fool bring him into troubles, and his bold mouth calls for death. [7] A fool's mouth is ruin to him, and his lips are a snare to his soul. [8] Fear casts down the slothful; and the souls of the effeminate shall hunger. [9] A man who helps not himself by his labour is brother of him that ruins himself. [10] The name of the Lord is of great strength; and the righteous running to it are exalted. [11] The wealth of a rich man is a strong city; and its glory casts a broad shadow. [12] Before ruin a man's heart is exalted, and before honour it is humble. [13] Whoso answers a word before he hears a cause, it is folly and reproach to him. [14] A wise servant calms a man's anger; but who can endure a faint-hearted man? [15] The heart of the sensible man purchases discretion; and the ears of the wise seek understanding. [16] A man's gift enlarges him, and seats him among princes. [17] A righteous man accuses himself at the beginning of his speech, but when he has entered upon the attack, the adversary is reproved.

[18] A silent man quells strifes, and determines between great powers. [19] A brother helped by a brother is as a strong and high city; and is as strong as a well-founded palace. [20] A man fills his belly with the fruits of his mouth; and he shall be satisfied with the fruits of his lips. [21] Life and death are in the power of the tongue; and they that rule it shall eat the fruits thereof. [22] He that has found a good wife has found favours, and has received gladness from God. [He that puts away a good wife, puts away a good thing, and he that keeps an adulteress is foolish and ungodly.]

[1] 2 [3] The folly of a man spoils his ways: and he blames God in his heart.

[4] Wealth acquires many friends; but the poor is deserted even of the friend he has. [5] A false witness shall not be unpunished, and he that accuses unjustly shall not escape. [6] Many court the favour of kings; but every bad man becomes a reproach to another man. [7] Every one who hates his poor brother shall also be far from friendship. Good understanding will draw near to them that know it, and a sensible man will find it. He that does much harm perfects mischief; and he that used provoking words shall not escape.

[8] He that procures wisdom loves himself; and he that keeps wisdom shall find good. [9] A false witness shall not be unpunished; and whosoever shall kindle mischief shall perish by it. [10] Delight does not suit a fool, nor is it seemly if a servant should begin to rule with haughtiness. [11] A merciful man is long-suffering; and his triumph overtakes transgressors. [12] The threatening of a king is like the roaring of a lion; but as dew on the grass, so is his favour.

[13] A foolish son is a disgrace to his father: vows paid out of the hire of a harlot are not pure. [14] Fathers divide house and substance to their children: but a wife is suited to a man by the Lord. [15] Cowardice possesses the effeminate man; and the soul of the sluggard shall hunger. [16] He that keeps the commandment keeps his own soul; but he that despises his ways shall perish. [17] He that has pity on the poor lends to the Lord; and he will recompense to him according to his gift. [18] Chasten thy son, for so he shall be hopeful; and be not exalted in thy soul to haughtiness. [19] A malicious man shall be severely punished, and if he commit injury, he shall also lose his life.

[20] Hear, son, the instruction of thy father, that thou mayest be wise at thy latter end. [21] There are many thoughts in a man's heart; but the counsel of the Lord abides for ever. [22] Mercy is a fruit to a man: and a poor man is better than a rich liar. [23] The fear of the Lord is life to a man: and he shall lodge without fear in places where knowledge is not seen. [24] He that unjustly hides his hands in his bosom, will not even bring them up to his mouth. [25] When a pestilent character is scourged, a simple man is made wiser: and if thou reprove a wise man, he will understand discretion.

[26] He that dishonours his father, and drives away his mother, shall be disgraced and shall be exposed to reproach. [27] A son who ceases to attend to the instruction of a father will cherish evil designs. [28] He that becomes surety for a foolish child will despise the ordinance: and the mouth of ungodly men shall drink down judgement. [29] Scourges are preparing for the intemperate, and punishments likewise for fools.

[1] Wine is an intemperate thing, and strong drink full of violence: but every fool is entangled with them. [2] The threat of a king differs not from the rage of a lion; and he that provokes him sins against his own soul. [3] It is a glory to a man to turn aside from railing; but every fool is entangled with such matters. [4] A sluggard when reproached is not ashamed: so also he who borrows corn in harvest.

[5] Counsel in a man's heart is deep water; but a prudent man will draw it out. [6] A man is valuable, and a merciful man precious: but it is hard to find a faithful man. [7] He that walks blameless in justice, shall leave his children blessed. [8] Whenever a righteous king sits on the throne, no evil thing can stand before his presence. [9] Who will boast that he has a pure heart? or who will boldly say that he is pure from sins? 14 15 16 17 18 19 [20] The lamp of him that reviles father or mother shall be put out, and his eyeballs shall see darkness.

[21] A portion hastily gotten at first shall not be blessed in the end. [22] Say not, I will avenge myself on my enemy; but wait on the Lord, that he may help thee.

[10] A large and small weight, and divers measures, are even both of them unclean before the Lord; and so is he that makes them. [11] A youth when in company with a godly man, will be restrained in his devices, and then his way will be straight. [12] The ear hears, and the eye sees: even both of them are the Lord's work. [13] Love not to speak ill, lest thou be cut off: open thine eyes, and be filled with bread.

[23] A double weight is an abomination to the Lord; and a deceitful balance is not good in his sight. [24] A man's goings are directed of the Lord: how then can a mortal understand his ways? [25] It is a snare to a man hastily to consecrate some of his own property: for in that case repentance comes after vowing. [26] A wise king utterly crushes the ungodly, and will bring a wheel upon them.

[27] The spirit of man is a light of the Lord, who searches the inmost parts of the belly. [28] Mercy and truth are a guard to a king, and will surround his throne with righteousness. [29] Wisdom is an ornament to young men; and grey hairs are the glory of old men. [30] Bruises and contusions befall bad men; and plagues shall come in the inward parts of their belly.

[1] As a rush of water, so is the king's heart in God's hand: he turns it whithersoever he may desire to point out. [2] Every man seems to himself righteous; but the Lord directs the hearts. [3] To do justly and to speak truth, are more pleasing to God than the blood of sacrifices. [4] A high-minded man is stout-hearted in his pride; and the lamp of the wicked is sin. 5 [6] He that gathers treasures with a lying tongue pursues vanity on to the snares of death. [7] Destruction shall lodge with the ungodly; for they refuse to do justly. [8] To the froward God sends froward ways; for his works are pure and right. [9] It is better to dwell in a corner on the house-top, than in plastered rooms with unrighteousness, and in an open house. [10] The soul of the ungodly shall not be pitied by any man. [11] When an intemperate man is punished the simple becomes wiser: and a wise man understanding will receive knowledge. [12] A righteous man understands the hearts of the ungodly: and despises the ungodly for their wickedness.

[13] He that stops his ears from hearing the poor, himself also shall cry, and there shall be none to hear him. [14] A secret gift calms anger: but he that forbears to give stirs up strong wrath. [15] It is the joy of the righteous to do judgement: but a holy man is abominable with evil-doers. [16] A man that wanders out of the way of righteousness, shall rest in the congregation of giants. [17] A poor man loves mirth, loving wine and oil in abundance; [18] and a transgressor is the abomination of a righteous man. [19] It is better to dwell in a wilderness than with a quarrelsome and talkative and passionate woman. [20] A desirable treasure will rest on the mouth of the wise; but foolish men will swallow it up. [21] The way of righteousness and mercy will find life and glory. [22] A wise man assaults strong cities, and demolishes the fortress in which the ungodly trusted. [23] He that keeps his mouth and his tongue keeps his soul from trouble.

[24] A bold and self-willed and insolent man is called a pest: and he that remembers injuries is a transgressor. [25] Desires kill the sluggard; for his hands do not choose to do anything. [26] An ungodly man entertains evil desires all the day: but the righteous is unsparingly merciful and compassionate. [27] The sacrifices of the ungodly are abomination to the Lord, for they offer them wickedly. [28] A false witness shall perish; but an obedient man will speak cautiously. [29] An ungodly man impudently withstands with his face; but the upright man himself understands his ways. [30] There is no wisdom, there is no courage, there is no counsel against the ungodly. [31] A horse is prepared for the day of battle; but help is of the Lord.

[1] A fair name is better than much wealth, and good favour is above silver and gold. [2] The rich and the poor meet together; but the Lord made them both. [3] An intelligent man seeing a bad man severely punished is himself instructed, but fools pass by and are punished. [4] The fear of the Lord is the offspring of wisdom, and wealth, and glory, and life. [5] Thistles and snares are in perverse ways; but he that keeps his soul will refrain from them. 6 [7] The rich will rule over the poor, and servants will lend to their own masters.

[8] He that sows wickedness shall reap troubles; and shall fully receive the punishment of his deeds. God loves a cheerful and liberal man; but a man shall fully prove the folly of his works. [9] He that has pity on the poor shall himself be maintained; for he has given of his own bread to the poor. He that gives liberally secures victory an honour; but he takes away the life of them that posses them. [10] Cast out a pestilent person from the council, and strife shall go out with him; for when he sits in the council he dishonours all.

[11] The Lord loves holy hearts, and all blameless persons are acceptable with him: a king rules with his lips. [12] But the eyes of the Lord preserve discretion; but the transgressor despises wise words. [13] The sluggard makes excuses, and says, There is a lion in the ways, and murderers in the streets. [14] The mouth of a transgressor is a deep pit; and he that is hated of the Lord shall fall into it. Evil ways are before a man, and he does not like to turn away from them; but it is needful to turn aside from a perverse and bad way. [15] Folly is attached to the heart of a child, but the rod and instruction are then far from him.

[16] He that oppresses the poor, increases his own substance, yet gives to the rich so as to make it less.

[17] Incline thine ear to the words of wise men: hear also my word, and apply thine heart, [18] that thou mayest know that they are good: and if thou lay them to heart, they shall also gladden thee on thy lips. [19] That thy hope may be in the Lord, and he may make thy way known to thee. [20] And do thou too repeatedly record them for thyself on the table of thine heart, for counsel and knowledge. [21] I therefore teach thee truth, and knowledge good to hear; that thou mayest answer words of truth to them that question thee.

[22] Do no violence to the poor, for he is needy: neither dishonour the helpless man in the gates. [23] For the Lord will plead his cause, and thou shalt deliver thy soul in safety.

[24] Be not companion to a furious man; neither lodge with a passionate man: [25] lest thou learn of his ways, and get snares to thy soul.

[26] Become not surety from respect of a man's person. [27] For if those have not whence to give compensation, they will take the bed that is under thee. [28] Remove not the old landmarks, which thy fathers placed.

[29] It is fit that an observant man and one diligent in his business should attend on kings, and not attend on slothful men.

Chapter 23

[1] If thou sit to sup at the table of a prince, consider attentively the things set before thee: [2] and apply thine hand, knowing that it behoves thee to prepare such meats: but if thou art very insatiable, [3] desire not his provisions; for these belong to a false life.

[4] If thou art poor, measure not thyself with a rich man; but refrain thyself in thy wisdom. [5] If thou shouldest fix thine eye upon him, he will disappear; for wings like an eagle's are prepared for him, and he returns to the house of his master. [6] Sup not with an envious man, neither desire thou his meats: [7] so he eats and drinks as if any one should swallow a hair, and do not bring him in to thyself, nor eat thy morsel with him: [8] for he will vomit it up, and spoil thy fair words.

[9] Say nothing in the ears of a fool, lest at any time he sneer at thy wise words. [10] Remove not the ancient landmarks; and enter not upon the possession of the fatherless: [11] for the Lord is their redeemer; he is mighty, and will plead their cause with thee. [12] Apply thine heart to instruction, and prepare thine ears for words of discretion.

[13] Refrain not from chastening a child; for if thou beat him with the rod, he shall not die. [14] For thou shalt beat him with the rod, and shalt deliver his soul from death.

[15] Son, if thy heart be wise, thou shalt also gladden my heart; [16] and thy lips shall converse with my lips, if they be right. [17] Let not thine heart envy sinners: but be thou in the fear of the Lord all the day. [18] For if thou shouldest keep these things, thou shalt have posterity; and thine hope shall not be removed.

[19] Hear, my son, and be wise, and rightly direct the thoughts of thine heart. [20] Be not a wine-bibber, neither continue long at feasts, and purchases of flesh: [21] for every drunkard and whoremonger shall be poor; and every sluggard shall clothe himself with tatters and ragged garments.

[22] Harken, my son, to thy father which begot thee, and despise not thy mother because she is grown old. [23] 24 A righteous father brings up his children well; and his soul rejoices over a wise son. [25] Let thy father and thy mother rejoice over thee, and let her that bore thee be glad.

[26] My son, give me thine heart, and let thine eyes observe my ways. [27] For a strange house is a vessel full of holes; and a strange well is narrow. [28] For such a one shall perish suddenly; and every transgressor shall be cut off.

[29] Who has woe? who trouble? who has quarrels? and who vexations and disputes? who has bruises without a cause? whose eyes are livid? [30] Are not those of them that stay long at wine? are not those of them that haunt the places where banquets are? Be not drunk with wine; but converse with just men, and converse with them openly. [31] For if thou shouldest set thine eyes on bowls and cups, thou shalt afterwards go more naked than a pestle. [32] But at last such a one stretches himself out as one smitten by a serpent, and venom is diffused through him as by a horned serpent.

[33] Whenever thine eyes shall behold a strange woman, then thy mouth shall speak perverse things. [34] And thou shalt lie as in the midst of the sea, and as a pilot in a great storm. [35] And thou shalt say, They smote me, and I was not pained; and they mocked me, and I knew it not: when will it be morning, that I may go and seek those with whom I may go in company?

Chapter 24

[1] My son, envy not bad men, nor desire to be with them. [2] For their heart meditates falsehoods, and their lips speak mischiefs. [3] A house is built by wisdom, and is set up by understanding. [4] By discretion the chambers are filled with all precious and excellent wealth. [5] A wise man is better than a strong man; and a man who has prudence than a large estate. [6] War is carried on with generalship, and aid is supplied to the heart of a counsellor.

[7] Wisdom and good understanding are in the gates of the wise: the wise turn not aside from the mouth of the Lord, [8] but deliberate in council. Death befalls uninstructed men. [9] The fools also dies in sins; and uncleanness attaches to a pestilent man. [10] He shall be defiled in the evil day, and in the day of affliction, until he be utterly consumed.

[11] Deliver them that are led away to death, and redeem them that are appointed to be slain; spare not thy help. [12] But if thou shouldest say, I know not this man; know that the Lord knows the hearts of all; and he that formed breath for all, he knows all things, who renders to every man according to his works.

[13] My son, eat honey, for the honeycomb is good, that thy throat may be sweetened. [14] Thus shalt thou perceive wisdom in thy soul: for if thou find it, thine end shall be good, and hope shall not fail thee.

[15] Bring not an ungodly man into the dwelling of the righteous: neither be deceived by the feeding of the belly. [16] For a righteous man will fall seven times, and rise again: but the ungodly shall be without strength in troubles. [17] If thine enemy should fall, rejoice not over him, neither be elated at his overthrow. [18] For the Lord will see it, and it will not please him, and he will turn away his wrath from him. [19] Rejoice not in evil-doers, neither be envious of sinners. [20] For the evil man shall have no posterity: and the light of the wicked shall be put out.

[21] My son, fear God and the king; and do not disobey either of them. [22] For they will suddenly punish the ungodly, and who can know the vengeance inflicted by both?

[A son that keeps the commandment shall escape destruction; for such an one has fully received it. Let no falsehood be spoken by the king from the tongue; yea, let no falsehood proceed from his tongue. The king's tongue is a sword, and not one of flesh; and whosoever shall be given up to it shall be destroyed: for if his wrath should be provoked, he destroys men with cords, and devours men's bones, and burns them up as a flame, so that they are not even fit to be eaten by the young eagles. My son, reverence my words, and receive them, and repent.]

Chapter 25

[1] These things says the man to them that trust in God; and I cease.

[2] For I am the most simple of all men, and there is not in me the wisdom of men. [3] God has taught me wisdom, and I know the knowledge of the holy.

[4] Who has gone up to heaven, and come down? who has gathered the winds in his bosom? who has wrapped up the waters in a garment? who has dominion of all the ends of the earth? what is his name? or what is the name of his children? [5] For all the words of God are tried in the fire, and he defends those that reverence him. [6] Add not unto his words, lest he reprove thee, and thou be made a liar.

[7] Two things I ask of thee; take not favour from me before I die. [8] Remove far from me vanity and falsehood: and give me not wealth or poverty; but appoint me what is needful and sufficient: [9] lest I be filled and become false, and say, Who sees me? or be poor and steal, and swear vainly by the name of God.

[10] Deliver not a servant into the hands of his master, lest he curse thee, and thou be utterly destroyed. [11] A wicked generation curse their father, and do not bless their mother. [12] A wicked generation judge themselves to be just, but do not cleanse their way. [13] A wicked generation have lofty eyes, and exalt themselves with their eyelids. [14] A wicked generation have swords for teeth and jaw-teeth as knives, so as to destroy and devour the lowly from the earth, and the poor of them from among men.

[23] And this thing I say to you that are wise for you to learn: It is not good to have respect of persons in judgment. [24] He that says of the ungodly, He is righteous, shall be cursed by peoples, and hateful among the nations. [25] But they that reprove him shall appear more excellent, and blessing shall come upon them; [26] and men will kiss lips that answer well. [27] Prepare thy works for thy going forth, and prepare thyself for the field; and come after me, and thou shalt rebuild thine house. [28] Be not a false witness against thy fellow citizen, neither exaggerate with thy lips. [29] Say not, As he has treated me, so will I treat him, and I will avenge myself on him for that wherein he has injured me. [30] A foolish man is like a farm, and a senseless man is like a vineyard. [31] If thou let him alone, he will altogether remain barren and covered with weeds; and he becomes destitute, and his stone walls are broken down. [32] Afterwards I reflected, I looked that I might receive instruction. [33] The sluggard says, I slumber a little, and I sleep a little, and for a little while I fold my arms across my breast. [34] But if thou do this, thy poverty will come speedily; and thy want like a swift courier.

[15] The horse-leech had three dearly-beloved daughters: and these three did not satisfy her; and the fourth was not contented so as to say, Enough. [16] The grave, and the love of a woman, and the earth not filled with water; water also and fire will not say, It is enough.

[17] The eye that laughs to scorn a father, and dishonours the old age of a mother, let the ravens of the valleys pick it out, and let the young eagles devour it. [18] Moreover there are three things impossible for me to comprehend, and the fourth I know not: [19] the track of a flying eagle; and the ways of a serpent on a rock; and the paths of a ship passing through the sea; and the ways of a man in youth. [20] Such is the way of an adulterous woman, who having washed herself from what she has done, says she has done nothing amiss.

[21] By three thing the earth is troubled, and the fourth it cannot bear: [22] if a servant reign; or a fool be filled with food; [23] or if a maid-servant should cast out her own mistress; and if a hateful woman should marry a good man.

[24] And there are four very little things upon the earth, but these are wiser than the wise: [25] the ants which are weak, and yet prepare their food in summer; [26] the rabbits also are a feeble race, who make their houses in the rocks. [27] The locusts have no king, and yet march orderly at one command. [28] And the eft, which supports itself by its hands, and is easily taken, dwells in the fortresses of kings.

[29] And there are three things which go well, and a fourth which passes along finely. [30] A lion's whelp, stronger than all other beasts, which turns not away, nor fears any beast; [31] and a cock walking in boldly among the hens, and the goat leading the herd; and a king publicly speaking before a nation.

[32] If thou abandon thyself to mirth, and stretch forth thine hand in a quarrel, thou shalt be disgraced. [33] Milk out milk, and there shall be butter, and if thou wing one's nostrils there shall come out blood: so if thou extort words, there will come forth quarrels and strifes.

[1] My words have been spoken by God — the oracular answer of a king, whom his mother instructed.

[2] What wilt thou keep, my son, what? the words of God. My firstborn son, I speak to thee: what? son of my womb? what? son of my vows? [3] Give not thy wealth to women, nor thy mind and living to remorse. Do all things with counsel: drink wine with counsel. [4] Princes are prone to anger: let them then not drink wine: [5] lest they drink, and forget wisdom, and be not able to judge the poor rightly. [6] Give strong drink to those that are in sorrow, and the wine to drink to those in pain: [7] that they may forget their poverty, and may not remember their troubles any more. [8] Open thy mouth with the word of God, and judge all fairly. [9] Open thy mouth and judge justly, and plead the cause of the poor and weak.

Chapter 27

[1] These are the miscellaneous instructions of Solomon, which the friends of Ezekias king of Judea copied out.

[2] The glory of God conceals a matter: but the glory of a king honours business. [3] Heaven is high, and earth is deep, and a king's heart is unsearchable. [4] Beat the drossy silver, and it shall be made entirely pure. [5] Slay the ungodly from before the king, and his throne shall prosper in righteousness.

[6] Be not boastful in the presence of the king, and remain not in the places of princes; [7] for it is better for thee that it should be said, Come up to me, than that one should humble thee in the presence of the prince; speak of that which thine eyes have seen.

[8] Get not suddenly into a quarrel, lest thou repent at last. [9] Whenever thy friend shall reproach thee, retreat backward, despise him not; [10] lest thy friend continue to reproach thee, so thy quarrel and enmity shall not depart, but shall be to thee like death. Favour and friendship set a man free, which do thou keep for thyself, lest thou be made liable to reproach; but take heed to thy ways peaceably.

[11] As a golden apple in a necklace of sardius, so is it to speak a wise word. [12] In an ear-ring of gold a precious sardius is also set; so is a wise word to an obedient ear. [13] As a fall of snow in the time of harvest is good against heat, so a faithful messenger refreshes those that send him; for he helps the souls of his employers.

[14] As winds and clouds and rains are most evident objects, so is he that boasts of a false gift. [15] In long-suffering is prosperity to kings, and a soft tongue breaks the bones. [16] Having found honey, eat only what is enough, lest haply thou be filled, and vomit it up. [17] Enter sparingly into thy friend's house, lest he be satiated with thy company, and hate thee. [18] As a club, and a dagger, and a pointed arrow, so also is a man who bears false witness against his friend. [19] The way of the wicked and the foot of the transgressor shall perish in an evil day.

[20] As vinegar is bad for a sore, so trouble befalling the body afflicts the heart. As a moth in a garment, and a worm in wood, so the grief of a man hurts the heart.

[21] If thine enemy hunger, feed him; if he thirst, give him drink; [22] for so doing thou shalt heap coals of fire upon his head, and the Lord shall reward thee with good. [23] The north wind raises clouds; so an impudent face provokes the tongue. [24] It is better to dwell on a corner of the roof, than with a railing woman in an open house. [25] As cold water is agreeable to a thirsting soul, so is a good message from a land far off. [26] As if one should stop a well, and corrupt a spring of water, so is it unseemly for a righteous man to fall before an ungodly man. [27] It is not good to eat much honey; but it is right to honour venerable sayings. [28] As a city whose walls are broken down, and which is unfortified, so is a man who does anything without counsel.

Chapter 28

[1] As dew in harvest, and as rain in summer, so honour is not seemly for a fool. [2] As birds and sparrows fly, so a curse shall not come upon any one without a cause. [3] As a whip for a horse, and a goad for an ass, so is a rod for a simple nation. [4] Answer not a fool according to his folly, lest thou become like him. [5] Yet answer a fool according to his folly, lest he seem wise in his own conceit. [6] He that sends a message by a foolish messenger procures for himself a reproach from his own ways. [7] As well take away the motion of the legs, as transgression from the mouth of fools. [8] He that binds up a stone in a sling, is like one that gives glory to a fool. [9] Thorns grow in the hand of a drunkard, and servitude in the hand of fools. [10] All the flesh of fools endures much hardship; for their fury is brought to nought. [11] As when a dog goes to his own vomit, and becomes abominable, so is fool who returns in his wickedness to his own sin. [There is a shame that brings sin: and there is a shame that is glory and grace.] [12] I have seen a man who seemed to himself to be wise; but a fool had more hope than he. [13] A sluggard when sent on a journey says, There is a lion in the ways, and there are murderers in the streets.

[14] As a door turns on the hinge, so does a sluggard on his bed. [15] A sluggard having hid his hand in his bosom, will not be able to bring it up to his mouth. [16] A sluggard seems to himself wiser than one who most satisfactorily brings back a message.

[17] As he that lays hold of a dog's tail, so is he that makes himself the champion of another's cause. [18] As those who need correction put forth fair words to men, and he that first falls in with the proposal will be overthrown; [19] so are all that lay wait for their own friends, and when they are discovered, say, I did it in jest. [20] With much wood fire increases; but where there is not a double-minded man, strife ceases. [21] A hearth for coals, and wood for fire; and railing man for the tumult of strife. [22] The words of cunning knaves are soft; but they smite even to the inmost parts of the bowels.

[23] Silver dishonestly given is to be considered as a potsherd: smooth lips cover a grievous heart. [24] A weeping enemy promises all things with his lips, but in his heart he contrives deceit. [25] Though thine enemy intreat thee with a loud voice, consent not: for there are seven abominations in his heart. [26] He that hides enmity frames deceit: but being easily discerned, exposes his own sins in the public assemblies. [27] He that digs a pit for his neighbour shall fall into it: and he that rolls a stone, rolls it upon himself. [28] A lying tongue hates the truth; and an unguarded mouth causes tumults.

[1] Boast not of to-morrow; for thou knowest not what the next day shall bring forth. [2] Let thy neighbour, and not thine own mouth, praise thee; a stranger, and not thine own lips. [3] A stone is heavy, and sand cumbersome; but a fool's wrath is heavier than both. [4] Wrath is merciless, and anger sharp: but envy can bear nothing. [5] Open reproofs are better than secret love. [6] The wounds of a friend are more to be trusted than the spontaneous kisses of an enemy.

[7] A full soul scorns honeycombs; but to a hungry soul even bitter things appear sweet. [8] As when a bird flies down from its own nest, so a man is brought into bondage whenever he estranges himself from his own place. [9] The heart delights in ointments and wines and perfumes: but the soul is broken by calamities.

[10] Thine own friend, and thy father's friend, forsake not; and when thou art in distress go not into thy brother's house: better is a friend that is near than a brother living far off. [11] Son, be wise, that thy heart may rejoice; and remove thou from thyself reproachful words. [12] A wise man, when evils are approaching, hides himself; but fools pass on, and will be punished. [13] Take away the man's garment, (for a scorner has passed by) whoever lays waste another's goods. [14] Whosoever shall bless a friend in the morning with a loud voice, shall seem to differ nothing from one who curses him.

[15] On a stormy day drops of rain drive a man out of his house; so also does a railing woman drive a man out of his own house. [16] The north wind is sharp, but it is called by name propitious. [17] Iron sharpens iron; and a man sharpens his friend's countenance. [18] He that plants a fig-tree shall eat the fruits of it: so he that waits on his own master shall be honoured. [19] As faces are not like other faces, so neither are the thoughts of men. [20] Hell and destruction are not filled; so also are the eyes of men insatiable. [He that fixes his eye is an abomination to the Lord; and the uninstructed do not restrain their tongue.] [21] Fire is the trial for silver and gold; and a man is tried by the mouth of them that praise him. The heart of the transgressor seeks after mischiefs; but an upright heart seeks knowledge. [22] Though thou scourge a fool, disgracing him in the midst of the council, thou wilt still in no wise remove his folly from him.

[23] Do thou thoroughly know the number of thy flock, and pay attention to thine herds. [24] For a man has not strength and power for ever; neither does he transmit it from generation to generation. [25] Take care of the herbage in the field, and thou shalt cut grass, and gather the mountain hay; [26] that thou mayest have wool of sheep for clothing: pay attention to the land, that thou mayest have lambs. [27] My son, thou hast from me words very useful for thy life, and for the life of thy servants.

Chapter 30

[1] The ungodly man flees when no one pursues: but the righteous is confident as a lion. [2] By reason of the sins of ungodly men quarrels arise; but a wise man will quell them. [3] A bold man oppresses the poor by ungodly deeds. As an impetuous and profitable rain, [4] so they that forsake the law praise ungodliness; but they that love the law fortify themselves with a wall. [5] Evil men will not understand judgement: but they that seek the Lord will understand everything.

[6] A poor man walking in truth is better than a rich liar. [7] A wise son keeps the law: but he that keeps up debauchery dishonours his father. [8] He that increases his wealth by usuries and unjust gains, gathers it for him that pities the poor. [9] He that turns away his ear from hearing the law, even he has made his prayer abominable.

[10] He that causes upright men to err in an evil way, himself shall fall into destruction: transgressor also shall pass by prosperity, but shall not enter into it. [11] A rich man is wise in his own conceit; but an intelligent poor man will condemn him. [12] By reason of the help of righteous men great glory arises: but in the places of the ungodly men are caught.

[13] He that covers his own ungodliness shall not prosper: but he that blames himself shall be loved. [14] Blessed is the man who religiously fears always: but the hard of heart shall fall into mischiefs. [15] A hungry lion and a thirsty wolf is he, who, being poor, rules over a poor nation.

[16] A king in need of revenues is a great oppressor: but he that hates injustice shall live a long time.

[17] He that becomes surety for a man charged with murder shall be an exile, and not in safety. Chasten thy son, and he shall love thee, and give honour to thy soul: he shall not obey a sinful nation. [18] He that walks justly is assisted: but he that walks in crooked ways shall be entangled therein. [19] He that tills his own land shall be satisfied with bread: but he that follows idleness shall have plenty of poverty.

[20] A man worthy of credit shall be much blessed: but the wicked shall not be unpunished. [21] He that reverences not the persons of the just is not good: such a one will sell a man for a morsel of bread. [22] An envious man makes haste to be rich, and knows not that the merciful man will have the mastery over him.

[23] He that reproves a man's ways shall have more favour than he that flatters with the tongue. [24] He that casts off father or mother, and thinks he sins not; the same is partaker with an ungodly man. [25] An unbelieving man judges rashly: but he that trusts in the Lord will act carefully. [26] He that trusts to a bold heart, such an one is a fool: but he that walks in wisdom shall be safe. [27] He that gives to the poor shall not be in want: but he that turns away his eye from him shall be in great distress. [28] In the places of ungodly men the righteous mourn: but in their destruction the righteous shall be multiplied.

[1] A reprov-er is better than a stiff-necked man: for when the latter is suddenly set on fire, there shall be no remedy. [2] When the righteous are praised, the people will rejoice: but when the ungodly rule, men mourn. [3] When a man loves wisdom, his father rejoices: but he that keeps harlots will waste wealth. [4] A righteous king establishes a country: but a transgressor destroys it. [5] He that prepares a net in the way of his own friend, entangles his own feet in it. [6] A great snare is spread for a sinner: but the righteous shall be in joy and gladness. [7] A righteous man knows how to judge for the poor: but the ungodly understands not knowledge; and the poor man has not an understanding mind.

[8] Lawless men burn down a city: but wise men turn away wrath. [9] A wise man shall judge nations: but a worthless man being angry laughs and fears not. [10] Bloody men hate a holy person, but the upright will seek his soul. [11] A fool utters all is mind: but the wise reserves his in part. [12] When a king hearkens to unjust language, all his subjects are transgressors. [13] When the creditor and debtor meet together, the Lord oversees them both. [14] When a king judges the poor in truth, his throne shall be established for a testimony. [15] Stripes and reproofs give wisdom: but an erring child disgraces his parents. [16] When the ungodly abound, sins abound: but when they fall, the righteous are warned.

[17] Chasten thy son, and he shall give thee rest; and he shall give honour to thy soul. [18] There shall be no interpreter to a sinful nation: but he that observes the law is blessed. [19] A stubborn servant will not be reprov-ed by words: for even if he understands, still he will not obey. [20] If thou see a man hasty in his words, know that the fool has hope rather than he. [21] He that lives wantonly from a child, shall be a servant, and in the end shall grieve over himself. [22] A furious man stirs up strife, and a passionate man digs up sin. [23] Pride brings a man low, but the Lord upholds the humble-minded with honour.

[24] He that shares with a thief, hates his own soul: and if any having heard an oath uttered tell not of it, [25] they fearing and reverencing men unreasonably have been overthrown, but he that trusts in the Lord shall rejoice. Ungodliness causes a man to stumble: but he that trusts in his master shall be safe. [26] Many wait on the favour of rulers; but justice comes to a man from the Lord. [27] A righteous man is an abomination to an unrighteous man, and the direct way is an abomination to the sinner.

[10] Who shall find a virtuous woman? for such a one is more valuable than precious stones. [11] The heart of her husband trusts in her: such a one shall stand in no need of fine spoils. [12] For she employs all her living for her husband's good. [13] Gathering wool and flax, she makes it serviceable with her hands. [14] She is like a ship trading from a distance: so she procures her livelihood. [15] And she rises by night, and gives food to her household, and appointed tasks to her maidens. [16] She views a farm, and buys it: and with the fruit of her hands she plants and a possession. [17] She strongly girds her loins, and strengthens her arms for work. [18] And she finds by experience that working is good; and her candle goes not out all night. [19] She reaches forth her arms to needful works, and applies her hands to the spindle. [20] And she opens her hands to the needy, and reaches out fruit to the poor.

[21] Her husband is not anxious about those at home when he tarries anywhere abroad: for all her household are clothed. [22] She makes for her husband clothes of double texture, and garments for herself of fine linen and scarlet. [23] And her husband becomes a distinguished person in the gates, when he sits in council with the old inhabitants of the land. [24] She makes fine linens, and sells girdles to the Chananites: she opens her mouth heedfully and with propriety, and controls her tongue. [25] She puts on strength and honour; and rejoices in the last days. [26] But she opens her mouth wisely, and according to law. [27] The ways of her household are careful, and she eats not the bread of idleness. [28] And her kindness to them sets up her children for them, and they grow rich, and her husband praises her. [29] Many daughters have obtained wealth, many have wrought valiantly; but thou hast exceeded, thou hast surpassed all. [30] Charms are false, and woman's beauty is vain: for it is a wise woman that is blessed, and let her praise the fear the Lord. [31] Give her of the fruit of her lips; and let her husband be praised in the gates.

Ecclesiastes

Chapter 1

[1] The words of the Preacher, the son of David, king of Israel in Jerusalem. [2] Vanity of vanities, said the Preacher, vanity of vanities; all is vanity.

[3] What advantage is there to a man in all his labour that he takes under the sun? [4] A generation goes, and a generation comes: but the earth stands for ever. [5] And the sun arises, and the sun goes down and draws toward its place; [6] arising there it proceeds southward, and goes round toward the north. The wind goes round and round, and the wind returns to its circuits. [7] All the rivers run into the sea; and yet the sea is not filled: to the place whence the rivers come, thither they return again. [8] All things are full of labour; a man will not be able to speak of them: neither shall the eye be satisfied with seeing, neither shall the ear be filled with hearing.

[9] What is that which has been? the very thing which shall be: and what is that which has been done? the very thing which shall be done: and there is no new thing under the sun. [10] Who is he that shall speak and say, Behold, this is new? it has already been in the ages that have passed before us. [11] There is no memorial to the first things; neither to the things that have been last shall their memorial be with them that shall at the last time.

[12] I the Preacher was king over Israel in Jerusalem. [13] And I applied my heart to seek out and examine by wisdom concerning all things that are done under heaven, for God has given to the sons of men an evil trouble to be troubled therewith.

[14] I beheld all the works that were wrought under the sun; and, beheld, all were vanity and waywardness of spirit. [15] That which is crooked cannot be made straight: and deficiency cannot be numbered. [16] I spoke in my heart, saying, Behold, I am increased, and have acquired wisdom beyond all who were before me in Jerusalem: also I applied my heart to know wisdom and knowledge. [17] And my heart knew much — wisdom, and knowledge, parables and understanding: I perceived that this also is waywardness of spirit. [18] For in the abundance of wisdom is abundance of knowledge; and he that increases knowledge will increase sorrow.

[1] I said in my heart, Come now, I will prove thee with mirth, and behold thou good: and, behold, this is also vanity. [2] I said to laughter, Madness: and to mirth, Why doest thou this:

[3] And I examined whether my heart would excite my flesh as with wine, (though my heart guided me in wisdom,) and I desired to lay hold of mirth, until I should see of what kind is the good to the sons of men, which they should do under the sun all the days of their life. [4] I enlarged my work; I built me houses; I planted me vineyards. [5] I made me gardens and orchards, and planted in them every kind of fruit-tree. [6] I made me pools of water, to water from them the timber-bearing wood. [7] I got servants and maidens, and servants were born to me in the house: also I had abundant possession of flocks and herds, beyond all who were before me in Jerusalem. [8] Moreover I collected for myself both silver and gold also, and the peculiar treasures of kings and provinces: I procured me singing men and singing women, and delights of the sons of men, a butler and female cupbearers.

[9] So I became great, and advanced beyond all that were before in Jerusalem: also my wisdom was established to me. [10] And whatever mine eyes desired, I withheld not from them, I withheld not my heart from all my mirth: for my heart rejoiced in all my labour; and this was my portion of all my labour. [11] And I looked on all my works which my hands had wrought, and on my labour which I laboured to perform: and behold, all was vanity and waywardness of spirit, and there is no advantage under the sun.

[12] Then I looked on to see wisdom, and madness, and folly: for who is the man who will follow after counsel, in all things where in he employs it? [13] And I saw that wisdom excels folly, as much as light excels darkness. [14] The wise man's eyes are in his head; but the fool walks in darkness: and I perceived, even I, that one event shall happen to them all.

[15] And I said in my heart, As the event of the fool is, so shall it be to me, even to me: and to what purpose have I gained wisdom? I said moreover in my heart, This is also vanity, because the fool speaks of his abundance. [16] For there is no remembrance of the wise man with the fool for ever; forasmuch as now in the coming days all things are forgotten: and how shall the wise man die with the fool?

[17] So I hated life; because the work that was wrought under the sun was evil before me: for all is vanity and waywardness of spirit. [18] And I hated the whole of my labour which I took under the sun; because I must leave it to the man who will come after me. [19] And who knows whether he will be a wise man or a fool? and whether he will have power over all my labour in which I laboured, and wherein I grew wise under the sun? this is also vanity. [20] so I went about to dismiss from my heart all my labour wherein I had laboured under the sun. [21] For there is such a man that his labour is in wisdom, and in knowledge, and in fortitude; yet this man shall give his portion to one who has not laboured therein. This is also vanity and great evil. [22] For it happens to a man in all his labour, and in the purpose of his heart wherein he labours under the sun. [23] For all his days are days of sorrows, and vexation of spirit is his; in the night also his heart rests not. This is also vanity.

[24] A man has nothing really good to eat, and to drink, and to shew his soul as good in his trouble. This also I saw, that it is from the hand of God. [25] For who shall eat, or who shall drink, without him? [26] For God has given to the man who is good in his sight, wisdom, and knowledge, and joy: but he has given to the sinner trouble, to add and to heap up, that he may give to him that is good before God; for this is also vanity and waywardness of spirit.

Chapter 3

[1] To all things there is a time, and a season for every matter under heaven. [2] A time of birth, and a time to die; a time to plant, and a time to pluck up what has been planted; [3] a time to kill, and a time to heal; a time to pull down, and a time to build up; [4] a time to weep, and a time to laugh; a time to lament, and a time to dance; [5] a time to throw stones, and a time to gather stones together; a time to embrace, and a time to abstain from embracing; [6] a time to seek, and a time to lose; a time to keep, and a time to cast away; [7] a time to rend, and a time to sew; a time to be silent, and a time to speak; [8] a time to love, and a time to hate; a time of war, and a time of peace.

[9] What advantage has he that works in those things wherein he labours?

[10] I have seen all the trouble, which God has given to the sons of men to be troubled with. [11] All the things which he has made are beautiful in his time: he has also set the whole world in their heart, that man might not find out the work which God has wrought from the beginning even to the end. [12] I know that there is no good in them, except for a man to rejoice, and to do good in his life.

[13] Also in the case of every man who shall eat and drink, and see good in all his labour, this is a gift of God. [14] I know that whatsoever things God has done, they shall be for ever: it is impossible to add to it, and it is impossible to take away from it: and God has done it, that men may fear before him. [15] That which has been is now; and whatever things are appointed to be have already been; and God will seek out that which is past.

[16] And moreover I saw under the sun the place of judgement, there was the ungodly one; and the place of righteousness, there was the godly one. [17] And I said in my heart, God will judge the righteous and the ungodly: for there is a time there for every action and for every work.

[18] I said in my heart, concerning the speech of the sons of man, God will judge them, and that to shew that they are breasts. [19] Also to them is the event of the sons of man, and the event of the brute; one event befalls them: as is the death of the one, so also the death of the other; and there is one breath to all: and what has the man more than the brute? nothing; for all is vanity. [20] All go to one place; all were formed of the dust, and all will return to dust. [21] And who has seen the spirit of the sons of man, whether it goes upward? and the spirit of the beast, whether it goes downward to the earth? [22] And I saw that there was no good, but that wherein a man shall rejoice in his works, for it is his portion, for who shall bring him to see any thing of that which shall be after him?

Chapter 4

[1] So I returned, and saw all the oppressions that were done under the sun: and behold the tear of the oppressed, and they had no comforter; and on the side of them that oppressed them was power; but they had no comforter: [2] and I praised all the dead that had already died more than the living, as many as are alive until now. [3] Better also than both these is he who has not yet been, who has not seen all the evil work that is done under the sun.

[4] And I saw all labour, and all the diligent work, that this is a man's envy from his neighbour. This is also vanity and waywardness of spirit. [5] The fool folds his hands together, and eats his own flesh. [6] Better is a handful of rest than two handfuls of trouble and waywardness of spirit.

[7] So I returned, and saw vanity under the sun. [8] There is one alone, and there is not a second; yea, he has neither son nor brother: yet there is no end to all his labour; neither is his eye satisfied with wealth; and for whom do I labour, and deprive my soul of good? this is also vanity, and an evil trouble. [9] Two are better than one, seeing they have a good reward for their labour. [10] For if they fall, the one will lift up his fellow: but woe to him that is alone when he falls, and there is not a second to lift him up. [11] Also if two should lie together, they also get heat: but how shall one be warmed alone? [12] And if one should prevail against him, the two shall withstand him; and a threefold cord shall not be quickly broken.

[13] Better is a poor and wise child than an old and foolish king, who knows not how to take heed any longer. [14] For he shall come forth out of the house of the prisoners to reign, because he also that was in his kingdom has become poor. [15] I beheld all the living who were walking under the sun, with the second youth who shall stand up in each one's place. [16] There is no end to all the people, to all who were before them: and the last shall not rejoice in him: for this also is vanity and waywardness of spirit.

[17] Keep thy foot, whensoever thou goest to the house of God; and when thou art near to hear, let thy sacrifice be better than the gift of fools: for they know not that they are doing evil.

Chapter 5

[1] Be not hasty with thy mouth, and let not thine heart be swift to utter anything before God; for God is in heaven above, and thou upon earth: therefore let thy words be few. [2] For through the multitude of trial a dream comes; and a fool's voice is with a multitude of words.

[3] Whenever thou shalt vow a vow to God, defer not to pay it; for he has no pleasure in fools: pay thou therefore whatsoever thou shalt have vowed. [4] It is better that thou shouldest not vow, than that thou shouldest vow and not pay. [5] Suffer not thy mouth to lead thy flesh to sin; and say not in the presence of God, It was an error: lest God be angry at thy voice, and destroy the works of thy hands. [6] For there is evil in a multitude of dreams and vanities and many words: but fear thou God.

[7] If thou shouldest see the oppression of the poor, and the wresting of judgment and of justice in the land, wonder not at the matter: for there is a high one to watch over him that is high, and high ones over them. [8] Also the abundance of the earth is for every one: the king is dependent on the tilled field.

[9] He that loves silver shall not be satisfied with silver: and who has loved gain, in the abundance thereof? this is also vanity. [10] In the multitude of good they are increased that eat it: and what virtue has the owner, but the right of beholding it with his eyes? [11] The sleep of a servant is sweet, whether he eat little or much: but to one who is satiated with wealth, there is none that suffers him to sleep.

[12] There is an infirmity which I have seen under the sun, namely, wealth kept for its owner to his hurt. [13] And that wealth shall perish in an evil trouble: and the man begets a son, and there is nothing in his hand. [14] As he came forth naked from his mother's womb, he shall return back as he came, and he shall receive nothing for his labour, that it should go with him in his hand. [15] And this is also an evil infirmity: for as he came, so also shall he return: and what is his gain, for which he vainly labours? [16] Yea, all his days are in darkness, and in mourning, and much sorrow, and infirmity, and wrath.

[17] Behold, I have seen good, that it is a fine thing for a man to eat and to drink, and to see good in all his labour in which he may labour under the sun, all the number of the days of his life which God has given to him: for it is his portion. [18] Yea, and as for every man to whom God has given wealth and possessions, and has given him power to eat thereof, and to receive his portion, and to rejoice in his labour; this is the gift of God. [19] For he shall not much remember the days of his life; for God troubles him in the mirth of his heart.

[1] There is an evil which I have seen under the sun, and it is abundant with man: [2] a man to whom God shall give wealth, and substance, and honour, and he wants nothing for his soul of all things that he shall desire, yet God shall not give him power to eat of it, for a stranger shall devour it: this is vanity, and an evil infirmity.

[3] If a man beget a hundred children, and live many years, yea, however abundant the days of his years shall be, yet if his soul shall not be satisfied with good, and also he have no burial; I said, An untimely birth is better than he. [4] For he came in vanity, and departs in darkness, and his name shall be covered in darkness. [5] Moreover he has not seen the sun, nor known rest: there is no more rest to this one than another. [6] Though he has lived to the return of a thousand years, yet he has seen no good: do not all go to one place?

[7] All the labour of a man is for his mouth, and yet the appetite shall not be satisfied. [8] For what advantage has the wise man over the fool, since even the poor knows how to walk in the direction of life? [9] The sight of the eyes is better than that which wanders in soul: this is also vanity, and waywardness of spirit.

[10] If anything has been, its name has already been called: and it is known what man is; neither can he contend with him who is stronger than he. [11] For there are many things which increase vanity.

Chapter 7

[1] What advantage has a man? for who knows what is good for a man in his life, during the number of the life of the days of his vanity? and he has spent them as a shadow; for who shall tell a man what shall be after him under the sun?

[2] A good name is better than good oil; and the day of death than the day of birth. [3] It is better to go to the house of mourning, than to go to the banquet house: since this is the end of every man; and the living man will apply good warning to his heart. [4] Sorrow is better than laughter: for by the sadness of the countenance the heart will be made better. [5] The heart of the wise is in the house of mourning; but the heart of fools is in the house of mirth.

[6] It is better to hear a reproof of a wise man, than for a man to hear the song of fools. [7] As the sound of thorns under a caldron, so is the laughter of fools: this is also vanity.

[8] for oppression makes a wise man mad, and destroys his noble heart. [9] The end of a matter is better than the beginning thereof: the patient is better than the high-minded. [10] Be not hasty in thy spirit to be angry: for anger will rest in the bosom of fools. [11] Say not, What has happened, that the former days were better than these? for thou dost not enquire in wisdom concerning this.

[12] Wisdom is good with an inheritance: and there is an advantage by it to them that see the sun. [13] For wisdom in its shadow is as the shadow of silver: and the excellence of the knowledge of wisdom will give life to him that has it.

[14] Behold the works of God: for who shall be able to straighten him whom God has made crooked? [15] In the day of prosperity live joyfully, and consider in the day of adversity: consider, I say, God also has caused the one to agree with the other for this reason, that man should find nothing after him.

[16] I have seen all things in the days of my vanity: there is a just man perishing in his justice, and there is an ungodly man remaining in his wickedness. [17] Be not very just; neither be very wise: lest thou be confounded. [18] Be not very wicked; and be not stubborn: lest thou shouldest die before thy time. [19] It is well for thee to hold fast by this; also by this defile not thine hand: for to them that fear God all things shall come forth well.

[20] Wisdom will help the wise man more than ten mighty men which are in the city. [21] For there is not a righteous man in the earth, who will do good, and not sin [22] Also take no heed to all the words which ungodly men shall speak; lest thou hear thy servant cursing thee. [23] For many times he shall trespass against thee, and repeatedly shall he afflict thine heart; for thus also hast thou cursed others.

24All these things have I proved in wisdom: I said, I will be wise; but it was far from me. [25] That which is far beyond what was, and a great depth, who shall find it out?

[26] I and my heart went round about to know, and to examine, and to seek wisdom, and the account of things, and to know the folly and trouble and madness of the ungodly man.

[27] And I find her to be, and I will pronounce to be more bitter than death the woman which is a snare, and her heart nets, who has a band in her hands: he that is good in the sight of God shall be delivered from her; but the sinner shall be caught by her. [28] Behold, this have I found, said the Preacher, seeking by one at a time to find out the account, [29] which my soul sought after, but I found not: for I have found one man of a thousand; but a woman in all these I have not found. [30] But, behold, this have I found, that God made man upright; but they have sought out many devices.

Chapter 8

[1] Who knows the wise? and who knows the interpretation of a saying?

A man's wisdom will lighten his countenance; but a man of shameless countenance will be hated.

[2] Observe the commandment of the king, and that because of the word of the oath of God. [3] Be not hasty; thou shalt go forth out of his presence: stand not in an evil matter; for he will do whatsoever he shall please, [4] even as a king having power: and who will say to him, What doest thou?

[5] He that keeps the commandment shall not know an evil thing: and the heart of the wise knows the time of judgement. [6] For to every thing there is time and judgement; for the knowledge of a man is great to him. [7] For there is no one that knows what is going to be: for who shall tell him how it shall be?

[8] There is no man that has power over the spirit to retain the spirit; and there is no power in the day of death: and there is no discharge in the day of the battle; neither shall ungodliness save her votary.

[9] So I saw all this, and I applied my heart to every work that has been done under the sun; all the things wherein man has power over man to afflict him. [10] And then I saw the ungodly carried into the tombs, and that out of the holy place: and they departed, and were praised in the city, because they had done thus: this also is vanity.

[11] Because there is no contradiction made on the part of those who do evil quickly, therefore the heart of the children of men is fully determined in them to do evil. [12] He that has sinned has done evil from that time, and long from beforehand: nevertheless I know, that it is well with them that fear God, that they may fear before him: [13] but it shall not be well with the ungodly, and he shall not prolong his days, which are as a shadow; forasmuch as he fears not before God.

[14] There is a vanity which is done upon the earth; that there are righteous persons to whom it happens according to the doing of the ungodly; and there are ungodly men, to whom it happens according to the doing of the just: I said, This is also vanity. [15] Then I praised mirth, because there is no good for a man under the sun, but to eat, and drink, and be merry: and this shall attend him in his labour all the days of his life, which God has given him under the sun.

[16] Whereupon I set my heart to know wisdom, and to perceive the trouble that was wrought upon the earth: for there is that neither by day nor night sees sleep with his eyes. [17] And I beheld all the works of God, that a man shall not be able to discover the work which is wrought under the sun; whatsoever things a man shall endeavour to seek, however a man may labour to seek it, yet he shall not find it; yea, how much soever a wise man may speak of knowing it, he shall not be able to find it: for I applied all this to my heart, and my heart has seen all this.

[1] I saw that the righteous, and the wise, and their works, are in the hand of God: yea, there is no man that knows either love or hatred, though all are before their face. [2] Vanity is in all: there is one event to the righteous, and to the wicked; to the good, and to the bad; both to the pure, and to the impure; both to him that sacrifices, and to him that sacrifice not: as is the good, so is the sinner: as is the swearer, even so is he that fears an oath.

[3] There is this evil in all that is done under the sun, that there is one event to all: yea, the heart of the sons of men is filled with evil, and madness is in their heart during their life, and after that they go to the dead. [4] for who is he that has fellowship with all the living? there is hope of him: for a living dog is better than a dead lion. [5] For the living will know that they shall die: but the dead know nothing, and there is no longer any reward to them; for their memory is lost. [6] also their love, and their hatred, and their envy, have now perished; yea, there is no portion for them any more for ever in all that is done under the sun.

[7] Go, eat thy bread with mirth, and drink thy wine with a joyful heart; for now God has favourably accepted thy works. [8] Let thy garments be always white; and let not oil be wanting on thine head. [9] And see life with the wife whom thou lovest all the days of the life of thy vanity, which are given thee under the sun: for that is thy portion in thy life, and in thy labour wherein thou labourest under the sun.

[10] Whatsoever thine hand shall find to do, do with all thy might; for there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom, in Hades wither thou goest.

[11] I returned, and saw under the sun, that the race is not to the swift, nor the battle to the strong, nor yet bread to the wise, nor yet wealth to men of understanding, nor yet favour to men of knowledge; for time and chance will happen to them all. [12] For surely man also knows not his time: as fishes that are taken in an evil net, and as birds that are caught in a snare; even thus the sons of men are snared at an evil time, when it falls suddenly upon them.

[13] This I also saw to be wisdom under the sun, and it is great before me: [14] suppose there were a little city, and few men in it; and there should come against it a great king, and surround it, and build great mounds against it; [15] and should find in it a poor wise man, and he should save the city through his wisdom: yet no man would remember that poor man. [16] And I said Wisdom is better than power: yet the wisdom of the poor man is set at nought, and his words not listened to.

[17] The words of the wise are heard in quiet more than the cry of them that rule in folly.

[18] Wisdom is better than weapons of war: and one sinner will destroy much good.

Chapter 10

[1] Pestilent flies will corrupt a preparation of sweet ointment: and a little wisdom is more precious than great glory of folly.

[2] A wise man's heart is at his right hand; but a fool's heart at his left. [3] Yea, and whenever a fool walks by the way, his heart will fail him, and all that he thinks of is folly.

[4] If the spirit of the ruler rise up against thee, leave not thy place; for soothing will put an end to great offences. [5] There is an evil which I have seen under the sun, wherein an error has proceeded from the ruler. [6] The fool has been set in very high places, while rich men would sit in a low one. [7] I have seen servants upon horses, and princes walking as servants on the earth.

[8] He that digs a pit shall fall into it; and him that breaks down a hedge a serpent shall bite.

[9] He that removes stones shall be troubled thereby; he that cleaves wood shall be endangered thereby.

[10] If the axe-head should fall off, then the man troubles his countenance, and he must put forth more strength: and in that case skill is of no advantage to a man.

[11] If a serpent bite when there is no charmer's whisper, then there is no advantage to the charmer.

[12] The words of a wise mouth are gracious: but the lips of a fool will swallow him up. [13] The beginning of the words of his mouth is folly: and the end of his talk mischievous madness. [14] A fool moreover multiplies words: man knows not what has been, nor what will be: who shall tell him what will come after him? [15] The labour of fools will afflict them, as that of one who knows not to go to the city.

[16] Woe to thee, O city, whose king is young, and thy princes eat in the morning! [17] Blessed art thou, O land, whose king is a son of nobles, and whose princes shall eat seasonably, for strength, and shall not be ashamed.

[18] By slothful neglect a building will be brought low: and by idleness of the hands the house will fall to pieces.

[19] Men prepare bread for laughter, and wine and oil that the living should rejoice: but to money all things will humbly yield obedience.

[20] Even in thy conscience, curse not the king; and curse not the rich in thy bedchamber: for a bird of the air shall carry thy voice, and that which has wings shall report thy speech.

Chapter 11

[1] Send forth thy bread upon the face of the water: for thou shalt find it after many days. [2] Give a portion to seven, and also to eight; for thou knowest not what evil there shall be upon the earth. [3] If the clouds be filled with rain, they pour it out upon the earth: and if a tree fall southward, or if it fall northward, in the place where the tree shall fall, there it shall be. [4] He that observes the wind sows not; and he that looks at the clouds will not reap. [5] Among whom none knows what is the way of the wind: as the bones are hid in the womb of a pregnant woman, so thou shalt not know the works of God, even all things whatsoever he shall do. [6] In the morning sow thy seed, and in the evening let not thine hand be slack: for thou knowest not what sort shall prosper, whether this or that, or whether both shall be good alike.

[7] Moreover the light is sweet, and it is good for the eyes to see the sun. [8] For even if a man should live many years, and rejoice in them all; yet let him remember the days of darkness; for they shall be many. All that comes is vanity.

[9] Rejoice, O young man, in thy youth; and let thy heart cheer thee in the days of thy youth, and walk in the ways of thy heart blameless, but not in the sight of thine eyes: yet know that for all these things God will bring thee into judgement. [10] Therefore remove sorrow from thy heart, and put away evil from thy flesh: for youth and folly are vanity.

Chapter 12

[1] And remember thy Creator in the days of thy youth, before the days of evil come, and the years overtake thee in which thou shalt say, I have no pleasure in them. [2] While the sun and light are not darkened, nor the moon and the stars; nor the clouds return after the rain: [3] in the day wherein the keepers of the house shall tremble, and the mighty men shall become bent, and the grinding women cease because they have become few, and the women looking out at the windows be dark; [4] and they shall shut the doors in the market-place, because of the weakness of the voice of her that grinds at the mill; and he shall rise up at the voice of the sparrow, and all the daughters of song shall be brought low; [5] and they shall look up, and fears shall be in the way, and the almond tree shall blossom, and the locust shall increase, and the caper shall be scattered: because man has gone to his eternal home, and the mourners have gone about the market: [6] before the silver cord be let go, or the choice gold be broken, or the pitcher be broken at the fountain, or the wheel run down to the cistern; [7] before the dust also return to the earth as it was, and the spirit return to God who gave it. [8] Vanity of vanities, said the Preacher; all is vanity. [9] And because the Preacher was wise above others, so it was that he taught man excellent knowledge, and the ear will trace out the parables. [10] The Preacher sought diligently to find out acceptable words, and a correct writing, even words of truth. [11] The words of the wise are as goads, and as nails firmly fastened, which have been given from one shepherd by agreement. [12] And moreover, my son, guard thyself by means of them: of making many books there is no end; and much study is a weariness of the flesh.

[13] Hear the end of the matter, the sun: Fear God, and keep his commandments: for this is the whole man. [14] For God will bring every work into judgment, with everything that has been overlooked, whether it be good, or whether it be evil.

Song of Solomon

Chapter 1

[1] The Song of songs, which is Solomon's. [2] Let him kiss me with the kisses of his mouth: for thy breasts are better than wine. [3] And the smell of thine ointments is better than all spices: thy name is ointment poured forth; therefore do the young maidens love thee. [4] They have drawn thee: we will run after thee, for the smell of thine ointments: the king has brought me into closet: let us rejoice and be glad in thee; we will love thy breasts more than wine: righteousness loves thee.

[5] I am black, but beautiful, ye daughters of Jerusalem, as the tents of Kedar, as the curtains of Solomon. [6] Look not upon me, because I am dark, because the sun has looked unfavourably upon me: my mother's sons strove with me; they made me keeper in the vineyards; I have not kept my own vineyard.

[7] Tell me, thou whom my soul loves, where thou tendest thy flock, where thou causest them to rest at noon, lest I become as one that is veiled by the flocks of thy companions.

[8] If thou know not thyself, thou fair one among women, go thou forth by the footsteps of the flocks, and feed thy kids by the shepherd's tents. [9] I have likened thee, my companion, to my horses in the chariots of Pharaoh. [10] How are thy cheeks beautiful as those of a dove, thy neck as chains! [11] We will make thee figures of gold with studs of silver.

[12] So long as the king was at table, my spikenard gave forth its smell. [13] My kinsman is to me a bundle of myrrh; he shall lie between my breasts. [14] My kinsman is to me a cluster of camphor in the vineyards of Engaddi.

[15] Behold, thou art fair, my companion; behold, thou art fair; thine eyes are doves. [16] Behold, thou art fair, my kinsman, yea, beautiful, overshadowing our bed. [17] The beams of our house are cedars, our ceilings are of cypress.

Chapter 2

[1] I am a flower of the plain, a lily of the valleys.

[2] As a lily among thorns, so is my companion among the daughters.

[3] As the apple among the trees of the wood, so is my kinsman among the sons. I desired his shadow, and sat down, and his fruit was sweet in my throat.

[4] Bring me into the wine house; set love before me. [5] Strengthen me with perfumes, stay me with apples: for I am wounded with love. [6] His left hand shall be under my head, and his right hand shall embrace me.

[7] I have charged you, ye daughters of Jerusalem, by the powers and by the virtues of the field, that ye do not rouse or wake my love, until he please.

[8] The voice of my kinsman! behold, he comes leaping over the mountains, bounding over the hills.

[9] My kinsman is like a roe or a young hart on the mountains of Baethel: behold, he is behind our wall, looking through the windows, peeping through the lattices. [10] My kinsman answers, and says to me, Rise up, come, my companion, my fair one, my dove. [11] For, behold, the winter is past, the rain is gone, it has departed. [12] The flowers are seen in the land; the time of pruning has arrived; the voice of the turtle-dove has been heard in our land. [13] The fig-tree has put forth its young figs, the vines put forth the tender grape, they yield a smell: arise, come, my companion, my fair one, my dove; yea, come.

[14] Thou art my dove, in the shelter of the rock, near the wall: shew me thy face, and cause me to hear thy voice; for thy voice is sweet, and thy countenance is beautiful.

[15] Take us the little foxes that spoil the vines: for our vines put forth tender grapes.

[16] My kinsman is mine, and I am his: he feeds his flock among the lilies.

[17] Until the day dawn, and the shadows depart, turn, my kinsman, be thou like to a roe or young hart on the mountains of the ravines.

Chapter 3

[1] By night on my bed I sought him whom my soul loves: I sought him, but found him not; I called him, but he hearkened not to me. [2] I will rise now, and go about in the city, in the market-places, and in the streets, and I will seek him whom my soul loves: I sought him, but I found him not. [3] The watchmen who go their rounds in the city found me. I said, Have ye seen him whom my soul loves? [4] It was as a little while after I parted from them, that I found him whom my soul loves: I held him, and did not let him go, until I brought him into my mother's house, and into the chamber of her that conceived me.

[5] I have charged you, O daughters of Jerusalem, by the powers and by the virtues of the field, that ye rouse not nor awake my love, until he please.

[6] Who is this that comes up from the wilderness as pillars of smoke, perfumed with myrrh and frankincense, with all powders of the perfumer? [7] Behold Solomon's bed; sixty mighty men of the mighty ones of Israel are round about it. [8] They all hold a sword, being expert in war: every man has his sword upon his thigh because of fear by night.

[9] King Solomon made himself a litter of woods of Lebanon. [10] He made the pillars of it silver, the bottom of it gold, the covering of it scarlet, in the midst of it a pavement of love, for the daughters of Jerusalem. [11] Go forth, ye daughters of Sion, and behold king Solomon, with the crown wherewith his mother crowned him, in the day of his espousals, and in the day of the gladness of his heart.

[1] Behold, thou art fair, my companion; behold, thou art fair; thine eyes are doves, beside thy veil: thy hair is as flocks of goats, that have appeared from Galaad. [2] Thy teeth are as flocks of shorn sheep, that have gone up from the washing; all of them bearing twins, and there is not a barren one among them. [3] Thy lips are as a thread of scarlet, and thy speech is comely: like the rind of a pomegranate is thy cheek without thy veil. [4] Thy neck is as the tower of David, that was built for an armoury: a thousand shields hang upon it, and all darts of mighty men. [5] Thy two breasts are as two twin fawns, that feed among the lilies. [6] Until the day dawn, and the shadows depart, I will betake me to the mountain of myrrh, and to the hill of frankincense. [7] Thou art all fair, my companion, and there is no spot in thee.

[8] Come from Libanus, my bride, come from Libanus: thou shalt come and pass from the top of Faith, from the top of Sanir and Hermon, from the lions' dens, from the mountains of the leopards. [9] My sister, my spouse, thou hast ravished my heart; thou hast ravished my heart with one of thine eyes, with one chain of thy neck. [10] How beautiful are thy breasts, my sister, my spouse! how much more beautiful are thy breasts than wine, and the smell of thy garments than all spices! [11] Thy lips drop honeycomb, my spouse: honey and milk are under thy tongue; and the smell of thy garments is as the smell of Libanus. [12] My sister, my spouse is a garden enclosed; a garden enclosed, a fountain sealed. [13] Thy shoots are a garden of pomegranates, with the fruit of choice berries; camphor, with spikenard: [14] spikenard and saffron, calamus and cinnamon; with all woods of Libanus, myrrh, aloes, with all chief spices: [15] a fountain of a garden, and a well of water springing and gurgling from Libanus.

[16] Awake, O north wind; and come, O south; and blow through my garden, and let my spices flow out.

Chapter 5

[1] Let my kinsman come down into his garden, and eat the fruit of his choice berries. I am come into my garden, my sister, my spouse: I have gathered my myrrh with my spices; I have eaten my bread with my honey; I have drunk my wine with my milk. Eat, O friends, and drink; yea, brethren, drink abundantly.

[2] I sleep, but my heart is awake: the voice of my kinsman knocks at the door, saying, Open, open to me, my companion, my sister, my dove, my perfect one: for my head is filled with dew, and my locks with the drops of the night. [3] I have put off my coat; how shall I put it on? I have washed my feet, how shall I defile them? [4] My kinsman put forth his hand by the hole of the door, and my belly moved for him. [5] I rose up to open to my kinsman; my hands dropped myrrh, my fingers choice myrrh, on the handles of the lock. [6] I opened to my kinsman; my kinsman was gone: my soul failed at his speech: I sought him, but found him not; I called him, but he answered me not. [7] The watchman that go their rounds in the city found me, they smote me, they wounded me; the keepers of the walls took away my veil from me. [8] I have charged you, O daughters of Jerusalem, by the powers and the virtues of the field: if ye should find my kinsman, what are ye to say to him? That I am wounded with love.

[9] What is thy kinsman more than another kinsman, O thou beautiful among women? what is thy kinsman more than another kinsman, that thou hast so charged us? [10] My kinsman is white and ruddy, chosen out from myriads. [11] His head is as very fine gold, his locks are flowing, black as a raven. [12] His eyes are as doves, by the pools of waters, washed with milk, sitting by the pools. [13] His cheeks are as bowls of spices pouring forth perfumes: his lips are lilies, dropping choice myrrh. [14] His hands are as turned gold set with beryl: his belly is an ivory tablet on a sapphire stone. [15] His legs are marble pillars set on golden sockets: his form is as Libanus, choice as the cedars. [16] His throat is most sweet, and altogether desirable. This is my kinsman, and this is my companion, O daughters of Jerusalem.

[17] Whither is thy kinsman gone, thou beautiful among women? whither has thy kinsman turned aside? tell us, and we will seek him with thee.

Chapter 6

[1] My kinsman is gone down to his garden, to the beds of spice, to feed his flock in the gardens, and to gather lilies. [2] I am my kinsman's, and my kinsman is mine, who feeds among the lilies.

[3] Thou art fair, my companion, as Pleasure, beautiful as Jerusalem, terrible as armies set in array. [4] Turn away thine eyes from before me, for they have ravished me: thy hair is as flocks of goats which have appeared from Galaad. [5] Thy teeth are as flocks of shorn sheep, that have gone up from the washing, all of them bearing twins, and there is none barren among them: thy lips are as a thread of scarlet, and thy speech is comely. [6] Thy cheek is like the rind of a pomegranate, being seen without thy veil. [7] There are sixty queens, and eighty concubines, and maidens without number. [8] My dove, my perfect one is one; she is the only one of her mother; she is the choice of her that bore her. The daughters saw her, and the queens will pronounce her blessed, yea, and the concubines, and they will praise her. [9] Who is this that looks forth as the morning, fair as the moon, choice as the sun, terrible as armies set in array?

[10] I went down to the garden of nuts, to look at the fruits of the valley, to see if the vine flowered, if the pomegranates blossomed. [11] There I will give thee my breasts: my soul knew it not: it made me as the chariots of Aminadab.

[12] Return, return, O Sunamite; return, return, and we will look at thee. What will ye see in the Sunamite? She comes as bands of armies.

[1] Thy steps are beautiful in shoes, O daughter of the prince: the joints of thy thighs are like chains, the work of the craftsman. [2] Thy navel is as a turned bowl, not wanting liquor; thy belly is as a heap of wheat set about with lilies. [3] Thy two breasts are as two twin fawns. [4] Thy neck is as an ivory tower; thine eyes are as pools in Esebon, by the gates of the daughter of many: thy nose is as the tower of Libanus, looking toward Damascus. [5] Thy head upon thee is as Carmel, and the curls of thy hair like scarlet; the king is bound in the galleries. [6] How beautiful art thou, and how sweet art thou, my love! [7] This is thy greatness in thy delights: thou wast made like a palm tree, and thy breasts to cluster. [8] I said, I will go up to the palm tree, I will take hold of its high boughs: and now shall thy breasts be as clusters of the vine, and the smell of thy nose of apples; [9] and thy throat as good wine, going well with my kinsman, suiting my lips and teeth.

[10] I am my kinsman's, and his desire is toward me. [11] Come, my kinsman, let us go forth into the field; let us lodge in the villages. [12] Let us go early into the vineyards; let us see if the vine has flowered, if the blossoms have appeared, if the pomegranates have blossomed; there will I give thee my breasts. [13] The mandrakes have given a smell, and at our doors are all kinds of choice fruits, new and old. O my kinsman, I have kept them for thee.

Chapter 8

[1] I would that thou, O my kinsman, wert he that sucked the breasts of my mother; when I found thee without, I would kiss thee; yea, they should not despise me. [2] I would take thee, I would bring thee into my mother's house, and into the chamber of her that conceived me; I would make thee to drink of spiced wine, of the juice of my pomegranates.

[3] His left hand should be under my head, and his right hand should embrace me.

[4] I have charged you, ye daughters of Jerusalem, by the virtues of the field, that ye stir not up, nor awake my love, until he please.

[5] Who is this that comes up all white, leaning on her kinsman? I raised thee up under an apple-tree; there thy mother brought thee forth; there she that bore thee brought thee forth.

[6] Set me as a seal upon thy heart, as a seal upon thine arm; for love is strong as death; jealousy is cruel as the grave, her shafts are shafts of fire, even the flames thereof.

[7] Much water will not be able to quench love, and rivers shall not drown it; if a man would give all his substance for love, men would utterly despise it.

[8] Our sister is little, and has no breasts; what shall we do for our sister, in the day wherein she shall be spoken for? [9] If she is a wall, let us build upon her silver bulwarks; and if she is a door, let us carve for her cedar panels. [10] I am a wall, and my breasts are as towers; I was in their eyes as one that found peace. [11] Solomon had a vineyard in Beelamon; he let his vineyard to keepers; every one was to bring for its fruit a thousand pieces of silver. [12] My vineyard, even mine, is before me; Solomon shall have a thousand, and they that keep its fruit two hundred.

[13] Thou that dwellest in the gardens, the companions hearken to thy voice: make me hear it.

[14] Away, my kinsman, and be like a doe or a fawn on the mountains of spices.

Wisdom of Solomon

Chapter 1

[1] Love righteousness, ye that be judges of the earth: think of the Lord with a good (heart,) and in simplicity of heart seek him. [2] For he will be found of them that tempt him not; and sheweth himself unto such as do not distrust him. [3] For froward thoughts separate from God: and his power, when it is tried, reproveth the unwise.

[4] For into a malicious soul wisdom shall not enter; nor dwell in the body that is subject unto sin. [5] For the holy spirit of discipline will flee deceit, and remove from thoughts that are without understanding, and will not abide when unrighteousness cometh in.

[6] For wisdom is a loving spirit; and will not acquit a blasphemer of his words: for God is witness of his reins, and a true beholder of his heart, and a hearer of his tongue. [7] For the Spirit of the Lord filleth the world: and that which containeth all things hath knowledge of the voice.

[8] Therefore he that speaketh unrighteous things cannot be hid: neither shall vengeance, when it punisheth, pass by him. [9] For inquisition shall be made into the counsels of the ungodly: and the sound of his words shall come unto the Lord for the manifestation of his wicked deeds. [10] For the ear of jealousy heareth all things: and the noise of murmurings is not hid.

[11] Therefore beware of murmuring, which is unprofitable; and refrain your tongue from backbiting: for there is no word so secret, that shall go for nought: and the mouth that beliieth slayeth the soul.

[12] Seek not death in the error of your life: and pull not upon yourselves destruction with the works of your hands. [13] For God made not death: neither hath he pleasure in the destruction of the living. [14] For he created all things, that they might have their being: and the generations of the world were healthful; and there is no poison of destruction in them, nor the kingdom of death upon the earth: [15] (For righteousness is immortal:) [16] But ungodly men with their works and words called it to them: for when they thought to have it their friend, they consumed to nought, and made a covenant with it, because they are worthy to take part with it.

Chapter 2

[1] For the ungodly said, reasoning with themselves, but not aright, Our life is short and tedious, and in the death of a man there is no remedy: neither was there any man known to have returned from the grave. [2] For we are born at all adventure: and we shall be hereafter as though we had never been: for the breath in our nostrils is as smoke, and a little spark in the moving of our heart: [3] Which being extinguished, our body shall be turned into ashes, and our spirit shall vanish as the soft air, [4] And our name shall be forgotten in time, and no man shall have our works in remembrance, and our life shall pass away as the trace of a cloud, and shall be dispersed as a mist, that is driven away with the beams of the sun, and overcome with the heat thereof.

[5] For our time is a very shadow that passeth away; and after our end there is no returning: for it is fast sealed, so that no man cometh again.

[6] Come on therefore, let us enjoy the good things that are present: and let us speedily use the creatures like as in youth. [7] Let us fill ourselves with costly wine and ointments: and let no flower of the spring pass by us: [8] Let us crown ourselves with rosebuds, before they be withered: [9] Let none of us go without his part of our voluptuousness: let us leave tokens of our joyfulness in every place: for this is our portion, and our lot is this.

[10] Let us oppress the poor righteous man, let us not spare the widow, nor reverence the ancient gray hairs of the aged. [11] Let our strength be the law of justice: for that which is feeble is found to be nothing worth.

[12] Therefore let us lie in wait for the righteous; because he is not for our turn, and he is clean contrary to our doings: he upbraideth us with our offending the law, and objecteth to our infamy the transgressings of our education. [13] He professeth to have the knowledge of God: and he calleth himself the child of the Lord. [14] He was made to reprove our thoughts. [15] He is grievous unto us even to behold: for his life is not like other men's, his ways are of another fashion. [16] We are esteemed of him as counterfeits: he abstaineth from our ways as from filthiness: he pronounceth the end of the just to be blessed, and maketh his boast that God is his father.

[17] Let us see if his words be true: and let us prove what shall happen in the end of him. [18] For if the just man be the son of God, he will help him, and deliver him from the hand of his enemies. [19] Let us examine him with despitefulness and torture, that we may know his meekness, and prove his patience. [20] Let us condemn him with a shameful death: for by his own saying he shall be respected.

[21] Such things they did imagine, and were deceived: for their own wickedness hath blinded them. [22] As for the mysteries of God, they knew them not: neither hoped they for the wages of righteousness, nor discerned a reward for blameless souls.

[23] For God created man to be immortal, and made him to be an image of his own eternity. [24] Nevertheless through envy of the devil came death into the world: and they that do hold of his side do find it.

Chapter 3

[1] But the souls of the righteous are in the hand of God, and there shall no torment touch them. [2] In the sight of the unwise they seemed to die: and their departure is taken for misery, [3] And their going from us to be utter destruction: but they are in peace. [4] For though they be punished in the sight of men, yet is their hope full of immortality.

[5] And having been a little chastised, they shall be greatly rewarded: for God proved them, and found them worthy for himself. [6] As gold in the furnace hath he tried them, and received them as a burnt offering.

[7] And in the time of their visitation they shall shine, and run to and fro like sparks among the stubble. [8] They shall judge the nations, and have dominion over the people, and their Lord shall reign for ever. [9] They that put their trust in him shall understand the truth: and such as be faithful in love shall abide with him: for grace and mercy is to his saints, and he hath care for his elect.

[10] But the ungodly shall be punished according to their own imaginations, which have neglected the righteous, and forsaken the Lord.

[11] For whoso despiseth wisdom and nurture, he is miserable, and their hope is vain, their labours unfruitful, and their works unprofitable: [12] Their wives are foolish, and their children wicked:

[13] Their offspring is cursed. Wherefore blessed is the barren that is undefiled, which hath not known the sinful bed: she shall have fruit in the visitation of souls.

[14] And blessed is the eunuch, which with his hands hath wrought no iniquity, nor imagined wicked things against God: for unto him shall be given the special gift of faith, and an inheritance in the temple of the Lord more acceptable to his mind. [15] For glorious is the fruit of good labours: and the root of wisdom shall never fall away.

[16] As for the children of adulterers, they shall not come to their perfection, and the seed of an unrighteous bed shall be rooted out. [17] For though they live long, yet shall they be nothing regarded: and their last age shall be without honour. [18] Or, if they die quickly, they have no hope, neither comfort in the day of trial. [19] For horrible is the end of the unrighteous generation.

[1] Better it is to have no children, and to have virtue: for the memorial thereof is immortal: because it is known with God, and with men. [2] When it is present, men take example at it; and when it is gone, they desire it: it weareth a crown, and triumpheth for ever, having gotten the victory, striving for undefiled rewards.

[3] But the multiplying brood of the ungodly shall not thrive, nor take deep rooting from bastard slips, nor lay any fast foundation. [4] For though they flourish in branches for a time; yet standing not last, they shall be shaken with the wind, and through the force of winds they shall be rooted out. [5] The imperfect branches shall be broken off, their fruit unprofitable, not ripe to eat, yea, meet for nothing. [6] For children begotten of unlawful beds are witnesses of wickedness against their parents in their trial. [7] But though the righteous be prevented with death, yet shall he be in rest.

[8] For honourable age is not that which standeth in length of time, nor that is measured by number of years. [9] But wisdom is the gray hair unto men, and an unspotted life is old age. [10] He pleased God, and was beloved of him: so that living among sinners he was translated. [11] Yea speedily was he taken away, lest that wickedness should alter his understanding, or deceit beguile his soul. [12] For the bewitching of naughtiness doth obscure things that are honest; and the wandering of concupiscence doth undermine the simple mind. [13] He, being made perfect in a short time, fulfilled a long time: [14] For his soul pleased the Lord: therefore hasted he to take him away from among the wicked. [15] This the people saw, and understood it not, neither laid they up this in their minds, That his grace and mercy is with his saints, and that he hath respect unto his chosen.

[16] Thus the righteous that is dead shall condemn the ungodly which are living; and youth that is soon perfected the many years and old age of the unrighteous. [17] For they shall see the end of the wise, and shall not understand what God in his counsel hath decreed of him, and to what end the Lord hath set him in safety. [18] They shall see him, and despise him; but God shall laugh them to scorn: and they shall hereafter be a vile carcase, and a reproach among the dead for evermore. [19] For he shall rend them, and cast them down headlong, that they shall be speechless; and he shall shake them from the foundation; and they shall be utterly laid waste, and be in sorrow; and their memorial shall perish. [20] And when they cast up the accounts of their sins, they shall come with fear: and their own iniquities shall convince them to their face.

[1] Then shall the righteous man stand in great boldness before the face of such as have afflicted him, and made no account of his labours. [2] When they see it, they shall be troubled with terrible fear, and shall be amazed at the strangeness of his salvation, so far beyond all that they looked for. [3] And they repenting and groaning for anguish of spirit shall say within themselves,

This was he, whom we had sometimes in derision, and a proverb of reproach: [4] We fools accounted his life madness, and his end to be without honour: [5] How is he numbered among the children of God, and his lot is among the saints! [6] Therefore have we erred from the way of truth, and the light of righteousness hath not shined unto us, and the sun of righteousness rose not upon us. [7] We wearied ourselves in the way of wickedness and destruction: yea, we have gone through deserts, where there lay no way: but as for the way of the Lord, we have not known it.

[8] What hath pride profited us? or what good hath riches with our vaunting brought us? [9] All those things are passed away like a shadow, and as a post that hasted by; [10] And as a ship that passeth over the waves of the water, which when it is gone by, the trace thereof cannot be found, neither the pathway of the keel in the waves; [11] Or as when a bird hath flown through the air, there is no token of her way to be found, but the light air being beaten with the stroke of her wings and parted with the violent noise and motion of them, is passed through, and therein afterwards no sign where she went is to be found; [12] Or like as when an arrow is shot at a mark, it parteth the air, which immediately cometh together again, so that a man cannot know where it went through: [13] Even so we in like manner, as soon as we were born, began to draw to our end, and had no sign of virtue to shew; but were consumed in our own wickedness.

[14] For the hope of the ungodly is like dust that is blown away with the wind; like a thin froth that is driven away with the storm; like as the smoke which is dispersed here and there with a tempest, and passeth away as the remembrance of a guest that tarrieth but a day.

[15] But the righteous live for evermore; their reward also is with the Lord, and the care of them is with the most High. [16] Therefore shall they receive a glorious kingdom, and a beautiful crown from the Lord's hand: for with his right hand shall he cover them, and with his arm shall he protect them.

[17] He shall take to him his jealousy for complete armour, and make the creature his weapon for the revenge of his enemies. [18] He shall put on righteousness as a breastplate, and true judgment instead of an helmet. [19] He shall take holiness for an invincible shield. [20] His severe wrath shall he sharpen for a sword, and the world shall fight with him against the unwise.

[21] Then shall the right aiming thunderbolts go abroad; and from the clouds, as from a well drawn bow, shall they fly to the mark. [22] And hailstones full of wrath shall be cast as out of a stone bow, and the water of the sea shall rage against them, and the floods shall cruelly drown them.

[23] Yea, a mighty wind shall stand up against them, and like a storm shall blow them away: thus iniquity shall lay waste the whole earth, and ill dealing shall overthrow the thrones of the mighty.

Chapter 6

[1] Hear therefore, O ye kings, and understand; learn, ye that be judges of the ends of the earth. [2] Give ear, ye that rule the people, and glory in the multitude of nations. [3] For power is given you of the Lord, and sovereignty from the Highest, who shall try your works, and search out your counsels. [4] Because, being ministers of his kingdom, ye have not judged aright, nor kept the law, nor walked after the counsel of God; [5] Horribly and speedily shall he come upon you: for a sharp judgment shall be to them that be in high places. [6] For mercy will soon pardon the meanest: but mighty men shall be mightily tormented. [7] For he which is Lord over all shall fear no man's person, neither shall he stand in awe of any man's greatness: for he hath made the small and great, and careth for all alike. [8] But a sore trial shall come upon the mighty.

[9] Unto you therefore, O kings, do I speak, that ye may learn wisdom, and not fall away. [10] For they that keep holiness holily shall be judged holy: and they that have learned such things shall find what to answer. [11] Wherefore set your affection upon my words; desire them, and ye shall be instructed.

[12] Wisdom is glorious, and never fadeth away: yea, she is easily seen of them that love her, and found of such as seek her.

[13] She preventeth them that desire her, in making herself first known unto them. [14] Whoso seeketh her early shall have no great travail: for he shall find her sitting at his doors. [15] To think therefore upon her is perfection of wisdom: and whoso watcheth for her shall quickly be without care. [16] For she goeth about seeking such as are worthy of her, sheweth herself favourably unto them in the ways, and meeteth them in every thought. [17] For the very true beginning of her is the desire of discipline; and the care of discipline is love; [18] And love is the keeping of her laws; and the giving heed unto her laws is the assurance of incorruption; [19] And incorruption maketh us near unto God: [20] Therefore the desire of wisdom bringeth to a kingdom.

[21] If your delight be then in thrones and sceptres, O ye kings of the people, honour wisdom, that ye may reign for evermore. [22] As for wisdom, what she is, and how she came up, I will tell you, and will not hide mysteries from you: but will seek her out from the beginning of her nativity, and bring the knowledge of her into light, and will not pass over the truth. [23] Neither will I go with consuming envy; for such a man shall have no fellowship with wisdom. [24] But the multitude of the wise is the welfare of the world: and a wise king is the upholding of the people. [25] Receive therefore instruction through my words, and it shall do you good.

[1] I myself also am a mortal man, like to all, and the offspring of him that was first made of the earth, [2] And in my mother's womb was fashioned to be flesh in the time of ten months, being compacted in blood, of the seed of man, and the pleasure that came with sleep. [3] And when I was born, I drew in the common air, and fell upon the earth, which is of like nature, and the first voice which I uttered was crying, as all others do. [4] I was nursed in swaddling clothes, and that with cares. [5] For there is no king that had any other beginning of birth. [6] For all men have one entrance into life, and the like going out.

[7] Wherefore I prayed, and understanding was given me: I called upon God, and the spirit of wisdom came to me. [8] I preferred her before sceptres and thrones, and esteemed riches nothing in comparison of her. [9] Neither compared I unto her any precious stone, because all gold in respect of her is as a little sand, and silver shall be counted as clay before her. [10] I loved her above health and beauty, and chose to have her instead of light: for the light that cometh from her never goeth out.

[11] All good things together came to me with her, and innumerable riches in her hands. [12] And I rejoiced in them all, because wisdom goeth before them: and I knew not that she was the mother of them.

[13] I learned diligently, and do communicate her liberally: I do not hide her riches. [14] For she is a treasure unto men that never faileth: which they that use become the friends of God, being commended for the gifts that come from learning.

[15] God hath granted me to speak as I would, and to conceive as is meet for the things that are given me: because it is he that leadeth unto wisdom, and directeth the wise. [16] For in his hand are both we and our words; all wisdom also, and knowledge of workmanship. [17] For he hath given me certain knowledge of the things that are, namely, to know how the world was made, and the operation of the elements: [18] The beginning, ending, and midst of the times: the alterations of the turning of the sun, and the change of seasons: [19] The circuits of years, and the positions of stars: [20] The natures of living creatures, and the furies of wild beasts: the violence of winds, and the reasonings of men: the diversities of plants and the virtues of roots: [21] And all such things as are either secret or manifest, them I know.

[22] For wisdom, which is the worker of all things, taught me: for in her is an understanding spirit holy, one only, manifold, subtil, lively, clear, undefiled, plain, not subject to hurt, loving the thing that is good quick, which cannot be letted, ready to do good, [23] Kind to man, steadfast, sure, free from care, having all power, overseeing all things, and going through all understanding, pure, and most subtil, spirits.

[24] For wisdom is more moving than any motion: she passeth and goeth through all things by reason of her pureness. [25] For she is the breath of the power of God, and a pure influence flowing from the glory of the Almighty: therefore can no defiled thing fall into her. [26] For she is the brightness of the everlasting light, the unspotted mirror of the power of God, and the image of his goodness. [27] And being but one, she can do all things: and remaining in herself, she maketh all things new: and in all ages entering into holy souls, she maketh them friends of God, and prophets.

[28] For God loveth none but him that dwelleth with wisdom. [29] For she is more beautiful than the sun, and above all the order of stars: being compared with the light, she is found before it. [30] For after this cometh night: but vice shall not prevail against wisdom.

Chapter 8

[1] Wisdom reacheth from one end to another mightily: and sweetly doth she order all things.

[2] I loved her, and sought her out from my youth, I desired to make her my spouse, and I was a lover of her beauty. [3] In that she is conversant with God, she magnifieth her nobility: yea, the Lord of all things himself loved her. [4] For she is privy to the mysteries of the knowledge of God, and a lover of his works.

[5] If riches be a possession to be desired in this life; what is richer than wisdom, that worketh all things? [6] And if prudence work; who of all that are is a more cunning workman than she? [7] And if a man love righteousness her labours are virtues: for she teacheth temperance and prudence, justice and fortitude: which are such things, as men can have nothing more profitable in their life. [8] If a man desire much experience, she knoweth things of old, and conjectureth aright what is to come: she knoweth the subtilties of speeches, and can expound dark sentences: she foreseeeth signs and wonders, and the events of seasons and times.

[9] Therefore I purposed to take her to me to live with me, knowing that she would be a counsellor of good things, and a comfort in cares and grief. [10] For her sake I shall have estimation among the multitude, and honour with the elders, though I be young. [11] I shall be found of a quick conceit in judgment, and shall be admired in the sight of great men. [12] When I hold my tongue, they shall bide my leisure, and when I speak, they shall give good ear unto me: if I talk much, they shall lay their hands upon their mouth.

[13] Moreover by the means of her I shall obtain immortality, and leave behind me an everlasting memorial to them that come after me. [14] I shall set the people in order, and the nations shall be subject unto me. [15] Horrible tyrants shall be afraid, when they do but hear of me; I shall be found good among the multitude, and valiant in war. [16] After I am come into mine house, I will repose myself with her: for her conversation hath no bitterness; and to live with her hath no sorrow, but mirth and joy.

[17] Now when I considered these things in myself, and pondered them in my heart, how that to be allied unto wisdom is immortality; [18] And great pleasure it is to have her friendship; and in the works of her hands are infinite riches; and in the exercise of conference with her, prudence; and in talking with her, a good report; I went about seeking how to take her to me.

[19] For I was a witty child, and had a good spirit. [20] Yea rather, being good, I came into a body undefiled. [21] Nevertheless, when I perceived that I could not otherwise obtain her, except God gave her me; and that was a point of wisdom also to know whose gift she was; I prayed unto the Lord, and besought him, and with my whole heart I said,

Chapter 9

[1] O God of my fathers, and Lord of mercy, who hast made all things with thy word, [2] And ordained man through thy wisdom, that he should have dominion over the creatures which thou hast made, [3] And order the world according to equity and righteousness, and execute judgment with an upright heart: [4] Give me wisdom, that sitteth by thy throne; and reject me not from among thy children: [5] For I thy servant and son of thine handmaid am a feeble person, and of a short time, and too young for the understanding of judgment and laws.

[6] For though a man be never so perfect among the children of men, yet if thy wisdom be not with him, he shall be nothing regarded.

[7] Thou hast chosen me to be a king of thy people, and a judge of thy sons and daughters: [8] Thou hast commanded me to build a temple upon thy holy mount, and an altar in the city wherein thou dwellest, a resemblance of the holy tabernacle, which thou hast prepared from the beginning. [9] And wisdom was with thee: which knoweth thy works, and was present when thou madest the world, and knew what was acceptable in thy sight, and right in thy commandments. [10] O send her out of thy holy heavens, and from the throne of thy glory, that being present she may labour with me, that I may know what is pleasing unto thee. [11] For she knoweth and understandeth all things, and she shall lead me soberly in my doings, and preserve me in her power. [12] So shall my works be acceptable, and then shall I judge thy people righteously, and be worthy to sit in my father's seat.

[13] For what man is he that can know the counsel of God? or who can think what the will of the Lord is? [14] For the thoughts of mortal men are miserable, and our devices are but uncertain. [15] For the corruptible body presseth down the soul, and the earthy tabernacle weigheth down the mind that museth upon many things. [16] And hardly do we guess aright at things that are upon earth, and with labour do we find the things that are before us: but the things that are in heaven who hath searched out? [17] And thy counsel who hath known, except thou give wisdom, and send thy Holy Spirit from above? [18] For so the ways of them which lived on the earth were reformed, and men were taught the things that are pleasing unto thee, and were saved through wisdom.

[1] She preserved the first formed father of the world, that was created alone, and brought him out of his fall, [2] And gave him power to rule all things.

[3] But when the unrighteous went away from her in his anger, he perished also in the fury wherewith he murdered his brother. [4] For whose cause the earth being drowned with the flood, wisdom again preserved it, and directed the course of the righteous in a piece of wood of small value. [5] Moreover, the nations in their wicked conspiracy being confounded, she found out the righteous, and preserved him blameless unto God, and kept him strong against his tender compassion toward his son.

[6] When the ungodly perished, she delivered the righteous man, who fled from the fire which fell down upon the five cities. [7] Of whose wickedness even to this day the waste land that smoketh is a testimony, and plants bearing fruit that never come to ripeness: and a standing pillar of salt is a monument of an unbelieving soul. [8] For regarding not wisdom, they gat not only this hurt, that they knew not the things which were good; but also left behind them to the world a memorial of their foolishness: so that in the things wherein they offended they could not so much as be hid. [9] Rut wisdom delivered from pain those that attended upon her.

[10] When the righteous fled from his brother's wrath she guided him in right paths, shewed him the kingdom of God, and gave him knowledge of holy things, made him rich in his travels, and multiplied the fruit of his labours. [11] In the covetousness of such as oppressed him she stood by him, and made him rich. [12] She defended him from his enemies, and kept him safe from those that lay in wait, and in a sore conflict she gave him the victory; that he might know that goodness is stronger than all.

[13] When the righteous was sold, she forsook him not, but delivered him from sin: she went down with him into the pit, [14] And left him not in bonds, till she brought him the sceptre of the kingdom, and power against those that oppressed him: as for them that had accused him, she shewed them to be liars, and gave him perpetual glory.

[15] She delivered the righteous people and blameless seed from the nation that oppressed them.

[16] She entered into the soul of the servant of the Lord, and withstood dreadful kings in wonders and signs; [17] Rendered to the righteous a reward of their labours, guided them in a marvellous way, and was unto them for a cover by day, and a light of stars in the night season; [18] Brought them through the Red sea, and led them through much water: [19] But she drowned their enemies, and cast them up out of the bottom of the deep. [20] Therefore the righteous spoiled the ungodly, and praised thy holy name, O Lord, and magnified with one accord thine hand, that fought for them. [21] For wisdom opened the mouth of the dumb, and made the tongues of them that cannot Speak eloquent.

[1] She prospered their works in the hand of the holy prophet. [2] They went through the wilderness that was not inhabited, and pitched tents in places where there lay no way. [3] They stood against their enemies, and were avenged of their adversaries. [4] When they were thirsty, they called upon thee, and water was given them out of the flinty rock, and their thirst was quenched out of the hard stone. [5] For by what things their enemies were punished, by the same they in their need were benefited. [6] For instead of a fountain of a perpetual running river troubled with foul blood, [7] For a manifest reproof of that commandment, whereby the infants were slain, thou gavest unto them abundance of water by a means which they hoped not for: [8] Declaring by that thirst then how thou hadst punished their adversaries.

[9] For when they were tried albeit but in mercy chastised, they knew how the ungodly were judged in wrath and tormented, thirsting in another manner than the just. [10] For these thou didst admonish and try, as a father: but the other, as a severe king, thou didst condemn and punish. [11] Whether they were absent or present, they were vexed alike. [12] For a double grief came upon them, and a groaning for the remembrance of things past. [13] For when they heard by their own punishments the other to be benefited, they had some feeling of the Lord. [14] For whom they respected with scorn, when he was long before thrown out at the casting forth of the infants, him in the end, when they saw what came to pass, they admired.

[15] But for the foolish devices of their wickedness, wherewith being deceived they worshipped serpents void of reason, and vile beasts, thou didst send a multitude of unreasonable beasts upon them for vengeance; [16] That they might know, that wherewithal a man sinneth, by the same also shall he be punished.

[17] For thy Almighty hand, that made the world of matter without form, wanted not means to send among them a multitude of bears or fierce lions, [18] Or unknown wild beasts, full of rage, newly created, breathing out either a fiery vapour, or filthy scents of scattered smoke, or shooting horrible sparkles out of their eyes: [19] Whereof not only the harm might dispatch them at once, but also the terrible sight utterly destroy them. [20] Yea, and without these might they have fallen down with one blast, being persecuted of vengeance, and scattered abroad through the breath of thy power: but thou hast ordered all things in measure and number and weight. [21] For thou canst shew thy great strength at all times when thou wilt; and who may withstand the power of thine arm? [22] For the whole world before thee is as a little grain of the balance, yea, as a drop of the morning dew that falleth down upon the earth.

[23] But thou hast mercy upon all; for thou canst do all things, and winkest at the sins of men, because they should amend. [24] For thou lovest all the things that are, and abhorrest nothing which thou hast made: for never wouldest thou have made any thing, if thou hadst hated it. ^[25] And how could any thing have endured, if it had not been thy will? or been preserved, if not called by thee? ^[26] But thou sparest all: for they are thine, O Lord, thou lover of souls.

Chapter 12

[1] For thine incorruptible Spirit is in all things. [2] Therefore chastenest thou them by little and little that offend, and warnest them by putting them in remembrance wherein they have offended, that leaving their wickedness they may believe on thee, O Lord. [3] For it was thy will to destroy by the hands of our fathers both those old inhabitants of thy holy land, [4] Whom thou hatedst for doing most odious works of witchcrafts, and wicked sacrifices; [5] And also those merciless murderers of children, and devourers of man's flesh, and the feasts of blood, [6] With their priests out of the midst of their idolatrous crew, and the parents, that killed with their own hands souls destitute of help: [7] That the land, which thou esteemedst above all other, might receive a worthy colony of God's children.

[8] Nevertheless even those thou sparedst as men, and didst send wasps, forerunners of thine host, to destroy them by little and little. [9] Not that thou wast unable to bring the ungodly under the hand of the righteous in battle, or to destroy them at once with cruel beasts, or with one rough word: [10] But executing thy judgments upon them by little and little, thou gavest them place of repentance, not being ignorant that they were a naughty generation, and that their malice was bred in them, and that their cogitation would never be changed. [11] For it was a cursed seed from the beginning; neither didst thou for fear of any man give them pardon for those things wherein they sinned. [12] For who shall say, What hast thou done? or who shall withstand thy judgment? or who shall accuse thee for the nations that perish, whom thou made? or who shall come to stand against thee, to be revenged for the unrighteous men? [13] For neither is there any God but thou that careth for all, to whom thou mightest shew that thy judgment is not unright.

[14] Neither shall king or tyrant be able to set his face against thee for any whom thou hast punished. [15] Forsomuch then as thou art righteous thyself, thou orderest all things righteously: thinking it not agreeable with thy power to condemn him that hath not deserved to be punished. [16] For thy power is the beginning of righteousness, and because thou art the Lord of all, it maketh thee to be gracious unto all. [17] For when men will not believe that thou art of a full power, thou shewest thy strength, and among them that know it thou makest their boldness manifest. [18] But thou, mastering thy power, judgest with equity, and orderest us with great favour: for thou mayest use power when thou wilt.

[19] But by such works hast thou taught thy people that the just man should be merciful, and hast made thy children to be of a good hope that thou givest repentance for sins. [20] For if thou didst punish the enemies of thy children, and the condemned to death, with such deliberation, giving them time and place, whereby they might be delivered from their malice: [21] With how great circumspection didst thou judge thine own sons, unto whose fathers thou hast sworn, and made covenants of good promises? [22] Therefore, whereas thou dost chasten us, thou scourgest our enemies a thousand times more, to the intent that, when we judge, we should carefully think of thy goodness, and when we ourselves are judged, we should look for mercy.

[23] Wherefore, whereas men have lived dissolutely and unrighteously, thou hast tormented them with their own abominations. [24] For they went astray very far in the ways of error, and held them for gods, which even among the beasts of their enemies were despised, being deceived, as children of no understanding. [25] Therefore unto them, as to children without the use of reason, thou didst send a judgment to mock them. [26] But they that would not be reformed by that correction, wherein he dallied with them, shall feel a judgment worthy of God. [27] For, look, for what things they grudged, when they were punished, that is, for them whom they thought to be gods; now being punished in them, when they saw it, they acknowledged him to be the true God, whom before they denied to know: and therefore came extreme damnation upon them.

[1] Surely vain are all men by nature, who are ignorant of God, and could not out of the good things that are seen know him that is: neither by considering the works did they acknowledge the workmaster; [2] But deemed either fire, or wind, or the swift air, or the circle of the stars, or the violent water, or the lights of heaven, to be the gods which govern the world. [3] With whose beauty if they being delighted took them to be gods; let them know how much better the Lord of them is: for the first author of beauty hath created them. [4] But if they were astonished at their power and virtue, let them understand by them, how much mightier he is that made them.

[5] For by the greatness and beauty of the creatures proportionably the maker of them is seen. [6] But yet for this they are the less to be blamed: for they peradventure err, seeking God, and desirous to find him. [7] For being conversant in his works they search him diligently, and believe their sight: because the things are beautiful that are seen. [8] Howbeit neither are they to be pardoned. [9] For if they were able to know so much, that they could aim at the world; how did they not sooner find out the Lord thereof?

[10] But miserable are they, and in dead things is their hope, who call them gods, which are the works of men's hands, gold and silver, to shew art in, and resemblances of beasts, or a stone good for nothing, the work of an ancient hand. [11] Now a carpenter that felleth timber, after he hath sawn down a tree meet for the purpose, and taken off all the bark skilfully round about, and hath wrought it handsomely, and made a vessel thereof fit for the service of man's life; [12] And after spending the refuse of his work to dress his meat, hath filled himself; [13] And taking the very refuse among those which served to no use, being a crooked piece of wood, and full of knots, hath carved it diligently, when he had nothing else to do, and formed it by the skill of his understanding, and fashioned it to the image of a man; [14] Or made it like some vile beast, laying it over with vermilion, and with paint colouring it red, and covering every spot therein; [15] And when he had made a convenient room for it, set it in a wall, and made it fast with iron: [16] For he provided for it that it might not fall, knowing that it was unable to help itself; for it is an image, and hath need of help:

[17] Then maketh he prayer for his goods, for his wife and children, and is not ashamed to speak to that which hath no life. [18] For health he calleth upon that which is weak: for life prayeth to that which is dead; for aid humbly beseecheth that which hath least means to help: and for a good journey he asketh of that which cannot set a foot forward: [19] And for gaining and getting, and for good success of his hands, asketh ability to do of him, that is most unable to do any thing.

Chapter 14

[1] Again, one preparing himself to sail, and about to pass through the raging waves, calleth upon a piece of wood more rotten than the vessel that carrieth him. [2] For verily desire of gain devised that, and the workman built it by his skill. [3] But thy providence, O Father, governeth it: for thou hast made a way in the sea, and a safe path in the waves; [4] Shewing that thou canst save from all danger: yea, though a man went to sea without art. [5] Nevertheless thou wouldest not that the works of thy wisdom should be idle, and therefore do men commit their lives to a small piece of wood, and passing the rough sea in a weak vessel are saved.

[6] For in the old time also, when the proud giants perished, the hope of the world governed by thy hand escaped in a weak vessel, and left to all ages a seed of generation. [7] For blessed is the wood whereby righteousness cometh.

[8] But that which is made with hands is cursed, as well it, as he that made it: he, because he made it; and it, because, being corruptible, it was called god. [9] For the ungodly and his ungodliness are both alike hateful unto God. [10] For that which is made shall be punished together with him that made it. [11] Therefore even upon the idols of the Gentiles shall there be a visitation: because in the creature of God they are become an abomination, and stumblingblocks to the souls of men, and a snare to the feet of the unwise.

[12] For the devising of idols was the beginning of spiritual fornication, and the invention of them the corruption of life. [13] For neither were they from the beginning, neither shall they be for ever. [14] For by the vain glory of men they entered into the world, and therefore shall they come shortly to an end.

[15] For a father afflicted with untimely mourning, when he hath made an image of his child soon taken away, now honoured him as a god, which was then a dead man, and delivered to those that were under him ceremonies and sacrifices. [16] Thus in process of time an ungodly custom grown strong was kept as a law, and graven images were worshipped by the commandments of kings. [17] Whom men could not honour in presence, because they dwelt far off, they took the counterfeit of his visage from far, and made an express image of a king whom they honoured, to the end that by this their forwardness they might flatter him that was absent, as if he were present. [18] Also the singular diligence of the artificer did help to set forward the ignorant to more superstition. [19] For he, peradventure willing to please one in authority, forced all his skill to make the resemblance of the best fashion. [20] And so the multitude, allured by the grace of the work, took him now for a god, which a little before was but honoured. [21] And this was an occasion to deceive the world: for men, serving either calamity or tyranny, did ascribe unto stones and stocks the incommunicable name.

[22] Moreover this was not enough for them, that they erred in the knowledge of God; but whereas they lived in the great war of ignorance, those so great plagues called they peace. [23] For whilst they slew their children in sacrifices, or used secret ceremonies, or made revellings of strange rites; [24] They kept neither lives nor marriages any longer undefiled: but either one slew another traitorously, or grieved him by adultery. [25] So that there reigned in all men without exception blood, manslaughter, theft, and dissimulation, corruption, unfaithfulness, tumults, perjury, [26] Disquieting of good men, forgetfulness of good turns, defiling of souls, changing of kind, disorder in marriages, adultery, and shameless uncleanness. [27] For the worshipping of idols not to be named is the beginning, the cause, and the end, of all evil. [28] For either they are mad when they be merry, or prophesy lies, or live unjustly, or else lightly forswear themselves. [29] For insomuch as their trust is in idols, which have no life; though they swear falsely, yet they look not to be hurt.

[30] Howbeit for both causes shall they be justly punished: both because they thought not well of God, giving heed unto idols, and also unjustly swore in deceit, despising holiness. [31] For it is not the power of them by whom they swear: but it is the just vengeance of sinners, that punisheth always the offence of the ungodly.

[1] But thou, O God, art gracious and true, longsuffering, and in mercy ordering all things, [2] For if we sin, we are thine, knowing thy power: but we will not sin, knowing that we are counted thine. [3] For to know thee is perfect righteousness: yea, to know thy power is the root of immortality. [4] For neither did the mischievous invention of men deceive us, nor an image spotted with divers colours, the painter's fruitless labour; [5] The sight whereof enticeth fools to lust after it, and so they desire the form of a dead image, that hath no breath.

[6] Both they that make them, they that desire them, and they that worship them, are lovers of evil things, and are worthy to have such things to trust upon. [7] For the potter, tempering soft earth, fashioneth every vessel with much labour for our service: yea, of the same clay he maketh both the vessels that serve for clean uses, and likewise also all such as serve to the contrary: but what is the use of either sort, the potter himself is the judge. [8] And employing his labours lewdly, he maketh a vain god of the same clay, even he which a little before was made of earth himself, and within a little while after returneth to the same, out when his life which was lent him shall be demanded.

[9] Notwithstanding his care is, not that he shall have much labour, nor that his life is short: but striveth to excel goldsmiths and silversmiths, and endeavoureth to do like the workers in brass, and counteth it his glory to make counterfeit things. [10] His heart is ashes, his hope is more vile than earth, and his life of less value than clay: [11] Forasmuch as he knew not his Maker, and him that inspired into him an active soul, and breathed in a living spirit. [12] But they counted our life a pastime, and our time here a market for gain: for, say they, we must be getting every way, though it be by evil means. [13] For this man, that of earthly matter maketh brittle vessels and graven images, knoweth himself to offend above all others.

[14] And all the enemies of thy people, that hold them in subjection, are most foolish, and are more miserable than very babes. [15] For they counted all the idols of the heathen to be gods: which neither have the use of eyes to see, nor noses to draw breath, nor ears to hear, nor fingers of hands to handle; and as for their feet, they are slow to go. [16] For man made them, and he that borrowed his own spirit fashioned them: but no man can make a god like unto himself. [17] For being mortal, he worketh a dead thing with wicked hands: for he himself is better than the things which he worshippeth: whereas he lived once, but they never. [18] Yea, they worshipped those beasts also that are most hateful: for being compared together, some are worse than others. [19] Neither are they beautiful, so much as to be desired in respect of beasts: but they went without the praise of God and his blessing.

[1] Therefore by the like were they punished worthily, and by the multitude of beasts tormented. [2] Instead of which punishment, dealing graciously with thine own people, thou preparedst for them meat of a strange taste, even quails to stir up their appetite: [3] To the end that they, desiring food, might for the ugly sight of the beasts sent among them lothe even that, which they must needs desire; but these, suffering penury for a short space, might be made partakers of a strange taste. [4] For it was requisite, that upon them exercising tyranny should come penury, which they could not avoid: but to these it should only be shewed how their enemies were tormented. [5] For when the horrible fierceness of beasts came upon these, and they perished with the stings of crooked serpents, thy wrath endured not for ever:

[6] But they were troubled for a small season, that they might be admonished, having a sign of salvation, to put them in remembrance of the commandment of thy law. [7] For he that turned himself toward it was not saved by the thing that he saw, but by thee, that art the Saviour of all. [8] And in this thou madest thine enemies confess, that it is thou who deliverest from all evil: [9] For them the bitings of grasshoppers and flies killed, neither was there found any remedy for their life: for they were worthy to be punished by such. [10] But thy sons not the very teeth of venomous dragons overcame: for thy mercy was ever by them, and healed them. [11] For they were pricked, that they should remember thy words; and were quickly saved, that not falling into deep forgetfulness, they might be continually mindful of thy goodness.

[12] For it was neither herb, nor mollifying plaister, that restored them to health: but thy word, O Lord, which healeth all things. [13] For thou hast power of life and death: thou leadest to the gates of hell, and bringest up again. [14] A man indeed killeth through his malice: and the spirit, when it is gone forth, returneth not; neither the soul received up cometh again. [15] But it is not possible to escape thine hand.

[16] For the ungodly, that denied to know thee, were scourged by the strength of thine arm: with strange rains, hails, and showers, were they persecuted, that they could not avoid, and through fire were they consumed.

[17] For, which is most to be wondered at, the fire had more force in the water, that quencheth all things: for the world fighteth for the righteous. [18] For sometime the flame was mitigated, that it might not burn up the beasts that were sent against the ungodly; but themselves might see and perceive that they were persecuted with the judgment of God. [19] And at another time it burneth even in the midst of water above the power of fire, that it might destroy the fruits of an unjust land. [20] Instead whereof thou feddest thine own people with angels' food, and didst send them from heaven bread prepared without their labour, able to content every man's delight, and agreeing to every taste. [21] For thy sustenance declared thy sweetness unto thy children, and serving to the appetite of the eater, tempered itself to every man's liking. [22] But snow and ice endured the fire, and melted not, that they might know that fire burning in the hail, and sparkling in the rain, did destroy the fruits of the enemies.

[23] But this again did even forget his own strength, that the righteous might be nourished. [24] For the creature that serveth thee, who art the Maker increaseth his strength against the unrighteous for their punishment, and abateth his strength for the benefit of such as put their trust in thee.

[25] Therefore even then was it altered into all fashions, and was obedient to thy grace, that nourisheth all things, according to the desire of them that had need: [26] That thy children, O Lord, whom thou lovest, might know, that it is not the growing of fruits that nourisheth man: but that it is thy word, which preserveth them that put their trust in thee.

[27] For that which was not destroyed of the fire, being warmed with a little sunbeam, soon melted away: [28] That it might be known, that we must prevent the sun to give thee thanks, and at the dayspring pray unto thee. [29] For the hope of the unthankful shall melt away as the winter's hoar frost, and shall run away as unprofitable water.

[1] For great are thy judgments, and cannot be expressed: therefore unnurtured souls have erred. [2] For when unrighteous men thought to oppress the holy nation; they being shut up in their houses, the prisoners of darkness, and fettered with the bonds of a long night, lay there exiled from the eternal providence. [3] For while they supposed to lie hid in their secret sins, they were scattered under a dark veil of forgetfulness, being horribly astonished, and troubled with strange apparitions. [4] For neither might the corner that held them keep them from fear: but noises as of waters falling down sounded about them, and sad visions appeared unto them with heavy countenances.

[5] No power of the fire might give them light: neither could the bright flames of the stars endure to lighten that horrible night. [6] Only there appeared unto them a fire kindled of itself, very dreadful: for being much terrified, they thought the things which they saw to be worse than the sight they saw not. [7] As for the illusions of art magick, they were put down, and their vaunting in wisdom was reproved with disgrace. [8] For they, that promised to drive away terrors and troubles from a sick soul, were sick themselves of fear, worthy to be laughed at.

[9] For though no terrible thing did fear them; yet being scared with beasts that passed by, and hissing of serpents, [10] They died for fear, denying that they saw the air, which could of no side be avoided.

[11] For wickedness, condemned by her own witness, is very timorous, and being pressed with conscience, always forecasteth grievous things. [12] For fear is nothing else but a betraying of the succours which reason offereth. [13] And the expectation from within, being less, counteth the ignorance more than the cause which bringeth the torment. [14] But they sleeping the same sleep that night, which was indeed intolerable, and which came upon them out of the bottoms of inevitable hell, [15] Were partly vexed with monstrous apparitions, and partly fainted, their heart failing them: for a sudden fear, and not looked for, came upon them. [16] So then whosoever there fell down was straitly kept, shut up in a prison without iron bars, [17] For whether he were husbandman, or shepherd, or a labourer in the field, he was overtaken, and endured that necessity, which could not be avoided: for they were all bound with one chain of darkness.

[18] Whether it were a whistling wind, or a melodious noise of birds among the spreading branches, or a pleasing fall of water running violently, [19] Or a terrible sound of stones cast down, or a running that could not be seen of skipping beasts, or a roaring voice of most savage wild beasts, or a rebounding echo from the hollow mountains; these things made them to swoon for fear. [20] For the whole world shined with clear light, and none were hindered in their labour: [21] Over them only was spread an heavy night, an image of that darkness which should afterward receive them: but yet were they unto themselves more grievous than the darkness.

[1] Nevertheless thy saints had a very great light, whose voice they hearing, and not seeing their shape, because they also had not suffered the same things, they counted them happy. [2] But for that they did not hurt them now, of whom they had been wronged before, they thanked them, and besought them pardon for that they had been enemies. [3] Instead whereof thou gavest them a burning pillar of fire, both to be a guide of the unknown journey, and an harmless sun to entertain them honourably. [4] For they were worthy to be deprived of light and imprisoned in darkness, who had kept thy sons shut up, by whom the uncorrupt light of the law was to be given unto the world.

[5] And when they had determined to slay the babes of the saints, one child being cast forth, and saved, to reprove them, thou tookest away the multitude of their children, and destroyedst them altogether in a mighty water. [6] Of that night were our fathers certified afore, that assuredly knowing unto what oaths they had given credence, they might afterwards be of good cheer.

[7] So of thy people was accepted both the salvation of the righteous, and destruction of the enemies. [8] For wherewith thou didst punish our adversaries, by the same thou didst glorify us, whom thou hadst called. [9] For the righteous children of good men did sacrifice secretly, and with one consent made a holy law, that the saints should be like partakers of the same good and evil, the fathers now singing out the songs of praise.

[10] But on the other side there sounded an ill according cry of the enemies, and a lamentable noise was carried abroad for children that were bewailed. [11] The master and the servant were punished after one manner; and like as the king, so suffered the common person.

[12] So they all together had innumerable dead with one kind of death; neither were the living sufficient to bury them: for in one moment the noblest offspring of them was destroyed. [13] For whereas they would not believe any thing by reason of the enchantments; upon the destruction of the firstborn, they acknowledged this people to be the sons of God. [14] For while all things were in quiet silence, and that night was in the midst of her swift course, [15] Thine Almighty word leaped down from heaven out of thy royal throne, as a fierce man of war into the midst of a land of destruction, [16] And brought thine unfeigned commandment as a sharp sword, and standing up filled all things with death; and it touched the heaven, but it stood upon the earth. [17] Then suddenly visions of horrible dreams troubled them sore, and terrors came upon them unlooked for. [18] And one thrown here, and another there, half dead, shewed the cause of his death. [19] For the dreams that troubled them did foreshew this, lest they should perish, and not know why they were afflicted.

[20] Yea, the tasting of death touched the righteous also, and there was a destruction of the multitude in the wilderness: but the wrath endured not long.

[21] For then the blameless man made haste, and stood forth to defend them; and bringing the shield of his proper ministry, even prayer, and the propitiation of incense, set himself against the wrath, and so brought the calamity to an end, declaring that he was thy servant.

[22] So he overcame the destroyer, not with strength of body, nor force of arms, but with a word subdued him that punished, alleging the oaths and covenants made with the fathers. [23] For when the dead were now fallen down by heaps one upon another, standing between, he stayed the wrath, and parted the way to the living. [24] For in the long garment was the whole world, and in the four rows of the stones was the glory of the fathers graven, and thy Majesty upon the diadem of his head. [25] Unto these the destroyer gave place, and was afraid of them: for it was enough that they only tasted of the wrath.

Chapter 19

[1] As for the ungodly, wrath came upon them without mercy unto the end: for he knew before what they would do; [2] How that having given them leave to depart, and sent them hastily away, they would repent and pursue them. [3] For whilst they were yet mourning and making lamentation at the graves of the dead, they added another foolish device, and pursued them as fugitives, whom they had intreated to be gone. [4] For the destiny, whereof they were worthy, drew them unto this end, and made them forget the things that had already happened, that they might fulfil the punishment which was wanting to their torments: [5] And that thy people might pass a wonderful way: but they might find a strange death.

[6] For the whole creature in his proper kind was fashioned again anew, serving the peculiar commandments that were given unto them, that thy children might be kept without hurt: [7] As namely, a cloud shadowing the camp; and where water stood before, dry land appeared; and out of the Red sea a way without impediment; and out of the violent stream a green field: [8] Where through all the people went that were defended with thy hand, seeing thy marvellous strange wonders. [9] For they went at large like horses, and leaped like lambs, praising thee, O Lord, who hadst delivered them. [10] For they were yet mindful of the things that were done while they sojourned in the strange land, how the ground brought forth flies instead of cattle, and how the river cast up a multitude of frogs instead of fishes.

[11] But afterwards they saw a new generation of fowls, when, being led with their appetite, they asked delicate meats. [12] For quails came up unto them from the sea for their contentment. [13] And punishments came upon the sinners not without former signs by the force of thunders: for they suffered justly according to their own wickedness, insomuch as they used a more hard and hateful behaviour toward strangers. [14] For the Sodomites did not receive those, whom they knew not when they came: but these brought friends into bondage, that had well deserved of them. [15] And not only so, but peradventure some respect shall be had of those, because they used strangers not friendly: [16] But these very grievously afflicted them, whom they had received with feastings, and were already made partakers of the same laws with them. [17] Therefore even with blindness were these stricken, as those were at the doors of the righteous man: when, being compassed about with horrible great darkness, every one sought the passage of his own doors.

[18] For the elements were changed in themselves by a kind of harmony, like as in a psaltery notes change the name of the tune, and yet are always sounds; which may well be perceived by the sight of the things that have been done. [19] For earthly things were turned into watery, and the things, that before swam in the water, now went upon the ground. [20] The fire had power in the water, forgetting his own virtue: and the water forgot his own quenching nature. [21] On the other side, the flames wasted not the flesh of the corruptible living things, though they walked therein; neither melted they the icy kind of heavenly meat that was of nature apt to melt. [22] For in all things, O Lord, thou didst magnify thy people, and glorify them, neither didst thou lightly regard them: but didst assist them in every time and place.

Wisdom of the Son of Sirach

The Prologue to the Wisdom of Jesus the Son of Sirach.

Whereas many and great things have been delivered unto us by the law and the prophets, and by others that have followed their steps, for the which things Israel ought to be commended for learning and wisdom; and whereof not only the readers must needs become skilful themselves, but also they that desire to learn be able to profit them which are without, both by speaking and writing: my grandfather Jesus, when he had much given himself to the reading of the law, and the prophets, and other books of our fathers, and had gotten therein good judgment, was drawn on also himself to write something pertaining to learning and wisdom; to the intent that those which are desirous to learn, and are addicted to these things, might profit much more in living according to the law.

Wherefore let me intreat you to read it with favour and attention, and to pardon us, wherein we may seem to come short of some words, which we have laboured to interpret. For the same things uttered in Hebrew, and translated into another tongue, have not the same force in them: and not only these things, but the law itself, and the prophets, and the rest of the books, have no small difference, when they are spoken in their own language. For in the eight and thirtieth year coming into Egypt, when Euergetes was king, and continuing there some time, I found a book of no small learning: therefore I thought it most necessary for me to bestow some diligence and travail to interpret it; using great watchfulness and skill in that space to bring the book to an end, and set it forth for them also, which in a strange country are willing to learn, being prepared before in manners to live after the law.

[1] All wisdom cometh from the Lord, and is with him for ever. [2] Who can number the sand of the sea, and the drops of rain, and the days of eternity? [3] Who can find out the height of heaven, and the breadth of the earth, and the deep, and wisdom?

[4] Wisdom hath been created before all things, and the understanding of prudence from everlasting. [5] The word of God most high is the fountain of wisdom; and her ways are everlasting commandments. [6] To whom hath the root of wisdom been revealed? or who hath known her wise counsels? [7] Unto whom hath the knowledge of wisdom been made manifest? and who hath understood her great experience? [8] There is one wise and greatly to be feared, the Lord sitting upon his throne. [9] He created her, and saw her, and numbered her, and poured her out upon all his works. [10] She is with all flesh according to his gift, and he hath given her to them that love him.

[11] The fear of the Lord is honour, and glory, and gladness, and a crown of rejoicing. [12] The fear of the Lord maketh a merry heart, and giveth joy, and gladness, and a long life. [13] Whoso feareth the Lord, it shall go well with him at the last, and he shall find favour in the day of his death.

[14] To fear the Lord is the beginning of wisdom: and it was created with the faithful in the womb. [15] She hath built an everlasting foundation with men, and she shall continue with their seed. [16] To fear the Lord is fulness of wisdom, and filleth men with her fruits. [17] She filleth all their house with things desirable, and the garners with her increase. [18] The fear of the Lord is a crown of wisdom, making peace and perfect health to flourish; both which are the gifts of God: and it enlargeth their rejoicing that love him. [19] Wisdom raineth down skill and knowledge of understanding standing, and exalteth them to honour that hold her fast.

[20] The root of wisdom is to fear the Lord, and the branches thereof are long life. [21] The fear of the Lord driveth away sins: and where it is present, it turneth away wrath. [22] A furious man cannot be justified; for the sway of his fury shall be his destruction. [23] A patient man will tear for a time, and afterward joy shall spring up unto him. [24] He will hide his words for a time, and the lips of many shall declare his wisdom. [25] The parables of knowledge are in the treasures of wisdom: but godliness is an abomination to a sinner. [26] If thou desire wisdom, keep the commandments, and the Lord shall give her unto thee.

[27] For the fear of the Lord is wisdom and instruction: and faith and meekness are his delight. [28] Distrust not the fear of the Lord when thou art poor: and come not unto him with a double heart. [29] Be not an hypocrite in the sight of men, and take good heed what thou speakest. [30] Exalt not thyself, lest thou fall, and bring dishonour upon thy soul, and so God discover thy secrets, and cast thee down in the midst of the congregation, because thou camest not in truth to the fear of the Lord, but thy heart is full of deceit.

Chapter 2

[1] My son, if thou come to serve the Lord, prepare thy soul for temptation. [2] Set thy heart aright, and constantly endure, and make not haste in time of trouble. [3] Cleave unto him, and depart not away, that thou mayest be increased at thy last end. [4] Whatsoever is brought upon thee take cheerfully, and be patient when thou art changed to a low estate. [5] For gold is tried in the fire, and acceptable men in the furnace of adversity. [6] Believe in him, and he will help thee; order thy way aright, and trust in him. [7] Ye that fear the Lord, wait for his mercy; and go not aside, lest ye fall. [8] Ye that fear the Lord, believe him; and your reward shall not fail. [9] Ye that fear the Lord, hope for good, and for everlasting joy and mercy.

[10] Look at the generations of old, and see; did ever any trust in the Lord, and was confounded? or did any abide in his fear, and was forsaken? or whom did he ever despise, that called upon him? [11] For the Lord is full of compassion and mercy, longsuffering, and very pitiful, and forgiveth sins, and saveth in time of affliction. [12] Woe be to fearful hearts, and faint hands, and the sinner that goeth two ways!

[13] Woe unto him that is fainthearted! for he believeth not; therefore shall he not be defended. [14] Woe unto you that have lost patience! and what will ye do when the Lord shall visit you?

[15] They that fear the Lord will not disobey his Word; and they that love him will keep his ways. [16] They that fear the Lord will seek that which is well, pleasing unto him; and they that love him shall be filled with the law. [17] They that fear the Lord will prepare their hearts, and humble their souls in his sight, [18] Saying, We will fall into the hands of the Lord, and not into the hands of men: for as his majesty is, so is his mercy.

Chapter 3

[1] Hear me your father, O children, and do thereafter, that ye may be safe. [2] For the Lord hath given the father honour over the children, and hath confirmed the authority of the mother over the sons. [3] Whoso honoureth his father maketh an atonement for his sins: [4] And he that honoureth his mother is as one that layeth up treasure.

[5] Whoso honoureth his father shall have joy of his own children; and when he maketh his prayer, he shall be heard. [6] He that honoureth his father shall have a long life; and he that is obedient unto the Lord shall be a comfort to his mother. [7] He that feareth the Lord will honour his father, and will do service unto his parents, as to his masters.

[8] Honour thy father and mother both in word and deed, that a blessing may come upon thee from them. [9] For the blessing of the father establisheth the houses of children; but the curse of the mother rooteth out foundations. [10] Glory not in the dishonour of thy father; for thy father's dishonour is no glory unto thee. [11] For the glory of a man is from the honour of his father; and a mother in dishonour is a reproach to the children.

[12] My son, help thy father in his age, and grieve him not as long as he liveth. [13] And if his understanding fail, have patience with him; and despise him not when thou art in thy full strength. [14] For the relieving of thy father shall not be forgotten: and instead of sins it shall be added to build thee up. [15] In the day of thine affliction it shall be remembered; thy sins also shall melt away, as the ice in the fair warm weather.

[16] He that forsaketh his father is as a blasphemer; and he that angereth his mother is cursed: of God.

[17] My son, go on with thy business in meekness; so shalt thou be beloved of him that is approved. [18] The greater thou art, the more humble thyself, and thou shalt find favour before the Lord. [19] Many are in high place, and of renown: but mysteries are revealed unto the meek. [20] For the power of the Lord is great, and he is honoured of the lowly.

[21] Seek not out things that are too hard for thee, neither search the things that are above thy strength. [22] But what is commanded thee, think thereupon with reverence, for it is not needful for thee to see with thine eyes the things that are in secret. [23] Be not curious in unnecessary matters: for more things are shewed unto thee than men understand. [24] For many are deceived by their own vain opinion; and an evil suspicion hath overthrown their judgment. [25] Without eyes thou shalt want light: profess not the knowledge therefore that thou hast not.

[26] A stubborn heart shall fare evil at the last; and he that loveth danger shall perish therein. [27] An obstinate heart shall be laden with sorrows; and the wicked man shall heap sin upon sin. [28] In the punishment of the proud there is no remedy; for the plant of wickedness hath taken root in him. [29] The heart of the prudent will understand a parable; and an attentive ear is the desire of a wise man.

[30] Water will quench a flaming fire; and alms maketh an atonement for sins. [31] And he that requiteth good turns is mindful of that which may come hereafter; and when he falleth, he shall find a stay.

Chapter 4

[1] My son, defraud not the poor of his living, and make not the needy eyes to wait long. [2] Make not an hungry soul sorrowful; neither provoke a man in his distress. [3] Add not more trouble to an heart that is vexed; and defer not to give to him that is in need. [4] Reject not the supplication of the afflicted; neither turn away thy face from a poor man. [5] Turn not away thine eye from the needy, and give him none occasion to curse thee: [6] For if he curse thee in the bitterness of his soul, his prayer shall be heard of him that made him. [7] Get thyself the love of the congregation, and bow thy head to a great man. [8] Let it not grieve thee to bow down thine ear to the poor, and give him a friendly answer with meekness.

[9] Deliver him that suffereth wrong from the hand of the oppressor; and be not fainthearted when thou sittest in judgment. [10] Be as a father unto the fatherless, and instead of an husband unto their mother: so shalt thou be as the son of the most High, and he shall love thee more than thy mother doth.

[11] Wisdom exalteth her children, and layeth hold of them that seek her. [12] He that loveth her loveth life; and they that seek to her early shall be filled with joy.

[13] He that holdeth her fast shall inherit glory; and wheresoever she entereth, the Lord will bless. [14] They that serve her shall minister to the Holy One: and them that love her the Lord doth love. [15] Whoso giveth ear unto her shall judge the nations: and he that attendeth unto her shall dwell securely. [16] If a man commit himself unto her, he shall inherit her; and his generation shall hold her in possession. [17] For at the first she will walk with him by crooked ways, and bring fear and dread upon him, and torment him with her discipline, until she may trust his soul, and try him by her laws. [18] Then will she return the straight way unto him, and comfort him, and shew him her secrets. [19] But if he go wrong, she will forsake him, and give him over to his own ruin.

[20] Observe the opportunity, and beware of evil; and be not ashamed when it concerneth thy soul. [21] For there is a shame that bringeth sin; and there is a shame which is glory and grace. [22] Accept no person against thy soul, and let not the reverence of any man cause thee to fall. [23] And refrain not to speak, when there is occasion to do good, and hide not thy wisdom in her beauty.

[24] For by speech wisdom shall be known: and learning by the word of the tongue. [25] In no wise speak against the truth; but be abashed of the error of thine ignorance. [26] Be not ashamed to confess thy sins; and force not the course of the river. [27] Make not thyself an underling to a foolish man; neither accept the person of the mighty. [28] Strive for the truth unto death, and the Lord shall fight for thee.

[29] Be not hasty in thy tongue, and in thy deeds slack and remiss. [30] Be not as a lion in thy house, nor frantick among thy servants. [31] Let not thine hand be stretched out to receive, and shut when thou shouldest repay.

Chapter 5

[1] Set thy heart upon thy goods; and say not, I have enough for my life. [2] Follow not thine own mind and thy strength, to walk in the ways of thy heart: [3] And say not, Who shall control me for my works? for the Lord will surely revenge thy pride. [4] Say not, I have sinned, and what harm hath happened unto me? for the Lord is longsuffering, he will in no wise let thee go. [5] Concerning propitiation, be not without fear to add sin unto sin: [6] And say not His mercy is great; he will be pacified for the multitude of my sins: for mercy and wrath come from him, and his indignation resteth upon sinners.

[7] Make no tarrying to turn to the Lord, and put not off from day to day: for suddenly shall the wrath of the Lord come forth, and in thy security thou shalt be destroyed, and perish in the day of vengeance. [8] Set not thine heart upon goods unjustly gotten, for they shall not profit thee in the day of calamity.

[9] Winnow not with every wind, and go not into every way: for so doth the sinner that hath a double tongue. [10] Be stedfast in thy understanding; and let thy word be the same. [11] Be swift to hear; and let thy life be sincere; and with patience give answer. [12] If thou hast understanding, answer thy neighbour; if not, lay thy hand upon thy mouth. [13] Honour and shame is in talk: and the tongue of man is his fall. [14] Be not called a whisperer, and lie not in wait with thy tongue: for a foul shame is upon the thief, and an evil condemnation upon the double tongue. [15] Be not ignorant of any thing in a great matter or a small.

Chapter 6

[1] Instead of a friend become not an enemy; for thereby thou shalt inherit an ill name, shame, and reproach: even so shall a sinner that hath a double tongue. [2] Extol not thyself in the counsel of thine own heart; that thy soul be not torn in pieces as a bull straying alone. [3] Thou shalt eat up thy leaves, and lose thy fruit, and leave thyself as a dry tree.

[4] A wicked soul shall destroy him that hath it, and shall make him to be laughed to scorn of his enemies. [5] Sweet language will multiply friends: and a fairspeaking tongue will increase kind greetings. [6] Be in peace with many: nevertheless have but one counsellor of a thousand.

[7] If thou wouldest get a friend, prove him first and be not hasty to credit him. [8] For some man is a friend for his own occasion, and will not abide in the day of thy trouble. [9] And there is a friend, who being turned to enmity, and strife will discover thy reproach. [10] Again, some friend is a companion at the table, and will not continue in the day of thy affliction. [11] But in thy prosperity he will be as thyself, and will be bold over thy servants. [12] If thou be brought low, he will be against thee, and will hide himself from thy face.

[13] Separate thyself from thine enemies, and take heed of thy friends. [14] A faithful friend is a strong defence: and he that hath found such an one hath found a treasure. [15] Nothing doth countervail a faithful friend, and his excellency is invaluable. [16] A faithful friend is the medicine of life; and they that fear the Lord shall find him. [17] Whoso feareth the Lord shall direct his friendship aright: for as he is, so shall his neighbour be also.

[18] My son, gather instruction from thy youth up: so shalt thou find wisdom till thine old age. [19] Come unto her as one that ploweth and soweth, and wait for her good fruits: for thou shalt not toil much in labouring about her, but thou shalt eat of her fruits right soon. [20] She is very unpleasant to the unlearned: he that is without understanding will not remain with her. [21] She will lie upon him as a mighty stone of trial; and he will cast her from him ere it be long. [22] For wisdom is according to her name, and she is not manifest unto many.

[23] Give ear, my son, receive my advice, and refuse not my counsel, [24] And put thy feet into her fetters, and thy neck into her chain. [25] Bow down thy shoulder, and bear her, and be not grieved with her bonds. [26] Come unto her with thy whole heart, and keep her ways with all thy power. [27] Search, and seek, and she shall be made known unto thee: and when thou hast got hold of her, let her not go. [28] For at the last thou shalt find her rest, and that shall be turned to thy joy. [29] Then shall her fetters be a strong defence for thee, and her chains a robe of glory. [30] For there is a golden ornament upon her, and her bands are purple lace. [31] Thou shalt put her on as a robe of honour, and shalt put her about thee as a crown of joy.

[32] My son, if thou wilt, thou shalt be taught: and if thou wilt apply thy mind, thou shalt be prudent. [33] If thou love to hear, thou shalt receive understanding; and if thou bow thine ear, thou shalt be wise, [34] Stand in the multitude of the elders; and cleave unto him that is wise. [35] Be willing to hear every godly discourse; and let not the parables of understanding escape thee. [36] And if thou seest a man of understanding, get thee betimes unto him, and let thy foot wear the steps of his door. [37] Let thy mind be upon the ordinances of the Lord and meditate continually in his commandments: he shall establish thine heart, and give thee wisdom at thine owns desire.

[1] Do no evil, so shall no harm come unto thee. [2] Depart from the unjust, and iniquity shall turn away from thee.

[3] My son, sow not upon the furrows of unrighteousness, and thou shalt not reap them sevenfold. [4] Seek not of the Lord preeminence, neither of the king the seat of honour. [5] justify not thyself before the Lord; and boast not of thy wisdom before the king. [6] Seek not to be judge, being not able to take away iniquity; lest at any time thou fear the person of the mighty, an stumblingblock in the way of thy uprightness. [7] Offend not against the multitude of a city, and then thou shalt not cast thyself down among the people. [8] Bind not one sin upon another; for in one thou shalt not be unpunished. [9] Say not, God will look upon the multitude of my oblations, and when I offer to the most high God, he will accept it. [10] Be not fainthearted when thou makest thy prayer, and neglect not to give alms.

[11] Laugh no man to scorn in the bitterness of his soul: for there is one which humbleth and exalteth. [12] Devise not a lie against thy brother; neither do the like to thy friend. [13] Use not to make any manner of lie: for the custom thereof is not good. [14] Use not many words in a multitude of elders, and make not much babbling when thou prayest. [15] Hate not laborious work, neither husbandry, which the most High hath ordained. [16] Number not thyself among the multitude of sinners, but remember that wrath will not tarry long. [17] Humble thyself greatly: for the vengeance of the ungodly is fire and worms. [18] Change not a friend for any good by no means; neither a faithful brother for the gold of Ophir. [19] Forego not a wise and good woman: for her grace is above gold. [20] Whereas thy servant worketh truly, entreat him not evil. nor the hireling that bestoweth himself wholly for thee.

[21] Let thy soul love a good servant, and defraud him not of liberty. [22] Hast thou cattle? have an eye to them: and if they be for thy profit, keep them with thee. [23] Hast thou children? instruct them, and bow down their neck from their youth. [24] Hast thou daughters? have a care of their body, and shew not thyself cheerful toward them. [25] Marry thy daughter, and so shalt thou have performed a weighty matter: but give her to a man of understanding. [26] Hast thou a wife after thy mind? forsake her not: but give not thyself over to a light woman.

[27] Honour thy father with thy whole heart, and forget not the sorrows of thy mother. [28] Remember that thou wast begotten of them; and how canst thou recompense them the things that they have done for thee? [29] Fear the Lord with all thy soul, and reverence his priests. [30] Love him that made thee with all thy strength, and forsake not his ministers. [31] Fear the Lord, and honour the priest; and give him his portion, as it is commanded thee; the firstfruits, and the trespass offering, and the gift of the shoulders, and the sacrifice of sanctification, and the firstfruits of the holy things. [32] And stretch thine hand unto the poor, that thy blessing may be perfected. ^[33] A gift hath grace in the sight of every man living; and for the dead detain it not. ^[34] Fail not to be with them that weep, and mourn with them that mourn. ^[35] Be not slow to visit the sick: for that shall make thee to be beloved. ^[36] Whatsoever thou takest in hand, remember the end, and thou shalt never do amiss.

[1] Strive not with a mighty man' lest thou fall into his hands. [2] Be not at variance with a rich man, lest he overweigh thee: for gold hath destroyed many, and perverted the hearts of kings. [3] Strive not with a man that is full of tongue, and heap not wood upon his fire. [4] Jest not with a rude man, lest thy ancestors be disgraced. [5] Reproach not a man that turneth from sin, but remember that we are all worthy of punishment. [6] Dishonour not a man in his old age: for even some of us wax old. [7] Rejoice not over thy greatest enemy being dead, but remember that we die all. [8] Despise not the discourse of the wise, but acquaint thyself with their proverbs: for of them thou shalt learn instruction, and how to serve great men with ease.

[9] Miss not the discourse of the elders: for they also learned of their fathers, and of them thou shalt learn understanding, and to give answer as need requireth. [10] Kindle not the coals of a sinner, lest thou be burnt with the flame of his fire. [11] Rise not up in anger at the presence of an injurious person, lest he lie in wait to entrap thee in thy words [12] Lend not unto him that is mightier than thyself; for if thou lendest him, count it but lost. [13] Be not surety above thy power: for if thou be surety, take care to pay it. [14] Go not to law with a judge; for they will judge for him according to his honour. [15] Travel not by the way with a bold fellow, lest he become grievous unto thee: for he will do according to his own will, and thou shalt perish with him through his folly.

[16] Strive not with an angry man, and go not with him into a solitary place: for blood is as nothing in his sight, and where there is no help, he will overthrow thee. [17] Consult not with a fool; for he cannot keep counsel. [18] Do no secret thing before a stranger; for thou knowest not what he will bring forth. [19] Open not thine heart to every man, lest he requite thee with a shrewd turn.

[1] Be not jealous over the wife of thy bosom, and teach her not an evil lesson against thyself. [2] Give not thy soul unto a woman to set her foot upon thy substance. [3] Meet not with an harlot, lest thou fall into her snares. [4] Use not much the company of a woman that is a singer, lest thou be taken with her attempts. [5] Gaze not on a maid, that thou fall not by those things that are precious in her. [6] Give not thy soul unto harlots, that thou lose not thine inheritance. [7] Look not round about thee in the streets of the city, neither wander thou in the solitary place thereof. [8] Turn away thine eye from a beautiful woman, and look not upon another's beauty; for many have been deceived by the beauty of a woman; for herewith love is kindled as a fire.

[9] Sit not at all with another man's wife, nor sit down with her in thine arms, and spend not thy money with her at the wine; lest thine heart incline unto her, and so through thy desire thou fall into destruction. [10] Forsake not an old friend; for the new is not comparable to him: a new friend is as new wine; when it is old, thou shalt drink it with pleasure. [11] Envy not the glory of a sinner: for thou knowest not what shall be his end. [12] Delight not in the thing that the ungodly have pleasure in; but remember they shall not go unpunished unto their grave. [13] Keep thee far from the man that hath power to kill; so shalt thou not doubt the fear of death: and if thou come unto him, make no fault, lest he take away thy life presently: remember that thou goest in the midst of snares, and that thou walkest upon the battlements of the city.

[14] As near as thou canst, guess at thy neighbour, and consult with the wise. [15] Let thy talk be with the wise, and all thy communication in the law of the most High. [16] And let just men eat and drink with thee; and let thy glorying be in the fear of the Lord. [17] For the hand of the artificer the work shall be commended: and the wise ruler of the people for his speech. [18] A man of an ill tongue is dangerous in his city; and he that is rash in his talk shall be hated.

Chapter 10

[1] A wise judge will instruct his people; and the government of a prudent man is well ordered. [2] As the judge of the people is himself, so are his officers; and what manner of man the ruler of the city is, such are all they that dwell therein. [3] An unwise king destroyeth his people; but through the prudence of them which are in authority the city shall be inhabited. [4] The power of the earth is in the hand of the Lord, and in due time he will set over it one that is profitable. [5] In the hand of God is the prosperity of man: and upon the person of the scribe shall he lay his honour.

[6] Bear not hatred to thy neighbour for every wrong; and do nothing at all by injurious practices. [7] Pride is hateful before God and man: and by both doth one commit iniquity. [8] Because of unrighteous dealings, injuries, and riches got by deceit, the kingdom is translated from one people to another.

[9] Why is earth and ashes proud? There is not a more wicked thing than a covetous man: for such an one setteth his own soul to sale; because while he liveth he casteth away his bowels. [10] The physician cutteth off a long disease; and he that is to day a king to morrow shall die. [11] For when a man is dead, he shall inherit creeping things, beasts, and worms. [12] The beginning of pride is when one departeth from God, and his heart is turned away from his Maker. [13] For pride is the beginning of sin, and he that hath it shall pour out abomination: and therefore the Lord brought upon them strange calamities, and overthrew them utterly.

[14] The Lord hath cast down the thrones of proud princes, and set up the meek in their stead. [15] The Lord hath plucked up the roots of the proud nations, and planted the lowly in their place. [16] The Lord overthrew countries of the heathen, and destroyed them to the foundations of the earth. [17] He took some of them away, and destroyed them, and hath made their memorial to cease from the earth. [18] Pride was not made for men, nor furious anger for them that are born of a woman. [19] They that fear the Lord are a sure seed, and they that love him an honourable plant: they that regard not the law are a dishonourable seed; they that transgress the commandments are a deceivable seed. [20] Among brethren he that is chief is honourably; so are they that fear the Lord in his eyes. [21] The fear of the Lord goeth before the obtaining of authority: but roughness and pride is the losing thereof. [22] Whether he be rich, noble, or poor, their glory is the fear of the Lord.

[23] It is not meet to despise the poor man that hath understanding; neither is it convenient to magnify a sinful man. [24] Great men, and judges, and potentates, shall be honoured; yet is there none of them greater than he that feareth the Lord. [25] Unto the servant that is wise shall they that are free do service: and he that hath knowledge will not grudge when he is reformed. [26] Be not overwise in doing thy business; and boast not thyself in the time of thy distress. [27] Better is he that laboureth, and aboundeth in all things, than he that boasteth himself, and wanteth bread.

[28] My son, glorify thy soul in meekness, and give it honour according to the dignity thereof. [29] Who will justify him that sinneth against his own soul? and who will honour him that dishonoureth his own life? [30] The poor man is honoured for his skill, and the rich man is honoured for his riches. [31] He that is honoured in poverty, how much more in riches? and he that is dishonourable in riches, how much more in poverty?

Chapter 11

[1] Wisdom lifteth up the head of him that is of low degree, and maketh him to sit among great men. [2] Commend not a man for his beauty; neither abhor a man for his outward appearance. [3] The bee is little among such as fly; but her fruit is the chief of sweet things. [4] Boast not of thy clothing and raiment, and exalt not thyself in the day of honour: for the works of the Lord are wonderful, and his works among men are hidden. [5] Many kings have sat down upon the ground; and one that was never thought of hath worn the crown. [6] Many mighty men have been greatly disgraced; and the honourable delivered into other men's hands. [7] Blame not before thou hast examined the truth: understand first, and then rebuke. [8] Answer not before thou hast heard the cause: neither interrupt men in the midst of their talk. [9] Strive not in a matter that concerneth thee not; and sit not in judgment with sinners.

[10] My son, meddle not with many matters: for if thou meddle much, thou shalt not be innocent; and if thou follow after, thou shalt not obtain, neither shalt thou escape by fleeing. [11] There is one that laboureth, and taketh pains, and maketh haste, and is so much the more behind. [12] Again, there is another that is slow, and hath need of help, wanting ability, and full of poverty; yet the eye of the Lord looked upon him for good, and set him up from his low estate, [13] And lifted up his head from misery; so that many that saw from him is peace over all the [14] Prosperity and adversity, life and death, poverty and riches, come of the Lord. [15] Wisdom, knowledge, and understanding of the law, are of the Lord: love, and the way of good works, are from him. [16] Error and darkness had their beginning together with sinners: and evil shall wax old with them that glory therein. [17] The gift of the Lord remaineth with the ungodly, and his favour bringeth prosperity for ever. [18] There is that waxeth rich by his wariness and pinching, and this his the portion of his reward: [19] Whereas he saith, I have found rest, and now will eat continually of my goods; and yet he knoweth not what time shall come upon him, and that he must leave those things to others, and die. [20] Be stedfast in thy covenant, and be conversant therein, and wax old in thy work. [21] Marvel not at the works of sinners; but trust in the Lord, and abide in thy labour: for it is an easy thing in the sight of the Lord on the sudden to make a poor man rich.

[22] The blessing of the Lord is in the reward of the godly, and suddenly he maketh his blessing flourish. [23] Say not, What profit is there of my service? and what good things shall I have hereafter? [24] Again, say not, I have enough, and possess many things, and what evil shall I have hereafter? [25] In the day of prosperity there is a forgetfulness of affliction: and in the day of affliction there is no more remembrance of prosperity. [26] For it is an easy thing unto the Lord in the day of death to reward a man according to his ways. [27] The affliction of an hour maketh a man forget pleasure: and in his end his deeds shall be discovered. [28] Judge none blessed before his death: for a man shall be known in his children.

[29] Bring not every man into thine house: for the deceitful man hath many trains. [30] Like as a partridge taken and kept in a cage, so is the heart of the proud; and like as a spy, watcheth he for thy fall: [31] For he lieth in wait, and turneth good into evil, and in things worthy praise will lay blame upon thee. [32] Of a spark of fire a heap of coals is kindled: and a sinful man layeth wait for blood. [33] Take heed of a mischievous man, for he worketh wickedness; lest he bring upon thee a perpetual blot. [34] Receive a stranger into thine house, and he will disturb thee, and turn thee out of thine own.

Chapter 12

[1] When thou wilt do good know to whom thou doest it; so shalt thou be thanked for thy benefits. [2] Do good to the godly man, and thou shalt find a recompence; and if not from him, yet from the most High. [3] There can no good come to him that is always occupied in evil, nor to him that giveth no alms. [4] Give to the godly man, and help not a sinner. [5] Do well unto him that is lowly, but give not to the ungodly: hold back thy bread, and give it not unto him, lest he overmaster thee thereby: for else thou shalt receive twice as much evil for all the good thou shalt have done unto him. [6] For the most High hateth sinners, and will repay vengeance unto the ungodly, and keepeth them against the mighty day of their punishment.

[7] Give unto the good, and help not the sinner. [8] A friend cannot be known in prosperity: and an enemy cannot be hidden in adversity. [9] In the prosperity of a man enemies will be grieved: but in his adversity even a friend will depart. [10] Never trust thine enemy: for like as iron rusteth, so is his wickedness. [11] Though he humble himself, and go crouching, yet take good heed and beware of him, and thou shalt be unto him as if thou hadst wiped a lookingglass, and thou shalt know that his rust hath not been altogether wiped away. [12] Set him not by thee, lest, when he hath overthrown thee, he stand up in thy place; neither let him sit at thy right hand, lest he seek to take thy seat, and thou at the last remember my words, and be pricked therewith.

[13] Who will pity a charmer that is bitten with a serpent, or any such as come nigh wild beasts? [14] So one that goeth to a sinner, and is defiled with him in his sins, who will pity? [15] For a while he will abide with thee, but if thou begin to fall, he will not tarry. [16] An enemy speaketh sweetly with his lips, but in his heart he imagineth how to throw thee into a pit: he will weep with his eyes, but if he find opportunity, he will not be satisfied with blood. [17] If adversity come upon thee, thou shalt find him there first; and though he pretend to help thee, yet shall he undermine thee. [18] He will shake his head, and clap his hands, and whisper much, and change his countenance.

[1] He that toucheth pitch shall be defiled therewith; and he that hath fellowship with a proud man shall be like unto him. [2] Burden not thyself above thy power while thou livest; and have no fellowship with one that is mightier and richer than thyself: for how agree the kettle and the earthen pot together? for if the one be smitten against the other, it shall be broken.

[3] The rich man hath done wrong, and yet he threateneth withal: the poor is wronged, and he must intreat also. [4] If thou be for his profit, he will use thee: but if thou have nothing, he will forsake thee. [5] If thou have any thing, he will live with thee: yea, he will make thee bare, and will not be sorry for it. [6] If he have need of thee, he will deceive thee, and smile upon thee, and put thee in hope; he will speak thee fair, and say, What wantest thou? [7] And he will shame thee by his meats, until he have drawn thee dry twice or thrice, and at the last he will laugh thee to scorn afterward, when he seeth thee, he will forsake thee, and shake his head at thee. [8] Beware that thou be not deceived and brought down in thy jollity.

[9] If thou be invited of a mighty man, withdraw thyself, and so much the more will he invite thee. [10] Press thou not upon him, lest thou be put back; stand not far off, lest thou be forgotten. [11] Affect not to be made equal unto him in talk, and believe not his many words: for with much communication will he tempt thee, and smiling upon thee will get out thy secrets: [12] But cruelly he will lay up thy words, and will not spare to do thee hurt, and to put thee in prison. [13] Observe, and take good heed, for thou walkest in peril of thy overthrowing: when thou hearest these things, awake in thy sleep. [14] Love the Lord all thy life, and call upon him for thy salvation.

[15] Every beast loveth his like, and every man loveth his neighbour. [16] All flesh consorteth according to kind, and a man will cleave to his like. [17] What fellowship hath the wolf with the lamb? so the sinner with the godly. [18] What agreement is there between the hyena and a dog? and what peace between the rich and the poor? [19] As the wild ass is the lion's prey in the wilderness: so the rich eat up the poor. [20] As the proud hate humility: so doth the rich abhor the poor.

[21] A rich man beginning to fall is held up of his friends: but a poor man being down is thrust away by his friends. [22] When a rich man is fallen, he hath many helpers: he speaketh things not to be spoken, and yet men justify him: the poor man slipped, and yet they rebuked him too; he spake wisely, and could have no place. [23] When a rich man speaketh, every man holdeth his tongue, and, look, what he saith, they extol it to the clouds: but if the poor man speak, they say, What fellow is this? and if he stumble, they will help to overthrow him. [24] Riches are good unto him that hath no sin, and poverty is evil in the mouth of the ungodly.

[25] The heart of a man changeth his countenance, whether it be for good or evil: and a merry heart maketh a cheerful countenance. [26] A cheerful countenance is a token of a heart that is in prosperity; and the finding out of parables is a wearisome labour of the mind.

Chapter 14

[1] Blessed is the man that hath not slipped with his mouth, and is not pricked with the multitude of sins. [2] Blessed is he whose conscience hath not condemned him, and who is not fallen from his hope in the Lord.

[3] Riches are not comely for a niggard: and what should an envious man do with money? [4] He that gathereth by defrauding his own soul gathereth for others, that shall spend his goods riotously. [5] He that is evil to himself, to whom will he be good? he shall not take pleasure in his goods. [6] There is none worse than he that envieth himself; and this is a recompence of his wickedness. [7] And if he doeth good, he doeth it unwillingly; and at the last he will declare his wickedness. [8] The envious man hath a wicked eye; he turneth away his face, and despiseth men. [9] A covetous man's eye is not satisfied with his portion; and the iniquity of the wicked drieth up his soul. [10] A wicked eye envieth his bread, and he is a niggard at his table.

[11] My son, according to thy ability do good to thyself, and give the Lord his due offering. [12] Remember that death will not be long in coming, and that the covenant of the grave is not shewed unto thee. [13] Do good unto thy friend before thou die, and according to thy ability stretch out thy hand and give to him. [14] Defraud not thyself of the good day, and let not the part of a good desire overpass thee. [15] Shalt thou not leave thy travails unto another? and thy labours to be divided by lot? [16] Give, and take, and sanctify thy soul; for there is no seeking of dainties in the grave. [17] All flesh waxeth old as a garment: for the covenant from the beginning is, Thou shalt die the death. [18] As of the green leaves on a thick tree, some fall, and some grow; so is the generation of flesh and blood, one cometh to an end, and another is born. [19] Every work rotteth and consumeth away, and the worker thereof shall go withal.

[20] Blessed is the man that doth meditate good things in wisdom, and that reasoneth of holy things by his understanding. [21] He that considereth her ways in his heart shall also have understanding in her secrets. [22] Go after her as one that traceth, and lie in wait in her ways. [23] He that prieth in at her windows shall also hearken at her doors. [24] He that doth lodge near her house shall also fasten a pin in her walls. [25] He shall pitch his tent nigh unto her, and shall lodge in a lodging where good things are. [26] He shall set his children under her shelter, and shall lodge under her branches. [27] By her he shall be covered from heat, and in her glory shall he dwell.

[1] He that feareth the Lord will do good, and he that hath the knowledge of the law shall obtain her. [2] And as a mother shall she meet him, and receive him as a wife married of a virgin. [3] With the bread of understanding shall she feed him, and give him the water of wisdom to drink. [4] He shall be stayed upon her, and shall not be moved; and shall rely upon her, and shall not be confounded. [5] She shall exalt him above his neighbours, and in the midst of the congregation shall she open his mouth. [6] He shall find joy and a crown of gladness, and she shall cause him to inherit an everlasting name. [7] But foolish men shall not attain unto her, and sinners shall not see her. [8] For she is far from pride, and men that are liars cannot remember her.

[9] Praise is not seemly in the mouth of a sinner, for it was not sent him of the Lord. [10] For praise shall be uttered in wisdom, and the Lord will prosper it. [11] Say not thou, It is through the Lord that I fell away: for thou oughtest not to do the things that he hateth. [12] Say not thou, He hath caused me to err: for he hath no need of the sinful man.

[13] The Lord hateth all abomination; and they that fear God love it not. [14] He himself made man from the beginning, and left him in the hand of his counsel; [15] If thou wilt, to keep the commandments, and to perform acceptable faithfulness. [16] He hath set fire and water before thee: stretch forth thy hand unto whether thou wilt. [17] Before man is life and death; and whether him liketh shall be given him. [18] For the wisdom of the Lord is great, and he is mighty in power, and beholdeth all things: [19] And his eyes are upon them that fear him, and he knoweth every work of man. [20] He hath commanded no man to do wickedly, neither hath he given any man licence to sin.

[1] Desire not a multitude of unprofitable children, neither delight in ungodly sons. [2] Though they multiply, rejoice not in them, except the fear of the Lord be with them. [3] Trust not thou in their life, neither respect their multitude: for one that is just is better than a thousand; and better it is to die without children, than to have them that are ungodly. [4] For by one that hath understanding shall the city be replenished: but the kindred of the wicked shall speedily become desolate. [5] Many such things have I seen with mine eyes, and mine ear hath heard greater things than these.

[6] In the congregation of the ungodly shall a fire be kindled; and in a rebellious nation wrath is set on fire. [7] He was not pacified toward the old giants, who fell away in the strength of their foolishness. [8] Neither spared he the place where Lot sojourned, but abhorred them for their pride. [9] He pitied not the people of perdition, who were taken away in their sins: [10] Nor the six hundred thousand footmen, who were gathered together in the hardness of their hearts. [11] And if there be one stiffnecked among the people, it is marvel if he escape unpunished: for mercy and wrath are with him; he is mighty to forgive, and to pour out displeasure.

[12] As his mercy is great, so is his correction also: he judgeth a man according to his works [13] The sinner shall not escape with his spoils: and the patience of the godly shall not be frustrate. [14] Make way for every work of mercy: for every man shall find according to his works. [15] The Lord hardened Pharaoh, that he should not know him, that his powerful works might be known to the world. [16] His mercy is manifest to every creature; and he hath separated his light from the darkness with an adamant.

[17] Say not thou, I will hide myself from the Lord: shall any remember me from above? I shall not be remembered among so many people: for what is my soul among such an infinite number of creatures? [18] Behold, the heaven, and the heaven of heavens, the deep, and the earth, and all that therein is, shall be moved when he shall visit. [19] The mountains also and foundations of the earth be shaken with trembling, when the Lord looketh upon them. [20] No heart can think upon these things worthily: and who is able to conceive his ways? [21] It is a tempest which no man can see: for the most part of his works are hid. [22] Who can declare the works of his justice? or who can endure them? for his covenant is afar off, and the trial of all things is in the end. [23] He that wanteth understanding will think upon vain things: and a foolish man erring imagineth follies.

[24] My son, hearken unto me, and learn knowledge, and mark my words with thy heart. [25] I will shew forth doctrine in weight, and declare his knowledge exactly. [26] The works of the Lord are done in judgment from the beginning: and from the time he made them he disposed the parts thereof. [27] He garnished his works for ever, and in his hand are the chief of them unto all generations: they neither labour, nor are weary, nor cease from their works. [28]

None of them hindereth another, and they shall never disobey his word. [29]
After this the Lord looked upon the earth, and filled it with his blessings. [30]
With all manner of living things hath he covered the face thereof; and they shall return into it again.

Chapter 17

[1] The Lord created man of the earth, and turned him into it again. [2] He gave them few days, and a short time, and power also over the things therein. [3] He endued them with strength by themselves, and made them according to his image, [4] And put the fear of man upon all flesh, and gave him dominion over beasts and fowls. [5] They received the use of the five operations of the Lord, and in the sixth place he imparted them understanding, and in the seventh speech, an interpreter of the cogitations thereof. [6] Counsel, and a tongue, and eyes, ears, and a heart, gave he them to understand. [7] Withal he filled them with the knowledge of understanding, and shewed them good and evil. [8] He set his eye upon their hearts, that he might shew them the greatness of his works. [9] He gave them to glory in his marvellous acts for ever, that they might declare his works with understanding. [10] And the elect shall praise his holy name.

[11] Beside this he gave them knowledge, and the law of life for an heritage. [12] He made an everlasting covenant with them, and shewed them his judgments. [13] Their eyes saw the majesty of his glory, and their ears heard his glorious voice. [14] And he said unto them, Beware of all unrighteousness; and he gave every man commandment concerning his neighbour. [15] Their ways are ever before him, and shall not be hid from his eyes. [16] Every man from his youth is given to evil; neither could they make to themselves fleshy hearts for stony. [17] For in the division of the nations of the whole earth he set a ruler over every people; but Israel is the Lord's portion: [18] Whom, being his firstborn, he nourisheth with discipline, and giving him the light of his love doth not forsake him. [19] Therefore all their works are as the sun before him, and his eyes are continually upon their ways. [20] None of their unrighteous deeds are hid from him, but all their sins are before the Lord [21] But the Lord being gracious and knowing his workmanship, neither left nor forsook them, but spared them.

[22] The alms of a man is as a signet with him, and he will keep the good deeds of man as the apple of the eye, and give repentance to his sons and daughters. [23] Afterwards he will rise up and reward them, and render their recompence upon their heads. [24] But unto them that repent, he granted them return, and comforted those that failed in patience.

[25] Return unto the Lord, and forsake thy sins, make thy prayer before his face, and offend less. [26] Turn again to the most High, and turn away from iniquity: for he will lead thee out of darkness into the light of health, and hate thou abomination vehemently. [27] Who shall praise the most High in the grave, instead of them which live and give thanks? [28] Thanksgiving perisheth from the dead, as from one that is not: the living and sound in heart shall praise the Lord. [29] How great is the lovingkindness of the Lord our God, and his compassion unto such as turn unto him in holiness! [30] For all things cannot be in men, because the son of man is not immortal.

[31] What is brighter than the sun? yet the light thereof faileth; and flesh and blood will imagine evil. [32] He vieweth the power of the height of heaven; and all men are but earth and ashes.

Chapter 18

[1] He that liveth for ever Hath created all things in general. [2] The Lord only is righteous, and there is none other but he, [3] Who governeth the world with the palm of his hand, and all things obey his will: for he is the King of all, by his power dividing holy things among them from profane. [4] To whom hath he given power to declare his works? and who shall find out his noble acts? [5] Who shall number the strength of his majesty? and who shall also tell out his mercies?

[6] As for the wondrous works of the Lord, there may nothing be taken from them, neither may any thing be put unto them, neither can the ground of them be found out. [7] When a man hath done, then he beginneth; and when he leaveth off, then he shall be doubtful. [8] What is man, and whereto serveth he? what is his good, and what is his evil? [9] The number of a man's days at the most are an hundred years. [10] As a drop of water unto the sea, and a gravestone in comparison of the sand; so are a thousand years to the days of eternity. [11] Therefore is God patient with them, and poureth forth his mercy upon them. [12] He saw and perceived their end to be evil; therefore he multiplied his compassion. [13] The mercy of man is toward his neighbour; but the mercy of the Lord is upon all flesh: he reproveth, and nutureth, and teacheth and bringeth again, as a shepherd his flock. [14] He hath mercy on them that receive discipline, and that diligently seek after his judgments.

[15] My son, blemish not thy good deeds, neither use uncomfortable words when thou givest any thing. [16] Shall not the dew assuage the heat? so is a word better than a gift. [17] Lo, is not a word better than a gift? but both are with a gracious man. [18] A fool will upbraid churlishly, and a gift of the envious consumeth the eyes. [19] Learn before thou speak, and use physick or ever thou be sick. [20] Before judgment examine thyself, and in the day of visitation thou shalt find mercy. [21] Humble thyself before thou be sick, and in the time of sins shew repentance.

[22] Let nothing hinder thee to pay thy vow in due time, and defer not until death to be justified. [23] Before thou prayest, prepare thyself; and be not as one that tempteth the Lord. [24] Think upon the wrath that shall be at the end, and the time of vengeance, when he shall turn away his face. [25] When thou hast enough, remember the time of hunger: and when thou art rich, think upon poverty and need. [26] From the morning until the evening the time is changed, and all things are soon done before the Lord.

[27] A wise man will fear in every thing, and in the day of sinning he will beware of offence: but a fool will not observe time. [28] Every man of understanding knoweth wisdom, and will give praise unto him that found her. [29] They that were of understanding in sayings became also wise themselves, and poured forth exquisite parables.

[30] Go not after thy lusts, but refrain thyself from thine appetites. [31] If thou givest thy soul the desires that please her, she will make thee a laughingstock to thine enemies that malign thee. ^[32] Take not pleasure in much good cheer, neither be tied to the expense thereof. ^[33] Be not made a beggar by banqueting upon borrowing, when thou hast nothing in thy purse: for thou shalt lie in wait for thine own life, and be talked on.

Chapter 19

[1] A labouring man that A is given to drunkenness shall not be rich: and he that contemneth small things shall fall by little and little. [2] Wine and women will make men of understanding to fall away: and he that cleaveth to harlots will become impudent. [3] Moths and worms shall have him to heritage, and a bold man shall be taken away.

[4] He that is hasty to give credit is lightminded; and he that sinneth shall offend against his own soul. [5] Whoso taketh pleasure in wickedness shall be condemned: but he that resisteth pleasures crowneth his life. [6] He that can rule his tongue shall live without strife; and he that hateth babbling shall have less evil.

[7] Rehearse not unto another that which is told unto thee, and thou shalt fare never the worse. [8] Whether it be to friend or foe, talk not of other men's lives; and if thou canst without offence, reveal them not. [9] For he heard and observed thee, and when time cometh he will hate thee. [10] If thou hast heard a word, let it die with thee; and be bold, it will not burst thee. [11] A fool travaileth with a word, as a woman in labour of a child. [12] As an arrow that sticketh in a man's thigh, so is a word within a fool's belly. [13] Admonish a friend, it may be he hath not done it: and if he have done it, that he do it no more. [14] Admonish thy friend, it may be he hath not said it: and if he have, that he speak it not again. [15] Admonish a friend: for many times it is a slander, and believe not every tale.

[16] There is one that slippeth in his speech, but not from his heart; and who is he that hath not offended with his tongue? [17] Admonish thy neighbour before thou threaten him; and not being angry, give place to the law of the most High. [18] The fear of the Lord is the first step to be accepted of him, and wisdom obtaineth his love. [19] The knowledge of the commandments of the Lord is the doctrine of life: and they that do things that please him shall receive the fruit of the tree of immortality. [20] The fear of the Lord is all wisdom; and in all wisdom is the performance of the law, and the knowledge of his omnipotency. [21] If a servant say to his master, I will not do as it pleaseth thee; though afterward he do it, he angereth him that nourisheth him. [22] The knowledge of wickedness is not wisdom, neither at any time the counsel of sinners prudence. [23] There is a wickedness, and the same an abomination; and there is a fool wanting in wisdom.

[24] He that hath small understanding, and feareth God, is better than one that hath much wisdom, and transgresseth the law of the most High. [25] There is an exquisite subtilty, and the same is unjust; and there is one that turneth aside to make judgment appear; and there is a wise man that justifieth in judgment. [26] There is a wicked man that hangeth down his head sadly; but inwardly he is full of deceit, [27] Casting down his countenance, and making as if he heard not: where he is not known, he will do thee a mischief before thou be aware. [28] And if for want of power he be hindered from sinning, yet when he findeth opportunity he will do evil. [29] A man may be known by his look, and one that hath understanding by his countenance, when thou meetest him. [30] A man's attire, and excessive laughter, and gait, shew what he is.

[1] There is a reproof that is not comely: again, some man holdeth his tongue, and he is wise. [2] It is much better to reprove, than to be angry secretly: and he that confesseth his fault shall be preserved from hurt. [3] How good is it, when thou art reproved, to shew repentance! for so shalt thou escape wilful sin. [4] As is the lust of an eunuch to deflower a virgin; so is he that executeth judgment with violence.

[5] There is one that keepeth silence, and is found wise: and another by much babbling becometh hateful. [6] Some man holdeth his tongue, because he hath not to answer: and some keepeth silence, knowing his time. [7] A wise man will hold his tongue till he see opportunity: but a babbler and a fool will regard no time. [8] He that useth many words shall be abhorred; and he that taketh to himself authority therein shall be hated. [9] There is a sinner that hath good success in evil things; and there is a gain that turneth to loss. [10] There is a gift that shall not profit thee; and there is a gift whose recompence is double. [11] There is an abasement because of glory; and there is that lifteth up his head from a low estate. [12] There is that buyeth much for a little, and repayeth it sevenfold.

[13] A wise man by his words maketh him beloved: but the graces of fools shall be poured out. [14] The gift of a fool shall do thee no good when thou hast it; neither yet of the envious for his necessity: for he looketh to receive many things for one. [15] He giveth little, and upbraideth much; he openeth his mouth like a crier; to day he lendeth, and to morrow will he ask it again: such an one is to be hated of God and man. [16] The fool saith, I have no friends, I have no thank for all my good deeds, and they that eat my bread speak evil of me. [17] How oft, and of how many shall he be laughed to scorn! for he knoweth not aright what it is to have; and it is all one unto him as if he had it not.

[18] To slip upon a pavement is better than to slip with the tongue: so the fall of the wicked shall come speedily. [19] An unseasonable tale will always be in the mouth of the unwise. [20] A wise sentence shall be rejected when it cometh out of a fool's mouth; for he will not speak it in due season. [21] There is that is hindered from sinning through want: and when he taketh rest, he shall not be troubled. [22] There is that destroyeth his own soul through bashfulness, and by accepting of persons overthroweth himself. [23] There is that for bashfulness promiseth to his friend, and maketh him his enemy for nothing. [24] A lie is a foul blot in a man, yet it is continually in the mouth of the untaught.

[25] A thief is better than a man that is accustomed to lie: but they both shall have destruction to heritage. [26] The disposition of a liar is dishonourable, and his shame is ever with him.

[27] A wise man shall promote himself to honour with his words: and he that hath understanding will please great men. [28] He that tilleth his land shall increase his heap: and he that pleaseth great men shall get pardon for iniquity.

[29] Presents and gifts blind the eyes of the wise, and stop up his mouth that he cannot reprove. [30] Wisdom that is hid, and treasure that is hoarded up, what profit is in them both? [31] Better is he that hideth his folly than a man that hideth his wisdom. [32] Necessary patience in seeking the Lord is better than he that leadeth his life without a guide.

Chapter 21

[1] My son, hast thou sinned? do so no more, but ask pardon for thy former sins. [2] Flee from sin as from the face of a serpent: for if thou comest too near it, it will bite thee: the teeth thereof are as the teeth of a lion, slaying the souls of men. [3] All iniquity is as a two edged sword, the wounds whereof cannot be healed. [4] To terrify and do wrong will waste riches: thus the house of proud men shall be made desolate. [5] A prayer out of a poor man's mouth reacheth to the ears of God, and his judgment cometh speedily. [6] He that hateth to be reproved is in the way of sinners: but he that feareth the Lord will repent from his heart.

[7] An eloquent man is known far and near; but a man of understanding knoweth when he slippeth. [8] He that buildeth his house with other men's money is like one that gathereth himself stones for the tomb of his burial. [9] The congregation of the wicked is like tow wrapped together: and the end of them is a flame of fire to destroy them. [10] The way of sinners is made plain with stones, but at the end thereof is the pit of hell. [11] He that keepeth the law of the Lord getteth the understanding thereof: and the perfection of the fear of the Lord is wisdom. [12] He that is not wise will not be taught: but there is a wisdom which multiplieth bitterness. [13] The knowledge of a wise man shall abound like a flood: and his counsel is like a pure fountain of life. [14] The inner parts of a fool are like a broken vessel, and he will hold no knowledge as long as he liveth.

[15] If a skilful man hear a wise word, he will commend it, and add unto it: but as soon as one of no understanding heareth it, it displeaseth him, and he casteth it behind his back. [16] The talking of a fool is like a burden in the way: but grace shall be found in the lips of the wise. [17] They enquire at the mouth of the wise man in the congregation, and they shall ponder his words in their heart. [18] As is a house that is destroyed, so is wisdom to a fool: and the knowledge of the unwise is as talk without sense. [19] Doctrine unto fools is as fetters on the feet, and like manacles on the right hand. [20] A fool lifteth up his voice with laughter; but a wise man doth scarce smile a little. [21] Learning is unto a wise man as an ornament of gold, and like a bracelet upon his right arm.

[22] A foolish man's foot is soon in his neighbour's house: but a man of experience is ashamed of him. [23] A fool will peep in at the door into the house: but he that is well nurtured will stand without. [24] It is the rudeness of a man to hearken at the door: but a wise man will be grieved with the disgrace. [25] The lips of talkers will be telling such things as pertain not unto them: but the words of such as have understanding are weighed in the balance. [26] The heart of fools is in their mouth: but the mouth of the wise is in their heart. [27] When the ungodly curseth Satan, he curseth his own soul.

[28] A whisperer defileth his own soul, and is hated wheresoever he dwelleth.

Chapter 22

[1] A slothful man is compared to a filthy stone, and every one will hiss him out to his disgrace. [2] A slothful man is compared to the filth of a dunghill: every man that takes it up will shake his hand. [3] An evilnurtured man is the dishonour of his father that begat him: and a foolish daughter is born to his loss. [4] A wise daughter shall bring an inheritance to her husband: but she that liveth dishonestly is her father's heaviness. [5] She that is bold dishonoureth both her father and her husband, but they both shall despise her. [6] A tale out of season is as musick in mourning: but stripes and correction of wisdom are never out of time. [7] Whoso teacheth a fool is as one that glueth a potsherd together, and as he that waketh one from a sound sleep. [8] He that telleth a tale to a fool speaketh to one in a slumber: when he hath told his tale, he will say, What is the matter? [9] If children live honestly, and have wherewithal, they shall cover the baseness of their parents. [10] But children, being haughty, through disdain and want of nurture do stain the nobility of their kindred. [11] Weep for the dead, for he hath lost the light: and weep for the fool, for he wanteth understanding: make little weeping for the dead, for he is at rest: but the life of the fool is worse than death. [12] Seven days do men mourn for him that is dead; but for a fool and an ungodly man all the days of his life. [13] Talk not much with a fool, and go not to him that hath no understanding: beware of him, lest thou have trouble, and thou shalt never be defiled with his fooleries: depart from him, and thou shalt find rest, and never be disquieted with madness. [14] What is heavier than lead? and what is the name thereof, but a fool? [15] Sand, and salt, and a mass of iron, is easier to bear, than a man without understanding.

[16] As timber girt and bound together in a building cannot be loosed with shaking: so the heart that is stablished by advised counsel shall fear at no time. [17] A heart settled upon a thought of understanding is as a fair plaistering on the wall of a gallery. [18] Pales set on an high place will never stand against the wind: so a fearful heart in the imagination of a fool cannot stand against any fear.

[19] He that pricketh the eye will make tears to fall: and he that pricketh the heart maketh it to shew her knowledge. [20] Whoso casteth a stone at the birds frayeth them away: and he that upbraideth his friend breaketh friendship. [21] Though thou drewest a sword at thy friend, yet despair not: for there may be a returning to favour. [22] If thou hast opened thy mouth against thy friend, fear not; for there may be a reconciliation: except for upbraiding, or pride, or disclosing of secrets, or a treacherous wound: for for these things every friend will depart.

[23] Be faithful to thy neighbour in his poverty, that thou mayest rejoice in his prosperity: abide stedfast unto him in the time of his trouble, that thou mayest be heir with him in his heritage: for a mean estate is not always to be condemned: nor the rich that is foolish to be had in admiration. [24] As the vapour and smoke of a furnace goeth before the fire; so reviling before blood. [25] I will not be ashamed to defend a friend; neither will I hide myself from him. [26] And if any evil happen unto me by him, every one that heareth it will beware of him. [27] Who shall set a watch before my mouth, and a seal of wisdom upon my lips, that I fall not suddenly by them, and that my tongue destroy me not?

[1] O Lord, Father and Governor of all my whole life, leave me not to their counsels, and let me not fall by them. [2] Who will set scourges over my thoughts, and the discipline of wisdom over mine heart? that they spare me not for mine ignorances, and it pass not by my sins: [3] Lest mine ignorances increase, and my sins abound to my destruction, and I fall before mine adversaries, and mine enemy rejoice over me, whose hope is far from thy mercy.

[4] O Lord, Father and God of my life, give me not a proud look, but turn away from thy servants always a haughty mind. [5] Turn away from me vain hopes and concupiscence, and thou shalt hold him up that is desirous always to serve thee. [6] Let not the greediness of the belly nor lust of the flesh take hold of me; and give not over me thy servant into an impudent mind.

[7] Hear, O ye children, the discipline of the mouth: he that keepeth it shall never be taken in his lips. [8] The sinner shall be left in his foolishness: both the evil speaker and the proud shall fall thereby. [9] Accustom not thy mouth to swearing; neither use thyself to the naming of the Holy One. [10] For as a servant that is continually beaten shall not be without a blue mark: so he that sweareth and nameth God continually shall not be faultless. [11] A man that useth much swearing shall be filled with iniquity, and the plague shall never depart from his house: if he shall offend, his sin shall be upon him: and if he acknowledge not his sin, he maketh a double offence: and if he swear in vain, he shall not be innocent, but his house shall be full of calamities. [12] There is a word that is clothed about with death: God grant that it be not found in the heritage of Jacob; for all such things shall be far from the godly, and they shall not wallow in their sins. [13] Use not thy mouth to intemperate swearing, for therein is the word of sin.

[14] Remember thy father and thy mother, when thou sittest among great men. Be not forgetful before them, and so thou by thy custom become a fool, and wish that thou hadst not been born, and curse they day of thy nativity. [15] The man that is accustomed to opprobrious words will never be reformed all the days of his life.

[16] Two sorts of men multiply sin, and the third will bring wrath: a hot mind is as a burning fire, it will never be quenched till it be consumed: a fornicator in the body of his flesh will never cease till he hath kindled a fire. [17] All bread is sweet to a whoremonger, he will not leave off till he die.

[18] A man that breaketh wedlock, saying thus in his heart, Who seeth me? I am compassed about with darkness, the walls cover me, and no body seeth me; what need I to fear? the most High will not remember my sins: [19] Such a man only feareth the eyes of men, and knoweth not that the eyes of the Lord are ten thousand times brighter than the sun, beholding all the ways of men, and considering the most secret parts. [20] He knew all things ere ever they were created; so also after they were perfected he looked upon them all. [21] This man shall be punished in the streets of the city, and where he suspecteth not he shall be taken.

[22] Thus shall it go also with the wife that leaveth her husband, and bringeth in an heir by another. [23] For first, she hath disobeyed the law of the most High; and secondly, she hath trespassed against her own husband; and thirdly, she hath played the whore in adultery, and brought children by another man. [24] She shall be brought out into the congregation, and inquisition shall be made of her children. [25] Her children shall not take root, and her branches shall bring forth no fruit. [26] She shall leave her memory to be cursed, and her reproach shall not be blotted out. [27] And they that remain shall know that there is nothing better than the fear of the Lord, and that there is nothing sweeter than to take heed unto the commandments of the Lord. [28] It is great glory to follow the Lord, and to be received of him is long life.

Chapter 24

[1] Wisdom shall praise herself, and shall glory in the midst of her people. [2] In the congregation of the most High shall she open her mouth, and triumph before his power. [3] I came out of the mouth of the most High, and covered the earth as a cloud. [4] I dwelt in high places, and my throne is in a cloudy pillar. [5] I alone compassed the circuit of heaven, and walked in the bottom of the deep. [6] In the waves of the sea and in all the earth, and in every people and nation, I got a possession. [7] With all these I sought rest: and in whose inheritance shall I abide? [8] So the Creator of all things gave me a commandment, and he that made me caused my tabernacle to rest, and said, Let thy dwelling be in Jacob, and thine inheritance in Israel. [9] He created me from the beginning before the world, and I shall never fail.

[10] In the holy tabernacle I served before him; and so was I established in Sion. [11] Likewise in the beloved city he gave me rest, and in Jerusalem was my power. [12] And I took root in an honourable people, even in the portion of the Lord's inheritance. [13] I was exalted like a cedar in Libanus, and as a cypress tree upon the mountains of Hermon. [14] I was exalted like a palm tree in En-gaddi, and as a rose plant in Jericho, as a fair olive tree in a pleasant field, and grew up as a plane tree by the water. [15] I gave a sweet smell like cinnamon and aspalathus, and I yielded a pleasant odour like the best myrrh, as galbanum, and onyx, and sweet storax, and as the fume of frankincense in the tabernacle. [16] As the turpentine tree I stretched out my branches, and my branches are the branches of honour and grace.

[17] As the vine brought I forth pleasant savour, and my flowers are the fruit of honour and riches. [18] I am the mother of fair love, and fear, and knowledge, and holy hope: I therefore, being eternal, am given to all my children which are named of him. [19] Come unto me, all ye that be desirous of me, and fill yourselves with my fruits. [20] For my memorial is sweeter than honey, and mine inheritance than the honeycomb. [21] They that eat me shall yet be hungry, and they that drink me shall yet be thirsty. [22] He that obeyeth me shall never be confounded, and they that work by me shall not do amiss.

[23] All these things are the book of the covenant of the most high God, even the law which Moses commanded for an heritage unto the congregations of Jacob. [24] Faint not to be strong in the Lord; that he may confirm you, cleave unto him: for the Lord Almighty is God alone, and beside him there is no other Saviour. [25] He filleth all things with his wisdom, as Phison and as Tigris in the time of the new fruits. [26] He maketh the understanding to abound like Euphrates, and as Jordan in the time of the harvest. [27] He maketh the doctrine of knowledge appear as the light, and as Geon in the time of vintage.

[28] The first man knew her not perfectly: no more shall the last find her out. [29] For her thoughts are more than the sea, and her counsels profounder than the great deep. [30] I also came out as a brook from a river, and as a conduit into a garden. [31] I said, I will water my best garden, and will water abundantly my garden bed: and, lo, my brook became a river, and my river became a sea. [32] I will yet make doctrine to shine as the morning, and will send forth her light afar off. [33] I will yet pour out doctrine as prophecy, and leave it to all ages for ever. [34] Behold that I have not laboured for myself only, but for all them that seek wisdom.

Chapter 25

[1] In three things I was beautified, and stood up beautiful both before God and men: the unity of brethren, the love of neighbours, a man and a wife that agree together.

[2] Three sorts of men my soul hateth, and I am greatly offended at their life: a poor man that is proud, a rich man that is a liar, and an old adulterer that doateth.

[3] If thou hast gathered nothing in thy youth, how canst thou find any thing in thine age?

[4] O how comely a thing is judgment for gray hairs, and for ancient men to know counsel! [5] O how comely is the wisdom of old men, and understanding and counsel to men of honour. [6] Much experience is the crown of old men, and the fear of God is their glory.

[7] There be nine things which I have judged in mine heart to be happy, and the tenth I will utter with my tongue: A man that hath joy of his children; and he that liveth to see the fall of his enemy: [8] Well is him that dwelleth with a wife of understanding, and that hath not slipped with his tongue, and that hath not served a man more unworthy than himself: [9] Well is him that hath found prudence, and he that speaketh in the ears of them that will hear: [10] O how great is he that findeth wisdom! yet is there none above him that feareth the Lord. [11] But the love of the Lord passeth all things for illumination: he that holdeth it, whereto shall he be likened? [12] The fear of the Lord is the beginning of his love: and faith is the beginning of cleaving unto him.

[13] Give me any plague, but the plague of the heart: and any wickedness, but the wickedness of a woman: [14] And any affliction, but the affliction from them that hate me: and any revenge, but the revenge of enemies. [15] There is no head above the head of a serpent; and there is no wrath above the wrath of an enemy.

[16] I had rather dwell with a lion and a dragon, than to keep house with a wicked woman. [17] The wickedness of a woman changeth her face, and darkeneth her countenance like sackcloth. [18] Her husband shall sit among his neighbours; and when he heareth it shall sigh bitterly. [19] All wickedness is but little to the wickedness of a woman: let the portion of a sinner fall upon her.

[20] As the climbing up a sandy way is to the feet of the aged, so is a wife full of words to a quiet man. [21] Stumble not at the beauty of a woman, and desire her not for pleasure. [22] A woman, if she maintain her husband, is full of anger, impudence, and much reproach. [23] A wicked woman abateth the courage, maketh an heavy countenance and a wounded heart: a woman that will not comfort her husband in distress maketh weak hands and feeble knees. [24] Of the woman came the beginning of sin, and through her we all die. [25] Give the water no passage; neither a wicked woman liberty to gad abroad. [26] If she go not as thou wouldest have her, cut her off from thy flesh, and give her a bill of divorce, and let her go.

Chapter 26

[1] Blessed is the man that hath a virtuous wife, for the number of his days shall be double. [2] A virtuous woman rejoiceth her husband, and he shall fulfil the years of his life in peace. [3] A good wife is a good portion, which shall be given in the portion of them that fear the Lord. [4] Whether a man be rich or poor, if he have a good heart toward the Lord, he shall at all times rejoice with a cheerful countenance.

[5] There be three things that mine heart feareth; and for the fourth I was sore afraid: the slander of a city, the gathering together of an unruly multitude, and a false accusation: all these are worse than death. [6] But a grief of heart and sorrow is a woman that is jealous over another woman, and a scourge of the tongue which communicateth with all. [7] An evil wife is a yoke shaken to and fro: he that hath hold of her is as though he held a scorpion. [8] A drunken woman and a gadder abroad causeth great anger, and she will not cover her own shame. [9] The whoredom of a woman may be known in her haughty looks and eyelids. [10] If thy daughter be shameless, keep her in straitly, lest she abuse herself through overmuch liberty. [11] Watch over an impudent eye: and marvel not if she trespass against thee. [12] She will open her mouth, as a thirsty traveller when he hath found a fountain, and drink of every water near her: by every hedge will she sit down, and open her quiver against every arrow.

[13] The grace of a wife delighteth her husband, and her discretion will fatten his bones. [14] A silent and loving woman is a gift of the Lord; and there is nothing so much worth as a mind well instructed. [15] A shamefaced and faithful woman is a double grace, and her continent mind cannot be valued. [16] As the sun when it ariseth in the high heaven; so is the beauty of a good wife in the ordering of her house. [17] As the clear light is upon the holy candlestick; so is the beauty of the face in ripe age. [18] As the golden pillars are upon the sockets of silver; so are the fair feet with a constant heart.

[19] My son, keep the flower of thine age sound; and give not thy strength to strangers. [20] When thou hast gotten a fruitful possession through all the field, sow it with thine own seed, trusting in the goodness of thy stock. [21] So thy race which thou leavest shall be magnified, having the confidence of their good descent. [22] An harlot shall be accounted as spittle; but a married woman is a tower against death to her husband. [23] A wicked woman is given as a portion to a wicked man: but a godly woman is given to him that feareth the Lord. [24] A dishonest woman contemneth shame: but an honest woman will reverence her husband. [25] A shameless woman shall be counted as a dog; but she that is shamefaced will fear the Lord. [26] A woman that honoureth her husband shall be judged wise of all; but she that dishonoureth him in her pride shall be counted ungodly of all. [27] A loud crying woman and a scold shall be sought out to drive away the enemies. [28] There be two things that grieve my heart; and the third maketh me angry: a man of war that suffereth poverty; and men of understanding that are not set by; and one that returneth from righteousness to sin; the Lord prepareth such an one for the sword. ^[29] A merchant shall hardly keep himself from doing wrong; and an huckster shall not be freed from sin.

[1] Many have sinned for a small matter; and he that seeketh for abundance will turn his eyes away. [2] As a nail sticketh fast between the joinings of the stones; so doth sin stick close between buying and selling. [3] Unless a man hold himself diligently in the fear of the Lord, his house shall soon be overthrown. [4] As when one sifteth with a sieve, the refuse remaineth; so the filth of man in his talk. [5] The furnace proveth the potter's vessels; so the trial of man is in his reasoning. [6] The fruit declareth if the tree have been dressed; so is the utterance of a conceit in the heart of man.

[7] Praise no man before thou hearest him speak; for this is the trial of men. [8] If thou followest righteousness, thou shalt obtain her, and put her on, as a glorious long robe. [9] The birds will resort unto their like; so will truth return unto them that practise in her. [10] As the lion lieth in wait for the prey; so sin for them that work iniquity. [11] The discourse of a godly man is always with wisdom; but a fool changeth as the moon. [12] If thou be among the indiscreet, observe the time; but be continually among men of understanding. [13] The discourse of fools is irksome, and their sport is the wantonness of sin. [14] The talk of him that sweareth much maketh the hair stand upright; and their brawls make one stop his ears. [15] The strife of the proud is bloodshedding, and their revilings are grievous to the ear.

[16] Whoso discovereth secrets loseth his credit; and shall never find friend to his mind. [17] Love thy friend, and be faithful unto him: but if thou betrayest his secrets, follow no more after him. [18] For as a man hath destroyed his enemy; so hast thou lost the love of thy neighbour. [19] As one that letteth a bird go out of his hand, so hast thou let thy neighbour go, and shalt not get him again. [20] Follow after him no more, for he is too far off; he is as a roe escaped out of the snare. [21] As for a wound, it may be bound up; and after reviling there may be reconciliation: but he that betrayeth secrets is without hope. [22] He that winketh with the eyes worketh evil: and he that knoweth him will depart from him. [23] When thou art present, he will speak sweetly, and will admire thy words: but at the last he will writhe his mouth, and slander thy sayings. [24] I have hated many things, but nothing like him; for the Lord will hate him.

[25] Whoso casteth a stone on high casteth it on his own head; and a deceitful stroke shall make wounds. [26] Whoso diggeth a pit shall fall therein: and he that setteth a trap shall be taken therein. [27] He that worketh mischief, it shall fall upon him, and he shall not know whence it cometh. [28] Mockery and reproach are from the proud; but vengeance, as a lion, shall lie in wait for them. [29] They that rejoice at the fall of the righteous shall be taken in the snare; and anguish shall consume them before they die. [30] Malice and wrath, even these are abominations; and the sinful man shall have them both.

[1] He that revengeth shall find vengeance from the Lord, and he will surely keep his sins in remembrance. [2] Forgive thy neighbour the hurt that he hath done unto thee, so shall thy sins also be forgiven when thou prayest. [3] One man beareth hatred against another, and doth he seek pardon from the Lord? [4] He sheweth no mercy to a man, which is like himself: and doth he ask forgiveness of his own sins? [5] If he that is but flesh nourish hatred, who will intreat for pardon of his sins? [6] Remember thy end, and let enmity cease; remember corruption and death, and abide in the commandments. [7] Remember the commandments, and bear no malice to thy neighbour: remember the covenant of the Highest, and wink at ignorance. [8] Abstain from strife, and thou shalt diminish thy sins: for a furious man will kindle strife,

[9] A sinful man disquieteth friends, and maketh debate among them that be at peace. [10] As the matter of the fire is, so it burneth: and as a man's strength is, so is his wrath; and according to his riches his anger riseth; and the stronger they are which contend, the more they will be inflamed. [11] An hasty contention kindleth a fire: and an hasty fighting sheddeth blood. [12] If thou blow the spark, it shall burn: if thou spit upon it, it shall be quenched: and both these come out of thy mouth.

[13] Curse the whisperer and doubletongued: for such have destroyed many that were at peace. [14] A backbiting tongue hath disquieted many, and driven them from nation to nation: strong cities hath it pulled down, and overthrown the houses of great men. [15] A backbiting tongue hath cast out virtuous women, and deprived them of their labours. [16] Whoso hearkeneth unto it shall never find rest, and never dwell quietly.

[17] The stroke of the whip maketh marks in the flesh: but the stroke of the tongue breaketh the bones. [18] Many have fallen by the edge of the sword: but not so many as have fallen by the tongue. [19] Well is he that is defended through the venom thereof; who hath not drawn the yoke thereof, nor hath been bound in her bands. [20] For the yoke thereof is a yoke of iron, and the bands thereof are bands of brass. [21] The death thereof is an evil death, the grave were better than it. [22] It shall not have rule over them that fear God, neither shall they be burned with the flame thereof. [23] Such as forsake the Lord shall fall into it; and it shall burn in them, and not be quenched; it shall be sent upon them as a lion, and devour them as a leopard. [24] Look that thou hedge thy possession about with thorns, and bind up thy silver and gold, [25] And weigh thy words in a balance, and make a door and bar for thy mouth. [26] Beware thou slide not by it, lest thou fall before him that lieth in wait.

[1] He that is merciful will lend unto his neighbour; and he that strengtheneth his hand keepeth the commandments. [2] Lend to thy neighbour in time of his need, and pay thou thy neighbour again in due season. [3] Keep thy word, and deal faithfully with him, and thou shalt always find the thing that is necessary for thee. [4] Many, when a thing was lent them, reckoned it to be found, and put them to trouble that helped them. [5] Till he hath received, he will kiss a man's hand; and for his neighbour's money he will speak submissly: but when he should repay, he will prolong the time, and return words of grief, and complain of the time. [6] If he prevail, he shall hardly receive the half, and he will count as if he had found it: if not, he hath deprived him of his money, and he hath gotten him an enemy without cause: he payeth him with cursings and railings; and for honour he will pay him disgrace. [7] Many therefore have refused to lend for other men's ill dealing, fearing to be defrauded. [8] Yet have thou patience with a man in poor estate, and delay not to shew him mercy. [9] Help the poor for the commandment's sake, and turn him not away because of his poverty.

[10] Lose thy money for thy brother and thy friend, and let it not rust under a stone to be lost. [11] Lay up thy treasure according to the commandments of the most High, and it shall bring thee more profit than gold. [12] Shut up alms in thy storehouses: and it shall deliver thee from all affliction. [13] It shall fight for thee against thine enemies better than a mighty shield and strong spear. [14] An honest man is surety for his neighbour: but he that is impudent will forsake him. [15] Forget not the friendship of thy surety, for he hath given his life for thee. [16] A sinner will overthrow the good estate of his surety: [17] And he that is of an unthankful mind will leave him in danger that delivered him.

[18] Suretiship hath undone many of good estate, and shaken them as a wave of the sea: mighty men hath it driven from their houses, so that they wandered among strange nations. [19] A wicked man transgressing the commandments of the Lord shall fall into suretiship: and he that undertaketh and followeth other men's business for gain shall fall into suits. [20] Help thy neighbour according to thy power, and beware that thou thyself fall not into the same.

[21] The chief thing for life is water, and bread, and clothing, and an house to cover shame. [22] Better is the life of a poor man in a mean cottage, than delicate fare in another man's house. [23] Be it little or much, hold thee contented, that thou hear not the reproach of thy house. [24] For it is a miserable life to go from house to house: for where thou art a stranger, thou darest not open thy mouth. [25] Thou shalt entertain, and feast, and have no thanks: moreover thou shalt hear bitter words: [26] Come, thou stranger, and furnish a table, and feed me of that thou hast ready. [27] Give place, thou stranger, to an honourable man; my brother cometh to be lodged, and I have need of mine house. [28] These things are grievous to a man of understanding; the upbraiding of houserom, and reproaching of the lender.

Chapter 30

[1] He that loveth his son causeth him oft to feel the rod, that he may have joy of him in the end. [2] He that chastiseth his son shall have joy in him, and shall rejoyce of him among his acquaintance. [3] He that teacheth his son grieveth the enemy: and before his friends he shall rejoyce of him. [4] Though his father die, yet he is as though he were not dead: for he hath left one behind him that is like himself. [5] While he lived, he saw and rejoiced in him: and when he died, he was not sorrowful. [6] He left behind him an avenger against his enemies, and one that shall requite kindness to his friends.

[7] He that maketh too much of his son shall bind up his wounds; and his bowels will be troubled at every cry. [8] An horse not broken becometh headstrong: and a child left to himself will be wilful. [9] Cocker thy child, and he shall make thee afraid: play with him, and he will bring thee to heaviness. [10] Laugh not with him, lest thou have sorrow with him, and lest thou gnash thy teeth in the end. [11] Give him no liberty in his youth, and wink not at his follies. [12] Bow down his neck while he is young, and beat him on the sides while he is a child, lest he wax stubborn, and be disobedient unto thee, and so bring sorrow to thine heart. [13] Chastise thy son, and hold him to labour, lest his lewd behaviour be an offence unto thee.

[14] Better is the poor, being sound and strong of constitution, than a rich man that is afflicted in his body. [15] Health and good estate of body are above all gold, and a strong body above infinite wealth. [16] There is no riches above a sound body, and no joy above the joy of the heart. [17] Death is better than a bitter life or continual sickness. [18] Delicates poured upon a mouth shut up are as messes of meat set upon a grave.

[19] What good doeth the offering unto an idol? for neither can it eat nor smell: so is he that is persecuted of the Lord. [20] He seeth with his eyes and groaneth, as an eunuch that embraceth a virgin and sigheth. [21] Give not over thy mind to heaviness, and afflict not thyself in thine own counsel. [22] The gladness of the heart is the life of man, and the joyfulness of a man prolongeth his days. [23] Love thine own soul, and comfort thy heart, remove sorrow far from thee: for sorrow hath killed many, and there is no profit therein. [24] Envy and wrath shorten the life, and carefulness bringeth age before the time.

[16] I awaked up last of all, as one that gathereth after the grapegatherers: by the blessing of the Lord I profited, and filled my winepress like a gatherer of grapes. [17] Consider that I laboured not for myself only, but for all them that seek learning. [18] Hear me, O ye great men of the people, and hearken with your ears, ye rulers of the congregation. [19] Give not thy son and wife, thy brother and friend, power over thee while thou livest, and give not thy goods to another: lest it repent thee, and thou intreat for the same again. [20] As long as thou livest and hast breath in thee, give not thyself over to any. [21] For better it is that thy children should seek to thee, than that thou shouldest stand to their courtesy. [22] In all thy works keep to thyself the preeminence; leave not a stain in thine honour. [23] At the time when thou shalt end thy days, and finish thy life, distribute thine inheritance.

[24] Fodder, a wand, and burdens, are for the ass; and bread, correction, and work, for a servant. [25] If thou set thy servant to labour, thou shalt find rest: but if thou let him go idle, he shall seek liberty. [26] A yoke and a collar do bow the neck: so are tortures and torments for an evil servant. [27] Send him to labour, that he be not idle; for idleness teacheth much evil. [28] Set him to work, as is fit for him: if he be not obedient, put on more heavy fetters.

[29] But be not excessive toward any; and without discretion do nothing. [30] If thou have a servant, let him be unto thee as thyself, because thou hast bought him with a price. [31] If thou have a servant, entreat him as a brother: for thou hast need of him, as of thine own soul: if thou entreat him evil, and he run from thee, which way wilt thou go to seek him?

[1] The hopes of a man void of understanding are vain and false: and dreams lift up fools. [2] Whoso regardeth dreams is like him that catcheth at a shadow, and followeth after the wind. [3] The vision of dreams is the resemblance of one thing to another, even as the likeness of a face to a face. [4] Of an unclean thing what can be cleansed? and from that thing which is false what truth can come? [5] Divinations, and soothsayings, and dreams, are vain: and the heart fancieth, as a woman's heart in travail. [6] If they be not sent from the most High in thy visitation, set not thy heart upon them. [7] For dreams have deceived many, and they have failed that put their trust in them. [8] The law shall be found perfect without lies: and wisdom is perfection to a faithful mouth. [9] A man that hath travelled knoweth many things; and he that hath much experience will declare wisdom. [10] He that hath no experience knoweth little: but he that hath travelled is full of prudence. [11] When I travelled, I saw many things; and I understand more than I can express. [12] I was oftentimes in danger of death: yet I was delivered because of these things.

[13] The spirit of those that fear the Lord shall live; for their hope is in him that saveth them. [14] Whoso feareth the Lord shall not fear nor be afraid; for he is his hope. [15] Blessed is the soul of him that feareth the Lord: to whom doth he look? and who is his strength? [16] For the eyes of the Lord are upon them that love him, he is their mighty protection and strong stay, a defence from heat, and a cover from the sun at noon, a preservation from stumbling, and an help from falling. [17] He raiseth up the soul, and lighteneth the eyes: he giveth health, life, and blessing.

[18] He that sacrificeth of a thing wrongfully gotten, his offering is ridiculous; and the gifts of unjust men are not accepted. [19] The most High is not pleased with the offerings of the wicked; neither is he pacified for sin by the multitude of sacrifices. [20] Whoso bringeth an offering of the goods of the poor doeth as one that killeth the son before his father's eyes. [21] The bread of the needy is their life: he that defraudeth him thereof is a man of blood. [22] He that taketh away his neighbour's living slayeth him; and he that defraudeth the labourer of his hire is a bloodshedder.

[23] When one buildeth, and another pulleth down, what profit have they then but labour? [24] When one prayeth, and another curseth, whose voice will the Lord hear? [25] He that washeth himself after the touching of a dead body, if he touch it again, what availeth his washing? [26] So is it with a man that fasteth for his sins, and goeth again, and doeth the same: who will hear his prayer? or what doth his humbling profit him?

Chapter 32

[1] He that keepeth the law bringeth offerings enough: he that taketh heed to the commandment offereth a peace offering. [2] He that requiteth a good turn offereth fine flour; and he that giveth alms sacrificeth praise. [3] To depart from wickedness is a thing pleasing to the Lord; and to forsake unrighteousness is a propitiation.

[4] Thou shalt not appear empty before the Lord. [5] For all these things are to be done because of the commandment. [6] The offering of the righteous maketh the altar fat, and the sweet savour thereof is before the most High. [7] The sacrifice of a just man is acceptable. and the memorial thereof shall never be forgotten.

[8] Give the Lord his honour with a good eye, and diminish not the firstfruits of thine hands. [9] In all thy gifts shew a cheerful countenance, and dedicate thy tithes with gladness. [10] Give unto the most High according as he hath enriched thee; and as thou hast gotten, give with a cheerful eye. [11] For the Lord recompenseth, and will give thee seven times as much. [12] Do not think to corrupt with gifts; for such he will not receive: and trust not to unrighteous sacrifices; for the Lord is judge, and with him is no respect of persons. [13] He will not accept any person against a poor man, but will hear the prayer of the oppressed. [14] He will not despise the supplication of the fatherless; nor the widow, when she poureth out her complaint. [15] Do not the tears run down the widow's cheeks? and is not her cry against him that causeth them to fall?

[16] He that serveth the Lord shall be accepted with favour, and his prayer shall reach unto the clouds. [17] The prayer of the humble pierceth the clouds: and till it come nigh, he will not be comforted; and will not depart, till the most High shall behold to judge righteously, and execute judgment. [18] For the Lord will not be slack, neither will the Mighty be patient toward them, till he have smitten in sunder the loins of the unmerciful, and repayed vengeance to the heathen; till he have taken away the multitude of the proud, and broken the sceptre of the unrighteous; [19] Till he have rendered to every man according to his deeds, and to the works of men according to their devices; till he have judged the cause of his people, and made them to rejoice in his mercy. [20] Mercy is seasonable in the time of affliction, as clouds of rain in the time of drought.

[1] Have mercy upon us, O Lord God of all, and behold us: [2] And send thy fear upon all the nations that seek not after thee. [3] Lift up thy hand against the strange nations, and let them see thy power. [4] As thou wast sanctified in us before them: so be thou magnified among them before us. [5] And let them know thee, as we have known thee, that there is no God but only thou, O God.

[6] Shew new signs, and make other strange wonders: glorify thy hand and thy right arm, that they may set forth thy wondrous works. [7] Raise up indignation, and pour out wrath: take away the adversary, and destroy the enemy. [8] Sake the time short, remember the covenant, and let them declare thy wonderful works. [9] Let him that escapeth be consumed by the rage of the fire; and let them perish that oppress the people. [10] Smite in sunder the heads of the rulers of the heathen, that say, There is none other but we. [11] Gather all the tribes of Jacob together, and inherit thou them, as from the beginning. [12] A cheerful and good heart will have a care of his meat and diet.

[1] Watching for riches consumeth the flesh, and the care thereof driveth away sleep. [2] Watching care will not let a man slumber, as a sore disease breaketh sleep, [3] The rich hath great labour in gathering riches together; and when he resteth, he is filled with his delicates. [4] The poor laboureth in his poor estate; and when he leaveth off, he is still needy.

[5] He that loveth gold shall not be justified, and he that followeth corruption shall have enough thereof. [6] Gold hath been the ruin of many, and their destruction was present. [7] It is a stumblingblock unto them that sacrifice unto it, and every fool shall be taken therewith. [8] Blessed is the rich that is found without blemish, and hath not gone after gold. [9] Who is he? and we will call him blessed: for wonderful things hath he done among his people. [10] Who hath been tried thereby, and found perfect? then let him glory. Who might offend, and hath not offended? or done evil, and hath not done it? [11] His goods shall be established, and the congregation shall declare his alms.

[12] If thou sit at a bountiful table, be not greedy upon it, and say not, There is much meat on it. [13] Remember that a wicked eye is an evil thing: and what is created more wicked than an eye? therefore it weepeth upon every occasion. [14] Stretch not thine hand whithersoever it looketh, and thrust it not with him into the dish. [15] Judge not thy neighbour by thyself: and be discreet in every point. [16] Eat as it becometh a man, those things which are set before thee; and devour note, lest thou be hated. [17] Leave off first for manners' sake; and be not unsatiable, lest thou offend. [18] When thou sittest among many, reach not thine hand out first of all. [19] A very little is sufficient for a man well nurtured, and he fetcheth not his wind short upon his bed. [20] Sound sleep cometh of moderate eating: he riseth early, and his wits are with him: but the pain of watching, and choler, and pangs of the belly, are with an unsatiable man. [21] And if thou hast been forced to eat, arise, go forth, vomit, and thou shalt have rest.

[22] My son, hear me, and despise me not, and at the last thou shalt find as I told thee: in all thy works be quick, so shall there no sickness come unto thee. [23] Whoso is liberal of his meat, men shall speak well of him; and the report of his good housekeeping will be believed. [24] But against him that is a niggard of his meat the whole city shall murmur; and the testimonies of his niggardness shall not be doubted of.

[25] Shew not thy valiantness in wine; for wine hath destroyed many. [26] The furnace proveth the edge by dipping: so doth wine the hearts of the proud by drunkenness. [27] Wine is as good as life to a man, if it be drunk moderately: what life is then to a man that is without wine? for it was made to make men glad. [28] Wine measurably drunk and in season bringeth gladness of the heart, and cheerfulness of the mind: [29] But wine drunken with excess maketh bitterness of the mind, with brawling and quarrelling. [30] Drunkenness increaseth the rage of a fool till he offend: it diminisheth strength, and maketh wounds. [31] Rebuke not thy neighbour at the wine, and despise him not in his mirth: give him no despiteful words, and press not upon him with urging him to drink.

[1] If thou be made the master of a feast, lift not thyself up, but be among them as one of the rest; take diligent care for them, and so sit down. [2] And when thou hast done all thy office, take thy place, that thou mayest be merry with them, and receive a crown for thy well ordering of the feast. [3] Speak, thou that art the elder, for it becometh thee, but with sound judgment; and hinder not musick. [4] Pour not out words where there is a musician, and shew not forth wisdom out of time. [5] A concert of musick in a banquet of wine is as a signet of carbuncle set in gold. [6] As a signet of an emerald set in a work of gold, so is the melody of musick with pleasant wine.

[7] Speak, young man, if there be need of thee: and yet scarcely when thou art twice asked. [8] Let thy speech be short, comprehending much in few words; be as one that knoweth and yet holdeth his tongue. [9] If thou be among great men, make not thyself equal with them; and when ancient men are in place, use not many words. [10] Before the thunder goeth lightning; and before a shamefaced man shall go favour. [11] Rise up betimes, and be not the last; but get thee home without delay. [12] There take thy pastime, and do what thou wilt: but sin not by proud speech. [13] And for these things bless him that made thee, and hath replenished thee with his good things.

[14] Whoso feareth the Lord will receive his discipline; and they that seek him early shall find favour. [15] He that seeketh the law shall be filled therewith: but the hypocrite will be offended thereat. [16] They that fear the Lord shall find judgment, and shall kindle justice as a light. [17] A sinful man will not be reprov'd, but findeth an excuse according to his will. [18] A man of counsel will be considerate; but a strange and proud man is not daunted with fear, even when of himself he hath done without counsel. [19] Do nothing without advice; and when thou hast once done, repent not.

[20] Go not in a way wherein thou mayest fall, and stumble not among the stones. [21] Be not confident in a plain way. [22] And beware of thine own children. [23] In every good work trust thy own soul; for this is the keeping of the commandments. [24] He that believeth in the Lord taketh heed to the commandment; and he that trusteth in him shall fare never the worse.

[1] There shall no evil happen unto him that feareth the Lord; but in temptation even again he will deliver him. [2] A wise man hateth not the law; but he that is an hypocrite therein is as a ship in a storm. [3] A man of understanding trusteth in the law; and the law is faithful unto him, as an oracle. [4] Prepare what to say, and so thou shalt be heard: and bind up instruction, and then make answer. [5] The heart of the foolish is like a cartwheel; and his thoughts are like a rolling axletree. [6] A stallion horse is as a mocking friend, he neigheth under every one that sitteth upon him.

[7] Why doth one day excel another, when as all the light of every day in the year is of the sun? [8] By the knowledge of the Lord they were distinguished: and he altered seasons and feasts. [9] Some of them hath he made high days, and hallowed them, and some of them hath he made ordinary days.

[10] And all men are from the ground, and Adam was created of earth: [11] In much knowledge the Lord hath divided them, and made their ways diverse. [12] Some of them hath he blessed and exalted and some of them he sanctified, and set near himself: but some of them hath he cursed and brought low, and turned out of their places. [13] As the clay is in the potter's hand, to fashion it at his pleasure: so man is in the hand of him that made him, to render to them as liketh him best. [14] Good is set against evil, and life against death: so is the godly against the sinner, and the sinner against the godly. [15] So look upon all the works of the most High; and there are two and two, one against another.

[11] Though I was the last to wake up, yet I received their inheritance as from the beginning. [12] O Lord, have mercy upon the people that is called by thy name, and upon Israel, whom thou hast named thy firstborn. [13] O be merciful unto Jerusalem, thy holy city, the place of thy rest. [14] Fill Sion with thine unspeakable oracles, and thy people with thy glory: [15] Give testimony unto those that thou hast possessed from the beginning, and raise up prophets that have been in thy name. [16] Reward them that wait for thee, and let thy prophets be found faithful.

[17] O Lord, hear the prayer of thy servants, according to the blessing of Aaron over thy people, that all they which dwell upon the earth may know that thou art the Lord, the eternal God. [18] The belly devoureth all meats, yet is one meat better than another. [19] As the palate tasteth divers kinds of venison: so doth an heart of understanding false speeches. [20] A froward heart causeth heaviness: but a man of experience will recompense him.

[21] A woman will receive every man, yet is one daughter better than another. [22] The beauty of a woman cheereth the countenance, and a man loveth nothing better. [23] If there be kindness, meekness, and comfort, in her tongue, then is not her husband like other men.

[24] He that getteth a wife beginneth a possession, a help like unto himself, and a pillar of rest. [25] Where no hedge is, there the possession is spoiled: and he that hath no wife will wander up and down mourning. [26] Who will trust a thief well appointed, that skippeth from city to city? so who will believe a man that hath no house, and lodgeth wheresoever the night taketh him?

Chapter 37

[1] Every friend saith, I am his friend also: but there is a friend, which is only a friend in name. [2] Is it not a grief unto death, when a companion and friend is turned to an enemy? [3] O wicked imagination, whence camest thou in to cover the earth with deceit? [4] There is a companion, which rejoiceth in the prosperity of a friend, but in the time of trouble will be against him. [5] There is a companion, which helpeth his friend for the belly, and taketh up the buckler against the enemy. [6] Forget not thy friend in thy mind, and be not unmindful of him in thy riches.

[7] Every counsellor extolleth counsel; but there is some that counselleth for himself. [8] Beware of a counsellor, and know before what need he hath; for he will counsel for himself; lest he cast the lot upon thee, [9] And say unto thee, Thy way is good: and afterward he stand on the other side, to see what shall befall thee. [10] Consult not with one that suspecteth thee: and hide thy counsel from such as envy thee. [11] Neither consult with a woman touching her of whom she is jealous; neither with a coward in matters of war; nor with a merchant concerning exchange; nor with a buyer of selling; nor with an envious man of thankfulness; nor with an unmerciful man touching kindness; nor with the slothful for any work; nor with an hireling for a year of finishing work; nor with an idle servant of much business: hearken not unto these in any matter of counsel.

[12] But be continually with a godly man, whom thou knowest to keep the commandments of the Lord, whose mind is according to thy mind, and will sorrow with thee, if thou shalt miscarry. [13] And let the counsel of thine own heart stand: for there is no man more faithful unto thee than it. [14] For a man's mind is sometime wont to tell him more than seven watchmen, that sit above in an high tower. [15] And above all this pray to the most High, that he will direct thy way in truth. [16] Let reason go before every enterprise, and counsel before every action.

[17] The countenance is a sign of changing of the heart. [18] Four manner of things appear: good and evil, life and death: but the tongue ruleth over them continually. [19] There is one that is wise and teacheth many, and yet is unprofitable to himself. [20] There is one that sheweth wisdom in words, and is hated: he shall be destitute of all food. [21] For grace is not given, him from the Lord, because he is deprived of all wisdom. [22] Another is wise to himself; and the fruits of understanding are commendable in his mouth.

[23] A wise man instructeth his people; and the fruits of his understanding fail not. [24] A wise man shall be filled with blessing; and all they that see him shall count him happy. [25] The days of the life of man may be numbered: but the days of Israel are innumerable. [26] A wise man shall inherit glory among his people, and his name shall be perpetual.

[27] My son, prove thy soul in thy life, and see what is evil for it, and give not that unto it. [28] For all things are not profitable for all men, neither hath every soul pleasure in every thing. [29] Be not unsatiable in any dainty thing, nor too greedy upon meats: [30] For excess of meats bringeth sickness, and surfeiting will turn into choler. [31] By surfeiting have many perished; but he that taketh heed prolongeth his life.

Chapter 38

[1] Honour a physician with the honour due unto him for the uses which ye may have of him: for the Lord hath created him. [2] For of the most High cometh healing, and he shall receive honour of the king. [3] The skill of the physician shall lift up his head: and in the sight of great men he shall be in admiration. [4] The Lord hath created medicines out of the earth; and he that is wise will not abhor them. [5] Was not the water made sweet with wood, that the virtue thereof might be known? [6] And he hath given men skill, that he might be honoured in his marvellous works. [7] With such doth he heal men, and taketh away their pains. [8] Of such doth the apothecary make a confection; and of his works there is no end; and from him is peace over all the earth,

[9] My son, in thy sickness be not negligent: but pray unto the Lord, and he will make thee whole. [10] Leave off from sin, and order thine hands aright, and cleanse thy heart from all wickedness. [11] Give a sweet savour, and a memorial of fine flour; and make a fat offering, as not being. [12] Then give place to the physician, for the Lord hath created him: let him not go from thee, for thou hast need of him. [13] There is a time when in their hands there is good success. [14] For they shall also pray unto the Lord, that he would prosper that, which they give for ease and remedy to prolong life. [15] He that sinneth before his Maker, let him fall into the hand of the physician.

[16] My son, let tears fall down over the dead, and begin to lament, as if thou hadst suffered great harm thyself; and then cover his body according to the custom, and neglect not his burial. [17] Weep bitterly, and make great moan, and use lamentation, as he is worthy, and that a day or two, lest thou be evil spoken of: and then comfort thyself for thy heaviness. [18] For of heaviness cometh death, and the heaviness of the heart breaketh strength. [19] In affliction also sorrow remaineth: and the life of the poor is the curse of the heart. [20] Take no heaviness to heart: drive it away, and member the last end. [21] Forget it not, for there is no turning again: thou shalt not do him good, but hurt thyself. [22] Remember my judgment: for thine also shall be so; yesterday for me, and to day for thee. [23] When the dead is at rest, let his remembrance rest; and be comforted for him, when his Spirit is departed from him.

[24] The wisdom of a learned man cometh by opportunity of leisure: and he that hath little business shall become wise. [25] How can he get wisdom that holdeth the plough, and that glorieth in the goad, that driveth oxen, and is occupied in their labours, and whose talk is of bullocks? [26] He giveth his mind to make furrows; and is diligent to give the kine fodder. [27] So every carpenter and workmaster, that laboureth night and day: and they that cut and grave seals, and are diligent to make great variety, and give themselves to counterfeit imagery, and watch to finish a work:

[28] The smith also sitting by the anvil, and considering the iron work, the vapour of the fire wasteth his flesh, and he fighteth with the heat of the furnace: the noise of the hammer and the anvil is ever in his ears, and his eyes look still upon the pattern of the thing that he maketh; he setteth his mind to finish his work, and watcheth to polish it perfectly:

[29] So doth the potter sitting at his work, and turning the wheel about with his feet, who is alway carefully set at his work, and maketh all his work by number; [30] He fashioneth the clay with his arm, and boweth down his strength before his feet; he applieth himself to lead it over; and he is diligent to make clean the furnace: [31] All these trust to their hands: and every one is wise in his work. [32] Without these cannot a city be inhabited: and they shall not dwell where they will, nor go up and down: [33] They shall not be sought for in publick counsel, nor sit high in the congregation: they shall not sit on the judges' seat, nor understand the sentence of judgment: they cannot declare justice and judgment; and they shall not be found where parables are spoken. [34] But they will maintain the state of the world, and all their desire is in the work of their craft.

[1] But he that giveth his mind to the law of the most High, and is occupied in the meditation thereof, will seek out the wisdom of all the ancient, and be occupied in prophecies. [2] He will keep the sayings of the renowned men: and where subtil parables are, he will be there also. [3] He will seek out the secrets of grave sentences, and be conversant in dark parables. [4] He shall serve among great men, and appear before princes: he will travel through strange countries; for he hath tried the good and the evil among men. [5] He will give his heart to resort early to the Lord that made him, and will pray before the most High, and will open his mouth in prayer, and make supplication for his sins.

[6] When the great Lord will, he shall be filled with the spirit of understanding: he shall pour out wise sentences, and give thanks unto the Lord in his prayer. [7] He shall direct his counsel and knowledge, and in his secrets shall he meditate. [8] He shall shew forth that which he hath learned, and shall glory in the law of the covenant of the Lord. [9] Many shall commend his understanding; and so long as the world endureth, it shall not be blotted out; his memorial shall not depart away, and his name shall live from generation to generation. [10] Nations shall shew forth his wisdom, and the congregation shall declare his praise. [11] If he die, he shall leave a greater name than a thousand: and if he live, he shall increase it. [12] Yet have I more to say, which I have thought upon; for I am filled as the moon at the full.

[13] Hearken unto me, ye holy children, and bud forth as a rose growing by the brook of the field: [14] And give ye a sweet savour as frankincense, and flourish as a lily, send forth a smell, and sing a song of praise, bless the Lord in all his works. [15] Magnify his name, and shew forth his praise with the songs of your lips, and with harps, and in praising him ye shall say after this manner: [16] All the works of the Lord are exceeding good, and whatsoever he commandeth shall be accomplished in due season. [17] And none may say, What is this? wherefore is that? for at time convenient they shall all be sought out: at his commandment the waters stood as an heap, and at the words of his mouth the receptacles of waters. [18] At his commandment is done whatsoever pleaseth him; and none can hinder, when he will save. [19] The works of all flesh are before him, and nothing can be hid from his eyes. [20] He seeth from everlasting to everlasting; and there is nothing wonderful before him.

[21] A man need not to say, What is this? wherefore is that? for he hath made all things for their uses. [22] His blessing covered the dry land as a river, and watered it as a flood. [23] As he hath turned the waters into saltness: so shall the heathen inherit his wrath.

[24] As his ways are plain unto the holy; so are they stumblingblocks unto the wicked. [25] For the good are good things created from the beginning: so evil things for sinners. [26] The principal things for the whole use of man's life are water, fire, iron, and salt, flour of wheat, honey, milk, and the blood of the grape, and oil, and clothing. [27] All these things are for good to the godly: so to the sinners they are turned into evil.

[28] There be spirits that are created for vengeance, which in their fury lay on sore strokes; in the time of destruction they pour out their force, and appease the wrath of him that made them. [29] Fire, and hail, and famine, and death, all these were created for vengeance; [30] Teeth of wild beasts, and scorpions, serpents, and the sword punishing the wicked to destruction. [31] They shall rejoice in his commandment, and they shall be ready upon earth, when need is; and when their time is come, they shall not transgress his word.

[32] Therefore from the beginning I was resolved, and thought upon these things, and have left them in writing. [33] All the works of the Lord are good: and he will give every needful thing in due season. [34] So that a man cannot say, This is worse than that: for in time they shall all be well approved. [35] And therefore praise ye the Lord with the whole heart and mouth, and bless the name of the Lord.

[1] Great travail is created for every man, and an heavy yoke is upon the sons of Adam, from the day that they go out of their mother's womb, till the day that they return to the mother of all things. [2] Their imagination of things to come, and the day of death, trouble their thoughts, and cause fear of heart; [3] From him that sitteth on a throne of glory, unto him that is humbled in earth and ashes; [4] From him that weareth purple and a crown, unto him that is clothed with a linen frock. [5] Wrath, and envy, trouble, and unquietness, fear of death, and anger, and strife, and in the time of rest upon his bed his night sleep, do change his knowledge. [6] A little or nothing is his rest, and afterward he is in his sleep, as in a day of keeping watch, troubled in the vision of his heart, as if he were escaped out of a battle. [7] When all is safe, he awaketh, and marvelleth that the fear was nothing.

[8] Such things happen unto all flesh, both man and beast, and that is sevenfold more upon sinners. [9] Death, and bloodshed, strife, and sword, calamities, famine, tribulation, and the scourge; [10] These things are created for the wicked, and for their sakes came the flood. [11] All things that are of the earth shall turn to the earth again: and that which is of the waters doth return into the sea. [12] All bribery and injustice shall be blotted out: but true dealing shall endure for ever. [13] The goods of the unjust shall be dried up like a river, and shall vanish with noise, like a great thunder in rain.

[14] While he openeth his hand he shall rejoyce: so shall transgressors come to nought. [15] The children of the ungodly shall not bring forth many branches: but are as unclean roots upon a hard rock. [16] The weed growing upon every water and bank of a river shall be pulled up before all grass.

[17] Bountifulness is as a most fruitful garden, and mercifulness endureth for ever. [18] To labour, and to be content with that a man hath, is a sweet life: but he that findeth a treasure is above them both. [19] Children and the building of a city continue a man's name: but a blameless wife is counted above them both. [20] Wine and musick rejoyce the heart: but the love of wisdom is above them both.

[21] The pipe and the psaltery make sweet melody: but a pleasant tongue is above them both. [22] Thine eye desireth favour and beauty: but more than both corn while it is green. [23] A friend and companion never meet amiss: but above both is a wife with her husband. [24] Brethren and help are against time of trouble: but alms shall deliver more than them both. [25] Gold and silver make the foot stand sure: but counsel is esteemed above them both. [26] Riches and strength lift up the heart: but the fear of the Lord is above them both: there is no want in the fear of the Lord, and it needeth not to seek help. [27] The fear of the Lord is a fruitful garden, and covereth him above all glory.

[28] My son, lead not a beggar's life; for better it is to die than to beg. [29] The life of him that dependeth on another man's table is not to be counted for a life; for he polluteth himself with other men's meat: but a wise man well nurtured will beware thereof. [30] Begging is sweet in the mouth of the shameless: but in his belly there shall burn a fire.

Chapter 41

[1] O death, how bitter is the remembrance of thee to a man that liveth at rest in his possessions, unto the man that hath nothing to vex him, and that hath prosperity in all things: yea, unto him that is yet able to receive meat! [2] O death, acceptable is thy sentence unto the needy, and unto him whose strength faileth, that is now in the last age, and is vexed with all things, and to him that despaireth, and hath lost patience! [3] Fear not the sentence of death, remember them that have been before thee, and that come after; for this is the sentence of the Lord over all flesh. [4] And why art thou against the pleasure of the most High? there is no inquisition in the grave, whether thou have lived ten, or an hundred, or a thousand years.

[5] The children of sinners are abominable children, and they that are conversant in the dwelling of the ungodly. [6] The inheritance of sinners' children shall perish, and their posterity shall have a perpetual reproach. [7] The children will complain of an ungodly father, because they shall be reproached for his sake. [8] Woe be unto you, ungodly men, which have forsaken the law of the most high God! for if ye increase, it shall be to your destruction: [9] And if ye be born, ye shall be born to a curse: and if ye die, a curse shall be your portion.

[10] All that are of the earth shall turn to earth again: so the ungodly shall go from a curse to destruction.

[11] The mourning of men is about their bodies: but an ill name of sinners shall be blotted out. [12] Have regard to thy name; for that shall continue with thee above a thousand great treasures of gold. [13] A good life hath but few days: but a good name endureth for ever. [14] My children, keep discipline in peace: for wisdom that is hid, and a treasure that is not seen, what profit is in them both? [15] A man that hideth his foolishness is better than a man that hideth his wisdom. [16] Therefore be shamefaced according to my word: for it is not good to retain all shamefacedness; neither is it altogether approved in every thing.

[17] Be ashamed of whoredom before father and mother: and of a lie before a prince and a mighty man; [18] Of an offence before a judge and ruler; of iniquity before a congregation and people; of unjust dealing before thy partner and friend; [19] And of theft in regard of the place where thou sojournest, and in regard of the truth of God and his covenant; and to lean with thine elbow upon the meat; and of scorning to give and take; [20] And of silence before them that salute thee; and to look upon an harlot; [21] And to turn away thy face from thy kinsman; or to take away a portion or a gift; or to gaze upon another man's wife. [22] Or to be overbusy with his maid, and come not near her bed; or of upbraiding speeches before friends; and after thou hast given, upbraid not;

[1] Or of iterating and speaking again that which thou hast heard; and of revealing of secrets. So shalt thou be truly shamefaced and find favour before all men. Of these things be not thou ashamed, and accept no person to sin thereby: [2] Of the law of the most High, and his covenant; and of judgment to justify the ungodly; [3] Of reckoning with thy partners and travellers; or of the gift of the heritage of friends; [4] Of exactness of balance and weights; or of getting much or little; [5] And of merchants' indifferent selling; of much correction of children; and to make the side of an evil servant to bleed.

[6] Sure keeping is good, where an evil wife is; and shut up, where many hands are. [7] Deliver all things in number and weight; and put all in writing that thou givest out, or receivest in. [8] Be not ashamed to inform the unwise and foolish, and the extreme aged that contendeth with those that are young: thus shalt thou be truly learned, and approved of all men living.

[9] A daughter is a wakeful care to a father; and the care for her taketh away sleep: when she is young, lest she pass away the flower of her age; and being married, lest she should be hated: [10] In her virginity, lest she should be defiled and gotten with child in her father's house; and having an husband, lest she should misbehave herself; and when she is married, lest she should be barren. [11] Keep a sure watch over a shameless daughter, lest she make thee a laughingstock to thine enemies, and a byword in the city, and a reproach among the people, and make thee ashamed before the multitude. [12] Behold not every body's beauty, and sit not in the midst of women. [13] For from garments cometh a moth, and from women wickedness. [14] Better is the churlishness of a man than a courteous woman, a woman, I say, which bringeth shame and reproach.

[15] I will now remember the works of the Lord, and declare the things that I have seen: In the words of the Lord are his works. [16] The sun that giveth light looketh upon all things, and the work thereof is full of the glory of the Lord.

[17] The Lord hath not given power to the saints to declare all his marvellous works, which the Almighty Lord firmly settled, that whatsoever is might be established for his glory. [18] He seeketh out the deep, and the heart, and considereth their crafty devices: for the Lord knoweth all that may be known, and he beholdeth the signs of the world. [19] He declareth the things that are past, and for to come, and revealeth the steps of hidden things. [20] No thought escapeth him, neither any word is hidden from him.

[21] He hath garnished the excellent works of his wisdom, and he is from everlasting to everlasting: unto him may nothing be added, neither can he be diminished, and he hath no need of any counsellor. [22] Oh how desirable are all his works! and that a man may see even to a spark. [23] All these things live and remain for ever for all uses, and they are all obedient. [24] All things are double one against another: and he hath made nothing imperfect. [25] One thing establisheth the good or another: and who shall be filled with beholding his glory?

[1] The pride of the height, the clear firmament, the beauty of heaven, with his glorious shew; [2] The sun when it appeareth, declaring at his rising a marvellous instrument, the work of the most High: [3] At noon it parcheth the country, and who can abide the burning heat thereof? [4] A man blowing a furnace is in works of heat, but the sun burneth the mountains three times more; breathing out fiery vapours, and sending forth bright beams, it dimmeth the eyes. [5] Great is the Lord that made it; and at his commandment runneth hastily. [6] He made the moon also to serve in her season for a declaration of times, and a sign of the world. [7] From the moon is the sign of feasts, a light that decreaseth in her perfection. [8] The month is called after her name, increasing wonderfully in her changing, being an instrument of the armies above, shining in the firmament of heaven; [9] The beauty of heaven, the glory of the stars, an ornament giving light in the highest places of the Lord. [10] At the commandment of the Holy One they will stand in their order, and never faint in their watches. [11] Look upon the rainbow, and praise him that made it; very beautiful it is in the brightness thereof. [12] It compasseth the heaven about with a glorious circle, and the hands of the most High have bended it. [13] By his commandment he maketh the snow to fall apace, and sendeth swiftly the lightnings of his judgment. [14] Through this the treasures are opened: and clouds fly forth as fowls. [15] By his great power he maketh the clouds firm, and the hailstones are broken small.

[16] At his sight the mountains are shaken, and at his will the south wind bloweth. [17] The noise of the thunder maketh the earth to tremble: so doth the northern storm and the whirlwind: as birds flying he scattereth the snow, and the falling down thereof is as the lighting of grasshoppers: [18] The eye marvelleth at the beauty of the whiteness thereof, and the heart is astonished at the raining of it. [19] The hoarfrost also as salt he poureth on the earth, and being congealed, it lieth on the top of sharp stakes.

[20] When the cold north wind bloweth, and the water is congealed into ice, it abideth upon every gathering together of water, and clotheth the water as with a breastplate. [21] It devoureth the mountains, and burneth the wilderness, and consumeth the grass as fire. [22] A present remedy of all is a mist coming speedily, a dew coming after heat refresheth.

[23] By his counsel he appeaseth the deep, and planteth islands therein. [24] They that sail on the sea tell of the danger thereof; and when we hear it with our ears, we marvel thereat. [25] For therein be strange and wondrous works, variety of all kinds of beasts and whales created. [26] By him the end of them hath prosperous success, and by his word all things consist.

[27] We may speak much, and yet come short: wherefore in sum, he is all. [28] How shall we be able to magnify him? for he is great above all his works. [29] The Lord is terrible and very great, and marvellous is his power. [30] When ye glorify the Lord, exalt him as much as ye can; for even yet will he far exceed: and when ye exalt him, put forth all your strength, and be not weary; for ye can never go far enough. [31] Who hath seen him, that he might tell us? and who can magnify him as he is? [32] There are yet hid greater things than these be, for we have seen but a few of his works. [33] For the Lord hath made all things; and to the godly hath he given wisdom.

[1] Let us now praise famous men, and our fathers that begat us. [2] The Lord hath wrought great glory by them through his great power from the beginning. [3] Such as did bear rule in their kingdoms, men renowned for their power, giving counsel by their understanding, and declaring prophecies: [4] Leaders of the people by their counsels, and by their knowledge of learning meet for the people, wise and eloquent are their instructions: [5] Such as found out musical tunes, and recited verses in writing: [6] Rich men furnished with ability, living peaceably in their habitations: [7] All these were honoured in their generations, and were the glory of their times. [8] There be of them, that have left a name behind them, that their praises might be reported. [9] And some there be, which have no memorial; who are perished, as though they had never been; and are become as though they had never been born; and their children after them.

[10] But these were merciful men, whose righteousness hath not been forgotten. [11] With their seed shall continually remain a good inheritance, and their children are within the covenant. [12] Their seed standeth fast, and their children for their sakes. [13] Their seed shall remain for ever, and their glory shall not be blotted out. [14] Their bodies are buried in peace; but their name liveth for evermore. [15] The people will tell of their wisdom, and the congregation will shew forth their praise.

[16] Enoch pleased the Lord, and was translated, being an example of repentance to all generations. [17] Noah was found perfect and righteous; in the time of wrath he was taken in exchange for the world; therefore was he left as a remnant unto the earth, when the flood came. [18] An everlasting covenant was made with him, that all flesh should perish no more by the flood.

[19] Abraham was a great father of many people: in glory was there none like unto him; [20] Who kept the law of the most High, and was in covenant with him: he established the covenant in his flesh; and when he was proved, he was found faithful. [21] Therefore he assured him by an oath, that he would bless the nations in his seed, and that he would multiply him as the dust of the earth, and exalt his seed as the stars, and cause them to inherit from sea to sea, and from the river unto the utmost part of the land.

[22] With Isaac did he establish likewise for Abraham his father's sake the blessing of all men, and the covenant, [23] And made it rest upon the head of Jacob. He acknowledged him in his blessing, and gave him an heritage, and divided his portions; among the twelve tribes did he part them. [24] And he brought out of him a merciful man, which found favour in the sight of all flesh, even Moses, beloved of God and men, whose memorial is blessed.

[1] 2 He made him like to the glorious saints, and magnified him, so that his enemies stood in fear of him. [3] By his words he caused the wonders to cease, and he made him glorious in the sight of kings, and gave him a commandment for his people, and shewed him part of his glory. [4] He sanctified him in his faithfulness and meekness, and chose him out of all men. [5] He made him to hear his voice, and brought him into the dark cloud, and gave him commandments before his face, even the law of life and knowledge, that he might teach Jacob his covenants, and Israel his judgments.

[6] He exalted Aaron, an holy man like unto him, even his brother, of the tribe of Levi. [7] An everlasting covenant he made with him and gave him the priesthood among the people; he beautified him with comely ornaments, and clothed him with a robe of glory. [8] He put upon him perfect glory; and strengthened him with rich garments, with breeches, with a long robe, and the ephod. [9] And he compassed him with pomegranates, and with many golden bells round about, that as he went there might be a sound, and a noise made that might be heard in the temple, for a memorial to the children of his people; [10] With an holy garment, with gold, and blue silk, and purple, the work of the embroiderer, with a breastplate of judgment, and with Urim and Thummim; [11] With twisted scarlet, the work of the cunning workman, with precious stones graven like seals, and set in gold, the work of the jeweller, with a writing engraved for a memorial, after the number of the tribes of Israel. [12] He set a crown of gold upon the mitre, wherein was engraved Holiness, an ornament of honour, a costly work, the desires of the eyes, goodly and beautiful.

[13] Before him there were none such, neither did ever any stranger put them on, but only his children and his children's children perpetually. [14] Their sacrifices shall be wholly consumed every day twice continually.

[15] Moses consecrated him, and anointed him with holy oil: this was appointed unto him by an everlasting covenant, and to his seed, so long as the heavens should remain, that they should minister unto him, and execute the office of the priesthood, and bless the people in his name.

[16] He chose him out of all men living to offer sacrifices to the Lord, incense, and a sweet savour, for a memorial, to make reconciliation for his people. [17] He gave unto him his commandments, and authority in the statutes of judgments, that he should teach Jacob the testimonies, and inform Israel in his laws.

[18] Strangers conspired together against him, and maligned him in the wilderness, even the men that were of Dathan's and Abiron's side, and the congregation of Core, with fury and wrath.

[19] This the Lord saw, and it displeased him, and in his wrathful indignation were they consumed: he did wonders upon them, to consume them with the fiery flame. [20] But he made Aaron more honourable, and gave him an heritage, and divided unto him the firstfruits of the increase; especially he prepared bread in abundance: [21] For they eat of the sacrifices of the Lord, which he gave unto him and his seed. [22] Howbeit in the land of the people he had no inheritance, neither had he any portion among the people: for the Lord himself is his portion and inheritance.

[23] The third in glory is Phinees the son of Eleazar, because he had zeal in the fear of the Lord, and stood up with good courage of heart: when the people were turned back, and made reconciliation for Israel. [24] Therefore was there a covenant of peace made with him, that he should be the chief of the sanctuary and of his people, and that he and his posterity should have the dignity of the priesthood for ever: [25] According to the covenant made with David son of Jesse, of the tribe of Juda, that the inheritance of the king should be to his posterity alone: so the inheritance of Aaron should also be unto his seed. [26] God give you wisdom in your heart to judge his people in righteousness, that their good things be not abolished, and that their glory may endure for ever.

[1] Jesus the son a Nave was valiant in the wars, and was the successor of Moses in prophecies, who according to his name was made great for the saving of the elect of God, and taking vengeance of the enemies that rose up against them, that he might set Israel in their inheritance. [2] How great glory gat he, when he did lift up his hands, and stretched out his sword against the cities! [3] Who before him so stood to it? for the Lord himself brought his enemies unto him. [4] Did not the sun go back by his means? and was not one day as long as two? [5] He called upon the most high Lord, when the enemies pressed upon him on every side; and the great Lord heard him. [6] And with hailstones of mighty power he made the battle to fall violently upon the nations, and in the descent of Beth-horon he destroyed them that resisted, that the nations might know all their strength, because he fought in the sight of the Lord, and he followed the Mighty One.

[7] In the time of Moses also he did a work of mercy, he and Caleb the son of Jephunne, in that they withstood the congregation, and withheld the people from sin, and appeased the wicked murmuring. [8] And of six hundred thousand people on foot, they two were preserved to bring them in to the heritage, even unto the land that floweth with milk and honey.

[9] The Lord gave strength also unto Caleb, which remained with him unto his old age: so that he entered upon the high places of the land, and his seed obtained it for an heritage: [10] That all the children of Israel might see that it is good to follow the Lord. [11] And concerning the judges, every one by name, whose heart went not a whoring, nor departed from the Lord, let their memory be blessed. [12] Let their bones flourish out of their place, and let the name of them that were honoured be continued upon their children.

[13] Samuel, the prophet of the Lord, beloved of his Lord, established a kingdom, and anointed princes over his people. [14] By the law of the Lord he judged the congregation, and the Lord had respect unto Jacob. [15] By his faithfulness he was found a true prophet, and by his word he was known to be faithful in vision. [16] He called upon the mighty Lord, when his enemies pressed upon him on every side, when he offered the sucking lamb. [17] And the Lord thundered from heaven, and with a great noise made his voice to be heard. [18] And he destroyed the rulers of the Tyrians, and all the princes of the Philistines.

[19] And before his long sleep he made protestations in the sight of the Lord and his anointed, I have not taken any man's goods, so much as a shoe: and no man did accuse him. [20] And after his death he prophesied, and shewed the king his end, and lifted up his voice from the earth in prophecy, to blot out the wickedness of the people.

[1] And after him rose up Nathan to prophesy in the time of David.

[2] As is the fat taken away from the peace offering, so was David chosen out of the children of Israel. [3] He played with lions as with kids, and with bears as with lambs. [4] Slew he not a giant, when he was yet but young? and did he not take away reproach from the people, when he lifted up his hand with the stone in the sling, and beat down the boasting of Goliath? [5] For he called upon the most high Lord; and he gave him strength in his right hand to slay that mighty warrior, and set up the horn of his people.

[6] So the people honoured him with ten thousands, and praised him in the blessings of the Lord, in that he gave him a crown of glory. [7] For he destroyed the enemies on every side, and brought to nought the Philistines his adversaries, and brake their horn in sunder unto this day. [8] In all his works he praised the Holy One most high with words of glory; with his whole heart he sung songs, and loved him that made him. [9] He set singers also before the altar, that by their voices they might make sweet melody, and daily sing praises in their songs. [10] He beautified their feasts, and set in order the solemn times until the end, that they might praise his holy name, and that the temple might sound from morning.

[11] The Lord took away his sins, and exalted his horn for ever: he gave him a covenant of kings, and a throne of glory in Israel. [12] After him rose up a wise son, and for his sake he dwelt at large. [13] Solomon reigned in a peaceable time, and was honoured; for God made all quiet round about him, that he might build an house in his name, and prepare his sanctuary for ever. [14] How wise wast thou in thy youth and, as a flood, filled with understanding! [15] Thy soul covered the whole earth, and thou filledst it with dark parables.

[16] Thy name went far unto the islands; and for thy peace thou wast beloved. [17] The countries marvelled at thee for thy songs, and proverbs, and parables, and interpretations. [18] By the name of the Lord God, which is called the Lord God of Israel, thou didst gather gold as tin and didst multiply silver as lead. [19] Thou didst bow thy loins unto women, and by thy body thou wast brought into subjection. [20] Thou didst stain thy honour, and pollute thy seed: so that thou broughtest wrath upon thy children, and wast grieved for thy folly. [21] So the kingdom was divided, and out of Ephraim ruled a rebellious kingdom.

[22] But the Lord will never leave off his mercy, neither shall any of his works perish, neither will he abolish the posterity of his elect, and the seed of him that loveth him he will not take away: wherefore he gave a remnant unto Jacob, and out of him a root unto David.

[23] Thus rested Solomon with his fathers, and of his seed he left behind him Roboam, even the foolishness of the people, and one that had no understanding, who turned away the people through his counsel. There was also Jeroboam the son of Nebat, who caused Israel to sin, and shewed Ephraim the way of sin: [24] And their sins were multiplied exceedingly, that they were driven out of the land. [25] For they sought out all wickedness, till the vengeance came upon them.

Chapter 48

[1] Then stood up Elias the prophet as fire, and his word burned like a lamp. [2] He brought a sore famine upon them, and by his zeal he diminished their number. [3] By the word of the Lord he shut up the heaven, and also three times brought down fire. [4] O Elias, how wast thou honoured in thy wondrous deeds! and who may glory like unto thee! [5] Who didst raise up a dead man from death, and his soul from the place of the dead, by the word of the most High: [6] Who broughtest kings to destruction, and honourably men from their bed: [7] Who heardest the rebuke of the Lord in Sinai, and in Horeb the judgment of vengeance: [8] Who anointedst kings to take revenge, and prophets to succeed after him: [9] Who was taken up in a whirlwind of fire, and in a chariot of fiery horses: [10] Who wast ordained for reproofs in their times, to pacify the wrath of the Lord's judgment, before it brake forth into fury, and to turn the heart of the father unto the son, and to restore the tribes of Jacob. [11] Blessed are they that saw thee, and slept in love; for we shall surely live.

[12] Elias it was, who was covered with a whirlwind: and Eliseus was filled with his spirit: whilst he lived, he was not moved with the presence of any prince, neither could any bring him into subjection. [13] No word could overcome him; and after his death his body prophesied. [14] He did wonders in his life, and at his death were his works marvellous.

[15] For all this the people repented not, neither departed they from their sins, till they were spoiled and carried out of their land, and were scattered through all the earth: yet there remained a small people, and a ruler in the house of David: [16] Of whom some did that which was pleasing to God, and some multiplied sins.

[17] Ezekias fortified his city, and brought in water into the midst thereof: he digged the hard rock with iron, and made wells for waters. [18] In his time Sennacherib came up, and sent Rabsaces, and lifted up his hand against Sion, and boasted proudly. [19] Then trembled their hearts and hands, and they were in pain, as women in travail.

[20] But they called upon the Lord which is merciful, and stretched out their hands toward him: and immediately the Holy One heard them out of heaven, and delivered them by the ministry of Esay. [21] He smote the host of the Assyrians, and his angel destroyed them. [22] For Ezekias had done the thing that pleased the Lord, and was strong in the ways of David his father, as Esay the prophet, who was great and faithful in his vision, had commanded him. [23] In his time the sun went backward, and he lengthened the king's life. [24] He saw by an excellent spirit what should come to pass at the last, and he comforted them that mourned in Sion. [25] He shewed what should come to pass for ever, and secret things or ever they came.

[1] The remembrance of Josias is like the composition of the perfume that is made by the art of the apothecary: it is sweet as honey in all mouths, and as musick at a banquet of wine. [2] He behaved himself uprightly in the conversion of the people, and took away the abominations of iniquity. [3] He directed his heart unto the Lord, and in the time of the ungodly he established the worship of God. [4] All, except David and Ezekias and Josias, were defective: for they forsook the law of the most High, even the kings of Juda failed. [5] Therefore he gave their power unto others, and their glory to a strange nation.

[6] They burnt the chosen city of the sanctuary, and made the streets desolate, according to the prophecy of Jeremias. [7] For they entreated him evil, who nevertheless was a prophet, sanctified in his mother's womb, that he might root out, and afflict, and destroy; and that he might build up also, and plant. [8] It was Ezekiel who saw the glorious vision, which was shewed him upon the chariot of the cherubims. [9] For he made mention of the enemies under the figure of the rain, and directed them that went right. [10] And of the twelve prophets let the memorial be blessed, and let their bones flourish again out of their place: for they comforted Jacob, and delivered them by assured hope. [11] How shall we magnify Zorobabel? even he was as a signet on the right hand:

[12] So was Jesus the son of Josedec: who in their time builded the house, and set up an holy temple to the Lord, which was prepared for everlasting glory. [13] And among the elect was Neemias, whose renown is great, who raised up for us the walls that were fallen, and set up the gates and the bars, and raised up our ruins again. [14] But upon the earth was no man created like Enoch; for he was taken from the earth. [15] Neither was there a young man born like Joseph, a governor of his brethren, a stay of the people, whose bones were regarded of the Lord. [16] Sem and Seth were in great honour among men, and so was Adam above every living thing in creation.

[1] Simon the high priest, the son of Onias, who in his life repaired the house again, and in his days fortified the temple: [2] And by him was built from the foundation the double height, the high fortress of the wall about the temple: [3] In his days the cistern to receive water, being in compass as the sea, was covered with plates of brass: [4] He took care of the temple that it should not fall, and fortified the city against besieging: [5] How was he honoured in the midst of the people in his coming out of the sanctuary! [6] He was as the morning star in the midst of a cloud, and as the moon at the full: [7] As the sun shining upon the temple of the most High, and as the rainbow giving light in the bright clouds: [8] And as the flower of roses in the spring of the year, as lilies by the rivers of waters, and as the branches of the frankincense tree in the time of summer: [9] As fire and incense in the censer, and as a vessel of beaten gold set with all manner of precious stones: [10] And as a fair olive tree budding forth fruit, and as a cypress tree which groweth up to the clouds.

[11] When he put on the robe of honour, and was clothed with the perfection of glory, when he went up to the holy altar, he made the garment of holiness honourable. [12] When he took the portions out of the priests' hands, he himself stood by the hearth of the altar, compassed about, as a young cedar in Libanus; and as palm trees compassed they him round about. [13] So were all the sons of Aaron in their glory, and the oblations of the Lord in their hands, before all the congregation of Israel. [14] And finishing the service at the altar, that he might adorn the offering of the most high Almighty, [15] He stretched out his hand to the cup, and poured of the blood of the grape, he poured out at the foot of the altar a sweetsmelling savour unto the most high King of all.

[16] Then shouted the sons of Aaron, and sounded the silver trumpets, and made a great noise to be heard, for a remembrance before the most High. [17] Then all the people together hasted, and fell down to the earth upon their faces to worship their Lord God Almighty, the most High. [18] The singers also sang praises with their voices, with great variety of sounds was there made sweet melody. [19] And the people besought the Lord, the most High, by prayer before him that is merciful, till the solemnity of the Lord was ended, and they had finished his service.

[20] Then he went down, and lifted up his hands over the whole congregation of the children of Israel, to give the blessing of the Lord with his lips, and to rejoice in his name. [21] And they bowed themselves down to worship the second time, that they might receive a blessing from the most High. [22] Now therefore bless ye the God of all, which only doeth wondrous things every where, which exalteth our days from the womb, and dealeth with us according to his mercy. [23] He grant us joyfulness of heart, and that peace may be in our days in Israel for ever: [24] That he would confirm his mercy with us, and deliver us at his time!

[25] There be two manner of nations which my heart abhorreth, and the third is no nation: [26] They that sit upon the mountain of Samaria, and they that dwell among the Philistines, and that foolish people that dwell in Sichem.

[27] Jesus the son of Sirach of Jerusalem hath written in this book the instruction of understanding and knowledge, who out of his heart poured forth wisdom. [28] Blessed is he that shall be exercised in these things; and he that layeth them up in his heart shall become wise. [29] For if he do them, he shall be strong to all things: for the light of the Lord leadeth him, who giveth wisdom to the godly. Blessed be the name of the Lord for ever. Amen, Amen.

[1] I will thank thee, O Lord and King, and praise thee, O God my Saviour: I do give praise unto thy name: [2] For thou art my defender and helper, and has preserved my body from destruction, and from the snare of the slanderous tongue, and from the lips that forge lies, and has been mine helper against mine adversaries: [3] And hast delivered me, according to the multitude of they mercies and greatness of thy name, from the teeth of them that were ready to devour me, and out of the hands of such as sought after my life, and from the manifold afflictions which I had; [4] From the choking of fire on every side, and from the midst of the fire which I kindled not; [5] From the depth of the belly of hell, from an unclean tongue, and from lying words.

[6] By an accusation to the king from an unrighteous tongue my soul drew near even unto death, my life was near to the hell beneath. [7] They compassed me on every side, and there was no man to help me: I looked for the succour of men, but there was none. [8] Then thought I upon thy mercy, O Lord, and upon thy acts of old, how thou deliverest such as wait for thee, and savest them out of the hands of the enemies. [9] Then lifted I up my supplications from the earth, and prayed for deliverance from death. [10] I called upon the Lord, the Father of my Lord, that he would not leave me in the days of my trouble, and in the time of the proud, when there was no help. [11] I will praise thy name continually, and will sing praises with thanksgiving; and so my prayer was heard: [12] For thou savedst me from destruction, and deliveredst me from the evil time: therefore will I give thanks, and praise thee, and bless they name, O Lord.

[13] When I was yet young, or ever I went abroad, I desired wisdom openly in my prayer. [14] I prayed for her before the temple, and will seek her out even to the end. [15] Even from the flower till the grape was ripe hath my heart delighted in her: my foot went the right way, from my youth up sought I after her. [16] I bowed down mine ear a little, and received her, and gat much learning. [17] I profited therein, therefore will I ascribe glory unto him that giveth me wisdom. [18] For I purposed to do after her, and earnestly I followed that which is good; so shall I not be confounded.

[19] My soul hath wrestled with her, and in my doings I was exact: I stretched forth my hands to the heaven above, and bewailed my ignorances of her. [20] I directed my soul unto her, and I found her in pureness: I have had my heart joined with her from the beginning, therefore shall I not be forsaken. [21] My heart was troubled in seeking her: therefore have I gotten a good possession. [22] The Lord hath given me a tongue for my reward, and I will praise him therewith.

[23] Draw near unto me, ye unlearned, and dwell in the house of learning. [24] Wherefore are ye slow, and what say ye to these things, seeing your souls are very thirsty? [25] I opened my mouth, and said, Buy her for yourselves without money. [26] Put your neck under the yoke, and let your soul receive instruction: she is hard at hand to find. [27] Behold with your eyes, how that I have but little labour, and have gotten unto me much rest. [28] Get learning with a great sum of money, and get much gold by her.

[29] Let your soul rejoice in his mercy, and be not ashamed of his praise. [30] Work your work betimes, and in his time he will give you your reward.

Isaiah

Chapter 1

[1] The vision which Isaiah the son of Amos saw, which he saw against Juda, and against Jerusalem, in the reign of Ozias, and Joatham, and Achaz, and Ezekias, who reigned over Judea.

[2] Hear, O heaven, and hearken, O earth: for the Lord has spoken, saying, I have begotten and reared up children, but they have rebelled against me. [3] The ox knows his owner, and the ass his master's crib: but Israel does not know me, and the people has not regarded me.

[4] Ah sinful nation, a people full of sins, an evil seed, lawless children: ye have forsaken the Lord, and provoked the Holy One of Israel. [5] Why should ye be smitten any more, transgressing more and more? the whole head is pained, and the whole heart sad. [6] From the feet to the head, there is no soundness in them; neither wound, nor bruise, nor festering ulcer are healed: it is not possible to apply a plaister, nor oil, nor bandages. [7] Your land is desolate, your cities burned with fire: your land, strangers devour it in your presence, and it is made desolate, overthrown by strange nations. [8] The daughter of Sion shall be deserted as a tent in a vineyard, and as a storehouse of fruits in a garden of cucumbers, as a besieged city. [9] And if the Lord of Sabaoth had not left us a seed, we should have been as Sodom, and we should have been made like Gomorrha.

[10] Hear the word of the Lord, ye rulers of Sodoma; attend to the law of God, thou people of Gomorrha. [11] Of what value to me is the abundance of your sacrifices? saith the Lord: I am full of whole-burnt-offerings of rams; and I delight not in the fat of lambs, and the blood of bulls and goats: [12] neither shall ye come with these to appear before me; for who has required these things at your hands? Ye shall no more tread my court. [13] Though ye bring fine flour, it is vain; incense is an abomination to me; I cannot bear your new moons, and your sabbaths, and the great day; [14] your fasting, and rest from work, your new moons also, and your feasts my soul hates: ye have become loathsome to me; I will no more pardon your sins. [15] When ye stretch forth your hands, I will turn away mine eyes from you: and though ye make many supplications, I will not hearken to you; for your hands are full of blood.

[16] Wash you, be clean; remove your iniquities from your souls before mine eyes; cease from your iniquities; [17] learn to do well; diligently seek judgement, deliver him that is suffering wrong, plead for the orphan, and obtain justice for the widow. [18] And come, let us reason together, saith the Lord: and though your sins be as purple, I will make them white as snow; and though they be as scarlet, I will make them white as wool. [19] And if ye be willing, and hearken to me, ye shall eat the good of the land: [20] but if ye be not willing, nor hearken to me, a sword shall devour you: for the mouth of the Lord has spoken this.

[21] How has the faithful city Sion, once full of judgement, become a harlot!

wherein righteousness lodged, but now murderers. [22] Your silver is worthless, thy wine merchants mix the wine with water. [23] Thy princes are rebellious, companions of thieves, loving bribes, seeking after rewards; not pleading for orphans, and not heeding the cause of widows.

[24] Therefore thus saith the Lord, the Lord of hosts, Woe to the mighty men of Israel; for my wrath shall not cease against mine adversaries, and I will execute judgement on mine enemies. [25] And I will bring my hand upon thee, and purge thee completely, and I will destroy the rebellious, and will take away from thee all transgressors. [26] And I will establish thy judges as before, and thy counsellors as at the beginning: and afterward thou shalt be called the city of righteousness, the faithful mother-city of Sion. [27] For her captives shall be saved with judgement, and with mercy. [28] And the transgressors and the sinners shall be crushed together, and they that forsake the Lord shall be utterly consumed. [29] For they shall be ashamed of their idols, which they delighted in, and they are made ashamed of the gardens which they coveted. [30] For they shall be as a turpentine tree that has cast its leaves, and as a garden that has no water. [31] And their strength shall be as a thread of tow, and their works as sparks, and the transgressors and the sinners shall be burnt up together, and there shall be none to quench them.

Chapter 2

[1] The word which came to Isaiah the son of Amos concerning Judea, and concerning Jerusalem.

[2] For in the last days the mountain of the Lord shall be glorious, and the house of God shall be on the top of the mountains, and it shall be exalted above the hills; and all nations shall come to it. [3] And many nations shall go and say, Come, and let us go up to the mountain of the Lord, and to the house of the God of Jacob; and he will tell us his way, and we will walk in it: for out of Sion shall go forth the law, and the word of the Lord out of Jerusalem. [4] And he shall judge among the nations, and shall rebuke many people: and they shall beat their swords into plow-shares, and their spears into sickles: and nation shall not take up sword against nation, neither shall they learn to war any more.

[5] And now, O house of Jacob, come, and let us walk in the light of the Lord. [6] For he has forsaken his people the house of Israel, because their land is filled as at the beginning with divinations, as the land of the Philistines, and many strange children were born to them. [7] For their land is filled with silver and gold, and there was no number of their treasures; their land also is filled with horses, and there was no number of chariots. [8] And the land is filled with abominations, even the works of their hands; and they have worshipped the works which their fingers made. [9] And the mean man bowed down, and the great man was humbled: and I will not pardon them.

[10] Now therefore enter ye into the rocks, and hide yourselves in the earth, for fear of the Lord, and by reason of the glory of his might, when he shall arise to strike terribly the earth. [11] For the eyes of the Lord are high, but man is low; and the haughtiness of men shall be brought low, and the Lord alone shall be exalted in that day.

[12] For the day of the Lord of hosts shall be upon every one that is proud and haughty, and upon every one that is high and towering, and they shall be brought down; [13] and upon every cedar of Libanus, of them that are high and towering, and upon every oak of Basan, [14] and upon every high mountain, and upon every high hill, [15] and upon every high tower, and upon every high wall, [16] and upon every ship of the sea, and upon every display of fine ships. [17] And every man shall be brought low, and the pride of men shall fall: and the Lord alone shall be exalted in that day. [18] And they shall hide all idols made with hands, [19] having carried them into the caves, and into the clefts of the rocks, and into the caverns of the earth, for fear of the Lord, and by reason of the glory of his might, when he shall arise to strike terribly the earth. [20] For in that day a man shall cast forth his silver and gold abominations, which they made in order to worship vanities and bats; [21] to enter into the caverns of the solid rock, and into the clefts of the rocks, for fear of the Lord, and by reason of the glory of his might, when he shall arise to strike terribly the earth.

[1] Behold now, the Lord, the Lord of hosts, will take away from Jerusalem and from Judea the mighty man and mighty woman, the strength of bread, and the strength of water, [2] the great and mighty man, the warrior and the judge, and the prophet, and the counsellor, and the elder, [3] the captain of fifty also, and the honourable counsellor, and the wise artificer, and the intelligent hearer. [4] And I will make youths their princes, and mockers shall have dominion over them. [5] And the people shall fall, man upon man, and every man upon his neighbor: the child shall insult the elder man, and the base the honourable. [6] For a man shall lay hold of his brother, as one of his father's household, saying, Thou hast raiment, be thou our ruler, and let my meat be under thee. [7] And he shall answer in that day, and say, I will not be thy ruler; for I have no bread in my house, nor raiment: I will not be the ruler of this people. [8] For Jerusalem is ruined, and Judea has fallen, and their tongues have spoken with iniquity, disobedient as they are towards the Lord. [9] Wherefore now their glory has been brought low, and the shame of their countenance has withstood them, and they have proclaimed their sin as Sodom, and made it manifest. [10] Woe to their soul, for they have devised an evil counsel against themselves, saying against themselves, Let us bind the just, for he is burdensome to us: therefore shall they eat the fruits of their works. [11] Woe to the transgressor! evils shall happen to him according to the works of his hands. [12] O my people, your exactors strip you, and extortioners rule over you: O my people, they that pronounce you blessed lead you astray, and pervert the path of your feet.

[13] But now the Lord will stand up for judgement, and will enter into judgement with his people. [14] The Lord himself shall enter into judgement with the elders of the people, and with their rulers: but why have ye set my vineyard on fire, and why is the spoil of the poor in your houses? [15] Why do ye wrong my people, and shame the face of the poor?

[16] Thus saith the Lord, Because the daughters of Sion are haughty, and have walked with an outstretched neck, and with winking of the eyes, and motion of the feet, at the same time drawing their garments in trains, and at the same time sporting with their feet: [17] therefore the Lord will humble the chief daughters of Sion, and the Lord will expose their form in that day; [18] and the Lord will take away the glory of their raiment, the curls and the fringes, and the crescents, [19] and the chains, and the ornaments of their faces, [20] and the array of glorious ornaments, and the armlets, and the bracelets, and the wreathed work, and the finger-rings, and the ornaments for the right hand, [21] 22 [23] and the ear-rings, and the garments with scarlet borders, and the garments with purple grounds, and the shawls to be worn in the house, and the Spartan transparent dresses, and those made of fine linen, and the purple ones, and the scarlet ones, and the fine linen, interwoven with gold and purple, and the light coverings for couches. [24] And there shall be instead of a sweet smell, dust; and instead of a girdle, thou shalt gird thyself with a rope; and instead of a golden ornament for the head, thou shalt have baldness on account of thy works; and instead of a tunic with a scarlet ground, thou shalt gird thyself with sackcloth. [25] And thy most beautiful son whom thou lovest shall fall by the sword; and your mighty men shall fall by the sword, and shall be brought low. [26] And the stores of your ornaments shall mourn, and thou shalt be left alone, and shalt be levelled with the ground.

[1] And seven women shall take hold of one man, saying, We will eat our own bread, and wear our own raiment: only let thy name be called upon us, and take away our reproach.

[2] And in that day God shall shine gloriously in counsel on the earth, to exalt and glorify the remnant of Israel. [3] And it shall be, that the remnant left in Sion, and the remnant left in Jerusalem, even all that are appointed to life in Jerusalem, shall be called holy. [4] For the Lord shall wash away the filth of the sons and daughters of Sion, and shall purge out the blood from the midst of them, with the spirit of judgement, and the spirit of burning. [5] And he shall come, and it shall be with regard to every place of mount Sion, yea, all the region round about it shall a cloud overshadow by day, and there shall be as it were the smoke and light of fire burning by night: and upon all the glory shall be a defence. [6] And it shall be for a shadow from the heat, and as a shelter and a hiding place from inclemency of weather and from rain.

Chapter 5

[1] Now I will sing to my beloved a song of my beloved concerning my vineyard.

My beloved had a vineyard on a high hill in a fertile place. [2] And I made a hedge round it, and dug a trench, and planted a choice vine, and built a tower in the midst of it, and dug a place for the wine-vat in it: and I waited for it to bring forth grapes, and it brought forth thorns. [3] And now, ye dwellers in Jerusalem, and every man of Juda, judge between me and my vineyard. [4] What shall I do any more to my vineyard, that I have not done to it? Whereas I expected it to bring forth grapes, but it has brought forth thorns. [5] And now I will tell you what I will do to my vineyard: I will take away its hedge, and it shall be for a spoil; and I will pull down its walls, and it shall be left to be trodden down. [6] And I will forsake my vineyard; and it shall not be pruned, nor dug, and thorns shall come up upon it as on barren land; and I will command the clouds to rain no rain upon it. [7] For the vineyard of the Lord of hosts is the house of Israel, and the men of Juda his beloved plant: I expected it to bring forth judgement, and it brought forth iniquity; and not righteousness, but a cry.

[8] Woe to them that join house to house, and add field to field, that they may take away something of their neighbor's: will ye dwell alone upon the land? [9] For these things have reached the ears of the Lord of hosts: for though many houses should be built, many and fair houses shall be desolate, and there shall be no inhabitants in them. [10] For where ten yoke of oxen plough the land shall yield one jar-full, and he that sows six homers shall produce three measures.

[11] Woe to them that rise up in the morning, and follow strong drink; who wait at it till evening: for the wine shall inflame them. [12] For they drink wine with harp, and psaltery, and drums, and pipes: but they regard not the works of the Lord, and consider not the works of his hands.

[13] Therefore my people have been taken captive, because they know not the Lord: and there has been a multitude of dead bodies, because of hunger and of thirst for water. [14] Therefore hell has enlarged its desire and opened its mouth without ceasing: and her glorious and great, and her rich and her pestilent men shall go down into it. [15] And the mean man shall be brought low, and the great man shall be disgraced, and the lofty eyes shall be brought low. [16] But the Lord of hosts shall be exalted in judgement, and the holy God shall be glorified in righteousness. [17] And they that were spoiled shall be fed as bulls, and lambs shall feed on the waste places of them that are taken away.

[18] Woe to them that draw sins to them as with a long rope, and iniquities as with a thong of the heifer's yoke: [19] who say, Let him speedily hasten what he will do, that we may see it: and let the counsel of the Holy One of Israel come, that we may know it. [20] Woe to them that call evil good, and good evil; who make darkness light, and light darkness; who make bitter sweet, and sweet bitter. [21] Woe to them that are wise in their own conceit, and knowing in their own sight. [22] Woe to the strong ones of you that drink wine, and the mighty ones that mingle strong drink: [23] who justify the ungodly for rewards, and take away the righteousness of the righteous.

[24] Therefore as stubble shall be burnt by a coal of fire, and shall be consumed by a violent flame, their root shall be as chaff, and their flower shall go up as dust: for they rejected the law of the Lord of hosts, and insulted the word of the Holy One of Israel. [25] Therefore the Lord of hosts was greatly angered against his people, and he reached forth his hand upon them, and smote them: and the mountains were troubled, and their carcasses were as dung in the midst of the way: yet for all this his anger has not been turned away, but his hand is yet raised.

[26] Therefore shall he lift up a signal to the nations that are afar, and shall hiss for them from the end of the earth; and, behold, they are coming very quickly. [27] They shall not hunger nor be weary, neither shall they slumber nor sleep; neither shall they loose their girdles from their loins, neither shall their shoe-latchets be broken. [28] Whose arrows are sharp, and their bows bent; their horses' hoofs are counted as solid rock: their chariot-wheels are as a storm. [29] They rage as lions, and draw nigh as a lion's whelps: and he shall seize, and roar as a wild beast, and he shall cast them forth, and there shall be none to deliver them. [30] And he shall roar on account of them in that day, as the sound of the swelling sea; and they shall look to the land, and, behold, there shall be thick darkness in their perplexity.

Chapter 6

[1] And it came to pass in the year in which king Ozias died, that I saw the Lord sitting on a high and exalted throne, and the house was full of his glory.

[2] And seraphs stood round about him: each one had six wings: and with two they covered their face, and with two they covered their feet, and with two they flew. [3] And one cried to the other, and they said, Holy, holy, holy is the Lord of hosts: the whole earth is full of his glory.

[4] And the lintel shook at the voice they uttered, and the house was filled with smoke. [5] And I said, Woe is me, for I am pricked to the heart; for being a man, and having unclean lips, I dwell in the midst of a people having unclean lips; and I have seen with mine eyes the King, the Lord of hosts. [6] And there was sent to me one of the seraphs, and he had in his hand a coal, which he had taken off the altar with the tongs: [7] and he touched my mouth, and said, Behold, this has touched thy lips, and will take away thine iniquities, and will purge off thy sins.

[8] And I heard the voice of the Lord, saying, Whom shall I send, and who will go to this people? And I said, behold, I am here, send me. And he said, Go, and say to this people, [9] Ye shall hear indeed, but ye shall not understand; and ye shall see indeed, but ye shall not perceive. [10] For the heart of this people has become gross, and their ears are dull of hearing, and their eyes have they closed; lest they should see with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and understand with their heart, and be converted, and I should heal them. [11] And I said, How long, O Lord? And he said, Until cities be deserted by reason of their not being inhabited, and the houses by reason of there being no men, and the land shall be left desolate. [12] And after this God shall remove the men far off, and they that are left upon the land shall be multiplied. [13] And yet there shall be a tenth upon it, and again it shall be for a spoil, as a turpentine tree, and as an acorn when it falls out of its husk.

[1] And it came to pass in the days of Achaz the son of Joatham, the son of Ozias, king of Juda, there came up Rasim king of Aram, and Phakee son of Romelias, king of Israel, against Jerusalem to war against it, but they could not take it. [2] And a message was brought to the house of David, saying, Aram has conspired with Ephraim. And his soul was amazed, and the soul of his people, as in a wood a tree is moved by the wind. [3] And the Lord said to Isaiah, Go forth to meet Achaz, thou, and thy son Jasub who is left, to the pool of the upper way of the fuller's field. [4] And thou shalt say to him, Take care to be quiet, and fear not, neither let thy soul be disheartened because of these two smoking firebrands: for when my fierce anger is over, I will heal again. [5] And as for the son of Aram, and the son of Romelias, forasmuch as they have devised an evil counsel, saying, [6] We will go up against Judea, and having conferred with them we will turn them away to our side, and we will make the son of Tabeel king of it; [7] thus saith the Lord of hosts, This counsel shall not abide, nor come to pass. [8] But the head of Aram is Damascus, and the head of Damascus, Rasim; and yet within sixty and five years the kingdom of Ephraim shall cease from being a people. [9] And the head of Ephraim is Somoron, and the head of Somoron the son of Romelias: but if ye believe not, neither will ye at all understand.

[10] And the Lord again spoke to Achaz, saying, [11] Ask for thyself a sign of the Lord thy God, in the depth or in the height. [12] And Achaz said, I will not ask, neither will I tempt the Lord. [13] And he said, Hear ye now, O house of David; is it a little thing for you to contend with men? and how do ye contend against the Lord? [14] Therefore the Lord himself shall give you a sign; behold, a virgin shall conceive in the womb, and shall bring forth a son, and thou shalt call his name Emmanuel. [15] Butter and honey shall he eat, before he knows either to prefer evil or choose the good. [16] For before the child shall know good or evil, he refuses evil, to choose the good; and the land shall be forsaken which thou art afraid of because of the two kings.

[17] But God shall bring upon thee, and upon thy people, and upon the house of thy father, days which have never come, from the day that Ephraim took away from Juda the king of the Assyrians. [18] And it shall come to pass in that day that the Lord shall hiss for the flies, which insect shall rule over a part of the river of Egypt, and for the bee which is in the land of the Assyrians. [19] And they all shall enter into the clefts of the land, and into the holes of the rocks, and into the caves, and into every ravine. [20] In that day the Lord shall shave with the hired razor of the king of Assyria beyond the river the head, and the hairs of the feet, and will remove the beard. [21] And it shall come to pass in that day, that a man shall rear a heifer, and two sheep. [22] And it shall come to pass from their drinking an abundance of milk, that every one that is left on the land shall eat butter and honey.

[23] And it shall come to pass in that day, for every place where there shall be a thousand vines at a thousand shekels, they shall become barren land and thorns. [24] Men shall enter thither with arrow and bow; for all the land shall be barren ground and thorns. [25] And every mountain shall be certainly ploughed: there shall no fear come thither: for there shall be from among the barren ground and thorns that whereon cattle shall feed and oxen shall tread.

[1] And the Lord said to me, Take to thyself a volume of a great new book, and write in it with a man's pen concerning the making a rapid plunder of spoils; for it is near at hand. [2] And make me witnesses of faithful men, Urias, and Zacharias the son of Barachias. [3] And I went in to the prophetess; and she conceived, and bore a son. And the Lord said to me, Call his name, Spoil quickly, plunder speedily. [4] For before the child shall know how to call his father or his mother, one shall take the power of Damascus and the spoils of Samaria before the king of the Assyrians.

[5] And the Lord spoke to me yet again, saying, [6] Because this people chooses not the water of Siloam that goes softly, but wills to have Rassin, and the son of Romelias to be king over you; [7] therefore, behold, the Lord brings up upon you the water of the river, strong and abundant, even the king of the Assyrians, and his glory: and he shall come up over every valley of yours, and shall walk over every wall of yours: [8] and he shall take away from Juda every man who shall be able to lift up his head, and every one able to accomplish anything; and his camp shall fill the breadth of thy land, O God with us.

[9] Know, ye Gentiles, and be conquered; hearken ye, even to the extremity of the earth: be conquered, after ye strengthened yourselves; for even if ye should again strengthen yourselves, ye shall again be conquered. [10] And whatsoever counsel ye shall take, the Lord shall bring it to nought; and whatsoever word ye shall speak, it shall not stand among you: for God is with us. [11] Thus saith the Lord, With a strong hand they revolt from the course of the way of this people, saying, [12] Let them not say, It is hard, for whatsoever this people says, is hard: but fear not ye their fear, neither be dismayed. [13] Sanctify ye the Lord himself; and he shall be thy fear. [14] And if thou shalt trust in him, he shall be to thee for a sanctuary; and ye shall not come against him as against a stumbling-stone, neither as against the falling of a rock: but the houses of Jacob are in a snare, and the dwellers in Jerusalem in a pit. [15] Therefore many among them shall be weak, and fall, and be crushed; and they shall draw nigh, and men shall be taken securely. [16] Then shall those who seal themselves that they may not learn the law be made manifest.

[17] And one shall say, I will wait for God, who has turned away his face from the house of Jacob, and I will trust in him. [18] Behold I and the children which God has given me: and they shall be for signs and wonders in the house of Israel from the Lord of hosts, who dwells in mount Sion. [19] And if they should say to you, Seek those who have in them a divining spirit, and them that speak out of the earth, them that speak vain words, who speak out of their belly: shall not a nation diligently seek to their God? why do they seek to the dead concerning the living? [20] For he has given the law for a help, that they should not speak according to this word, concerning which there are no gifts to give for it. [21] And famine shall come sorely upon you, and it shall come to pass, that when ye shall be hungry, ye shall be grieved, and ye shall speak ill of the prince and your fathers' ordinances: and they shall look up to heaven above, [22] and they shall look on the earth below, and behold severe distress, and darkness, affliction, and anguish, and darkness so that one cannot see; and he that is in anguish shall not be distressed only for a time.

[1] Drink this first. Act quickly, O land of Zabulon, land of Nephthalim, and the rest inhabiting the sea-coast, and the land beyond Jordan, Galilee of the Gentiles.

[2] O people walking in darkness, behold a great light: ye that dwell in the region and shadow of death, a light shall shine upon you. [3] The multitude of the people which thou hast brought down in thy joy, they shall even rejoice before thee as they that rejoice in harvest, and as they that divide the spoil. [4] Because the yoke that was laid upon them has been taken away, and the rod that was on their neck: for he has broken the rod of the exactors, as in the day of Madiam. [5] For they shall compensate for every garment that has been acquired by deceit, and all raiment with restitution; and they shall be willing, even if they were burnt with fire.

[6] For a child is born to us, and a son is given to us, whose government is upon his shoulder: and his name is called the Messenger of great counsel: for I will bring peace upon the princes, and health to him. [7] His government shall be great, and of his peace there is no end: it shall be upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom, to establish it, and to support it with judgement and with righteousness, from henceforth and forever. The seal of the Lord of hosts shall perform this.

[8] The Lord has sent death upon Jacob, and it has come upon Israel. [9] And all the people of Ephraim, and they that dwelt in Samaria shall know, who say in their pride and lofty heart, [10] The bricks are fallen down, but come, let us hew stones, and cut down sycamores and cedars, and let us build for ourselves a tower. [11] And God shall dash down them that rise up against him on mount Sion, and shall scatter his enemies; [12] even Syria from the rising of the sun, and the Greeks from the setting of the sun, who devour Israel with open mouth. For all this his anger is not turned away, but still his hand is exalted.

[13] But the people turned not until they were smitten, and they sought not the Lord. [14] So the Lord took away from Israel the head and tail, great and small, in one day: [15] the old man, and them that respect persons, this is the head; and the prophet teaching unlawful things, he is the tail. [16] And they that pronounce this people blessed shall mislead them; and they mislead them that they may devour them. [17] Therefore the Lord shall not take pleasure in their young men, neither shall he have pity on their orphans or on their widows: for they are all transgressors and wicked, and every mouth speaks unjustly. For all this his anger is not turned away, but his hand is yet exalted.

[18] And iniquity shall burn as fire, and shall be devoured by fire as dry grass: and it shall burn in the thickets of the wood, and shall devour all that is round about the hills. [19] The whole earth is set on fire because of the fierce anger of the Lord, and the people shall be as men burnt by fire: no man shall pity his brother. [20] But one shall turn aside to the right hand, for he shall be hungry; and shall eat on the left, and a man shall by no means be satisfied with eating the flesh of his own arm. ^[21] For Manasses shall eat the flesh of Ephraim, and Ephraim the flesh of Manasses; for they shall besiege Juda together. For all this his anger is not turned away, but his hand is yet exalted.

Chapter 10

[1] Woe to them that write wickedness; for when they write they do write wickedness, [2] perverting the cause of the poor, violently wresting the judgement of the needy ones of my people, that the widow may be a prey to them, and the orphan a spoil. [3] And what will they do in the day of visitation? for affliction shall come to you from afar: and to whom will ye flee for help? and where will ye leave your glory, [4] that ye may not fall into captivity?

For all this his wrath is not turned away, but his hand is yet exalted.

[5] Woe to the Assyrians; the rod of my wrath, and anger are in their hands. [6] I will send my wrath against a sinful nation, and I will charge my people to take plunder and spoil, and to trample the cities, and to make them dust. [7] But he meant not thus, neither did he devise thus in his soul: but his mind shall change, and that to destroy nations not a few. [8] And if they should say to him, Thou alone art ruler; [9] then shall he say, Have I not taken the country above Babylon and Chalanes, where the tower was built? and have I not taken Arabia, and Damascus, and Samaria? [10] As I have taken them, I will also take all the kingdoms: howl, ye idols in Jerusalem, and in Samaria. [11] For as I did to Samaria and her idols, so will I do also to Jerusalem and her idols. [12] And it shall come to pass, when the Lord shall have finished doing all things on Mount Sion and Jerusalem, that I will visit upon the proud heart, even upon the ruler of the Assyrians, and upon the boastful haughtiness of his eyes. [13] For he said, I will act in strength, and in the wisdom of my understanding I will remove the boundaries of nations, and will spoil their strength. [14] And I will shake the inhabited cities: and I will take with my hand all the world as a nest: and I will even take them as eggs that have been left; and there is none that shall escape me, or contradict me. [15] Shall the axe glorify itself without him that hews with it? or shall the saw lift up itself without him that uses it, as if one should lift a rod or staff? but it shall not be so; [16] but the Lord of hosts shall send dishonour upon thine honour, and burning fire shall be kindled upon thy glory. [17] And the light of Israel shall be for a fire, and he shall sanctify him with burning fire, and it shall devour the wood as grass. [18] In that day the mountains shall be consumed, and the hills, and the forests, and fire shall devour both soul and body: and he that flees shall be as one fleeing from burning flame. [19] And they that are left of them shall be a small number, and a child shall write them.

[20] And it shall come to pass in that day that the remnant of Israel shall no more join themselves with, and the saved of Jacob shall no more trust in, them that injured them; but they shall trust in the Holy God of Israel, in truth. [21] And the remnant of Jacob shall trust on the mighty God. [22] And though the people of Israel be as the sand of the sea, a remnant of them shall be saved. [23] He will finish the work, and cut it short in righteousness: because the Lord will make a short work in all the world.

[24] Therefore thus saith the Lord of hosts, Be not afraid, my people who dwell in Sion, of the Assyrians, because he shall smite thee with a rod: for I am bringing a stroke upon thee, that thou mayest see the way of Egypt. [25] For yet a little while, and the indignation shall cease: but my wrath shall be against their council. [26] And God will stir up enemies against them, according to the stroke of Madiam in the place of affliction: and his wrath shall be by the way of the sea, even to the way that leads to Egypt. [27] And it shall come to pass in that day, that his yoke shall be taken away from thy shoulder, and his fear from thee, and the yoke shall be destroyed from off your shoulders.

[28] For he shall arrive at the city of Angai, and shall pass on to Maggedo, and shall lay up his stores in Machmas. [29] And he shall pass by the valley, and shall arrive at Angai: fear shall seize upon Rama, the city of Saul. [30] The daughter of Gallim shall flee; Laisa shall hear; one shall hear in Anathoth. [31] Madebena also is amazed, and the inhabitants of Gibbir.

[32] Exhort ye them to-day to remain in the way: exhort ye beckoning with the hand the mountain, the daughter of Sion, even ye hills that are in Jerusalem. [33] Behold, the Lord, the Lord of hosts, will mightily confound the glorious ones; and the haughty in pride shall be crushed, and the lofty shall be brought low: [34] and the lofty ones shall fall by the sword, and the Libanus shall fall with his lofty ones.

[1] And there shall come forth a rod out of the root of Jesse, and a blossom shall come up from his root: [2] and the Spirit of God shall rest upon him, the spirit of wisdom and understanding, the spirit of counsel and strength, the spirit of knowledge and godliness shall fill him; [3] the spirit of the fear of God. He shall not judge according to appearance, nor reprove according to report: [4] but he shall judge the cause of the lowly, and shall reprove the lowly of the earth: and he shall smite the earth with the word of his mouth, and with the breath of his lips shall he destroy the ungodly one. [5] And he shall have his loins girt with righteousness, and his sides clothed with truth.

[6] And the wolf shall feed with the lamb, and the leopard shall lie down with the kid; and the young calf and bull and lion shall feed together; and a little child shall lead them. [7] And the ox and bear shall feed together; and their young shall be together: and the lion shall eat straw like the ox. [8] And an infant shall put his hand on the holes of asps, and on the nest of young asps. [9] And they shall not hurt, nor shall they at all be able to destroy any one on my holy mountain: for the whole world is filled with the knowledge of the Lord, as much water covers the seas. [10] And in that day there shall be a root of Jesse, and he that shall arise to rule over the Gentiles; in him shall the Gentiles trust, and his rest shall be glorious. [11] And it shall be in that day, that the Lord shall again shew his hand, to be zealous for the remnant that is left of the people, which shall be left by the Assyrians, and that from Egypt, and from the country of Babylon, and from Ethiopia, and from the Elamites, and from the rising of the sun, and out of Arabia. [12] And he shall lift up a standard for the nations, and he shall gather the lost ones of Israel, and he shall gather the dispersed of Juda from the four corners of the earth. [13] And the envy of Ephraim shall be taken away, and the enemies of Juda shall perish: Ephraim shall not envy Juda, and Juda shall not afflict Ephraim. [14] And they shall fly in the ships of the Philistines: they shall at the same time spoil the sea, and them that come from the east, and Idumea: and they shall lay their hands on Moab first; but the children of Ammon shall first obey them

[15] And the Lord shall make desolate the sea of Egypt; and he shall lay his hand on the river with a strong wind, and he shall smite the seven channels, so that men shall pass through it dry-shod. [16] And there shall be a passage for my people that is left in Egypt: and it shall be to Israel as the day when he came forth out of the land of Egypt.

Chapter 12

[1] And in that day thou shalt say, I will bless thee, O Lord; for thou wast angry with me, but thou hast turned aside thy wrath, and hast pitied me. [2] Behold, my God is my Saviour; I will trust in him, and not be afraid: for the Lord is my glory and my praise, and is become my salvation. [3] Draw ye therefore water with joy out of the wells of salvation. [4] And in that day thou shalt say, sing to the Lord, call aloud upon his name, proclaim his glorious deeds among the Gentiles; make mention that his name is exalted. [5] Sing praise to the name of the Lord; for he has done great things: declare this in all the earth. [6] Exalt and rejoice, ye that dwell in Sion: for the Holy One of Israel is exalted in the midst of her.

Chapter 13

[1] THE VISION WHICH ESAIAS SON OF AMOS SAW AGAINST BABYLON.

[2] Lift up a standard on the mountain of the plain, exalt the voice to them, beckon with the hand, open the gates, ye rulers. [3] I give command, and I bring them: giants are coming to fulfil my wrath, rejoicing at the same time and insulting. [4] A voice of many nations on the mountains, even like to that of many nations; a voice of kings and nations gathered together: the Lord of hosts has given command to a war-like nation, [5] to come from a land afar off, from the utmost foundation of heaven; the Lord and his warriors are coming to destroy all the world.

[6] Howl ye, for the day of the Lord is near, and destruction from God shall arrive. [7] Therefore every hand shall become powerless, and every soul of man shall be dismayed. [8] The elders shall be troubled, and pangs shall seize them, as of a woman in travail: and they shall mourn one to another, and shall be amazed, and shall change their countenance as a flame. [9] For behold! the day of the Lord is coming which cannot be escaped, a day of wrath and anger, to make the world desolate, and to destroy sinners out of it. [10] For the stars of heaven, and Orion, and all the host of heaven, shall not give their light; and it shall be dark at sunrise, and the moon shall not give her light. [11] And I will command evils for the whole world, and will visit their sins on the ungodly: and I will destroy the pride of transgressors, and will bring low the pride of the haughty. [12] And they that are left shall be more precious than gold tried in the fire; and a man shall be more precious than the stone that is in Suphir. [13] For the heaven shall be enraged, and the earth shall be shaken from her foundation, because of the fierce anger of the Lord of hosts, in the day in which his wrath shall come on. [14] And they that are left shall be as a fleeing fawn, and as a stray sheep, and there shall be none to gather them: so that a man shall turn back to his people, and a man shall flee to his own land. [15] For whosoever shall be taken shall be overcome; and they that are gathered together shall fall by the sword. [16] And they shall dash their children before their eyes; and they shall spoil their houses, and shall take their wives.

[17] Behold, I will stir up against you the Medes, who do not regard silver, neither have they need of gold. [18] They shall break the bows of the young men; and they shall have no mercy on your children; nor shall their eyes spare thy children. [19] And Babylon, which is called glorious by the king of the Chaldeans, shall be as when God overthrew Sodoma, and Gomorrha. [20] It shall never be inhabited, neither shall any enter into it for many generations: neither shall the Arabians pass through it; nor shall shepherds at all rest in it. [21] But wild beasts shall rest there; and the houses shall be filled with howling; and monsters shall rest there, and devils shall dance there, [22] and satyrs shall dwell there; and hedgehogs shall make their nests in their houses.

It will come soon, and will not tarry.

Chapter 14

[1] And the Lord will have mercy on Jacob, and will yet choose Israel, and they shall rest on their land: and the stranger shall be added to them, yea, shall be added to the house of Jacob. [2] And the Gentiles shall take them, and bring them into their place: and they shall inherit them, and they shall be multiplied upon the land for servants and handmaidens: and they that took them captives shall become captives to them; and they that had lordship over them shall be under their rule.

[3] And it shall come to pass in that day, that the Lord shall give thee rest from thy sorrow and vexation, and from thy hard servitude wherein thou didst serve them. [4] And thou shalt take up this lamentation against the king of Babylon,

How has the extortioner ceased, and the taskmaster ceased! [5] The Lord has broken the yoke of sinners, the yoke of princes. [6] Having smitten a nation in wrath, with an incurable plague, smiting a nation with a wrathful plague, which spared them not, he rested in quiet. [7] All the earth cries aloud with joy: [8] the trees also of Libanus rejoice against thee, and the cedar of Libanus, saying, From the time that thou hast been laid low, no one has come up to cut us down. [9] Hell from beneath is provoked to meet thee: all the great ones that have ruled over the earth have risen up together against thee, they that have raised up from their thrones all the kings of the nations. [10] All shall answer and say to thee, Thou also hast been taken, even as we; and thou art numbered amongst us. [11] Thy glory has come down to Hades, and thy great mirth: under thee they shall spread corruption, and the worm shall be thy covering. [12] How has Lucifer, that rose in the morning, fallen from heaven! He that sent orders to all the nations is crushed to the earth. [13] But thou saidst in thine heart, I will go up to heaven, I will set my throne above the stars of heaven: I will sit on a lofty mount, on the lofty mountains toward the north: [14] I will go up above the clouds: I will be like the Most High. [15] But now thou shalt go down to hell, even to the foundations of the earth. [16] They that see thee shall wonder at thee, and say, This is the man that troubled the earth, that made kings to shake; [17] that made the whole world desolate, and destroyed its cities; he loosed not those who were in captivity. [18] All the kings of the nations lie in honour, every man in his house. [19] But thou shalt be cast forth on the mountains, as a loathed carcase, with many dead who have been pierced with swords, going down to the grave. [20] As a garment defiled with blood shall not be pure, so neither shalt thou be pure; because thou hast destroyed my land, and hast slain my people: thou shalt not endure for ever, — thou an evil seed. [21] Prepare thy children to be slain for the sins of their father; that they arise not, and inherit the earth, nor fill the earth with wars. [22] And I will rise up against them, saith the Lord of hosts, and I will destroy their name, and remnant, and seed: thus saith the Lord. [23] And I will make the region of Babylon desert, so that hedgehogs shall dwell there, and it shall come to nothing: and I will make it a pit of clay for destruction.

[24] Thus saith the Lord of hosts, As I have said, so it shall be: and as I have purposed, so the matter shall remain: [25] even to destroy the Assyrians upon my land, and upon my mountains: and they shall be for trampling; and their yoke shall be taken away from them, and their glory shall be taken away from their shoulders. [26] This is the purpose which the Lord has purposed upon the whole earth: and this the hand that is uplifted against all the nations. [27] For what the Holy God has purposed, who shall frustrate? and who shall turn back his uplifted hand?

[28] In the year in which king Achaz died this word came.

[29] Rejoice not, all ye Philistines, because the yoke of him that smote you is broken: for out of the seed of the serpent shall come forth the young asps, and their young shall come forth flying serpents, [30] And the poor shall be fed by him, and poor men shall rest in peace: but he shall destroy thy seed with hunger, and shall destroy thy remnant. [31] Howl, ye gates of cities; let the cities be troubled and cry, even all the Philistines: for smoke is coming from the north, and there is no possibility of living. [32] And what shall the kings of the nations answer? That the Lord has founded Sion, and by him the poor of the people shall be saved.

Chapter 15

[1] THE WORD AGAINST THE LAND OF MOAB.

By night the land of Moab shall be destroyed; for by night the wall of the land of Moab shall be destroyed. [2] Grieve for yourselves; for even Debon, where your altar is, shall be destroyed: thither shall ye go up to weep, over Nabau of the land of Moab: howl ye: baldness shall be on every head, and all arms shall be wounded. [3] Gird yourselves with sackcloth in her streets: and lament upon her roofs, and in her streets, and in her ways; howl all of you with weeping. [4] For Esebon and Eleale have cried: their voice was heard to Jassa: therefore the loins of the region of Moab cry aloud; her soul shall know. [5] The heart of the region of Moab cries within her to Segor; for it is as a heifer of three years old: and on the ascent of Luith they shall go up to thee weeping by the way of Aroniim: she cries, Destruction, and trembling. [6] The water of Nemerim shall be desolate, and the grass thereof shall fail: for there shall be no green grass. [7] Shall Moab even thus be delivered? for I will bring the Arabians upon the valley, and they shall take it. [8] For the cry has reached the border of the region of Moab, even of Agalim; and her howling has gone as far as the well of Ælim. [9] And the water of Dimon shall be filled with blood: for I will bring Arabians upon Dimon, and I will take away the seed of Moab, and Ariel, and the remnant of Adama.

Chapter 16

[1] I will send as it were reptiles on the land: is not the mount of the daughter of Sion a desolate rock? [2] For thou shalt be as a young bird taken away from a bird that has flown: even thou shalt be so, daughter of Moab: and then do thou, O Arnon, [3] take farther counsel, and continually make thou a shelter from grief: they flee in darkness at mid-day; they are amazed; be not thou led captive. [4] The fugitives of Moab shall sojourn with thee; they shall be to you a shelter from the face of the pursuer: for thine alliance has been taken away, and the oppressing ruler has perished from off the earth. [5] And a throne shall be established with mercy; and one shall sit upon it with truth in the tabernacle of David, judging, and earnestly seeking judgements, and hasting righteousness.

[6] We have heard of the pride of Moab; he is very proud. I have cut off his pride: thy prophecy shall not be thus, no not thus. [7] Moab shall howl; for all shall howl in the land of Moab: but thou shalt care for them that dwell in Seth, and thou shalt not be ashamed. [8] The plains of Esebon shall mourn, the vine of Sebama: swallowing up the nations, trample ye her vines, even to Jazer: ye shall not come together; wander ye in the desert: they that were sent are deserted, for they have gone over to the sea. [9] Therefore will I weep as with the weeping of Jazer for the vine of Sebama; Esebon and Eleale have cast down thy trees; for I will trample on thy harvest and on thy vintages, and all thy plants shall fall. [10] And gladness and rejoicing shall be taken away from the vineyards; and they shall not at all tread wine into the vats; for the vintage has ceased. [11] Therefore my belly shall sound as a harp for Moab, and thou hast repaired my inward parts as a wall. [12] And it shall be to thy shame, (for Moab is wearied at the altars,) that he shall go in to the idols thereof to pray, but they shall not be at all able to deliver him.

[13] This is the word which the Lord spoke against Moab, when he spoke. [14] And now I say, in three years, of the years of an hireling, the glory of Moab shall be dishonoured with all his great wealth; and he shall be left few in number, and not honoured.

[1] THE WORD AGAINST DAMASCUS.

Behold, Damascus shall be taken away from among cities, and shall become a ruin; [2] abandoned for ever, to be a fold and resting-place for flocks, and there shall be none to go after them. [3] And she shall no longer be a strong place for Ephraim to flee to, and there shall no longer be a kingdom in Damascus, or a remnant of Syrians; for thou art no better than the children of Israel, even than their glory; thus saith the Lord of hosts. [4] There shall be in that day a failure of the glory of Jacob, and the riches of his glory shall be shaken. [5] And it shall be as if one should gather standing corn, and reap the grain of the ears; and it shall be as if one should gather ears in a rich valley; [6] and as if there should be left stubble therein, or as it were the berries of an olive tree, two or three on the topmost bough, or as if four or five should be left on their branches; thus saith the Lord, the God of Israel.

[7] In that day a man shall trust in him that made him, and his eyes shall have respect to the Holy One of Israel. [8] And they shall not at all trust in their altars, nor in the works of their hands, which their fingers made; and they shall not look to the trees, nor to their abominations.

[9] In that day thy cities shall be deserted, as the Amorites and the Evaeans deserted theirs, because the of children of Israel; and they shall be desolate. [10] Because thou hast forsaken God thy Saviour, and hast not been mindful of the Lord thy helper; therefore shalt thou plant a false plant, and a false seed. [11] In the day wherein thou shalt plant thou shalt be deceived; but if thou sow in the morning, the seed shall spring up for a crop in the day wherein thou shalt obtain an inheritance, and as a man's father, thou shalt obtain an inheritance for thy sons.

[12] Woe to the multitude of many nations, as the swelling sea, so shall ye be confounded; and the force of many nations shall sound like water; [13] many nations like much water, as when much water rushes violently: and they shall drive him away, and pursue him afar, as the dust of chaff when men winnow before the wind, and as a storm whirling the dust of the wheel.

[14] Toward evening, and there shall be grief; before the morning, and he shall not be. This is the portion of them that spoiled you, and the inheritance to them that robbed you of your inheritance.

Chapter 18

[1] Woe to you, ye wings of the land of ships, beyond the rivers of Ethiopia. [2] He sends messengers by the sea, and paper letters on the water: for swift messengers shall go to a lofty nation, and to a strange and harsh people. Who is beyond it? a nation not looked for, and trodden down. [3] Now all the rivers of the land shall be inhabited as an inhabited country; their land shall be as when a signal is raised from a mountain; it shall be audible as the sound of a trumpet. [4] For thus said the Lord to me, There shall be security in my city, as the light of noonday heat, and it shall be as a cloud of dew in the day of harvest. [5] Before the reaping time, when the flower has been completely formed, and the unripe grape has put forth its flower and blossomed, then shall he take away the little clusters with pruning-hooks, and shall take away the small branches, and cut them off; [6] And he shall leave them together to the birds of the sky, and to the wild beasts of the earth: and the fowls of the sky shall be gathered upon them, and all the beasts of the land shall come upon him. [7] In that time shall presents be brought to the Lord of hosts from a people afflicted and peeled, and from a people great from henceforth and for ever; a nation hoping and yet trodden down, which is in a part of a river of his land, to the place where is the name of the Lord of hosts, the mount Sion.

Chapter 19

[1] THE VISION OF EGYPT.

Behold, the Lord sits on a swift cloud, and shall come to Egypt: and the idols of Egypt shall be moved at his presence, and their heart shall faint within them. [2] And the Egyptians shall be stirred up against the Egyptians: and a man shall fight against his brother, and a man against his neighbor, city against city, and law against law. [3] And the spirit of the Egyptians shall be troubled within them; and I will frustrate their counsel: and they shall enquire of their gods and their images, and them that speak out of the earth, and them that have in them a divining spirit. [4] And I will deliver Egypt into the hands of men, of cruel lords; and cruel kings shall rule over them: thus saith the Lord of hosts. [5] And the Egyptians shall drink the water that is by the sea, but the river shall fail, and be dried up. [6] And the streams shall fail, and the canals of the river; and every reservoir of water shall be dried up, in every marsh also of reed and papyrus. [7] And all the green herbage round about the river, and everything sown by the side of the river, shall be blasted with the wind and dried up. [8] And the fishermen shall groan, and all that cast a hook into the river shall groan; they also that cast nets, and the anglers shall mourn. [9] And shame shall come upon them that work fine flax, and them that make fine linen. [10] And they that work at them shall be in pain, and all that make beer shall be grieved, and be pained in their souls. [11] And the princes of Tanis shall be fools: as for the king's wise counsellors, their counsel shall be turned into folly: how will ye say to the king, we are sons of wise men, sons of ancient kings? [12] Where are now thy wise men? and let them declare to thee, and say, What has the Lord of hosts purposed upon Egypt? [13] The princes of Tanis have failed, and the princes of Memphis are lifted up with pride, and they shall cause Egypt to wander by tribes. [14] For the Lord has prepared for them a spirit of error, and they have caused Egypt to err in all their works, as one staggers who is drunken and vomits also. [15] And there shall be no work to the Egyptians, which shall make head or tail, or beginning or end.

[16] But in that day the Egyptians shall be as women, in fear and in trembling because of the hand of the Lord of hosts, which he shall bring upon them. [17] And the land of the Jews shall be for a terror to the Egyptians: whosoever shall name it to them, they shall fear, because of the counsel which the Lord of hosts has purposed concerning it. [18] In that day there shall be five cities in Egypt speaking the language of Chanaan, and swearing by the name of the Lord of hosts; one city shall be called the city of Asedec. [19] In that day there shall be an altar to the Lord in the land of the Egyptians, and a pillar to the Lord by its border. [20] And it shall be for a sign to the Lord for ever in the land of Egypt: for they shall presently cry to the Lord by reason of them that afflict them, and he shall send them a man who shall save them; he shall judge and save them. [21] And the Lord shall be known to the Egyptians, and the Egyptians shall know the Lord in that day; and they shall offer sacrifices, and shall vow vows to the Lord, and pay them. ^[22] And the Lord shall smite the Egyptians with a stroke, and shall completely heal them: and they shall return to the Lord, and he shall hear them, and thoroughly heal them. ^[23] In that day there shall be a way from Egypt to the Assyrians, and the Assyrians shall enter into Egypt, and the Egyptians shall go to the Assyrians, and the Egyptians shall serve the Assyrians. ^[24] In that day shall Israel be third with the Egyptians and the Assyrians, blessed in the land which the Lord of hosts has blessed, ^[25] saying, Blessed be my people that is in Egypt, and that is among the Assyrians, and Israel mine inheritance.

Chapter 20

[1] In the year when Tanathan came to Azotus, when he was sent by Arna king of the Assyrians, and warred against Azotus, and took it; [2] then the Lord spoke to Isaiah the son of Amos, saying, Go and take the sackcloth off thy loins, and loose thy sandals from off thy feet, and do thus, going naked and barefoot. [3] And the Lord said, As my servant Isaiah has walked naked and barefoot three years, there shall be three years for signs and wonders to the Egyptians and Ethiopians; [4] for thus shall the king of the Assyrians lead the captivity of Egypt and the Ethiopians, young men and old, naked and barefoot, having the shame of Egypt exposed. [5] And the Egyptians being defeated shall be ashamed of the Ethiopians, in whom they had trusted; for they were their glory. [6] And they that dwell in this island shall say in that day, Behold, we trusted to flee to them for help, who could not save themselves from the king of the Assyrians: and how shall we be saved?

Chapter 21

[1] THE VISION OF THE DESERT.

As though a whirlwind should pass through the desert, coming from a desert, even from such a land, [2] so a fearful and a grievous vision was declared to me: he that is treacherous deals treacherously, the transgressor transgresses. The Elamites are upon me, and the ambassadors of the Persians come against me: now will I groan and comfort myself. [3] Therefore are my loins filled with feebleness, and pangs have seized me as a travelling woman: I dealt wrongfully that I might not hear; I hasted that I might not see. [4] My heart wanders, and transgression overwhelms me; my soul is occupied with fear. [5] Prepare the table, eat, drink: arise, ye princes, and prepare your shields. [6] For thus said the Lord to me, Go and station a watchman for thyself, and declare whatever thou shalt see. [7] And I saw two mounted horsemen, and a rider on an ass, and a rider on a camel. [8] Hearken with great attention, and call thou Urias to the watch-tower: the Lord has spoken. I stood continually during the day, and I stood in the camp all night: [9] and, behold, he comes riding in a chariot and pair: and he answered and said, Babylon is fallen, is fallen; and all her images and her idols have been crushed to the ground. [10] Hear, ye that are left, and ye that are in pain, hear what things I have heard of the Lord of hosts which the God of Israel has declared to us.

THE VISION OF IDUMEA.

[11] Call to me out of Seir; guard ye the bulwarks. [12] I watch in the morning and the night: if thou wouldest enquire, enquire, and dwell by me. [13] Thou mayest lodge in the forest in the evening, or in the way of Daedan. [14] Ye that dwell in the country of Thaeman, bring water to meet him that is thirsty; [15] meet the fugitives with bread, because of the multitude of the slain, and because of the multitude of them that lose their way, and because of the multitude of swords, and because of the multitude of bent bows, and because of the multitude of them that have fallen in war. [16] For thus said the Lord to me, Yet a year, as the year of an hireling, and the glory of the sons of Kedar shall fail: [17] and the remnant of the strong bows of the sons of Kedar shall be small: for the Lord God of Israel has spoken it.

Chapter 22

[1] THE WORD OF THE VALLEY OF SION.

What has happened to thee, that now ye are all gone up to the housetops which help you not? [2] The city is filled with shouting men: thy slain are not slain with swords, nor are thy dead those who have died in battle. [3] All thy princes have fled, and thy captives are tightly bound, and the mighty men in thee have fled far away. [4] Therefore I said, Let me alone, I will weep bitterly; labour not to comfort me for the breach of the daughter of my people. [5] For it is a day of trouble, and of destruction, and of treading down, and there is perplexity sent from the Lord of hosts: they wander in the valley of Sion; they wander from the least to the greatest on the mountains. [6] And the Elamites took their quivers, and there were men mounted on horses, and there was a gathering for battle. [7] And it shall be that thy choice valleys shall be filled with chariots, and horsemen shall block up thy gates. [8] And they shall uncover the gates of Juda, and they shall look in that day on the choice houses of the city. [9] And they shall uncover the secret places of the houses of the citadel of David: and they saw that they were many, and that one had turned the water of the old pool into the city; [10] and that they had pulled down the houses of Jerusalem, to fortify the wall of the city. [11] And ye procured to yourselves water between the two walls within the ancient pool: but ye looked not to him that made it from the beginning, and regarded not him that created it. [12] And the Lord, the Lord of hosts, called in that day for weeping, and lamentation, and baldness, and for girding with sackcloth: [13] but they engaged in joy and gladness, slaying calves, and killing sheep, so as to eat flesh, and drink wine; saying, Let us eat and drink; for to-morrow we die. [14] And these things are revealed in the ears of the Lord of hosts: for this sin shall not be forgiven you, until ye die.

[15] Thus saith the Lord of hosts, Go into the chamber, to Somnas the treasurer, and say to him, Why art thou here? [16] and what hast thou to do here, that thou hast here hewn thyself a sepulchre, and madest thyself a sepulchre on high, and hast graven for thyself a dwelling in the rock? [17] Behold now, the Lord of hosts casts forth and will utterly destroy such a man, and will take away thy robe and thy glorious crown, [18] and will cast thee into a great and unmeasured land, and there thou shalt die: and he will bring thy fair chariot to shame, and the house of thy prince to be trodden down. [19] And thou shalt be removed from thy stewardship, and from thy place. [20] And it shall come to pass in that day, that I will call my servant Eliakim the son of Chelcias: [21] and I will put on him thy robe, and I will grant him thy crown with power, and I will give thy stewardship into his hands: and he shall be as a father to them that dwell in Jerusalem, and to them that dwell in Juda. [22] And I will give him the glory of David; and he shall rule, and there shall be none to speak against him: and I will give him the key of the house of David upon his shoulder; and he shall open, and there shall be none to shut; and he shall shut, and there shall be none to open. [23] And I will make him a ruler in a sure place, and he shall be for a glorious throne of his father's house. [24] And every one that is glorious in the house of his father shall trust in him, from the least to the greatest; and they shall depend upon him in that day. [25] Thus saith the Lord of hosts, The man that is fastened in the sure place shall be removed and be taken away, and shall fall; and the glory that is upon him shall be utterly destroyed: for the Lord has spoken it.

[1] THE WORD CONCERNING TYRE.

Howl, ye ships of Carthage; for she has perished, and men no longer arrive from the land of the Citians: she is led captive. [2] To whom are the dwellers in the island become like, the merchants of Phoenice, passing over the sea [3] in great waters, a generation of merchants? as when the harvest is gathered in, so are these traders with the nations. [4] Be ashamed, O Sidon: the sea has said, yea, the strength of the sea has said, I have not travailed, nor brought forth, nor have I brought up young men, nor reared virgins. [5] Moreover when it shall be heard in Egypt, sorrow shall seize them for Tyre. [6] Depart ye to Carthage; howl, ye that dwell in this island. [7] Was not this your pride from the beginning, before she was given up? [8] Who has devised this counsel against Tyre? Is she inferior? or has she no strength? her merchants were the glorious princes of the earth. [9] The Lord of hosts has purposed to bring down all the pride of the glorious ones, and to disgrace every glorious thing on the earth. [10] Till thy land; for ships no more come out of Carthage. [11] And thy hand prevails no more by sea, which troubled kings: the Lord of hosts has given a command concerning Chanaan, to destroy the strength thereof. [12] And men shall say, Ye shall no longer at all continue to insult and injure the daughter of Sidon: and if thou depart to the Citians, neither there shalt thou have rest. [13] And if thou depart to the land of the Chaldeans, this also is laid waste by the Assyrians, for her wall is fallen. [14] Howl, ye ships of Carthage: for your strong hold is destroyed.

[15] And it shall come to pass in that day, that Tyre shall be left seventy years, as the time of a king, as the time of a man: and it shall come to pass after seventy years, that Tyre shall be as the song of a harlot. [16] Take a harp, go about, O city, thou harlot that hast been forgotten; play well on the harp, sing many songs, that thou mayest be remembered. [17] And it shall come to pass after the seventy years, that God will visit Tyre, and she shall be again restored to her primitive state, and she shall be a mart for all the kingdoms of the world on the face of the earth. [18] And her trade and her gain shall be holiness to the Lord: it shall not be gathered for them, but for those that dwell before the Lord, even all her trade, to eat and drink and be filled, and for a covenant and a memorial before the Lord.

[1] Behold, the Lord is about to lay waste the world, and will make it desolate, and will lay bare the surface of it, and scatter them that dwell therein. [2] And the people shall be as the priest, and the servant as the lord, and the maid as the mistress; the buyer shall be as the seller, the lender as the borrower, and the debtor as his creditor.

[3] The earth shall be completely laid waste, and the earth shall be utterly spoiled: for the mouth of the Lord has spoken these things. [4] The earth mourns, and the world is ruined, the lofty ones of the earth are mourning. [5] And she has sinned by reason of her inhabitants; because they have transgressed the law, and changed the ordinances, even the everlasting covenant. [6] Therefore a curse shall consume the earth, because the inhabitants thereof have sinned: therefore the dwellers in the earth shall be poor, and few men shall be left. [7] The wine shall mourn, the vine shall mourn, all the merry-hearted shall sigh. [8] The mirth of timbrels has ceased, the sound of the harp has ceased. [9] They are ashamed, they have not drunk wine; strong drink has become bitter to them that drink it. [10] All the city has become desolate: one shall shut his house so that none shall enter. [11] There is a howling for the wine everywhere; all the mirth of the land has ceased, all the mirth of the land has departed. [12] And cities shall be left desolate, and houses being left shall fall to ruin.

[13] All this shall be in the land in the midst of the nations, as if one should strip an olive tree, so shall they strip them; but when the vintage is done, [14] these shall cry aloud; and they that are left on the land shall rejoice together in the glory of the Lord: the water of the sea shall be troubled. [15] Therefore shall the glory of the Lord be in the isles of the sea; the name of the Lord shall be glorious.

[16] O Lord God of Israel, from the ends of the earth we have heard wonderful things, and there is hope to the godly: but they shall say, Woe to the despisers, that despise the law. [17] Fear, and a pit, and a snare, are upon you that dwell on the earth. [18] And it shall come to pass, that he that flees from the fear shall fall into the pit; and he that comes up out of the pit shall be caught by the snare: for windows have been opened in heaven, and the foundations of the earth shall be shaken, [19] the earth shall be utterly confounded, and the earth shall be completely perplexed. [20] It reels as a drunkard and one oppressed with wine, and the earth shall be shaken as a storehouse of fruits; for iniquity has prevailed upon it, and it shall fall, and shall not be able to rise.

[21] And God shall bring his hand upon the host of heaven, and upon the kings of the earth. [22] And they shall gather the multitude thereof into prisons, and they shall shut them into a strong hold: after many generations they shall be visited. [23] And the brick shall decay, and the wall shall fall; for the Lord shall reign from out of Sion, and out of Jerusalem, and shall be glorified before his elders.

Chapter 25

[1] O Lord God, I will glorify thee, I will sing to thy name; for thou hast done wonderful things, even an ancient and faithful counsel. So be it. [2] For thou hast made cities a heap, even cities made strong that their foundations should not fall: the city of ungodly men shall not be built for ever. [3] Therefore shall the poor people bless thee, and cities of injured men shall bless thee. [4] For thou hast been a helper to every lowly city, and a shelter to them that were disheartened by reason of poverty: thou shalt deliver them from wicked men: thou hast been a shelter of them that thirst, and a refreshing air to injured men.

[5] We were as faint-hearted men thirsting in Sion, by reason of ungodly men to whom thou didst deliver us. [6] And the Lord of hosts shall make a feast for all the nations: on this mount they shall drink gladness, they shall drink wine: [7] they shall anoint themselves with ointment in this mountain. Impart thou all these things to the nations; for this is God's counsel upon all the nations. [8] Death has prevailed and swallowed men up; but again the Lord God has taken away every tear from every face. He has taken away the reproach of his people from all the earth: for the mouth off the Lord has spoken it. [9] And in that day they shall say, behold our God in whom we have trusted, and he shall save us: this is the Lord; we have waited for him, and we have exulted, and will rejoice in our salvation.

[10] God will give rest on this mountain, and the country of Moab shall be trodden down, as they tread the floor with waggons. [11] And he shall spread forth his hands, even as he also brings down man to destroy him: and he shall bring low his pride in regard to the thing on which he has laid his hands. [12] And he shall bring down the height of the refuge of the wall, and it shall come down even to the ground.

[1] In that day they shall sing this song in the land of Judea; Behold a strong city; and he shall make salvation its wall and bulwark. [2] Open ye the gates, let the nation enter that keeps righteousness, and keeps truth, [3] supporting truth, and keeping peace: for on thee, O Lord, [4] they have trusted with confidence for ever, the great, the eternal God; [5] who hast humbled and brought down them that dwell on high thou shalt cast down strong cities, and bring them to the ground. [6] And the feet of the meek and lowly shall trample them.

[7] The way of the godly is made straight: the way of the godly is also prepared. [8] For the way of the Lord is judgement: we have hoped in thy name, and on the remembrance of thee, [9] which our soul longs for: my spirit seeks thee very early in the morning, O God, for thy commandments are a light on the earth: learn righteousness, ye that dwell upon the earth. [10] For the ungodly one is put down: no one who will not learn righteousness on the earth, shall be able to do the truth: let the ungodly be taken away, that he see not the glory of the Lord. [11] O Lord, thine arm is exalted, yet they knew it not: but when they know they shall be ashamed: jealously shall seize upon an untaught nation, and now fire shall devour the adversaries. [12] O Lord our God, give us peace: for thou hast rendered to us all things. [13] O Lord our God, take possession of us: O Lord, we know not any other beside thee: we name thy name.

[14] But the dead shall not see life, neither shall physicians by any means raise them up: therefore thou hast brought wrath upon them, and slain them, and hast taken away every male of them. Bring more evils upon them, O Lord; [15] bring more evils on the glorious ones of the earth.

[16] Lord, in affliction I remembered thee; thy chastening was to us with small affliction. [17] And as a woman in travail draws nigh to be delivered, and cries out in her pain; so have we been to thy beloved. [18] We have conceived, O Lord, because of thy fear, and have been in pain, and have brought forth the breath of thy salvation, which we have wrought upon the earth: we shall not fall, but all that dwell upon the land shall fall. [19] The dead shall rise, and they that are in the tombs shall be raised, and they that are in the earth shall rejoice: for the dew from thee is healing to them: but the land of the ungodly shall perish. [20] Go, my people, enter into thy closets, shut thy door, hide thyself for a little season, until the anger of the Lord have passed away. [21] For, behold, the Lord is bringing wrath from his holy place upon the dwellers on the earth: the earth also shall disclose her blood, and shall not cover her slain.

[1] In that day God shall bring his holy and great and strong sword upon the dragon, even the serpent that flees, upon the dragon, the crooked serpent: he shall destroy the dragon. [2] In that day there shall be a fair vineyard, and a desire to commence a song concerning it. [3] I am a strong city, a city in a siege: in vain shall I water it; for it shall be taken by night, and by day the wall shall fall. [4] There is no woman that has not taken hold of it; who will set me to watch stubble in the field? because of this enemy I have set her aside; therefore on this account the Lord has done all that he appointed. [5] I am burnt up; they that dwell in her shall cry, Let us make peace with him, let us make peace, [6] they that are coming are the children of Jacob. Israel shall bud and blossom, and the world shall be filled with his fruit.

[7] Shall he himself be thus smitten, even as he smote? and as he slew, shall he be thus slain? [8] Fighting and reproaching he will dismiss them; didst thou not meditate with a harsh spirit, to slay them with a wrathful spirit? [9] Therefore shall the iniquity of Jacob be taken away; and this is his blessing, when I shall have taken away his sin; when they shall have broken to pieces all the stones of the altars as fine dust, and their trees shall not remain, and their idols shall be cut off, as a thicket afar off. [10] The flock that dwelt there shall be left, as a deserted flock; and the ground shall be for a long time for pasture, and there shall flocks lie down to rest. [11] And after a time there shall be in it no green thing because of the grass being parched. Come hither, ye woman that come from a sight; for it is a people of no understanding; therefore he that made them shall have no pity upon them, and he that formed them shall have no mercy upon them.

[12] And it shall come to pass in that day that God shall fence men off from the channel of the river as far as Rhinocorura; but do ye gather one by one the children of Israel. [13] And it shall come to pass in that day that they shall blow the great trumpet, and the lost ones in the land of the Assyrians shall come, and the lost ones in Egypt, and shall worship the Lord on the holy mountain in Jerusalem.

[1] Woe to the crown of pride, the hirelings of Ephraim, the flower that has fallen from the glory of the top of the fertile mountain, they that are drunken without wine. [2] Behold, the anger of the Lord is strong and severe, as descending hail where there is no shelter, violently descending; as a great body of water sweeping away the soil, he shall make rest for the land. [3] The crown of pride, the hirelings of Ephraim, shall be beaten down with the hands and with the feet. [4] And the fading flower of the glorious hope on the top of the high mountain shall be as the early fig; he that sees it, before he takes it into his hand, will desire to swallow it down.

[5] In that day the Lord of hosts shall be the crown of hope, the woven crown of glory, to the remnant of the people. [6] They shall be left in the spirit of judgement for judgement, and for the strength of them that hinder slaying. [7] For these have trespassed through wine; they have erred through strong drink: the priest and the prophet are mad through strong drink, they are swallowed up by reason of wine, they have staggered through drunkenness; they have erred: this is their vision. [8] A curse shall devour this counsel, for this is their counsel for the sake of covetousness. [9] To whom have we reported evils? and to whom have we reported a message? even to those that are weaned from the milk, who are drawn from the breast. [10] Except thou affliction on affliction, hope upon hope: yet a little, and yet a little, [11] by reason of the contemptuous words of the lips, by means of another language: for they shall speak to this people, saying to them, [12] This is the rest to him that is hungry, and this is the calamity: but they would not hear.

[13] Therefore the oracle of God shall be to them affliction on affliction, hope on hope, yet a little, and yet a little, that they may go and fall backward; and they shall be crushed and shall be in danger, and shall be taken.

[14] Therefore hear ye the word of the Lord, ye afflicted men, and ye princes of this people that is in Jerusalem. [15] Because ye have said, We have made a covenant with Hades, and agreements with death; if the rushing storm should pass, it shall not come upon us: we have made falsehood our hope, and by falsehood shall we be protected: [16] Therefore thus saith the Lord, even the Lord,

Behold, I lay for the foundations of Sion a costly stone, a choice, a corner-stone, a precious stone, for its foundations; and he that believes on him shall by no means be ashamed. [17] And I will cause judgement to be for hope, and my compassion shall be for just measures, and ye that trust vainly in falsehood shall fall: for the storm shall by no means pass by you, [18] except it also take away your covenant of death, and your trust in Hades shall by no means stand: if the rushing storm should come upon you, ye shall be beaten down by it. [19] Whenever it shall pass by, it shall take you; morning by morning it shall pass by in the day, and in the night there shall be an evil hope.

Learn to hear, [20] ye that are distressed; we cannot fight, but we are ourselves too weak for you to be gathered. [21] The Lord shall rise up as a mountain of ungodly men, and shall be in the valley of Gabaon; he shall perform his works with wrath, even a work of bitterness, and his wrath shall deal strangely, and his destruction shall be strange. [22] Therefore do not ye rejoice, neither let your bands be made strong; for I have heard of works finished and cut short by the Lord of hosts, which he will execute upon all the earth.

[23] Hearken, and hear my voice; attend, and hear my words. [24] Will the ploughman plough all the day? or will he prepare the seed beforehand, before he tills the ground? [25] Does he not, when he has levelled the surface thereof, then sow the small black poppy, or cumin, and afterward sow wheat, and barley, and millet, and bread-corn in thy borders? [26] So thou shalt be chastened by the judgement of thy God, and shalt rejoice. [27] For the black poppy is not cleansed with harsh treatment, nor will a wagon-wheel pass over the cumin; but the black poppy is threshed with a rod, and the cumin shall be eaten with bread; [28] for I will not be wroth with you for ever, neither shall the voice of my anger crush you. [29] And these signs came forth from the Lord of hosts. Take counsel, exalt vain comfort.

[1] Alas for the city of Ariel, which David besieged. Gather ye fruits year by year; eat ye, for ye shall eat with Moab. [2] For I will grievously afflict Ariel: and her strength and her wealth shall be mine. [3] And I will compass thee about like David, and will raise a mound about thee, and set up towers round thee. [4] And thy words shall be brought down to the earth, and thy words shall sink down to the earth, and thy voice shall be as they that speak out of the earth, and thy voice shall be lowered to the ground. [5] But the wealth of the ungodly shall be as dust from a wheel, and the multitude of them that oppress thee as flying chaff, and it shall be suddenly as a moment, [6] from the Lord of Hosts: for there shall be a visitation with thunder, and earthquake, and a loud noise, a rushing tempest, and devouring flame of fire. [7] And the wealth of all the nations together, as many as have fought against Ariel, and all they that war against Jerusalem, and all who are gathered against her, and they that distress her, shall be as one that dreams in sleep by night. [8] And as men drink and eat in sleep, and when they have arisen, the dream is vain: and as a thirsty man dreams as if he drank, and having arisen is still thirsty, and his soul has desired in vain: so shall be the wealth of all the nations, as many as have fought against the mount Sion.

[9] Faint ye, and be amazed, and be overpowered, not with strong drink nor with wine. [10] For the Lord has made you to drink a spirit of deep sleep; and he shall close their eyes, and the eyes of their prophets and of their rulers, who see secret things. [11] And all these things shall be to you as the words of this sealed book, which if they shall give to a learned man, saying, Read this, he shall then say, I cannot read it, for it is sealed. [12] And this book shall be given into the hands of a man that is unlearned, and one shall say to him, Read this; and he shall say, I am not learned.

[13] And the Lord has said, This people draw nigh to me with their mouth, and they honour me with their lips, but their heart is far from me: but in vain do they worship me, teaching the commandments and doctrines of men. [14] Therefore behold I will proceed to remove this people, and I will remove them: and I will destroy the wisdom of the wise, and will hide the understanding of the prudent. [15] Woe to them that deepen their counsel, and not by the Lord. Woe to them that take secret counsel, and whose works are in darkness, and they say, Who has seen us? and who shall know us, or what we do? [16] Shall ye not be counted as clay of the potter? Shall the thing formed say to him that formed it, Thou didst not form me? or the work to the maker, Thou hast not made me wisely? [17] Is it not yet a little while, and Libanus shall be changed as the mountains of Chermel, and Chermel shall be reckoned as a forest? [18] And in that day the deaf shall hear the words of the book, and they that are in darkness, and they that are in mist: the eyes of the blind shall see, [19] and the poor shall rejoice with joy because of the Lord, and they that had no hope among men shall be filled with joy. [20] The lawless man has come to nought, and the proud man has perished, and they that transgress mischievously have been utterly destroyed: [21] and they that cause men to sin by a word: and men shall make all that reprove in the gates an offence, because they have unjustly turned aside the righteous.

[22] Therefore thus saith the Lord concerning the house of Jacob, whom he set apart from Abraam, Jacob shall not now be ashamed, neither shall he now change countenance. [23] But when their children shall have seen my works, they shall sanctify my name for my sake, and they sanctify the Holy One of Jacob, and shall fear the God of Israel. [24] And they that erred in spirit shall know understanding, and the murmurers shall learn obedience, and the stammering tongues shall learn to speak peace.

Chapter 30

[1] Woe to the apostate children, saith the Lord: ye have framed counsel, not by me, and covenants not by my Spirit, to add sins to sins: [2] even they that proceed to go down into Egypt, but they have not enquired of me, that they might be helped by Pharaoh, and protected by the Egyptians. [3] For the protection of Pharaoh shall be to you a disgrace, and there shall be a reproach to them that trust in Egypt. [4] For there are princes in Tanis, evil messengers. [5] In vain shall they labour in seeking to a people, which shall not profit them for help, but shall be for a shame and reproach.

[6] THE VISION OF THE QUADRUPEDS IN THE DESERT.

In affliction and distress, where are the lion and lion's whelp, thence come also asps, and the young of flying asps, there shall they be who bore their wealth on asses and camels to a nation which shall not profit them. [7] The Egyptians shall help you utterly in vain: tell them, This your consolation is vain.

[8] Now then sit down and write these words on a tablet, and in a book; for these things shall be for many long days, and even for ever. [9] For the people is disobedient, false children, who would not hear the law of God: [10] who say to the prophets, Report not to us; and to them that see visions, Speak them not to us, but speak and report to us another error; [11] and turn us aside from this way; remove from us this path, and remove from us the oracle of Israel.

[12] Therefore thus saith the Holy One of Israel, Because ye have refused to obey these words, and have trusted in falsehood; and because thou hast murmured, and been confident in this respect: [13] therefore shall this sin be to you as a wall suddenly falling when a strong city has been taken, of which the fall is very near at hand. [14] And the fall thereof shall be as the breaking of an earthen vessel, as small fragments of a pitcher, so that thou shouldest not find among them a sherd, with which thou mightest take up fire, and with which thou shouldest draw a little water. [15] Thus saith the Lord, the Holy Lord of Israel; When thou shalt turn and mourn, then thou shalt be saved; and thou shalt know where thou wast, when thou didst trust in vanities: then your strength became vain, yet ye would not hearken: [16] but ye said, We will flee upon horses; therefore shall ye flee: and, We will be aided by swift riders; therefore shall they that pursue you be swift. [17] A thousand shall flee because of the voice of one, and many shall flee on account of the voice of five; until ye be left as a signal-post upon a mountain, and as one bearing an ensign upon a hill.

[18] And the Lord will again wait, that he may pity you, and will therefore be exalted that he may have mercy upon you: because the Lord your God is a judge: blessed are they that stay themselves upon him.

[19] For the holy people shall dwell in Sion: and whereas Jerusalem has wept bitterly, saying, Pity me; he shall pity thee: when he perceived the voice of thy cry, he hearkened to thee. [20] And though the Lord shall give you the bread of affliction and scant water, yet they that cause thee to err shall no more at all draw nigh to thee; for thine eyes shall see those that cause thee to err, [21] and thine ears shall hear the words of them that went after thee to lead thee astray, who say, This is the way, let us walk in it, whether to the right or to the left. [22] And thou shalt pollute the plated idols, and thou shalt grind to powder the gilt ones, and shalt scatter them as the water of a removed woman, and thou shalt thrust them forth as dung. [23] Then shall there be rain to the seed of thy land; and the bread of the fruit of thy land shall be plenteous and rich: and thy cattle shall feed in that day in a fertile and spacious place. [24] Your bulls and your oxen that till the ground, shall eat chaff mixed with winnowed barley. [25] And there shall be upon every lofty mountain and upon every high hill, water running in that day, when many shall perish, and when the towers shall fall. [26] And the light of the moon shall be as the light of the sun, and the light of the sun shall be sevenfold in the day when the Lord shall heal the breach of his people, and shall heal the pain of thy wound.

[27] Behold, the name of the Lord comes after a long time, burning wrath: the word of his lips is with glory, a word full of anger, and the anger of his wrath shall devour as fire. [28] And his breath, as rushing water in a valley, shall reach as far as the neck, and be divided, to confound the nations for their vain error: error also shall pursue them, and overtake them. [29] Must ye always rejoice, and go into my holy places continually, as they that keep a feast? and must ye go with a pipe, as those that rejoice, into the mountain of the Lord, to the God of Israel? [30] And the Lord shall make his glorious voice to be heard, and the wrath of his arm, to make a display with wrath and anger and devouring flame: he shall lighten terribly, and his wrath shall be as water and violent hail. [31] For by the voice of the Lord the Assyrians shall be overcome, even by the stroke wherewith he shall smite them. [32] And it shall happen to him from every side, that they from whom their hope of assistance was, in which he trusted, themselves shall war against him in turn with drums and with harp. [33] For thou shalt be required before thy time: has it been prepared for thee also to reign? nay, God has prepared for thee a deep trench, wood piled, fire and much wood: the wrath of the Lord shall be as a trench kindled with sulphur.

[1] Woe to them that go down to Egypt for help, who trust in horses and chariots, for they are many; and in horses, which are a great multitude; and have not trusted in the Holy One of Israel, and have not sought the Lord. [2] Therefore he has wisely brought evils upon them, and his word shall not be frustrated; and he shall rise up against the houses of wicked men, and against their vain hope, [3] even an Egyptian, a man, and not God; the flesh of horses, and there is no help in them: but the Lord shall bring his hand upon them, and the helpers shall fail, and all shall perish together. [4] For thus said the Lord to me, As a lion would roar, or a lion's whelp over prey which he has taken, and cry over it, until the mountains are filled with his voice, and the animals are awe-struck and tremble at the fierceness of his wrath: so the Lord of hosts shall descend to fight upon the mount Sion, even upon her mountains. [5] As birds flying, so shall the Lord of hosts defend; he shall defend Jerusalem, and he shall rescue, and save and deliver. [6] Turn, ye children of Israel, who devise a deep and sinful counsel. [7] For in that day men shall renounce their silver idols and their golden idols, which their hands made. [8] And the Assyrian shall fall: not the sword of a great man, nor the sword of a mean man shall devour him; neither shall he flee from the face of the sword: but the young men shall be overthrown: [9] for they shall be compassed with rocks as with a trench, and shall be worsted; and he that flees shall be taken. Thus saith the Lord, Blesses is he that has a seed in Sion, and household friends in Jerusalem.

Chapter 32

[1] For, behold, a righteous king shall reign, and princes shall govern with judgement. [2] And a man shall hide his words, and be hidden, as from rushing water, and shall appear in Sion as a rushing river, glorious in a thirsty land. [3] And they shall no more trust in men, but they shall incline their ears to hear. [4] And the heart of the weak ones shall attend to hear, and the stammering tongues shall soon learn to speak peace. [5] And they shall no more at all tell a fool to rule, and thy servants shall no more at all say, Be silent. [6] For the fool shall speak foolish words, and his heart shall meditate vanities, and to perform lawless deeds and to speak error against the Lord, to scatter hungry souls, and he will cause the thirsty souls to be empty. [7] For the counsel of the wicked will devise iniquity, to destroy the poor with unjust words, and ruin the cause of the poor in judgement. [8] But the godly have devised wise measures, and this counsel shall stand.

[9] Rise up, ye rich women, and hear my voice; ye confident daughters, hearken to my words. [10] Remember for a full year in pain, yet with hope: the vintage has been cut off; it has ceased, it shall by no means come again. [11] Be amazed, be pained, ye confident ones: strip you, bare yourselves, gird your loins; [12] and beat your breasts, because of the pleasant field, and the fruit of the vine. [13] As for the land of my people, the thorn and grass shall come upon it, and joy shall be removed from every house. [14] As for the rich city, the houses are deserted; they shall abandon the wealth of the city, and the pleasant houses: and the villages shall be caves for ever, the joy of wild asses, shepherds' pastures; [15] until the Spirit shall come upon you from on high, and Chermel shall be desert, and Chermel shall be counted for a forest. [16] Then judgement shall abide in the wilderness, and righteousness shall dwell in Carmel. [17] And the works of righteousness shall be peace; and righteousness shall ensure rest, and the righteous shall be confident for ever. [18] And his people shall inhabit a city of peace, and dwell in it in confidence, and they shall rest with wealth. [19] And if the hail should come down, it shall not come upon you; and they that dwell in the forests shall be in confidence, as those in the plain country. [20] Blessed are they that sow by every water, where the ox and ass tread.

[1] Woe to them that afflict you; but no one makes you miserable: and he that deals perfidiously with you does not deal perfidiously: they that deal perfidiously shall be taken and given up, and as a moth on a garment, so shall they be spoiled. [2] Lord, have mercy upon us; for we have trusted in thee: the seed of the rebellious is gone to destruction, but our deliverance was in a time of affliction. [3] By reason of the terrible sound the nations were dismayed for fear of thee, and the heathen were scattered.

[4] And now shall the spoils of your small and great be gathered: as if one should gather locusts, so shall they mock you. [5] The God who dwells on high is holy: Sion is filled with judgment and righteousness. [6] They shall be delivered up to the law: our salvation is our treasure: there are wisdom and knowledge and piety toward the Lord; these are the treasures of righteousness.

[7] Behold now, these shall be terrified with fear of you: those whom ye feared shall cry out because of you: messengers shall be sent, bitterly weeping, entreating for peace. [8] For the ways of these shall be made desolate: the terror of the nations has been made to cease, and the covenant with these is taken away, and ye shall by no means deem them men. [9] The land mourns; Libanus is ashamed: Saron is become marshes; Galilee shall be laid bare, and Chermel.

[10] Now will I arise, saith the Lord, now will I be glorified; now will I be exalted. [11] Now shall ye see, now shall ye perceive; the strength of your breath, shall be vain; fire shall devour you. [12] And the nations shall be burnt up; as a thorn in the field cast out and burnt up.

[13] They that are afar off shall hear what I have done; they that draw nigh shall know my strength. [14] The sinners in Sion have departed; trembling shall seize the ungodly. Who will tell you that a fire is kindled? Who will tell you of the eternal place?

[15] He that walks in righteousness, speaking rightly, hating transgression and iniquity, and shaking his hands from gifts, stopping his ears that he should not hear the judgement of blood, shutting his eyes that he should not see injustice. [16] he shall dwell in a high cave of a strong rock: bread shall be given him, and his water shall be sure. [17] Ye shall see a king with glory: your eyes shall behold a land from afar. [18] Your soul shall meditate terror. Where are the scribes? where are the counsellors, where is he that numbers them that are growing up, [19] even the small and great people? with whom he took not counsel, neither did he understand a people of deep speech, so that a despised people should not hear, and there is no understanding to him that hears.

[20] Behold the city of Sion, our refuge: thine eyes shall behold Jerusalem, a rich city, tabernacles which shall not be shaken, neither shall the pins of her tabernacle be moved for ever, neither shall her cords be at all broken: [21] for the name of the Lord is great to you: ye shall have a place, even rivers and wide and spacious channels: thou shalt not go this way, neither a vessel with oars go thereby. [22] For my God is great: the Lord our judge shall not pass me by: the Lord is our prince, the Lord is our king; the Lord, he shall save us.

[23] Thy cords are broken, for they had no strength: thy meat has given way, it shall not spread the sails, it shall not bear a signal, until it be given up for plunder; therefore shall many lame men take spoil. [24] And the people dwelling among them shall by no means say, I am in pain: for their sin shall be forgiven them.

[1] Draw near, ye nations; and hearken, ye princes; let the earth hear, and they that are in it; the world, and the people that are therein. [2] For the wrath of the Lord is upon all nations, and his anger upon the number of them, to destroy them, and give them up to slaughter. [3] And their slain shall be cast forth, and their corpses; and their ill savour shall come up, and the mountains shall be made wet with their blood. [4] And all the powers of the heavens shall melt, and the sky shall be rolled up like a scroll: and all the stars shall fall like leaves from a vine, and as leaves fall from a fig-tree.

[5] My sword has been made drunk in heaven: behold, it shall come down upon Idumea, and with judgement upon the people doomed to destruction. [6] The sword of the Lord is filled with blood, it is glutted with fat, with the blood of goats and lambs, and with the fat of goats and rams: for the Lord has a sacrifice in Bosor, and a great slaughter in Idumea. [7] And the mighty ones shall fall with them, and the rams and the bulls; and the land shall be soaked with blood, and shall be filled with their fat. [8] For it is the day of judgement of the Lord, and the year of the recompence of Sion in judgement. [9] And her valleys shall be turned into pitch, and her land into sulphur; and her land shall be as pitch burning night and day; [10] and it shall never be quenched, and her smoke shall go up: it shall be made desolate throughout her generations, [11] and for a long time birds and hedgehogs, and ibises and ravens shall dwell in it: and the measuring line of desolation shall be cast over it, and satyrs shall dwell in it. [12] Her princes shall be no more; for her kings and her great men shall be destroyed. [13] And thorns shall spring up in their cities, and in her strong holds: and they shall be habitations of monsters, and a court of ostriches. [14] And devils shall meet with satyrs, and they shall cry one to the other: there shall satyrs rest, having found for themselves a place of rest. [15] There has the hedgehog made its nest, and the earth has safely preserved its young: there have the deer met, and seen one another's faces. [16] They passed by in full number, and not one of them perished: they sought not one another; for the Lord commanded them, and his Spirit gathered them. [17] And he shall cast lots for them, and his hand has portioned out their pasture, saying, Ye shall inherit the land for ever: they shall rest on it through all generations.

Chapter 35

[1] Be glad, thou thirsty desert: let the wilderness exult, and flower as the lily.
[2] And the desert places of Jordan shall blossom and rejoice; the glory of Libanus has been given to it, and the honour of Carmel; and my people shall see the glory o the Lord, and the majesty of God.

[3] Be strong, ye relaxed hands and palsied knees. [4] Comfort one another, ye fainthearted; be strong, fear not; behold, our God renders judgement, and he will render it; he will come and save us. [5] Then shall the eyes of the blind be opened, and the ears of the deaf shall hear. [6] Then shall the lame man leap as an hart, and the tongue of the stammerers shall speak plainly; for water has burst forth in the desert, and a channel of water in a thirsty land. [7] And the dry land shall become pools, and a fountain of water shall be poured into the thirsty land; there shall there be a joy of birds, ready habitations and marshes. [8] There shall be there a pure way, and it shall be called a holy way; and there shall not pass by there any unclean person, neither shall there be there an unclean way; but the dispersed shall walk on it, and they shall not go astray. [9] And there shall be no lion there, neither shall any evil beast go up upon it, nor at all be found there; but the redeemed and gathered on the Lord's behalf, shall walk in it, [10] and shall return, and come to Sion with joy, and everlasting joy shall be over their head; for on their head shall be praise and exultation, and joy shall take possession of them: sorrow and pain, and groaning have fled away.

Chapter 36

[1] Now it came to pass in the fourteenth year of the reign of Ezekias, that Sennacherim, king of the Assyrians, came up against the strong cities of Judea, and took them. [2] And the king of the Assyrians sent Rabsaces out of Laches to Jerusalem to king Ezekias with a large force: and he stood by the conduit of the upper pool in the way of the fuller's field. [3] And there went forth to him Heliakim the steward, the son of Chelcias, and Somnas the scribe, and Joach the son of Asaph, the recorder.

[4] And Rabsaces said to them, Say to Ezekias, Thus says the great king, the king of the Assyrians, Why art thou secure? [5] Is war carried on with counsel and mere words of the lips? and now on whom dost thou trust, that thou rebellest against me? [6] Behold, thou trustest on this bruised staff of reed, on Egypt: as soon as a man leans upon it, it shall go into his hand, and pierce it: so is Pharaos king of Egypt and all that trust in him. [7] But it ye say, We trust in the Lord our God; [8] yet now make an agreement with my lord the king of the Assyrians, and I will give you two thousand horses, if ye shall be able to set riders upon them. [9] And how can ye then turn to the face of the satraps? They that trust on the Egyptians for horse and rider, are our servants. [10] And now, Have we come up against this land to fight against it without the Lord? The Lord said to me, Go up against this land, and destroy it.

[11] Then Eliakim and Somnas and Joach said to him, Speak to thy servants in the Syrian tongue; for we understand it: and speak not to us in the Jewish tongue: and wherefore speakest thou in the ears of the men on the wall? [12] And Rabsaces said to them, Has my lord sent me to your lord or to you, to speak these words? has he not sent me to the men that sit on the wall, that they may eat dung, and drink their water together with you?

[13] And Rabsaces stood and cried with a loud voice in the Jewish language, and said, Hear ye the words of the great king, the king of the Assyrians: [14] thus says the king, Let not Ezekias deceive you with words: he will not be able to deliver you. [15] And let not Ezekias say to you, That God will deliver you, and this city will not at all be delivered into the hand of the king of the Assyrians. [16] Hearken not to Ezekias: thus says the king of the Assyrians, If ye wish to be blessed, come out to me: and ye shall eat every one of his vine and his fig-trees, and ye shall drink water out of your own cisterns: [17] until I come and take you to a land, like your own land, a land of corn and wine, and bread, and vineyards. [18] Let not Ezekias deceive you, saying, God will deliver you. Have the gods of the nations delivered each one his own land out of the hand of the king of the Assyrians? [19] Where is the god of Emath, and Arphath? and where is the god of Eppharuaim? have they been able to deliver Samaria out of my hand? [20] Which is the god of all these nations, that has delivered his land out of my hand, that God should deliver Jerusalem out of my hand? [21] And they were silent, and none answered him a word; because the king had commanded that none should answer.

[22] And Heliakim the son of Chelcias, the steward, and Somnas the military scribe, and Joach the son of Asaph, the recorder, came in to Ezekias, having their garments rent, and they reported to him the words of Rabsaces.

Chapter 37

[1] And it came to pass, when king Ezekias heard it, that he rent his clothes, and put on sackcloth, and went up to the house of the Lord.

[2] And he sent Heliakim the steward, and Somnas the scribe, and the elders of the priests clothed with sackcloth, to Isaiah the son of Amos, the prophet. And they said to him, Thus says Ezekias, [3] To-day is a day of affliction, and reproach, and rebuke, and anger: for the pangs are come upon the travailing woman, but she has not strength to bring forth. [4] May the Lord thy God hear the words of Rabsaces, which the king of the Assyrians has sent, to reproach the living God, even to reproach with the words which the Lord thy God has heard: therefore thou shalt pray to thy Lord for these that are left.

[5] So the servants of king Ezekias came to Isaiah. [6] And Isaiah said to them, Thus shall ye say to your master, Thus saith the Lord, Be not thou afraid at the words which thou hast heard, wherewith the ambassadors of the king of the Assyrians have reproached me, [7] Behold, I will send a blast upon him, and he shall hear a report, and return to his own country, and he shall fall by the sword in his own land.

[8] So Rabsaces returned, and found the king of the Assyrians besieging Lobna: for he had heard that he had departed from Lachis. [9] And Tharaca king of the Ethiopians went forth to attack him. And when he heard it, he turned aside, and sent messengers to Ezekias, saying, [10] Thus shall ye say to Ezekias king of Judea, Let not thy God, in whom thou trustest, deceive thee, saying, Jerusalem shall not be delivered into the hand of the king of the Assyrians.

[11] Hast thou not heard what the kings of the Assyrians have done, how they have destroyed the whole earth? and shalt thou be delivered? [12] Have the gods of the nations which my fathers destroyed delivered them, both Gozan, and Charrhan, and Rapheth, which are in the land of Theemath? [13] Where are the kings of Emath? and where is the king of Arphath? and where is the king of the city of Eppharuaim, and of Anagugana?

[14] And Ezekias received the letter from the messengers, and read it, and went up to the house of the Lord, and opened it before the Lord. [15] And Ezekias prayed to the Lord, saying,

[16] O Lord of hosts, God of Israel, who sittest upon the cherubs, thou alone art the God of every kingdom of the world: thou hast made heaven and earth. [17] Incline thine ear, O Lord, hearken, O Lord; open thine eyes, O Lord, look, O Lord: and behold the words of Sennacherim, which he has sent to reproach the living God. [18] For of a truth, Lord, the kings of the Assyrians have laid waste the whole world, and the countries thereof, [19] and have cast their idols into the fire: for, they were no gods, but the work of men's hands, wood and stone; and they have cast them away. [20] But now, O Lord our God, deliver us from his hands, that every kingdom of the earth may know that thou art God alone.

[21] And Isaiah the son of Amos was sent to Ezekias, and said to him, Thus saith the Lord, the God of Israel, I have heard thy prayer to me concerning Sennacherim king of the Assyrians. [22] This is the word which God has spoken concerning him; The virgin daughter of Sion has despised thee, and mocked thee; the daughter of Jerusalem has shaken her head at thee. [23] Whom hast thou reproached and provoked? and against whom hast thou lifted up thy voice? and hast thou not lifted up thine eyes on high against the Holy One of Israel? [24] For thou hast reproached the Lord by messengers; for thou hast said, With the multitude of chariots have I ascended to the height of mountains, and to the sides of Libanus; and I have cropped the height of his cedars and the beauty of his cypresses; and I entered into the height of the forest region: [25] and I have made a bridge, and dried up the waters, and every pool of water.

[26] Hast thou not heard of these things which I did of old? I appointed them from ancient times; but now have I manifested my purpose of desolating nations in their strong holds, and them that dwell in strong cities. [27] I weakened their hands, and they withered; and they became as dry grass on the house-tops, and as grass. [28] But now I know thy rest, and thy going out, and thy coming in. [29] And thy wrath wherewith thou hast been enraged, and thy rancour has come up to me; therefore I will put a hook in thy nose, and a bit in thy lips, and will turn thee back by the way by which thou camest.

[30] And this shall be a sign to thee, Eat this year what thou hast sown; and the second year that which is left: and the third year sow, and reap, and plant vineyards, and eat the fruit of them. [31] And they that are left in Judea shall take root downward, and bear fruit upward: [32] for out of Jerusalem there shall be a remnant, and the saved ones out of mount Sion: the zeal of the Lord of hosts shall perform this. [33] Therefore thus saith the Lord concerning the king of the Assyrians, He shall not enter into this city, nor cast a weapon against it, nor bring a shield against it, nor make a rampart round it. [34] But by the way by which he came, by it shall he return, and shall not enter into this city: thus saith the Lord. [35] I will protect this city to save it for my own sake, and for my servant David's sake.

[36] And the angel of the Lord went forth, and slew out of the camp of the Assyrians a hundred and eighty-five thousand: and they arose in the morning and found all these bodies dead. [37] And Sennacherim king of the Assyrians turned and departed, and dwelt in Nineve. [38] And while he was worshipping Nasarach his country's god in the house, Adramelech and Sarasar his sons smote him with swords; and they escaped into Armenia: and Asordan his son reigned in his stead.

Chapter 38

[1] And it came to pass at that time, that Ezekias was sick even to death. And Isaiah the prophet the son of Amos came to him, and said to him, Thus saith the Lord, Give orders concerning thy house: for thou shalt die, and not live. [2] And Ezekias turned his face to the wall, and prayed to the Lord, saying, [3] Remember, O Lord, how I have walked before thee in truth, with a true heart, and have done that which was pleasing in thy sight. And Ezekias wept bitterly. [4] And the word of the Lord came to Isaiah, saying, Go, and say to Ezekias, [5] Thus saith the Lord, the God of David thy father, I have heard thy prayer, and seen thy tears: behold, I will add to thy time fifteen years. [6] And I will deliver thee and this city out of the hand of the king of the Assyrians: and I will defend this city. [7] And this shall be a sign to thee from the Lord, that God will do this thing; [8] behold, I will turn back the shadow of the degrees of the dial by which ten degrees on the house of thy father the sun has gone down — I will turn back the sun the ten degrees; so the sun went back the ten degrees by which the shadow had gone down.

[9] THE PRAYER OF EZEKIAS KING OF JUDEA, WHEN HE HAD BEEN SICK, AND WAS RECOVERED FROM HIS SICKNESS.

[10] I said in the end of my days, I shall go to the gates of the grave: I shall part with the remainder of my years. [11] I said, I shall no more at all see the salvation of God in the land of the living: I shall no more at all see the salvation of Israel on the earth: I shall no more at all see man. [12] My life has failed from among my kindred: I have parted with the remainder of my life: it has gone forth and departed from me, as one that having pitched a tent takes it down again: my breath was with me as a weaver's web, when she that weaves draws nigh to cut off the thread. [13] In that day I was given up as to a lion until the morning: so has he broken all my bones: for I was so given up from day even to night. [14] As a swallow, so will I cry, and as a dove, so do I mourn: for mine eyes have failed with looking to the height of heaven to the Lord, who has delivered me, and removed the sorrow of my soul. [16] Yea, O Lord, for it was told thee concerning this; and thou hast revived my breath; and I am comforted, and live. [17] For thou hast chosen my soul, that it should not perish: and thou hast cast all my sins behind me. [18] For they that are in the grave shall not praise thee, neither shall the dead bless thee, neither shall they that are in Hades hope for thy mercy. [19] The living shall bless thee, as I also do: for from this day shall I beget children, who shall declare thy righteousness, [20] O God of my salvation; and I will not cease blessing thee with the psaltery all the days of my life before the house of God.

[21] Now Isaiah had said to Ezekias; Take a cake of figs, and mash them, and apply them as a plaster, and thou shalt be well. [22] And Ezekias said, This is a sign to Ezekias, that I shall go up to the house of God.

[1] At that time Marodach Baladan, the son of Baladan, the king of Babylonia, sent letters and ambassadors and gifts to Ezekias: for he had heard that he had been sick even to death, and was recovered. [2] And Ezekias was glad of their coming, and he shewed them the house of his spices, and of silver, and gold, and myrrh, and incense, and ointment, and all the houses of his treasures, and all that he had in his stores: and there was nothing in his house, nor in all his dominion, which Ezekias did not shew.

[3] And Isaiah the prophet came to king Ezekias, and said to him, What say these men? and whence came they to thee? and Ezekias said, They are come to me from a land afar off, from Babylon. [4] And Isaiah said, What have they seen in thine house? and Ezekias said, They have seen everything in my house; and there is nothing in my house which they have not seen: yea, also the possessions in my treasures. [5] And Isaiah said to him, Hear the word of the Lord of hosts: [6] Behold, the days come, when they shall take all the things that are in thine house, and all that thy fathers have gathered until this day, shall go to Babylon; and they shall not leave anything at all: and God hath said, [7] that they shall take also of thy children whom thou shalt beget; and they shall make them eunuchs in the house of the king of the Babylonians. [8] And Ezekias said to Isaiah, Good is the word of the Lord, which he hath spoken: let there, I pray, be peace and righteousness in my days.

[1] Comfort ye, comfort ye my people, saith God. [2] Speak, ye priests, to the heart of Jerusalem; comfort her, for her humiliation is accomplished, her sin is put away: for she has received of the Lord's hand double the amount of her sins.

[3] The voice of one crying in the wilderness, Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make straight the paths of our God. [4] Every valley shall be filled, and every mountain and hill shall be brought low: and all the crooked ways shall become straight, and the rough places plains. [5] And the glory of the Lord shall appear, and all flesh shall see the salvation of God: for the Lord has spoken it. [6] The voice of one saying, Cry; and I said, What shall I cry? All flesh is grass, and all the glory of man as the flower of grass: [7] 8 The grass withers, and the flower fades: but the word of our God abides for ever.

[9] O thou that bringest glad tidings to Zion, go up on the high mountain; lift up thy voice with strength, thou that bringest glad tidings to Jerusalem; lift it up, fear not; say unto the cities of Juda, Behold your God! [10] Behold the Lord! The Lord is coming with strength, and his arm is with power: behold, his reward is with him, and his work before him. [11] He shall tend his flock as a shepherd, and he shall gather the lambs with his arm, and shall soothe them that are with young. [12] Who has measured the water in his hand, and the heaven with a span, and all the earth in a handful? Who has weighed the mountains in scales, and the forests in a balance? [13] Who has known the mind of the Lord? and who has been his counsellor, to instruct him? [14] Or with whom has he taken counsel, and he has instructed him? or who has taught him judgement, or who has taught him the way of understanding; [15] since all the nations are counted as a drop from a bucket, and as the turning of a balance, and shall be counted as spittle? [16] And Libanus is not enough to burn, nor all beasts enough for a whole-burnt offering: [17] and all the nations are as nothing, and counted as nothing.

[18] To whom have ye compared the Lord? and with what likeness have ye compared him? [19] Has not the artificer made an image, or the goldsmith having melted gold, gilt it over, and made it a similitude? [20] For the artificer chooses out a wood that will not rot, and will wisely enquire how he shall set up his image, and that so that it should not be moved. [21] Will ye not know? will ye not hear? has it not been told you of old? Have ye not known the foundations of the earth? [22] It is he that comprehends the circle of the earth, and the inhabitants in it are as grasshoppers; he that set up the heaven as a chamber, and stretched it out as a tent to dwell in: [23] he that appoints princes to rule as nothing, and has made the earth as nothing. [24] For they shall not plant, neither shall they sow, neither shall their root be fixed in the ground: he has blown upon them, and they are withered, and a storm shall carry them away like sticks.

[25] Now then to whom have ye compared me, that I may be exalted? saith the Holy One. [26] Lift up your eyes on high, and see, who has displayed all these things? even he that brings forth his host by number: he shall call them all by name by means of his great glory, and by the power of his might: nothing has escaped thee.

[27] For say not thou, O Jacob, and why hast thou spoken, Israel, saying, My way is hid from God, and my God has taken away my judgement, and has departed? [28] And now, hast thou not known? hast thou not heard? the eternal God, the God that formed the ends of the earth, shall not hunger, nor be weary, and there is no searching of his understanding. [29] He gives strength to the hungry, and sorrow to them that are not suffering. [30] For the young men shall hunger, and the youths shall be weary, and the choice men shall be powerless: [31] but they that wait on God shall renew their strength; they shall put forth new feathers like eagles; they shall run, and not be weary; they shall walk, and not hunger.

[1] Hold a feast to me, ye islands: for the princes shall renew their strength: let them draw nigh and speak together: then let them declare judgement.

[2] Who raised up righteousness from the east, and called it to his feet, so that it should go? shall appoint it an adversary of Gentiles, and shall dismay kings, and bury their swords in the earth, and cast forth their bows and arrows as sticks? [3] And he shall pursue them; the way of his feet shall proceed in peace. [4] Who has wrought and done these things? he has called it who called it from the generations of old; I God, the first and to all futurity, I AM.

[5] The nations saw, and feared; the ends of the earth drew nigh, and came together, [6] every one judging for his neighbor and that to assist his brother: and one will say, [7] The artificer has become strong, and the coppersmith that smites with the hammer, and forges also: sometimes he will say, It is a piece well joined: they have fastened them with nails; they will fix them, and they shall not be moved.

[8] But thou, Israel, art my servant Jacob, and he whom I have chosen, the seed of Abraam, whom I have loved: [9] whom I have taken hold of from the ends of the earth, and from the high places of it I have called thee, and said to thee, Thou art my servant; I have chosen thee, and I have not forsaken thee. [10] Fear not; for I am with thee: wander not; for I am thy God, who have strengthened thee; and I have helped thee, and have established thee with my just right hand.

[11] Behold, all thine adversaries shall be ashamed and confounded; for they shall be as if they were not: and all thine opponents shall perish. [12] Thou shalt seek them, and thou shalt not find the men who shall insolently rage against thee: for they shall be as if they were not, and they that war against thee shall not be. [13] For I am thy God, who holdeth thy right hand, who saith to thee, [14] Fear not, Jacob, and thou Israel few in number; I have helped thee, saith thy God, he that redeems thee, O Israel. [15] Behold, I have made thee as new saw-shaped threshing wheels of a waggon; and thou shalt thresh the mountains, and beat the hills to powder, and make them as chaff: [16] and thou shalt winnow them, and the wind shall carry them away, and a tempest shall scatter them: but thou shalt rejoice in the holy ones of Israel.

[17] And the poor and the needy shall exult; for when they shall seek water, and there shall be none, and their tongue is parched with thirst, I the Lord God, I the God of Israel will hear, and will not forsake them: [18] but I will open rivers on the mountains, and fountains in the midst of plains: I will make the desert pools of water, and a thirsty land watercourses. [19] I will plant in the dry land the cedar and box, the myrtle and cypress, and white poplar: [20] that they may see, and know, and perceive, and understand together, that the hand of the Lord has wrought these works, and the Holy One of Israel has displayed them.

[21] Your judgement draws nigh, saith the Lord God; your counsel have drawn nigh, saith the King of Jacob. [22] Let them draw nigh, and declare to you what things shall come to pass; or tell us what things were of old, and we will apply our understanding, and we shall know what are the last and the future things: [23] tell us, declare ye to us the things that are coming on at the last time, and we shall know that ye are gods: do good, and do evil, and we shall wonder, and see at the same time [24] whence ye are, and whence is your works: they have chosen you an abomination out of the earth.

[25] But I have raised up him that comes from the north, and him that comes from the rising of the sun: they shall be called by my name: let the princes come, and as potter's clay, and as a potter treading clay, so shall ye be trodden down. [26] For who will declare the things from the beginning, that we may know also the former things, and we will say that they are true? there is no one that speaks beforehand, nor anyone that hears your words. [27] I will give dominion to Sion, and will comfort Jerusalem by the way. [28] For from among the nations, behold, there was no one; and of their idols there was none to declare anything: and if I should ask them, Whence are ye? they could not answer me. [29] For these are your makers, as ye think, and they that cause you to err in vain.

[1] Jacob is my servant, I will help him: Israel is my chosen, my soul has accepted him; I have put my Spirit upon him; he shall bring forth judgement to the Gentiles. [2] He shall not cry, nor lift up his voice, nor shall his voice be heard without. [3] A bruised reed shall he not break, and smoking flax shall he not quench; but he shall bring forth judgement to truth. [4] He shall shine out, and shall not be discouraged, until he have set judgement on the earth: and in his name shall the Gentiles trust.

[5] Thus saith the Lord God, who made the heaven, and established it; who settled the earth, and the things in it, and gives breath to the people on it, and spirit to them that tread on it: [6] I the Lord God have called thee in righteousness, and will hold thine hand, and will strengthen thee: and I have given thee for the covenant of a race, for a light of the Gentiles: [7] to open the eyes of the blind, to bring the bound and them that sit in darkness out of bonds and the prison-house.

[8] I am the Lord God: that is my name: I will not give my glory to another, nor my praises to graven images. [9] Behold, the ancient things have come to pass, and so will the new things which I tell you: yea, before I tell them they are made known to you.

[10] Sing a new hymn to the Lord: ye who are his dominion, glorify his name from the end of the earth: ye that go down to the sea, and sail upon it; the islands, and they that dwell in them. [11] Rejoice, thou wilderness, and the villages thereof, the hamlets, and the dwellers in Kedar: the inhabitants of the rock shall rejoice, they shall shout from the top of the mountains. [12] They shall give glory to God, and shall proclaim his praises in the islands.

[13] The Lord God of hosts shall go forth, and crush the war: he shall stir up jealousy, and shall shout mightily against his enemies. [14] I have been silent: shall I also always be silent and forbear: I have endured like a travelling woman: I will now amaze and wither at once. [15] I will make desolate mountains and hills, and will dry up all their grass; and I will make the rivers islands, and dry up the pools. [16] And I will bring the blind by a way that they knew not, and I will cause them to tread paths which they have not known: I will turn darkness into light for them, and crooked things into straight. These things will I do, and will not forsake them. [17] But they are turned back: be ye utterly ashamed that trust in graven images, who say to the molten images, Ye are our gods.

[18] Hear, ye deaf, and look up, ye blind, to see. [19] And who is blind, but my servants? and deaf, but they that rule over them? yea, the servants of God have been made blind. [20] Ye have often seen, and have not taken heed; your ears have been opened, and ye have not heard. [21] The Lord God has taken counsel that he might be justified, and might magnify his praise. [22] And I beheld, and the people were spoiled and plundered: for there is a snare in the secret chambers everywhere, and in the houses also, where they have hidden them: they became a spoil, and there was no one that delivered the prey, and there was none who said, Restore.

[23] Who is there among you that will give ear to these things? hearken ye to the things which are coming to pass. [24] For what did he give to Jacob up to spoil, and Israel to them that plundered him? Did not God do it against whom they sinned? and they would not walk in his ways, nor hearken to his law. [25] So he brought upon them the fury of his wrath; and the war, and those that burnt round about them, prevailed against them; yet no one of them knew it, neither did they lay it to heart.

Chapter 43

[1] And now thus saith the Lord God that made thee, O Jacob, and formed thee, O Israel, Fear not: for I have redeemed thee, I have called thee by thy name; thou art mine. [2] And if thou pass through water, I am with thee; and the rivers shall not overflow thee: and if thou go through fire, thou shalt not be burned; the flame shall not burn thee. [3] For I am the Lord thy God, the Holy One of Israel, that saves thee: I have made Egypt and Ethiopia thy ransom, and given Soene for thee. [4] Since thou becamest precious in my sight, thou hast become glorious, and I have loved thee: and I will give men for thee, and princes for thy life. [5] Fear not; for I am with thee: I will bring thy seed from the east, and will gather thee from the west. [6] I will say to the north, Bring; and to the south, Keep not back; bring my sons from the land afar off, and my daughters from the ends of the earth; [7] even all who are called by my name: for I have prepared him for my glory, and I have formed him, and have made him: [8] and I have brought forth the blind people; for their eyes are alike blind, and they that have ears are deaf.

[9] All the nations are gathered together, and princes shall be gathered out of them: who will declare these things? or who will declare to you things from the beginning? let them bring forth their witnesses, and be justified; and let them hear, and declare the truth.

[10] Be ye my witnesses, and I too am a witness, saith the Lord God, and my servant whom I have chosen: that ye may know, and believe, and understand that I an he: before me there was no other God, and after me there shall be none. [11] I am God; and beside me there is no Saviour. [12] I have declared, and have saved; I have reproached, and there was no strange god among you: ye are my witnesses, and I am the Lord God, [13] even from the beginning; and there is none that can deliver out of my hands: I will work, and who shall turn it back?

[14] Thus saith the Lord God that redeems you, the Holy One of Israel; for your sakes I will send to Babylon, and I will stir up all that flee, and the Chaldeans shall be bound in ships. [15] I am the Lord God, your Holy One, who have appointed for Israel your king.

[16] Thus saith the Lord, who makes a way in the sea, and a path in the mighty water; [17] who brought forth chariots and horse, and a mighty multitude: but they have lain down, and shall not rise: they are extinct, as quenched flax. [18] Remember ye not the former things, and consider not the ancient things.

[19] Behold, I will do new things, which shall presently spring forth, and ye shall know them: and I will make a way in the wilderness, and rivers in the dry land. [20] the beasts of the field shall bless me, the owls and young ostriches; for I have given water in the wilderness, and rivers in the dry land, to give drink to my chosen race, [21] my people whom I have preserved to tell forth my praises.

[22] I have not now called thee, O Jacob; neither have I made thee weary, O Israel. [23] Thou hast not brought me the sheep of thy whole-burnt-offering; neither hast thou glorified me with thy sacrifices. I have not caused thee to serve with sacrifices, neither have I wearied thee with frankincense. [24] Neither hast thou purchased for me victims for silver, neither have I desired the fat of thy sacrifices: but thou didst stand before me in thy sins, and in thine iniquities. [25] I, even I, am he that blots out thy transgressions for mine own sake, and thy sins; and I will not remember them. [26] But do thou remember, and let us plead together: do thou first confess thy transgressions, that thou mayest be justified. [27] Your fathers first, and your princes have transgressed against me. [28] And the princes have defiled my sanctuaries: so I gave Jacob to enemies to destroy, and Israel to reproach.

Chapter 44

[1] But now hear, Jacob my servant; and Israel, whom I have chosen. [2] Thus saith the Lord God that made thee, and he that formed thee from the womb; Thou shalt yet be helped: fear not, my servant Jacob; and beloved Israel, whom I have chosen. [3] For I will give water to the thirsty that walk in a dry land: I will put my Spirit upon thy seed, and my blessings upon thy children: [4] and they shall spring up as grass between brooks, and as willows on the banks of running water. [5] One shall say, I am God's; and another shall call himself by the name of Jacob; and another shall write with his hand, I am God's, and shall call himself by the name of Israel.

[6] Thus saith God the King of Israel, and the God of hosts that delivered him; I am the first, and I am hereafter: beside me there is no God. [7] Who is like me? let him stand, and call, and declare, and prepare for me from the time that I made man for ever; and let them tell you the things that are coming before they arrive. [8] Hide not yourselves, nor go astray: have ye not heard from the beginning, and have not I told you? ye are witnesses if there is a God beside me.

[9] But they that framed false gods did not then hearken; and they that graven images are all vain, performing their own desires, which shall not profit them, but they shall be ashamed [10] that form a god, and all that grave worthless things: [11] and all by whom they were made are withered: yea, let all the deaf be gathered from among men, and let them stand together; and let them be ashamed and confounded together:

[12] For the artificer sharpens the iron; he fashions the idol with an axe, and fixes it with an awl, and fashions it with the strength of his arm: and he will be hungry and weak, and will drink no water. [13] The artificer having chosen a piece of wood, marks it out with a rule, and fits it with glue, and makes it as the form of a man, and as the beauty of a man, to set it up in the house. [14] He cuts wood out of the forest, which the Lord planted, even a pine tree, and the rain made it grow, [15] that it might be for men to burn: and having taken part of it he warms himself; yea, they burn part of it, and bake loaves thereon; and of the rest they make for themselves gods, and they worship them. [16] Half thereof he burns in the fire, and with half of it he bakes loaves on the coals; and having roasted flesh on it he eats, and is satisfied, and having warmed himself he says, I am comfortable, for I have warmed myself, and have seen the fire. [17] And the rest he makes a graven god, and worships, and prays, saying, Deliver me; for thou art my God.

[18] They have no understanding to perceive; for they have been blinded so that they should not see with their eyes, nor perceive with their heart. [19] And one has not considered in his mind, nor known in his understanding, that he has burnt up half of it in the fire, and baked loaves on the coals thereof and has roasted and eaten flesh, and of the rest of it he has made an abomination, and they worship it. [20] Know thou that their heart is ashes, and they err, and no one is able to deliver his soul: see, ye will not say, There is a lie in my right hand.

[21] Remember these things, O Jacob and Israel; for thou art my servant; I have formed thee to be my servant: and do thou, Israel, not forget me. [22] For behold, I have blotted out as a cloud thy transgressions, and thy sin as darkness: turn to me, and I will redeem thee.

[23] Rejoice, ye heavens; for God has had mercy upon Israel: sound the trumpet, ye foundations of the earth: ye mountains, shout with joy, ye hills, and all the trees therein: for God has redeemed Jacob, and Israel shall be glorified.

[24] Thus saith the Lord that redeems thee, and who formed thee from the womb, I am the Lord that performs all things: I stretched out the heaven alone, and established the earth. [25] Who else will frustrate the tokens of those that have divining spirits, and prophecies from the heart of man? turning the wise back, and making their counsel foolishness; [26] and confirming the word of his servant, and verifying the counsel of his messengers: who says to Jerusalem, Thou shalt be inhabited; and to the cities of Idumea, Ye shall be built, and her desert places shall spring forth. [27] Who says to the deep, Thou shalt be dried up, and I will dry up the rivers. [28] Who bids Cyrus be wise, and he shall perform all my will: who says to Jerusalem, Thou shalt be built, and I will lay the foundation of my holy house.

[1] Thus saith the Lord God to my anointed Cyrus, whose right hand I have held, that nations might be obedient before him; and I will break through the strength of kings; I will open doors before him, and cities shall not be closed.

[2] I will go before thee, and will level mountains: I will break to pieces brazen doors, and burst iron bars. [3] And I will give thee the treasures of darkness, I will open to thee hidden, unseen treasures, that thou mayest know that I, the Lord thy God, that call thee by name, am the God of Israel. [4] For the sake of my servant Jacob, and Israel mine elect, I will call thee by thy name, and accept thee: but thou hast not known me. [5] For I am the Lord God, and there is no other God beside me; I strengthened thee, and thou hast not known me. [6] That they that come from the east and they that come from the west may know that there is no God but me. I am the Lord God, and there is none beside. [7] I am he that prepared light, and formed darkness; who make peace, and create evil; I am the Lord God, that does all these things.

[8] Let the heaven rejoice from above, and let the clouds rain righteousness: let the earth bring forth, and blossom with mercy, and bring forth righteousness likewise: I am the Lord that created thee.

[9] What excellent thing have I prepared as clay of the potter? Will the ploughman plough the earth all say? shall the clay say to the potter, What art thou doing that thou dost not work, nor hast hands? shall the thing formed answer him that formed it? [10] As though one should say to his father, What wilt thou beget me? and to his mother, What art thou bringing forth?

[11] For thus saith the Lord God, the Holy One of Israel, who has formed the things that are to come, Enquire of me concerning my sons, and concerning the works of my hands command me. [12] I have made the earth, and man upon it: I with my hand have established the heaven; I have given commandment to all the stars. [13] I have raised him up to be a king with righteousness, and all his ways are right: he shall build my city, and shall turn the captivity of my people, not for ransoms, nor for rewards, saith the Lord of hosts.

[14] Thus saith the Lord of hosts, Egypt has laboured for thee; and the merchandise of the Ethiopians, and the Sabeans, men of stature, shall pass over to thee, and shall be thy servants; and they shall follow after thee bound in fetters, and shall pass over to thee, and shall do obeisance to thee, and make supplication to thee: because God is in thee; and there is no God beside thee, O Lord. [15] For thou art God, yet we knew it not, the God of Israel, the Saviour. [16] All that are opposed to him shall be ashamed and confounded, and shall walk in shame: ye isles, keep a feast to me. [17] Israel is saved by the Lord with an everlasting salvation: they shall not be ashamed nor confounded for evermore.

[18] Thus saith the Lord that made the heaven, this God that created the earth, and made it; he marked it out, he made it not in vain, but formed it to be inhabited: I am the Lord, and there is none beside. ^[19] I have not spoken in secret, nor in a dark place of the earth: I said not to the seed of Jacob, Seek vanity: I, even I, am the Lord, speaking righteousness, and proclaiming truth.

^[20] Assemble yourselves and come; take counsel together, ye that escape of the nations: they that set up wood, even their graven image, have no knowledge, nor they who pray to gods that do not save. ^[21] If they will declare, let them draw nigh, that they may know together, who has caused these things to be heard from the beginning: then was it told you. I am God, and there is not another beside me; a just God and a Saviour; there is none but me. ^[22] Turn ye to me, and ye shall be saved, ye that come from the end of the earth: I am God, and there is none other. ^[23] By myself I swear, righteousness shall surely proceed out of my mouth; my words shall not be frustrated; that to me every knee shall bend, and every tongue shall swear by God, ^[24] saying, Righteousness and glory shall come to him: and all that remove them from their borders shall be ashamed. ^[25] By the Lord shall they be justified, and in God shall all the seed of the children of Israel be glorified.

[1] Bel has fallen, Nabo is broken to pieces, their graven images are gone to the wild beasts and the cattle: ye take them packed up as a burden to the weary, exhausted, hungry, and at the same time helpless man; [2] who will not be able to save themselves from war, but they themselves are led away captive.

[3] Hear me, O house of Jacob, and all the remnant of Israel, who are borne by me from the womb, and taught by me from infancy, even to old age: [4] I am he; and until ye shall have grown old, I am he: I bear you, I have made, and I will relieve, I will take up and save you.

[5] To whom have ye compared me? see, consider, ye that go astray. [6] They that furnish gold out of a purse, and silver by weight, will weigh it in a scale, and they hire a goldsmith and make idols, and bow down, and worship them. [7] They bear it upon the shoulder, and go; and if they put it upon its place, it remains, it cannot move: and whosoever shall cry to it, it cannot hear; it cannot save him from trouble.

[8] Remember ye these things, and groan: repent, ye that have gone astray, return in your heart; [9] and remember the former things that were of old: for I am God, and there is none other beside me, [10] telling beforehand the latter events before they come to pass, and they are accomplished together: and I said, all my counsel shall stand, and I will do all things that I have planned: [11] calling a bird from the east, and from a land afar off, for the things which I have planned: I have spoken, and brought him; I have created and made him; I have brought him, and prospered his way.

[12] Hearken to me, ye senseless ones, that are far from righteousness: [13] I have brought near my righteousness, and I will not be slow with the salvation that is from me: I have given salvation in Sion to Israel for glory.

Chapter 47

[1] Come down, sit on the ground, O virgin daughter of Babylon: sit on the ground, O daughter of the Chaldeans: for thou shalt no more be called tender and luxurious. [2] Take a millstone, grind meal: remove thy veil, uncover thy white hairs, make bare the leg, pass through the rivers.

[3] Thy shame shall be uncovered, thy reproaches shall be brought to light: I will exact of thee due vengeance, I will no longer deliver thee to men.

[4] Thy deliverer is the Lord of hosts, the Holy One of Israel is his name.

[5] Sit thou down pierced with woe, go into darkness, O daughter of the Chaldeans: thou shalt no more be called the strength of a kingdom. [6] I have been provoked with my people; thou hast defiled mine inheritance: I gave them into thy hand, but thou didst not extend mercy to them: thou madest the yoke of the aged man very heavy, [7] and saidst, I shall be a princess for ever: thou didst not perceive these things in thine heart, nor didst thou remember the latter end.

[8] But now hear these words, thou luxurious one, who art the one that sits at ease, that is secure, that says in her heart, I am, and there is not another; I shall not sit a widow, neither shall I know bereavement. [9] But now these two things shall come upon thee suddenly in one day, the loss of children and widowhood shall come suddenly upon thee, for thy sorcery, for the strength of thine enchantments, [10] for thy trusting in wickedness: for thou saidst, I am, and there is not another: know thou, the understanding of these things and thy harlotry shall be thy shame; for thou saidst in thy heart, I am, and there is not another.

[11] And destruction shall come upon thee, and thou shalt not be aware; there shall be a pit, and thou shalt fall into it: and grief shall come upon thee, and thou shalt not be able to be clear; and destruction shall come suddenly upon thee, and thou shalt not know. [12] Stand now with thine enchantments, and with the abundance of thy sorcery, which thou hast learned from thy youth; if thou canst be profited. [13] Thou art wearied in thy counsels. Let now the astrologers of the heaven stand and deliver thee, let them that see the stars tell thee what is about to come upon thee. [14] Behold, they all shall be burnt up as sticks in the fire; neither shall they at all deliver their life from the flame. Because thou hast coals of fire, sit thou upon them; [15] these shall be thy help. Thou hast wearied thyself with traffic from thy youth: every man has wandered to his own home, but thou shalt have no deliverance.

[1] Hear these words, ye house of Jacob, who are called by the name of Israel, and have come forth out of Juda, who swear by the name of the Lord God of Israel, making mention of it, but not with truth, nor with righteousness; [2] maintaining also the name of the holy city, and staying themselves on the God of Israel: the Lord of hosts is his name. The former things I have already declared; [3] and they that have proceeded out of my mouth, and it became well known; I wrought suddenly, and the events came to pass.

[4] I know that thou art stubborn, and thy neck is an iron sinew, and thy forehead brazen. [5] And I told thee of old what should be before it came upon thee; I made it known to thee, lest thou shouldest say, My idols have done it for me; and shouldest say, My graven and molten images have commanded me. [6] Ye have heard all this, but ye have not known: yet I have made known to thee the new things from henceforth, which are coming to pass, and thou saidst not, [7] Now they come to pass, and not formerly: and thou heardest not of them in former days: say not thou, Yea, I know them. [8] Thou hast neither known, nor understood, neither from the beginning have I opened thine ears: for I knew that thou wouldest surely deal treacherously, and wouldest be called a transgressor even from the womb.

[9] For mine own sake will I shew thee my wrath, and will bring before thee my glorious acts, that I may not utterly destroy thee. [10] Behold, I have sold thee, but not for silver; but I have rescued thee from the furnace of affliction. [11] For mine own sake I will do this for thee, because my name is profaned; and I will not give my glory to another.

[12] Hear me, O Jacob, and Israel whom I call; I am the first, and I endure for ever. [13] My hand also has founded the earth, and my right hand has fixed the sky: I will call them, and they shall stand together. [14] And all shall be gathered, and shall hear: who has told them these things? Out of love to thee I have fulfilled thy desire on Babylon, to abolish the seed of the Chaldeans. [15] I have spoken, I have called, I have brought him, and made his way prosperous.

[16] Draw nigh to me, and hear ye these words; I have not spoken in secret from the beginning: when it took place, there was I, and now the Lord, even the Lord, and his Spirit, hath sent me. [17] Thus saith the Lord that delivered thee, the Holy One of Israel; I am thy God, I have shewn thee how thou shouldest find the way wherein thou shouldest walk. [18] And if thou hadst hearkened to my commandments, then would thy peace have been like a river, and thy righteousness as a wave of the sea. [19] Thy seed also would have been as the sand, and the offspring of thy belly as the dust of the ground: neither now shalt thou by any means be utterly destroyed, neither shall thy name perish before me.

[20] Go forth of Babylon, thou that fleest from the Chaldeans: utter aloud a voice of joy, and let this be made known, proclaim it to the end of the earth; say ye, The Lord hath delivered his servant Jacob. ^[21] And if they shall thirst, he shall lead them through the desert; he shall bring forth water to them out of the rock: the rock shall be cloven, and the water shall flow forth, and my people shall drink. ^[22] There is no joy, saith the Lord, to the ungodly.

[1] Harken to me, ye islands; and attend, ye Gentiles; after a long time it shall come to pass, saith the Lord: from my mother's womb he has called my name: [2] and he has made my mouth as a sharp sword, and he has hid me under the shadow of his hand; he has made me as a choice shaft, and he has hid me in his quiver; [3] and said to me, Thou art my servant, O Israel, and in thee I will be glorified. [4] Then I said, I have laboured in vain, I have given my strength for vanity and for nothing: therefore is my judgement with the Lord, and my labour before my God. [5] And now, thus saith the Lord that formed me from the womb to be his own servant, to gather Jacob to him and Israel. I shall be gathered and glorified before the Lord, and my God shall be my strength. [6] And he said to me, It is a great thing for thee to be called my servant, to establish the tribes of Jacob, and to recover the dispersion of Israel: behold, I have given thee for the covenant of a race, for a light of the Gentiles, that thou shouldest be for salvation to the end of the earth.

[7] Thus saith the Lord that delivered thee, the God of Israel, Sanctify him that despises his life, him that is abhorred by the nations that are the servants of princes: kings shall behold him, and princes shall arise, and shall worship him, for the Lord's sake: for the Holy One of Israel is faithful, and I have chosen thee.

[8] Thus saith the Lord, In an acceptable time have I heard thee, and in a day of salvation have I succored thee: and I have formed thee, and given thee for a covenant of the nations, to establish the earth, and to cause to inherit the desert heritages: [9] saying to them that are in bonds, Go forth; and bidding them that are in darkness shew themselves. They shall be fed in all the ways, and in all the paths shall be their pasture. [10] They shall not hunger, neither shall they thirst; neither shall the heat nor the sun smite them; but he that has mercy on them shall comfort them, and by fountains of waters shall he lead them. [11] And I will make every mountain a way, and every path a pasture to them. [12] Behold, these shall come from far: and these from the north and the west, and others from the land of the Persians.

[13] Rejoice, ye heavens; and let the earth be glad: let the mountains break forth with joy; for the Lord has had mercy on his people, and has comforted the lowly ones of his people.

[14] But Sion said, The Lord has forsaken me, and, The Lord has forgotten me. [15] Will a woman forget her child, so as not to have compassion upon the offspring of her womb? but if a woman should even forget these, yet I will not forget thee, saith the Lord.

[16] Behold, I have painted thy walls on my hands, and thou art continually before me. [17] And thou shalt soon be built by those by whom thou were destroyed, and they that made thee desolate shall go forth of thee.

[18] Lift up thine eyes round about, and look on them all; behold, they are gathered together, and are come to thee. As I live, saith the Lord, thou shalt clothe thyself with them all as with an ornament, and put them on as a bride her attire. [19] For thy desert and marred and ruined places shall now be too narrow by reason of the inhabitants, and they that devoured thee shall be removed far from thee. [20] For thy sons whom thou hast lost shall say in thine ears, The place is too narrow for me: make room for me that I may dwell. [21] And thou shalt say in thine heart, Who has begotten me these? whereas I was childless, and a widow; but who has brought up these for me? and I was left alone; but whence came these to me?

[22] Thus saith the Lord, even the Lord, Behold, I lift up mine hand to the nations, and I will lift up my signal to the islands: and they shall bring thy sons in their bosom, and shall bear thy daughters on their shoulders. [23] And kings shall be thy nursing fathers, and their princesses thy nurses, they shall bow down to thee on the face of the earth, and shall lick the dust of thy feet; and thou shalt know that I am the Lord, and they that wait on me shall not be ashamed.

[24] Will any one take spoils from a giant? and if one should take a man captive unjustly, shall he be delivered? [25] For thus saith the Lord, If one should take a giant captive, he shall take spoils, and he who takes them from a mighty man shall be delivered: for I will plead thy cause, and I will deliver thy children. [26] And they that afflicted thee shall eat their own flesh; and they shall drink their own blood as new wine, and shall be drunken: and all flesh shall perceive that I am the Lord that delivers thee, and that upholds the strength of Jacob.

[1] Thus saith the Lord, Of what kind is your mother's bill of divorcement, by which I put her away? or to which debtor have I sold you? Behold, ye are sold for your sins, and for your iniquities have I put your mother away. [2] Why did I come, and there was no man? why did I call, and there was none to hearken? Is not my hand strong to redeem? or can I not deliver? behold, by my rebuke I will dry up the sea, and make rivers a wilderness; and their fish shall be dried up because there is no water, and shall die for thirst. [3] I will clothe the sky with darkness, and will make its covering as sackcloth.

[4] The Lord even God gives me the tongue of instruction, to know when it is fit to speak a word: he has appointed for me early, he has given me an ear to hear: [5] and the instruction of the Lord, even the Lord, opens mine ears, and I do not disobey, nor dispute. [6] I gave my back to scourges, and my cheeks to blows; and I turned not away my face from the shame of spitting: [7] but the Lord God became my helper; therefore I was not ashamed, but I set my face as a solid rock; and I know that I shall never be ashamed, [8] for he that has justified me draws near; who is he that pleads with me? let him stand up against me at the same time: yea, who is he that pleads with me? let him draw nigh to me. [9] Behold, the Lord, the Lord, will help me; who will hurt me? behold, all ye shall wax old as a garment, and a moth shall devour you.

[10] Who is among you that fears the Lord? let him hearken to the voice of his servant: ye that walk in darkness, and have no light, trust in the name of the Lord, and stay upon God. [11] Behold, ye all kindle a fire, and feed a flame: walk in the light of your fire, and in the flame which ye have kindled. This has happened to you for my sake; ye shall lie down in sorrow.

[1] Hearken to me, ye that follow after righteousness, and seek the Lord: look to the solid rock, which ye have hewn, and to the hole of the pit which ye have dug. [2] Look to Abraam your father, and to Sarrha that bore you: for he was alone when I called him, and blessed him, and loved him, and multiplied him. [3] And now I will comfort thee, O Sion: and I have comforted all her desert places; and I will make her desert places as a garden, and her western places as the garden of the Lord; they shall find in her gladness and exultation, thanksgiving and the voice of praise.

[4] Hear me, hear me, my people; and ye kings, hearken to me: for a law shall proceed from me, and my judgment shall be for a light of the nations. [5] My righteousness speedily draws nigh, and my salvation shall go forth as light, and on mine arm shall the Gentiles trust: the isles shall wait for me, and on mine arm shall they trust. [6] Lift up your eyes to the sky, and look on the earth beneath: for the sky was darkened like smoke, and the earth shall wax old like a garment, and the inhabitants shall die in like manner: but my righteousness shall not fail.

[7] Hear me, ye that know judgment, the people in whose heart is my law: fear not the reproach of men, and be not overcome by their contempt. [8] For as a garment will be devoured by time, and as wool will be devoured by a moth, so shall they be consumed; but my righteousness shall be for ever, and my salvation for all generations.

[9] Awake, awake, O Jerusalem, and put on the strength of thine arm; awake as in the early time, as the ancient generation. [10] Art thou not it that dried the sea, the water, even the abundance of the deep; that made the depths of the sea a way of passage for the delivered and redeemed? [11] for by the help of the Lord they shall return, and come to Sion with joy and everlasting exultation, for praise and joy shall come upon their head: pain, and grief, and groaning, have fled away.

[12] I, even I, am he that comforts thee: consider who thou art, that thou wast afraid of mortal man, and of the son of man, who are withered as grass. [13] And thou hast forgotten God who made thee, who made the sky and founded the earth; and thou wert continually afraid because of the wrath of him that afflicted thee: for whereas he counselled to take thee away, yet now where is the wrath of him that afflicted thee? [14] For in thy deliverance he shall not halt, nor tarry; [15] for I am thy God, that troubles the sea, and causes the waves thereof to roar: the Lord of hosts is my name. [16] I will put my words into thy mouth, and I will shelter thee under the shadow of mine hand, with which I fixed the sky, and founded the earth: and the Lord shall say to Sion, Thou art my people.

[17] Awake, awake, stand up, O Jerusalem, that hast drunk at the hand of the Lord the cup of his fury: for thou hast drunk out and drained the cup of calamity, the cup of wrath: [18] and there was none to comfort thee of all the children whom thou borest; and there was none to take hold of thine hand, not even of all the children whom thou has reared. [19] Wherefore these things are against thee; who shall sympathize with thee in thy grief? downfall, and destruction, famine, and sword: who shall comfort thee? [20] Thy sons are the perplexed ones, that sleep at the top of every street as a half-boiled beet; they that are full of the anger of the Lord, caused to faint by the Lord God.

[21] Therefore hear, thou afflicted one, and drunken, but not with wine; [22] thus saith the Lord God that judges his people, Behold, I have taken out of thine hand the cup of calamity, the cup of my wrath; and thou shalt not drink it any more. [23] And I will give it into the hands of them that injured thee, and them that afflicted thee; who said to thy soul, Bow down, that we may pass over: and thou didst level thy body with the ground to them passing by without.

[1] Awake, awake, Sion; put on thy strength, O Sion; and o thou put on thy glory, Jerusalem the holy city: there shall no more pass through thee, the uncircumcised and unclean. [2] Shake off the dust and arise; sit down, Jerusalem: put off the band of thy neck, captive daughter of Sion.

[3] For thus saith the Lord, Ye have been sold for nought; and ye shall not be ransomed with silver. [4] Thus saith the Lord, My people went down before to Egypt to sojourn there; and were carried away forcibly to the Assyrians. [5] And now why are ye here? Thus saith the Lord, Because my people was taken for nothing, wonder ye and howl. Thus saith the Lord, On account of you my name is continually blasphemed among the Gentiles. [6] Therefore shall my people know my name in that day, for I am he that speaks: I am present, [7] as a season of beauty upon the mountains, as the feet of one preaching glad tidings of peace, as one preaching good news: for I will publish thy salvation, saying, O Sion, thy God shall reign. [8] For the voice of them that guard thee is exalted, and with the voice together they shall rejoice: for eyes shall look to eyes, when the Lord shall have mercy upon Sion. [9] Let the waste places of Jerusalem break forth in joy together, because the Lord has had mercy upon her, and has delivered Jerusalem. [10] And the Lord shall reveal his holy arm in the sight of all the nations; and all the ends of the earth shall see the salvation that comes from our God.

[11] Depart ye, depart, go out from thence, and touch not the unclean thing; go ye out from the midst of her; separate yourselves, ye that bear the vessels of the Lord. [12] For ye shall not go forth with tumult, neither go by flight: for the Lord shall go first in advance of you; and the God of Israel shall be he that brings up your rear.

[13] Behold, my servant shall understand, and be exalted, and glorified exceedingly. [14] As many shall be amazed at thee, so shall thy face be without glory from men, and thy glory shall not be honoured by the sons of men. [15] Thus shall many nations wonder at him; and kings shall keep their mouths shut: for they to whom no report was brought concerning him, shall see; and they who have not heard, shall consider.

Chapter 53

[1] O Lord, who has believed our report? and to whom has the arm of the Lord been revealed? [2] We brought a report as of a child before him; he is as a root in a thirsty land: he has no form nor comeliness; and we saw him, but he had no form nor beauty. [3] But his form was ignoble, and inferior to that of the children of men; he was a man in suffering, and acquainted with the bearing of sickness, for his face is turned from us: he was dishonoured, and not esteemed. [4] He bears our sins, and is pained for us: yet we accounted him to be in trouble, and in suffering, and in affliction. [5] But he was wounded on account of our sins, and was bruised because of our iniquities: the chastisement of our peace was upon him; and by his bruises we were healed. [6] All we as sheep have gone astray; every one has gone astray in his way; and the Lord gave him up for our sins.

[7] And he, because of his affliction, opens not his mouth: he was led as a sheep to the slaughter, and as a lamb before the shearer is dumb, so he opens not his mouth. [8] In his humiliation his judgment was taken away: who shall declare his generation? for his life is taken away from the earth: because of the iniquities of my people he was led to death. [9] And I will give the wicked for his burial, and the rich for his death; for he practised no iniquity, nor craft with his mouth. [10] The Lord also is pleased to purge him from his stroke. If ye can give an offering for sin, your soul shall see a long-lived seed: [11] the Lord also is pleased to take away from the travail of his soul, to shew him light, and to form him with understanding; to justify the just one who serves many well; and he shall bear their sins. [12] Therefore he shall inherit many, and he shall divide the spoils of the mighty; because his soul was delivered to death: and he was numbered among the transgressors; and he bore the sins of many, and was delivered because of their iniquities.

Chapter 54

[1] Rejoice, thou barren that bearest not; break forth and cry, thou that dost not travail: for more are the children of the desolate than of her that has a husband: for the Lord has said, [2] Enlarge the placed of thy tent, and of thy curtains: fix the pins, spare not, lengthen thy cords, and strengthen thy pins; [3] spread forth thy tent yet to the right and the left: for thy seed shall inherit the Gentiles, and thou shalt make the desolate cities to be inhabited. [4] Fear not, because thou has been put to shame, neither be confounded, because thou was reproached: for thou shalt forget thy former shame, and shalt no more at all remember the reproach of thy widowhood. [5] For it is the Lord that made thee; the Lord of hosts is his name: and he that delivered thee, he is the God of Israel, and shall be called so by the whole earth. [6] The Lord has not called thee as a deserted and faint-hearted woman, nor as a woman hated from her youth, saith thy God.

[7] For a little while I left thee: but with great mercy will I have compassion upon thee. [8] In a little wrath I turned away my face from thee; but with everlasting mercy will I have compassion upon thee, saith the Lord that delivers thee.

[9] From the time of the water of Noe this is my purpose: as I sware to him at that time, saying of the earth, I will no more be wroth with thee, neither when thou art threatened, [10] shall the mountains depart, nor shall thy hills be removed: so neither shall my mercy fail thee, nor shall the covenant of thy peace be at all removed: for the Lord who is gracious to thee has spoken it.

[11] Afflicted and outcast thou has not been comforted: behold, I will prepare carbuncle for thy stones, and sapphire for thy foundations; [12] and I will make thy buttresses jasper, and thy gates crystal, and thy border precious stones. [13] And I will cause all thy sons to be taught of God, and thy children to be in great peace. [14] And thou shalt be built in righteousness: abstain from injustice, and thou shalt not fear; and trembling shall not come nigh thee. [15] Behold, strangers shall come to thee by me, and shall sojourn with thee, and shall run to thee for refuge.

[16] Behold, I have created thee, not as the coppersmith blowing coals, and bringing out a vessel fit for work; but I have created thee, not for ruin, that I should destroy thee. [17] I will not suffer any weapon formed against thee to prosper; and every voice that shall rise up against thee for judgment, thou shalt vanquish them all; and thine adversaries shall be condemned thereby. There is an inheritance to them that serve the Lord, and ye shall be righteous before me, saith the Lord.

[1] Ye that thirst, go to the water, and all that have no money, go and buy; and eat and drink wine and fat without money or price. [2] Wherefore do ye value at the price of money, and give your labour for that which will not satisfy? hearken to me, and ye shall eat that which is good, and your soul shall feast itself on good things.

[3] Give heed with your ears, and follow my ways: hearken to me, and your soul shall live in prosperity; and I will make with you an everlasting covenant, the sure mercies of David. [4] Behold I have made him a testimony among the Gentiles, a prince and commander to the Gentiles. [5] Nations which know thee not, shall call upon thee, and peoples which are not acquainted with thee, shall flee to thee for refuge, for the sake of the Lord thy God, the Holy One of Israel; for he has glorified thee.

[6] Seek ye the Lord, and when ye find him, call upon him; and when he shall draw nigh to you, [7] let the ungodly leave his ways, and the transgressor his counsels: and let him return to the Lord, and he shall find mercy; for he shall abundantly pardon your sins. [8] For my counsels are not as your counsels, nor are my ways as your ways, saith the Lord. [9] But as the heaven is distant from the earth, so is my way distant from your ways, and your thoughts from my mind. [10] For as rain shall come down, or snow, from heaven, and shall not return until it have saturated the earth, and it bring forth, and bud, and give seed to the sower, and bread for food: [11] so shall my word be, whatever shall proceed out of my mouth, it shall by no means turn back, until all the things which I willed shall have been accomplished; and I will make thy ways prosperous, and will effect my commands. [12] For ye shall go forth with joy, and shall be taught with gladness: for the mountains and the hills shall exult to welcome you with joy, and all the trees of the field shall applaud with their branches. [13] And instead of the bramble shall come up the cypress, and instead of the nettle shall come up the myrtle: and the Lord shall be for a name, and for an everlasting sign, and shall not fail.

[1] Thus saith the Lord, Keep ye judgment, and do justice: for my salvation is near to come, and my mercy to be revealed. [2] Blessed is the man that does these things, and the man that holds by them, and keeps the sabbaths from profaning them, and keeps his hands from doing unrighteousness.

[3] Let not the stranger who attaches himself to the Lord, say, Surely the Lord will separate me from his people: and let not the eunuch say, I am a dry tree. [4] Thus saith the Lord to the eunuchs, as many as shall keep my sabbaths, and choose the things which I take pleasure in, and take hold of my covenant; [5] I will give to them in my house and within my walls an honourable place, better than sons and daughters: I will give them an everlasting name, and it shall not fail. [6] And I will give it to the strangers that attach themselves to the Lord, to serve him, and to love the name of the Lord, to be to him servants and handmaids; and as for all that keep my sabbaths from profaning them, and that take hold of my covenant; [7] I will bring them to my holy mountain, and gladden them in my house of prayer: their whole-burnt-offerings and their sacrifices shall be acceptable upon mine altar; for my house shall be called a house of prayer for all nations, [8] saith the Lord that gathers the dispersed of Israel; for I will gather to him a congregation.

[9] All ye beasts of the field, come, devour, all ye beasts of the forest. [10] See how they are all blinded: they have not known; they are dumb dogs that will not bark; dreaming of rest, loving to slumber. [11] Yea, they are insatiable dogs, that known not what it is to be filled, and they are wicked, having no understanding: all have followed their own ways, each according to his will.

[1] See how the just man has perished, and no one lays it to heart: and righteous men are taken away, and no one considers: for the righteous has been removed out of the way of injustice. [2] His burial shall be in peace: he has been removed out of the way.

[3] But draw ye near hither, ye lawless children, the seed of adulterers and the harlot. [4] Wherein have ye been rioting? and against whom have ye opened your mouth, and against whom have ye loosed your tongue? are ye not children of perdition? a lawless seed? [5] who call upon idols under the leafy trees, slaying your children in the valleys among the rocks? [6] That is thy portion, this is thy lot: and to them hast thou poured forth drink-offerings, and to these hast thou offered meat-offerings. Shall I not therefore be angry for these things?

[7] On a lofty and high mountain, there is thy bed, and thither thou carriest up thy meat-offerings: [8] and behind the posts of thy door thou didst place thy memorials. Didst thou think that if thou shouldest depart from me, thou wouldest gain? thou hast loved those that lay with thee; [9] and thou hast multiplied thy whoredom with them, and thou hast increased the number of them that are far from thee, and hast sent ambassadors beyond thy borders, and hast been debased even to hell. [10] Thou hast wearied thyself with thy many ways; yet thou saidst not, I will cease to strengthen myself: for thou has done these things; therefore thou has not supplicated me.

[11] Through dread of whom hast thou feared, and lied against me, and has not remembered, nor considered me, nor regarded me, yea, though when I see thee I pass they by, yet thou hast not feared me.

[12] And I will declare thy righteousness, and thy sins, which shall not profit thee. [13] When thou criest out, let them deliver thee in thine affliction: for all these the wind shall take, and the tempest shall carry them away: but they that cleave to me shall possess the land, and shall inherit my holy mountain. [14] And they shall say, Clear the ways before him, and take up the stumbling-blocks out of the way of my people.

[15] Thus saith the Most High, who dwells on high for ever, Holy in the holies, is his name, the Most High resting in the holies, and giving patience to the faint-hearted, and giving life to the broken-hearted: [16] I will not take vengeance on you for ever, neither will I be always angry with you: for my Spirit shall go forth from me, and I have created all breath. [17] On account of sin for a little while I grieved him, and smote him, and turned away my face from him; and he was grieved, and he went on sorrowful in his ways. [18] I have seen his ways, and healed him, and comforted him, and given him true comfort; [19] peace upon peace to them that are far off, and to them that are nigh: and the Lord has said, I will heal them.

[20] But the unrighteous shall be tossed as troubled waves, and shall not be able to rest. [21] There is no joy to the ungodly, said God.

Chapter 58

[1] Cry aloud, and spare not; lift up thy voice as with a trumpet, and declare to my people their sins, and to the house of Jacob their iniquities. [2] They seek me day by day, and desire to know my ways, as a people that had done righteousness, and had not forsaken the judgment of their God: they now ask of me righteous judgment, and desire to draw nigh to God, [3] saying, Why have we fasted, and thou regardest not? why have we afflicted our souls, and thou didst not know it?

Nay, in the days of your fasts ye find your pleasures, and all them that are under your power ye wound. [4] If ye fast for quarrels and strifes, and smite the lowly with your fists, wherefore do ye fast to me as ye do this day, so that your voice may be heard in crying? [5] I have not chosen this fast, nor such a day for a man to afflict his soul; neither though thou shouldest bend down thy neck as a ring, and spread under thee sackcloth and ashes, neither thus shall ye call a fast acceptable. [6] I have not chosen such a fast, saith the Lord; but do thou loose every burden of iniquity, do thou untie the knots of hard bargains, set the bruised free, and cancel every unjust account. [7] Break thy bread to the hungry, and lead the unsheltered poor to thy house: if thou seest one naked, clothe him, and thou shalt not disregard the relations of thine own seed.

[8] Then shall thy light break forth as the morning, and thy health shall speedily spring forth: and thy righteousness shall go before thee, and the glory of God shall compass thee. [9] Then shalt thou cry, and God shall hearken to thee; while thou art yet speaking he will say, Behold, I am here. If thou remove from thee the band, and the stretching forth of the hands, and murmuring speech; [10] and if thou give bread to the hungry from thy heart, and satisfy the afflicted soul; then shall thy light spring up in darkness, and thy darkness shall be as noon-day: [11] and thy God shall be with thee continually, and thou shalt be satisfied according as thy soul desires; and thy bones shall be made fat, and shall be as a well-watered garden, and as a fountain from which the water has not failed. [12] And thy old waste desert places shall be built up, and thy foundations shall last through all generations; and thou shalt be called a repairer of breaches, and thou shalt cause thy paths between to be in peace.

[13] If thou turn away thy foot from the sabbath, so as not to do thy pleasure on the holy days, and shalt call the sabbaths delightful, holy to God; if thou shalt not lift up thy foot to work, nor speak a word in anger out of thy mouth, [14] then shalt thou trust on the Lord; and he shall bring thee up to the good places of the land, and feed thee with the heritage of Jacob thy father: for the mouth of the Lord has spoken this.

[1] Has the hand of the Lord no power to save? or has he made his ear heavy, so that he should not hear? [2] Nay, your iniquities separate between you and God, and because of your sins has he turned away his face from you, so as not to have mercy upon you. [3] For your hands are defiled with blood, and your fingers with sins; your lips also have spoken iniquity, and your tongue meditates unrighteousness.

[4] None speaks justly, neither is there true judgment: they trust in vanities, and speak empty words; for they conceive trouble, and bring forth iniquity. [5] They have hatched asps' eggs, and weave a spider's web: and he that is going to eat of their eggs, having crushed an addled egg, has found also in it a basilisk. [6] Their web shall not become a garment, nor shall they at all clothe themselves with their works; for their works are works of iniquity. [7] And their feet run to wickedness, swift to shed blood; their thoughts also are thoughts of murder; destruction and misery are in their ways; [8] and the way of peace they know not, neither is there judgment in their ways; for their paths by which they go are crooked, and they know not peace.

[9] Therefore has judgment departed from them, and righteousness shall not overtake them: while they waited for light, darkness came upon them; while they waited for brightness, they walked in perplexity. [10] They shall feel for the wall as blind men, and shall feel for it as if they had no eyes: and they shall feel at noon-day as at midnight; they shall groan as dying men. [11] They shall proceed together as a bear and as a dove: we have waited for judgment, and there is no salvation, it is gone far from us.

[12] For our iniquity is great before thee, and our sins have risen up against us: for our iniquities are in us, and we know our unrighteous deeds. [13] We have sinned, and dealt falsely, and revolted from our God: we have spoken unrighteous words, and have been disobedient; we have conceived and uttered from our heart unrighteous words. [14] And we have turned judgment back, and righteousness has departed afar off: for truth is consumed in their ways, and they could not pass by a straight path. [15] And truth has been taken away, and they have turned aside their mind from understanding.

And the Lord saw it, and it pleased him not that there was no judgment. [16] And he looked, and there was no man, and he observed, and there was none to help: so he defended them with his arm, and stablished them with his mercy. [17] And he put on righteousness as a breast-plate, and placed the helmet of salvation on his head; and he clothed himself with the garment of vengeance, and with his cloak, [18] as one about to render a recompence, even reproach to his adversaries. [19] So shall they of the west fear the name of the Lord, and they that come from the rising of the sun his glorious name: for the wrath of the Lord shall come as a mighty river, it shall come with fury.

[20] And the deliverer shall come for Sion's sake, and shall turn away ungodliness from Jacob. ^[21] And this shall be my covenant with them, said the Lord; My Spirit which is upon thee, and the words which I have put in thy mouth, shall never fail from thy mouth, nor from the mouth of thy seed, for the Lord has spoken it, henceforth and for ever.

Chapter 60

[1] Be enlightened, be enlightened, O Jerusalem, for thy light is come, and the glory of the Lord is risen upon thee. [2] Behold, darkness shall cover the earth, and there shall be gross darkness on the nations: but the Lords shall appear upon thee, and his glory shall be seen upon thee. [3] And kings shall walk in thy light, and nations in thy brightness.

[4] Lift up thine eyes round about, and behold thy children gathered: all thy sons have come from far, and thy daughters shall be borne on men's shoulders. [5] Then shalt thou see, and fear, and be amazed in thine heart; for the wealth of the sea shall come round to thee, and of nations and peoples; and herds of camels shall come to thee, [6] and the camels of Madiam and Gaepha shall cover thee: all from Saba shall come bearing gold, and shall bring frankincense, and they shall publish the salvation of the Lord. [7] And all the flocks of Kedar shall be gathered, and the rams of Nabaeoth shall come; and acceptable sacrifices shall be offered on my altar, and my house of prayer shall be glorified.

[8] Who are these that fly as clouds, and as doves with young ones to me? [9] The isles have waited for me, and the ships of Tharsis among the first, to bring thy children from afar, and their silver and their gold with them, and that for the sake of the holy name of the Lord, and because the Holy One of Israel is glorified. [10] And strangers shall build thy walls, and their kings shall wait upon thee: for by reason of my wrath I smote thee, and by reason of mercy I loved thee. [11] And thy gates shall be opened continually; they shall not be shut day nor night; to bring in to thee the power of the Gentiles, and their kings as captives. [12] For the nations and the kings which will not serve thee shall perish; and those nations shall be made utterly desolate.

[13] And the glory of Libanus shall come to thee, with the cypress, and pine, and cedar together, to glorify my holy place.

[14] And the sons of them that afflicted thee, and of them that provoked thee, shall come to thee in fear; and thou shalt be called Sion, the city of the Holy One of Israel. [15] Because thou has become desolate and hated, and there was no helper, therefore I will make thee a perpetual gladness, a joy of many generations.

[16] And thou shalt suck the milk of the Gentiles, and shalt eat the wealth of kings: and shalt know that I am the Lord that saves thee and delivers thee, the Holy One of Israel. [17] And for brass I will bring thee gold, and for iron I will bring thee silver, and instead of wood I will bring thee brass, and instead of stones, iron; and I will make thy princes peaceable, and thine overseers righteous. [18] And injustice shall no more be heard in thy land, nor destruction nor misery in thy coasts; but thy walls shall be called Salvation, and thy gates Sculptured Work. [19] And thou shalt no more have the sun for a light by day, nor shall the rising of the moon lighten thy night; but the Lord shall be thine everlasting light, and God thy glory. ^[20] For the sun shall no more set, nor shall the moon be eclipsed; for the Lord shall be thine everlasting light, and the days of thy mourning shall be completed. ^[21] Thy people also shall be all righteous; they shall inherit the land for ever, preserving that which they have planted, even the works of their hands, for glory. ^[22] The little one shall become thousands, and the least a great nation; I the Lord will gather them in due time.

[1] The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because he has anointed me; he has sent me to preach glad tidings to the poor, to heal the broken in heart, to proclaim liberty to the captives, and recovery of sight to the blind; [2] to declare the acceptable year of the Lord, and the day of recompence; to comfort all that mourn; [3] that there should be given to them that mourn in Sion glory instead of ashes, the oil of joy to the mourners, the garment of glory for the spirit of heaviness: and they shall be called generations of righteousness, the planting of the Lord for glory.

[4] And they shall build the old waste places, they shall raise up those that were before made desolate, and shall renew the desert cities, even those that had been desolate for many generations. [5] And strangers shall come and feed thy flocks, and aliens shall be thy ploughmen and vine-dressers. [6] But ye shall be called priests of the Lord, the ministers of God: ye shall eat the strength of nations, and shall be admired because of their wealth. [7] Thus shall they inherit the land a second time, and everlasting joy shall be upon their head. [8] For I am the Lord who love righteousness, and hate robberies of injustice; and I will give their labour to the just, and will make an everlasting covenant with them. [9] And their seed shall be known among the Gentiles, and their offspring in the midst of peoples: every one that sees them shall take notice of them, that they are a seed blessed of God; [10] and they shall greatly rejoice in the Lord.

Let my soul rejoice in the Lord; for he has clothed me with the robe of salvation, and the garment of joy: he has put a mitre on me as on a bridegroom, and adorned me with ornaments as a bride.

[11] And as the earth putting forth her flowers, and as a garden its seed; so shall the Lord, even the Lord, cause righteousness to spring forth, and exultation before all nations.

Chapter 62

[1] For Sion's sake I will not hold my peace, and for Jerusalem's sake I will not rest, until her righteousness go forth as light, and my salvation burn as a torch.

[2] And the Gentiles shall see thy righteousness, and kings thy glory: and one shall call thee by a new name, which the Lords shall name. [3] And thou shalt be a crown of beauty in the hand of the Lord, and a royal diadem in the hand of thy God. [4] And thou shalt no more be called Forsaken; and thy land shall no more be called Desert: for thou shalt be called My Pleasure, and thy land Inhabited: for the Lord has taken pleasure in thee, and thy land shall be inhabited.

[5] And as a young man lives with a virgin, so shall thy sons dwell in thee: and it shall come to pass that as a bridegroom will rejoice over a bride, so will the Lord rejoice over thee.

[6] And on thy walls, O Jerusalem, have I set watchmen all day and all night, who shall never cease making mention of the Lord. [7] For there is none like you, when he shall have established, and made Jerusalem a praise on the earth. [8] For the Lord has sworn by his glory, and by the might of his arm, I will no more give thy corn and thy provisions to thine enemies; nor shall strangers any more drink thy wine, for which thou has laboured. [9] But they that have gathered them shall eat them, and they shall praise the Lord; and they that have gathered the grapes shall drink thereof in my holy courts.

[10] Go through my gates, and make a way for my people; and cast the stones out of the way; lift up a standard for the Gentiles. [11] For behold, the Lord has proclaimed to the end of the earth, say ye to the daughter of Sion, Behold, thy Saviour has come to thee, having his reward and his work before his face. [12] And one shall call them the holy people, the redeemed of the Lord: and thou shalt be called a city sought out, and not forsaken.

[1] Who is this that is come from Edom, with red garments from Bosor? thus fair in his apparel, with mighty strength? I speak of righteousness and saving judgment.

[2] Wherefore are thy garments red, and thy raiment as if fresh from a trodden winepress? [3] I am full of trodden grape, and of the nations there is not a man with me; and I trampled them in my fury, and dashed them to pieces as earth, and brought down their blood to the earth. [4] For the day of recompence has come upon them, and the year of redemption is at hand. [5] And I looked, and there was no helper; and I observed, and none upheld: therefore my arm delivered them, and mine anger drew nigh. [6] And I trampled them in mine anger, and brought down their blood to the earth.

[7] I remembered the mercy of the Lord, the praises of the Lord in all things wherein he recompenses us. The Lord is a good judge to the house of Israel; he deals with us according to his mercy, and according to the abundance of his righteousness.

[8] And he said, Is it not my people? the children surely will not be rebellious: and he became to them deliverance [9] out of all their affliction: not an ambassador, nor a messenger, but himself saved them, because he loved them and spared them: he himself redeemed them, and took them up, and lifted them up all the days of old.

[10] But they disobeyed, and provoked his Holy Spirit: so he turned to be an enemy, he himself contended against them. [11] Then he remembered the ancient days, saying, Where is he that brought up from the sea the shepherd of the sheep? where is he that put his Holy Spirit in them? [12] who led Moses with his right hand, the arm of his glory? he forced the water to separate from before him, to make himself an everlasting name. [13] He led them through the deep, as a horse through the wilderness, and they fainted not, [14] and as cattle through a plain: the Spirit came down from the Lord, and guided them: thus thou leddest thy people, to make thyself a glorious name.

[15] Turn from heaven, and look from thy holy habitation and from thy glory: where is thy zeal and thy strength? where is the abundance of thy mercy and of thy compassions, that thou hast withholden thyself from us? [16] For thou art our Father; for though Abraham knew us not, and Israel did not acknowledge us, yet do thou, O Lord, our Father, deliver us: thy name has been upon us from the beginning.

[17] Why hast thou caused us to err, O Lord, from thy way? and has hardened our hearts, that we should not fear thee? Return for thy servants' sake, for the sake of the tribes of thine inheritance, [18] that we may inherit a small part of thy holy mountain. [19] We are become as at the beginning, when thou didst not rule over us, and thy name was not called upon us.

[1] If thou wouldest open the heaven, trembling will take hold upon the mountains from thee, and they shall melt, [2] as wax melts before the fire; and fire shall burn up the enemies, and thy name shall be manifest among the adversaries: at thy presence the nations shall be troubled, [3] whenever thou shalt work gloriously; trembling from thee shall take hold upon the mountains.

[4] From of old we have not heard, neither have our eyes seen a God beside thee, and thy works which thou wilt perform to them that wait for mercy. [5] For these blessings shall happen to them that work righteousness, and they shall remember thy ways: behold, thou wast angry and we have sinned; therefore we have erred, [6] and we are all become as unclean, and all our righteousness as a filthy rag: and we have fallen as leaves because of our iniquities; thus the wind shall carry us away. [7] And there is none that calls upon thy name, or that remembers to take hold on thee: for thou hast turned thy face away from us, and hast delivered us up because of our sins.

[8] And now, O Lord, thou art our Father, and we are clay, all of us the work of thine hands. [9] Be not very wroth with us, and remember not our sins for ever; but now look on us, for we are all thy people. [10] The city of thy holiness has become desolate, Sion has become as a wilderness, Jerusalem a curse. [11] The house, our sanctuary, and the glory which our fathers blessed, has been burnt with fire: and all our glorious things have gone to ruin. [12] And for all these things thou, O Lord, has withholden, thyself, and been silent, and hast brought us very low.

[1] I became manifest to them that asked not for me; I was found of them that sought me not: I said, Behold, I am here, to a nation, who called not on my name. [2] I have stretched forth my hands all day to a disobedient and gainsaying people, to them that walked in a way that was not good, but after their sins. [3] This is the people that provokes me continually in my presence; they offer sacrifices in gardens, and burn incense on bricks to devils, which exist not. [4] They lie down to sleep in the tombs and in the caves for the sake of dreams, even they that eat swine's flesh, and the broth of their sacrifices: all their vessels are defiled: [5] who say, Depart from me, draw not nigh to me, for I am pure.

This is the smoke of my wrath, a fire burns with it continually. [6] Behold, it is written before me: I will not be silent until I have recompensed into their bosom, [7] their sins and the sins of their fathers, saith the Lord, who have burnt incense on the mountains, and reproached me on the hills: I will recompense their works into their bosom.

[8] Thus saith the Lord, As a grape-stone shall be found in the cluster, and they shall say, Destroy it not; for a blessing is in it: so will I do for the sake of him that serves me, for his sake I will not destroy them all. [9] And I will lead forth the seed that came of Jacob and of Juda, and they shall inherit my holy mountain: and mine elect and my servants shall inherit it, and shall dwell there. [10] And there shall be in the forest folds of flocks, and the valley of Achor shall be for a resting-place of herds for my people, who have sought me.

[11] But ye are they that have left me, and forget my holy mountain, and prepare a table for the devil, and fill up the drink-offering to Fortune. [12] I will deliver you up to the sword, ye shall all fall by slaughter: for I called you, and ye hearkened not; I spoke, and ye refused to hear; and ye did evil in my sight, and chose the things wherein I delighted not. [13] Therefore thus saith the Lord, Behold, my servants shall eat, but ye shall hunger: behold, my servants shall drink, but ye shall thirst: behold my servants shall rejoice, but ye shall be ashamed: [14] behold, my servants shall exult with joy, but ye shall cry for the sorrow of your heart, and shall howl for the vexation of your spirit. [15] For ye shall leave your name for a loathing to my chosen, and the Lord shall destroy you: but my servants shall be called by a new name, [16] which shall be blessed on the earth; for they shall bless the true God: and they that swear upon the earth shall swear by the true God; for they shall forget the former affliction, it shall not come into their mind.

[17] For there shall be a new heaven and a new earth: and they shall not at all remember the former, neither shall they at all come into their mind. [18] But they shall find in her joy and exultation; for, behold, I make Jerusalem a rejoicing, and my people a joy. [19] And I will rejoice in Jerusalem, and will be glad in my people: and there shall no more be heard in her the voice of weeping, or the voice of crying. [20] Neither shall there be there any more a child that dies untimely, or an old man who shall not complete his time: for the youth shall be a hundred years old, and the sinner who dies at a hundred years shall also be accursed: [21] and they shall build houses, and themselves shall dwell in them; and they shall plant vineyards, and themselves shall eat the fruit thereof. [22] They shall by no means build, and others inhabit; and they shall by no means plant, and others eat: for as the days of the tree of life shall be the days of my people, they shall long enjoy the fruits of their labours. [23] My chosen shall not toil in vain, neither shall they beget children to be cursed; for they are a seed blessed of God, and their offspring with them.

[24] And it shall come to pass, that before they call, I will hearken to them; while they are yet speaking, I will say, What is it? [25] Then wolves and lambs shall feed together, and the lion shall eat chaff like the ox, and the serpent eat earth as bread. They shall not injure nor destroy in my holy mountain, saith the Lord.

[1] Thus saith the Lord, Heaven is my throne, and the earth is my footstool: what kind of a house will ye build me? and of what kind is to be the place of my rest? [2] For all these things are mine, saith the Lord: and to whom will I have respect, but to the humble and meek, and the man that trembles at my words?

[3] But the transgressor that sacrifices a calf to me, is as he that kills a dog; and he that offers fine flour, as one that offers swine's blood; he that gives frankincense for a memorial, is as a blasphemer.

Yet they have chosen their own ways, and their soul has delighted in their abominations. [4] I also will choose their mockeries, and will recompense their sins upon them; because I called them, and they did not hearken to me; I spoke, and they heard not: and they did evil before me, and chose the things wherein I delighted not.

[5] Hear the words of the Lord, ye that tremble at his word; speak ye, our brethren, to them that hate you and abominate you, that the name of the Lord may be glorified, and may appear their joy; but they shall be ashamed.

[6] A voice of a cry from the city, a voice from the temple, a voice of the Lord rendering recompence to his adversaries. [7] Before she that travailed brought forth, before the travail-pain came on, she escaped it and brought forth a male. [8] Who has heard such a thing? and who has seen after this manner? Has the earth travailed in one day? or has even a nation been born at once, that Sion has travailed, and brought forth her children? [9] But I have raised this expectation, yet thou hast not remembered me, saith the Lord: behold, have not I made the bearing and barren woman? saith thy God.

[10] Rejoice, O Jerusalem, and all ye that love her hold in her a general assembly: rejoice greatly with her, all that now mourn over her: [11] that ye may suck, and be satisfied with the breast of her consolation; that ye may milk out, and delight yourselves with the influx of her glory.

[12] For thus saith the Lord, Behold, I turn toward them as a river of peace, and as a torrent bringing upon them in a flood the glory of the Gentiles: their children shall be borne upon the shoulders, and comforted on the knees. [13] As if his mother should comfort one, so will I also comfort you; and ye shall be comforted in Jerusalem. [14] And ye shall see, and your heart shall rejoice, and your bones shall thrive like grass: and the hand of the Lord shall be known to them that fear him, and he shall threaten the disobedient.

[15] For, behold, the Lord will come as fire, and his chariots as a storm, to render his vengeance with wrath, and his rebuke with a flame of fire. [16] For with the fire of the Lord all the earth shall be judged, and all flesh with his sword: many shall be slain by the Lord.

[17] They that sanctify themselves and purify themselves in the gardens, and eat swine's flesh in the porches, and the abominations, and the mouse, shall be consumed together, saith the Lord. [18] And I know their works and their imagination. I am going to gather all nations and tongues; and they shall come, and see my glory. [19] And I will leave a sign upon them, and I will send forth them that have escaped of them to the nations, to Tharsis, and Phud, and Lud, and Mosoch, and to Thobel, and to Greece, and to the isles afar off, to those who have not heard my name, nor seen my glory; and they shall declare my glory among the Gentiles. [20] And they shall bring your brethren out of all nations for a gift to the Lord with horses, and chariots, in litters drawn by mules with awnings, to the holy city Jerusalem, said the Lord, as though the children of Israel should bring their sacrifices to me with psalms into the house of the Lord. [21] And I will take of them priests and Levites, saith the Lord.

[22] For as the new heaven and the new earth, which I make, remain before me, saith the Lord, so shall your seed and your name continue. [23] And it shall come to pass from month to month, and from sabbath to sabbath, that all flesh shall come to worship before me in Jerusalem, saith the Lord. [24] And they shall go forth, and see the carcasses of the men that have transgressed against me: for their worm shall not die, and their fire shall not be quenched; and they shall be a spectacle to all flesh.

Jeremiah

Chapter 1

[1] The word of God which came to Jeremiah the son of Chelcias, of the priests, who dwelt in Anathoth in the land of Benjamin: [2] accordingly as the word of God came to him in the days of Josias son of Amos king of Juda, in the thirteenth year of his reign. [3] And it was in the days of Joakim, son of Josias king of Juda, until the eleventh year of Sedekias king of Juda, even until the captivity of Jerusalem in the fifth month.

[4] And the word of the Lord came to him, saying, [5] Before I formed thee in the belly, I knew thee; and before thou camest forth from the womb, I sanctified thee; I appointed thee a prophet to the nations.

[6] And I said, O Lord, thou that art supreme Lord, behold, I know not how to speak, for I am a child. [7] And the Lord said to me, Say not, I am a child: for thou shalt go to all to whomsoever I shall send thee, and according to all the words that I shall command thee, thou shalt speak. [8] Be not afraid before them: for I am with thee to deliver thee, saith the Lord. [9] And the Lord stretched forth his hand to me, and touched my mouth: and the Lord said to me, Behold, I have put my words into thy mouth.

[10] Behold, I have appointed thee this day over nations and over kingdoms, to root out, and to pull down, and to destroy, and to rebuild, and to plant.

[11] And the word of the Lord came to me, saying, What seest thou? And I said, A rod of an almond tree. [12] And the Lord said to me, Thou hast well seen: for I have watched over my words to perform them. [13] And the word of the Lord came to me a second time, saying, What seest thou? And I said, A caldron on the fire; and the face of it is toward the north. [14] And the Lord said to me, From the north shall flame forth evils upon all the inhabitants of the land. [15] For, behold, I call together all the kingdoms of the earth from the north, saith the Lord; and they shall come, and shall set each one his throne at the entrance of the gates of Jerusalem, and against all the walls round about her, and against all the cities of Juda. [16] And I will speak to them in judgment, concerning all their iniquity, forasmuch as they have forsaken me, and sacrificed to strange gods, and worshipped the works of their own hands.

[17] And do thou gird up thy loins, and stand up, and speak all the words that I shall command thee: be not afraid of their face, neither be thou alarmed before them; for I am with thee to deliver thee, saith the Lord. [18] Behold, I have made thee this day as a strong city, and as a brazen wall, strong against all the kings of Juda, and the princes thereof, and the people of the land. [19] And they shall fight against thee; but they shall by no means prevail against thee; because I am with thee, to deliver thee, saith the Lord.

[1] And he said, Thus saith the Lord, [2] I remember the kindness of thy youth, and the love of thine espousals, [3] in following the Holy One of Israel, saith the Lord, Israel was the holy people to the Lord, and the first-fruits of his increase: al that devoured him shall offend; evils shall come upon them, saith the Lord.

[4] Hear the word of the Lord, O house of Jacob, and every family of the house of Israel. [5] Thus saith the Lord, What trespass have your fathers found in me, that they have revolted far from me, and gone after vanities, and become vain? [6] And they said not, Where is the Lord, who brought us up out of the land of Egypt, who guided us in the wilderness, in an untried and trackless land, in a land which no man at all went through, and no man dwelt there? [7] And I brought you to Carmel, that ye should eat the fruits thereof, and the good thereof; and ye went in, and defiled my land, and made mine heritage an abomination. [8] The priests said not, Where is the Lord? and they that held by the law knew me not: the shepherds also sinned against me, and the prophets prophesied by Baal, and went after that which profited not.

[9] Therefore I will yet plead with you, and will plead with your children's children. [10] For go to the isles of the Chettians, and se; and send to Kedar, and observe accurately, and see if such things have been done; [11] if the nations will change their gods, though they are not gods: but my people have changed their glory, for that from which they shall not be profited. [12] The heaven is amazed at this, and is very exceedingly horror-struck, saith the Lord. [13] For my people has committed two faults, and evil ones: they have forsaken me, the fountain of water of life, and hewn out for themselves broken cisterns, which will not be able to hold water.

[14] Is Israel a servant, or a home-born slave? why has he become a spoil? [15] The lions roared upon him, and uttered their voice, which have made his land a wilderness: and his cities are broken down, that they should not be inhabited. [16] Also the children of Memphis and Taphnas have known thee, and mocked thee. [17] Has not thy forsaking me brought these things upon thee? saith the Lord thy God.

[18] And now what hast thou to do with the way of Egypt, to drink the water of Geon? and what hast thou to do with the way of the Assyrians, to drink the water of rivers? [19] Thine apostasy shall correct thee, and thy wickedness shall reprove thee: know then, and see, that thy forsaking me has been bitter to thee, saith the Lord thy God; and I have taken no pleasure in thee, saith the Lord thy God.

[20] For of old thou hast broken thy yoke, and plucked asunder thy bands; and thou has said, I will not serve thee, but will go upon every high hill, and under every shady tree, there will I indulge in my fornication. [21] Yet I planted thee a fruitful vine, entirely of the right sort: how art thou a strange vine turned to bitterness! [22] Though thou shouldest wash thyself with nitre, and multiply to thyself soap, still thou art stained by thine iniquities before me, saith the Lord.

[23] How wilt thou say, I am not polluted, and have not gone after Baal? behold thy ways in the burial-ground, and know what thou hast done: her voice has howled in the evening: [24] she has extended her ways over the waters of the desert; she was hurried along by the lusts of her soul; she is given up to them, who will turn her back? none that seek her shall be weary; at the time of her humiliation they shall find her. [25] Withdraw thy foot from a rough way, and they throat from thirst: but she said I will strengthen myself: for she loved strangers, and went after them.

[26] As is the shame of a thief when he is caught, so shall the children of Israel be ashamed; they, and their kings, and their princes, and their priests, and their prophets. [27] They said to a stock, Thou art my father; and to a stone, Thou has begotten me: and they have turned their backs to me, and not their faces: yet in the time of their afflictions they will say, Arise, and save us. [28] And where are thy gods, which thou madest for thyself? will they arise and save in the time of thine affliction? for according to the number of thy cities were thy gods, O Juda; and according to the number of the streets of Jerusalem they sacrificed to Baal. [29] Wherefore do ye speak unto me? ye all have been ungodly, and ye all have transgressed against me, saith the Lord. [30] In vain have I smitten your children; ye have not received correction: a sword has devoured your prophets as a destroying lion; yet ye feared not.

[31] Hear ye the word of the Lord: thus saith the Lord, Have I been a wilderness or a dry land to Israel? wherefore has my people said, We will not be ruled over, and will not come to thee any more? [32] Will a bride forget her ornaments, or a virgin her girdle? but my people has forgotten me days without number. [33] What fair device wilt thou yet employ in thy ways, so as to seek love? it shall not be so; moreover thou has done wickedly in corrupting thy ways; [34] and in thine hands has been found the blood of innocent souls; I have not found them in holes, but on every oak. [35] Yet thou saidst, I am innocent: only let his wrath be turned away from me.

Behold, I will plead with thee, whereas thou sayest, I have not sinned. [36] For thou has been so exceedingly contemptuous as to repeat thy ways; but thou shalt be ashamed of Egypt, as thou wast ashamed of Assur. [37] For thou shalt go forth thence also with thine hands upon thine head; for the Lord has rejected thine hope, and thou shalt not prosper in it.

Chapter 3

[1] If a man put away his wife, and she depart from him, and become another man's, shall she return to him any more at all? shall not that woman be utterly defiled? ye thou hast gone a-whoring with many shepherds, and hast returned to me, saith the Lord. [2] Lift up thine eyes to look straight forward, and see where thou hast not been utterly defiled. Thou hast sat for them by the wayside as a deserted crow, and hast defiled the land with thy fornications and thy wickedness. [3] And thou didst retain many shepherds for a stumbling-block to thyself: thou hadst a whore's face, thou didst become shameless toward all.

[4] Hast thou not called me as it were a home, and the father and guide of thy virgin-time? [5] Will God's anger continue for ever, or be preserved to the end? Behold, thou hast spoken and done these bad things, and hadst power to do them.

[6] And the Lord said to me in the days of Josias the king, Hast thou seen what things the house of Israel has done to me? they have gone on every high mountain, and under every shady tree, and have committed fornication there. [7] And I said after she had committed all these acts of fornication, Turn again to me. Yet she returned not. And faithless Juda saw her faithlessness. [8] And I saw that (for all the sins of which she was convicted, wherein the house of Israel committed adultery, and I put her away, and gave into her hands a bill of divorcement,) yet faithless Juda feared not, but went and herself also committed fornication. [9] And her fornication was nothing accounted of; and she committed adultery with wood and stone. [10] And for all these things faithless Juda turned not to me with all her heart, but falsely.

[11] And the Lord said to me, Israel has justified himself more than faithless Juda. [12] Go and read these words toward the north, and thou shalt say, Return to me, O house of Israel, saith the Lord; and I will not set my face against you: for I am merciful, saith the Lord, and I will not be angry with you for ever. [13] Nevertheless, know thine iniquity, that thou hast sinned against the Lord thy God, and hast scattered thy ways to strangers under every shady tree, but thou didst not hearken to my voice, saith the Lord. [14] Turn, ye children that have revolted, saith the Lord; for I will rule over you: and I will take you one of a city, and two of a family, and I will bring you in to Sion: [15] and I will give you shepherds after my heart, and they shall certainly tend you with knowledge.

[16] And it shall come to pass that when ye are multiplied and increased upon the land, saith the Lord, in those days they shall say no more, The ark of the covenant of the Holy One of Israel: it shall not come to mind; it shall not be named; neither shall it be visited; nor shall this be done any more. [17] In those days and at that time they shall call Jerusalem the throne of the Lord; and all the nations shall be gathered to it: and they shall not walk any more after the imaginations of their evil heart.

[18] In those days the house of Juda, shall come together to the house of Israel, and they shall come, together, from the land of the north, and from all the countries, to the land, which I caused their fathers to inherit. [19] And I said, So be it, Lord, for thou saidst I will set thee among children, and will give thee a choice land, the inheritance of the Almighty God of the Gentiles: and I said, Ye shall call me Father; and ye shall not turn away from me. [20] But as a wife acts treacherously against her husband, so has the house of Israel dealt treacherously against me, saith the Lord.

[21] A voice from the lips was heard, even of weeping and supplication of the children of Israel: for they have dealt unrighteously in their ways, they have forgotten God their Holy One. [22] Turn, ye children that are given to turning, and I will heal your bruises.

Behold, we will be thy servants; for thou art the Lord our God. [23] Truly the hills and the strength of the mountains were a lying refuge: but by the Lord our God is the salvation of Israel. [24] But shame has consumed the labours of our fathers from our youth; their sheep and their calves, and their sons and their daughters. [25] We have lain down in our shame, and our disgrace has covered us: because we and our fathers have sinned before our God, from our youth until this day; and we have not hearkened to the voice of the Lord our God.

Chapter 4

[1] If Israel will return to me, saith the Lord, he shall return: and if he will remove his abominations out of his mouth, and fear before me, and swear, [2] The Lord lives, with truth, in judgment and righteousness, then shall nations bless by him, and by him they shall praise God in Jerusalem.

[3] For thus saith the Lord to the men of Juda, and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem, Break up fresh ground for yourselves, and sow not among thorns. [4] Circumcise yourselves to your God, and circumcise your hardness of heart, ye men of Juda, and inhabitants of Jerusalem: lest my wrath go forth as fire, and burn, and there be none to quench it, because of the evil of your devices.

[5] Declare ye in Juda, and let it be heard in Jerusalem: say ye, Sound the trumpet in the land; cry ye aloud: say ye, Gather yourselves together, and let us enter into the fortified cities. [6] Gather up your wares and flee to Sion: hasten, stay not: for I will bring evils from the north, an great destruction. [7] The lion is gone up from his lair, he has roused himself to the destruction of the nations, and has gone forth out of his place, to make the land desolate; and the cities shall be destroyed, so as to be without inhabitant. [8] For these things gird yourselves with sackclothes, and lament, and howl: for the anger of the Lord is not turned away from you. [9] And it shall come to pass in that day, saith the Lord, that the heart of the king shall perish, and the heart of the princes; and the priests shall be amazed, and the prophets shall wonder.

[10] And I said, O sovereign Lord, verily thou hast deceived this people and Jerusalem, saying, There shall be peace; whereas behold, the sword has reached even to their soul.

[11] At that time they shall say to this people and to Jerusalem, There is a spirit of error in the wilderness: the way of the daughter of my people is not to purity, nor to holiness. [12] But a spirit of full vengeance shall come upon me; and now I declare my judgments against them. [13] Behold, he shall come up as a cloud, and his chariots as a tempest: his horses are swifter than eagles. Woe unto us! for we are in misery.

[14] Cleanse thine heart from wickedness, O Jerusalem, that thou mayest be saved: how long will thy grievous thoughts be within thee? [15] For a voice of one publishing from Dan shall come, and trouble out of mount Ephraim shall be heard of. [16] Remind ye the nations; behold, they are come: proclaim it in Jerusalem, that bands are approaching from a land afar off, and have uttered their voice against the cities of Juda. [17] As keepers of a field, they have surrounded her; because thou, saith the Lord, has neglected me. [18] Thy ways and thy devices have brought these things upon thee; this is thy wickedness, for it is bitter, for it has reached to thy heart.

[19] I am pained in my bowels, my bowels, and the sensitive powers of my heart; my soul is in great commotion, my heart is torn: I will not be silent, for my soul has heard the sound of a trumpet, the cry of war, and of distress: it calls on destruction; [20] for all the land is distressed: suddenly my tabernacle is distressed, my curtains have been rent asunder. [21] How long shall I see fugitives, and hear the sound of the trumpet?

[22] For the princes of my people have not known me, they are foolish and unwise children: they are wise to do evil, but how to do good they have not known.

[23] I looked upon the earth, and, behold, it was not; and to the sky, an there was no light in it. [24] I beheld the mountains, and they trembled, and I saw all the hills in commotion. [25] I looked, and behold, there was no man, and all the birds of the sky were scared. [26] I saw, and, behold, Carmel was desert, and all the cities were burnt with fire at the presence of the Lord, and at the presence of his fierce anger they were utterly destroyed.

[27] Thus saith the Lord, The whole land shall be desolate; but I will not make a full end. [28] For these things let the earth mourn, and let the sky be dark above: for I have spoken, and I will not repent; I have purposed, and I will not turn back from it. [29] The whole land has recoiled from the noise of the horseman and the bent bow; they have gone into the caves, and have hidden themselves in the groves, and have gone up upon the rocks: every city was abandoned, no man dwelt in them. [30] And what wilt thou do? Though thou clothe thyself with scarlet, and adorn thyself with golden ornaments; though thou adorn thine eyes with stibium, thy beauty will be in vain: thy lovers have rejected thee, they seek thy life.

[31] For I have heard thy groaning as the voice of a woman in travail, as of her that brings forth her first child; the voice of the daughter of Zion shall fail through weakness, and she shall lose the strength of her hands, saying, Woe is me! for my soul faints because of the slain.

Chapter 5

[1] Run ye about in the streets of Jerusalem, and see, and know, and seek in her broad places, if ye can find one, if there is any one that does judgment, and seeks faithfulness; and I will pardon them, saith the Lord. [2] The Lord lives, they say; do they not therefore swear falsely? [3] O Lord, thine eyes are upon faithfulness: thou hast scourged them, but they have not grieved; thou hast consumed them; but they would not receive correction: they have made their faces harder than a rock; and they would not return. [4] Then I said, It may be they are poor; for they are weak, for they know not the way of the Lord, or the judgment of God. [5] I will go to the rich men, and will speak to them; for they have known the way of the Lord, and the judgment of God: but, behold, with one consent they have broken the yoke, they have burst the bonds.

[6] Therefore has a lion out of the forest smitten them, and a wolf has destroyed them even to their houses, and a leopard has watched against their cities: all that go forth from them shall be hunted: for they have multiplied their ungodliness, they have strengthened themselves in their revoltings. [7] In what way shall I forgive thee for these things? Thy sons have forsaken me, and sworn by them that are no gods: and I fed them to the full, and they committed adultery, and lodged in harlots' houses. [8] They became as wanton horses: they neighed each one after his neighbour's wife. [9] Shall I not visit for these things? saith the Lord: and shall not my soul be avenged on such a nation as this.

[10] Go up upon her battlements, and break them down; but make not a full end: leave her buttresses: for they are the Lord's. [11] For the house of Israel have indeed dealt treacherously against me, saith the Lord: the house of Juda also [12] have lied to their Lord, and they have said, These things are not so; no evils shall come upon us; and we shall not see sword or famine. [13] Our prophets became wind, and the word of the Lord was not in them.

[14] Therefore thus saith the Lord Almighty, Because ye have spoken this word, behold, I have made my words in thy mouth fire, and this people wood, and it shall devour them. [15] Behold, I will bring upon you a nation from far, O house of Israel, saith the Lord; a nation the sound of whose language one shall not understand. [16] They are all mighty men: [17] and they shall devour you harvest, and your bread; and shall devour your sons, and your daughters; and they shall devour your sheep, and your calves, and devour your vineyards, and your fig-plantations, and your olive yards: and they shall utterly destroy your strong cities, wherein ye trusted, with the sword. [18] And it shall come to pass in those days, saith the Lord thy God, that I will not utterly destroy you.

[19] And it shall come to pass, when ye shall say, Wherefore has the Lord our God done all these things to us? that thou shalt say to them, Because ye served strange gods in your land, so shall ye serve strangers in a land that is not yours.

[20] Proclaim these things to the house of Jacob, and let them be heard in the house of Juda. [21] Hear ye now these things, O foolish and senseless people; who have eyes, and see not; and have ears, and hear not: [22] will ye not be afraid of me? saith the Lord; and will ye not fear before me, who have set the sand for a bound to the sea, as a perpetual ordinance, and it shall not pass it: yea, it shall rage, but not prevail; and its waves shall roar, but not pass over it.

[23] But this people has a disobedient and rebellious heart; and they have turned aside and gone back: [24] and they have not said in their heart, Let us fear now the Lord our God, who gives us the early and latter rain, according to the season of the fulfillment of the ordinance of harvest, and has preserved it for us. [25] Your transgressions have turned away these things, and your sins have removed good things from you. [26] For among my people were found ungodly men; and they have set snares to destroy men, and have caught them.

[27] As a snare which has been set is full of birds, so are their houses full of deceit: therefore have they grown great, and become rich: [28] and they have transgressed the rule of judgment; they have not judged the cause of the orphan, nor have they judged the cause of the widow. [29] Shall I not visit for these things? saith the Lord: and shall not my soul be avenged on such a nation as this?

[30] Shocking and horrible deeds have been done on the land; [31] the prophets utter unrighteous prophecies, and the priests have clapped their hands: and my people has loved to have it thus: and what will ye do for the future.

Chapter 6

[1] Strengthen yourselves, ye children of Benjamin, to flee out of the midst of Jerusalem, and sound an alarm with the trumpet in Thecue, and set up a signal over Baethacharma: for evil threatens from the north, and a great destruction is coming. [2] And thy pride, O daughter of Sion, shall be taken away. [3] The shepherds and their flocks shall come to her; and they shall pitch their tents against her round about, and shall feed their flocks each with his hand.

[4] Prepare yourselves for war against her; rise up, and let us go up against her at noon. Woe to us! for the day has gone down, for the shadows of the day fail. [5] Rise, and let us go up against her by night, and destroy her foundations.

[6] For thus saith the Lord, Hew down her trees, array a numerous force against Jerusalem. O false city; there is all oppression in her. [7] As a cistern cools water, so her wickedness cools her, ungodliness and misery shall be heard in her, as continually before her.

[8] Thou shalt be chastened, O Jerusalem, with pain and the scourge, lest my soul depart from thee; lest I make thee a desert land, which shall not be inhabited.

[9] For thus saith the Lord, Glean, glean thoroughly as a vine the remnant of Israel: turn back your hands as a grape-gatherer to his basket. [10] To whom shall I speak, and testify, that he may hearken? behold, thine ears are uncircumcised, and they shall not be able to hear: behold, the word of the Lord is become to them a reproach, they will not at all desire it.

[11] And I allowed my wrath to come to full, yet I kept it in, and did not utterly destroy them: I will pour it out on the children without, and on the assembly of young men together: for man and woman shall be taken together, the old man with him that is full of days. [12] And their houses shall be turned to others, with their fields and their wives together: for I will stretch out my hand upon the inhabitants of this land, saith the Lord.

[13] For from the least of them even to the greatest they have all committed iniquity; from the priest even to the false prophet they have all wrought falsely. [14] And they healed the breach of my people imperfectly, making light of it, and saying, Peace, peace, and where is peace? [15] They were ashamed because they failed; yet they were not ashamed as those who are truly ashamed, and they knew not their own disgrace: therefore shall they utterly fall when they do fall, and in the time of visitation shall they perish, said the Lord.

[16] Thus saith the Lord, Stand ye in the ways, and see, and ask for the old paths of the Lord; and see what is the good way, and walk in it, and ye shall find purification for your souls. But they said, We will not walk in them. [17] I have set watchmen over you, saying, Hear ye the sound of the trumpet. But they said, We will not hear it.

[18] Therefore have the nations heard, and they that feed their flocks. [19]

Hear, O earth: behold, I will bring evils upon this people, even the fruit of their rebellions; for they have not heeded my words, and they have rejected my law. [20] Wherefore do ye bring me frankincense from Saba, and cinnamon from a land afar off? your whole-burnt-offerings are not acceptable, and your sacrifices have not been pleasant to me. [21] Therefore thus saith the Lord, Behold, I will bring weakness upon this people, and the fathers and sons shall be weak together; the neighbour and his friend shall perish.

[22] Thus saith the Lord, Behold, a people comes from the north, and nations shall be stirred up from the end of the earth. [23] They shall lay hold on bow and spear; the people is fierce, and will have no mercy; their voice is as the roaring sea; they shall array themselves for war against thee as fire on horses and chariots, O daughter of Sion.

[24] We have heard the report of them: our hands are weakened: anguish has seized us, the pangs as of a woman in travail. [25] Go not forth into the field, and walk not in the ways; for the sword of the enemy lingers round about. [26] O daughter of my people, gird thyself with sackcloth: sprinkle thyself with ashes; make for thyself pitiable lamentation, as the mourning for a beloved son: for misery will come suddenly upon you.

[27] I have caused thee to be tried among tried nations, and thou shalt know me when I have tried their way. [28] They are all disobedient, walking perversely: they are brass and iron; they are all corrupted. [29] The bellows have failed from the fire, the lead has failed: the silversmith works at his trade in vain; their wickedness is not consumed. [30] Call ye them reprobate silver, because the Lord has rejected them.

Chapter 7

[1] 2 Hear ye the word of the Lord, all Judea. [3] Thus saith the Lord God of Israel, Correct your ways and your devices, and I will cause you to dwell in this place. [4] Trust not in yourselves with lying words, for they shall not profit you at all, saying, It is the temple of the Lord, the temple of the Lord.

[5] For if ye thoroughly correct your ways and your practices, and do indeed execute judgment between a man and his neighbour; [6] and oppress not the stranger, and the orphan, and the widow, and shed not innocent blood in this place, and go not after strange gods to your hurt: [7] then will I cause you to dwell in this place, in the land which I gave to your fathers of old and for ever.

[8] But whereas ye have trusted in lying words, whereby ye shall not be profited; [9] and ye murder, and commit adultery, and steal, and swear falsely, and burn incense to Baal, and are gone after strange gods whom ye know not, [10] so that it is evil with you; yet have ye come, and stood before me in the house, whereon my name is called, and ye have said, We have refrained from doing all these abominations. [11] Is my house, whereon my name is called, a den of robbers in your eyes? And, behold, I have seen it, saith the Lord. [12] For go ye to my place which is in Selo, where I caused my name to dwell before, and see what I did to it because of the wickedness of my people Israel.

[13] And now, because ye have done all these deeds, and I spoke to you, but ye hearkened not to me; and I called you, but ye answered not; [14] therefore I also will do to the house whereon my name is called, wherein ye trust, and to the place which I gave to you and to your fathers, as I did to Selo. [15] And I will cast you out of my sight, as I cast away your brethren, all the seed of Ephraim.

[16] Therefore pray not thou for this people, and intercede not for them to be pitied, yea, pray not, and approach me not for them: for I will not hearken unto thee. [17] Seest thou not what they do in the cities of Juda, and in the streets of Jerusalem? [18] Their children gather wood, and their fathers kindle a fire, and their women knead dough, to make cakes to the host of heaven; and they have poured out drink-offerings to strange gods, that they might provoke me to anger. [19] Do they provoke me to anger? saith the Lord: do they not provoke themselves, that their faces may be ashamed?

[20] Therefore thus saith the Lord; Behold, my anger and wrath shall be poured out upon this place, and upon the men, and upon the cattle, and upon every tree of their field, and upon the fruits of the land; and it shall burn, and not be quenched.

[21] Thus saith the Lord, Gather your whole-burnt-offerings with your meat-offerings, and eat flesh. [22] For I spoke not to your fathers, and commanded them not in the day wherein I brought them up out of the land of Egypt, concerning whole-burnt-offerings and sacrifice: [23] but I commanded them this thing, saying, Hear ye my voice, and I will be to you a God, and ye shall be to me a people: and walk ye in all my ways which I shall command you, that it may be well with you. [24] But they hearkened not to me, and their ear gave no heed, but they walked in the imaginations of their evil heart, and went backward, and not forward; [25] from the day that their fathers went forth out of the land of Egypt, even until this day. And I sent to you all my servants, the prophets, by day and early in the morning: yea, I sent them, [26] but they hearkened not to me, and their ear gave no heed; and they made their neck harder than their fathers.

[27] Therefore thou shalt speak this word to them; [28] This is the nation which has not hearkened to the voice of the Lord, nor received correction: truth has failed from their mouth.

[29] Cut off thine hair, and cast it away, and take up a lamentation on thy lips; for the Lord has reprobated and rejected the generation that does these things. [30] For the children of Juda have wrought evil before me, saith the Lord; they have set their abominations in the house on which my name is called, to defile it. [31] And they have built the altar of Tapheth, which is in the valley of the son of Ennom, to burn their sons and their daughters with fire; which I did not command them to do, neither did I design it in my heart.

[32] Therefore, behold, the days come, saith the Lord, when they shall no more say, The altar of Tapheth, and the valley of the son of Ennom, but, The valley of the slain; and they shall bury in Tapheth, for want of room. [33] And the dead bodies of this people shall be for food to the birds of the sky, and to the wild beasts of the earth; and there shall be none to drive them away. [34] And I will destroy out of the cities of Juda, and the streets of Jerusalem, the voice of them that make merry, and the voice of them that rejoice, the voice of the bridegroom, and the voice of the bride; for the whole land shall become a desolation.

[1] At that time, saith the Lord, they shall bring out the bones of the kings of Juda, and the bones of his princes, and the bones of the priests, and the bones of the prophets, and the bones of the inhabitants of Jerusalem, out of their graves; [2] and they shall spread them out to the sun, and the moon, and to all the stars, and to all the host of heaven, which they have loved, and which they have served, and after which they have walked, and to which they have held, and which they have worshipped; they shall not be mourned for, neither shall they be buried; but they shall be for an example on the face of the earth, [3] because they chose death rather than life, even to all the remnant that are left of that family, in every place whither I shall drive them out.

[4] For thus saith the Lord, Shall not he that falls arise? or he that turns away, shall he not turn back again? [5] Wherefore has this my people turned away with a shameless revolting, and strengthened themselves in their willfulness, and refused to return? [6] Hearken, I pray you, and hear: will they not speak thus, There is no man that repents of his wickedness, saying, What have I done? the runner has failed from his course, as a tired horse in his neighing. [7] Yea, the stork in the heaven knows her time, also the turtle-dove and wild swallow; the sparrows observe the times of their coming in; but this my people knows not the judgments of the Lord.

[8] How will ye say, We are wise, and the law of the Lord is with us? In vain have the scribes used a false pen. [9] The wise men are ashamed, and alarmed, and taken; because they have rejected the word of the Lord; what wisdom is there in them? [10] Therefore will I give their wives to others, and their fields to new inheritors; and they shall gather their fruits, saith the Lord. [11] 12 [13] There are no grapes on the vines, and there are no figs on the fig-trees, and the leaves have fallen off.

[14] Why do we sit still? assemble yourselves, and let us enter into the strong cities, and let us be cast out there: for God has cast us out, and made us drink water of gall, because we have sinned before him. [15] We assembled for peace, but there was no prosperity; for a time of healing, but behold anxiety.

[16] We shall hear the neighing of his swift horses out of Dan: the whole land quaked at the sound of the neighing of his horses; and he shall come, and devour the land and the fullness of it; the city, and them that dwell in it. [17] For, behold, I send forth against you deadly serpents, which cannot be charmed, and they shall bite you [18] mortally with the pain of your distressed heart.

[19] Behold, there is a sound of the cry of the daughter of my people from a land afar off: Is not the Lord in Sion? is there not a king there? because they have provoked me with their graven images, and with strange vanities. [20] The summer is gone, the harvest is past, and we are not saved.

[21] For the breach of the daughter of my people I have been saddened: in my perplexity pangs have seized upon me as of a woman in travail. [22] And is there no balm in Galaad, or is there no physician there? why has not the healing of the daughter of my people taken place?

Chapter 9

[1] Who will give water to my head, and a fountain of tears to my eyes? then would I weep for this my people day and night, even for the slain of the daughter of my people.

[2] Who would give me a most distant lodge in the wilderness, that I might leave my people, and depart from them? for they all commit adultery, an assembly of treacherous men. [3] And they have bent their tongue like a bow: falsehood and not faithfulness has prevailed upon the earth; for they have gone on from evil to evil, and have not known me, saith the Lord. [4] Beware ye each of his neighbour, and trust ye not in your brethren: for every one will surely supplant, and every friend will walk craftily. [5] Every one will mock his friend; they will not speak truth: their tongue has learned to speak falsehoods; they have committed iniquity, they ceased not, so as to return. [6] There is usury upon usury, and deceit upon deceit: they would not know me, saith the Lord.

[7] Therefore thus saith the Lord, Behold, I will try them with fire, and prove them; for I will do thus because of the wickedness of the daughter of my people. [8] Their tongue is a wounding arrow; the words of their mouth are deceitful: one speaks peaceably to his neighbour, but in himself retains enmity. [9] Shall I not visit for these things? saith the Lord: and shall not my soul be avenged on such a people as this? [10] Take up a lamentation for the mountains, and a mournful dirge for the paths of the wilderness, for they are desolate for want of men; they heard not the sound of life from the birds of the sky, nor the cattle: they were amazed, they are gone. [11] And I will remove the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and make it a dwelling-place of dragons; and I will utterly waste the cities of Juda, so that they shall not be inhabited.

[12] Who is the wise man, that he may understand this? and he that has the word of the mouth of the Lord addressed to him, let him tell you wherefore the land has been destroyed, has been ravaged by fire like a desert, so that no one passes through it. [13] And the Lord said to me, Because they have forsaken my law, which I set before them, and have not hearkened to my voice; [14] but went after the lusts of their evil heart, and after the idols which their fathers taught them to worship: [15] therefore thus saith the Lord God of Israel, Behold, I will feed them with trouble and will cause them to drink water of gall: [16] and I will scatter them among the nations, to them whom neither they nor their fathers knew; and I will send a sword upon them, until I have consumed them with it.

[17] Thus saith the Lord, Call ye the mourning women, and let them come; and send to the wise women, and let them utter their voice; [18] and let them take up a lamentation for you, and let your eyes pour down tears, and your eyelids drop water. [19] For a voice of lamentation has been heard in Sion, How are we become wretched! we are greatly ashamed, for we have forsaken the land, and have abandoned our tabernacles! [20] Hear now, ye women, the word of God, and let your ears receive the words of his mouth, and teach your daughters lamentation, and every woman her neighbour a dirge. [21] For death has come up through your windows, it has entered into our land, to destroy the infants without, and the young men from the streets. [22] And the carcases of the men shall be for an example on the face of the field of your land, like grass after the mower, and there shall be none to gather them.

[23] Thus saith the Lord, Let not the wise man boast in his wisdom, and let not the strong man boast in his strength, and let not the rich man boast in his wealth; [24] but let him that boasts boast in this, the understanding and knowing that I am the Lord that exercise mercy, and judgment, and righteousness, upon the earth; for in these things is my pleasure, saith the Lord.

[25] Behold, the days come, saith the Lord, when I will visit upon all the circumcised their uncircumcision; [26] on Egypt, and on Idumea, and on Edom, and on the children of Ammon, and on the children of Moab, and on every one that shaves his face round about, even them that dwell in the wilderness; for all the Gentiles are uncircumcised in flesh, and all the house of Israel are uncircumcised in their hearts.

Chapter 10

[1] Hear ye the word of the Lord, which he has spoken to you, O house of Israel.

[2] Thus saith the Lord, Learn ye not the ways of the heathen, and be not alarmed at the signs of the sky; for they are alarmed at them, falling on their faces. [3] For the customs of the nations are vain; it is a tree cut out of the forest, the work of the carpenter, or a molten image. [4] They are beautified with silver and gold, they fix them with hammers and nails; [5] they will set them up that they may not move; it is wrought silver, they will not walk, it is forged silver They must certainly be borne, for they cannot ride of themselves. Fear them not; for they cannot do any evil, and there is no good in them. [6] 7 [8] 9 brought from Tharsis, gold will come from Mophaz, and the work of goldsmiths: they are all the works of craftsmen, they will clothe themselves with blue and scarlet.

[10] 11 Thus shall ye say to them, Let the gods which have not made heaven and earth perish from off the earth, and from under this sky. [12] It is the Lord that made the earth by his strength, who set up the world by his wisdom, and by his understanding stretched out the sky, [13] and set abundance of waters in the sky, and brought up clouds from the ends of the earth; he made lightnings for the rain, and brought forth light out of his treasures. [14] Every man is deprived of knowledge, every goldsmith is confounded because of his graven images; for he has cast false gods, there is no breath in them. [15] They are vain works, wrought in mockery; in the time of their visitation they shall perish. [16] Such is not the portion of Jacob; for he that formed all things, he is his inheritance; the Lord is his name.

[17] He has gathered thy substance from without the lodged in choice vessels. [18] For thus saith the Lord, Behold, I will overthrow the inhabitants of this land with affliction, that thy plague may be discovered.

[19] Alas for thy ruin! thy plague is grievous: and I said, Surely this is thy wound, and it has overtaken thee. [20] Thy tabernacle is in a ruinous state, it has perished; and all thy curtains have been torn asunder: my children and my cattle are no more: there is no more any place for my tabernacle, nor place for my curtains. [21] For the shepherds have become foolish, and have not sought the Lord; therefore the whole pasture has failed, and the sheep have been scattered. [22] Behold, there comes a sound of a noise, and a great earthquake from the land of the north, to make the cities of Juda a desolation, and a resting-place for ostriches.

[23] I know, O Lord, that man's way is not his own; neither shall a man go, and direct his going. [24] Chasten us, O Lord, but with judgment; and not in wrath, lest thou make us few. [25] Pour out thy wrath upon the nations that have not known thee, and upon the families that have not called upon thy name: for they have devoured Jacob, and consumed him, and have made his pasture desolate.

[1] The word that came to Jeremiah from the Lord, saying,

[2] Hear ye the words of this covenant, and thou shalt speak to the men of Juda, and to the dwellers in Jerusalem; [3] and thou shalt say to them, Thus saith the Lord God of Israel, Cursed is the man, who shall not hearken to the words of this covenant, [4] which I commanded your fathers, in the day wherein I brought them up out of the land of Egypt, out of the iron furnace, saying, Hearken to my voice, and do all things that I shall command you; so shall ye be to me a people, and I will be to you a God; [5] that I may confirm mine oath, which I swore to your fathers, to give them a land flowing with milk and honey, as it is this day. Then I answered and said, So be it, O Lord. [6] And the Lord said to me, Read these words in the cities of Juda, and in the streets of Jerusalem, saying, Hear ye the words of this covenant, and do them. [7] 8 But they did them not.

[9] And the Lord said to me, A conspiracy is found among the men of Juda, and among the dwellers in Jerusalem. [10] They are turned aside to the iniquities of their fathers that were of old, who would not hearken to my words: and, behold, they go after strange gods, to serve them: and the house of Israel and the house of Juda have broken my covenant, which I made with their fathers.

[11] Therefore thus saith the Lord, Behold, I bring evils upon this people, out of which they shall not be able to come forth; and they shall presently cry to me, but I will not hearken to them. [12] And the cities of Juda and the dwellers in Jerusalem shall go, and cry to the gods to whom they burn incense; which shall not deliver them in the time of their troubles. [13] For according to the number of thy cities were thy gods, O Juda; and according to the number of the streets of Jerusalem have ye set up altars to burn incense to Baal.

[14] And thou, pray not for this people, and intercede not for them in supplication and prayer: for I will not hear in the day in which they call upon me, in the day of their affliction. [15] Why has my beloved wrought abomination in my house? will prayers and holy offerings take away thy wickedness from thee, or shalt thou escape by these things? [16] The Lord called thy name a fair olive tree, of a goodly shade in appearance, at the noise of its being lopped, fire was kindled against it; great is the affliction coming upon thee: her branches are become good for nothing. [17] And the Lord that planted thee has pronounced evils against thee, because of the iniquity of the house of Israel and the house of Juda, whatsoever they have done against themselves to provoke me to anger by burning incense to Baal.

[18] O Lord, teach me, and I shall know: then I saw their practices. [19] But I as an innocent lamb led to the slaughter, knew not: against me they devised an evil device, saying, Come and let us put wood into his bread, and let us utterly destroy him from off the land of the living, and let his name not be remembered any more. [20] O Lord, that judgest righteously, trying the reins and hearts, let me see thy vengeance taken upon them, for to thee I have declared my cause.

[21] Therefore thus saith the Lord concerning the men of Anathoth, that seek my life, that say, Thou shalt not prophesy at all in the name of the Lord, but if thou dost, thou shalt die by our hands: [22] behold, I will visit them: their young men shall die by the sword; and their sons and their daughters shall die of famine: [23] and there shall be no remnant left of them; for I will bring evil upon the dwellers in Anathoth, in the year of their visitation.

Chapter 12

[1] Righteous art thou, O Lord, that I may make my defence to thee, yea, I will speak to thee of judgments. Why is it that the way of ungodly men prospers? that all hat deal very treacherously are flourishing? [2] Thou hast planted them, and they have taken root; they have begotten children, and become fruitful; thou art near to their mouth, and far from their reins. [3] But thou, Lord, knowest me; thou hast proved my heart before thee; purify them for the day of their slaughter. [4] How long shall the land mourn, and the grass of the field wither, for the wickedness of them, that dwell in it? the beasts and birds are utterly destroyed; because the people said, God shall not see our ways.

[5] Thy feet run, and they cause thee to faint; how wilt thou prepare to ride upon horses? and thou hast been confident in the land of thy peace? how wilt thou do in the roaring of Jordan? [6] For even thy brethren and the house of thy father, even these have dealt treacherously with thee; and they have cried out, they are gathered together in pursuit of thee; trust not thou in them, though they shall speak fair words to thee.

[7] I have forsaken mine house, I have left mine heritage; I have given my beloved one into the hands of her enemies. [8] My inheritance has become to me as a lion in a forest; she has uttered her voice against me; therefore have I hated her. [9] Is not my inheritance to me a hyaena's cave, or a cave round about her? Go ye, gather together all the wild beasts of the field, and let them come to devour her.

[10] Many shepherds have destroyed my vineyard, they have defiled my portion, they have made my desirable portion a trackless wilderness; [11] it is made a complete ruin: for my sake the whole land has been utterly ruined, because there is none that lays the matter to heart. [12] The ravagers are come to every passage in the wilderness: for the sword of the Lord will devour from one end of the land to the other: no flesh has any peace. [13] Sow wheat, and reap thorns; their portions shall not profit them: be ashamed of your boasting, because of reproach before the Lord.

[14] For thus saith the Lord, concerning all the evil neighbours that touch mine inheritance, which I have divided to my people Israel; Behold, I will draw them away from their land, and I will cast out Juda from the midst of them.

[15] And it shall come to pass, after I have cast them out, that I will return, and have mercy upon them, and will cause them to dwell every one in his inheritance, and every one in his land. [16] And it shall be, if they will indeed learn the way of my people, to swear by my name, saying, The Lord lives; as they taught my people to swear by Baal; then shall that nation be built in the midst of my people. [17] But if they will not return, then will I cut off that nation with utter ruin and destruction.

[1] Thus saith the Lord, Go and procure for thyself a linen girdle, and put it about thy loins, and let it not be put in water. [2] So I procured the girdle according to the word of the Lord, and put it about my loins. [3] And the word of the Lord came to me, saying, [4] Take the girdle that is upon thy loins, and arise, and go to the Euphrates, and hide it there in a hole of the rock. [5] So I went, and hid it by the Euphrates, as the Lord commanded me. [6] And it came to pass after many days, that the Lord said to me, Arise, go to the Euphrates, and take thence the girdle, which I commanded thee to hide there. [7] So I went to the river Euphrates, and dug, and took the girdle out of the place where I had buried it: and, behold, it was rotten, utterly good for nothing.

[8] And the word of the Lord came to me, saying, Thus saith the Lord, [9] Thus will I mar the pride of Juda, and the pride of Jerusalem; [10] even this great pride of the men that will not hearken to my words, and have gone after strange gods, to serve them, and to worship them: and they shall be as this girdle, which can be used for nothing. [11] For as a girdle cleaves about the loins of a man, so have I caused to cleave to myself the house of Israel, and the whole house of Juda; that they might be to me a famous people, and a praise, and a glory: but they did not hearken to me.

[12] And thou shalt say to this people, Every bottle shall be filled with wine: and it shall come to pass, if they shall say to thee, Shall we not certainly know that every bottle shall be filled with wine? that thou shalt say to them, [13] Thus saith the Lord, Behold, I will fill the inhabitants of this land, and their kings the sons of David that sit upon their throne, and the priests, and the prophets, and Juda and all the dwellers in Jerusalem, with strong drink. [14] And I will scatter them a man and his brother, and their fathers and their sons together: I will not have compassion, saith the Lord, and I will not spare, neither will I pity to save them from destruction.

[15] Hear ye, and give ear, and be not proud: for the Lord has spoken. [16] Give glory to the Lord your God, before he cause darkness, and before your feet stumble on the dark mountains, and ye shall wait for light, and behold the shadow of death, and they shall be brought into darkness. [17] But if ye will not hearken, your soul shall weep in secret because of pride, and your eyes shall pour down tears, because the Lord's flock is sorely bruised.

[18] Say ye to the king and the princes, Humble yourselves, and sit down; for your crown of glory is removed from your head. [19] The cities toward the south were shut, and there was none to open them: Juda is removed into captivity, they have suffered a complete removal. [20] Lift up thine eyes, O Jerusalem, and behold them that come from the north; where is the flock that was given thee, the sheep of thy glory? [21] What wilt thou say when they shall visit thee, for thou didst teach them lessons for rule against thyself; shall not pangs seize thee as a woman in travail? [22] And if thou shouldest say in thine heart, Wherefore have these things happened to me? Because of the abundance of thine iniquity have thy skirts been discovered, that thine heels might be exposed.

[23] If the Ethiopian shall change his skin, or the leopardess her spots, then shall ye be able to do good, having learnt evil. [24] So I scattered them as sticks carried by the wind into the wilderness. [25] Thus is thy lot, and the reward of your disobedience to me, saith the Lord; as thou didst forget me, and trust in lies, [26] I also will expose thy skirts upon thy face, and thy shame shall be seen; [27] thine adultery also, and thy neighing, and the looseness of thy fornication: on the hills and in the fields I have seen thine abominations. Woe to thee, O Jerusalem, for thou hast not been purified so as to follow me; how long yet shall it be?

Chapter 14

[1] AND THE WORD OF THE LORD CAME TO JEREMIAS CONCERNING THE DROUGHT.

[2] Judea has mourned, and her gates are emptied, and are darkened upon the earth; and the cry of Jerusalem is gone up. [3] And her nobles have sent their little ones to the water: they came to the wells, and found no water: and brought back their vessels empty. [4] And the labours of the land failed, because there was no rain: the husbandmen were ashamed, they covered their heads. [5] And hinds calved in the field, and forsook it, because there was no grass. [6] The wild asses stood by the forests, and snuffed up the wind; their eyes failed, because there was no grass.

[7] Our sins have risen up against us: O Lord, do thou for us for thine own sake; for our sins are many before thee; for we have sinned against thee. [8] O Lord, thou art the hope of Israel, and deliverest us in time of troubles; why art thou become as a sojourner upon the land, or as one born in the land, yet turning aside for a resting-place? [9] Wilt thou be as a man asleep, or as a strong man that cannot save? yet thou art among us, O Lord, and thy name is called upon us; forget us not.

[10] Thus saith the Lord to this people, They have loved to wander, and they have not spared, therefore God has not prospered them; now will he remember their iniquity. [11] And the Lord said to me, Pray not for this people for their good: [12] for though they fast, I will not hear their supplication; and though they offer whole-burnt-offerings and sacrifices, I will take no pleasure in them: for I will consume them with sword, and with famine, and with pestilence.

[13] And I said, O ever living Lord! behold, their prophets prophesy, and say, Ye shall not see a sword, nor shall famine be among you; for I will give truth and peace on the land, and in this place.

[14] Then the Lord said to me, The prophets prophesy lies in my name: I sent them not, and I commanded them not, and I spoke not to them: for they prophesy to you false visions, and divinations, and auguries, and devices of their own heart. [15] Therefore thus saith the Lord concerning the prophets that prophesy lies in my name, and I sent them not, who say, Sword and famine shall not be upon this land; they shall die by a grievous death, and the prophets shall be consumed by famine. [16] And the people to whom they prophesy, they also shall be cast out in the streets of Jerusalem, because of the sword and famine; and there shall be none to bury them: their wives also, and their sons, and their daughters shall die thus; and I will pour out their wickedness upon them.

[17] And thou shalt speak this word to them; Let your eyes shed tears day and night, and let them not cease: for the daughter of my people has been sorely bruised, and her plague is very grievous. [18] If I go forth into the plain, then behold the slain by the sword! and if I enter into the city, then behold the distress of famine! for priest and prophet have gone to a land which they knew not.

[19] Hast thou utterly rejected Juda? and has thy soul departed from Sion? wherefore has thou smitten us, and there is no healing for us? we waited for peace, but there was no prosperity; for a time of healing, and behold trouble! [20] We know, O Lord, our sins, and the iniquities of our fathers: for we have sinned before thee. [21] Refrain for thy name's sake, destroy not the throne of thy glory: remember, break not thy covenant with us. [22] Is there any one among the idols of the Gentiles that can give rain? and will the sky yield his fulness at their bidding? Art not thou he? we will even wait on thee, O Lord: for thou hast made all these things.

Chapter 15

[1] And the Lord said to me, Though Moses and Samuel stood before my face, my soul could not be toward them: dismiss this people, and let them go forth. [2] And it shall be, if they say to thee, Whither shall we go forth? then thou shalt say to them, Thus saith the Lord; As many as are for death, to death; and as many as are for famine, to famine; and as many as are for the sword, to the sword; and as many as are for captivity, to captivity. [3] And I will punish them with four kinds of death, saith the Lord, the sword to slay, and the dogs to tear, and the wild beasts of the earth, and the birds of the sky to devour and destroy. [4] And I will deliver them up for distress to all the kingdoms of the earth, because of Manasses son of Ezekias king of Juda, for all that he did in Jerusalem.

[5] Who will spare thee, O Jerusalem? and who will fear for thee? or who will turn back to ask for thy welfare? [6] Thou hast turned away from me, saith the Lord, thou wilt go back: therefore I will stretch out my hand, and will destroy thee, and will no more spare them. [7] And I will completely scatter them; in the gates of my people they are bereaved of children: they have destroyed my people because of their iniquities.

[8] Their widows have been multiplied more than the sand of the sea: I have brought young men against the mother, even distress at noon-day: I have suddenly cast upon her trembling and anxiety. [9] She that bore seven is spent; her soul has fainted under trouble; her sun is gone down while it is yet noon; she is ashamed and disgraced: I will give the remnant of them to the sword before their enemies.

[10] Woe is me, my mother! thou hast born me as some man of strife, and at variance with the whole earth; I have not helped others, nor has any one helped me; my strength has failed among them that curse me. [11] Be it so, Lord, in their prosperity; surely I stood before thee in the time of their calamities, and in the time of their affliction, for their good against the enemy. [12] Will iron be known? whereas thy strength is a brazen covering. [13] Yea, I will give thy treasures for a spoil as a recompence, because of all thy sins and that in all thy borders. [14] And I will enslave thee to thine enemies round about, in a land which thou hast not known; for a fire has been kindled out of my wrath; it shall burn upon you.

[15] O Lord, remember me, and visit me, and vindicate me before them that persecute me; do not bear long with them; know how I have met with reproach for thy sake, from those who set at nought thy words; [16] consume them; and thy word shall be to me for the joy and gladness of my heart: for thy name has been called upon me, O Lord Almighty. [17] I have not sat in the assembly of them as they mocked, but I feared because of thy power: I sat alone, for I was filled with bitterness.

[18] Why do they that grieve me prevail against me? my wound is severe; whence shall I be healed? it is indeed become to me as deceitful water, that has no faithfulness.

[19] Therefore thus saith the Lord, If thou wilt return, then will I restore thee, and thou shalt stand before my face: and if thou wilt bring forth the precious from the worthless, thou shalt be as my mouth: and they shall return to thee; but thou shalt not return to them. [20] And I will make thee to this people as a strong brazen wall; and they shall fight against thee, but they shall by no means prevail against thee; [21] for I am with thee to save thee, and to deliver thee out of the hand of wicked men; and I will ransom thee out of the hand of pestilent men.

Chapter 16

[1] And thou shalt not take a wife, saith the Lord God of Israel: [2] and there shall be no son born to thee, nor daughter in this place. [3] For thus saith the Lord concerning the sons and concerning the daughters that are born in this place, and concerning their mothers that have born them, and concerning their fathers that have begotten them in this land; [4] They shall die of grievous death; they shall not be lamented, nor buried; they shall be for an example on the face of the earth; and they shall be for the wild beasts of the land, and for the birds of the sky: they shall fall by the sword, and shall be consumed with famine.

[5] Thus saith the Lord, Enter not into their mourning feast, and go not to lament, and mourn not for them: for I have removed my peace from this people. [6] They shall not bewail them, nor make cuttings for them, and they shall not shave themselves for them: [7] and there shall be no bread broken in mourning for them for consolation over the dead: they shall not give one to drink a cup for consolation over his father or his mother.

[8] Thou shalt not enter into the banquet-house, to sit with them to eat and to drink. [9] For thus saith the Lord God of Israel; Behold, I will make to cease out of this place before your eyes, and in your days, the voice of joy, and the voice of gladness, the voice of the bridegroom, and the voice of the bride.

[10] And it shall come to pass, when thou shalt report to this people all these words, and they shall say to thee, Wherefore has the Lord pronounced against us all these evils? what is our unrighteousness? and what is our sin which we have sinned before the Lord our God? [11] Then thou shalt say to them, Because your fathers forsook me, saith the Lord, and went after strange gods and served them, and worshipped them, and forsook me, and kept not my law; [12] (and ye sinned worse than your fathers; for, behold, ye walk every one after the lusts of your own evil heart, so as not to hearken to me); [13] therefore I will cast you off from this good land into a land which neither ye nor your fathers have known; and ye shall serve their other gods, who shall have no mercy upon you.

[14] Therefore, behold, the days come, saith the Lord, when they shall no more say, The Lord lives, that brought up the children of Israel out of the land of Egypt; [15] but, The Lord lives, who brought up the house of Israel from the land of the north, and from all countries whither they were thrust out: and I will restore them to their own land, which I gave to their fathers.

[16] Behold, I will send many fishers, saith the Lord, and they shall fish them; and afterward I will send many hunters, and they shall hunt them upon every mountain, and upon every hill, and out of the holes of the rocks. [17] For mine eyes are upon all their ways; and their iniquities have not been hidden from mine eyes. [18] And I will recompense their mischiefs doubly, and their sins, whereby they have profaned my land with the carcasses of their abominations, and with their iniquities, whereby they have trespassed against mine inheritance.

[19] O Lord, thou art my strength, and mine help, and my refuge in days of evil: to thee the Gentiles shall come from the end of the earth, and shall say, How vain were the idols which our fathers procured to themselves, and there is no help in them. [20] Will a man make gods for himself, whereas these are no gods? [21] Therefore, behold, I will at this time manifest my hand to them, and will make known to them my power; and they shall know that my name is the Lord.

Chapter 17

[1] 2 [3] 4 [5] Cursed is the man who trusts in man, and will lean his arm of flesh upon him, while his heart departs from the Lord. [6] And he shall be as the wild tamarisk in the desert: he shall not see when good comes; but he shall dwell in barren places, and in the wilderness, in a salt land which is not inhabited. [7] But blessed is the man who trusts in the Lord, and whose hope the Lord shall be. [8] And he shall be as a thriving tree by the waters, and he shall cast forth his root toward a moist place: he shall not fear when heat comes, and there shall be upon him shady branches: he shall not fear in a year of drought, and he shall not fail to bear fruit.

9 The heart is deep beyond all things, and it is the man, and who can know him? [10] I the Lord try the hearts, and prove the reins, to give to every one according to his ways, and according to the fruits of his devices.

[11] The partridge utters her voice, she gathers eggs which she did not lay; so is a man gaining his wealth unjustly; in the midst of his days his riches shall leave him, and at his latter end he will be a fool.

[12] An exalted throne of glory is our sanctuary. [13] O Lord, the hope of Israel, let all that have left thee be ashamed, let them that have revolted be written on the earth, because they have forsaken the fountain of life, the Lord.

[14] Heal me, O Lord, and I shall be healed; save me, and I shall be saved; for thou art my boast.

[15] Behold, they say to me, Where is the word of the Lord? let it come. [16] But I have not been weary of following thee, nor have I desired the day of man; thou knowest; the words that proceed out of my lips are before thy face. [17] Be not to me a stranger, but spare me in the evil day. [18] Let them that persecute me be ashamed, but let me not be ashamed: let them be alarmed, but let me not be alarmed: bring upon them the evil day, crush them with double destruction.

[19] Thus saith the Lord; Go and stand in the gates of the children of thy people, by which the kings of Juda enter, and by which they go out, and in all the gates of Jerusalem: [20] and thou shalt say to them, Hear the word of the Lord, ye kings of Juda, and all Judea, and all Jerusalem, all who go in at these gates:

[21] thus saith the Lord; Take heed to your souls, and take up no burdens on the sabbath-day, and go not forth through the gates of Jerusalem; [22] and carry forth no burdens out of your houses on the sabbath-day, and ye shall do no work: sanctify the sabbath-day, as I commanded your fathers. [23] But they hearkened not, and inclined not their ear, but stiffened their neck more than their fathers did, so as not to hear me, and not to receive correction. [24] And it shall come to pass, if ye will hearken to me, saith the Lord, to carry in no burdens through the gates of this city on the sabbath-day, and to sanctify the sabbath-day, so as to do no work upon it, [25] that there shall enter through the gates of this city kings and princes sitting on the throne of David, and riding on their chariots and horses, they, and their princes, the men of Juda, and the dwellers in Jerusalem: and this city shall be inhabited for ever. [26] And men shall come out of the cities of Juda, and from round about Jerusalem, and out of the land of Benjamin, and out of the plain country, and from the hill country, and from the south country, bringing whole-burnt-offerings, and sacrifices, and incense, and manna, and frankincense, bringing praise to the house of the Lord.

[27] But it shall come to pass, if ye will not hearken to me to sanctify the sabbath-day, to bear no burdens, nor go in with them by the gates of Jerusalem on the sabbath-day; then will I kindle a fire in the gates thereof, and it shall devour the streets of Jerusalem, and shall not be quenched.

[1] The word that came from the Lord to [2] Jeremiah, saying, Arise, and go down to the potter's house, and there thou shalt hear my words. [3] So I went down to the potter's house, and behold, he was making a vessel on the stones. [4] And the vessel which he was making with his hands fell: so he made it again another vessel, as it seemed good to him to make it. [5] And the word of the Lord came to me, saying,

[6] Shall I not be able, O house of Israel, to do to you as this potter? behold, as the clay of the potter are ye in my hands. [7] If I shall pronounce a decree upon a nation, or upon a kingdom, to cut them off, and to destroy them; [8] and that nation turn from all their sins, then will I repent of the evils which I purposed to do to them. [9] And if I shall pronounce a decree upon a nation and kingdom, to rebuild and to plant it; [10] and they do evil before me, so as not to hearken to my voice, then will I repent of the good which I spoke of, to do it to them.

[11] And now say to the men of Juda, and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem, Behold, I prepare evils against you, and devise a device against you: let every one turn now from his evil way, and amend your practices. [12] And they said, We will quit ourselves like men, for we will pursue our perverse ways, and we will perform each the lusts of his evil heart.

[13] Therefore thus saith the Lord; Enquire now among the nations, who has heard such very horrible things as the virgin of Israel has done? [14] Will fertilising streams fail to flow from a rock, or snow fail from Libanus? will water violently impelled by the wind turn aside? [15] For my people have forgotten me, they have offered incense in vain, and they fail in their ways, leaving the ancient tracks, to enter upon impassable paths; [16] to make their land a desolation, and a perpetual hissing; all that go through it shall be amazed, and shall shake their heads. [17] I will scatter them before their enemies like an east wind; I will shew them the day of their destruction.

[18] Then they said, Come, and let us devise a device against Jeremiah; for the law shall not perish from the priest, nor counsel from the wise, nor the word from the prophet. Come, and let us smite him with the tongue, and we will hear all his words.

[19] Hear me, O Lord, and hear the voice of my pleading. [20] Forasmuch as evil is rewarded for good; for they have spoken words against my soul, and they have hidden the punishment they meant for me; remember that I stood before thy face, to speak good for them, to turn away thy wrath from them. [21] Therefore do thou deliver their sons to famine, and gather them to the power of the sword: let their women be childless and widows; and let their men be cut off by death, and their young men fall by the sword in war. [22] Let there be a cry in their houses: thou shalt bring upon them robbers suddenly: for they have formed a plan to take me, and have hidden snares for me.

[23] And thou, Lord, knowest all their deadly counsel against me: account not their iniquities guiltless, and blot not out their sins from before thee: let their weakness come before thee; deal with them in the time of thy wrath.

Chapter 19

[1] Then said the Lord to me, Go and get an earthen bottle, the work of the potter, and thou shalt bring some of the elders of the people, and of the priests; [2] and thou shalt go forth to the burial-place of the sons of their children, which is at the entrance of the gate of Charsith; and do thou read there all these words which I shall speak to thee: [3] and thou shalt say to them,

Hear ye the word of the Lord, ye kings of Juda, and men of Juda, and the dwellers in Jerusalem, and they that enter in by these gates; thus saith the Lord God of Israel; Behold, I will bring evil upon this place, so that the ears of every one that hears it shall tingle. [4] Because they forsook me, and profaned this place, and burnt incense in it to strange gods, which they and their fathers knew not; and the kings of Juda have filled this place with innocent blood, [5] and built high places for Baal, to burn their children in the fire, which things I commanded not, neither did I design them in my heart:

[6] Therefore, behold, the days come, saith the Lord, when this place shall no more be called, The fall and burial-place of the son of Ennom, but, The burial-place of slaughter. [7] And I will destroy the counsel of Juda and the counsel of Jerusalem in this place; and I will cast them down with the sword before their enemies, and by the hands of them that seek their lives: and I will give their dead bodies for food to the birds of the sky and to the wild beasts of the earth. [8] And I will bring this city to desolation and make it a hissing; every one that passes by it shall scowl, and hiss because of all her plague. [9] And they shall eat the flesh of their sons, and the flesh of their daughters; and they shall eat every one the flesh of his neighbour in the blockade, and in the siege wherewith their enemies shall besiege them.

[10] And thou shalt break the bottle in the sight of the men that go forth with thee, [11] and thou shalt say, Thus saith the Lord, Thus will I break in pieces this people, and this city, even as an earthen vessel is broken in pieces which cannot be mended again. [12] Thus will I do, saith the Lord, to this place, and to the inhabitants of it, that this city may be given up, as one that is falling to ruin. [13] And the houses of Jerusalem, and the houses of the kings of Juda shall be as a ruinous place, because of their uncleannesses in all the houses, wherein they burnt incense upon their roofs to all the host of heaven, and poured drink-offerings to strange gods.

[14] And Jeremiah came from the place of the Fall, whither the Lord had sent him to prophesy; and he stood in the court of the Lord's house: and said to all the people, Thus saith the Lord; [15] Behold I bring upon this city, and upon all the cities belonging to it, and upon the villages of it, all the evils which I have spoken against it, because they have hardened their neck, that they might not hearken to my commands.

Chapter 20

[1] Now Paschor the son of Emmer, the priest, who also had been appointed chief of the house of the Lord, heard Jeremiah prophesying these words. [2] And he smote him, and cast him into the dungeon which was by the gate of the upper house that was set apart, which was by the house of the Lord.

[3] And Paschor brought Jeremiah out of the dungeon: and Jeremiah said to him, The Lord has not called thy name Paschor, but Exile. [4] For thus saith the Lord, Behold, I will give thee up to captivity with all thy friends: and they shall fall by the sword of their enemies, and thine eyes shall see it: and I will give thee and all Juda into the hands of the king of Babylon, and they shall carry them captives, and cut them in pieces with swords. [5] And I will give all the strength of this city, and all the labours of it, and all the treasures of the king of Juda, into the hands of his enemies, and they shall bring them to Babylon. [6] And thou and all the dwellers in thine house shall go into captivity: and thou shalt die in Babylon, and there thou and all thy friends shall be buried, to whom thou hast prophesied lies.

[7] Thou hast deceived me, O Lord, and I have been deceived: thou hast been strong, and has prevailed: I am become a laughing-stock, I am continually mocked every day. [8] For I will laugh with my bitter speech, I will call upon rebellion and misery: for the word of the Lord is become a reproach to me and a mockery all my days. [9] Then I said, I will by no means name the name of the Lord, and I will no more at all speak in his name. But it was a burning fire flaming in my bones, and I am utterly weakened on all sides, and cannot bear up. [10] For I have heard the reproach of many gathering round, saying, Conspire ye, and let us conspire together against him, even all his friends: watch his intentions, if perhaps he shall be deceived, and we shall prevail against him, and we shall be avenged on him.

[11] But the Lord was with me as a mighty man of war: therefore they persecuted me, but could not perceive anything against me; they were greatly confounded, for they perceived not their disgrace, which shall never be forgotten.

[12] O Lord, that provest just deeds, understanding the reins and hearts, let me see thy vengeance upon them: for to thee I have revealed my cause. [13] Sing ye to the Lord, sing praise to him: for he has rescued the soul of the poor from the hand of evil-doers.

[14] Cursed be the day wherein I was born: the day wherein my mother brought me forth, let it not be blessed. [15] Cursed be the man who brought the glad tidings to my father, saying, A male child is born to thee. [16] Let that man rejoice as the cities which the Lord overthrew in wrath, and repented not: let him hear crying in the morning, and loud lamentation at noon; [17] because he slew me not in the womb, and my mother became not my tomb, and her womb always great with me. [18] Why is it that I came forth of the womb to see troubles and distresses, and my days are spent in shame?

Chapter 21

[1] THE WORD THAT CAME FROM THE LORD TO JEREMIAS, WHEN KING SEDEKIAS SENT TO HIM PASCHOR THE SON OF MELCHIAS, AND SOPHONIAS SON OF BASAEAS, THE PRIEST, SAYING,

[2] Enquire of the Lord for us; for the king of Babylon has risen up against us; if the Lord will do according to all his wonderful works, and the king shall depart from us.

[3] And Jeremiah said to them, Thus shall ye say to Sedekias king of Juda, [4] Thus saith the Lord; Behold, I will turn back the weapons of war wherewith ye fight against the Chaldeans that have besieged you from outside the wall, and I will gather them into the midst of this city. [5] And I will fight against you with an outstretched hand and with a strong arm, with wrath and great anger. [6] And I will smite all the dwellers in this city, both men and cattle, with grievous pestilence: and they shall die. [7] And after this, thus saith the Lord; I will give Sedekias king of Juda, and his servants, and the people that is left in this city from the pestilence, and from the famine, and from the sword, into the hands of their enemies, that seek their lives: and they shall cut them in pieces with the edge of the sword: I will not spare them, and I will not have compassion upon them.

[8] And thou shalt say to this people, Thus saith the Lord; Behold, I have set before you the way of life, and the way of death. [9] He that remains in this city shall die by the sword, and by famine: but he that goes forth to advance to the Chaldeans that have besieged you, shall live, and his life shall be to him for a spoil, and he shall live. [10] For I have set my face against this city for evil, and not for good: it shall be delivered into the hands of the king of Babylon, and he shall consume it with fire.

[11] O house of the king of Juda, hear ye the word of the Lord. [12] O house of David, thus saith the Lord; Judge judgment in the morning, and act rightly, and rescue the spoiled one from the hand of him that wrongs him, lest mine anger be kindled like fire, and it burn, and there be none to quench it. [13] Behold, I am against thee that dwellest in the valley of Sor; in the plain country, even against them that say, Who shall alarm us? or who shall enter into our habitation? [14] And I will kindle a fire in the forest thereof, and it shall devour all things round about it.

Chapter 22

[1] Thus saith the Lord; Go thou, and go down to the house of the king of Juda, and thou shalt speak there this word, [2] and thou shalt say,

Hear the word of the Lord, O king of Juda, that sittest on the throne of David, thou, and thy house, and thy people, and they that go in at these gates: [3] thus saith the Lord; Execute ye judgment and justice, and rescue the spoiled out of the hand of him that wrongs him: and oppress not the stranger, and orphan, and widow, and sin not, and shed no innocent blood in this place. [4] For if ye will indeed perform this word, then shall there enter in by the gates of this house kings sitting upon the throne of David, and riding on chariots and horses, they, and their servants, and their people. [5] But if ye will not perform these words, by myself have I sworn, saith the Lord, that this house shall be brought to desolation.

[6] For thus saith the Lord concerning the house of the king of Juda; Thou art Galaad to me, and the head of Libanus: yet surely I will make thee a desert, even cities that shall not be inhabited: [7] and I will bring upon thee a destroying man, and his axe: and they shall cut down thy choice cedars, and cast them into the fire. [8] And nations shall pass through this city, and each shall say to his neighbour, Why has the Lord done thus to this great city? [9] And they shall say Because they forsook the covenant of the Lord their God, and worshipped strange gods, and served them.

[10] Weep not for the dead, nor lament for him: weep bitterly for him that goes away: for he shall return no more, nor see his native land. [11] For thus saith the Lord concerning Sellem the son of Josias, who reigns in the place of Josias his father, who has gone forth out of this place; He shall not return thither any more: [12] but in that place whither I have carried him captive, there shall he die, and shall see this land no more.

[13] He that builds his house not with justice, and his upper chambers not with judgment, who works by means of his neighbour for nothing, and will by no means give him his reward. [14] Thou hast built for thyself a well-proportioned house, airy chambers, fitted with windows, and wainscoted with cedar, and painted with vermilion. [15] Shalt thou reign, because thou art provoked with thy father Achaz? they shall not eat, and they shall not drink: it is better for thee to execute judgment and justice. [16] They understood not, they judged not the cause of the afflicted, nor the cause of the poor: is not this thy not knowing me? saith the Lord. [17] Behold, thine eyes are not good, nor thine heart, but they go after thy covetousness, and after the innocent blood to shed it, and after acts of injustice and slaughter, to commit them.

[18] Therefore thus saith the Lord concerning Joakim son of Josias, king of Juda, even concerning this man; they shall not bewail him, saying, Ah brother! neither shall they at all weep for him, saying, Alas Lord. [19] He shall be buried with the burial of an ass; he shall be dragged roughly along and cast outside the gate of Jerusalem.

[20] Go up to Libanus, and cry; and utter thy voice to Basan, and cry aloud to the extremity of the sea: for all thy lovers are destroyed. [21] I spoke to thee on occasion of thy trespass, but thou saidst, I will not hearken. This has been thy way from thy youth, thou hast not hearkened to my voice. [22] The wind shall tend all thy shepherds, and thy lovers shall go into captivity; for then shalt thou be ashamed and disgraced because of all thy lovers. [23] O thou that dwellest in Libanus, making thy nest in the cedars, thou shalt groan heavily, when pangs as of a travailing woman are come upon thee.

[24] As I live, saith the Lord, though Jechonias son of Joakim king of Juda were indeed the seal upon my right hand, thence would I pluck thee; [25] and I will deliver thee into the hands of them that seek thy life, before whom thou art afraid, into the hands of the Chaldeans. [26] And I will cast forth thee, and thy mother that bore thee, into a land where thou wast not born; and there ye shall die. [27] But they shall by no means return to the land which they long for in their souls. [28] Jechonias is dishonoured as a good-for-nothing vessel; for he is thrown out and cast forth into a land which he knew not.

[29] Land, land, hear the word of the Lord. [30] Write ye this man an outcast: for there shall none of his seed at all grow up to sit on the throne of David, or as a prince yet in Juda.

Chapter 23

[1] Woe to the shepherds that destroy and scatter the sheep of their pasture! [2] Therefore thus saith the Lord against them that tend my people; Ye have scattered my sheep, and driven them out, and ye have not visited them: behold, I will take vengeance upon you according to your evil practices. [3] And I will gather in the remnant of my people in every land, whither I have driven them out, and will set them in their pasture; and they shall increase and be multiplied. [4] And I will raise up shepherds to them, who shall feed them: and they shall fear no more, nor be alarmed, saith the Lord.

[5] Behold, the days come, saith the Lord, when I will raise up to David a righteous branch, and a king shall reign and understand, and shall execute judgment and righteousness on the earth. [6] In his days both Juda shall be saved, and Israel shall dwell securely: and this is his name, which the Lord shall call him, Josedec among the prophets. [7] Therefore, behold, the days come, saith the Lord, when they shall no more say, The Lord lives, who brought up the house of Israel out of the land of Egypt; [8] but The Lord lives, who has gathered the whole seed of Israel from the north land, and from all the countries whither he had driven them out, and has restored them into their own land.

[9] My heart is broken within me; all my bones are shaken: I am become as a broken-down man, and as a man overcome with wine, because of the Lord, and because of the excellence of his glory. [10] For because of these things the land mourns; the pastures of the wilderness are dried up; and their course is become evil, and so also their strength. [11] For priest and prophet are defiled; and I have seen their iniquities in my house. [12] Therefore let their way be to them slippery and dark: and they shall be tripped up and fall in it: for I will bring evils upon them, in the year of their visitation.

[13] And in the prophets of Samaria I have seen lawless deeds; they prophesied by Baal, and led my people Israel astray. [14] Also in the prophets of Jerusalem I have seen horrible things: as they committed adultery, and walked in lies, and strengthened the hands of many, that they should not return each from his evil way: they are all become to me as Sodom, and the inhabitants thereof as Gomorrha.

[15] Therefore thus saith the Lord; Behold, I will feed them with pain, and give them bitter water to drink: for from the prophets of Jerusalem has defilement gone forth into all the land.

[16] Thus saith the Lord Almighty, Hearken not to the words of the prophets: for they frame a vain vision for themselves; they speak from their own heart, and not from the mouth of the Lord. [17] They say to them that reject the word of the Lord, There shall be peace to you; and to all that walk after their own lusts, and to everyone that walks in the error of his heart, they have said, No evil shall come upon thee. [18] For who has stood in the counsel of the Lord, and seen his word? who has hearkened, and heard? [19] Behold, there is an earthquake from the Lord, and anger proceeds to a convulsion, it shall come violently upon the ungodly. [20] And the Lord's wrath shall return no more, until he have accomplished it, and until he have established it, according to the purpose of his heart: at the end of the days they shall understand it.

[21] I sent not the prophets, yet they ran: neither spoke I to them, yet they prophesied. [22] But if they had stood in my counsel, and if they had hearkened to my words, then would they have turned my people from their evil practices.

[23] I am a God nigh at hand, saith the Lord, and not a God afar off. [24] Shall any one hide himself in secret places, and I not see him? Do I not fill heaven and earth? saith the Lord.

[25] I have heard what the prophets say, what they prophesy in my name, saying falsely, I have seen a night vision. [26] How long shall these things be in the heart of the prophets that prophesy lies, when they prophesy the purposes of their own heart? [27] who devise that men may forget my law by their dreams, which they have told every one to his neighbour, as their fathers forgot my name in the worship of Baal. [28] The prophet who has a dream, let him tell his dream; and he in whom is my word spoken to him, let him tell my word truly: what is the chaff to the corn? so are my words, saith the Lord. [29] Behold, are not my words as fire? saith the Lord; and as an axe cutting the rock?

[30] Behold, I am therefore against the prophets, saith the Lord God, that steal my words every one from his neighbour. [31] Behold, I am against the prophets that put forth prophecies of mere words, and slumber their sleep. [32] Therefore, behold, I am against the prophets that prophesy false dreams, and have not told them truly, and have caused my people to err by their lies, and by their errors; yet I sent them not, and commanded them not; therefore, they shall not profit this people at all.

[33] And if this people, or the priest, or the prophet, should ask, What is the burden of the Lord? then thou shalt say to them, Ye are the burden, and I will dash you down, saith the Lord. [34] As for the prophet, and the priests, and the people, who shall say, The burden of the Lord, I will even take vengeance on that man, and on his house. [35] Thus shall ye say every one to his neighbour, and every one to his brother, What has the Lord answered? and, what has the Lord said? [36] And do ye name no more the burden of the Lord; for his own word shall be a man's burden. [37] But wherefore, say ye, has the Lord our God spoken? [38] Therefore thus saith the Lord our God; Because ye have spoken this word, The burden of the Lord, and I sent to you, saying, ye shall not say, The burden of the Lord; [39] therefore, behold, I will seize, and dash down you and the city which I gave to you and your fathers. [40] And I will bring upon you an everlasting reproach, and everlasting disgrace, which shall not be forgotten.

[7] Therefore, behold, the days come, saith the Lord, when they shall no more say, The Lord lives, who brought up the house of Israel out of the land of Egypt; [8] but The Lord lives, who has gathered the whole seed of Israel from the north land, and from all the countries whither he had driven them out, and has restored them into their own land.

[1] The Lord shewed me two baskets of figs, lying in front of the temple of the Lord, after Nabuchodonosor king of Babylon had carried captive Jechonias son of Joakim king of Juda, and the princes, and the artificers, and the prisoners, and the rich men out of Jerusalem, and had brought them to Babylon. [2] The one basket was full of very good figs, as the early figs; and the other basket was full of very bad figs, which could not be eaten, for their badness. [3] And the Lord said to me, What seest thou, Jeremiah? and I said, Figs; the good figs, very good; and the bad, very bad, which cannot be eaten, for their badness.

[4] And the word of the Lord came to me, saying, [5] Thus saith the Lord, the God of Israel; As these good figs, so will I acknowledge the Jews that have been carried away captive, whom I have sent forth out of this place into the land of the Chaldeans for good. [6] And I will fix mine eyes upon them for good, and I will restore them into this land for good: and I will build them up, and not pull them down; and I will plant them, and not pluck them up.

[7] And I will give them a heart to know me, that I am the Lord: and they shall be to me a people, and I will be to them a God: for they shall turn to me with all their heart.

[8] And as the bad figs, which cannot be eaten, for their badness; thus saith the Lord, So will I deliver Sedekias king of Juda, and his nobles, and the remnant of Jerusalem, them that are left in this land, and the dwellers in Egypt. [9] And I will cause them to be dispersed into all the kingdoms of the earth, and they shall be for a reproach, and a proverb, and an object of hatred, and a curse, in every place whither I have driven them out. [10] And I will send against them famine, and pestilence, and the sword, until they are consumed from off the land which I gave them.

Chapter 25

[1] THE WORD THAT CAME TO JEREMIAS concerning all the people of Juda in the fourth year of Joakim, son of Josias, king of Juda; [2] which he spoke to all the people of Juda, and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem, saying,

[3] In the thirteenth year of Josias, son of Amos, king of Juda, even until this day for three and twenty years, I have both spoken to you, rising early and speaking, [4] and I sent to you my servants the prophets, sending them early; (but ye hearkened not, and listened not with your ears;) saying, [5] Turn ye every one from his evil way, and from your evil practices, and ye shall dwell in the land which I gave to you and your fathers, of old and for ever. [6] Go ye not after strange gods, to serve them, and to worship them, that ye provoke me not by the works of your hands, to do you hurt. [7] But ye hearkened not to me.

[8] Therefore thus saith the Lord; Since ye believed not my words, [9] behold I will send and take a family from the north, and will bring them against this land, and against the inhabitants of it, and against all the nations round about it, and I will make them utterly waste, and make them a desolation, and a hissing, and an everlasting reproach. [10] And I will destroy from among them the voice of joy, and the voice of gladness, the voice of the bridegroom, and the voice of the bride, the scent of ointment, and the light of a candle. [11] And all the land shall be a desolation; and they shall serve among the Gentiles seventy years.

[12] And when the seventy years are fulfilled, I will take vengeance on that nation, and will make them a perpetual desolation. [13] And I will bring upon that land all my words which I have spoken against it, even all things that are written in this book.

[34] THE PROPHECIES OF JEREMIAS AGAINST THE NATIONS OF ÆLAM.

[35] Thus saith the Lord, The bow of Ælam is broken, even the chief of their power. [36] And I will bring upon Ælam the four winds from the four corners of heaven, and I will disperse them toward all these winds; and there shall be no nation to which they shall not come — even the outcasts of Ælam. [37] And I will put them in fear before their enemies that seek their life; and I will bring evils upon them according to my great anger; and I will send forth my sword after them, until I have utterly destroyed them. [38] And I will set my throne in Ælam, and will send forth thence king and rulers. [39] But it shall come to pass at the end of days, that I will turn the captivity of Ælam, saith the Lord.

Chapter 26

1 In the beginning of the reign of king Sedekias, there came this word concerning Ælam.

[2] FOR EGYPT, AGAINST THE POWER OF PHARAO NECHAO KING OF EGYPT, who was by the river Euphrates in Charmis, whom Nabuchodonosor king of Babylon smote in the fourth year of Joakim king of Juda.

[3] Take up arms and spears, and draw nigh to battle; [4] and harness the horses: mount, ye horsemen, and stand ready in your helmets; advance the spears, and put on your breast-plates.

[5] Why do they fear, and turn back? even because their mighty men shall be slain: they have utterly fled, and being hemmed in they have not rallied, saith the Lord. [6] Let not the swift flee, and let not the mighty man escape to the north: the forces at Euphrates are become feeble, and they have fallen.

[7] Who is this that shall come up as a river, and as rivers roll their waves? [8] The waters of Egypt shall come up like a river: and he said, I will go up, and will cover the earth, and will destroy the dwellers in it. [9] Mount ye the horses, prepare the chariots; go forth, ye warriors of the Ethiopians, and Libyans armed with shields; and mount, ye Lydians, bend the bow. [10] And that day shall be to the Lord our God a day of vengeance, to take vengeance on his enemies: and the sword of the Lord shall devour, and be glutted, and be drunken with their blood: for the Lord has a sacrifice from the land of the north at the river Euphrates.

[11] Go up to Galaad, and take balm for the virgin daughter of Egypt: in vain hast thou multiplied thy medicines; there is no help in thee. [12] The nations have heard thy voice, and the land has been filled with thy cry: for the warriors have fainted fighting one against another, and both are fallen together.

[13] THE WORDS WHICH THE LORD SPOKE by Jeremiah, concerning the coming of the king of Babylon to smite the land of Egypt.

[14] Proclaim it at Magdol, and declare it at Memphis: say ye, Stand up, and prepare; for the sword has devoured thy yew-tree.

[15] Wherefore has Apis fled from thee? thy choice calf has not remained; for the Lord has utterly weakened him. [16] And thy multitude has fainted and fallen; and each one said to his neighbour, Let us arise, and return into our country to our people, from the Grecian sword. [17] Call ye the name of Pharaoh Nechao king of Egypt, Saon esbeie moed. [18] As I live, saith the Lord God, he shall come as Itabyrion among the mountains, and as Carmel that is on the sea. [19] O daughter of Egypt dwelling at home, prepare thee stuff for removing: for Memphis shall be utterly desolate, and shall be called Woe, because there are no inhabitants in it.

[20] Egypt is a fair heifer, but destruction from the north is come upon her.

[21] Also her hired soldiers in the midst of her are as fatted calves fed in her; for they also have turned, and fled with one accord: they stood not, for the day of destruction was come upon them, and the time of their retribution. [22] Their voice is as that of a hissing serpent, for they go upon the sand; they shall come upon Egypt with axes, as men that cut wood. [23] They shall cut down her forest, saith the Lord, for their number cannot at all be conjectured, for it exceeds the locust in multitude, and they are innumerable. [24] The daughter of Egypt is confounded; she is delivered into the hands of a people from the north.

[25] Behold, I will avenge Ammon her son upon Pharaoh, and upon them that trust in him.

[26] 27 But fear not thou, my servant Jacob, neither be thou alarmed, Israel: for, behold, I will save thee from afar, and thy seed from their captivity; and Jacob shall return, and be at ease, and sleep, and there shall be no one to trouble him. [28] Fear not thou, my servant Jacob, saith the Lord; for I am with thee: she that was without fear and in luxury, has been delivered up: for I will make a full end of every nation among whom I have thrust thee forth; but I will not cause thee to fail: yet will I chastise thee in the way of judgment, and will not hold thee entirely guiltless.

Chapter 27

[1] THE WORD OF THE LORD WHICH HE SPOKE AGAINST BABYLON.

[2] Proclaim ye among the Gentiles, and cause the tidings to be heard, and suppress them not: say ye, Babylon is taken, Belus is confounded; the fearless, the luxurious Maerodach is delivered up. [3] For a nation has come up against her from the north, he shall utterly ravage her land, and there shall be none to dwell in it, neither man nor beast.

[4] In those days, and at that time, the children of Israel shall come, they and the children of Juda together; they shall proceed, weeping as they go, seeking the Lord their God. [5] They shall ask the way till they come to Sion, for that way shall they set their face; and they shall come and flee for refuge to the Lord their God; for the everlasting covenant shall not be forgotten.

[6] My people have been lost sheep: their shepherds thrust them out, they caused them to wander on the mountains: they went from mountain to hill, they forgot their resting-place. [7] All that found them consumed them: their enemies said, Let us not leave them alone, because they have sinned against the Lord: he that gathered their fathers had a pasture of righteousness.

[8] Flee ye out of the midst of Babylon, and from the land of the Chaldeans, and go forth, and be as serpents before sleep. [9] For, behold, I stir up against Babylon the gatherings of nations out of the land of the north; and they shall set themselves in array against her: thence shall she be taken, as the dart of an expert warrior shall not return empty. [10] And Chaldea shall be a spoil: all that spoil her shall be satisfied.

[11] Because ye rejoiced, and boasted, while plundering mine heritage; because ye exulted as calves in the grass, and pushed with the horn as bulls.

[12] Your mother is greatly ashamed; your mother that bore you for prosperity is confounded: she is the last of the nations, desolate, [13] by reason of the Lord's anger: it shall not be inhabited, but it shall be all a desolation; and every one that passes through Babylon shall scowl, and they shall hiss at all her plague.

[14] Set yourselves in array against Babylon round about, all ye that bend the bow; shoot at her, spare not your arrows, [15] and prevail against her: her hands are weakened, her bulwarks are fallen, and her wall is broken down: for it is vengeance from God: take vengeance upon her; as she has done, do to her. [16] Utterly destroy seed out of Babylon, and him that holds a sickle in time of harvest: for fear of the Grecian sword, they shall return every one to his people, and every one shall flee to his own land.

[17] Israel is a wandering sheep; the lions have driven him out: the king of Assyria firsts devoured him, and afterward this king of Babylon has gnawed his bones. [18] Therefore thus saith the Lord; Behold, I will take vengeance on the king of Babylon, and upon his land, as I took vengeance on the king of Assyria. [19] And I will restore Israel to his pasture, and he shall feed on Carmel and on mount Ephraim and in Galaad, and his soul shall be satisfied. [20] In those days, and at that time, they shall seek for the iniquity of Israel, and there shall be none; and for the sins of Juda, and they shall not be found: for I will be merciful to them that are left [21] on the land, saith the Lord.

Go up against it roughly, and against them that dwell on it: avenge, O sword, and destroy utterly, saith the Lord, and do according to all that I command thee. [22] A sound of war, and great destruction in the land of the Chaldeans! [23] How is the hammer of the whole earth broken and crushed! How is Babylon become a desolation among the nations! [24] They shall come upon thee, and thou shalt not know it, Babylon, that thou wilt even be taken captive: thou art found and taken, because thou didst resist the Lord.

[25] The Lord has opened his treasury, and brought forth the weapons of his anger: for the Lord God has a work in the land of the Chaldeans. [26] For her times are come: open ye her storehouses: search her as a cave, and utterly destroy her: let there be no remnant of her. [27] Dry ye up all her fruits, and let them go down to the slaughter: woe to them! for their day is come, and the time of their retribution. [28] A voice of men fleeing and escaping from the land of Babylon, to declare to Sion the vengeance that comes from the Lord our God.

[29] Summon many against Babylon, even every one that bends the bow: camp against her round about; let no one of her people escape: render to her according to her works; according to all that she has done, do to her: for she has resisted the Lord, the Holy God of Israel. [30] Therefore shall her young men fall in the streets, and all her warriors shall be cast down, saith the Lord.

[31] Behold, I am against thee the haughty one, saith the Lord: for thy day is come, and the time of thy retribution. [32] And thy pride shall fail, and fall, and there shall be no one to set it up again: and I will kindle a fire in her forest, and it shall devour all things round about her.

[33] Thus saith the Lord; The children of Israel and the children of Juda have been oppressed: all they that have taken them captive have oppressed them together; for they would not let them go. [34] But their Redeemer is strong; the Lord Almighty is his name: he will enter into judgment with his adversaries, that he may destroy the earth; [35] and he will sharpen a sword against the Chaldeans, and against the inhabitants of Babylon, and upon her nobles and upon her wise men; [36] a sword upon her warriors, and they shall be weakened: a sword upon their horses, and upon their chariots: [37] a sword upon their warriors and upon the mixed people in the midst of her; and they shall be as women: a sword upon the treasures, and they shall be scattered upon her water, [38] and they shall be ashamed: for it is a land of graven images; and in the islands, where they boasted. [39] Therefore shall idols dwell in the islands, and the young of monsters shall dwell in it: it shall not be inhabited any more for ever. [40] As God overthrew Sodom and Gomorrha, and the cities bordering upon them, saith the Lord: no man shall dwell there, and no son of man shall sojourn there.

[41] Behold, a people comes from the north, and a great nation, and many kings shall be stirred up from the end of the earth; holding bow and dagger: [42] the people is fierce, and will have no mercy: their voices shall sound as the sea, they shall ride upon horses, prepared for war, like fire, against thee, O daughter of Babylon. [43] The king of Babylon heard the sound of them, and his hands were enfeebled: anguish overcame him, pangs as of a woman in travail. [44] Behold, he shall come up as a lion from Jordan to Gaethan; for I will speedily drive them from her, and I will set all the youths against her: for who is like me? and who will resist me? and who is this shepherd who will stand before me?

[45] Therefore hear ye the counsel of the Lord, which he has taken against Babylon; and his devices, which he has devised upon the Chaldeans inhabiting it: surely lambs of their flock shall be destroyed: surely pasture shall be cut off from them. [46] For at the sound of the taking of Babylon the earth shall quake, and a cry shall be heard among the nations.

[1] Thus saith the Lord; Behold, I stir up against Babylon, and against the Chaldeans dwelling therein, a deadly burning wind. [2] And I will send forth against Babylon spoilers, and they shall spoil her, and shall ravage her land. Woe to Babylon round about her in the day of her affliction. [3] Let the archer bend his bow, and him that has armour put it on: and spare ye not her young men, but destroy ye all her host. [4] And slain men shall fall in the land of the Chaldeans, and men pierced through shall fall without it.

[5] For Israel and Juda have not been forsaken of their God, of the Lord Almighty; whereas their land was filled with iniquity against the holy things of Israel. [6] Flee ye out of the midst of Babylon, and deliver every one his soul: and be not overthrown in her iniquity; for it is the time of her retribution from the Lord; he is rendering to her a recompence. [7] Babylon has been a golden cup in the Lord's hand, causing all the earth to be drunken: the nations have drunk of her wine; therefore they were shaken. [8] And Babylon is fallen suddenly, and is broken to pieces: lament for her; take balm for her deadly wound, if by any means she may be healed. [9] We tried to heal Babylon, but she was not healed: let us forsake her, and depart every one to his own country: for her judgment has reached to the heaven, it has mounted up to the stars. [10] The Lord has brought forth his judgment: come, and let us declare in Sion the works of the Lord our God.

[11] Prepare the arrows; fill the quivers: the Lord has stirred up the spirit of the king of the Medes: for his wrath is against Babylon, to destroy it utterly; for it is the Lord's vengeance, it is the vengeance of his people. [12] Lift up a standard on the walls of Babylon, prepare the quivers, rouse the guards, prepare the weapons: for the Lord has taken the work in hand, and will execute what he has spoken against the inhabitants of Babylon, [13] dwelling on many waters, and amidst the abundance of her treasures; thine end is come verily into thy bowels. [14] For the Lord has sworn by his arm, saying, I will fill thee with men as with locusts; and they that come down shall cry against thee.

[15] The Lord made the earth by his power, preparing the world by his wisdom, by his understanding he stretched out the heaven. [16] At his voice he makes a sound of water in the heaven, and brings up clouds from the extremity of the earth; he makes lightnings for rain, and brings light out of his treasures. [17] Every man has completely lost understanding; every goldsmith is confounded because of his graven images: for they have cast false gods, there is no breath in them. [18] They are vain works, objects of scorn; in the time of their visitation they shall perish. [19] Not such is Jacob's portion; for he that formed all things, he is his inheritance; the Lord is his name.

[20] Thou scatterest for me the weapons of war: and I will scatter nations by thee, and will destroy kings by means of thee. [21] And by thee I will scatter the horse and his rider; and by thee I will scatter chariots and them that ride in them. [22] And by thee I will scatter youth and maid; and by thee I will scatter man and woman. [23] And by thee I will scatter the shepherd and his flock; and by thee I will scatter the husbandman and his husbandry; and by thee I will scatter leaders and the captains. [24] And I will recompense to Babylon and to all the Chaldeans that dwell there all their mischiefs that they have done to Sion before your eyes, saith the Lord.

[25] Behold, I am against thee, the ruined mountain, that destroys the whole earth; and I will stretch out mine hand upon thee, and will roll thee down upon the rocks, and will make thee as a burnt mountain. [26] And they shall not take from thee a stone for a corner, nor a stone for a foundation: for thou shalt be a desolation for ever, saith the Lord.

[27] Lift up a standard in the land, sound the trumpet among the nations, consecrate the nations against her, raise up kings against her by me, and that for the people of Achanaz; set against her engines of war; bring up against her horses as a multitude of locusts. [28] Bring up nations against her, even the king of the Medes and of the whole earth, his rulers, and all his captains. [29] The earth has quaked and been troubled, because the purpose of the Lord has risen up against Babylon, to make the land of Babylon a desolation, and uninhabitable. [30] The warrior of Babylon has failed to fight; they shall sit there in the siege; their power is broken; they are become like women; her tabernacles have been set on fire; her bars are broken. [31] One shall rush, running to meet another runner, and one shall go with tidings to meet another with tidings, to bring tidings to the king of Babylon, that his city is taken. [32] At the end of his passages they were taken, and his cisterns they have burnt with fire, and his warriors are going forth.

[33] For thus saith the Lord, The houses of the king of Babylon shall be threshed as a floor in the season; yet a little while, and her harvest shall come.

[34] He has devoured me, he has torn me asunder, airy darkness has come upon me; Nabuchodonosor king of Babylon has swallowed me up, as a dragon has he filled his belly with my delicacies. [35] My troubles and my distresses have driven me out into Babylon, shall she that dwells in Sion say; and my blood shall be upon the Chaldeans dwelling there, shall Jerusalem say.

[36] Therefore thus saith the Lord, Behold, I will judge thine adversary, and I will execute vengeance for thee; and I will waste her sea, and dry up her fountain. [37] And Babylon shall be a desolation, and shall not be inhabited. [38] For they rose up together as lions, and as lions' whelps. [39] In their heat I will give them a draught, and make them drunk, that they may be stupified, and sleep an everlasting sleep, and not awake, saith the Lord. [40] And bring thou them down as lambs to the slaughter, and rams with kids.

[41] How has the boast of all the earth been taken and caught in a snare! how has Babylon become a desolation among the nations! [42] The sea has come up upon Babylon with the sound of its waves, and she is covered. [43] Her cities are become like a dry and trackless land; not so much as one man shall dwell in it, neither shall a son of man lodge in it. [44] And I will take vengeance on

Babylon, and bring forth out of her mouth what she has swallowed down, and the nations shall no more be gathered to her: [45] 46 [47] 48 [49] and in Babylon the slain men of all the earth shall fall. [50] Go forth of the land, ye that escape, and stay not; ye that are afar off, remember the Lord, and let Jerusalem come into your mind. [51] We are ashamed, because we have heard our reproach; disgrace has covered our face; aliens are come into our sanctuary, even into the house of the Lord.

[52] Therefore, behold, the days come, saith the Lord, when I will take vengeance upon her graven images: and slain men shall fall in all her land. [53] For though Babylon should go up as the heaven, and though she should strengthen her walls with her power, from me shall come they that shall destroy her, saith the Lord. [54] A sound of a cry in Babylon, and great destruction in the land of the Chaldeans: [55] for the Lord has utterly destroyed Babylon, and cut off from her the great voice sounding as many waters: he has consigned her voice to destruction. [56] For distress has come upon Babylon, her warriors are taken, their bows are useless: for God recompenses them. [57] The Lord recompenses, and will make her leaders and her wise men and her captains completely drunk, saith the King, the Lord Almighty is his name.

[58] Thus saith the Lord, The wall of Babylon was made broad, but it shall be completely broken down, and her high gates shall be burnt with fire; and the peoples shall not labour in vain, nor the nations fail in their rule.

[59] THE WORD WHICH THE LORD COMMANDED THE PROPHET JEREMIAS to say to Saraeas son of Nerias, son of Maasaeas, when he went from Sedekias king of Juda to Babylon, in the fourth year of his reign. And Saraeas was over the bounties. [60] And Jeremiah wrote in a book all the evils which should come upon Babylon, even all these words that are written against Babylon. [61] And Jeremiah said to Saraeas, When thou art come to Babylon, and shalt see and read all these words; [62] then thou shalt say, O Lord God, thou hast spoken against this place, to destroy it, and that there should be none to dwell in it, neither man nor beast; for it shall be a desolation for ever. [63] And it shall come to pass, when thou shalt cease from reading this book, that thou shalt bind a stone upon it, and cast it into the midst of Euphrates; [64] and shalt say, Thus shall Babylon sink, and not rise, because of the evils which I bring upon it.

Chapter 29

[1] THUS SAITH THE LORD AGAINST THE PHILISTINES;

[2] Behold, waters come up from the north, and shall become a sweeping torrent, and it shall sweep away the land, and its fulness; the city, and them that dwell in it: and men shall cry and all that dwell in the land shall howl, [3] at the sound of his rushing, at the sound of his hoofs, and at the rattling of his chariots, at the noise of his wheels: the fathers turned not to their children because of the weakness of their hands, [4] in the day that is coming to destroy all the Philistines: and I will utterly destroy Tyre and Sidon and all the rest of their allies: for the Lord will destroy the remaining inhabitants of the islands. [5] Baldness is come upon Gaza; Ascalon is cast away, and the remnant of the Enakim.

[6] How long wilt thou smite, O sword of the Lord? how long will it be ere thou art quiet? return into thy sheath, rest, and be removed. [7] How shall it be quiet, whereas the Lord has given it a commission against Ascalon, and against the regions on the sea-coast, to awake against the remaining countries!

[7] CONCERNING IDUMEA, thus saith the Lord; There is no longer wisdom in Thaeman, counsel has perished from the wise ones, their wisdom is gone, [8] their place has been deceived. Dig deep for a dwelling, ye that inhabit Daedam, for he has wrought grievously: I brought trouble upon him in the time at which I visited him. [9] For grape-gatherers are come, who shall not leave thee a remnant; as thieves by night, they shall lay their hand upon thy possessions.

[10] For I have stripped Esau, I have uncovered their secret places; they shall have no power to hide themselves, they have perished each by the hand of his brother, my neighbour, and it is impossible [11] for thy fatherless one to be left to live, but I shall live, and the widows trust in me.

[12] For thus saith the Lord; They who were not appointed to drink the cup have drunk it; and thou shalt by no means be cleared: [13] for by myself I have sworn, saith the Lord, that thou shalt be in the midst of her an impassable land, and a reproach, and a curse; and all her cities shall be desert for ever.

[14] I have heard a report from the lord, and he has sent messengers to the nations, saying, Assemble yourselves, and come against her; rise ye up to war. [15] I have made thee small among the nations, utterly contemptible among men. [16] Thine insolence has risen up against thee, the fierceness of thine heart has burst the holes of the rocks, it has seized upon the strength of a lofty hill; for as an eagle he set his nest on high: thence will I bring thee down.

[17] And Idumea shall be a desert: every one that passes by shall hiss at it. [18] As Sodom was overthrown and Gomorrha and they that sojourned in her, saith the Lord Almighty, no man shall dwell there, nor shall any son of man inhabit there. [19] Behold, he shall come up as a lion out of the midst of Jordan to the place of Ætham: for I will speedily drive them from it, and do ye set the young men against her: for who is like me? and who will withstand me? and who is this shepherd, who shall confront me?

[20] Therefore hear ye the counsel of the Lord, which he has framed against Idumea; and his device, which he has devised against the inhabitants of Thaeman: surely the least of the sheep shall be swept off; surely their dwelling shall be made desolate for them. [21] For at the sound of their fall the earth was scared, and the cry of the sea was not heard. [22] Behold, he shall look upon her as an eagle, and spread forth his wings over her strongholds; and the heart of the mighty men of Idumea shall be in that day as the heart of a woman in her pangs.

Chapter 30

[1] CONCERNING THE SONS OF AMMON thus saith the Lord, Are there no sons in Israel? or have they no one to succeed them? wherefore has Melchol inherited Galaad, and why shall their people dwell in their cities? [2] Therefore, behold, the days come, saith the Lord, when I will cause to be heard in Rabbath a tumult of wars; and they shall become a waste and ruined place, and her altars shall be burned with fire; then shall Israel succeed to his dominion. [3] Howl, O Esebon, for Gai has perished; cry, ye daughters of Rabbath, gird yourselves with sack-clothes, and lament; for Melchol shall go into banishment, his priests and his princes together.

[4] Why do ye exult in the plains of the Enakim, thou haughty daughter, that trustest in thy treasures, that sayest, Who shall come in to me? [5] Behold, I will bring terror upon thee, saith the Lord, from all the country round about thee; and ye shall be scattered every one right before him, and there is none to gather you.

[28] CONCERNING KEDAR THE QUEEN OF THE PALACE, WHOM NABUCHODONOSOR KING OF BABYLON SMOTE, thus saith the Lord;

Arise ye, and go up to Kedar, and fill the sons of Kedem. [29] They shall take their tents and their sheep, they shall take for themselves their garments, and all their baggage and their camels; and summon ye destruction against them from every side. [30] Flee ye, dig very deep for a dwelling-place, ye that dwell in the palace; for the king of Babylon has framed a counsel, and devised a device against you.

[31] Rise up, and go up against a nation settled and dwelling at ease, who have no doors, nor bolts, nor bars, who dwell alone. [32] And their camels shall be a spoil, and the multitude of their cattle shall be destroyed: and I will scatter them as chaff with every wind, having their hair cut about their foreheads, I will bring on their overthrow from all sides, saith the Lord. [33] And the palace shall be a resting-place for ostriches, and desolate for ever: no man shall abide there, and no son of man shall dwell there.

[23] CONCERNING DAMASCUS. Emath is brought to shame, and Arphath: for they have heard an evil report: they are amazed, they are angry, they shall be utterly unable to rest. [24] Damascus is utterly weakened, she is put to flight; trembling has seized upon her. [25] How has she not left my city, they have loved the village? [26] Therefore shall the young men fall in thy streets, and all thy warriors shall fall, saith the Lord. [27] And I will kindle a fire in the wall of Damascus, and it shall devour the streets of the son of Ader.

Chapter 31

[1] Thus has the Lord said concerning MOAB, Woe to Nabau! for it has perished: Cariathaim is taken: Amath and Agath are put to shame. [2] There is no longer any healing for Moab, nor glorying in Esebon: he has devised evils against her: we have cut her off from being a nation, and she shall be completely still: after thee shall go a sword; [3] for there is a voice of men crying out of Oronaim, destruction and great ruin. [4] Moab is ruined, proclaim it to Zogora: [5] for Aloth is filled with weeping: one shall go up weeping by the way of Oronaim; ye have heard a cry of destruction.

[6] Flee ye, and save your lives, and ye shall be as a wild ass in the desert. [7] Since thou hast trusted in thy strong-hold, therefore thou shalt be taken: and Chamos shall go forth into captivity, and his priests, and his princes together. [8] And destruction shall come upon every city, it shall by no means escape; the valley also shall perish, and the plain country shall be completely destroyed, as the Lord has said. [9] Set marks upon Moab, for she shall be touched with a plague-spot, and all her cities shall become desolate; whence shall there be an inhabitant for her? [10] Cursed is the man that does the works of the Lord carelessly, keeping back his sword from blood.

[11] Moab has been at ease from a child, and trusted in his glory; he has not poured out his liquor from vessel to vessel, and has not gone into banishment, therefore his taste remained in him, and his smell departed not. [12] Therefore, behold, his days come, saith the Lord, when I shall send upon him bad leaders, and they shall lead him astray, and they shall utterly break in pieces his possessions, and shall cut his horns asunder. [13] And Moab shall be ashamed of Chamos, as the house of Israel was ashamed of Baethel their hope, having trusted in them.

[14] How will ye say, We are strong, and men strong for war? [15] Moab is ruined, even his city, and his choice young men have gone down to slaughter. [16] The day of Moab is near at hand, and his iniquity moves swiftly to vengeance. [17] Shake the head at him, all ye that are round about him; all of you utter his name; say ye, How is the glorious staff broken to pieces, the rod of magnificence!

[18] Come down from thy glory, and sit down in a damp place: Daebon shall be broken, because Moab is destroyed: there has gone up against thee one to ravage thy strong-hold. [19] Stand by the way, and look, thou that dwellest in Arer; and ask him that is fleeing, and him that escapes, and say, What has happened?

[20] Moab is put to shame, because he is broken: howl and cry; proclaim in Arnon, that Moab has perished. [21] And judgment is coming against the land of Misor, upon Chelon, and Rephas, and Mophas, [22] and upon Daebon, and upon Nabau, and upon the house of Daethlathaim, [23] and upon Cariathaim, and upon the house of Gaemol, and upon the house of Maon, [24] and upon Carioth, and upon Bosor, and upon all the cities of Moab, far and near. [25] The horn of Moab is broken, and his arm is crushed.

[26] Make ye him drunk; for he has magnified himself against the Lord: and Moab shall clap with his hand, and shall be also himself a laughing-stock. [27] For surely Israel was to thee a laughing-stock, and was found among thy thefts, because thou didst fight against him. [28] The inhabitants of Moab have left the cities, and dwelt in rocks; they have become as doves nestling in rocks, at the mouth of a cave.

[29] And I have heard of the pride of Moab, he has greatly heightened his pride and his haughtiness, and his heart has been lifted up. [30] But I know his works: is it not enough for him? has he not done thus?

[31] Therefore howl ye for Moab on all sides; cry out against the shorn men in a gloomy place. I will weep for thee, [32] O vine of Aserema, as with the weeping of Jazer: thy branches are gone over the sea, they reached the cities of Jazer: destruction has come upon thy fruits, and upon thy grape-gatherers. [33] Joy and gladness have been utterly swept off the land of Moab: and though there was wine in thy presses, in the morning they trod it not, neither in the evening did they raise the cry of joy. [34] From the cry of Esebon even to Ætam their cities uttered their voice, from Zogor to Oronaim, and their tidings as a heifer of three years old, for the water also of Nebrin shall be dried up.

[35] And I will destroy Moab, saith the Lord, as he comes up to the altar, and burns incense to his gods. [36] Therefore the heart of Moab shall sound as pipes, my heart shall sound as a pipe for the shorn men; forasmuch as what every man has gained has perished from him. [37] They shall all have their heads shaved in every place, and every beard shall be shaved; and all hands shall beat the breasts, and on all loins shall be sackcloth. [38] And on all the housetops of Moab, and in his streets shall be mourning: for I have broken him, saith the Lord, as a vessel, which is useless. [39] How has he changed! how has Moab turned his back! Moab is put to shame, and become a laughing-stock, and an object of anger to all that are round about him.

[40] For thus said the Lord; [41] Carioth is taken, and the strong-holds have been taken together. [42] And Moab shall perish from being a multitude, because he has magnified himself against the Lord. [43] A snare, and fear, and the pit, are upon thee, O inhabitant off Moab. [44] he that flees from the terror shall fall into the pit, and he that comes up out of the pit shall even be taken in the snare: for I will bring these things upon Moab in the year of their visitation.

Chapter 32

[15] Thus said the Lord God of Israel; Take the cup of this unmixed wine from mine hand, and thou shalt cause all the nations to drink, to whom I send thee. [16] And they shall drink, and vomit, and be mad, because of the sword which I send among them.

[17] So I took the cup out of the Lord's hand, and caused the nations to whom the Lord sent me to drink: [18] Jerusalem, and the cities of Juda, and the kings of Juda, and his princes, to make them a desert place, a desolation, and a hissing; [19] and Pharaoh king of Egypt, and his servants, and his nobles, and all his people; [20] and all the mingled people, and all the kings of the Philistines, and Ascalon, and Gaza, and Accaron, and the remnant of Azotus, [21] and Idumea, and the land of Moab, and the children of Ammon, [22] and the kings of Tyre, and the kings of Sidon, and the kings in the country beyond the sea, [23] and Daedan, and Thaeman, and Ros, and every one that is shaved round about the face, [24] and all the mingled people lodging in the wilderness, [25] and all the kings of Ælam, and all the kings of the Persians, [26] and all the kings from the north, the far and the near, each one with his brother, and all the kingdom s which are on the face of the earth.

[27] And thou shalt say to them, Thus said the Lord Almighty; Drink ye, be ye drunken; and ye shall vomit, and shall fall, and shall in nowise rise, because of the sword which I send among you. [28] And it shall come to pass, when they refuse to take the cup out of thine hand, to drink it, that thou shalt say, Thus said the Lord; Ye shall surely drink. [29] For I am beginning to afflict the city whereon my name is called, and ye shall by no means be held guiltless: for I am calling a sword upon all that dwell upon the earth.

[30] And thou shalt prophesy against them these words, and shalt say, The Lord shall speak from on high, from his sanctuary he will utter his voice; he will pronounce a declaration on his place; and these shall answer like men gathering grapes: and destruction is coming on them that dwell on the earth, [31] even upon the extreme part of the earth; for the Lord has a controversy with the nations, he is pleading with all flesh, and the ungodly are given to the sword, saith the Lord.

[32] Thus said the Lord; Behold, evils are proceeding from nation to nation, and a great whirlwind goes forth from the end of the earth. [33] And the slain of the Lord shall be in the day of the Lord from one end of the earth even to the other end of the earth: they shall not be buried; they shall be as dung on the face of the earth. [34] Howl, ye shepherds, and cry; and lament, ye rams of the flock: for your days have been completed for slaughter, and ye shall fall as the choice rams. [35] And flight shall perish from the shepherds, and safety from the rams of the flock. [36] A voice of the crying of the shepherds, and a moaning of the sheep and the rams: for the Lord has destroyed their pastures. [37] And the peaceable abodes that remain shall be destroyed before the fierceness of my anger. ^[38] He has forsaken his lair, as a lion: for their land is become desolate before the great sword.

Chapter 33

[1] IN THE BEGINNING OF THE REIGN OF KING JOAKIM SON OF JOSIAS THERE CAME THIS WORD FROM THE LORD.

[2] Thus said the Lord; Stand in the court of the Lord's house, and thou shalt declare to all the Jews, and to all that come to worship in the house of the Lord, all the words which I commanded thee to speak to them; abate not one word. [3] Peradventure they will hear, and turn every one from his evil way: then I will cease from the evils which I purpose to do to them, because of their evil practices. [4] And thou shalt say, Thus said the Lord; If ye will not hearken to me, to walk in my statutes which I set before you, [5] to hearken to the words of my servants the prophets, whom I send to you early in the morning; yea, I sent them, but ye hearkened not to me; [6] then will I make this house as Selo, and I will make this city a curse to all the nations of all the earth.

[7] And the priests, and the false prophets, and all the people heard Jeremiah speaking these words in the house of the Lord. [8] And it came to pass, when Jeremiah had ceased speaking all that the Lord had ordered him to speak to all the people, that the priests and the false prophets and all the people took him, saying, [9] Thou shalt surely die, because thou hast prophesied in the name of the Lord, saying, This house shall be as Selo, and this city shall be made quite destitute of inhabitants.

And all the people assembled against Jeremiah in the house of the Lord. [10] And the princes of Juda heard this word, and they went up out of the house of the king to the house of the Lord, and sat in the entrance of the new gate. [11] Then the priests and the false prophets said to the princes and to all the people, The judgment of death is due to this man; because he has prophesied against this city, as ye have heard with your ears.

[12] Then Jeremiah spoke to the princes, and to all the people, saying, The Lord sent me to prophesy against this house and against this city, all the words which ye have heard. [13] And now amend your ways and your works, and hearken to the voice of the Lord; and the Lord shall cease from the evils which he has pronounced against you. [14] And behold, I am in your hands; do to me as is expedient, and as it is best for you. [15] But know for a certainty, that if ye slay me, ye bring innocent blood upon yourselves, and upon this city, and upon them that dwell in it; for in truth the Lord has sent me to you to speak in your ears all these words.

[16] Then the princes and all the people said to the priests and to the false prophets; Judgment of death is not due to this man; for he has spoken to us in the name of the Lord our God. [17] And there rose up men of the elders of the land, and said to all the assembly of the people, [18] Michaeas the Morathite lived in the days of Ezekias king of Juda, and said to all the people of Juda, Thus saith the Lord; Sion shall be ploughed as a field, and Jerusalem shall become a desolation, and the mountain of the house shall be a thicket of trees.

[19] Did Ezekias and all Juda in any way slay him? Was it not that they feared the Lord, and they made supplication before the Lord, and the Lord ceased from the evils which he had pronounced against them? whereas we have wrought great evil against our own souls.

[20] And there was another man prophesying in the name of the Lord, Urias the son of Samaeas of Cariathiarim; and he prophesied concerning this land according to all the words of Jeremiah. [21] And king Joakim and all the princes heard all his words, and sought to slay him; and Urias heard it and went into Egypt. [22] And the king sent men into Egypt; [23] and they brought him thence, and brought him into the king; and he smote him with the sword, and cast him into the sepulchre of the children of his people. [24] Nevertheless the hand of Achicam son of Saphan was with Jeremiah, to prevent his being delivered into the hands of the people, or being killed.

[1] Thus said the Lord; Make to thyself bonds and yokes, and put them about thy neck, [3] and thou shalt send them to the king of Idumea, and to the king of Moab, and to the king of the children of Ammon, and to the king of Tyre, and to the king of Sidon, by the hands of their messengers that come to meet them at Jerusalem to Sedekias king of Juda. [4] And thou shalt commission them to say to their lords, Thus said the Lord God of Israel; Thus shall ye say to your lords; [5] I have made the earth by my great power, and with my high arm, and I will give it to whomsoever it shall seem good in mine eyes. [6] I gave the earth to Nabuchodonosor king of Babylon to serve him, and the wild beasts of the field to labour for him. [7] 8 And the nation and kingdom, all that shall not put their neck under the yoke of the king of Babylon, with sword and famine will I visit them, saith the Lord, until they are consumed by his hand.

[9] And hearken ye not to your false prophets, nor to them that divine to you, nor to them that foretell events by dreams to you, nor to your auguries, nor your sorcerers, that say, Ye shall by no means work for the king of Babylon: [10] for they prophesy lies to you, to remove you far from your land. [11] But the nation which shall put its neck under the yoke of the king of Babylon, and serve him, I will even leave it upon its land, and it shall serve him, and dwell in it.

[12] I spoke also to Sedekias king of Juda according to all these words, saying, Put your neck into the yoke, and serve the king of Babylon. [13] 14 For they prophesy unrighteous words to you, [15] for I sent them not, saith the Lord; and they prophesy in my name unjustly, that I might destroy you, and ye should perish, and your prophets, who unrighteously prophesy lies to you.

[16] I spoke to you, and to all this people, and to the priests, saying, Thus said the Lord; Hearken not to the words of the prophets that prophesy to you, saying, Behold, the vessels of the Lord's house shall return from Babylon: for they prophesy to you unrighteous words. [17] I sent them not. [18] If they are prophets, and if the word of the Lord is in them, let them meet me, for thus has the Lord said.

[19] And as for the remaining vessels, [20] which the king of Babylon took not, when he carried Jechonias prisoner out of Jerusalem, [21] 22 they shall go into Babylon, saith the Lord.

Chapter 35

[1] And it came to pass in the fourth year of Sedekias king of Juda, in the fifth month, that Ananias the false prophet, the son of Azor, from Gabaon, spoke to me in the house of the Lord, in the sight of the priests and all the people, saying, [2] Thus saith the Lord; I have broken the yoke of the king of Babylon. [3] Yet two full years, and I will return into this place the vessels of the house of the Lord, [4] and Jechonias, and the captivity of Juda: for I will break the yoke of the king of Babylon.

[5] Then Jeremiah spoke to Ananias in the sight of all the people, and in the sight of the priests that stood in the house of the Lord, [6] and Jeremiah said, May the Lord indeed do thus; may he confirm thy word which thou dost prophesy, to return the vessels of the house of the Lord, and all the captivity, out of Babylon to this place. [7] Nevertheless hear ye the word of the Lord which I speak in your ears, and in the ears of all the people. [8] The prophets that were before me and before you of old, also prophesied over much country, and against great kingdoms, concerning war. [9] As for the prophet that has prophesied for peace, when the word has come to pass, they shall know the prophet whom the Lord has sent them in truth.

[10] Then Ananias took the yokes from the neck of Jeremiah in the sight of all the people, and broke them to pieces. [11] And Ananias spoke in the presence of all the people, saying, Thus said the Lord; Thus will I break the yoke of the king of Babylon from the necks of all the nations. And Jeremiah went his way.

[12] And the word of the Lord came to Jeremiah, after that Ananias had broken the yokes off his neck, saying, [13] Go and speak to Ananias, saying, Thus saith the Lord; Thou hast broken the yokes of wood; but I will make instead of them yokes of iron. [14] For thus said the Lord, I have put a yoke of iron on the neck of all the nations, that they may serve the king of Babylon. [15] And Jeremiah said to Ananias, The Lord has not sent thee; and thou hast caused this people to trust in unrighteousness. [16] Therefore thus said the Lord: Behold, I will cast thee off from the face of the earth: this year thou shalt die. [17] So he died in the seventh month.

[1] And these are the words of the book which Jeremiah sent from Jerusalem to the elders of the captivity, and to the priests, and to the false prophets, even an epistle to Babylon for the captivity, and to all the people; [2] (after the departure of Jeconias the king and the queen, and the eunuchs, and every freeman, and bondman, and artificer, out of Jerusalem;) [3] by the hand of Eleasan son of Saphan, and Gamarias son of Chelcias, (whom Sedekias king of Juda sent to the king of Babylon to Babylon) saying, [4] Thus said the Lord God of Israel concerning the captivity which I caused to be carried away from Jerusalem;

[5] Build ye houses, and inhabit them; and plant gardens, and eat the fruits thereof; [6] and take ye wives, and beget sons and daughters; and take wives for your sons, and give your daughters to husbands, and be multiplied, and be not diminished. [7] And seek the peace of the land into which I have carried you captive, and ye shall pray to the Lord for the people: for in its peace ye shall have peace.

[8] For thus saith the Lord; Let not the false prophets that are among you persuade you, and let not your diviners persuade you, and hearken not to your dreams which ye dream. [9] For they prophesy to you unrighteous words in my name; and I sent them not. [10] For thus said the Lord; When seventy years shall be on the point of being accomplished at Babylon, I will visit you, and will confirm my words to you, to bring back your people to this place. [11] And I will devise for you a device of peace, and not evil, to bestow upon you these good things. [12] And do ye pray to me, and I will hearken to you: and do ye earnestly seek me, and ye shall find me; [13] for ye shall seek me with your whole heart. [14] And I will appear to you: [15] whereas ye said, The Lord has appointed for us prophets in Babylon:

[16] 17 [18] 19 [20] 21 Thus saith the Lord concerning Achiab, and concerning Sedekias; Behold, I will deliver them into the hands of the king of Babylon; and he shall smite them in your sight. [22] And they shall make of them a curse in all the captivity of Juda in Babylon, saying, The Lord do to thee as he did to Sedekias, and as he did to Achiab, whom the king of Babylon fried in the fire; [23] because of the iniquity which they wrought in Israel, and because they committed adultery with the wives of their fellow-citizens; and spoke a word in my name, which I did not command them to speak, and I am witness, saith the Lord.

[24] And to Samaeas the Ælamite thou shalt say, [25] I sent thee not in my name: and to Sophonias the priest the son of Maasaes say thou, [26] The Lord has made thee priest in the place of Jodae the priest, to be ruler in the house of the Lord over every prophet, and to every madman, and thou shalt put them in prison, and into the dungeon. [27] And now wherefore have ye reviled together Jeremiah of Anathoth, who prophesied to you? [28] Did he not send for this purpose? for in the course of this month he sent to you to Babylon, saying, It is far off: build ye houses, and inhabit them; and plant gardens, and eat the fruit of them. ^[29] And Sophonias read the book in the ears of Jeremiah.

^[30] Then the word of the Lord came to Jeremiah, saying, ^[31] Send to the captivity, saying, Thus saith the Lord concerning Samaeas the Ælamite, Since Samaeas has prophesied to you, and I sent him not, and he has made you to trust in iniquity, ^[32] therefore thus saith the Lord; Behold, I will visit Samaeas, and his family: and there shall not be a man of them in the midst of you to see the good which I will do to you: they shall not see it.

[1] THE WORD THAT CAME TO JEREMIAS FROM THE LORD, SAYING, [2] Thus speaks the Lord God of Israel, saying,

Write all the words which I have spoken to thee in a book. [3] For, behold, the days come, saith the Lord, when I will bring back the captivity of my people Israel and Juda, said the Lord: and I will bring them back to the land which I gave to their fathers, and they shall be lords of it.

[4] AND THESE ARE THE WORDS WHICH THE LORD SPOKE CONCERNING ISRAEL AND JUDA;

[5] Thus said the Lord: Ye shall hear a sound of fear, there is fear, and there is not peace. [6] Enquire, and see if a male has born a child? and ask concerning the fear, wherein they shall hold their loins, and look for safety: for I have seen every man, and his hands are on his loins; their faces are turned to paleness. [7] For that day is great, and there is not such another; and it is a time of straitness to Jacob; but he shall be saved out of it. [8] In that day, said the Lord, I will break the yoke off their neck, and will burst their bonds, and they shall no longer serve strangers: [9] but they shall serve the Lord their God; and I will raise up to them David their king.

[10] 11 [12] Thus saith the Lord; I have brought on thee destruction; thy stroke is painful. [13] There is none to judge thy cause: thou hast been painfully treated for healing, there is no help for thee. [14] All thy friends have forgotten thee; they shall not ask about thee at all, for I have smitten thee with he stroke of an enemy, even severe correction: thy sins have abounded above all thine iniquity. [15] Thy sins have abounded beyond the multitude of thine iniquities, therefore they have done these things to thee. Therefore all that devour thee shall be eaten, and all thine enemies shall eat all their own flesh. [16] And they that spoil thee shall become a spoil, and I will give up to be plundered all that have plundered thee. [17] For I will bring about thy healing, I will heal thee of thy grievous wound, saith the Lord; for thou art called Dispersed: she is your prey, for no one seeks after her.

[18] Thus said the Lord; Behold, I will turn the captivity of Jacob, and will have pity upon his prisoners; and the city shall be built upon her hill, and the people shall settle after their manner. [19] And there shall go forth from them singers, even the sound of men making merry: and I will multiply them, and they shall not at all be diminished. [20] And their sons shall go in as before, and their testimonies shall be established before me, and I will visit them that afflict them. [21] And their mighty ones shall be over them, and their prince shall proceed of themselves; and I will gather them, and they shall return to me: for who is this that has set his heart to return to me? saith the Lord.

[22] 23 For the wrathful anger of the lord has gone forth, even a whirlwind of anger has gone forth: it shall come upon the ungodly. [24] The fierce anger of the Lord shall not return, until he shall execute it, and until he shall establish the purpose of his heart: in the latter days ye shall know these things.

[1] At that time, saith the Lord, I will be a God to the family of Israel, and they shall be to me a people. [2] Thus saith the Lord, I found him warm in the wilderness with them that were slain with the sword: go ye and destroy not Israel. [3] The Lord appeared to him from afar, saying, I have loved thee with an everlasting love: therefore have I drawn thee in compassion. [4] For I will build thee, and thou shalt be built, O virgin of Israel: thou shalt yet take thy timbrel, and go forth with the party of them that make merry. [5] For ye have planted vineyards on the mountains of Samaria: plant ye, and praise. [6] For it is a day when those that plead on the mountains of Ephraim shall call, saying, Arise ye, and go up to Sion to the Lord your God.

[7] For thus saith the Lord to Jacob; Rejoice ye, and exult over the head of the nations: make proclamation, and praise ye: say, The Lord has delivered his people, the remnant of Israel. [8] Behold, I bring them from the north, and will gather them from the end of the earth to the feast of the passover: and the people shall beget a great multitude, and they shall return hither. [9] They went forth with weeping, and I will bring them back with consolation, causing them to lodge by the channels of waters in a straight way, and they shall not err in it: for I am become a father to Israel, and Ephraim is my first-born.

[10] Hear the words of the Lord, ye nations, and proclaim them to the islands afar off; say, He that scattered Israel will also gather him, and keep him as one that feeds his flock. [11] For the Lord has ransomed Jacob, he has rescued him out of the hand of them that were stronger than he. [12] And they shall come, and shall rejoice in the mount of Sion, and shall come to the good things of the Lord, even to a land of corn, and wine, and fruits, and cattle, and sheep: and their soul shall be as a fruitful tree; and they shall hunger no more. [13] Then shall the virgins rejoice in the assembly of youth, and the old men shall rejoice; and I will turn their mourning into joy, and will make them merry. [14] I will expand and cheer with wine the soul of the priests the sons of Levi, and my people shall be satisfied with my good things: thus saith the Lord.

[15] A voice was heard in Rama, of lamentation, and of weeping, and wailing; Rachel would not cease weeping for her children, because they are not.

[16] Thus saith the Lord; Let thy voice cease from weeping, and thine eyes from thy tears: for their is a reward for thy works; and they shall return from the land of thine enemies. [17] There shall be an abiding home for thy children.

[18] I have heard the sound of Ephraim lamenting, and saying, Thou hast chastened me, and I was chastened; I as a calf was not willingly taught: turn thou me, and I shall turn; for thou art the Lord my God. [19] For after my captivity I repented; and after I knew, I groaned for the day of shame, and shewed thee that I bore reproach from my youth. [20] Ephraim is a beloved son, a pleasing child to me: for because my words are in him, I will surely remember him: therefore I made haste to help him; I will surely have mercy upon him, saith the Lord.

[21] Prepare thyself, O Sion; execute vengeance; look to thy ways: return, O virgin of Israel, by the way by which thou wentest, return mourning to thy cities. [22] How long, O disgraced daughter, wilt thou turn away? for the Lord has created safety for a new plantation: men shall go about in safety.

[23] For thus saith the Lord; They shall yet speak this word in the land of Juda, and in the cities thereof, when I shall turn his captivity; blessed be the Lord on his righteous holy mountain! [24] And there shall be dwellers in the cities of Juda, and in all his land, together with the husbandman, and the shepherd shall go forth with the flock. [25] For I have saturated every thirsting soul, and filled every hungry soul. [26] Therefore I awake, and beheld; and my sleep was sweet to me.

[27] Therefore, behold, the days come, saith the Lord, when I will sow the house of Israel and the house of Juda with the seed of man, and the seed of beast. [28] And it shall come to pass, that as I watched over them, to pull down, and to afflict, so will I watch over them, to build, and to plant, saith the Lord. [29] In those days they shall certainly not say, The fathers ate a sour grape, and the children's teeth were set on edge. [30] But every one shall die in his own sin; and the teeth of him that eats the sour grape shall be set on edge.

[31] Behold, the days come, saith the Lord, when I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel, and with the house of Juda: [32] not according to the covenant which I made with their fathers in the day when I took hold of their hand to bring them out of the land of Egypt; for they abode not in my covenant, and I disregarded them, saith the Lord. [33] For this is my covenant which I will make with the house of Israel; after those days, saith the Lord, I will surely put my laws into their mind, and write them on their hearts; and I will be to them a God, and they shall be to me a people. [34] And they shall not at all teach every one his fellow citizen, and every one his brother, saying, Know the Lord: for all shall know me, from the least of them to the greatest of them: for I will be merciful to their iniquities, and their sins I will remember no more. [35] Thus saith the Lord, who gives the sun for a light by day, the moon and the stars for a light by night, and makes a roaring in the sea, so that the waves thereof roar; the Lord Almighty is his name: [36] if these ordinances cease from before me, saith the Lord, then shall the family of Israel cease to be a nation before me forever.

[37] Though the sky should be raised to a greater height, saith the Lord, and though the ground of the earth should be sunk lower beneath, yet I will not cast off the family of Israel, saith the Lord, for all that they have done.

[38] Behold, the days come, saith the Lord, when the city shall be built to the Lord from the tower of Anameel to the gate of the corner. [39] And the measurement of it shall proceed in front of them as far as the hills of Gareb, and it shall be compassed with a circular wall of choice stones. [40] And all the Asaremoth even to Nachal Kedron, as far as the corner of the horse-gate eastward, shall be holiness to the Lord; and it shall not fail any more, and shall not be destroyed for ever.

Chapter 39

[1] The word that came from the Lord to Jeremiah in the tenth year of king Sedekias, this is the eighteenth year of king Nabuchodonosor king of Babylon.

[2] And the host of the king of Babylon had made a rampart against Jerusalem: and Jeremiah was kept in the court of the prison, which is in the king's house; [3] in which king Sedekias had shut him up, saying, Wherefore dost thou prophesy, saying, Thus saith the Lord, Behold, I will give this city into the hands of the king of Babylon, and he shall take it; [4] and Sedekias shall by no means be delivered out of the hand of the Chaldeans, for he shall certainly be given up into the hands of the king of Babylon, and his mouth shall speak to his mouth, and his eyes shall look upon his eyes; [5] and Sedekias shall go into Babylon, and dwell there?

[6] AND THE WORD OF THE LORD CAME TO JEREMIAS, SAYING, [7] Behold, Anameel the son of Salom thy father's brother is coming to thee, saying, Buy thee my field that is in Anathoth: for thou hast the right to take it as a purchase.

[8] So Anameel the son of Salom my father's brother came to me into the court of the prison, and said, Buy thee my field that is in the land of Benjamin, in Anathoth: for thou hast a right to buy it, and thou art the elder. So I knew that it was the word of the Lord. [9] And I bought the field of Anameel the son of my father's brother, and I weighed him seventeen shekels of silver. [10] And I wrote it in a book, and sealed it, and took the testimony of witnesses, and weighed the money in the balance. [11] And I took the book of the purchase that was sealed; [12] and I gave it to Baruch son of Nerias, son of Maasaeas, in the sight of Anameel my father's brother's son, and in the sight of the men that stood by and wrote in the book of the purchase, and in the sight of the Jews that were in the court of the prison. [13] And I charged Baruch in their presence, saying, Thus saith the Lord Almighty; [14] Take this book of the purchase, and the book that has been read; and thou shalt put it into an earthen vessel, that it may remain many days. [15] For thus saith the Lord; There shall yet be bought fields and houses and vineyards in this land.

[16] And I prayed to the Lord after I had given the book of the purchase to Baruch the son of Nerias, saying,

[17] O ever living Lord! thou hast made the heaven and the earth by thy great power, and with thy high and lofty arm: nothing can be hidden from thee. [18] Granting mercy to thousands, and recompensing the sins of the fathers into the bosoms of their children after them: the great, the strong God; [19] the Lord of great counsel, and mighty in deeds, the great Almighty God, and Lord of great name: thine eyes are upon the ways of the children of men, to give to every one according to his way: [20] who hast wrought signs and wonders in the land of Egypt even to this day, and in Israel, and among the inhabitants of the earth; and thou didst make for thyself a name, as at this day; [21] and thou didst bring out thy people Israel out of the land of Egypt with signs, and with wonders, with a mighty hand, and with a high arm, and with great sights; [22] and thou gavest them this land, which thou didst swear to give to their fathers, a land flowing with milk and honey; [23] and they went in, and took it; but they hearkened not to thy voice, and walked not in thine ordinances; they did none of the things which thou didst command them, and they caused all these calamities to happen to them. [24] Behold, a multitude is come against the city to take it; and the city is given into the hands of the Chaldeans that fight against it, by the power of the sword, and the famine: as thou hast spoken, so has it happened. [25] And thou sayest to me, Buy thee the field for money; and I wrote a book, and sealed it, and took the testimony of witnesses: and the city is given into the hands of the Chaldeans.

[26] And the word of the Lord came to me, saying,

[27] I am the Lord, the God of all flesh: shall anything be hidden from me! [28] Therefore thus saith the Lord God of Israel; This city shall certainly be delivered into the hands of the king of Babylon, and he shall take it: [29] and the Chaldeans shall come to war against this city, and they shall burn this city with fire, and shall burn down the houses wherein they burnt incense on the roofs thereof to Baal, and poured drink-offerings to other gods, to provoke me. [30] For the children of Israel and the children of Juda alone did evil in my sight from their youth. [31] For this city was obnoxious to my anger and my wrath, from the day that they built it even to this day; that I should remove it from my presence, [32] because of all the wickedness of the children of Israel and Juda, which they wrought to provoke me, they and their kings, and their princes, and their priests, and their prophets, the men of Juda, and the dwellers in Jerusalem. [33] And they turned the back to me, and not the face: whereas I taught them early in the morning, but they hearkened no more to receive instructions. [34] And they set their pollutions in the house, on which my name was called, by their uncleannesses. [35] And they built to Baal the altars that are in the valley of the son of Ennom, to offer their sons and their daughters to king Moloch; which things I commanded them not, neither came it into my mind that they should do this abomination, to cause Juda to sin.

[36] And now thus has the Lord God of Israel said concerning this city, of which thou sayest, it shall be delivered into the hands of the king of Babylon by the sword, and by famine, and banishment. [37] Behold, I will gather them out of every land, where I have scattered them in my anger, and my wrath, and great fury; and I will bring them back into this place, and will cause them to dwell safely: [38] and they shall be to me a people, and I will be to them a god. [39] And I will give them another way, and another heart, to fear me continually, and that for good to them and their children after them. [40] And I will make with them an everlasting covenant, which I will by no means turn away from them, and I will put my fear into their heart, that they may not depart from me. [41] And I will visit them to do them good, and I will plant them in this land in faithfulness, and with all my heart, and with all my soul.

[42] For thus saith the Lord; As I have brought upon this people all these great evils, so will I bring upon them all the good things which I pronounced upon them. [43] And there shall yet be fields bought in the land, of which thou sayest, it shall be destitute of man and beast; and they are delivered into the hands of the Chaldeans. [44] And they shall buy fields for money, and thou shalt write a book, and seal it, and shalt take the testimony of witnesses in the land of Benjamin, and round about Jerusalem, and in the cities of Juda, and in the cities of the mountain, and in the cities of the plain, and in the cities of the south: for I will turn their captivity.

Chapter 40

[1] And the word of the Lord came to Jeremiah the second time, when he was yet bound in the court of the prison, saying,

[2] Thus saith the Lord, who made the earth and formed it, to establish it; the Lord is his name; [3] Cry to me, and I will answer thee, and I will declare to thee great and mighty things, which thou knowest not. [4] For thus saith the Lord concerning the houses of this city, and concerning the houses of the king of Juda, which have been pulled down for mounds and fortifications, [5] to fight against the Chaldeans, and to fill it with the corpses of men, whom I smote in mine anger and my wrath, and turned away my face from them, for all their wickedness: [6] Behold, I bring upon her healing and cure, and I will show myself to them, and will heal her, and make both peace and security.

[7] And I will turn the captivity of Juda, and the captivity of Israel, and will build them, even as before. [8] And I will cleanse them from all their iniquities, whereby they have sinned against me, and will not remember their sins, whereby they have sinned against me, and revolted from me. [9] And it shall be for joy and praise, and for glory to all the people of the earth, who shall hear all the good that I will do: and they shall fear and be provoked for all the good things and for all the peace which I will bring upon them.

[10] Thus saith the Lord; There shall yet be heard in this place, of which ye say, it is destitute of men and cattle, in the cities of Juda, and in the streets of Jerusalem, the places that have been made desolate for want of men and cattle, [11] the voice of gladness, and the voice of joy, the voice of the bridegroom, and the voice of the bride, the voice of men saying, Give thanks to the Lord Almighty: for the Lord is good; for his mercy endures fore ever: and they shall bring gifts into the house of the Lord; for I will turn all the captivity of that land as before, said the Lord. [12] Thus saith the Lord of hosts; There shall yet be in this place, that is desert for want of man and beast, in all the cities thereof, resting-places for shepherds causing their flocks to lie down. [13] In the cities of the hill country, and in the cities of the valley, and in the cities of the south, and in the land of Benjamin, and in the cities round about Jerusalem, and in the cities of Juda, flocks shall yet pass under the hand of him that numbers them, saith the Lord.

[1] The word that came to Jeremiah from the Lord (now Nabuchodonosor king of Babylon, and all his army, and all the country of his dominion, were warring against Jerusalem, and against all the cities of Juda,) saying,

[2] Thus has the Lord said; Go to Sedekias king of Juda, and thou shalt say to him, Thus has the Lord said, This city shall certainly be delivered into the hands of the king of Babylon, and he shall take it, and shall burn it with fire: [3] and thou shalt not escape out of his hand, but shalt certainly be taken, and shalt be given into his hands; and thine eyes shall see his eyes, and thou shalt enter into Babylon.

[4] But hear the word of the Lord, O Sedekias king of Juda; Thus saith the Lord, [5] Thou shalt die in peace: and as they wept for thy fathers that reigned before thee, they shall weep also for thee, saying, Ah lord! and they shall lament for thee down to the grave: for I have spoken the word, said the Lord.

[6] And Jeremiah spoke to king Sedekias all these words in Jerusalem. [7] And the host of the king of Babylon warred against Jerusalem, and against the cities of Juda, and against Lachis, and against Azeca: for these strong cities were left among the cities of Juda.

[8] The word that came from the Lord to Jeremiah, after king Sedekias had concluded a covenant with the people, to proclaim a release; [9] That every one should set at liberty his servant, and every one his handmaid, the Hebrew man and Hebrew woman, that no man of Juda should be a bondman. [10] Then all the nobles, and all the people who had entered into the covenant, engaging to set free every one his man-servant, and every one his maid, turned, [11] and gave them over to be men-servants and maid-servants.

[12] And the word of the Lord came to Jeremiah, saying, [13] Thus saith the Lord; I made a covenant with your fathers in the day wherein I took them out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of bondage, saying, [14] When six years are accomplished, thou shalt set free thy brother the Hebrew, who shall be sold to thee: for he shall serve thee six years, and then thou shalt let him go free: but they hearkened not to me, and inclined not their ear. [15] And this day they turned to do that which was right in my sight, to proclaim every one the release of his neighbour; and they had concluded a covenant before me, in the house whereon my name is called. [16] But ye turned and profaned my name, to bring back every one his servant, and every one his handmaid, whom ye had sent forth free and at their own disposal, to be to you men-servants and maid-servants.

[17] Therefore thus said the Lord; Ye have not hearkened to me, to proclaim a release every one to his neighbour: behold, I proclaim a release to you, to the sword, and to the pestilence, and to the famine; and I will give you up to dispersion among all the kingdoms of the earth. [18] And I will give the men that have transgressed my covenant, who have not kept my covenant, which they made before me, the calf which they prepared to sacrifice with it, ^[19] the princes of Juda, and the men in power, and the priests, and the people; ^[20] I will even give them to their enemies, and their carcases shall be food for the birds of the sky and for the wild beasts of the earth. ^[21] And I will give Sedekias king of Judea, and their princes, into the hands of their enemies, and the host of the king of Babylon shall come upon them that run away from them. ^[22] Behold, I will give command, saith the Lord, and will bring them back to this land; and they shall fight against it, and take it, and burn it with fire, and the cities of Juda; and I will make them desolate without inhabitants.

[1] THE WORD THAT CAME TO JEREMIAS from the Lord in the days of Joakim, king of Juda, saying, [2] Go to the house of the Archabin, and thou shalt bring them to the house of the Lord, into one of the courts, and give them wine to drink.

[3] So I brought forth Jechonias the son of Jeremin the son of Chabasin, and his brethren, and his sons, and all the family of the Archabin; [4] and I brought them into the house of the Lord, into the chamber of the sons of Joanan, the son of Ananias, the son of Godolias, a man of God, who dwells near the house of the princes that are over the house of Maasaeas the son of Selom, who kept the court. [5] And I set before them a jar of wine, and cups, and I said, Drink ye wine.

[6] But they said, We will on no account drink wine, for our father Jonadab the son of Rechab commanded us, saying, Ye shall on no account drink wine, neither ye, nor your sons for ever: [7] nor shall ye at all build houses, nor sow any seed, nor shall ye have a vineyard: for ye shall dwell in tents all your days; that ye may live many days upon the land, in which ye sojourn. [8] And we hearkened to the voice of Jonadab our father, so as to drink no wine all our days, we, and our wives, and our sons, and our daughters; [9] and so as to build no houses to dwell in: and we have had no vineyard, nor field, nor seed: [10] but we have dwelt in tents, and have hearkened, and done according to all that Jonadab our father commanded us. [11] And it came to pass, when Nabuchodonosor came up against the land, that we said we would come in; and we entered into Jerusalem, for fear of the host of the Chaldeans, and for fear of the host of the Assyrians: and we dwelt there.

[12] And the word of the Lord came to me, saying, [13] Thus saith the Lord, Go, and say to the men of Juda, and to them that dwell in Jerusalem, Will ye not receive correction to hearken to my words? [14] The sons of Jonadab the son of Rechab have kept the word which he commanded his children, that they should drink no wine; and they have not drunk it: but I spoke to you early, and ye hearkened not. [15] And I sent to you my servants the prophets, saying, Turn ye every one from his evil way, and amend your practices, and go not after other gods to serve them, and ye shall dwell upon the land which I gave to you and to your fathers: but ye inclined not your ears, and hearkened not. [16] But the sons of Jonadab the son of Rechab have kept the command of their father; but this people has not hearkened to me. [17] Therefore thus saith the Lord; Behold, I will bring upon Juda and upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem all the evils which I pronounced against them.

[18] Therefore thus saith the Lord; Since the sons of Jonadab the son of Rechab have hearkened to the command of their father, to do as their father commanded them: [19] there shall never be wanting a man of the sons of Jonadab the son of Rechab to stand before my face while the earth remains.

Chapter 43

[1] IN THE FOURTH YEAR OF JOAKIM son of Josias king of Juda, the word of the Lord came to me, saying,

[2] Take thee a roll of a book, and write upon it all the words which I spoke to thee against Jerusalem, and against Juda, and against all the nations, from the day when I spoke to thee, from the days of Josias king of Juda, even to this day. [3] Perhaps the house of Juda will hear all the evils which I purpose to do to them; that they may turn from their evil way; and so I will be merciful to their iniquities and their sins.

[4] So Jeremiah called Baruch the son of Nerias: and he wrote from the mouth of Jeremiah all the words of the Lord, which he had spoken to him, on a roll of a book. [5] And Jeremiah commanded Baruch, saying, I am in prison; I cannot enter into the house of the Lord: [6] so thou shalt read in this roll in the ears of the people in the house of the Lord, on the fast day; and in the ears of all Juda that come out of their cities, thou shalt read to them. [7] Peradventure their supplication will come before the Lord, and they will turn from their evil way: for great is the wrath and the anger of the Lord, which he has pronounced against this people.

[8] And Baruch did according to all that Jeremiah commanded him — reading in the book the words of the Lord in the Lord's house. [9] And it came to pass in the eighth year of king Joakim, in the ninth month, all the people in Jerusalem, and the house of Juda, proclaimed a fast before the Lord. [10] And Baruch read in the book the words of Jeremiah in the house of the Lord, in the house of Gamarias son of Saphan the scribe, in the upper court, in the entrance of the new gate of the house of the Lord, and in the ears of all the people.

[11] And Michaeas the son of Gamarias the son of Saphan heard all the words of the Lord, out of the book. [12] And he went down to the king's house, into the house of the scribe: and, behold, there were sitting there all the princes, Elisama the scribe, and Dalaeas the son of Selemias, and Jonathan the son of Acchobor, and Gamarias the son of Saphan, and Sedekias the son of Ananias, and all the princes. [13] And Michaeas reported to them all the words which he had heard Baruch reading in the ears of the people.

[14] And all the princes sent to Baruch son of Nerias Judin the son of Nathanias, the son of Selemias, the son of Chusi, saying, Take in thine hand the roll in which thou readest in the ears of the people, and come. So Baruch took the roll, and went down to them. [15] And they said to him, Read it again in our ears. And Baruch read it. [16] And it came to pass, when they had heard all the words, that they took counsel each with his neighbour, and said, Let us by all means tell the king all these words. [17] And they asked Baruch, saying, Where didst thou write all these words? [18] And Baruch said, Jeremiah told me from his own mouth all these words, and I wrote them in a book. [19] And they said to Baruch, Go, and hide, thou and Jeremiah; let no man know where ye are.

[20] And they went in to the king into the court, and gave the roll to one to keep in the house of Elisama; and they told the king all these words. [21] And the king sent Judin to fetch the roll: and he took it out of the house of Elisama: and Judin read in the ears of the king, and in the ears of all the princes who stood round the king. [22] Now the king was sitting in the winter house: and there was a fire on the hearth before him. [23] And it came to pass when Judin had read three or four leaves, he cut them off with a penknife, and cast them into the fire that was on the hearth, until the whole roll was consumed in the fire that was on the hearth. [24] And the king and his servants that heard all these words sought not the Lord, and rent not their garments. [25] But Elnathan and Godolias suggested to the king that he should burn the roll.

[26] And the king commanded Jeremeel the king's son, and Saraeas the son of Esriel, to take Baruch and Jeremiah: but they were hidden.

[27] Then the word of the Lord came to Jeremiah, after the king had burnt the roll, even all the words which Baruch wrote from the mouth of Jeremiah, saying, [28] Again take thou another roll, and write all the words that were on the roll, which king Joakim has burnt. [29] And thou shalt say, Thus saith the Lord; Thou hast burnt this roll, saying, Why hast thou written therein, saying, The king of Babylon shall certainly come in, and destroy this land, and man and cattle shall fail from off it?

[30] Therefore thus saith the Lord concerning Joakim king of Juda; He shall not have a man to sit on the throne of David: and his carcass shall be cast forth in the heat by day, and in the frost by night. [31] And I will visit him, and his family, and his servants: and I will bring upon him, and upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and upon the land of Juda, all the evils which I spoke of to them; and they hearkened not.

[32] And Baruch took another roll, and wrote upon it from the mouth of Jeremiah all the words of the book which Joakim had burnt: and there were yet more words added to it like the former.

Chapter 44

[1] And Sedekias the son of Josias reigned instead of Joakim, whom Nabuchodonosor appointed to reign over Juda. [2] And he and his servants and the people of the land hearkened not to the words of the Lord, which he spoke by Jeremiah.

[3] And king Sedekias sent Joachal son of Selemias and Sophonias the priest son of Maasaeas to Jeremiah, saying, Pray now for us to the Lord. [4] Now Jeremiah came and went through the midst of the city: for they had not put him into the house of the prison. [5] And the host of Pharaos came forth out of Egypt; and the Chaldeans heard the report of them, and they went up from Jerusalem.

[6] And the word of the Lord came to Jeremiah, saying, [7] Thus said the Lord; Thus shalt thou say to the king of Juda who sent to thee, to seek me; Behold, the army of Pharaos which is come forth to help you: they shall return to the land of Egypt: [8] and the Chaldeans themselves shall turn again, and fight against this city, and take it, and burn it with fire. [9] For thus saith he Lord; Suppose not in your hearts, saying, The Chaldeans will certainly depart from us: for they shall not depart. [10] And though ye should smite the whole host of the Chaldeans that fight against you, and there should be left a few wounded men, these should rise up each in his place, and burn this city with fire.

[11] And it came to pass, when the host of the Chaldeans had gone up from Jerusalem for fear of the host of Pharaos, [12] that Jeremiah went forth from Jerusalem to go into the land of Benjamin, to buy thence a property in the midst of the people. [13] And he was in the gate of Benjamin, and there was there a man with whom he lodged, Saruia the son of Selemias, the son of Ananias; and he caught Jeremiah, saying, Thou art fleeing to the Chaldeans. [14] And he said, It is false; I do not flee to the Chaldeans. But he hearkened not to him; and Saruia caught Jeremiah, and brought him to the princes. [15] And the princes were very angry with Jeremiah, and smote him, and sent him into the house of Jonathan the scribe: for they had made this a prison.

[16] So Jeremiah came into the dungeon, and into the cells, and he remained there many days. [17] Then Sedekias sent, and called him; and the king asked him secretly, saying, Is there a word from the Lord? and he said, There is: thou shalt be delivered into the hands of the king of Babylon. [18] And Jeremiah said to the king, Wherein have I wronged thee, or thy servants, or this people, that thou puttest me in prison? [19] And where are your prophets who prophesied to you saying, The king of Babylon shall not come against this land? [20] Now therefore, my lord the king, let my supplication come before thy face: and why dost thou send me back to the house of Jonathan the scribe? and let me not on any account die there. [21] Then the king commanded, and they cast him into the prison, and gave him a loaf a day out of the place where they bake, until the bread failed out of the city. So Jeremiah continued in the court of the prison.

Chapter 45

[1] And Saphanias the son of Nathan, and Godolias the son of Paschor, and Joachal the son of Semelias, heard the words which Jeremiah spoke to the people, saying,

[2] Thus saith the Lord; He that remains in this city shall die by the sword, and by the famine: but he that goes out to the Chaldeans shall live; and his soul shall be given him for a found treasure, and he shall live. [3] For thus saith the Lord; This city shall certainly be delivered into the hands of the host of the king of Babylon, and they shall take it. [4] And they said to the king. Let that man, we pray thee, be slain, for he weakens the hands of the fighting men that are left in the city, and the hands of all the people, speaking to them according to these words: for this man does not prophesy peace to this people, but evil. [5] Then the king said, Behold, he is in your hands. For the king could not resist them. [6] And they cast him into the dungeon of Melchias the king's son, which was in the court of the prison; and they let him down into the pit: and there was no water in the pit, but mire: and he was in the mire.

[7] And Abdemelech the Ethiopian heard, (now he was in the king's household,) that they had put Jeremiah into the dungeon; and the king was in the gate of Benjamin: [8] and he went forth to him, and spoke to the king and said, [9] Thou hast done evil in what thou hast done to slay this man with hunger: for there is no more bread in the city. [10] And the king commanded Abdemelech, saying, Take with thee hence thirty men, and bring him up out of the dungeon, that he die not. [11] So Abdemelech took the men and went into the underground part of the king's house, and took thence old rags and old ropes, and threw them to Jeremiah into the dungeon. [12] And he said, Put these under the ropes. And Jeremiah did so. [13] And they drew him with the ropes, and lifted him out of the dungeon: and Jeremiah remained in the court of the prison.

[14] Then the king sent, and called him to himself into the house of Aselisel, which was in the house of the Lord: and the King said to him, I will ask thee a question, and I pray thee hide nothing from me.

[15] And Jeremiah said to the king, If I tell thee, wilt thou not certainly put me to death? and if I give thee counsel, thou wilt not at all hearken to me. [16] And the king swore to him, saying, As the Lord lives who gave us this soul, I will not slay thee, neither will I give thee into the hands of these men.

[17] And Jeremiah said to him, Thus saith the Lord; If thou wilt indeed go forth to the captains of the king of Babylon, thy soul shall live, and this city shall certainly not be burnt with fire; and thou shalt live, and thy house. [18] But if thou wilt not go forth this city shall be delivered into the hands of the Chaldeans, and they shall burn it with fire, and thou shalt by no means escape.

[19] And the king said to Jeremiah, I consider the Jews that have gone over to the Chaldeans, lest they deliver me into their hands, and they mock me.

[20] And Jeremiah said, They shall in no wise deliver thee up. Hear the word of the Lord which I speak to thee; and it shall be better for thee, and thy soul shall live. [21] But if thou wilt not go forth, this is the word which the Lord has shewn me. [22] And, behold, all the women that are left in the house of the king of Juda were brought forth to the princes of the king of Babylon; and they said, The men who were at peace with thee have deceived thee, and will prevail against thee; and they shall cause thy foot to slide and fail, they have turned back from thee. [23] And they shall bring forth thy wives and thy children to the Chaldeans: and thou shalt by no means escape, for thou shalt be taken by the hand of the king of Babylon, and this city shall be burnt.

[24] Then the king said to him, Let no man know any of these words, and certainly thou shalt not die. [25] And if the princes shall hear that I have spoken to thee, and they come to thee, and say to thee, Tell us, what said the king to thee? hide it not from us, and we will in no wise slay thee, and what said the king to thee? [26] Then thou shalt say to them, I brought my supplication before the presence of the king, that he would not send me back into the house of Jonathan, that I should die there.

[27] And all the princes came to Jeremiah, and asked him: and he told them according to all these words, which the king had commanded him. And they were silent, because the word of the Lord was not heard. [28] And Jeremiah remained in the court of the prison, until the time when Jerusalem was taken.

[1] And it came to pass in the ninth month of Sedekias king of Juda, that Nabuchodonosor king of Babylon came, and all his host, against Jerusalem, and they besieged it. [2] And in the eleventh year of Sedekiass, in the fourth month, on the ninth day of the month, the city was broken up. [3] And all the leaders of the king of Babylon went in, and sat in the middle gate, Marganasar, and Samagoth, and Nabusachar, and Nabusaris, Nagargas, Naserrabamath, and the rest of the leaders of the king of Babylon, [4] 5 [6] 7 [8] 9 [10] 11 [12] 13 [14] and they sent, and took Jeremiah out of the court of the prison, and gave him in charge to Godolias the son of Achicam, the son of Saphan: and they brought him out, and he sat in the midst of the people.

[15] And the word of the Lord came to Jeremiah in the court of the prison, saying, [16] Go and say to Abdemelech the Ethiopian, Thus said the Lord God of Israel; Behold, I will bring my words upon this city for evil, and not for good. [17] But I will save thee in that day, and I will by no means deliver thee into the hands of the men before whom thou art afraid. [18] For I will surely save thee, and thou shalt by no means fall by the sword; and thou shalt find thy life, because thou didst trust in me, saith the Lord.

[1] The word that came from the Lord to Jeremiah, after that Nabuzardan the captain of the guard had let him go out of Rama, when he had taken him in manacles in the midst of the captivity of Juda, even those who were carried to Babylon.

[2] And the chief captain of the guard took him, and said to him, The Lord thy God has pronounced all these evils upon this place: [3] and the Lord has done it; because ye sinned against him, and hearkened not to his voice. [4] Behold, I have loosed thee from the manacles that were upon thine hands. If it seem good to thee to go with me to Babylon, then will I set mine eyes upon thee. [5] But if not, depart; return to Godolias the son of Achicam, the son of Saphan, whom the king of Babylon has appointed governor in the land of Juda, and dwell with him in the midst of the people in the land of Juda: to whatsoever places it seems good in thine eyes to go, do thou even go. And the captain of the guard made him presents, and let him go. [6] And he came to Godolias to Massepha, and dwelt in the midst of his people that was left in the land.

[7] And all the leaders of the host that was in the country, they and their men, heard that the king of Babylon had appointed Godolias governor in the land, and they committed to him the men and their wives, whom Nabuchodonosor had not removed to Babylon. [8] And there came to Godolias to Massepha Ismael the son of Nathanias, and Joanan son of Caree, and Saraeas the son of Thanaemeth, and the sons of Jophe the Netophathite, and Ezonias son of the Mochathite, they and their men.

[9] And Godolias swore to them and to their men, saying, Be not afraid before the children of the Chaldeans: dwell in the land, and serve the king of Babylon, and it shall be better for you. 10 And, behold, I dwell in your presence at Massepha, to stand before the Chaldeans who shall come against you: and do ye gather grapes, and fruits, and oil, and put them into your vessels, and dwell in the cities which ye have obtained possession of.

[11] And all the Jews that were in Moab, and among the children of Ammon, and those that were in Idumea, and those that were in all the rest of the country, heard that the king of Babylon had granted a remnant to Juda, and that he had appointed over them Godolias the son of Achicam. [12] And they came to Godolias into the land of Juda, to Massepha, and gathered grapes, and very much summer fruit, and oil.

[13] And Joanan the son of Caree, and all the leaders of the host, who were in the fields, came to Godolias to Massepha, [14] and said to him, Dost thou indeed know that king Beleissa son of Ammon has sent Ismael to thee to slay thee? But Godolias believed them not. [15] And Joanan said to Godolias secretly in Massepha, I will go now and smite Ismael, and let no man know it; lest he slay thee, and all the Jews that are gathered to thee be dispersed, and the remnant of Juda perish. ^[16] But Godolias said to Joanan, Do not the thing, for thou speakest lies concerning Ismael.

Chapter 48

[1] Now it came to pass in the seventh month that Ismael the son of Nathanias the son of Eleasa of the seed royal, came, and ten men with him, to Godolias to Massepha: and they ate bread there together. [2] And Ismael rose up, and the ten men that were with him, and smote Godolias, whom the king of Babylon had appointed governor over the land, [3] and all the Jews that were with him in Massepha, and all the Chaldeans that were found there.

[4] And it came to pass on the second day after he had smitten Godolias, and no man knew of it, [5] that there came men from Sychem, and from Salem, and from Samaria, even eighty men, having their beards shaven, and their clothes rent, and beating their breasts, and they had manna and frankincense in their hands, to bring them into the house of the Lord. [6] And Ismael went out to meet them; and they went on and wept: and he said to them, Come in to Godolias. [7] And it came to pass, when they had entered into the midst of the city, that he slew them and cast them into a pit. [8] But ten men were found there, and they said to Ismael, Slay us not: for we have treasures in the field, wheat and barley, honey and oil. So he passed by, and slew them not in the midst of their brethren.

[9] Now the pit into which Ismael cast all whom he smote, is the great pit, which king Asa had made for fear of Baasa king of Israel: even this Ismael filled with slain men.

[10] And Ismael brought back all the people that were left in Massepha, and the king's daughter, whom the captain of the guard had committed in charge to Godolias the son of Achicam: and he went away beyond the children of Ammon.

[11] And Joanan the son of Caree, and all the leaders of the host that were with him, heard of all the evil deeds which Ismael had done. [12] And they brought all their army, and went to fight against him, and found him near much water in Gabaon. [13] And it came to pass, when all the people that was with Ismael saw Joanan, and the leaders of the host that was with him, [14] that they returned to Joanan. [15] But Ismael escaped with eight men and went to the children of Ammon.

[16] And Joanan, and all the leaders of the host that were with him, took all the remnant of the people, whom he had brought back from Ismael, mighty men in war, and the women, and the other property, and the eunuchs, whom they had brought back from Gabaon: [17] and they departed, and dwelt in Gaberoch-amaa, that is by Bethleem, to go into Egypt, for fear of the Chaldeans: [18] for they were afraid of them, because Ismael had smitten Godolias, whom the king of Babylon made governor in the land.

[1] Then came all the leaders of the host, and Joanan, and Azarias the son of Maasaeas, and all the people great and small, [2] to Jeremiah the prophet, and said to him, Let now our supplication come before thy face, and pray thou to the Lord thy God for this remnant; for we are left few out of many, as thine eyes see. [3] And let the Lord thy God declare to us the way wherein we should walk, and the thing which we should do.

[4] And Jeremiah said to them, I have heard you; behold, I will pray for you to the Lord our God, according to your words; and it shall come to pass, that whatsoever word the Lord God shall answer, I will declare it to you; I will not hide anything from you.

[5] And they said to Jeremiah, Let the Lord be between us for a just and faithful witness, if we do not according to every word which the Lord shall send to us. [6] And whether it be good, or whether it be evil, we will hearken to the voice of the Lord our God, to whom we send thee; that it may be well with us, because we shall hearken to the voice of the Lord our God.

[7] And it came to pass after ten days, that the word of the Lord came to Jeremiah. [8] And he called Joanan, and the Leaders of the host, and all the people from the least even to the greatest, [9] and he said to them, Thus saith the Lord; [10] If ye will indeed dwell in this land, I will build you, and will not pull you down, but will plant you, and in no wise pluck you up: for I have ceased from the calamities which I brought upon you. [11] Be not afraid of the king of Babylon, of whom ye are afraid; be not afraid of him, saith the Lord: for I am with you, to deliver you, and save you out of their hand. [12] And I will grant you mercy, and pity you, and will restore you to your land.

[13] But if ye say, We will not dwell in this land, that we may not hearken to the voice of the Lord; [14] for we will go into the land of Egypt, and we shall see no war, and shall not hear the sound of a trumpet, and we shall not hunger for bread; and there we will dwell: [15] then hear the word of the Lord; thus saith the Lord; [16] If ye set your face toward Egypt, and go in there to dwell; then it shall be, that the sword which ye fear shall find you in the land of Egypt, and the famine to which ye have regard, shall overtake you, coming after you in Egypt; and there ye shall die. [17] And all the men, and all the strangers who have set their face toward the land of Egypt to dwell there, shall be consumed by the sword, and by the famine: and there shall not one of them escape from the evils which I bring upon them.

[18] For thus saith the Lord; As my wrath has dropped upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem, so shall my wrath drop upon you, when ye have entered into Egypt: and ye shall be a desolation, and under the power of others, and a curse and a reproach: and ye shall no more see this place.

[19] These are the words which the Lord has spoken concerning you the remnant of Juda; Enter ye not into Egypt: and now know ye for a certainty, [20] that ye have wrought wickedness in your hearts, when ye sent me, saying, Pray thou for us to the Lord; and according to all that the Lord shall speak to thee we will do. ^[21] And ye have not hearkened to the voice of the Lord, with which he sent me to you. ^[22] Now therefore ye shall perish by sword and by famine, in the place which ye desire to go into to dwell there.

Chapter 50

[1] And it came to pass, when Jeremiah ceased speaking to the people all the words of the Lord, for which the Lord had sent him to them, even all these words, [2] that Azarias son of Maasaeas spoke, and Joanan, the son of Caree, and all the men who had spoken to Jeremiah, saying, It is false: the Lord has not sent thee to us, saying, Enter not into Egypt to dwell there: [3] but Baruch the son of Nerias sets thee against us, that thou mayest deliver us into the hands of the Chaldeans, to kill us, and that we should be carried away captives to Babylon. [4] So Joanan, and all the leaders of the host, and all the people, refused to hearken to the voice of the Lord, to dwell in the land of Juda.

[5] And Joanan, and all the leaders of the host, took all the remnant of Juda, who had returned to dwell in the land; [6] the mighty men, and the women, and the children that were left, and the daughters of the king, and the souls which Nabuzardan and left with Godolias the son of Achicam and Jeremiah the prophet, and Baruch the son of Nerias. [7] And they came into Egypt: for they hearkened not to the voice of the Lord: and they entered into Taphnas.

[8] And the word of the Lord came to Jeremiah in Taphnas, saying, [9] Take thee great stones, and hide them in the entrance, at the gate of the house of Pharao in Taphnas, in the sight of the men of Juda: [10] and thou shalt say, Thus has the Lord said; Behold, I will send, and will bring Nabuchodonosor king of Babylon, and he shall place his throne upon these stones which thou hast hidden, and he shall lift up weapons against them. [11] And he shall enter in, and smite the land of Egypt, delivering some for death to death; and some for captivity to captivity; and some for the sword to the sword. [12] And he shall kindle a fire in the houses of their gods, and shall burn them, and shall carry them away captives: and shall search the land of Egypt, as a shepherd searches his garment; and he shall go forth in peace. [13] And he shall break to pieces the pillars of Heliopolis that are in On, and shall burn their houses with fire.

Chapter 51

[1] THE WORD THAT CAME TO JEREMIAS for all the Jews dwelling in the land of Egypt, and for those settled in Magdolo and in Taphnas, and in the land of Pathura, saying,

[2] Thus has the Lord God of Israel said; Ye have seen all the evils which I have brought upon Jerusalem, and upon the cities of Juda; and, behold, they are desolate without inhabitants, [3] because of their wickedness, which they have wrought to provoke me, by going to burn incense to other gods, whom ye knew not. [4] yet I sent to you my servants the prophets early in the morning, and I sent, saying, Do not ye this abominable thing which I hate.

[5] But they hearkened not to me, and inclined not their ear to turn from their wickedness, so as not to burn incense to strange gods. [6] So mine anger and my wrath dropped upon them, and was kindled in the gates of Juda, and in the streets of Jerusalem; and they became a desolation and a waste, as at this day.

[7] And now thus has the Lord Almighty said, Wherefore do ye commit these great evils against your souls? to cut off man and woman of you, infant and suckling from the midst of Juda, to the end that not one of you should be left; [8] by provoking me with the works of your hands, to burn incense to other gods in the land of Egypt, into which ye entered to dwell there, that ye might be cut off, and that ye might become a curse and a reproach among all the nations of the earth? [9] Have ye forgotten the sins of your fathers, and the sins of the kings of Juda, and the sins of your princes, and the sins of your wives, which they wrought in the land of Juda, and in the streets of Jerusalem? [10] And have not ceased even to this day, and they have not kept to my ordinances, which I set before their fathers.

[11] Therefore thus saith the Lord; Behold I do set my face against you [12] to destroy all the remnant that are in Egypt; and they shall fall by the sword, and by famine, and shall be consumed small and great: and they shall be for reproach, and for destruction, and for a curse. [13] And I will visit them that dwell in the land of Egypt, as I have visited Jerusalem, with sword and with famine: [14] and there shall not one be preserved of the remnant of Juda that sojourn in the land of Egypt, to return to the land of Juda, to which they hope in their hearts to return: they shall not return, but only they that escape.

[15] Then all the men that knew that their wives burned incense, and all the women, a great multitude, and all the people that dwelt in the land of Egypt, in Pathura, answered Jeremiah, saying,

[16] As for the word which thou hast spoken to us in the name of the Lord, we will not hearken to thee. [17] For we will surely perform every word that shall proceed out of our mouth, to burn incense to the queen of heaven, and to pour drink-offerings to her, as we and our fathers have done, and our kings and princes, in the cities of Juda, and in the streets of Jerusalem: and so we were filled with bread, and were well, and saw no evils. [18] But since we left off to burn incense to the queen of heaven, we have all been brought low, and have been consumed by sword and by famine. [19] And whereas we burned incense to the queen of heaven, and poured drink-offerings to her, did we make cakes to her, and pour drink-offerings to her, without our husbands?

[20] Then Jeremiah answered all the people, the mighty men, and the women, and all the people that returned him these words for answer, saying, [21] Did not the Lord remember the incense which ye burned in the cities of Juda, and in the streets of Jerusalem, ye, and your fathers, and your kings, and your princes, and the people of the land? and came it not into his heart? [22] And the Lord could no longer bear you, because of the wickedness of your doings, and because of your abominations which ye wrought; and so your land became a desolation and a waste, and a curse, as at this day; [23] because of your burning incense, and because of the things wherein ye sinned against the Lord: and ye have not hearkened to the voice of the Lord, and have not walked in his ordinances, and in his law, and in his testimonies; and so these evils have come upon you.

[24] And Jeremiah said to the people, and to the women, Hear ye the word of the Lord. [25] Thus has the Lord God of Israel said; Ye women have spoken with your mouth, and ye fulfilled it with your hands, saying, We will surely perform our vows that we have vowed, to burn incense to the queen of heaven, and to pour drink-offerings to her: full well did ye keep to your vows, and ye have indeed performed them. [26] Therefore hear ye the word of the Lord, all Jews dwelling in the land of Egypt; Behold, I have sworn by my great name, saith the Lord, my name shall no longer be in the mouth of every Jew to say, The Lord lives, in all the land of Egypt. [27] For I have watched over them, to hurt them, and not to do them good: and all the Jews dwelling in the land of Egypt shall perish by sword and by famine, until they are utterly consumed. [28] And they that escape the sword shall return to the land of Juda few in number, and the remnant of Juda, who have continued in the land of Egypt to dwell there, shall know whose word shall stand.

[29] And this shall be a sign to you, that I will visit you for evil. [30] Thus said the Lord; Behold, I will give Uaphres king of Egypt into the hands of his enemy, and into the hands of one that seeks his life; as I gave Sedekias king of Juda into the hands of Nabuchodonosor king of Babylon, his enemy, and who sought his life.

[1] THE WORD WHICH JEREMIAS THE PROPHET spoke to Baruch son of Nerias, when he wrote these words in the book from the mouth of Jeremiah, in the fourth year of Joakim the son of Josias king of Juda.

[2] Thus has the Lord said to thee, O Baruch. [3] Whereas thou hast said, Alas! alas! for the Lord has laid a grievous trouble upon me; I lay down in groaning, I found no rest; [4] say thou to him, Thus saith the Lord; Behold, I pull down those whom I have built up, and I pluck up those whom I have planted. [5] And wilt thou seek great things for thyself? seek them not: for, behold, I bring evil upon all flesh, saith the Lord: but I will give to thee thy life for a spoil in every place whither thou shalt go.

It was the twenty-first ear of Sedekias, when he began to reign, and he reigned eleven years in Jerusalem. And his mother's name was Amitaal, the daughter of Jeremiah, of Lobena.

[4] And it came to pass in the ninth year of his reign, in the ninth month, on the tenth day of the month, that Nabuchodonosor king of Babylon came, and all his host, against Jerusalem, and they made a rampart round it, and built a wall round about it with large stones.

[5] So the city was besieged, until the eleventh year of king Sedekias, [6] on the ninth day of the month, and then the famine was severe in the city, and there was no bread for the people of the land. [7] And the city was broken up, and all the men of war went out by night by the way of the gate, between the wall and the outworks, which were by the king's garden; and the Chaldeans were by the city round about; and they went by the way leading to the wilderness. [8] But the host of the Chaldeans pursued after the king, and overtook him in the country beyond Jericho; and all his servants were dispersed from about him. [9] And they took the king, and brought him to the king of Babylon to Deblatha, and he judged him. [10] And the king of Babylon slew the sons of Sedekias before his eyes; and he slew all the princes of Juda in Deblatha. [11] And he put out the eyes of Sedekias, and bound him in fetters; and the king of Babylon brought him to Babylon, and put him into the grinding-house, until the day when he died.

[12] And in the fifth month, on the tenth day of the month, Nabuzardan the captain of the guard, who waited on the king of Babylon, came to Jerusalem; [13] and he burnt the house of the Lord, and the king's house; and all the houses of the city, and every great house he burnt with fire. [14] And the host of the Chaldeans that was with the captain of the guard pulled down all the wall of Jerusalem round about. [15] 16 But the captain of the guard left the remnant of the people to be vinedressers and husbandmen.

[17] And the Chaldeans broke in pieces the brazen pillars that were in the house of the Lord, and the bases, and the brazen sea that was in the house of the Lord, and they took the brass thereof, and carried it away to Babylon. [18]

Also the rim, and the bowls, and the flesh-hooks, and all the brazen vessels, wherewith they ministered; [19] and the basons, and the snuffers, and the oil-funnels, and the candlesticks, and the censers, and the cups, the golden, of gold, and the silver, of silver, the captain of the guard took away. [20] And the two pillars, and the one sea, and the twelve brazen oxen under the sea, which things king Solomon made for the house of the Lord; the brass of which articles was without weight.

[21] And as for the pillars, the height of one pillar was thirty-five cubits; and a line of twelve cubits compassed it round; and the thickness of it all round was four fingers. [22] And there was a brazen chapter upon them, and the length was five cubits, even the height of one Chapter; and there were on the chapter round about network and pomegranates, all of brass: and correspondingly the second pillar had eight pomegranates to a cubit for the twelve cubits. [23] And the pomegranates were ninety-six on a side; and all the pomegranates on the network round about were a hundred.

[24] And the captain of the guard took the chief priest, and the second priest, and those that kept the way; [25] and one eunuch, who was over the men of war, and seven men of renown, who were in the king's presence that were found in the city; and the scribe of the forces, who did the part of a scribe to the people of the land; and sixty men of the people of the land, who were found in the midst of the city. [26] And Nabuzardan the captain of the king's guard took them, and brought them to the king of Babylon to Deblatha. [27] And the king of Babylon smote them in Deblatha, in the land of Æmath.

[28] 29 [30] 31 And it came to pass in the thirty-seventh year after that Joakim king of Juda had been carried away captive, in the twelfth month, on the four and twentieth day of the month, that Ulaemadachar king of Babylon, in the year in which he began to reign, raised the head of Joakim king of Juda, and shaved him, and brought him out of the house where he was kept, [32] and spoke kindly to him, and set his throne above the kings that were with him in Babylon, [33] and changed his prison garments: and he ate bread continually before him all the days that he lived. [34] And his appointed portion was given him continually by the king of Babylon from day to day, until the day when he died.

Letter of Jeremiah

[1] A copy of an epistle, which Jeremy sent unto them which were to be led captives into Babylon by the king of the Babylonians, to certify them, as it was commanded him of God. [2] Because of the sins which ye have committed before God, ye shall be led away captives into Babylon by Nabuchodonosor king of the Babylonians. [3] So when ye be come unto Babylon, ye shall remain there many years, and for a long season, namely, seven generations: and after that I will bring you away peaceably from thence. [4] Now shall ye see in Babylon gods of silver, and of gold, and of wood, borne upon shoulders, which cause the nations to fear. [5] Beware therefore that ye in no wise be like to strangers, neither be ye and of them, when ye see the multitude before them and behind them, worshipping them. [6] But say ye in your hearts, O Lord, we must worship thee. [7] For mine angel is with you, and I myself caring for your souls. [8] As for their tongue, it is polished by the workman, and they themselves are gilded and laid over with silver; yet are they but false, and cannot speak. [9] And taking gold, as it were for a virgin that loveth to go gay, they make crowns for the heads of their gods. [10] Sometimes also the priests convey from their gods gold and silver, and bestow it upon themselves. [11] Yea, they will give thereof to the common harlots, and deck them as men with garments, being gods of silver, and gods of gold, and wood. [12] Yet cannot these gods save themselves from rust and moth, though they be covered with purple raiment. [13] They wipe their faces because of the dust of the temple, when there is much upon them. [14] And he that cannot put to death one that offendeth him holdeth a scepter, as though he were a judge of the country. [15] He hath also in his right hand a dagger and an axe: but cannot deliver himself from war and thieves. [16] Whereby they are known not to be gods: therefore fear them not. [17] For like as a vessel that a man useth is nothing worth when it is broken; even so it is with their gods: when they be set up in the temple, their eyes be full of dust through the feet of them that come in. [18] And as the doors are made sure on every side upon him that offendeth the king, as being committed to suffer death: even so the priests make fast their temples with doors, with locks, and bars, lest their gods be spoiled with robbers. [19] They light them candles, yea, more than for themselves, whereof they cannot see one. [20] They are as one of the beams of the temple, yet they say their hearts are gnawed upon by things creeping out of the earth; and when they eat them and their clothes, they feel it not. [21] Their faces are blacked through the smoke that cometh out of the temple. [22] Upon their bodies and heads sit bats, swallows, and birds, and the cats also. [23] By this ye may know that they are no gods: therefore fear them not. [24] Notwithstanding the gold that is about them to make them beautiful, except they wipe off the rust, they will not shine: for neither when they were molten did they feel it. [25] The things wherein there is no breath are bought for a most high price. [26] They are borne upon shoulders, having no feet whereby they declare unto men that they be nothing worth. [27] They also that serve them are ashamed: for if they fall to the ground at any time, they cannot rise up again of themselves: neither, if one set them upright, can they move of themselves: neither, if they be bowed down, can they make themselves straight: but they set gifts before them as unto dead men. [28] As for the things that are sacrificed unto them, their priests sell and abuse; in like manner their wives lay up part thereof in salt; but unto the poor and impotent they give nothing of it. [29] Menstruous women and women in childbed eat their sacrifices: by these things ye may know that they are no gods: fear them not. [30] For how can they be called gods? because women set meat before the gods of silver, gold, and wood. [31] And the priests sit in their temples, having their clothes rent, and their heads and beards shaven, and nothing upon their heads. [32] They roar and cry before their gods, as men do at the feast when one is dead. [33] The priests also take off their garments, and clothe their wives and children. [34] Whether it be evil that one doeth unto them, or good, they are not able to recompense it: they can neither set up a king, nor put him down. [35] In like manner, they can neither give riches nor money: though a man make a vow unto them, and keep it not, they will not require it. [36] They can save no man from death, neither deliver the weak from the mighty. [37] They cannot restore a blind man to his sight, nor help any man in his distress. [38] They can shew no mercy to the widow, nor do good to the fatherless. [39] Their gods of wood, and which are overlaid with gold and silver, are like the stones that be hewn out of the mountain: they that worship them shall be confounded. [40] How should a man then think and say that they are gods, when even the Chaldeans themselves dishonour them? [41] Who if they shall see one dumb that cannot speak, they bring him, and intreat Bel that he may speak, as though he were able to understand. [42] Yet they cannot understand this themselves, and leave them: for they have no knowledge. [43] The women also with cords about them, sitting in the ways, burn bran for perfume: but if any of them, drawn by some that passeth by, lie with him, she reproacheth her fellow, that she was not thought as worthy as herself, nor her cord broken. [44] Whatsoever is done among them is false: how may it then be thought or said that they are gods? [45] They are made of carpenters and goldsmiths: they can be nothing else than the workmen will have them to be. [46] And they themselves that made them can never continue long; how should then the things that are made of them be gods? [47] For they left lies and reproaches to them that come after. [48] For when there cometh any war or plague upon them, the priests consult with themselves, where they may be hidden with them. [49] How then cannot men perceive that they be no gods, which can neither save themselves from war, nor from plague? [50] For seeing they be but of wood, and overlaid with silver and gold, it shall be known hereafter that they are false: [51] And it shall manifestly appear to all nations and kings that they are no gods, but the works of men's hands, and that there is no work of God in them. [52] Who then may not know that they are no gods? [53] For neither can they set up a king in the land, nor give rain unto men. [54] Neither can they judge their own cause, nor redress a wrong, being unable: for they are as crows between heaven and earth. [55] Whereupon when fire falleth upon the house of gods of wood, or laid over with gold or silver, their priests will flee away, and escape; but they themselves shall be burned asunder like beams. [56] Moreover they cannot withstand any king or enemies: how can it then be thought or said that they be gods? [57] Neither are those gods of wood, and laid over with silver or gold, able to escape either from thieves or robbers. [58] Whose gold, and silver, and garments wherewith they are clothed, they that are strong take, and go away withal: neither are they able to help themselves. [59] Therefore it is better to be a king that sheweth his power, or else a profitable vessel in an house, which the owner shall have use of, than such false gods; or to be a door in an house, to keep such things therein, than such false gods. or a pillar of wood in a palace, than such false gods. [60] For sun, moon, and stars, being bright and sent to do their offices, are obedient. [61] In like manner the lightning when it breaketh forth is easy to be seen; and after the same manner the wind bloweth in every country. [62] And when God commandeth the clouds to go over the whole world, they do as they are bidden. [63] And the fire sent from above to consume hills and woods doeth as it is commanded: but these are like unto them neither in shew nor power. [64] Wherefore it is neither to be supposed nor said that they are gods, seeing, they are able neither to judge causes, nor to do good unto men. [65] Knowing therefore that they are no gods, fear them not, [66] For they can neither curse nor bless kings: [67] Neither can they shew signs in the heavens among the heathen, nor shine as the sun, nor give light as the moon. [68] The beasts are better than they: for they can get under a cover and help themselves. [69] It is then by no means manifest unto us that they are gods: therefore fear them not. [70] For as a scarecrow in a garden of cucumbers keepeth nothing: so are their gods of wood, and laid over with silver and gold. [71] And likewise their gods of wood, and laid over with silver and gold, are like to a white thorn in an orchard, that every bird sitteth upon; as also to a dead body, that is east into the dark. [72] And ye shall know them to be no gods by the bright purple that rotteth upon them: and they themselves afterward shall be eaten, and shall be a reproach in the country. [73] Better therefore is the just man that hath none idols: for he shall be far from reproach.

Lamentations

Chapter 1

And it came to pass, after Israel was taken captive, and Jerusalem made desolate, that Jeremias sat weeping, and lamented with this lamentation over Jerusalem, and said,

[1] ALEPH. How does the city that was filled with people sit solitary! she is become as a widow: she that was magnified among the nations, and princess among the provinces, has become tributary.

[2] BETH. She weeps sore in the night, and her tears are on her cheeks; and there is none of all her lovers to comfort her: all that were her friends have dealt deceitfully with her, they are become her enemies.

[3] GIMEL. Judea is gone into captivity by reason of her affliction, and by reason of the abundance of her servitude: she dwells among the nations, she has not found rest: all her pursuers have overtaken her between her oppressors.

[4] DALETH. The ways of Sion mourn, because there are none that come to the feast: all her gates are ruined: her priests groan, her virgins are led captive, and she is in bitterness in herself.

[5] HE. Her oppressors are become the head, and her enemies have prospered; for the Lord has afflicted her because of the multitude of her sins: her young children are gone into captivity before the face of the oppressor.

[6] VAU. And all her beauty has been taken away from the daughter of Sion: her princes were as rams finding no pasture, and are gone away in weakness before the face of the pursuer.

[7] ZAIN. Jerusalem remembered the days of her affliction, and her rejection; she thought on all her desirable things which were from the days of old, when her people fell into the hands of the oppressor, and there was none to help her: when her enemies saw it they laughed at her habitation.

[8] HETH. Jerusalem has sinned a great sin; therefore has she come into tribulation, all that used to honour her have afflicted her, for they have seen her shame: yea, she herself groaned, and turned backward.

[9] TETH. Her uncleanness is before her feet; she remembered not her last end; she has lowered her boasting tone, there is none to comfort her. Behold, O Lord, my affliction: for the enemy has magnified himself.

[10] JOD. The oppressor has stretched out his hand on all her desirable things: for she has seen the Gentiles entering into her sanctuary, concerning whom thou didst command that they should not enter into thy congregation.

[11] CHAPH. All her people groan, seeking bread: they have given their desirable things for meat, to restore their soul: behold, Lord, and look; for she is become dishonoured.

[12] LAMED. All ye that pass by the way, turn, and see if there is sorrow like to my sorrow, which has happened to me. The Lord who spoke by me has afflicted me in the day of his fierce anger.

[13] MEM. He has sent fire from his lofty habitation, he has brought it into my bones: he has spread a net for my feet, he has turned me back: he has made me desolate and mourning all the day.

[14] NUN. He has watched over my sins, they are twined about my hands, they have come up on my neck: my strength has failed; for the Lord has laid pains on my hands, I shall not be able to stand.

[15] SAMECH. The Lord has cut off all my strong men from the midst of me: he has summoned against me a time for crushing my choice men: the Lord has trodden a wine-press for the virgin daughter of Juda: for these things I weep.

[16] AIN. Mine eye has poured out water, because he that should comfort me, that should restore my soul, has been removed far from me: my sons have been destroyed, because the enemy has prevailed.

[17] PHE. Sion has spread out her hand, and there is none to comfort her: the Lord has commanded concerning Jacob, his oppressors are round about him: Jerusalem has become among them as a removed woman.

[18] TSADE. The Lord is righteous; for I have provoked his mouth: hear, I pray you, all people, and behold my grief: my virgins and my young men are gone into captivity.

[19] KOPH. I called my lovers, but they deceived me: my priests and my elders failed in the city; for they sought meat that they might restore their souls, and found it not.

[20] RHECHS. Behold, O Lord; for I am afflicted: my belly is troubled, and my heart is turned within me; for I have been grievously rebellious: abroad the sword has bereaved me, even as death at home.

[21] CHSEN. Hear, I pray you, for I groan: there is none to comfort me: all mine enemies have heard of mine afflictions, and rejoice because thou hast done it: thou hast brought on the day, thou hast called the time: they are become like to me.

[22] THAU. Let all their wickedness come before thy face; and strip them, as they have made a gleaning for all my sins: for my groans are many, and my heart is grieved.

Chapter 2

[1] ALEPH. How has the Lord darkened in his wrath the daughter of Sion! he has cast down the glory of Israel from heaven to earth, and has not remembered his footstool.

[2] BETH. In the day of his wrath the Lord has overwhelmed her as in the sea, and not spared: he has brought down in his fury all the beautiful things of Jacob; he has brought down to the ground the strong-holds of the daughter of Juda; he has profaned her kings and her princes.

[3] GIMEL. He has broken in his fierce anger all the horn of Israel: he has turned back his right hand from the face of the enemy, and has kindled a flame in Jacob as a fire, and it has devoured all things round about.

[4] DALETH. He has bent his bow as an opposing enemy: he has strengthened his right hand as an adversary, and has destroyed all the desirable things of my eyes in the tabernacle of the daughter of Sion: he has poured forth his anger as fire.

[5] HE. The Lord is become as an enemy: he has overwhelmed Israel as in the sea, he has overwhelmed her palaces: he has destroyed her strong-holds, and has multiplied the afflicted and humbled ones to the daughter of Juda.

[6] VAU. And he has scattered his tabernacle as a vine, he has marred his feast: the Lord has forgotten the feast and the sabbath which he appointed in Sion, and in the fury of his wrath has vexed the king, and priest, and prince.

[7] ZAIN. The Lord has rejected his altar, he has cast off his sanctuary, he has broken by the hand of the enemy the wall of her palaces; they have uttered their voice in the house of the Lord as on a feast day.

[8] HETH. And he has turned to destroy the wall of the daughter of Sion: he has stretched out the measuring line, he has not turned back his hand from afflicting her: therefore the bulwark mourned, and the wall was weakened with it.

[9] TETH. Her gates are sunk into the ground: he has destroyed and broken to pieces her bars, and her king and her prince among the Gentiles: there is no law, nay, her prophets have seen no vision from the Lord.

[10] JOD. The elders of the daughter of Sion have sat upon the ground, they have kept silence: they have cast up dust upon their heads; they have girded themselves with sackcloths: they have brought down to the ground the chief virgins in Jerusalem.

[11] CHAPH. Mine eyes have failed with tears, my heart is troubled, my glory is cast down to the ground, for the destruction of the daughter of my people; while the infant and suckling swoon in the streets of the city.

[12] LAMED. They said to their mothers, Where is corn and wine? while they fainted like wounded men in the streets of the city, while their souls were poured out into their mother's bosom.

[13] MEM. What shall I testify to thee, or what shall I compare to thee, O daughter of Jerusalem? who shall save and comfort thee, O virgin daughter of Sion? for the cup of thy destruction is enlarged: who shall heal thee?

[14] NUN. Thy prophets have seen for thee vanities and folly: and they have not discovered thine iniquity, to turn back thy captivity; but they have seen for thee vain burdens, and worthless visions.

[15] SAMECH. All that go by the way have clapped their hands at thee; they have hissed and shaken their head at the daughter of Jerusalem. Is this the city, they say, the crown of joy of all the earth?

[16] AIN. All thine enemies have opened their mouth against thee: they have hissed and gnashed their teeth, and said, We have swallowed her up: moreover this is the day which we looked for; we have found it, we have seen it.

[17] PHE. The Lord has done that which he purposed; he has accomplished his word, even the things which he commanded from the ancient days: he has thrown down, and has not spared: and he has caused the enemy to rejoice over thee, he has exalted the horn of him that afflicted thee.

[18] TSADE. Their heart cried to the Lord, Ye walls of Sion, pour down tears like torrents day and night: give thyself no rest; let not the apple of thine eyes cease.

[19] KOPH. Arise, rejoice in the night at the beginning of thy watch: pour out thy heart as water before the face of the Lord lift up thy hands to him for the life of thine infants, who faint for hunger at the top of all the streets.

[20] RHECHS. Behold, O Lord, and see for whom thou has gathered thus. Shall the women eat the fruit of their womb? the cook has made a gathering: shall the infants sucking at the breasts be slain? wilt thou slay the priest and prophet in the sanctuary of the Lord?

[21] CHSEN. The child and old man have lain down in the street: my virgins and my young men are gone into captivity: thou hast slain them with the sword and with famine; in the day of thy wrath thou hast mangled them, thou has not spared.

[22] THAU. He has called my sojourners round about to a solemn day, and there was not in the day of the wrath of the Lord any one that escaped or was left; whereas I have strengthened and multiplied all mine enemies.

[1] ALEPH. I am the man that sees poverty, through the rod of his wrath upon me. [2] He has taken me, and led me away into darkness, and not into light. [3] Nay, against me has he turned his hand all the day. [4] He has made old my flesh and my skin; he has broken my bones.

[5] BETH. He has built against me, and compassed my head, and brought travail upon me. [6] He has set me in dark places, as them that have long been dead. [7] He has builded against me, and I cannot come forth: he has made my brazen chain heavy.

[8] GIMEL. Yea, though I cry and shout, he shuts out my prayer.

[9] DALETH. He has built up my ways, he has hedged my paths; [10] he has troubled me, as a she-bear lying in wait: he is to me as a lion in secret places. [11] He pursued me after I departed, and brought me to a stand: he has utterly ruined me.

[12] HE. He has bent his bow, and set me as a mark for the arrow. [13] He has caused the arrows of his quiver to enter into my reins. [14] I became a laughing-stock to all my people; and their song all the day.

[15] VAU. He has filled me with bitterness, he has drenched me with gall. [16] And he has dashed out my teeth with gravel, he has fed me with ashes. [17] He has also removed my soul from peace: I forgot prosperity. [18] Therefore my success has perished, and my hope from the Lord.

[19] ZAIN. I remembered by reason of my poverty, and because of persecution my bitterness and gall shall be remembered; [20] and my soul shall meditate with me. [21] This will I lay up in my heart, therefore I will endure.

[22] HETH. It is the mercies of the Lord, that he has not failed me, because his compassions are not exhausted. Pity us, O Lord, early every month: for we are not brought to an end, because his compassions are not exhausted. [23] They are new every morning: great is thy faithfulness. [24] The Lord is my portion, says my soul; therefore will I wait for him.

[25] TETH. The Lord is good to them that wait for him: the soul which shall seek him [26] is good, and shall wait for, and quietly expect salvation of the Lord.

[27] TETH. It is good for a man when he bears a yoke in his youth. [28] He will sit alone, and be silent, because he has borne it upon him.

[29] 30 JOD. He will give his cheek to him that smites him: he will be filled full with reproaches. [31] For the Lord will not reject for ever.

[32] CHAPH. For he that has brought down will pity, and that according to the abundance of his mercy. [33] He has not answered in anger from his heart, though he has brought low the children of a man.

[34] LAMED. To bring down under his feet all the prisoners of the earth, [35] to turn aside the judgment of a man before the face of the Most High, [36] to condemn a man unjustly in his judgment, the Lord has not given commandment. [37] Who has thus spoken, and it has come to pass? the Lord has not commanded it. [38] Out of the mouth of the Most High there shall not come forth evil and good.

[39] MEM. Why should a living man complain, a man concerning his sin?

[40] NUN. Our way has been searched out and examined, and we will turn to the Lord. [41] Let us lift up our hearts with our hand to the lofty One in heaven. [42] We have sinned, we have transgressed; and thou hast not pardoned.

[43] SAMECH. Thou has visited us in wrath, and driven us away: thou has slain, thou has not pitied. [44] Thou hast veiled thyself with a cloud because of prayer, that I might be blind, [45] and be cast off. AIN. Thou hast set us alone in the midst of the nations. [46] All our enemies have opened their mouth against us. [47] Fear and wrath are come upon us, suspense and destruction. [48] Mine eye shall pour down torrents of water, for the destruction of the daughter of my people.

[49] PHE. Mine eye is drowned with tears, and I will not be silent, so that there shall be no rest, [50] until the Lord look down, and behold from heaven.

[51] Mine eye shall prey upon my soul, because of all the daughters of the city.

[52] TSADE. The fowlers chased me as a sparrow, all mine enemies destroyed my life in a pit without cause, [53] and laid a stone upon me. [54] Water flowed over my head: I said, I am cut off.

[55] KOPH. I called upon thy name, O Lord, out of the lowest dungeon. [56] Thou heardest my voice: close not thine ears to my supplication. [57] Thou drewest nigh to my help: in the day wherein I called upon thee thou saidst to me, Fear not.

[58] RECHS. O Lord, thou has pleaded the causes of my soul; thou has redeemed my life. [59] Thou hast seen, O Lord, my troubles: thou hast judged my cause. [60] Thou hast seen all their vengeance, thou hast looked on all their devices against me.

[61] CHSEN. Thou hast heard their reproach and all their devices against me; [62] the lips of them that rose up against me, and their plots against me all the day; [63] their sitting down and their rising up: look thou upon their eyes. [64] Thou wilt render them a recompense, O Lord, according to the works of their hands.

[65] THAU. Thou wilt give them as a covering, the grief of my heart. [66] Thou wilt persecute them in anger, and wilt consume them from under the heaven, O Lord.

Chapter 4

[1] ALEPH. How will the gold be tarnished, and the fine silver changed! the sacred stones have been poured forth at the top of all the streets.

[2] BETH. The precious sons of Zion, who were equalled in value with gold, how are they counted as earthen vessels, the works of the hands of the potter!

[3] GIMEL. Nay, serpents have drawn out the breasts, they give suck to their young, the daughters of my people are incurably cruel, as an ostrich in a desert.

[4] DALETH. The tongue of the sucking child cleaves to the roof of its mouth for thirst: the little children ask for bread, and there is none to break it to them.

[5] HE. They that feed on dainties are desolate in the streets: they that used to be nursed in scarlet have clothed themselves with dung.

[6] VAU. And the iniquity of the daughter of my people has been increased beyond the iniquities of Sodoma, the city that was overthrown very suddenly, and none laboured against her with their hands.

[7] ZAIN. Her Nazarites were made purer than snow, they were whiter than milk, they were purified as with fire, their polishing was superior to sapphire stone.

[8] HETH. Their countenance is become blacker than smoke; they are not known in the streets: their skin has cleaved to their bones; they are withered, they are become as a stick.

[9] TETH. The slain with the sword were better than they that were slain with hunger: they have departed, pierced through from want of the fruits of the field.

[10] JOD. The hands of tender-hearted women have sodden their own children: they became meat for them in the destruction of the daughter of my people.

[11] CHAPH. The Lord has accomplished his wrath; he has poured out fierce anger, and has kindled a fire in Sion, and it has devoured her foundations.

[12] LAMED. The kings of the earth, even all that dwell in the world, believed not that an enemy and oppressor would enter through the gates of Jerusalem.

[13] MEM. For the sins of her prophets, and iniquities of her priests, who shed righteous blood in the midst of her,

[14] NUN. her watchmen staggered in the streets, they were defiled with blood in their weakness, they touched their raiment with it.

[15] SAMECH. Depart ye from the unclean ones: call ye them: depart, depart, touch them not: for they are on fire, yea, they stagger: say ye among the nations, They shall no more sojourn there.

[16] AIN. The presence of the Lords was their portion; but he will not again look upon them: they regarded not the person of the priests, they pitied not the prophets.

[17] PHE. While we yet lived our eyes failed, while we looked in vain for our help. TSADE. We looked to a nation that could not save. [18] We have hunted for our little ones, that they should not walk in our streets. KOPH. Our time has drawn nigh, our days are fulfilled, our time is come. [19] Our pursuers were swifter than the eagles of the sky, they flew on the mountains, in the wilderness they laid wait for us.

[20] RECHS. The breath of our nostrils, our anointed Lord, was taken in their destructive snares, of whom we said, In his shadow we shall live among the Gentiles.

[21] CHSEN. Rejoice and be glad, O daughter of Idumea, that dwellest in the land: yet the cup of the Lord shall pass through to thee: thou shalt be drunken, and pour forth.

[22] THAU. O daughter of Sion, thine iniquity has come to an end; he shall no more carry thee captive: he has visited thine iniquities, O daughter of Edom; he has discovered thy sins.

Chapter 5

[1] Remember, O Lord, what has happened to us: behold, and look on our reproach.

[2] Our inheritance has been turned away to aliens, our houses to strangers: [3] we are become orphans, we have no father, our mothers are as widows. [4] We have drunk our water for money; our wood is sold to us for a burden on our neck: [5] we have been persecuted, we have laboured, we have had no rest.

[6] Egypt gave the hand to us, Assur to their own satisfaction. [7] Our fathers sinned, and are not: we have borne their iniquities. [8] Servants have ruled over us: there is none to ransom us out of their hand. [9] We shall bring in our bread with danger of our lives, because of the sword of the wilderness. [10] Our skin is blackened like an oven; they are convulsed, because of the storms of famine. [11] They humbled the women in Sion, the virgins in the cities of Juda. [12] Princes were hanged up by their hands: the elders were not honoured. [13] The chosen men lifted up the voice in weeping, and the youths fainted under the wood. [14] And the elders ceased from the gate, the chosen men ceased from their music. [15] The joy of our heart has ceased; our dance is turned into mourning. [16] The crown has fallen from our head: yea, woe to us! for we have sinned.

[17] For this has grief come; our heart is sorrowful: for this our eyes are darkened. [18] Over the mountain of Sion, because it is made desolate, foxes have walked therein.

[19] But thou, O Lord, shalt dwell for ever; thy throne shall endure to generation and generation. [20] Wherefore wilt thou utterly forget us, and abandon us a long time? [21] Turn us, O Lord, to thee, and we shall be turned; and renew our days as before. [22] For thou hast indeed rejected us; thou hast been very wroth against us.

Baruch

Chapter 1

[1] And these are the words of the book, which Baruch the son of Nerias, the son of Maasias, the son of Sedecias, the son of Asadias, the son of Chelcias, wrote in Babylon, [2] In the fifth year, and in the seventh day of the month, what time as the Chaldeans took Jerusalem, and burnt it with fire.

[3] And Baruch did read the words of this book in the hearing of Jechonias the son of Joachim king of Juda, and in the ears of all the people that came to hear the book, [4] And in the hearing of the nobles, and of the king's sons, and in the hearing of the elders, and of all the people, from the lowest unto the highest, even of all them that dwelt at Babylon by the river Sud. [5] Whereupon they wept, fasted, and prayed before the Lord.

[6] They made also a collection of money according to every man's power: [7] And they sent it to Jerusalem unto Joachim the high priest, the son of Chelcias, son of Salom, and to the priests, and to all the people which were found with him at Jerusalem, [8] At the same time when he received the vessels of the house of the Lord, that were carried out of the temple, to return them into the land of Juda, the tenth day of the month Sivan, namely, silver vessels, which Sedecias the son of Josias king of Jada had made, [9] After that Nabuchodonosor king of Babylon had carried away Jechonias, and the princes, and the captives, and the mighty men, and the people of the land, from Jerusalem, and brought them unto Babylon.

[10] And they said, Behold, we have sent you money to buy you burnt offerings, and sin offerings, and incense, and prepare ye manna, and offer upon the altar of the Lord our God; [11] And pray for the life of Nabuchodonosor king of Babylon, and for the life of Balthasar his son, that their days may be upon earth as the days of heaven: [12] And the Lord will give us strength, and lighten our eyes, and we shall live under the shadow of Nabuchodonosor king of Babylon, and under the shadow of Balthasar his son, and we shall serve them many days, and find favour in their sight.

[13] Pray for us also unto the Lord our God, for we have sinned against the Lord our God; and unto this day the fury of the Lord and his wrath is not turned from us. [14] And ye shall read this book which we have sent unto you, to make confession in the house of the Lord, upon the feasts and solemn days.

[15] And ye shall say, To the Lord our God belongeth righteousness, but unto us the confusion of faces, as it is come to pass this day, unto them of Juda, and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem, [16] And to our kings, and to our princes, and to our priests, and to our prophets, and to our fathers: [17] For we have sinned before the Lord, [18] And disobeyed him, and have not hearkened unto the voice of the Lord our God, to walk in the commandments that he gave us openly: [19] Since the day that the Lord brought our forefathers out of the land of Egypt, unto this present day, we have been disobedient unto the Lord our God, and we have been negligent in not hearing his voice.

[20] Wherefore the evils cleaved unto us, and the curse, which the Lord appointed by Moses his servant at the time that he brought our fathers out of the land of Egypt, to give us a land that floweth with milk and honey, like as it is to see this day. [21] Nevertheless we have not hearkened unto the voice of the Lord our God, according unto all the words of the prophets, whom he sent unto us: [22] But every man followed the imagination of his own wicked heart, to serve strange gods, and to do evil in the sight of the Lord our God.

Chapter 2

[1] Therefore the Lord hath made good his word, which he pronounced against us, and against our judges that judged Israel, and against our kings, and against our princes, and against the men of Israel and Juda, [2] To bring upon us great plagues, such as never happened under the whole heaven, as it came to pass in Jerusalem, according to the things that were written in the law of Moses; [3] That a man should eat the flesh of his own son, and the flesh of his own daughter. [4] Moreover he hath delivered them to be in subjection to all the kingdoms that are round about us, to be as a reproach and desolation among all the people round about, where the Lord hath scattered them.

[5] Thus we were cast down, and not exalted, because we have sinned against the Lord our God, and have not been obedient unto his voice.

[6] To the Lord our God appertaineth righteousness: but unto us and to our fathers open shame, as appeareth this day. [7] For all these plagues are come upon us, which the Lord hath pronounced against us [8] Yet have we not prayed before the Lord, that we might turn every one from the imaginations of his wicked heart. [9] Wherefore the Lord watched over us for evil, and the Lord hath brought it upon us: for the Lord is righteous in all his works which he hath commanded us. [10] Yet we have not hearkened unto his voice, to walk in the commandments of the Lord, that he hath set before us.

[11] And now, O Lord God of Israel, that hast brought thy people out of the land of Egypt with a mighty hand, and high arm, and with signs, and with wonders, and with great power, and hast gotten thyself a name, as appeareth this day: [12] O Lord our God, we have sinned, we have done ungodly, we have dealt unrighteously in all thine ordinances.

[13] Let thy wrath turn from us: for we are but a few left among the heathen, where thou hast scattered us.

[14] Hear our prayers, O Lord, and our petitions, and deliver us for thine own sake, and give us favour in the sight of them which have led us away: [15] That all the earth may know that thou art the Lord our God, because Israel and his posterity is called by thy name.

[16] O Lord, look down from thine holy house, and consider us: bow down thine ear, O Lord, to hear us.

[17] Open thine eyes, and behold; for the dead that are in the graves, whose souls are taken from their bodies, will give unto the Lord neither praise nor righteousness: [18] But the soul that is greatly vexed, which goeth stooping and feeble, and the eyes that fail, and the hungry soul, will give thee praise and righteousness, O Lord.

[19] Therefore we do not make our humble supplication before thee, O Lord our God, for the righteousness of our fathers, and of our kings. [20] For thou hast sent out thy wrath and indignation upon us, as thou hast spoken by thy servants the prophets, saying,

[21] Thus saith the Lord, Bow down your shoulders to serve the king of Babylon: so shall ye remain in the land that I gave unto your fathers. [22] But if ye will not hear the voice of the Lord, to serve the king of Babylon, [23] I will cause to cease out of the cites of Judah, and from without Jerusalem, the voice of mirth, and the voice of joy, the voice of the bridegroom, and the voice of the bride: and the whole land shall be desolate of inhabitants. [24] But we would not hearken unto thy voice, to serve the king of Babylon: therefore hast thou made good the words that thou spakest by thy servants the prophets, namely, that the bones of our kings, and the bones of our fathers, should be taken out of their place.

[25] And, lo, they are cast out to the heat of the day, and to the frost of the night, and they died in great miseries by famine, by sword, and by pestilence.

[26] And the house which is called by thy name hast thou laid waste, as it is to be seen this day, for the wickedness of the house of Israel and the house of Juda.

[27] O Lord our God, thou hast dealt with us after all thy goodness, and according to all that great mercy of thine, [28] As thou spakest by thy servant Moses in the day when thou didst command him to write the law before the children of Israel, saying,

[29] If ye will not hear my voice, surely this very great multitude shall be turned into a small number among the nations, where I will scatter them.

[30] For I knew that they would not hear me, because it is a stiffnecked people: but in the land of their captivities they shall remember themselves. [31] And shall know that I am the Lord their God: for I will give them an heart, and ears to hear: [32] And they shall praise me in the land of their captivity, and think upon my name, [33] And return from their stiff neck, and from their wicked deeds: for they shall remember the way of their fathers, which sinned before the Lord.

[34] And I will bring them again into the land which I promised with an oath unto their fathers, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and they shall be lords of it: and I will increase them, and they shall not be diminished. [35] And I will make an everlasting covenant with them to be their God, and they shall be my people: and I will no more drive my people of Israel out of the land that I have given them.

Chapter 3

[1] O Lord Almighty, God of Israel, the soul in anguish the troubled spirit, crieth unto thee. [2] Hear, O Lord, and have mercy; ar thou art merciful: and have pity upon us, because we have sinned before thee. [3] For thou endurest for ever, and we perish utterly.

[4] O Lord Almighty, thou God of Israel, hear now the prayers of the dead Israelites, and of their children, which have sinned before thee, and not hearkened unto the voice of thee their God: for the which cause these plagues cleave unto us. [5] Remember not the iniquities of our forefathers: but think upon thy power and thy name now at this time. [6] For thou art the Lord our God, and thee, O Lord, will we praise.

[7] And for this cause thou hast put thy fear in our hearts, to the intent that we should call upon thy name, and praise thee in our captivity: for we have called to mind all the iniquity of our forefathers, that sinned before thee.

[8] Behold, we are yet this day in our captivity, where thou hast scattered us, for a reproach and a curse, and to be subject to payments, according to all the iniquities of our fathers, which departed from the Lord our God.

[9] Hear, Israel, the commandments of life: give ear to understand wisdom. [10] How happeneth it Israel, that thou art in thine enemies' land, that thou art waxen old in a strange country, that thou art defiled with the dead, [11] That thou art counted with them that go down into the grave? [12] Thou hast forsaken the fountain of wisdom. [13] For if thou hadst walked in the way of God, thou shouldest have dwelled in peace for ever.

[14] Learn where is wisdom, where is strength, where is understanding; that thou mayest know also where is length of days, and life, where is the light of the eyes, and peace. [15] Who hath found out her place? or who hath come into her treasures?

[16] Where are the princes of the heathen become, and such as ruled the beasts upon the earth; [17] They that had their pastime with the fowls of the air, and they that hoarded up silver and gold, wherein men trust, and made no end of their getting? [18] For they that wrought in silver, and were so careful, and whose works are unsearchable, [19] They are vanished and gone down to the grave, and others are come up in their steads.

[20] Young men have seen light, and dwelt upon the earth: but the way of knowledge have they not known, [21] Nor understood the paths thereof, nor laid hold of it: their children were far off from that way. [22] It hath not been heard of in Chanaan, neither hath it been seen in Theman.

[23] The Agarenes that seek wisdom upon earth, the merchants of Meran and of Theman, the authors of fables, and searchers out of understanding; none of these have known the way of wisdom, or remember her paths.

[24] O Israel, how great is the house of God! and how large is the place of his possession! [25] Great, and hath none end; high, and unmeasurable. [26]

There were the giants famous from the beginning, that were of so great stature, and so expert in war. [27] Those did not the Lord choose, neither gave he the way of knowledge unto them: [28] But they were destroyed, because they had no wisdom, and perished through their own foolishness.

[29] Who hath gone up into heaven, and taken her, and brought her down from the clouds? [30] Who hath gone over the sea, and found her, and will bring her for pure gold? [31] No man knoweth her way, nor thinketh of her path.

[32] But he that knoweth all things knoweth her, and hath found her out with his understanding: he that prepared the earth for evermore hath filled it with fourfooted beasts: [33] He that sendeth forth light, and it goeth, calleth it again, and it obeyeth him with fear. [34] The stars shined in their watches, and rejoiced: when he calleth them, they say, Here we be; and so with cheerfulness they shewed light unto him that made them.

[35] This is our God, and there shall none other be accounted of in comparison of him [36] He hath found out all the way of knowledge, and hath given it unto Jacob his servant, and to Israel his beloved. [37] Afterward did he shew himself upon earth, and conversed with men.

Chapter 4

[1] This is the book of the commandments of God, and the law that endureth for ever: all they that keep it shall come to life; but such as leave it shall die. [2] Turn thee, O Jacob, and take hold of it: walk in the presence of the light thereof, that thou mayest be illuminated. [3] Give not thine honour to another, nor the things that are profitable unto thee to a strange nation.

[4] O Israel, happy are we: for things that are pleasing to God are made known unto us. [5] Be of good cheer, my people, the memorial of Israel. [6] Ye were sold to the nations, not for your destruction: but because ye moved God to wrath, ye were delivered unto the enemies. [7] For ye provoked him that made you by sacrificing unto devils, and not to God. [8] Ye have forgotten the everlasting God, that brought you up; and ye have grieved Jerusalem, that nursed you.

[9] For when she saw the wrath of God coming upon you, she said, Hearken, O ye that dwell about Sion: God hath brought upon me great mourning; [10] For I saw the captivity of my sons and daughters, which the Everlasting brought upon them. [11] With joy did I nourish them; but sent them away with weeping and mourning.

[12] Let no man rejoice over me, a widow, and forsaken of many, who for the sins of my children am left desolate; because they departed from the law of God. [13] They knew not his statutes, nor walked in the ways of his commandments, nor trod in the paths of discipline in his righteousness.

[14] Let them that dwell about Sion come, and remember ye the captivity of my sons and daughters, which the Everlasting hath brought upon them. [15] For he hath brought a nation upon them from far, a shameless nation, and of a strange language, who neither revered old man, nor pitied child. [16] These have carried away the dear beloved children of the widow, and left her that was alone desolate without daughters. [17] But what can I help you? [18] For he that brought these plagues upon you will deliver you from the hands of your enemies. [19] Go your way, O my children, go your way: for I am left desolate. [20] I have put off the clothing of peace, and put upon me the sackcloth of my prayer: I will cry unto the Everlasting in my days.

[21] Be of good cheer, O my children, cry unto the Lord, and he will deliver you from the power and hand of the enemies.

[22] For my hope is in the Everlasting, that he will save you; and joy is come unto me from the Holy One, because of the mercy which shall soon come unto you from the Everlasting our Saviour.

[23] For I sent you out with mourning and weeping: but God will give you to me again with joy and gladness for ever. [24] Like as now the neighbours of Sion have seen your captivity: so shall they see shortly your salvation from our God which shall come upon you with great glory, and brightness of the Everlasting.

[25] My children, suffer patiently the wrath that is come upon you from God: for thine enemy hath persecuted thee; but shortly thou shalt see his destruction, and shalt tread upon his neck. [26] My delicate ones have gone rough ways, and were taken away as a flock caught of the enemies.

[27] Be of good comfort, O my children, and cry unto God: for ye shall be remembered of him that brought these things upon you. [28] For as it was your mind to go astray from God: so, being returned, seek him ten times more. [29] For he that hath brought these plagues upon you shall bring you everlasting joy with your salvation.

[30] Take a good heart, O Jerusalem: for he that gave thee that name will comfort thee. [31] Miserable are they that afflicted thee, and rejoiced at thy fall. [32] Miserable are the cities which thy children served: miserable is she that received thy sons. [33] For as she rejoiced at thy ruin, and was glad of thy fall: so shall she be grieved for her own desolation. [34] For I will take away the rejoicing of her great multitude, and her pride shall be turned into mourning. [35] For fire shall come upon her from the Everlasting, long to endure; and she shall be inhabited of devils for a great time.

[36] O Jerusalem, look about thee toward the east, and behold the joy that cometh unto thee from God. [37] Lo, thy sons come, whom thou sentest away, they come gathered together from the east to the west by the word of the Holy One, rejoicing in the glory of God.

Chapter 5

[1] Put off, O Jerusalem, the garment of mourning and affliction, and put on the comeliness of the glory that cometh from God for ever.

[2] Cast about thee a double garment of the righteousness which cometh from God; and set a diadem on thine head of the glory of the Everlasting. [3] For God will shew thy brightness unto every country under heaven. [4] For thy name shall be called of God for ever The peace of righteousness, and The glory of God's worship.

[5] Arise, O Jerusalem, and stand on high, and look about toward the east, and behold thy children gathered from the west unto the east by the word of the Holy One, rejoicing in the remembrance of God. [6] For they departed from thee on foot, and were led away of their enemies: but God bringeth them unto thee exalted with glory, as children of the kingdom.

[7] For God hath appointed that every high hill, and banks of long continuance, should be cast down, and valleys filled up, to make even the ground, that Israel may go safely in the glory of God, [8] Moreover even the woods and every sweetsmelling tree shall overshadow Israel by the commandment of God. [9] For God shall lead Israel with joy in the light of his glory with the mercy and righteousness that cometh from him.

Chapter 6

1 A copy of an epistle, which Jeremy sent unto them which were to be led captives into Babylon by the king of the Babylonians, to certify them, as it was commanded him of God.

[2] Because of the sins which ye have committed before God, ye shall be led away captives into Babylon by Nabuchodonosor king of the Babylonians. [3] So when ye be come unto Babylon, ye shall remain there many years, and for a long season, namely, seven generations: and after that I will bring you away peaceably from thence.

[4] Now shall ye see in Babylon gods of silver, and of gold, and of wood, borne upon shoulders, which cause the nations to fear. [5] Beware therefore that ye in no wise be like to strangers, neither be ye and of them, when ye see the multitude before them and behind them, worshipping them. [6] But say ye in your hearts, O Lord, we must worship thee. [7] For mine angel is with you, and I myself caring for your souls.

[8] As for their tongue, it is polished by the workman, and they themselves are gilded and laid over with silver; yet are they but false, and cannot speak. [9] And taking gold, as it were for a virgin that loveth to go gay, they make crowns for the heads of their gods. [10] Sometimes also the priests convey from their gods gold and silver, and bestow it upon themselves. [11] Yea, they will give thereof to the common harlots, and deck them as men with garments, being gods of silver, and gods of gold, and wood.

[12] Yet cannot these gods save themselves from rust and moth, though they be covered with purple raiment. [13] They wipe their faces because of the dust of the temple, when there is much upon them. [14] And he that cannot put to death one that offendeth him holdeth a sceptre, as though he were a judge of the country. [15] He hath also in his right hand a dagger and an axe: but cannot deliver himself from war and thieves. [16] Whereby they are known not to be gods: therefore fear them not.

[17] For like as a vessel that a man useth is nothing worth when it is broken; even so it is with their gods: when they be set up in the temple, their eyes be full of dust through the feet of them that come in. [18] And as the doors are made sure on every side upon him that offendeth the king, as being committed to suffer death: even so the priests make fast their temples with doors, with locks, and bars, lest their gods be spoiled with robbers.

[19] They light them candles, yea, more than for themselves, whereof they cannot see one. [20] They are as one of the beams of the temple, yet they say their hearts are gnawed upon by things creeping out of the earth; and when they eat them and their clothes, they feel it not. [21] Their faces are blacked through the smoke that cometh out of the temple. [22] Upon their bodies and heads sit bats, swallows, and birds, and the cats also. [23] By this ye may know that they are no gods: therefore fear them not.

[24] Notwithstanding the gold that is about them to make them beautiful, except they wipe off the rust, they will not shine: for neither when they were molten did they feel it. [25] The things wherein there is no breath are bought for a most high price. [26] They are borne upon shoulders, having no feet whereby they declare unto men that they be nothing worth.

[27] They also that serve them are ashamed: for if they fall to the ground at any time, they cannot rise up again of themselves: neither, if one set them upright, can they move of themselves: neither, if they be bowed down, can they make themselves straight: but they set gifts before them as unto dead men.

[28] As for the things that are sacrificed unto them, their priests sell and abuse; in like manner their wives lay up part thereof in salt; but unto the poor and impotent they give nothing of it. [29] Menstruous women and women in childbed eat their sacrifices: by these things ye may know that they are no gods: fear them not. [30] For how can they be called gods? because women set meat before the gods of silver, gold, and wood. [31] And the priests sit in their temples, having their clothes rent, and their heads and beards shaven, and nothing upon their heads. [32] They roar and cry before their gods, as men do at the feast when one is dead.

[33] The priests also take off their garments, and clothe their wives and children. [34] Whether it be evil that one doeth unto them, or good, they are not able to recompense it: they can neither set up a king, nor put him down. [35] In like manner, they can neither give riches nor money: though a man make a vow unto them, and keep it not, they will not require it. [36] They can save no man from death, neither deliver the weak from the mighty. [37] They cannot restore a blind man to his sight, nor help any man in his distress. [38] They can shew no mercy to the widow, nor do good to the fatherless.

[39] Their gods of wood, and which are overlaid with gold and silver, are like the stones that be hewn out of the mountain: they that worship them shall be confounded.

[40] How should a man then think and say that they are gods, when even the Chaldeans themselves dishonour them? [41] Who if they shall see one dumb that cannot speak, they bring him, and intreat Bel that he may speak, as though he were able to understand. [42] Yet they cannot understand this themselves, and leave them: for they have no knowledge.

[43] The women also with cords about them, sitting in the ways, burn bran for perfume: but if any of them, drawn by some that passeth by, lie with him, she reproacheth her fellow, that she was not thought as worthy as herself, nor her cord broken. [44] Whatsoever is done among them is false: how may it then be thought or said that they are gods?

[45] They are made of carpenters and goldsmiths: they can be nothing else than the workmen will have them to be. [46] And they themselves that made them can never continue long; how should then the things that are made of them be gods?

[47] For they left lies and reproaches to them that come after. [48] For when there cometh any war or plague upon them, the priests consult with themselves, where they may be hidden with them. [49] How then cannot men perceive that they be no gods, which can neither save themselves from war, nor from plague? [50] For seeing they be but of wood, and overlaid with silver and gold, it shall be known hereafter that they are false: [51] And it shall manifestly appear to all nations and kings that they are no gods, but the works of men's hands, and that there is no work of God in them.

[52] Who then may not know that they are no gods? [53] For neither can they set up a king in the land, nor give rain unto men. [54] Neither can they judge their own cause, nor redress a wrong, being unable: for they are as crows between heaven and earth.

[55] Whereupon when fire falleth upon the house of gods of wood, or laid over with gold or silver, their priests will flee away, and escape; but they themselves shall be burned asunder like beams. [56] Moreover they cannot withstand any king or enemies: how can it then be thought or said that they be gods? [57] Neither are those gods of wood, and laid over with silver or gold, able to escape either from thieves or robbers. [58] Whose gold, and silver, and garments wherewith they are clothed, they that are strong take, and go away withal: neither are they able to help themselves.

[59] Therefore it is better to be a king that sheweth his power, or else a profitable vessel in an house, which the owner shall have use of, than such false gods; or to be a door in an house, to keep such things therein, than such false gods. or a pillar of wood in a palace, than such false gods.

[60] For sun, moon, and stars, being bright and sent to do their offices, are obedient. [61] In like manner the lightning when it breaketh forth is easy to be seen; and after the same manner the wind bloweth in every country. [62] And when God commandeth the clouds to go over the whole world, they do as they are bidden. [63] And the fire sent from above to consume hills and woods doeth as it is commanded: but these are like unto them neither in shew nor power.

[64] Wherefore it is neither to be supposed nor said that they are gods, seeing, they are able neither to judge causes, nor to do good unto men. [65] Knowing therefore that they are no gods, fear them not,

[66] For they can neither curse nor bless kings: [67] Neither can they shew signs in the heavens among the heathen, nor shine as the sun, nor give light as the moon. [68] The beasts are better than they: for they can get under a cover and help themselves. [69] It is then by no means manifest unto us that they are gods: therefore fear them not.

[70] For as a scarecrow in a garden of cucumbers keepeth nothing: so are their gods of wood, and laid over with silver and gold. [71] And likewise their gods of wood, and laid over with silver and gold, are like to a white thorn in an orchard, that every bird sitteth upon; as also to a dead body, that is east into the dark. [72] And ye shall know them to be no gods by the bright purple that rotteth upon them: and they themselves afterward shall be eaten, and shall be a reproach in the country.

[73] Better therefore is the just man that hath none idols: for he shall be far from reproach.

Ezekiel

Chapter 1

[1] Now it came to pass in the thirtieth year, in the fourth month, on the fifth day of the month, that I was in the midst of the captivity by the river of Chobar; and the heavens were opened, and I saw visions of God. [2] On the fifth day of the month; this was the fifth year of the captivity of king Joakim. [3] And the word of the Lord came to Ezekiel the priest, the son of Buzi, in the land of the Chaldeans, by the river of Chobar; and the hand of the Lord was upon me.

[4] And I looked, and, behold, a sweeping wind came from the north, and a great cloud on it, and there was brightness round about it, and gleaming fire, and in the midst of it as it were the appearance of amber in the midst of the fire, and brightness in it.

[5] And in the midst as it were the likeness of four living creatures. And this was their appearance; the likeness of a man was upon them. [6] And each one had four faces, and each one had four wings. [7] And their legs were straight; and their feet were winged, and there were sparks, like gleaming brass, and their wings were light. [8] And the hand of a man was under their wings on their four sides. [9] And the faces of them four turned not when they went; they went everyone straight forward. [10] And the likeness of their faces was the face of a man, and the face of a lion on the right of the four; and the face of a calf on the left of the four; and the face of an eagle to the four. [11] And the four had their wings spread out above; each one had two joined to one another, and two covered their bodies. [12] And each one went straight forward: wherever the spirit was going they went, and turned not back.

[13] And in the midst of the living creatures there was an appearance as of burning coals of fire, as an appearance of lamps turning among the living creatures; and the brightness of fire, and out of the fire came forth lightning. [14]

[15] And I looked, and, behold, the four had each one wheel on the ground near the living creatures. [16] And the appearance of the wheels was as the appearance of beryl: and the four had one likeness: and their work was as it were a wheel in a wheel. [17] They went on their four sides: they turned not as they went; [18] neither did their backs turn: and they were high: and I beheld them, and the backs of them four were full of eyes round about.

[19] And when the living creatures went, the wheels went by them: and when the living creatures lifted themselves off the earth. the wheels were lifted off. [20] Wherever the cloud happened to be, there was the spirit ready to go: the wheels went and were lifted up with them; because the spirit of life was in the wheels. [21] When those went, the wheels went; and when those stood, the wheels stood; and when those lifted themselves off the earth, they were lifted off with them: for the spirit of life was in the wheels.

[22] And the likeness over the heads of the living creatures was as a firmament, as the appearance of crystal, spread out over their wings above. [23] And their wings were spread out under the firmament, reaching one to the other; two wings to each, covering their bodies. [24] And I heard the sound of their wings when they went, as the sound of much water: and when they stood, their wings were let down.

[25] And lo! a voice from above the firmament [26] that was over their head, there was as the appearance of a sapphire stone, and the likeness of a throne upon it: and upon the likeness of the throne was the likeness as an appearance of a man above. [27] And I saw as it were the resemblance of amber from the appearance of the loins and upwards, and from the appearance of the loins and under I saw an appearance of fire, and the brightness thereof round about. [28] As the appearance of the bow when it is in the cloud in days of rain, so was the form of brightness round about.

Chapter 2

[1] This was the appearance of the likeness of the glory of the Lord. And I saw and fell upon my face, and heard the voice of one speaking: and he said to me, Son of man, stand upon thy feet, and I will speak to thee. [2] And the Spirit came upon me, and took me up, and raised me, and set me on my feet: and I heard him speaking to me. [3] And he said to me, Son of Man, I send thee forth to the house of Israel, them that provoke me; who have provoked me, they and their fathers to this day. [4] And thou shalt say to them, Thus saith the Lord. [5] Whether then indeed they shall hear or fear. (for it is a provoking house,) yet they shall know that thou art a prophet in the midst of them.

[6] And thou, son of man, fear them not, nor be dismayed at their face; (for they will madden and will rise up against thee round about, and thou dwellest in the midst of scorpions): be not afraid of their words, nor be dismayed at their countenance, for it is a provoking house. [7] And thou shalt speak my words to them, whether they will hear or fear: for it is a provoking house.

[8] And thou, son of man, hear him that speaks to thee; be not thou provoking, as the provoking house: open thy mouth, and eat what I give thee. [9] And I looked, and behold, a hand stretched out to me, and in it a volume of a book. [10] And he unrolled it before me: and in it the front and the back were written upon: and there was written in it Lamentation, and mournful song, and woe.

Chapter 3

[1] And he said to me, Son of Man, eat this volume, and go and speak to the children of Israel. [2] So he opened my mouth, and caused me to eat the volume.

And he said to me, Son of man, [3] thy mouth shall eat, and thy belly shall be filled with this volume that is given to thee. So I ate it; and it was in my mouth as sweet as honey.

[4] And he said to me, Son of man, go thy way, and go in to the house of Israel, and speak my words to them. [5] For thou art not sent to a people of hard speech, but to the house of Israel; [6] neither to many nations of other speech and other tongues, nor of harsh language, whose words thou wouldest not understand: although if I had sent thee to such, they would have hearkened to thee. [7] But the house of Israel will not be willing to hearken to thee; for they will not hearken to me: for all the house of Israel are stubborn and hard-hearted. [8] And, behold, I have made thy face strong against their faces, and I will strengthen thy power against their power. [9] And it shall be continually stronger than a rock: be not afraid of them, neither be dismayed at their faces, because it is a provoking house.

[10] And he said to me, Son of man, receive into thine heart all the words that I have spoken to thee, and hear them with thine ears. [11] And go thy way, go in to the captivity, to the children of thy people, and thou shalt speak to them, and say to them, Thus saith the Lord; whether they will hear, or whether they will forbear.

[12] Then the Spirit took me up, and I heard behind me the voice as of a great earthquake, saying, Blessed be the glory of the Lord from his place. [13] And I perceived the sound of the wings of the living creatures clapping one to the other, and the sound of the wheels was near them, and the sound of the earthquake. [14] And the Spirit lifted me, and took me up, and I went in the impulse of my spirit; and the hand of the Lord was mighty upon me.

[15] Then I passed through the air and came into the captivity, and went round to them that dwelt by the river of Chobar who were there; and I sat there seven days, conversant in the midst of them.

[16] And after the seven days the word of the Lord came to me, saying, Son of man, [17] I have made thee a watchman to the house of Israel; and thou shalt hear a word of my mouth, and shalt threaten them from me. [18] When I say to the wicked, Thou shalt surely die; and thou hast not warned him, to give warning to the wicked, to turn from his ways, that he should live; that wicked man shall die in his iniquity; but his blood will I require at thy hand. [19] But if thou warn the wicked, and he turn not from his wickedness, and from his way, that wicked man shall die in his iniquity, and thou shalt deliver thy soul.

[20] And when the righteous turns away from his righteousness, and commits a trespass, and I shall bring punishment before him, he shall die, because thou didst not warn him: he shall even die in his sins, because his righteousness shall not be remembered; but his blood will I require at thine hand. [21] But if thou warn the righteous not to sin, and he sin not, the righteous shall surely live, because thou hast warned him; and thou shalt deliver thine own soul.

[22] And the hand of the Lord came upon me; and he said to me, Arise, and go forth into the plain, and there shalt thou be spoken to.

[23] And I arose, and went forth to the plain: and, behold, the glory of the Lord stood there, according to the vision, and according to the glory of the Lord, which I saw by the river of Chobar: and I fell on my face. [24] Then the Spirit came upon me, and set me on my feet, and spoke to me, and said to me, Go in, and shut thyself up in the midst of thine house. [25] And thou, son of man, behold, bonds are prepared for thee, and they shall bind thee with them, and thou shalt not come forth of the midst of them. [26] Also I will bind thy tongue, and thou shalt be dumb, and shalt not be to them a reprover: because it is a provoking house. [27] But when I speak to thee, I will open thy mouth, and thou shalt say to them, Thus saith the Lord, He that hears, let him hear; and he that is disobedient, let him be disobedient: because it is a provoking house.

Chapter 4

[1] And thou, son of man, take thee a brick, and thou shalt set it before thy face, and shalt portray on it the city, even Jerusalem. [2] And thou shalt besiege it, and build works against it, and throw up a mound round about it, and pitch camps against it, and set up engines round about. [3] And take thou to thyself an iron pan, and thou shalt set it for an iron wall between thee and the city: and thou shalt set thy face against it, and it shall be in a siege, and thou shalt besiege it. This is a sign to the children of Israel.

[4] And thou shalt lie upon thy left side, and lay the iniquities of the house of Israel upon it, according to the number of the hundred and fifty days during which thou shalt lie upon it: and thou shalt bear their iniquities. [5] For I have appointed thee their iniquities for a number of days, for a hundred and ninety days: so thou shalt bear the iniquities of the house of Israel. [6] And thou shalt accomplish this, and then shalt lie on thy right side, and shalt bear the iniquities of the house of Juda forty days: I have appointed thee a day for a year.

[7] So thou shalt set thy face to the siege of Jerusalem, and shalt strengthen thine arm, and shalt prophesy against it. [8] And, behold, I have prepared bonds for thee, land thou mayest not turn from thy one side to the other, until the days of thy siege shall be accomplished.

[9] Take thou also to thee wheat, and barley, and beans, and lentils, and millet, and bread-corn; and thou shalt cast them into one earthen vessel, and shalt make them into loaves for thyself; and thou shalt eat them a hundred and ninety days, according to the number of the days during which thou sleepest on thy side. [10] And thou shalt eat thy food by weight, twenty shekels a day: from time to time shalt thou eat them. [11] And thou shalt drink water by measure, even from time to time thou shalt drink the sixth part of a hin. [12] And thou shalt eat them as a barley cake: thou shalt bake them before their eyes in man's dung.

[13] And thou shalt say, Thus saith the Lord God of Israel; Thus shall the children of Israel eat unclean things among the Gentiles. [14] Then I said, Not so, Lord God of Israel: surely my soul has not been defiled with uncleanness; nor have I eaten, that which died of itself or was torn of beasts from my birth until now; neither has any corrupt flesh entered into my mouth.

[15] And he said to me, Behold, I have given thee dung of oxen instead of man's dung, and thou shalt prepare thy loaves upon it.

[16] And he said to me, Son of man, behold, I break the support of bread in Jerusalem: and they shall eat bread by weight and in want; and shall drink water by measure, and in a state of ruin: [17] that they may want bread and water; and a man and his brother shall be brought to ruin, and they shall pine away in their iniquities.

Chapter 5

[1] And thou, son of man, take thee a sword sharper than a barber's razor; thou shalt procure it for thyself, and shalt bring it upon thine head, and upon thy beard: and thou shalt take a pair of scales, and shalt separate the hair. [2] A fourth part thou shalt burn in the fire in the midst of the city, at the fulfillment of the days of the siege: and thou shalt take a fourth part, and burn it up in the midst of it: and a fourth part thou shalt cut with a sword round about it: and a fourth part thou shalt scatter to the wind; and I will draw out a sword after them.

[3] And thou shalt take thence a few in number, and shalt wrap them in the fold of thy garment. [4] And thou shalt take of these again, and cast them into the midst of the fire, and burn them up with fire: from thence shall come forth fire; and thou shalt say to the whole house of Israel,

[5] Thus saith the Lord; This is Jerusalem: I have set her and the countries round about her in the midst of the nations. [6] And thou shalt declare mine ordinances to the lawless one from out of the nations; and my statutes to the sinful one of the countries round about her: because they have rejected mine ordinances, and have not walked in my statutes.

[7] Therefore thus saith the Lord, Because your occasion for sin has been taken from the nations round about you, and ye have not walked in my statutes, nor kept mine ordinances, nay, ye have not even done according to the ordinances of the nations round about you; therefore thus saith the Lord; [8] Behold, I am against thee, and I will execute judgement in the midst of thee in the sight of the nations. [9] And I will do in thee things which I have not done, and the like of which I will not do again, for all thine abominations. [10] Therefore the fathers shall eat their children in the midst of thee, and children shall eat their fathers; and I will execute judgements in thee, and I will scatter all that are left of thee to every wind.

[11] Therefore, as I live, saith the Lord; surely, because thou hast defiled my holy things with all thine abominations, I also will reject thee; mine eye shall not spare, land I will have no mercy. [12] A fourth part of thee shall be cut off by pestilence, and a fourth part of thee shall be consumed in the midst of thee with famine: and as for another fourth part of thee, I will scatter them to every wind; and a fourth part of thee shall fall by sword round about thee, and I will draw out a sword after them.

[13] And my wrath and mine anger shall be accomplished upon them: and thou shalt know that I the Lord have spoken in my jealousy, when I have accomplished mine anger upon them.

[14] And I will make thee desolate, and thy daughters round about thee, in the sight of every one that passes through. [15] And thou shalt be mourned over and miserable among the nations round about thee, when I have executed judgements in thee in the vengeance of my wrath. I the Lord have spoken. [16]

And when I have sent against them shafts of famine, then they shall be consumed, and I will break the strength of thy bread. ^[17] So I will send forth against thee famine and evil beasts, and I will take vengeance upon thee; and pestilence and blood shall pass through upon thee; and I will bring a sword upon thee round about. I the Lord have spoken.

Chapter 6

[1] And the word of the Lord came to me, saying, [2] Son of man, set thy face against the mountains of Israel, and prophesy against them; [3] and thou shalt say,

Ye mountains of Israel, hear the word of the Lord; thus saith the Lord to the mountains, and to the hills, and to the valleys, and to the forests; Behold, I bring a sword upon you, and your high places shall be utterly destroyed. [4] And your altars shall be broken to pieces, and your consecrated plats; and I will cast down your slain men before your idols. [5] And I will scatter your bones round about your altars, [6] and in all your habitations: the cities shall be made desolate, and the high places utterly laid waste; that your altars may be destroyed, and your idols be broken to pieces, and your consecrated plats be abolished. [7] And slain men shall fall in the midst of you, and ye shall know that I am the Lord.

[8] When there are some of you escaping from the sword among the Gentiles, and when ye are scattered in the countries; [9] then they of you that escape among the nations whither they were carried captive shall remember me; (I have sworn an oath against their heart that goes a-whoring from me, and their eyes that go a-whoring after their practices;) and they shall mourn over themselves for all their abominations. [10] And they shall know that I the Lord have spoken.

[11] Thus saith the Lord; Clap with thy hand, and stamp with thy foot and say, Aha, aha! for all the abominations of the house of Israel: they shall fall by the sword, and by pestilence, and by famine. [12] He that is near shall fall by the sword; and he that is far off shall die by the pestilence; and he that is in the siege shall be consumed with famine: and I will accomplish mine anger upon them.

[13] Then ye shall know that I am the Lord, when your slain are in the midst of your idols round about your altars, on every high hill, and under every shady tree, where they offered a sweet savour to all their idols. [14] And I will stretch out my hand against them, and I will make the land desolate and ruined from the wilderness of Deblatha, in all their habitations: and ye shall know that I am the Lord.

Chapter 7

[1] Moreover the word of the Lord came to me, saying, Also, thou, son of man, say, [2] Thus saith the Lord;

An end is come to the land of Israel, the end is come on the four corners of the land. [3] The end is come on thee, [7] the inhabitant of the land: the time is come, the day has drawn nigh, not with tumult, nor with pangs. [8] Now I will pour out my anger upon thee near at hand, and I will accomplish my wrath on thee: and I will judge thee for thy ways, and recompense upon thee all thine abominations. [9] Mine eye shall not spare, nor will I have any mercy: for I will recompense thy ways upon thee, and thine abominations shall be in the midst of thee; and thou shalt know that I am the Lord that smite thee. [7] Now the end is come to thee, and I will send judgment upon thee: and I will take vengeance on thy ways, and will recompense all thine abominations upon thee. [4] Mine eye shall not spare, nor will I have any mercy: for I will recompense thy way upon thee, and thine abominations shall be in the midst of thee; and thou shalt know that I am the Lord.

[5] For thus saith the Lord; Behold, the end is come.

[10] Behold, the day of the Lord! although the rod has blossomed, [11] pride has sprung up, and will break the staff of the wicked one, and that not with tumult, nor with haste. [12] The time is come, behold the day: let not the buyer rejoice, and let not the seller mourn. [13] For the buyer shall never again return to the seller, neither shall a man cleave with the eye of hope to his life. [14] Sound ye the trumpet, and pass sentence on all together. [15] There shall be war with the sword without, and famine and pestilence within: he that is in the field shall die by the sword; and famine and pestilence shall destroy them that are in the city.

[16] But they that escape of them shall be delivered, and shall be upon the mountains: and I will slay all the rest, every one for his iniquities. [17] All hands shall be completely weakened, and all thighs shall be defiled with moisture. [18] And they shall gird themselves with sackcloth, and amazement shall cover them; and shame shall be upon them, even upon every face, and baldness upon every head. [19] Their silver shall be cast forth in the streets, and their gold shall be despised: their souls shall not be satisfied, and their bellies shall not be filled: for it was the punishment of their iniquities. [20] As for their choice ornaments, they employed them for pride, and they made of them images of their abominations: therefore have I made them uncleanness to them.

[21] And I will deliver them into the hands of strangers to make them a prey, and to the pests of the earth for a spoil; and they shall profane them. [22] And I will turn away my face from them, and they shall defile my charge, and shall go in to them unguardedly, and profane them. [23] And they shall work uncleanness: because the land is full of strange nations, and the city is full of iniquity. [24] And I will turn back the boasting of their strength; and their holy things shall be defiled. [25] And though propitiation shall come, and one shall seek peace, yet there shall be none. [26] There shall be woe upon woe, and there shall be message upon message; and a vision shall be sought from a prophet; but the law shall perish from the priest, and counsel from the elders. [27] The prince shall clothe himself with desolation, and the hands of the people of the land shall be made feeble: I will do to them according to their ways, and according to their judgements will I punish them; and they shall know that I am the Lord.

[1] And it came to pass in the sixth year, in the fifth month, on the fifth day of the month, I was sitting in the house, and the elders of Juda were sitting before me: and the hand of the Lord came upon me. [2] And I looked, and, behold, the likeness of a man: from his loins and downwards there was fire, and from his loins upwards there was as the appearance of amber. [3] And he stretched forth the likeness of a hand, and took me by the crown of my head; and the Spirit lifted me up between the earth and sky, and brought me to Jerusalem in a vision of God, to the porch of the gate that looks to the north, where was the pillar of the Purchaser. [4] And, behold, the glory of the Lord God of Israel was there, according to the vision which I saw in the plain.

[5] And he said to me, Son of man, lift up thine eyes toward the north. So I lifted up mine eyes toward the north, and, behold, I looked from the north toward the eastern gate. [6] And he said to me, Son of man, hast thou seen what these do? They commit great abominations here so that I should keep away from my sanctuary: and thou shalt see yet greater iniquities.

[7] And he brought me to the porch of the court. [8] And he said to me, Son of man, dig: so I dug, and behold a door. [9] And he said to me, Go in, and behold the iniquities which they practise here. [10] So I went in and looked; and beheld vain abominations, and all the idols of the house of Israel, portrayed upon them round about. [11] And seventy men of the elders of the house of Israel, and Jechonias the son of Saphan stood in their presence in the midst of them, and each one held his censer in his hand; and the smoke of the incense went up. [12] And he said to me, Thou hast seen, son of man, what the elders of the house of Israel do, each one of them in their secret chamber: because they have said, The Lord see not; The Lord has forsaken the earth.

[13] And he said to me, Thou shalt see yet greater iniquities which these do. [14] And he brought me in to the porch of the house of the Lord that looks to the north; and, behold there were women sitting there lamenting for Thammuz. [15] And he said to me, Son of man, thou hast seen; but thou shalt yet see evil practices greater then these.

[16] And he brought me into the inner court of the house of the Lord, and at the entrance of the temple of the Lord, between the porch and the altar, were about twenty men, with their back parts toward the temple of the Lord, and their faces turned the opposite way; and these were worshipping the sun. [17] And he said to me, Son of man, thou hast seen this. Is it a little thing to the house of Juda to practise the iniquities which they have practised here? for they have filled the land with iniquity: and, behold, these are as scorners. [18] Therefore will I deal with them in wrath: mine eye shall not spare, nor will I have any mercy.

[1] And he cried in mine ears with a loud voice, saying, The judgement of the city has drawn nigh; and each had the weapons of destruction in his hand. [2] And, behold, six men came from the way of the high gate that looks toward the north, and each one's axe was in his hand; and there was one man in the midst of them clothed with a long robe down to the feet, and a sapphire girdle was on his loins: and they came in and stood near the brazen altar. [3] And the glory of the God of Israel, that was upon them, went up from the cherubs to the porch of the house.

And he called the man that was clothed with the long robe, who had the girdle on his loins; [4] And said to him, Go through the midst of Jerusalem, and set a mark on the foreheads of the men that groan and that grieve for all the iniquities that are done in the midst of them. [5] And he said to the first in my hearing, Go after him into the city, and smite: and let not your eyes spare, and have no mercy. [6] Slay utterly old man and youth, and virgin, and infants, and women: but go ye not nigh any on whom is the mark: begin at my sanctuary.

So they began with the elder men who were within in the house. [7] And he said to them, Defile the house, and go out and fill the ways with dead bodies, and smite.

[8] And it came to pass as they were smiting, that I fell upon my face, and cried out, and said, Alas, O Lord! wilt thou destroy the remnant of Israel, in pouring out thy wrath upon Jerusalem? [9] Then said he to me, The iniquity of the house of Israel and Juda is become very exceedingly great: for the land is filled with many nations, and the city is filled with iniquity and uncleanness: because they have said, The Lord has forsaken the earth, The Lord looks not upon it. [10] Therefore mine eye shall not spare, neither will I have any mercy: I have recompensed their ways upon their heads.

[11] And, behold, the man clothed with the long robe, and girt with the girdle about his loins, answered and said, I have done as thou didst command me.

Chapter 10

[1] Then I looked, and, behold, over the firmament that was above the head of the cherubs there was a likeness of a throne over them, as a sapphire stone. [2] And he said to the man clothed with the long robe, Go in between the wheels that are under the cherubs, and fill thine hands with coals of fire from between the cherubs, and scatter them over the city. And he went in my sight.

[3] And the cherubs stood on the right hand of the house, as the man went in; and the cloud filled the inner court. [4] Then the glory of the Lord departed from the cherubs to the porch of the house; and the cloud filled the house, and the court was filled with the brightness of the glory of the Lord. [5] And the sound of the cherubs' wings was heard as far as the outer court, as the voice of the Almighty God speaking.

[6] And it came to pass, when he gave a charge to the man clothed with the sacred robe, saying, Take fire from between the wheels from between the cherubs, that he went in, and stood near the wheels. [7] And he stretched forth his hand into the midst of the fire that was between the cherubs, and took thereof, and put it into the hands of the man clothed with the sacred robe: and he took it, and went out.

[8] And I saw the cherubs having the likeness of men's hands under their wings. [9] And I saw, and behold, four wheels stood by the cherubs, one wheel by each cherub: and the appearance of the wheels was as the appearance of a carbuncle stone. [10] And as for their appearance, there was one likeness to the four, as if there should be a wheel in the midst of a wheel. [11] When they went, they went on their four sides; they turned not when they went, for whichever way the first head looked, they went; and they turned not as they went. [12] And their backs, and their hands, and their wings, and the wheels, were full of eyes round about the four wheels. [13] And these wheels were called Gelgel in my hearing. [14] 15 And the cherubs were the same living creature which I saw by the river of Chobar.

[16] And when the cherubs went, the wheels went, and they were close to them: and when the cherubs lifted up their wings to mount up from the earth, their wheels turned not. [17] When they stood, the wheels stood; and when they mounted up, the wheels mounted up with them: because the spirit of life was in them.

[18] Then the glory of the Lord departed from the house, and went up on the cherubs. [19] And the cherubs lifted up their wings, and mounted up from the earth in my sight: when they went forth, the wheels were also beside them, and they stood at the entrance of the front gate of the house of the Lord; and the glory of the God of Israel was upon them above.

[20] This is the living creature which I saw under the God of Israel by the river of Chobar; and I knew that they were cherubs. [21] Each one had four faces, and each one had eight wings; and under their wings was the likeness of men's hands. [22] And as for the likeness of their faces, these are the same faces which I saw under the glory of the God of Israel by the river of Chobar: and they went each straight forward.

Chapter 11

[1] Moreover the Spirit took me up, and brought me to the front gate of the house of the Lord, that looks eastward: and behold at the entrance of the gate were about five and twenty men; and I saw in the midst of them Jechonias the son of Ezer, and Phaltias the son of Banaeas, the leaders of the people.

[2] And the Lord said to me, Son of man, these are the men that devise vanities, and take evil counsel in this city: [3] who say, Have not the houses been newly built? This is the caldron, and we are the flesh. [4] Therefore prophesy against them, prophesy, son of man. [5] And the Spirit of the Lord fell upon me, and said to me, say;

Thus saith the Lord; Thus have ye said, O house of Israel: and I know the devices of your spirit. [6] Ye have multiplied your dead in this city, and ye have filled your ways with slain men. [7] Therefore thus saith the Lord; Your dead whom ye have smitten in the midst of it, these are the flesh, and city this is the caldron: but I will bring you forth out of the midst of it. [8] Ye fear the sword; and I will bring a sword upon you, saith the Lord. [9] And I will bring you forth out of the midst of it, and will deliver you into the hands of strangers, and will execute judgements among you. [10] Ye shall fall by the sword; I will judge you on the mountains of Israel; and ye shall know that I am the Lord.

[11] 12 [13] And it came to pass, while I was prophesying, that Phaltias the son of Banaeas died. And I fell upon my face, and cried with a loud voice, and said, Alas, alas, O Lord! wilt thou utterly destroy the remnant of Israel? [14] And the word of the Lord came to me, saying, [15] Son of man, thy brethren, and the men of thy captivity, and all the house of Israel are come to the full, to whom the inhabitants of Jerusalem said, Keep ye far away from the Lord: the land is given to us for an inheritance. [16] Therefore say thou,

Thus saith the Lord; I will cast them off among the nations, and will disperse them into every land, yet will I be to them for a little sanctuary in the countries which they shall enter. [17] Therefore say thou, Thus saith the Lord; I will also take them from the heathen, and gather them out of the lands wherein I have scattered them, and will give them the land of Israel.

[18] And they shall enter in there, and shall remove all the abominations of it, and all its iniquities from it. [19] And I will give them another heart, and will put a new spirit within them; and will extract the heart of stone from their flesh, and give them a heart of flesh: [20] that they may walk in my commandments, and keep mine ordinances, and do them: and they shall be to me a people, and I will be to them a God.

[21] And as for the heart set upon their abominations and their iniquities, as their heart went after them, I have recompensed their ways on their heads, saith the Lord.

[22] Then the cherubs lifted up their wings, and the wheels beside them; and the glory of the God of Israel was over them above. [23] And the glory of the Lord went up from the midst of the city, and stood on the mountain which was in front of the city.

[24] And the Spirit took me up, and brought me to the land of the Chaldeans, to the captivity, in a vision by the Spirit of God: and I went up after the vision which I saw. [25] And I spoke to the captivity all the words of the Lord which he had shewed me.

Chapter 12

[1] And the word of the Lord came to me, saying, [2] Son of man, thou dwellest in the midst of the iniquities of those, who have eyes to see, and see not; and have ears to hear, and hear not: because it is a provoking house.

[3] Thou therefore, son of man, prepare thyself baggage for going into captivity by day in their sight; and thou shalt be led into captivity from thy place into another place in their sight; that they may see that it is a provoking house. [4] And thou shalt carry forth thy baggage, baggage for captivity, by day before their eyes: and thou shalt go forth at even, as a captive goes forth, in their sight. [5] Dig for thyself into the wall of the house, and thou shalt pass through it in their sight: [6] thou shalt be lifted up on men's shoulders, and shalt go forth in secret: thou shalt cover thy face, and shalt not see the ground: because I have made thee a sign to the house of Israel.

[7] And I did thus according to all that he commanded me; and I carried forth my baggage for captivity by day, and in the evening I dug through the wall for myself, and went out secretly; I was taken up on men's shoulders before them. [8] And the word of the Lord came to me in the morning, saying, [9] Son of man, have not the house of Israel, the provoking house, said to thee, What doest thou? [10] Say to them,

Thus saith the Lord God, the Prince and the Ruler in Israel, even to all the house of Israel who are in the midst of them: [11] say, I am performing signs: as I have done, so shall it be to him: they shall go into banishment and captivity. [12] And the prince in the midst of them shall be borne upon shoulders, and shall go forth in secret through the wall, and shall dig so that he may go forth thereby: he shall cover his face, that he may not be seen by any eye, and he himself shall not see the ground. [13] And I will spread out my net upon him, and he shall be caught in my toils: and I will bring him to Babylon to the land of the Chaldeans; but he shall not see it, though he shall die there. [14] And I will scatter to every wind all his assistants round about him, and all that help him; and I will draw out a sword after them;

[15] And they shall know that I am the Lord, when I have scattered them among the nations; and I will disperse them in the countries.

[16] And I will leave of them a few men in number spared from the sword, and from famine, and pestilence; that they may declare all their iniquities among the nations whither they have gone; and they shall know that I am the Lord.

[17] And the word of the Lord came to me, saying, [18] Son of man, eat thy bread with sorrow, and drink thy water with torment and affliction. [19] And thou shalt say to the people of the land, Thus saith the Lord to the inhabitants of Jerusalem, on the land of Israel; They shall eat their bread in scarcity, and shall drink their water in desolation, that the land may be desolate with all that it contains: for all that dwell in it are ungodly. [20] And their inhabited cities shall be laid utterly waste, and the land shall be desolate; and ye shall know that I am the Lord.

[21] And the word of the Lord came to me, saying, [22] Son of man, what is your parable on the land of Israel, that ye say, The days are long, the vision has perished? [23] Therefore say to them,

Thus saith the Lord; I will even set aside this parable, and the house of Israel shall no more at all use this parable: for thou shalt say to them, The days are at hand, and the import of every vision. [24] For there shall no more be any false vision, nor any one prophesying flatteries in the midst of the children of Israel. [25] For I the Lord will speak my words; I will speak and perform them, and will no more delay, for in your days, O provoking house, I will speak the word, and will perform it, saith the Lord.

[26] Moreover the word of the Lord came to me, saying, [27] Son of man, behold, the provoking house of Israel boldly say, The vision which this man sees is for many days, and he prophesy for times afar off. [28] Therefore say to them,

Thus saith the Lord; Henceforth none of my words shall linger, which I shall speak: I will speak and do, saith the Lord.

Chapter 13

[1] And the word of the Lord came to me, saying, [2] Son of man, prophesy against the prophets of Israel, and thou shalt prophesy, and shalt say to them, Hear ye the word of the Lord:

[3] Thus saith the Lord, Woe to them that prophesy out of their own heart, and who see nothing at all. [4] Thy prophets, O Israel, are like foxes in the deserts. [5] They have not continued steadfast, and they have gathered flocks against the house of Israel, they that say, [6] In the day of the Lord, have not stood, seeing false visions, prophesying vanities, who say, The Lord saith, and the Lord has not sent them, and they began to try to confirm the word. [7] Have ye not seen a false vision? and spoken vain prophecies? [8] And therefore say,

Thus saith the Lord; Because your words are false, and your prophecies are vain, therefore, behold, I am against you, saith the Lord. [9] And I will stretch forth my hand against the prophets that see false visions, and those that utter vanities: they shall not partake of the instruction of my people, neither shall they be written in the roll of the house of Israel, and they shall not enter into the land of Israel; and they shall know that I am the Lord. [10] Because they have caused my people to err, saying, Peace; and there is no peace; and one builds a wall, and they plaster it, — it shall fall.

[11] Say to them that plaster it, It shall fall; and there shall be a flooding rain; and I will send great stones upon their joinings, and they shall fall; and there shall be a sweeping wind, and it shall be broken. [12] And lo! the wall has fallen; and will they not say to you, Where is your plaster wherewith ye plastered it? [13] Therefore thus saith the Lord; I will even cause to burst forth a sweeping blast with fury, and there shall be a flooding rain in my wrath; and in my fury I will bring on great stones for complete destruction. [14] And I will break down the wall which ye have plastered, and it shall fall; and I will lay it on the ground, and its foundations shall be discovered, and it shall fall; and ye shall be consumed with rebukes: and ye shall know that I am the Lord.

[15] And I will accomplish my wrath upon the wall, and upon them that plaster it; it shall fall: and I said to you, The wall is not, nor they that plaster it, [16] even the prophets of Israel, who prophesy concerning Jerusalem, and who see visions of peace for her, and there is no peace, saith the Lord. [17] And thou, son of man, set thy face firmly against the daughters of thy people, that prophesy out of their own heart; and prophesy against them. [18] And thou shalt say, Thus saith the Lord, Woe to the women that sew pillows under every elbow, and make kerchiefs on the head of every stature to pervert souls! The souls of my people are perverted, and they have saved souls alive. [19] And they have dishonoured me before my people for a handful of barley, and for pieces of bread, to slay the souls which should not die, and to save alive the souls which should not live, while ye speak to a people hearing vain speeches.

[20] Therefore thus saith the Lord God, Behold, I am against your pillows, whereby ye there confound souls, and I will tear them away from your arms, and will set at liberty their souls which ye pervert to scatter them. [21] And I will tear your Kerchiefs, and will rescue my people out of your hands, and they shall no longer be in your hands to be confounded; and ye shall know that I am the Lord.

[22] Because ye have perverted the heart of the righteous, whereas I perverted him not, and that in order to strengthen the hands of the wicked, that he should not at all turn from his evil way and live: [23] therefore ye shall not see false visions, and ye shall no more utter prophecies: but I will deliver my people out of your hand; and ye shall know that I am the Lord.

Chapter 14

[1] And there came to me men of the people of Israel, of the elders, and sat before me. [2] And the word of the Lord came to me, saying, [3] Son of man, these men have conceived their devices in their hearts, and have set before their faces the punishment of their iniquities: shall I indeed answer them? [4] Therefore speak to them, and thou shalt say to them, Thus saith the Lord; Any man of the house of Israel, who shall conceive his devices in his heart, and shall set the punishment of his iniquity before his face, and shall come to the prophet; I the Lord will answer him according to the things in which his mind is entangled, [5] that he should turn aside the house of Israel, according to their hearts that are estranged from me in their thoughts.

[6] Therefore say to the house of Israel, Thus saith the Lord God, Be converted, and turn from your evil practices, and from all your sins, and turn your faces back again. [7] For any man of the house of Israel, or of the strangers that sojourn in Israel, who shall separate himself from me, and conceive his imaginations in his heart, and set before his face the punishment of his iniquity, and come to the prophet to enquire of him concerning me; I the Lord will answer him, according to the things wherein he is entangled. [8] And I will set my face against that man, and will make him desolate and ruined, and will cut him off from the midst of my people; and ye shall know that I am the Lord.

[9] And if a prophet should cause to err and should speak, I the Lord have caused that prophet to err, and will stretch out my hand upon him, and will utterly destroy him from the midst of my people Israel. [10] And they shall bear their iniquity according to the trespass of him that asks; and it shall be in like manner to the prophet according to the trespass: [11] that the house of Israel may no go astray from me, and that they may no more defile themselves with any of their transgressions: so shall they be my people, and I will be their God, saith the Lord.

[12] And the word of the Lord came to me, saying, [13] Son of man, if a land shall sin against me by committing a trespass, then will I stretch out my hand upon it, and will break its staff of bread, and will send forth famine upon it, and cut off from it man and beast. [14] And though these three men should be in the midst of it, Noe, and Daniel, and Job, they alone should be delivered by their righteousness, saith the Lord.

[15] If again I bring evil beasts upon the land, and take vengeance upon it, and it be ruined, and there be no one to pass through for fear of the wild beasts: [16] and if these three men should be in the midst of it, as I live, saith the Lord, neither sons nor daughters shall be saved, but these only shall be saved, and the land shall be destroyed. [17] Or again if I bring a sword upon that land, and say, Let the sword go through the land; and I cut off from them man and beast: [18] though these three men were in the midst of it, as I live, saith the Lord, they shall not deliver sons or daughters, but they only shall be saved themselves.

[19] Or if again I send pestilence upon that land, and pour out my wrath upon it in blood, to destroy from off it man and beast: [20] and should Noe, and Daniel, and Job, be in the midst of it, as I live, saith the Lord, there shall be left them neither sons nor daughters; only they by their righteousness shall deliver their souls.

[21] Thus saith the Lord, And if I even send upon Jerusalem my four sore judgements, sword, and famine, and evil beasts, and pestilence, to destroy from out of it man and beast; [22] yet, behold, there shall be men left in it, the escaped thereof, who shall lead forth of it sons and daughters: behold, they shall go forth to you, land ye shall see their ways and their thoughts: and ye shall mourn over the evils which I have brought upon Jerusalem, even all the evils which I have brought upon it. [23] And they shall comfort you, because ye shall see their ways and their thoughts: and ye shall know that I have not done in vain all that I have done in it, saith the Lord.

Chapter 15

[1] And the word of the Lord came to me, saying,

[2] And thou, son of man — of all the wood, of the branches that are among the trees of the forest, what shall be made of the wood of the vine? [3] Will they take wood of it to make it fit for work? will they take of it a peg to hang any vessel upon it? [4] It is only given to the fire to be consumed; the fire consumes that which is yearly pruned of it, and it is utterly gone. Will it be useful for any work? [5] Not even while it is yet whole will it be useful for any work: if the fire shall have utterly consumed it, will it still be fit for work? [6] Therefore say,

Thus saith the Lord, As the vine-tree among the trees of the forest, which I have given up to the fire to be consumed, so have I given up the inhabitants of Jerusalem. [7] And I will set my face against them; they shall go forth of the fire, and yet fire shall devour them; and they shall know that I am the Lord, when I have set my face against them. [8] And I will give up the land to ruin, because they have utterly transgressed, saith the Lord.

Chapter 16

[1] Moreover the word of the Lord came to me, saying, [2] Son of man, testify to Jerusalem of her iniquities; [3] and thou shalt say,

Thus saith the Lord to Jerusalem; Thy root and thy birth are of the land of Chanaan: thy father was an Amorite, and thy mother a Chettite. [4] And as for thy birth in the day wherein thou wast born, thou didst not bind thy breasts, and thou wast not washed in water, neither wast thou salted with salt, neither wast thou swathed in swaddling-bands. [5] Nor did mine eye pity thee, to do for thee one of all these things, to feel at all for thee; but thou wast cast out on the face of the field, because of the deformity of thy person, in the day wherein thou wast born.

[6] And I passed by to thee, and saw thee polluted in thy blood; and I said to thee, Let there be life out of thy blood: [7] increase; I have made thee as the springing grass of the field. So thou didst increase and grow, and didst enter into great cities: thy breasts were set, and thy hair grew, whereas thou wast naked and bare.

[8] And I passed by thee and saw thee, and, behold, it was thy time and a time of resting; and I spread my wings over thee, and covered thy shame, and swear to thee: and I entered into covenant with thee, saith the Lord, and thou becamest mine. [9] And I washed thee in water, and washed thy blood from thee, and anointed thee with oil. [10] And I clothed thee with embroidered garments, and clothed thee beneath with purple, and girded thee with fine linen, and clothed thee with silk, [11] and decked thee also with ornaments, and put bracelets on thine hands, and a necklace on thy neck. [12] And I put a pendant on thy nostril, and rings in thine ears, and a crown of glory on thine head. [13] So thou wast adorned with gold and silver; and thy raiment was of fine linen, and silk, and variegated work: thou didst eat fine flour, and oil, and honey, and didst become extremely beautiful. [14] And thy name went forth among the nations for thy beauty: because it was perfected with elegance, and in the comeliness which I put upon thee, saith the Lord.

[15] Thou didst trust in thy beauty, and didst go a-whoring because of thy renown, and didst pour out thy fornication on every passer by. [16] and thou didst take of thy garments, and madest to thyself idols of needlework, and didst go a-whoring after them; therefore thou shalt never come in, nor shall the like take place. [17] And thou tookest thy fair ornaments of my gold and of my silver, of what I gave thee, and thou madest to thyself male images, and thou didst commit whoredom with them. [18] And thou didst take thy variegated apparel and didst clothe them, and thou didst set before them mine oil and mine incense. [19] And thou tookest my bread which I gave thee, (yea I fed thee with fine flour and oil and honey) and didst set them before them for a sweet-smelling savour: yea, it was so, saith the Lord.

[20] And thou tookest thy sons and thy daughters, whom thou borest, land didst sacrifice these to them to be destroyed. Thou didst go a-whoring as if that were little, [21] and didst slay thy children, and gavest them up in offering them to them for an expiation. [22] This is beyond all thy fornication, and thou didst not remember thine infancy, when thou wast naked and bare, and didst live though defiled in thy blood.

[23] And it came to pass after all thy wickedness, saith the Lord, [24] that thou didst build thyself a house of fornication, and didst make thyself a public place in every street; [25] and on the head of every way thou didst set up thy fornications, and didst defile thy beauty, and didst open thy feet to every passer by, and didst multiply thy fornication. [26] And thou didst go a-whoring after the children of Egypt thy neighbors, great of flesh; and didst go a-whoring, often to provoke me to anger.

[27] And if I stretch out my hand against thee, then will I abolish thy statutes, and deliver thee up to the wills of them that hate thee, even to the daughters of the Philistines that turned thee aside from the way wherein thou sinned.

[28] And thou didst go a-whoring to the daughters of Assur, and not even thus wast thou satisfied; yea, thou didst go a-whoring, and wast not satisfied. [29] And thou didst multiply thy covenants with the land of the Chaldeans; and not even with these wast thou satisfied.

[30] Why should I make a covenant with thy daughter, saith the Lord, while thou doest all these things, the works of a harlot? and thou hast gone a-whoring in a threefold degree with thy daughters. [31] Thou hast built a house of harlotry in every top of a way, and hast set up thine high place in every street; and thou didst become as a harlot gathering hires. [32] An adulteress resembles thee, taking rewards of her husband. [33] She has even given rewards to all that went a-whoring after her, and thou hast given rewards to all thy lovers, yea, thou didst load them with rewards, that they should come to thee from every side for thy fornication.

[34] And there has happened in thee perverseness in thy fornication beyond other women, and they have committed fornication with thee, in that thou givest hires over and above, and hires were not given to thee; and thus perverseness happened in thee.

[35] Therefore, harlot, hear the word of the Lord: [36] Thus saith the Lord, Because thou hast poured forth thy money, therefore thy shame shall be discovered in thy harlotry with thy lovers, and with regard to all the imaginations of thine iniquities, and for the blood of thy children which thou hast given to them. [37] Therefore, behold, I will gather all thy lovers with whom thou hast consorted, and all whom thou hast loved, with all whom thou didst hate; and I will gather them against thee round about, and will expose thy wickedness to them, and they shall see all thy shame. [38] And I will be avenged on thee with the vengeance of an adulteress, and I will bring upon thee blood of fury and jealousy. [39] And I will deliver thee into their hands, and they shall break down thy house of harlotry, and destroy thine high place; and they shall strip thee of thy garments, and shall take thy proud ornaments, and leave thee naked and bare. [40] and they shall bring multitudes upon thee, and they shall stone thee with stones, and pierce thee with their swords. [41] And they shall burn thine houses with fire, and shall execute vengeance on thee in the sight of many women: and I will turn thee back from harlotry, and I will no more give thee rewards.

[42] So will I slacken my fury against thee, and my jealousy shall be removed from thee, and I will rest, and be no more careful for thee. [43] Because thou didst not remember thine infancy, and thou didst grieve me in all these things; therefore, behold, I have recompensed thy ways upon thine head, saith the Lord: for thus hast thou wrought ungodliness above all thine other iniquities.

[44] These are all the things they have spoken against thee in a proverb, saying, [45] As is the mother, so is thy mother's daughter: thou art she that has rejected her husband and her children; and the sisters of thy sisters have rejected their husbands and their children: your mother was a Chettite, and your father an Amorite. [46] Your elder sister who dwells on thy left hand is Samaria, she and her daughters: and thy younger sister, that dwells on the right hand, is Sodom and her daughters. [47] Yet notwithstanding thou hast not walked in their ways, neither hast thou done according to their iniquities within a little, but thou hast exceeded them in all thy ways.

[48] As I live, saith the Lord, this Sodom and her daughters have not done as thou and thy daughters have done. [49] Moreover this was the sin of thy sister Sodom, pride: she and her daughters lived in pleasure, in fullness of bread and in abundance: this belonged to her and her daughters, and they helped not the hand of the poor and needy. [50] And they boasted, and wrought iniquities before me: so I cut them off as I saw fit.

[51] Also Samaria has not sinned according to half of thy sins; but thou hast multiplied thine iniquities beyond them, and thou hast justified thy sisters in all thine iniquities which thou hast committed. [52] Thou therefore bear thy punishment, for that thou hast corrupted thy sisters by thy sins which thou hast committed beyond them; and thou hast made them appear more righteous than thyself: thou therefore be ashamed, and bear thy dishonour, in that thou hast justified thy sisters. [53] And I will turn their captivity, even the captivity of Sodom and her daughters; and I will turn the captivity of Samaria and her daughters; and I will turn thy captivity in the midst of them: [54] that thou mayest bear thy punishment, and be dishonoured for all that thou hast done in provoking me to anger.

[55] And thy sister Sodom and her daughters shall be restored as they were at the beginning, and thou and thy daughters shall be restored as ye were at the beginning.

[56] And surely thy sister Sodom was not mentioned by thy mouth in the days of thy pride: [57] before thy wickedness was discovered, even now thou art the reproach of the daughters of Syria, and of all that are round about her, even of the daughters of the Philistines that compass thee round about. [58] As for thine ungodliness and thine iniquities, thou hast borne them, saith the Lord.

[59] Thus saith the Lord; I will even do to thee as thou hast done, as thou hast dealt shamefully in these things to transgress my covenant. [60] And I will remember my covenant made with thee in the days of thine infancy, and I will establish to thee an everlasting covenant. [61] Then thou shalt remember thy way, and shalt be utterly dishonoured when thou receivest thine elder sisters with thy younger ones: and I will give them to thee for building up, but not by thy covenant. [62] And I will establish my covenant with thee; and thou shalt know that I am the Lord: [63] that thou mayest remember, and be ashamed, and mayest no more be able to open thy mouth for thy shame, when I am reconciled to thee for all that thou hast done, saith the Lord.

Chapter 17

[1] And the word of the Lord came to me, saying, [2] Son of man, relate a tale, and speak a parable to the house of Israel: [3] and thou shalt say, Thus saith the Lord; A great eagle with large wings, spreading them out very far, with many claws, which has the design of entering into Libanus — and he took the choice branches of the cedar: [4] he cropped off the ends of the tender twigs, and brought them into the land of Chanaan; he laid them up in a walled city. [5] And he took of the seed of the land, and sowed it in a field planted by much water; he set it in a conspicuous place. [6] And it sprang up, and became a weak and little vine, so that the branches thereof appeared upon it, and its roots were under it: and it became a vine, and put forth shoots, and sent forth its tendrils.

[7] And there was another great eagle, with great wings and many claws: and, behold, this vine bent itself round toward him, and her roots were turned towards him, and she sent forth her branches towards him, that he might water her together with the growth of her plantation. [8] She thrives in a fair field by much water, to produce shoots and bear fruit, that she might become a great vine.

[9] Therefore say, Thus saith the Lord; Shall it prosper? shall not the roots of her tender stem and her fruit be blighted? yea, all her early shoots shall be dried up, and that not by a mighty arm, nor by many people, to tear her up from her roots. [10] And, behold, it thrives: shall it prosper? shall it not wither as soon as the east wind touches it? it shall be withered together with the growth of its shoots.

[11] Moreover the word of the Lord came to me saying, [12] Son of man, say now to the provoking house, Know ye not what these things were? say to them, Whenever the king of Babylon shall come against Jerusalem, then he shall take her king and her princes, and shall take them home to Babylon. [13] And he shall take of the seed royal, and shall make a covenant with him, and shall bind him with an oath: and he shall take the princes of the land: [14] that it may become a weak kingdom, so as never to lift itself up, that he may keep his covenant, and establish it. [15] And if he shall revolt from him, to send his messengers into Egypt, that they may give him horses and much people; shall he prosper? shall he that acts as an adversary be preserved? and shall he that transgresses the covenant be preserved?

[16] As I live, saith the Lord, verily in the place where the king is that made him king, who dishonoured my oath, and who broke my covenant, shall he die with him in the midst of Babylon. [17] And Pharaoh shall make war upon him not with a large force or great multitude, in throwing up a mound, and in building of forts, to cut off souls. [18] Whereas he has profaned the oath so as to break the covenant, when, behold, I engage his hand, and he has done all these things to him, he shall not escape.

[19] Therefore say, Thus saith the Lord; As I live, surely mine oath which he has profaned, and my covenant which he has transgressed, I will even recompense it upon his head. [20] And I will spread a net upon him, and he shall be caught in its snare. [21] In every battle of his they shall fall by the sword, and I will scatter his remnant to every wind: and ye shall know that I the Lord have spoken it.

[22] For thus saith the Lord; I will even take of the choice branches of the cedar from the top thereof, I will crop off their hearts, and I will plant it on a high mountain: [23] and I will hang it on a lofty mountain of Israel: yea, I will plant it, and it shall put forth shoots, and shall bear fruit, and it shall be a great cedar: and every bird shall rest beneath it, even every fowl shall rest under its shadow: its branches shall be restored. [24] And all the trees of the field shall know that I am the Lord that bring low the high tree, and exalt the low tree, and wither the green tree, and cause the dry tree to flourish: I the Lord have spoken, and will do it.

Chapter 18

[1] And the word of the Lord came to me, saying, [2] Son of man, what mean ye by this parable among the children of Israel, saying, The fathers have eaten unripe grapes, and the children's teeth have been set on edge?

[3] As I live, saith the Lord, surely this parable shall no more be spoken in Israel. [4] For all souls are mine; as the soul of the father, so also the soul of the son, they are mine: the soul that sins, it shall die.

[5] But the man who shall be just, who executes judgment and righteousness, [6] who shall not eat upon the mountains, and shall not at all lift up his eyes to the devices of the house of Israel, and shall not defile his neighbor's wife, and shall not draw nigh to her that is removed, [7] and shall not oppress any man, but shall return the pledge of the debtor, and shall be guilty of no plunder, shall give his bread to the hungry, and clothe the naked; [8] and shall not lend his money upon usury, and shall not receive usurious increase, and shall turn back his hand from injustice, shall execute righteous judgement between a man and his neighbor, [9] and has walked in my commandments and kept mine ordinances, to do them; he is righteous, he shall surely live, saith the Lord.

[10] And if he beget a mischievous son, shedding blood and committing sins, [11] who has not walked in the way of his righteous father, but has even eaten upon the mountains, and has defiled his neighbor's wife, [12] and has oppressed the poor and needy, and has committed robbery, and not restored a pledge, and has set his eyes upon idols, has wrought iniquities, [13] has lent upon usury, and taken usurious increase; he shall by no means live: he has wrought all these iniquities; he shall surely die; his blood shall be upon him.

[14] And if he beget a son, and the son see all his father's sins which he has wrought, and fear, and not do according to them, [15] and if he has not eaten on the mountains, and has not set his eyes on the devices of the house of Israel, and has not defiled his neighbor's wife, [16] and has not oppressed a man, and has not retained the pledge, nor committed robbery, has given his bread to the hungry, and has clothed the naked, [17] and has turned back his hand from unrighteousness, has not received interest or usurious increase, has wrought righteousness, and walked in mine ordinances; he shall not die for the iniquities of his father, he shall surely live. [18] But if his father grievously afflict, or plunder, he has wrought enmity in the midst of my people, and shall die in his iniquity.

[19] But ye will say, Why has not the son borne the iniquity of the father? Because the son has wrought judgement and mercy, has kept all my statutes, and done them, he shall surely live. [20] But the soul that sins shall die: and the son shall not bear the iniquity of the father, nor shall the father bear the iniquity of the son: the righteousness of the righteous shall be upon him, and the iniquity of the transgressor shall be upon him.

[21] And if the transgressor turn away from all his iniquities which he has committed, and keep all my commandments, and do justice and mercy, he shall surely live, and shall no means die. [22] None of his trespasses which he has committed shall be remembered: in his righteousness which he has done he shall live. [23] Shall I at all desire death of the sinner, saith the Lord, as I desire that he should turn from his evil way, and live?

[24] But when the righteous man turns away from his righteousness, and commits iniquity, according to all the transgressions which the transgressor has wrought, none of his righteousness which he has wrought shall be at all remembered: in his trespass wherein he has trespassed, and in his sins wherein he has sinned, in them shall he die.

[25] Yet ye have said, The way of the Lord is not straight. Hear now, all the house of Israel; will not my way be straight? Is your way straight? [26] When the righteous turns away from his righteousness and commits a trespass, and dies in the trespass he has committed, he shall even die in it. [27] And when the wicked man turns away from his wickedness that he has committed, and shall do judgement and justice, he has kept his soul, [28] and has turned away from all his ungodliness which he has committed: he shall surely live, he shall not die.

[29] Yet the house of Israel say, The way of the Lord is not right. Is not my way right, O house of Israel? is not your way wrong? [30] I will judge you, O house of Israel, saith the Lord, each one according to his way: be converted, and turn from all your ungodliness, and it shall not become to you the punishment of iniquity. [31] Cast away from yourselves all your ungodliness wherein ye have sinned against me; and make to yourselves a new heart and a new spirit: for why should ye die, O house of Israel? [32] For I desire not the death of him that dies, saith the Lord.

Chapter 19

[1] Moreover do thou take up a lamentation for the prince of Israel, [2] and say, Why is thy mother become a whelp in the midst of lions? in the midst of lions she has multiplied her whelps. [3] And one of her whelps sprang forth; he became a lion, and learned to take prey, he devoured men. [4] And the nations heard a report of him; he was caught in their pit, and they brought him into the land of Egypt in chains.

[5] And she saw that he was driven away from her, and her hope of him perished, and she took another of her whelps; she made him a lion. [6] And he went up and down in the midst of lions, he became a lion, and learned to take prey, he devoured men. [7] And he prowled in his boldness and laid waste their cities, and made the land desolate, and the fullness of it, by the voice of his roaring.

[8] Then the nations set upon him from the countries round about, and they spread their nets upon him: he was taken in their pit. [9] And they put him in chains and in a cage, and he came to the king of Babylon; and he cast him into prison, that his voice should not be heard on the mountains of Israel. [10] Thy mother was as a vine and as a blossom on a pomegranate tree, planted by water: her fruit and her shoot abounded by reason of much water. [11] And she became a rod for a tribe of princes, and was elevated in her bulk in the midst of other trees, and she saw her bulk in the multitude of her branches.

[12] But she was broken down in wrath, she was cast upon the ground, and the east wind dried up her choice branches: vengeance came upon them, and the rod of her strength was withered; fire consumed it. [13] And now they have planted her in the wilderness, in a dry land. [14] And fire is gone out of a rod of her choice boughs, and has devoured her; and there was no rod of strength in her. Her race is become a parable of lamentation, and it shall be for a lamentation.

[1] And it came to pass in the seventh year, on the fifteenth day of the month, there came men of the elders of the house of Israel to enquire of the Lord, and they sat before me. [2] And the word of the Lord came to me, saying, [3] Son of man, speak to the elders of the house of Israel, and thou shalt say to them, Thus saith the Lord; Are ye come to enquire of me? As I live, I will not be enquired of by you, saith the Lord. [4] Shall I utterly take vengeance on them, son of man? testify to them of the iniquities of their fathers: [5] and thou shalt say to them, Thus saith the Lord;

From the day that I chose the house of Israel, and became known to the seed of the house of Jacob, and was known to them in the land of Egypt, and helped them with my hand, saying, I am the Lord your God; [6] in that day I helped them with my hand, to bring them out of the land of Egypt into the land which I prepared for them, a land flowing with milk and honey, it is abundant beyond every land. [7] And I said to them, Let every one cast away the abominations of his eyes, and defile not yourselves with the devices of Egypt: I am the Lord your God.

[8] But they revolted from me, and would not hearken to me: they cast not away the abominations of their eyes, and forsook not the devices of Egypt: then I said that I would pour out my wrath upon them, to accomplish my wrath upon them in the midst of Egypt. [9] But I wrought so that my name should not be at all profaned in the sight of the Gentiles, in the midst of whom they are, among whom I was made known to them in their sight, to bring them out of the land of Egypt.

[10] And I brought them into the wilderness. [11] And I gave them my commandments, and made known to them mine ordinances, all which if a man shall do, he shall even live in them. [12] And I gave them my sabbaths, that they should be for a sign between me and them, that they should know that I am the Lord that sanctify them.

[13] And I said to the house of Israel in the wilderness, Walk ye in my commandments: but they walked not in them, and they rejected mine ordinances, which if a man shall do, he shall even live in them; and they grievously profaned my sabbaths: and I said that I would pour out my wrath upon them in the wilderness, to consume them. [14] But I wrought so that my name should not be at all profaned before the Gentiles, before whose eyes I brought them out.

[15] But I lifted up my hand against them in the wilderness once for all, that I would not bring them into the land which I gave them, a land flowing with milk and honey, it is sweeter than all lands: [16] because they rejected mine ordinances, and walked not in my commandments, but profaned my sabbaths, and went after the imaginations of their hearts.

[17] Yet mine eyes spared them, so as not to destroy them utterly, and I did not make an end of them in the wilderness. [18] And I said to their children in the wilderness, Walk not ye in the customs of your fathers, and keep not their ordinances, and have no fellowship with their practices, nor defile yourselves with them. [19] I am the Lord your God; walk in my commandments, and keep mine ordinances, and do them; [20] and hallow my sabbaths, and let them be a sign between me and you, that ye may know that I am the Lord your God.

[21] But they provoked me, and their children walked not in my commandments, and they took no heed to mine ordinances to do them, which if a man shall do, he shall even live in them, and they profaned my sabbaths: then I said that I would pour out my wrath upon them in the wilderness, to accomplish mine anger upon them. [22] But I wrought so that my name might not be at all profaned before the Gentiles; and I brought them out in their sight.

[23] I lifted up my hand against them in the wilderness, that I would scatter them among the Gentiles, and disperse them in the countries; [24] because they kept not mine ordinances, and rejected my commandments, and profaned my sabbaths, and their eyes went after the imaginations of their fathers.

[25] So I gave them commandments that were not good, and ordinances in which they should not live. [26] And I will defile them by their own decrees, when I pass through upon every one that opens the womb, that I may destroy them.

[27] Therefore, son of man, speak to the house of Israel, and thou shalt say to them, Thus saith the Lord: Hitherto have your fathers provoke me in their trespasses in which they transgressed against me. [28] Whereas I brought them into the land concerning which I lifted up mine hand to give it them; and they looked upon every high hill, and every shady tree, and they sacrificed there to their gods, and offered there sweet-smelling savour, and there they poured out their drink-offerings. [29] And I said to them, What is Abama, that ye go in thither? and they called its mane Abama, until this day.

[30] Therefore say to the house of Israel, Thus saith the Lord, Do ye pollute yourselves with the iniquities of your fathers, and do ye go a-whoring after their abominations, [31] and do ye pollute yourselves with the first-fruits of your gifts, in the offerings wherewith ye pollute yourselves in all your imaginations, until this day; and shall I answer you, O house of Israel? As I live, saith the Lord, I will not answer you, neither shall this thing come upon your spirit. [32] And it shall not be as ye say, We will be as the nations, and as the tribes of the earth, to worship stocks and stones.

[33] Therefore, as I live, saith the Lord, I will reign over you with a strong hand, and with a high arm, and with outpoured wrath: [34] I will bring you out from the nations, and will take you out of the lands wherein ye were dispersed, with a strong hand, and with a high arm, and with outpoured wrath. [35] And I will bring you into the wilderness of the nations, and will plead with you there face to face.

[36] As I pleaded with your fathers in the wilderness of the land of Egypt, so will I judge you, saith the Lord. [37] And I will cause you to pass under my rod, and I will bring you in by number. [38] And I will separate from among you the ungodly and the revolvers; for I will lead them forth out of their place of sojourning, and they shall not enter into the land of Israel: and ye shall know that I am the Lord, even the Lord.

[39] And as to you, O house of Israel, thus saith the Lord, even the Lord; Put away each one his evil practices, and hereafter if ye hearken to me, then shall ye no more profane my holy name by your gifts and by devices. [40] For upon my holy mountain, on the high mountain, saith the Lord, even the Lord, there shall all the house of Israel serve me for ever: and there will I accept you, and there will I have respect to your first-fruits, and the first-fruits of your offerings, in all your holy things.

[41] I will accept you with a sweet-smelling savour, when I bring you out from the nations, and take you out of the countries wherein ye have been dispersed; and I will be sanctified among you in the sight of the nations. [42] And ye shall know that I am the Lord, when I have brought you into the land of Israel, into the land concerning which I lifted up my hand to give it to your fathers. [43] And ye shall there remember your ways, and your devices wherewith ye defiled yourselves; and ye shall bewail yourselves for all your wickedness. [44] And ye shall know that I am the Lord, when I have done thus to you, that my name may not be profaned in your evil ways, and in your corrupt devices, saith the Lord.

[45] And the word of the Lord came to me, saying, [46] Son of man, set thy face against Thaeman, and look toward Darom, and prophesy against the chief forest of Nageb, [47] and thou shalt say to the forest of Nageb, Hear the word of the Lord; thus saith the Lord, even the Lord; Behold, I will kindle a fire in thee, and it shall devour in thee every green tree, and every dry tree: the flame that is kindled shall not be quenched, and every face shall be scorched with it from the south to the north. [48] And all flesh shall know that I the Lord have kindled it: it shall not be quenched.

[49] And I said, Not so, O Lord God! they say to me, Is not this that is spoken a parable?

Chapter 21

[1] And the word of the Lord came to me, saying,

[2] Therefore prophesy, son of man, set thy face steadfastly toward Jerusalem, and look toward their holy places, and thou shalt prophesy against the land of Israel, [3] and thou shalt say to the land of Israel, Thus saith the Lord; Behold, I am against thee, and I will draw forth my sword out of its sheath, and I will destroy out of thee the transgressor and unrighteous. [4] Because I will destroy out of thee the unrighteous and the transgressor, therefore so shall my sword come forth out of its sheath against all flesh from the south to the north: [5] and all flesh shall know that I the Lord have drawn forth my sword out of its sheath: it shall not return any more.

[6] And thou, son of man, groan with the breaking of thy loins; thou shalt even groan heavily in their sight. [7] And it shall come to pass, if they shall say to thee, Wherefore dost thou groan? that thou shalt say, For the report; because it comes: and every heart shall break, and all hands shall become feeble, and all flesh and every spirit shall faint, and all thighs shall be defiled with moisture: behold, it comes, saith the Lord.

[8] And the word of the Lord came to me, saying, [9] Son of man, prophesy, and thou shalt say, Thus saith the Lord; Say, Sword, sword, be sharpened and rage, [10] that thou mayest slay victims; be sharpened that thou mayest be bright, ready for slaughter, slay, set at nought, despise every tree. [11] And he made it ready for his hand to hold: the sword is sharpened, it is ready to put into the hand of the slayer.

[12] Cry out and howl, son of man: for this sword is come upon my people, this sword is come upon all the princes of Israel: they shall be as strangers: judgment with the sword is come upon my people: therefore clap thine hands, for sentence has been passed: [13] and what if even the tribe be rejected? it shall not be, saith the Lord God.

[14] And thou, son of man, prophesy, and clap thine hands, and take a second sword: the third sword is the sword of the slain, the great sword of the slain: and thou shalt strike them with amazement, lest the heart should faint [15] and the weak ones be multiplied at every gate — they are given up to the slaughter of the sword: it is well fitted for slaughter, it is well fitted for glittering. [16] And do thou go on, sharpen thyself on the right and on the left whithersoever thy face may set itself.

[17] And I also will clap my hands, and let loose my fury: I the Lord have spoken it.

[18] And the word of the Lord came to me, saying, [19] and thou, son of man, appoint thee two ways, that the sword of the king of Babylon may enter in: the two shall go forth of one country; and there shall be a force at the top of the way of the city, thou shalt set it at the top of the way, [20] that the sword may enter in upon Rabbath of the children of Ammon, and upon Judea, and upon Jerusalem in the midst thereof.

[21] For the king of Babylon shall stand on the old way, at the head of the two ways, to use divination, to make bright the arrow, and to enquire of the graven images, and to examine the victims. [22] On his right was the divination against Jerusalem, to cast a mound, to open the mouth in shouting, to lift up the voice with crying, to cast a mound against her gates, to cast up a heap, and to build forts. [23] And he was to them as one using divination before them, and he himself recounting his iniquities, that they might be borne in mind.

[24] Therefore thus saith the Lord, Because ye have caused your iniquities to be remembered, in the discovery of your wickedness, so that your sins should be seen, in all your wickedness and in your evil practices; because ye have caused remembrance of them, in these shall ye be taken. [25] And thou profane wicked prince of Israel, whose day, even and end, is come in a sea of iniquity, thus saith the Lord; [26] Thou hast taken off the mitre and put on the crown, it shall not have such another after it: thou hast abased that which was high, and exalted that which was low. [27] Injustice, injustice, injustice, will I make it: woe to it: such shall it be until he comes to whom it belongs; and I will deliver it to him.

[28] And thou, son of man, prophesy, and thou shalt say, Thus saith the Lord, concerning the children of Ammon, and concerning their reproach; and thou shalt say, O sword, sword, drawn for slaughter, and drawn for destruction, awake, that thou mayest gleam. [29] While thou art seeing vain visions, and while thou art prophesying falsehoods, to bring thyself upon the necks of ungodly transgressors, the day is come, even an end, in a season of iniquity.

[30] Turn, rest not in this place wherein thou wert born: in thine own land will I judge thee. [31] And I will pour out my wrath upon thee, I will blow upon thee with the fire of my wrath, and I will deliver thee into the hands of barbarians skilled in working destruction. [32] Thou shalt be fuel for fire; thy blood shall be in the midst of thy land; there shall be no remembrance at all of thee: for I the Lord have spoken it.

[1] And the word of the Lord came to me, saying, [2] And thou, son of man, wilt thou judge the bloody city? yea, declare thou to her all her iniquities. [3] And thou shalt say, Thus saith the Lord God: O city that sheds blood in the midst of her, so that her time should come, and that forms devices against herself, to defile herself; [4] in their blood which thou hast shed, thou hast transgressed; and in thy devices which thou hast formed, thou hast polluted thyself; and thou hast brought nigh thy days, and hast brought on the time of thy years: therefore have I made thee a reproach to the Gentiles, and a mockery to all the countries, [5] to those near thee, and to those far distant from thee; and they shall mock thee, thou that art notoriously unclean, and abundant in iniquities.

[6] Behold, the princes of the house of Israel have conspired in thee each one with his kindred, that they might shed blood. [7] In thee they have reviled father and mother; and in thee they have behaved unjustly toward the stranger: they have oppressed the orphan and widow. [8] And they have set at nought my holy things, and in thee they have profaned my sabbaths. [9] There are robbers in thee, to shed blood in thee; and in thee they have eaten upon the mountains: they have wrought ungodliness in the midst of thee. [10] In thee they have uncovered the father's shame; and in thee they have humbled her that was set apart for uncleanness. [11] They have dealt unlawfully each one with his neighbor's wife; and each one in ungodliness has defiled his daughter-in-law: and in thee they have humbled each one his sister, the daughter of his father.

[12] In thee they have received gifts to shed blood; they have received in thee interest and usurious increase; and by oppression thou hast brought thy wickedness to the full, and hast forgotten me, saith the Lord.

[13] And if I shall smite my hand at thine iniquities which thou hast accomplished, which thou hast wrought, and at thy blood that has been shed in the midst of thee, [14] shall thy heart endure? shall thine hands be strong in the days which I bring upon thee? I the Lord have spoken, and will do it. [15] And I will scatter thee among the nations, and disperse thee in the countries, and thy uncleanness shall be removed out of thee. [16] And I will give heritages in thee in the sight of the nations, and ye shall know that I am the Lord.

[17] And the word of the Lord came to me, saying, [18] Son of man, behold, the house of Israel are all become to me as it were mixed with brass, and iron, and tin, and lead; they are mixed up in the midst of the silver.

[19] Therefore say, Thus saith the Lord God; Because ye have become one mixture, therefore I will gather you into the midst of Jerusalem. [20] As silver, and brass, and iron, and tin, and lead, are gathered into the midst of the furnace, to blow fire into it, that they may be melted: so will I take you in my wrath, and I will gather and melt you. [21] And I will blow upon you in the fire of my wrath, and ye shall be melted in the midst thereof. [22] As silver is melted in the midst of a furnace, so shall ye be melted in the midst thereof; and ye shall know that I the Lord have poured out my wrath upon you.

[23] And the word of the Lord came to me, saying, [24] Son of man, say to her, Thou art the land that is not rained upon, neither has rain come upon thee in the day of wrath; [25] whose princes in the midst of her are as roaring lions seizing prey, devouring souls by oppression, and taking bribes; and thy widows are multiplied in the midst of thee. [26] Her priests also have set at nought my law, and profaned my holy things: they have not distinguished between the holy and profane, nor have they distinguished between the unclean and the clean, and have hid their eyes from my sabbaths, and I was profaned in the midst of them. [27] Her princes in the midst of her are as wolves ravening to shed blood, that they may get dishonest gain. [28] And her prophets that daub them shall fall, that see vanities, that prophesy falsehoods, saying, Thus saith the Lord, when the Lord has not spoken. [29] That sorely oppress the people of the land with injustice, and commit robbery; oppressing the poor and needy, and not dealing justly with the stranger.

[30] And I sought from among them a man behaving uprightly, and standing before me perfectly in the time of wrath, so that I should not utterly destroy her: but I found him not. [31] So I have poured out my wrath upon her in the fury of mine anger, to accomplish it. I have recompensed their ways on their own heads, saith the Lord God.

[1] And the word of the Lord came to me, saying, [2] Son of man, there were two women, daughters of one mother: [3] and they went a-whoring in Egypt in their youth: there their breasts fell, there they lost their virginity. [4] And their names were Oola the elder, and Ooliba her sister: and they were mine, and bore sons and daughters: and as for their names, Samaria was Oola, and Jerusalem was Ooliba.

[5] And Oola went a-whoring from me, and doted on her lovers, on the Assyrians that were her neighbors, [6] clothed with purple, princes and captains; they were young men and choice, all horseman riding on horses. [7] And she bestowed her fornication upon them; all were choice sons of the Assyrians: and on whomsoever she doted herself, with them she defiled herself in all their devices. [8] And she forsook not her fornication with the Egyptians: for in her youth they committed fornication with her, and they deflowered her, and poured out their fornication upon her. [9] Therefore I delivered her into the hands of her lovers, into the hands of the children of the Assyrians, on whom she doted. [10] They uncovered her shame: they took her sons and daughters, and slew her with the sword: and she became a byword among women: and they wrought vengeance in her for the sake of the daughters.

[11] And her sister Ooliba saw it, and she indulged in her fondness more corruptly than she, and in her fornication more than the fornication of her sister. [12] She doted upon the sons of the Assyrian, princes and captains, her neighbours, clothed with fine linen, horsemen riding on horses; they were all choice young men. [13] And I saw that they were defiled, that the two had one way.

[14] And she increased her fornication, and she saw men painted on the wall, likenesses of the Chaldeans painted with a pencil, [15] having variegated girdles on their loins, having also richly dyed attire upon their heads; all had a princely appearance, the likeness of the children of the Chaldeans, of their native land. [16] And she doted upon them as soon as she saw them, and sent forth messengers to them into the land of the Chaldeans. [17] And the sons of Babylon came to her, into the bed of rest, and they defiled her in her fornication, and she was defiled by them, and her soul was alienated from them. [18] And she exposed her fornication, and exposed her shame: and my soul was alienated from her, even as my soul was alienated from her sister.

[19] And thou didst multiply thy fornication, so as to call to remembrance the days of thy youth, wherein thou didst commit whoredom in Egypt, [20] and thou didst dote upon the Chaldeans, whose flesh is as the flesh of the asses, and their members as the members of horses. [21] And thou didst look upon the iniquity of thy youth, the things which thou wroughtest in Egypt in thy lodgings, where were the breasts of thy youth.

[22] Therefore, Ooliba, thus saith the Lord; Behold, I will stir up thy lovers against thee, from whom thy soul is alienated, and I will bring them upon thee round about, [23] the children of Babylon, and all the Chaldeans, Phacuc, and Sue, and Hychue, and all the sons of the Assyrians with them; choice young men, governors and captains, all princes and renowned, riding on horses. [24] And they all shall come upon thee from the north, chariots and wheels, with a multitude of nations, shields and targets; and the enemy shall set a watch against thee round about: and I will set judgement before them, and they shall take vengeance on thee with their judgements. [25] And I will bring upon thee my jealousy, and they shall deal with thee in great wrath: they shall take away thy nose and thine ears; and shall cast down thy remnant with the sword: they shall take thy sons and thy daughters; and thy remnant fire shall devour. [26] And they shall strip thee of thy raiment, and take away thine ornaments. [27] So I will turn back thine ungodliness from thee, and thy fornication from the land of Egypt: and thou shalt not lift up thine eyes upon them, and shalt no more remember Egypt.

[28] Wherefore thus saith the Lord God; Behold, I will deliver thee into the hands of those whom thou hatest, from whom thy soul is alienated. [29] And they shall deal with thee in hatred, and shall take all the fruits of thy labours and thy toils, and thou shalt be naked and bare: and the shame of thy fornication shall be exposed: and thy ungodliness and thy fornication [30] brought this upon thee, in that thou wentest a-whoring after the nations, and didst defile thyself with their devices.

[31] Thou didst walk in the way of thy sister; and I will put her cup into thine hands. [32] Thus saith the Lord; Drink thy sister's cup, deep and large, and full, to cause complete drunkenness. [33] And thou shalt be thoroughly weakened; and the cup of destruction, the cup of thy sister Samaria, [34] drink thou it, and I will take away her feasts and her new moons: for I have spoken it, saith the Lord. [35] Therefore thus saith the Lord; Because thou has forgotten me, and cast me behind thy back, therefore receive thou the reward of thine ungodliness and thy fornication.

[36] And the Lord said to me, Son of man wilt thou not judge Oola and Ooliba? and declare to them their iniquities? [37] For they have committed adultery, and blood was in their hands, they committed adultery with their devices, and they passed through the fire to them their children which they bore to me. [38] So long too as they did these things to me, they defiled my sanctuary, and profaned my sabbaths. [39] And when they sacrificed their children to their idols, they also went into my sanctuary to profane it: and whereas they did thus in the midst of my house; [40] and whereas they did thus to the men that came from afar, to whom they sent messengers, and as soon as they came, immediately thou didst wash thyself, and didst paint thine eyes and adorn thyself with ornaments, [41] and satest on a prepared bed, and before it there was a table set out, and as for mine incense and mine oil, they rejoiced in them, [42] and they raised a sound of music, and that with men coming from the wilderness out of a multitude of men, and they put bracelets on their hands, and a crown of glory on their heads;

[43] Therefore I said, Do they not commit adultery with these? and has she also gone a-whoring after the manner of a harlot? [44] And they went in to her, as men go in to a harlot; so they went in to Oola and to Ooliba to work iniquity. [45] And they are just men, and shall take vengeance on them with the judgement of an adulteress and the judgement of blood: for they are adulteresses, land blood is in their hands.

[46] Thus saith the Lord God, Bring up a multitude upon them, and send trouble and plunder into the midst of them. [47] And stone them with the stones of a multitude, and pierce them with their swords: they shall slay their sons and their daughters, and shall burn up their houses. [48] And I will remove ungodliness out of the land, and all the women shall be instructed, and shall not do according to their ungodliness. [49] And your ungodliness shall be recompensed upon you, and ye shall bear the guilt of your devices: and ye shall know that I am the Lord.

Chapter 24

[1] And the word of the Lord came to me, in the ninth year, in the tenth month, on the tenth day of the month, saying, [2] Son of man, write for thyself daily from this day, on which the king of Babylon set himself against Jerusalem, even from this day. [3] And speak a parable to the provoking house, and thou shalt say to them,

Thus saith the Lord; Set on the caldron, and pour water into it: [4] and put the pieces into it, every prime piece, the leg and shoulder taken off from the bones, [5] which are taken from choice cattle, and burn the bones under them: her bones are boiled and cooked in the midst of her.

[6] Therefore thus saith the Lord; O bloody city, the caldron in which there is scum, and the scum has not gone out of, she has brought it forth piece by piece, no lot has fallen upon it. [7] For her blood is in the midst of her; I have set it upon a smooth rock: I have not poured it out upon the earth, so that the earth should cover it; [8] that my wrath should come up for complete vengeance to be taken: I set her blood upon a smooth rock, so as not to cover it.

[9] Therefore thus saith the Lord, I will also make the firebrand great, [10] and I will multiply the wood, and kindle the fire, that the flesh may be consumed, and the liquor boiled away; [11] and that it may stand upon the coals, that her brass may be thoroughly heated, and be melted in the midst of her filthiness, and her scum may be consumed, [12] and her abundant scum may not come forth of her. [13] Her scum shall become shameful, because thou didst defile thyself: and what if thou shalt be purged no more until I have accomplished my wrath?

[14] I the Lord have spoken; and it shall come, and I will do it; I will not delay, neither will I have any mercy: I will judge thee, saith the Lord, according to thy ways, and according to thy devices: therefore will I judge thee according to thy bloodshed, and according to thy devices will I judge thee, thou unclean, notorious, and abundantly provoking one.

[15] And the word of the Lord came to me, saying, [16] Son of man, behold I take from thee the desire of thine eyes by violence: thou shalt not lament, neither shalt thou weep. [17] Thou shalt groan for blood, and have mourning upon thy loins; thy hair shall not be braided upon thee, and thy sandals shall be on thy feet; thou shalt in no wise be comforted by their lips, and thou shalt not eat the bread of men.

[18] And I spoke to the people in the morning, as he commanded me in the evening, and I did in the morning as it was commanded me. [19] And the people said to me, Wilt thou not tell us what these things are that thou doest? [20] Then I said to them, The word of the Lord came to me, saying, [21] Say to the house of Israel,

Thus saith the Lord; Behold, I will profane my sanctuary, the boast of your strength, the desire of your eyes, and for which your souls are concerned; and your sons and your daughters, whom ye have left, shall fall by the sword. [22] And ye shall do as I have done: ye shall not be comforted at their mouth, and ye shall not eat the bread of men. [23] And your hair shall be upon your head, and your shoes on your feet: neither shall ye at all lament or weep; but ye shall pine away in your iniquities, and shall comfort every one his brother. [24] And Ezekiel shall be for a sign to you: according to all that I have done shall ye do, when these things shall come; and ye shall know that I am the Lord.

[25] And thou, son of man, shall it not be in the day when I take their strength from them, the pride of their boasting, the desires of their eyes, and the pride of their soul, their sons and their daughters, [26] that in that day he that escapes shall come to thee, to tell it thee in thine ears? [27] In that say thy mouth shall be opened to him that escapes; thou shalt speak, and shalt be no longer dumb: and thou shalt be for a sign to them, and they shall know that I am the Lord.

[1] And the word of the Lord came to me, saying, [2] Son of man, set thy face steadfastly against the children of Ammon, and prophesy against them; [3] and thou shalt say to the children of Ammon,

Hear ye the word of the Lord; thus saith the Lord; Forasmuch as ye have rejoiced against my sanctuary, because it was profaned; and against the land of Israel, because it was laid waste; and against the house of Juda, because they went into captivity; [4] therefore, behold, I will deliver you to the children of Kedem for an inheritance, and they shall lodge in thee with their stuff, and they shall pitch their tents in thee: they shall eat thy fruits, and they shall drink thy milk. [5] And I will give up the city of Ammon for camels' pastures, and the children of Ammon for a pasture of sheep: and ye shall know that I am the Lord.

[6] For thus saith the Lord; Because thou hast clapped thine hands, and stamped with thy foot, and heartily rejoiced against the land of Israel; [7] therefore I will stretch out my hand against thee, and I will make thee a spoil to the nations; and I will utterly destroy thee from among the peoples, and I will completely cut thee off from out of the countries: and thou shalt know that I am the Lord.

[8] Thus saith the Lord; Because Moab has said, Behold, are not the house of Israel and Juda like all the other nations? [9] Therefore, behold, I will weaken the shoulder of Moab from his frontier cities, even the choice land, the house of Bethasimuth above the fountain of the city, by the sea-side. [10] I have given him the children of Kedem in addition to the children of Ammon for an inheritance, that there may be no remembrance of the children of Ammon. [11] And I will execute vengeance on Moab; and they shall know that I am the Lord.

[12] Thus saith the Lord; Because of what the Idumeans have done in taking vengeance on the house of Juda, and because they have remembered injuries, and have exacted full recompense; [13] therefore thus saith the Lord; I will also stretch out my hand upon Idumea, and will utterly destroy out of it man and beast; and will make it desolate; and they that are pursued out of Thaeman shall fall by the sword. [14] And I will execute my vengeance on Idumea by the hand of my people Israel: and they shall deal in Idumea according to mine anger and according to my wrath, and they shall know my vengeance, saith the Lord.

[15] Therefore thus saith the Lord, Because the Philistines have wrought revengefully, and raised up vengeance rejoicing from their heart to destroy the Israelites to a man; [16] therefore thus saith the Lord; Behold, I will stretch out my hand upon the Philistines, and will utterly destroy the Cretans, and will cut off the remnant that dwell by the sea-coast. [17] And I will execute great vengeance upon them; and they shall know that I am the Lord, when I have brought my vengeance upon them.

Chapter 26

[1] And it came to pass in the eleventh year, on the first day of the month, that the word of the Lord came to me, saying,

[2] Son of man, because Sor has said against Jerusalem, Aha, she is crushed: the nations are destroyed: she is turned to me: she that was full is made desolate: [3] therefore thus saith the Lord; Behold, I am against thee, O Sor, and I will bring up many nations against thee, as the sea comes up with its waves. [4] And they shall cast down the walls of Sor, and shall cast down thy towers: and I will scrape her dust from off her, and make her a bare rock. [5] She shall be in the midst of the sea a place for repairing nets: for I have spoken it, saith the Lord: and it shall be a spoil for the nations. [6] And her daughters which are in the field shall be slain with the sword, and they shall know that I am the Lord.

[7] For thus saith the Lord; Behold, I will bring up against thee, O Sor, Nabuchodonosor king of Babylon from the north: he is a king of kings, with horses, and chariots, and horsemen, and a concourse of very many nations. [8] He shall slay thy daughters that are in the field with the sword, and shall set a watch against thee, and build forts around thee, and carry a rampart round against thee, and set up warlike works, and array his spears against thee. [9] He shall cast down with his swords thy walls and thy towers. [10] By reason of thy multitude of his horses their dust shall cover thee, and by reason of the sound of his horsemen and the wheels of his chariots thy walls shall be shaken, when he enters into thy gates, as one entering into a city from the plain. [11] With the hoofs of his horses they shall trample all thy streets: he shall slay thy people with the sword, and shall bring down to the ground the support of thy strength.

[12] And he shall prey upon thy power, and plunder thy substance, and shall cast down thy walls, and break down thy pleasant houses: and he shall cast thy stones and thy timber and thy dust into the midst of thy sea. [13] And he shall destroy the multitude of thy musicians, and the sound of thy psalteries shall be heard no more. [14] And I will make thee a bare rock: thou shalt be a place to spread nets upon; thou shalt be built no more: for I the Lord have spoken it, saith the Lord.

[15] For thus saith the Lord God to Sor; Shall not the isles shake at the sound of thy fall, while the wounded are groaning, while they have drawn a sword in the midst of thee? [16] And all the princes of the nations of the sea shall come down from their thrones, and shall take off their crowns from their heads, and shall take off their embroidered raiment: they shall be utterly amazed; they shall sit upon the ground, and fear their own destruction, and shall groan over thee. [17] And they shall take up a lamentation for thee, and shall say to thee, How art thou destroyed from out of the sea, the renowned city, that brought her terror upon all her inhabitants. [18] And the isles shall be alarmed at the day of thy fall.

[19] For thus saith the Lord God; When I shall make the city desolate, as the cities that shall not be inhabited, when I have brought the deep up upon thee, [20] and great waters shall cover thee; and I shall bring thee down to them that go down to the pit, to the people of old time, and shall cause thee to dwell in the depths of the earth, as in everlasting desolation, with them that go down to the pit, that thou mayest not be inhabited, nor stand upon the land of life; [21] I will make thee a destruction, and thou shalt be no more for ever, saith the Lord God.

Chapter 27

[1] And the word of the Lord came to me saying,

[2] And thou, son of man, take up a lamentation against Sor; [3] and thou shalt say to Sor that dwells at the entrance of the sea, to the mart of the nations coming from many islands, Thus saith the Lord to Sor;

Thou hast said, I have clothed myself with my beauty. [4] In the heart of the sea thy sons have put beauty upon thee for Beelim. [5] Cedar in Senir was employed for thee in building: boards of cypress timber were taken out of Libanus, and wood to make thee masts of fir. [6] They made thine oars of wood out of the land of Basan; thy sacred utensils they made of ivory, thy shady houses of wood from the isles of Chetiim. [7] Fine linen with embroidery from Egypt supplied the couch, to put honour upon thee, and to clothe thee with blue and purple from the isles of Elisai; and they became thy coverings.

[8] And thy princes were the dwellers in Sidon, and the Aradians were thy rowers: thy wise men, O Sor, who were in thee, these were thy pilots. [9] The elders of the Biblians, and their wise men, who were in thee, these helped thy counsel: and all the ships of the sea and their rowers traded for thee to the utmost west.

[10] Persians and Lydians and Libyans were in thine army: thy warriors hung in thee shields and helmets; these gave thee thy glory. [11] The sons of the Aradians and thine army were upon the walls; there were guards in thy towers: they hung their quivers on thy battlements round about; these completed thy beauty.

[12] The Carthaginians were thy merchants because of the abundance of all thy strength; they furnished thy market with silver, and gold, and iron, and tin, and lead. [13] Greece, both the whole world, and the adjacent coasts, these traded with thee in the persons of men, and they gave as thy merchandise vessels of brass.

[14] Out of the house of Thogarma horses and horsemen furnished the market. [15] The sons of the Rhodians were thy merchants; from the islands they multiplied thy merchandise, even elephants' teeth: and to them that came in thou didst return thy prices, [16] even men as thy merchandise, from the multitude of thy trading population, myrrh and embroidered works from Tharsis: Ramoth also and Chorchor furnished thy market. [17] Juda and the children of Israel, these were thy merchants; in the sale of corn and ointments and cassia: and they gave the best honey, and oil, and resin, to thy trading population. [18] The people of Damascus were thy merchants by reason of the abundance of all thy power; wine out of Chelbon, and wool from Miletus; and they brought wine into thy market.

[19] Out of Asel came wrought iron, and there is the sound of wheels among thy trading population. [20] The people of Daedan were thy merchants, with choice cattle for chariots. [21] Arabia and all the princes of Kedar, these were thy traders with thee, bringing camels, and lambs, and rams, in which they trade with thee. [22] The merchants of Sabba and Ramma, these were thy merchants, with choice spices, and precious stones: and they brought gold to thy market. [23] Charra, and Chanaa, these were thy merchants: Assur, and Charman, were thy merchants: [24] bringing for merchandise blue, and choice stores bound with cords, and cypress wood. [25] Ships were thy merchants, in abundance, with thy trading population: and thou wast filled and very heavily loaded in the heart of the sea.

[26] Thy rowers have brought thee into great waters: the south wind has broken thee in the heart of the sea. [27] Thy forces, and thy gain, and that of thy traders, and thy rowers, and thy pilots, and thy counselors, and they that traffic with thee, and all thy warriors that are in thee: and all thy company in the midst of thee shall perish in the heart of the sea, in the day of thy fall. [28] At the cry of thy voice thy pilots shall be greatly terrified.

[29] And all the rowers and the mariners shall come down from the ships, and the pilots of the sea shall stand on the land. [30] And they shall wail over thee with their voice, and cry bitterly, and put earth on their heads, and spread ashes under them.

[31] 32 And their sons shall take up a lament for thee, even a lamentation for Sor, saying, [33] How large a reward hast thou gained from the sea? thou hast filled nations out of thine abundance; and out of thy mixed merchandise thou hast enriched all the kings of the earth. [34] Now art thou broken in the sea, thy traders are in the deep water, and all thy company in the midst of thee: all thy rowers have fallen. [35] All the dwellers in the islands have mourned over thee, and their kings have been utterly amazed, and their countenance has wept. [36] Merchants from the nations have hissed at thee; thou art utterly destroyed, and shalt not be any more for ever.

[1] And the word of the Lord came to me, saying,

[2] And thou, son of man, say to the prince of Tyrus, Thus saith the Lord; Because thine heart has been exalted, and thou hast said, I am God, I have inhabited the dwelling of God in the heart of the sea; yet thou art man and not God, though thou hast set thine heart as the heart of God: [3] art thou wiser than Daniel? or have not the wise instructed thee with their knowledge? [4] Hast thou gained power for thyself by thine own knowledge or thine own prudence, and gotten gold and silver in thy treasures? [5] By thy abundant knowledge and thy traffic thou hast multiplied thy power; thy heart has been lifted up by thy power.

[6] Therefore thus saith the Lord; Since thou hast set thine heart as the hart of God; [7] because of this, behold, I will bring on thee strange plagues from the nations; and they shall draw their swords against thee, and against the beauty of thy knowledge, [8] and they shall bring down thy beauty to destruction. And they shall bring thee down; and thou shalt die the death of the slain in the heart of the sea. [9] Wilt thou indeed say, I am God, before them that slay thee? whereas thou art man, and not God. [10] Thou shalt perish by the hands of strangers among the multitude of the uncircumcised: for I have spoken it, saith he Lord.

[11] And the word of the Lord came to me, saying, [12] Son of man, take up a lamentation for the prince of Tyre, and say to him, Thus saith the Lord God; Thou art a seal of resemblance, and crown of beauty. [13] Thou wast in the delight of the paradise of God; thou hast bound upon thee every precious stone, the sardius, and topaz, and emerald, and carbuncle, and sapphire, and jasper, and silver, and gold, and ligure, and agate, and amethyst, and chrysolite, and beryl, and onyx: and thou hast filled thy treasures and thy stores in thee with gold. [14] From the day that thou wast created thou wast with the cherub: I set thee on the holy mount of God; thou wast in the midst of the stones of fire. [15] Thou wast faultless in thy days, from the day that thou wast created, until iniquity was found in thee.

[16] Of the abundance of thy merchandise thou hast filled thy storehouses with iniquity, and hast sinned: therefore thou hast been cast down wounded from the mount of God, and the cherub has brought thee out of the midst of the stones of fire. [17] Thy heart has been lifted up because of thy beauty; thy knowledge has been corrupted with thy beauty: because of the multitude of thy sins I have cast thee to the ground, I have caused thee to be put to open shame before kings. [18] Because of the multitude of thy sins and the iniquities of thy merchandise, I have profaned thy sacred things; and I will bring fire out of the midst of thee, this shall devour thee; and I will make thee to be ashes upon thy land before all that see thee. [19] And all that know thee among the nations shall groan over thee: thou art gone to destruction, and thou shalt not exist any more.

[20] And the word of the Lord came to me, saying, [21] Son of man, set thy face against Sidon, and prophesy against it, [22] and say, Thus saith the Lord; Behold, I am against thee, O Sidon; and I will be glorified in thee; and thou shalt know that I am the Lord, when I have wrought judgments in thee, and I will be sanctified in thee. [23] Blood and death shall be in thy streets; and men wounded with swords shall fall in thee and on every side of thee; and they shall know that I am the Lord. [24] And there shall no more be in the house of Israel a thorn of bitterness and a pricking briar proceeding from them that are round about them, who dishonoured them; and they shall know that I am the Lord.

[25] Thus saith the Lord God; I will also gather Israel from the nations, among whom they have been scattered, and I will be sanctified among them, and before the peoples and nations: and they shall dwell upon their land, which I gave to my servant Jacob. [26] Yea, they shall dwell upon it safely, and they shall build houses, and plant vineyards, and dwell securely, when I shall execute judgment on all that have dishonoured them, even on those that are round about them; and they shall know that I am the Lord their God, and the God of their fathers.

[1] In the twelfth year, in the tenth month, on the first day of the month, the word of the Lord came to me, saying, [2] Son of man, set thy face against Pharaoh king of Egypt, and prophesy against him, and against the whole of Egypt: [3] and say,

Thus saith the Lord; Behold, I am against Pharaoh, the great dragon that lies in the midst of his rivers, that says, The rivers are mine, and I made them. [4] And I will put hooks in thy jaws, and I will cause the fish of thy river to stick to thy sides, and I will bring thee up out of the midst of thy river: [5] and I will quickly cast down thee and all the fish of thy river: thou shalt fall on the face of the plain, and shalt by no means be gathered, and shalt not be brought together: I have given thee for food to the wild beasts of the earth and to the fowls of the sky. [6] And all the dwellers in Egypt shall know that I am the Lord, because thou hast been a staff of reed to the house of Israel. [7] When they took hold of thee with their hand, thou didst break: and when every hand was clapped against them, and when they leaned on thee, thou wast utterly broken, and didst crush the loins of them all.

[8] Therefore thus saith the Lord; Behold, I will bring a sword upon thee, and will cut off from thee man and beast; [9] and the land of Egypt shall be ruined and desert; and they shall know that I am the Lord; because thou sayest, The rivers are mine, and I made them.

[10] Therefore, behold, I am against thee, and against all thy rivers, and I will give up the land of Egypt to desolation, and the sword, and destruction, from Magdol and Syene even to the borders of the Ethiopians. [11] No foot of man shall pass through it, and no foot of beast shall pass through it, and it shall not be inhabited for forty years.

[12] And I will cause her land to be utterly destroyed in the midst of a land that is desolate, and her cities shall be desolate forty years in the midst of cities that are desolate: and I will disperse Egypt among the nations, and will utterly scatter them into the countries.

[13] Thus saith the Lord; After forty years I will gather the Egyptians from the nations among whom they have been scattered; [14] and I will turn the captivity of the Egyptians, and will cause them to dwell in the land of Phathore, in the land whence they were taken; [15] and it shall be a base kingdom beyond all other kingdoms; it shall not any more be exalted over the nations; and I will make them few in number, that they may not be great among the nations. [16] And they shall no more be to the house of Israel a confidence bringing iniquity to remembrance, when they follow after them; and they shall know that I am the Lord.

[17] And it came to pass in the twenty-seventh year, on the first day of the month, the word of the Lord came to me, saying,

[18] Son of man, Nabuchodonosor king of Babylon caused his army to serve a great service against Tyre; every head was bald, and every shoulder peeled; yet there was no reward to him or to his army serving against Tyre, nor for the service wherewith they served against it.

[19] Thus saith the Lord God; Behold, I will give to Nabuchodonosor king of Babylon the land of Egypt, and he shall take the plunder thereof, and seize the spoils thereof; and it shall be a reward for his army. [20] In return for his service wherewith he served against Tyre, I have given him the land of Egypt; thus saith the Lord God:

[21] In that day shall a horn spring forth for all the house of Israel, and I will give thee an open mouth in the midst of them; and they shall know that I am the Lord.

Chapter 30

[1] And the word of the Lord came to me, saying, [2] Son of man, prophesy, and say, Thus saith the Lord; Woe, woe worth the day! [3] For the day of the Lord is nigh, a day of cloud; it shall be the end of the nations.

[4] And the sword shall come upon the Egyptians, and there shall be tumult in Ethiopia, and in Egypt men shall fall down slain together, and her foundations shall fall. [5] Persians, and Cretans, and Lydians, and Libyans, and all the mixed multitude, and they of the children of my covenant, shall fall by the sword therein. [6] And the supports of Egypt shall fall; and the pride of her strength shall come down from Magdol to Syene: they shall fall by the sword in it, saith the Lord. [7] And it shall be made desolate in the midst of desolate countries, and their cities shall be desolate in the midst of desolate cities: [8] and they shall know that I am the Lord, when I shall send fire upon Egypt, and when all that help her shall be broken. [9] In that day shall messengers go forth hasting to destroy Ethiopia utterly, and there shall be tumult among them in the day of Egypt: for, behold it comes.

[10] Thus saith he Lord God; I will also destroy the multitude of the Egyptians by the hand of Nabuchodonosor king of Babylon, [11] his hand and his people's; they are plagues sent forth from the nations to destroy the land: and they all shall unsheath their swords against Egypt, and the land shall be filled with slain. [12] And I will make their rivers desolate, and will destroy the land and the fulness of it by the hands of strangers: I the Lord have spoken.

[13] For thus saith the Lord God; I will also destroy the nobles from Memphis, and the princes of Memphis out of the land of Egypt; and they shall be no more. [14] And I will destroy the land of Phathore, and will send fire upon Tanis, and will execute vengeance on Diospolis. [15] And I will pour out my wrath upon Sais the strength of Egypt, and will destroy the multitude of Memphis. [16] And I will send fire upon Egypt; and Syene shall be sorely troubled; and there shall be a breaking in Diospolis, and waters shall be poured out. [17] The youths of Heliopolis and Bubastum shall fall by the sword, and the women shall go into captivity. [18] And the day shall be darkened in Taphnae, when I have broken there the scepters of Egypt: and the pride of her strength shall perish there: and a cloud shall cover her, and her daughters shall be taken prisoners. [19] And I will execute judgment on Egypt; and they shall know that I am the Lord.

[20] And it came to pass in the eleventh year, in the first month, on the seventh day of the month, the word of the Lord came to me, saying, [21] Son of man, I have broken the arms of Pharaos, king of Egypt; and, behold, it has not been bound up to be healed, to have a plaster put upon it, or to be strengthened to lay hold of the sword. [22] Therefore thus saith the Lord God; Behold, I am against Pharaos king of Egypt, and I will break his strong and outstretched arms, and will smite down his sword out of his hand. [23] And I will disperse the Egyptians among the nations, and will utterly scatter them among the countries.

[24] And I will strengthen the arms of the king of Babylon, and put my sword into his hand: and he shall bring it upon Egypt, and shall take her plunder and seize her spoils. [25] Yea, I will strengthen the arms of the king of Babylon, and the arms of Pharaoh shall fail: and they shall know that I am the Lord, when I have put my sword into the hands of the king of Babylon, and he shall stretch it out over the land of Egypt. [26] And I will disperse the Egyptians among the nations, and utterly scatter them among the countries; and they all shall know that I am the Lord.

Chapter 31

[1] And it came to pass in the eleventh year, in the third month, on the first day of the month, the word of the Lord came to me, saying, [2] Son of man, say to Pharaoh king of Egypt, and to his multitude;

To whom hast thou compared thyself in thy haughtiness? [3] Behold, the Assyrian was a cypress in Libanus, and was fair in shoots, and high in stature: his top reached to the midst of the clouds. [4] The water nourished him, the depth made him grow tall; she led her rivers round about his plants, and she sent forth her streams to all the trees of the field. [5] Therefore, was his stature exalted above all the trees of the field, and his branches spread far by the help of much water. [6] All the birds of the sky made their nests in his boughs, and under his branches all the wild beasts of the field bred; the whole multitude of nations dwelt under his shadow. [7] And he was fair in his height by reason of the multitude of his branches: for his roots were amidst much water. [8] And such cypresses as this were in the paradise of God; and there were no pines like his shoots, and there were no firs like his branches: no tree in the paradise of God was like him in his beauty, [9] because of the multitude of his branches: and the trees of God's paradise of delight envied him.

[10] Therefore thus saith the Lord; Because thou art grown great, and hast set thy top in the midst of the clouds, and I saw when he was exalted; [11] therefore I delivered him into the hands of the prince of the nations, and he wrought his destruction. [12] And ravaging strangers from the nations have destroyed him, and have cast him down upon the mountains: his branches fell in all the valleys, and his boughs were broken in every field of the land; and all the people of the nations are gone down from their shelter, and have laid him low.

[13] All the birds of the sky have settled on his fallen trunk, and all the wild beasts of the field came upon his boughs: [14] in order that none of the trees by the water should exalt themselves by reason of their size: whereas they set their top in the midst of the clouds, yet they continued not in their high state in their place, all that drank water, all were consigned to death, to the depth of the earth, in the midst of the children of men, with them that go down to the pit.

[15] Thus saith the Lord God; In the day wherein he went down to Hades, the deep mourned for him: and I stayed her floods, and restrained her abundance of water: and Libanus saddened for him, all the trees of the field fainted for him. [16] At the sound of his fall the nations quaked, when I brought him down to Hades with them that go down to the pit: and all the trees of Delight comforted him in the heart, and the choice of plants of Libanus, all that drink water. [17] For they went down to hell with him among the slain with the sword; and his seed, even they that dwelt under his shadow, perished in the midst of their life.

[18] To whom art thou compared? descend, and be thou debased with the trees of paradise to the depth of the earth: thou shalt lie in the midst of the uncircumcised with them that are slain by the sword. Thus shall Pharaο be, and the multitude of his host, saith the Lord God.

Chapter 32

[1] And it came to pass in the twelfth year, in the tenth month, on the first day of the month, that the word of the Lord came to me, saying, [2] Son of man, take up a lamentation for Pharaoh king of Egypt, and say to him,

Thou art become like a lion of the nations, and as a serpent that is in the sea: and thou didst make assaults with thy rivers, and didst disturb the water with thy feet, and didst trample thy rivers.

[3] Thus saith the Lord; I will also cast over thee the nets of many nations, and will bring thee up with my hook: [4] and I will stretch thee upon the earth: the fields shall be covered with thee, and I will cause all the birds of the sky to settle upon thee, and I will fill with thee all the wild beasts of the earth. [5] And I will cast thy flesh upon the mountains, and will saturate them with thy blood. [6] And the land shall be drenched with thy dung, because of thy multitude upon the mountains: I will fill the valleys with thee. [7] And I will veil the heavens when thou art extinguished, and will darken the stars thereof; I will cover the sun with a cloud, and the moon shall not give her light. [8] All the bodies that give light in the sky, shall be darkened over thee, and I will bring darkness upon the earth, saith the Lord God.

[9] And I will provoke to anger the heart of many people, when I shall lead thee captive among the nations, to a land which thou hast not know. [10] And many nations shall mourn over thee, and their kings shall be utterly amazed, when my sword flies in their faces, as they wait for their own fall from the day of thy fall.

[11] For thus saith the Lord God; The sword of the king of Babylon shall come upon thee, [12] with the swords of mighty men; and I will cast down thy strength: they are all destroying ones from the nations, and they shall destroy the pride of Egypt, and all her strength shall be crushed. [13] And I will destroy all her cattle from beside the great water; and the foot of man shall not trouble it any more, and the step of cattle shall no more trample it. [14] Thus shall their waters then be at rest, and their rivers shall flow like oil, saith the Lord, [15] when I shall give up Egypt to destruction, and the land shall be made desolate with the fullness thereof; when I shall scatter all that dwell in it, and they shall know that I am the Lord. [16] There is a lamentation, and thou shalt utter it; and the daughters of the nations shall utter it, even for Egypt, and they shall mourn for it over all the strength thereof, saith the Lord God.

[17] And it came to pass in the twelfth year, in the first month, on the fifteenth day of the month, the word of the Lord came to me, saying,

[18] Son of man, lament over the strength of Egypt, for the nations shall bring down her daughters dead to the depth of the earth, to them that go down to the pit. [19] 20 They shall fall with him in the midst of them that are slain with the sword, and all his strength shall perish: the giants also shall say to thee, [21] Be thou in the depth of the pit: to whom art thou superior? yea, go down, and lie with the uncircumcised, in the midst of them that are slain with the sword.

[22] There are Assur and all his company: all his slain have been laid there: [23] and their burial is in the depth of the pit, and his company are set around about his tomb: all the slain that fell by the sword, who had caused the fear of them to be upon the land of the living.

[24] There is Ælam and all his host round about his tom: all the slain that fell by the sword, and the uncircumcised that go down to the deep of the earth, who caused their fear to be upon the land of the living: and they have received their punishment with them that go down to the pit, [25] in the midst of the slain.

[26] There were laid Mosoch, and Thobel, and all his strength round about his tomb: all his slain men, all the uncircumcised, slain with the sword, who caused their fear to be in the land of the living. [27] And they are laid with the giants that fell of old, who went down to Hades with their weapons of war: and they laid their swords under their heads, but their iniquities were upon their bones, because they terrified all men during their life. [28] And thou shalt lie in the midst of the uncircumcised, with them that have been slain by the sword.

[29] There are laid the princes of Assur, who yielded their strength to a wound of the sword: these are laid with the slain, with them that go down to the pit.

[30] There are the princes of the north, even all the captains of Assur, who go down slain to Hades: they lie uncircumcised among the slain with the sword together with their terror and their strength, and they have received their punishment with them that go down to the pit.

[31] King Pharaο shall see them, and shall be comforted over all their force, saith the Lord God. [32] For I have caused his fear to be upon the land of the living yet he shall lie in the midst of the uncircumcised with them that are slain with the sword, even Pharaο, and all his multitude with him, saith the Lord God.

[1] And the word of the Lord came to me, saying, [2] Son of man, speak to the children of thy people, and thou shalt say to them,

On whatsoever land I shall bring a sword, and the people of the land take one man of them, and set him for their watchman: [3] and he shall see the sword coming upon the land, and blow the trumpet, and sound an alarm to the people; [4] and he that hears the sound of the trumpet shall hear indeed, and yet not take heed, and the sword shall come upon him, and overtake him, his blood shall be upon his own head. [5] Because he heard the sound of the trumpet, and took no heed, his blood shall be upon him: but the other, because he took heed, has delivered his soul.

[6] But if the watchman see the sword coming, and do not sound the trumpet, and the people do not watch; and the sword come, and take a soul from among them, that soul is taken because of its iniquity; but the blood thereof will I require at the watchman's hand.

[7] And thou, son of man, I have set thee as a watchman to the house of Israel, and thou shalt hear a word from my mouth. [8] When I say to the sinner, Thou shalt surely die; if thou speak not to warn the wicked from his way, the wicked himself shall die in his iniquity; but his blood will I require at thine hand. [9] But if thou forewarn the wicked of his way to turn from it, and he turn not from his way, he shall die in his ungodliness; but thou hast delivered thine own soul.

[10] And thou, son of man, say to the house of Israel; Thus have ye spoken, saying, Our errors, and our iniquities weigh upon us, and we pine away in them, and how then shall we live? [11] Say to them, Thus saith the Lord; As I live, I desire not the death of the ungodly, as that the ungodly should turn from his way and live: turn ye heartily from your way; for why will ye die, O house of Israel?

[12] Say to the children of thy people, The righteousness of the righteous shall not deliver him, in the day wherein he errs: and the iniquity of the ungodly shall not harm him, in the day wherein he turns from his iniquity, but the righteous erring shall not be able to deliver himself.

[13] When I say to the righteous, Thou shalt live; and he trusts in his righteousness, and shall commit iniquity, none of his righteousnesses shall be remembered; in his unrighteousness which he has wrought, in it shall he die.

[14] And when I say to the ungodly, Thou shalt surely die; and he shall turn from his sin, and do judgment and justice, [15] and return the pledge, and repay that which he has robbed, and walk in the ordinances of life, so as to do no wrong; he shall surely live, and shall not die. [16] None of his sins which he has committed shall be remembered: because he has wrought judgment and righteousness; by them shall he live.

[17] Yet the children of thy people will say, The way of the Lord is not straight: whereas this their way is not straight. [18] When the righteous turns away from his righteousness, and shall commit iniquities, then shall he die in them. [19] And when the sinner turns from his iniquity, and shall do judgment and righteousness, he shall live by them. [20] And this is that which ye said, The way of the Lord is not straight. I will judge you, O house of Israel, every one for his ways.

[21] And it came to pass in the tenth year of our captivity, in the twelfth month, on the fifth day of the month, that one that had escaped from Jerusalem came to me, saying, The city is taken. [22] Now the hand of the Lord had come upon me in the evening, before he came; and he opened my mouth, when he came to me in the morning: and my mouth was open, it was no longer kept closed.

[23] And the word of the Lord came to me, saying, [24] Son of man, they that inhabit the desolate places on the land of Israel say, Abram was one, and he possessed the land: and we are more numerous; to us the land is given for a possession.

[25] 26 [27] Therefore say to them, Thus saith the Lord God, As I live, surely they that are in the desolate places shall fall by swords and they that are in the open plain shall be given for food to the wild beasts of the field, and them that are in the fortified cities and them that are in the caves I will slay with pestilence. [28] And I will make the land desert, and the pride of her strength shall perish; and the mountains of Israel shall be made desolate by reason of no man passing through. [29] And they shall know that I am the Lord; and I will make their land desert, and it shall be made desolate because of all their abominations which they have wrought.

[30] And as for thee, son of man, the children of thy people are they that speak concerning thee by the walls, and in the porches of the houses, and they talk one to another, saying, Let us come together, and let us hear the words that proceed from the Lord. [31] They approach thee as a people comes together, and sit before thee, and hear thy words, but they will not do them: for there is falsehood in their mouth, and their heart goes after their pollutions. [32] And thou art to them as a sound of a sweet, well-tuned psaltery, and they will hear thy words, but they will not do them. [33] But whenever it shall come to pass, they will say, Behold, it is come: and they shall know that there was a prophet in the midst of them.

Chapter 34

[1] And the word of the Lord came to me, saying, [2] Son of man, prophesy against the shepherds of Israel, prophesy, and say to the shepherds,

Thus saith the Lord God; O shepherds of Israel, do shepherds feed themselves? do not the shepherds feed the sheep? [3] Behold, ye feed on the milk, and clothe yourselves with the wool, and slay the fat: but ye feed not my sheep. [4] The weak one ye have not strengthened, and the sick ye have not cherished, and the bruised ye have not bound up, and the stray one ye have not turned back, and the lost ye have not sought; and the strong ye have wearied with labour. [5] And my sheep were scattered, because there were no shepherds: and they became meat to all the wild beasts of the field. [6] And my sheep were scattered on every mountain, and on every high hill: yea, they were scattered on the face of the earth, and there was none to seek them out, nor to bring them back.

[7] Therefore, ye shepherds, hear the word of the Lord. [8] As I live, saith the Lord God, surely because my sheep became a prey, and my sheep became meat to all the wild beasts of the field, because there were no shepherds, and the shepherds sought not out my sheep, and the shepherds fed themselves, but fed not my sheep. [9] For this cause, O shepherds, [10] thus saith the Lord God, Behold, I am against the shepherds; and I will require my sheep at their hands, and will turn them back that they shall not feed my sheep, and the shepherds shall no longer feed them; and I will deliver my sheep out of their mouth, and they shall no longer be meat for them.

[11] For thus saith the Lord God, Behold, I will seek out my sheep, and will visit them. [12] As the shepherd seeks his flock, in the day when there is darkness and cloud, in the midst of the sheep that are separated: so will I seek out my sheep, and will bring them back from every place where they were scattered in the day of cloud and darkness. [13] And I will bring them out from the Gentiles, and will gather them from the countries, and will bring them into their own land, and will feed them upon the mountains of Israel, and in the valleys, and in every inhabited place of the land. [14] I will feed them in a good pasture, on a high mountain of Israel: and their folds shall be there, and they shall lie down, and there shall they rest in perfect prosperity, and they shall feed in a fat pasture on the mountains of Israel. [15] I will feed my sheep, and I will cause them to rest; and they shall know that I am the Lord: thus saith the Lord God. [16] I will seek that which is lost, and I will recover the stray one, and will bind up that which was broken, and will strengthen the fainting, and will guard the strong, and will feed them with judgment.

[17] And as for you, ye sheep, thus saith the Lord God, Behold, I will distinguish between sheep and sheep, between rams and he-goats. [18] And is it not enough for you that ye fed on the good pasture, that ye trampled with your feet the remnant of your pasture? and that ye drank the standing water, that ye disturbed the residue with your feet? [19] So my sheep fed on that which ye had trampled with your feet; and they drank the water that had been disturbed by your feet.

[20] Therefore thus saith the Lord God; Behold, I will separate between the strong sheep and the weak sheep. [21] Ye did thrust with your sides and shoulders, and pushed with your horns, and ye cruelly treated all the sick. [22] Therefore I will save my sheep, and they shall not be any more for a prey; and will judge between ram and ram.

[23] And I will raise up one shepherd over them, and he shall tend them, even my servant David, and he shall be their shepherd; [24] and I the Lord will be to them a God, and David a prince in the midst of them; I the Lord have spoken it. [25] And I will make with David a covenant of peace and I will utterly destroy evil beasts from off the land; and they shall dwell in the wilderness, and sleep in the forests. [26] And I will settle them round about my mountain; and I will give you the rain, the rain of blessing. [27] And the trees that are in the field shall yield their fruit, and the earth shall yield her strength, and they shall dwell in the confidence of peace on their land, and they shall know that I am the Lord, when I have broken their yoke; and I will deliver them out of the hand of those that enslaved them. [28] And they shall no more be a spoil to the nations, and the wild beasts of the land shall no more at all devour them; and they shall dwell safely, and there shall be none to make them afraid. [29] And I will raise up for them a plant of peace, and they shall no more perish with hunger upon the land, and they shall no more bear the reproach off the nations.

[30] And they shall know that I am the Lord their God, and they my people. O house of Israel, saith the Lord God, [31] ye are my sheep, even the sheep of my flock, and I am the Lord your God, saith the Lord God.

Chapter 35

[1] And the word of the Lord came to me, saying, [2] Son of man, set thy face against mount Seir, and prophesy against it, [3] and say to it,

Thus saith the Lord God; Behold, I am against thee, O mount Seir, and I will stretch out my hand against thee, and will make thee a waste, and thou shalt be made desolate. [4] And I will cause desolation in thy cities, and thou shalt be desolate, and thou shalt know that I am the Lord. [5] Because thou hast been a perpetual enemy, and hast laid wait craftily for the house of Israel, with the hand of enemies with a sword, in the time of injustice, at the last:

[6] Therefore, as I live, saith the Lord God, verily thou hast sinned even to blood, therefore blood shall pursue thee. [7] And I will make mount Seir a waste, and desolate, and I will destroy from off it men and cattle: [8] and I will fill thy hills and thy valleys with slain men, and in all thy plains there shall fall in thee men slain with the sword. [9] I will make thee a perpetual desolation, and thy cities shall not be inhabited any more: and thou shalt know that I am the Lord.

[10] Because thou saidst, The two nations and the two countries shall be mine, and I shall inherit them; whereas the Lord is there: [11] therefore, as I live, saith the Lord, I will even deal with thee according to thine enmity, and I will be made known to thee when I shall judge thee: [12] and thou shalt know that I am the Lord. I have heard the voice of thy blasphemies, whereas thou hast said, The desert mountains of Israel are given to us for food; [13] and thou hast spoken swelling words against me with thy mouth: I have heard them.

[14] Thus saith the Lord; When all the earth is rejoicing, I will make thee desert. [15] Thou shalt be desert, O mount Seir, and all Idumea; and it shall be utterly consumed: and thou shalt know that I am the Lord their God.

Chapter 36

[1] And thou, son of man, prophesy to the mountains of Israel, and say to the mountains of Israel, Hear ye the word of the Lord:

[2] Thus saith the Lord God; Because the enemy has said against you, Aha, the old waste places are become a possession for us: [3] therefore prophesy, and say, Thus saith the Lord God; Because ye have been dishonoured, and hated by those round about you, that ye might be a possession to the remainder of the nations, and ye became a by-word, and a reproach to the nations: [4] therefore, ye mountains of Israel, hear the word of the Lord; Thus saith the Lord to the mountains, and to the hills, and to the streams, and to the valleys, and to the places that have been made desolate and destroyed, and to the cities that have been deserted, and have become a spoil and a trampling to the nations that were left round about; [5] therefore, thus saith the Lord; Verily in the fire of my wrath have I spoken against the rest of the nations, and against all Idumea, because they have appropriated my land to themselves for a possession with joy, disregarding the lives of the inhabitants, to destroy it by plunder: [6] therefore prophesy concerning the land of Israel, and say to the mountains, and to the hills, and to the valleys, and to the forests, Thus saith the Lord; Behold, I have spoken in my jealousy and in my wrath, because ye have borne the reproaches of the heathen: [7] therefore I will lift up my hand against the nations that are round about you; they shall bear their reproach.

[8] But your grapes and your fruits, O mountains of Israel, shall my people eat; for they are hoping to come. [9] For, behold, I am toward you, and I will have respect to you, and ye shall be tilled and sown: [10] and I will multiply men upon you, even all the house of Israel to the end: and the cities shall be inhabited, and the desolate land shall be built upon. [11] And I will multiply men and cattle upon you; and I will cause you to dwell as at the beginning, and will treat you well, as in your former times: and ye shall know that I am the Lord. [12] And I will increase men upon you, even my people Israel; and they shall inherit you, and ye shall be to them for a possession; and ye shall no more be bereaved of them.

[13] Thus saith the Lord God: Because they said to thee, Thou land devourest men, and hast been bereaved of thy nation; [14] therefore thou shalt no more devour men, and thou shalt no more bereave thy nation, saith the Lord God. [15] And there shall no more be heard against you the reproach of the nations, and ye shall no more bear the revilings of the peoples, saith the Lord God.

[16] And the word of the Lord came to me, saying, [17] Son of man, the house of Israel dwelt upon their land, and defiled it by their way, and with their idols, and with their uncleannesses; and their way was before me like the uncleanness of a removed woman. [18] So I poured out my wrath upon them: [19] and I dispersed them among the nations, and utterly scattered them through the countries: I judged them according to their way and according to their sin. [20] And they went in among the nations, among which they went, and they profaned my holy name, while it was said of them, These are the people of the Lord, and they came forth out of his land. [21] but I spared them for the sake of my holy name, which the house of Israel profaned among the nations, among whom they went.

[22] Therefore say to the house of Israel, Thus saith the Lord; I do not this, O house of Israel, for your sakes, but because of my holy name, which ye have profaned among the nations, among whom ye went. [23] And I will sanctify my great name, which was profaned among the nations, which ye profaned in the midst of them; and the nations shall know that I am the Lord, when I am sanctified among you before their eyes.

[24] And I will take you out from the nations, and will gather you out of all the lands, and will bring you into your own land: [25] and I will sprinkle clean water upon you, and ye shall be purged from all your uncleannesses, and from all your idols, and I will cleanse you. [26] And I will give you a new heart, and will put a new spirit in you: and I will take away the heart of stone out of your flesh, and will give you a heart of flesh. [27] And I will put my Spirit in you, and will cause you to walk in mine ordinances, and to keep my judgments, and do them. [28] And ye shall dwell upon the land which I gave to your fathers; and ye shall be to me a people, and I will be to you a God. [29] And I will save you from all your uncleannesses: and I will call for the corn, and multiply it, and will not bring famine upon you. [30] And I will multiply the fruit of the trees, and the produce of the field, that ye may not bear the reproach of famine among the nations.

[31] And ye shall remember your evil ways and your practices that were not good, and ye shall be hateful in your own sight for your transgressions and for your abominations. [32] Not for your sakes do I this, saith the Lord God, as it is known to you: be ye ashamed and confounded for your ways, O house of Israel.

[33] Thus saith the Lord God; In the day wherein I shall cleanse you from all your iniquities I will also cause the cities to be inhabited, and the waste places shall be built upon: [34] and the desolate land shall be cultivated, whereas it was desolate in the eyes of every one that passed by. [35] And they shall say, That desolate land is become like a garden of delight; and the waste and desolate and ruined cities are inhabited. [36] And the nations, as many as shall have been left round about you, shall know that I the Lord have built the ruined cities and planted the waste lands: I the Lord have spoken, and will do it.

[37] Thus saith the Lord God; Yet for this will I be sought by the house of Israel, to establish them; I will multiply them even men as sheep; [38] as holy sheep, as the sheep of Jerusalem in her feasts; thus shall the desert cities be full of flocks of men: and they shall know that I am the Lord.

Chapter 37

[1] And the hand of the Lord came upon me, and the Lord brought me forth by the Spirit, and set me in the midst of the plain, and it was full of human bones.

[2] And he led me round about them every way: and, behold, there were very many on the face of the plain, very dry.

[3] And he said to me, Son of man, will these bones live? and I said, O Lord God, thou knowest this. [4] And he said to me, Prophesy upon these bones, and thou shalt say to them, Ye dry bones, hear the word of the Lord. [5] Thus saith the Lord to these bones; Behold, I will bring upon you the breath of life: [6] and I will lay sinews upon you, and will bring up flesh upon you, and will spread skin upon you, and will put my Spirit into you, and ye shall live; and ye shall know that I am the Lord.

[7] So I prophesied as the Lord commanded me: and it came to pass while I was prophesying, that, behold, there was a shaking, and the bones approached each one to his joint. [8] And I looked, and behold, sinews and flesh grew upon them, and skin came upon them above: but there was not breath in them. [9] And he said to me, Prophesy to the wind, prophesy, son of man, and say to the wind, Thus saith the Lord; Come from the four winds, and breathe upon these dead men, and let them live. [10] So I prophesied as he commanded me, and the breath entered into them, and they lived, and stood upon their feet, a very great congregation.

[11] And the Lord spoke to me, saying, Son of man, these bones are the whole house of Israel: and they say, Our bones are become dry, our hope has perished, we are quite spent. [12] therefore prophesy and say,

Thus saith the Lord; Behold, I will open your tombs, and will bring you up out of your tombs, and will bring you into the land of Israel. [13] And ye shall know that I am the Lord, when I have opened your graves, that I may bring up my people from their graves. [14] And I will put my Spirit within you, and ye shall live, and I will place you upon your own land: and ye shall know that I am the Lord; I have spoken, and will do it, saith the Lord.

[15] And the word of the Lord came to me, saying, [16] Son of man, take for thyself a rod, and write upon it, Juda, and the children of Israel his adherents; and thou shalt take for thyself another rod, and thou shalt inscribe it for Joseph, the rod of Ephraim, and all the children of Israel that belong to him. [17] And thou shalt joint them together for thyself, so as that they should bind themselves into one stick; and they shall be in thine hand.

[18] And it shall come to pass, when the children of thy people shall say to thee, Wilt thou not tell us what thou meanest by these things? [19] Then shalt thou say to them, Thus saith the Lord; behold, I will take the tribe of Joseph, which is in the hand of Ephraim, and the tribes of Israel that belong to him, and I will add them to the tribe of Juda, and they shall become one rod in the hand of Juda. [20] And the rods on which thou didst write shall be in thine hand in their presence. [21] And thou shalt say to them,

Thus saith the Lord God; Behold, I will take the whole house of Israel out of the midst of the nations, among whom they have gone, and I will gather them from all that are round about them, and I will bring them into the land of Israel. [22] And I will make them a nation in my land, even on the mountains of Israel; and they shall have one prince: and they shall be no more two nations, neither shall they be divided any more at all into two kingdoms: [23] that they may no more defile themselves with their idols; and I will deliver them from all their transgressions whereby they have sinned, and will cleanse them; and they shall be to me a people, and I the Lord will be to them a God.

[24] And my servant David shall be a prince in the midst of them: there shall be one shepherd of them all; for they shall walk in mine ordinances, and keep my judgments, and do them. [25] And they shall dwell in their land, which I have given to my servant Jacob, where their fathers dwelt; and they shall dwell upon it: and David my servant shall be their prince forever.

[26] And I will make with them a covenant of peace; it shall be an everlasting covenant with them; and I will establish my sanctuary in the midst of them for ever. [27] And my tabernacle shall be among them; and I will be to them a God, and they shall be my people. [28] And the nations shall know that I am the Lord that sanctifies them, when my sanctuary is in the midst of them for ever.

Chapter 38

[1] And the word of the Lord came to me, saying, [2] Son of man, set thy face against Gog, and the land of Magog, Rhos, prince of Mesoch and Thobel, and prophesy against him, [3] and say to him, Thus saith the Lord God;

Behold, I am against thee, Rhos prince of Mesoch and Thobel: [4] and I will gather thee, and all thine host, horses and horsemen, all wearing breast-plates, with a great multitude, shields and helmets and swords: [5] Persians, and Ethiopians, and Libyans; all with helmets and shields. [6] Gomer, and all belonging to him; the house of Thorgama, from the end of the north, and all belonging to him; and many nations with thee.

[7] Be thou prepared, prepare thyself, thou, and all thy multitude that is assembled with thee, and thou shalt be to me for a guard. [8] He shall be prepared after many days, and he shall come at the end of years, and shall come to a land that is brought back from the sword, when the people are gathered from many nations against the land of Israel, which was entirely desolate: and he is come forth out of the nations, and they shall all dwell securely. [9] And thou shalt go up as rain, and shalt arrive as a cloud to cover the land, and there shall be thou, and all that are about thee, and many nations with thee.

[10] Thus saith the Lord God; It shall also come to pass in that day, that thoughts shall come up into thine heart, and thou shalt devise evil devices. [11] And thou shalt say, I will go up to the rejected land; I will come upon them that are at ease in tranquility, and dwelling in peace, all inhabiting a land in which there is no wall, nor bars, nor have they doors; [12] to seize plunder, and to take their spoil; to turn my hands against the desolate land that is now inhabited, and against a nation that is gathered from many nations, that have acquired property, dwelling in the midst of the land. [13] Sabba, and Daedan, and Carthaginian merchants, and all their villages shall say to thee, Thou art come for plunder to take a prey, and to get spoils: thou hast gathered thy multitude to take silver and gold, to carry off property, to take spoils.

[14] Therefore prophesy, son of man, and say to Gog, Thus saith the Lord; Wilt thou not arise in that day, when my people Israel are dwelling securely, [15] and come out of thy place from the farthest north, and many nations with thee? all of them mounted on horses, a great gathering, and a large force? [16] And thou shalt come up upon my people Israel as a cloud to cover the land; it shall come to pass in the last days, that I will bring thee up upon my land, that all the nations may know me, when I am sanctified in thee before them.

[17] Thus saith the Lord God, to Gog; Thou art he concerning whom I spoke in former times, by the hand of my servants the prophets of Israel, in those days and years, that I would bring thee up against them. [18] And it shall come to pass in that day, in the day when Gog shall come against the Land of Israel, saith the Lord God, [19] that my wrath and my jealousy shall arise, I have spoken in the fire of mine anger, verily in that day there shall be a great shaking in the land of Israel; [20] and the fish of the sea shall quake at the presence of the Lord, and the birds of the sky and the wild beasts of the field, and all the reptiles that creep upon the earth, and all the men that are on the face of the earth; and the mountains shall be rent, and the valleys shall fall, and every wall on the land shall fall. [21] And I will summon against it even every fear, saith the Lord: the sword of every man shall be against his brother. [22] And I will judge him with pestilence, and blood, and sweeping rain, and hailstones; and I will rain upon him fire and brimstone, and upon all that are with him, and upon many nations with him.

[23] And I will be magnified, and sanctified, and glorified; and I will be known in the presence of many nations, and they shall know that I am the Lord.

Chapter 39

[1] And thou, son of man, prophesy against Gog, and say, Thus saith the Lord; Behold, I am against thee, O Gog, Rhos prince of Mesoch and Thobel: [2] and I will assemble thee, and guide thee, and raise thee up on the extremity of the north, and I will bring thee up upon the mountains of Israel. [3] And I will destroy the bow out of thy left hand, and thine arrows out of thy right hand, and I will cast thee down on the mountains of Israel; [4] and thou and all that belong to thee shall fall, and the nations that are with thee shall be given to multitudes of birds, even to every fowl, and I have given thee to all the wild beasts of the field to be devoured. [5] Thou shalt fall on the face of the field: for I have spoken it, saith the Lord.

[6] And I will send a fire upon Gog, and the islands shall be securely inhabited: and they shall know that I am the Lord. [7] And my holy name shall be known in the midst of my people Israel; and my holy name shall no more be profaned: and the nations shall know that I am the Lord, the Holy One in Israel. [8] Behold it is come, and thou shalt know that it shall be, saith the Lord God; this is the day concerning which I have spoken.

[9] And they that inhabit the cities of Israel shall come forth, and make a fire with the arms, the shields and the spears, and bows and arrows, and hand-staves, and lances, and they shall keep fire burning with them for seven years: [10] and they shall not take any wood out of the field, neither shall they cut any out of the forests, but they shall burn the weapons with fire: and they shall plunder those that plundered them, and spoil those that spoiled them, saith the Lord.

[11] And it shall come to pass that in that day I will give to Gog a place of renown, a tomb in Israel, the burial-place of them that approach the sea: and they shall build round about the outlet of the valley, and there they shall bury Gog and all his multitude: and the place shall then be called the burial-place of Gog. [12] And the house of Israel shall bury them, that the land may be cleansed in the space of seven months. [13] Yea, all the people of the land shall bury them; and it shall be to them a place of renown in the day wherein it was glorified, saith the Lord. [14] And they shall appoint men continually to go over the land, to bury them that have been left on the face of the earth, to cleanse it after the space of seven months, and they shall seek them out. [15] And every one that goes through the land, and sees a man's bone, shall set up a mark by it, until the buriers shall have buried it in the valley, the burial place of Gog. [16] For the name of the city shall be Burial-place: so shall the land be cleansed.

[17] And thou, son of man, say, Thus saith the Lord; Say to every winged bird, and to all the wild beasts of the field, Gather yourselves, and come; gather yourselves from all places round about to my sacrifice, which I have made for you, even a great sacrifice on the mountains of Israel, and ye shall eat flesh, and drink blood. [18] Ye shall eat the flesh of mighty men, and ye shall drink the blood of princes of the earth, rams, and calves and goats, and they are all fatted calves. [19] And ye shall eat fat till ye are full, and shall drink wine till ye are drunken, of my sacrifice which I have prepared for you. [20] And ye shall be filled at my table, eating horse, and rider, and mighty man, and every warrior, saith the Lord.

[21] And I will set my glory among you, and all the nations shall see my judgment which I have wrought, and my hand which I have brought upon them. [22] And the house of Israel shall know that I am the Lord their God, from this day and onwards.

[23] And all the nations shall know that the house of Israel were led captive because of their sins, because they rebelled against me, and I turned away my face from them, and delivered them into the hands of their enemies, and they all fell by the sword. [24] According to their uncleannesses and according to their transgressions did I deal with them, and I turned away my face from them.

[25] Therefore thus saith the Lord God, Now will I turn back captivity in Jacob, and will have mercy on the house of Israel, and will be jealous for the sake of my holy name. [26] And they shall bear their reproach, and the iniquity which they committed when they dwelt upon their land in peace. Yet there shall be none to terrify them [27] when I have brought them back from the nations, and gathered them out of the countries of the nations: and I will be sanctified among them in the presence of the nations. [28] And they shall know that I am the Lord their God, when I have been manifested to them among the nations. [29] And I will no more turn away my face from them, because I have poured out my wrath upon the house of Israel, saith the Lord God.

[1] And it came to pass in the twenty-fifth year of our captivity, in the first month, on the tenth day of the month, in the fourteenth year after the taking of the city, in that day the hand of the Lord was upon me, and brought me [2] in a vision of God into the land of Israel, and set me on a very high mountain, and upon it there was as it were the frame of a city before me.

[3] And he brought me in thither, and, behold, there was a man, and the appearance of him was as the appearance of shining brass, and in his hand was a builder's line, and a measuring reed; and he stood at the gate. [4] And the man said to me,

Look with thine eyes at him whom thou hast seen, son of man, and hear with thine ears, and lay up in thine heart all things that I show thee; for thou hast come in hither that I might show thee, and thou shalt show all things that thou seest to the house of Israel.

[5] And behold a wall round about the house without, and in the man's hand a reed, the measure of it was six cubits by the cubit, and a span: and he measured across the front wall; the breadth was equal to the reed, and the length of it equal to the reed.

[6] And he entered by seven steps into the gate that looks eastward, and he measured across the porch of the gate equal to the reed. [7] And the chamber was equal in length to the reed, and equal in breadth to the reed; and the porch between the chambers six cubits; and the second chamber equal in breadth to the reed, and equal in length to the reed, and the porch five cubits. [8] And the third chamber equal in length to the reed, and equal in breadth to the reed. [9] And the porch of the gateway (near the porch of the gate) eight cubits; and the posts there of two cubits; and the porch of the gate was inward: [10] and the chambers of the gate of the chamber in front were three on one side and three on the other, and there was one measure to the three: there was one measure to the porches on this side and on that. [11] And he measured the breadth of the door of the gateway, ten cubits; and the breadth of the gateway thirteen cubits. [12] And the space before the chambers was narrowed to a cubit in front of the chambers on this side and on that side: and the chamber was six cubits this way, and six cubits that way.

[13] And he measured the gate from the wall of one chamber to the wall of the other chamber: the breadth was twenty-five cubits, the one gate over against the other gate. [14] And the open space of the porch of the gate without, was twenty cubits to the chambers round about the gate. [15] And the open space of the gate without to the open space of the porch of the gate within was fifty cubits.

[16] And there were secret windows to the chambers, and to the porches within the gate of the court round about, and in the same manner windows to the porches round about within: and on the porch there were palm-trees on this side and on that side.

[17] And he brought me into the inner court, and, behold, there were chambers, and peristyles round about the court; thirty chambers within the ranges of columns. [18] And the porticos were behind the gates; according to the length of the gates, was the lower peristyle. [19] And he measured the breadth of the court, from the open space of the outer gate inwards to the open space of the gate looking outwards: a hundred cubits was the distance to the place of the gate looking eastward: and he brought me to the north; [20] and behold a gate looking northwards belonging to the outer court, and he measured it, both the length of it and the breadth; [21] and the chambers, three on this side and three on that; and the posts, and the porches, and the palm-trees thereof: and they were according to the measures of the gate that looks eastward: the length thereof was fifty cubits, and the breadth thereof was twenty-five cubits. [22] And its windows, and its porches, and its palm-trees, were according to the dimensions of the gate looking eastward; and they went up to it by seven steps; and the porches were within. [23] And there was a gate to the inner court looking toward the north gate, after the manner of the gate looking toward the east; and he measured the court from gate to gate, a hundred cubits.

[24] And he brought me to the south side, and behold a gate looking southwards: and he measured it, and its chambers, and its posts, and its porches, according to these dimensions. [25] And its windows and its porches round about were according to the windows of the porch: the length thereof was fifty cubits, and the breadth thereof was five and twenty cubits. [26] And it had seven steps, and porches within: and it had palm-trees on the posts, one on one side, and one on the other side. [27] And there was a gate opposite the gate of the inner court southward: and he measured the court from gate to gate, a hundred cubits in breadth southward.

[28] And he brought me into the inner court of the south gate: and he measured the gate according to these measures; [29] and the chambers, and the posts, (30) and the porches, according to these measures: and there were windows to it and to the porches round about: its length was fifty cubits, and its breadth twenty-five cubits, [30] 31 from the porch to the outer court: and there were palm-trees to the post thereof, and eight steps.

[32] And he brought me in at the gate that looks eastward: and he measured it according to these measures: [33] and the chambers, and the posts, and the porches according to these measures: and there were windows to it, and porches round about: the length of it was fifty cubits, and the breadth of it twenty-five cubits. [34] And there were porches opening into the inner court, and palm-trees on the posts on this side and on that side: and it had eight steps.

[35] And he brought me in at the northern gate, and measured it according to these measures; [36] and the chambers, and the posts, and the porches: and it had windows round about, and it had its porches: the length of it was fifty cubits, and the breadth twenty-five cubits. [37] And its porches were toward the inner court; and there were palm-trees to the posts on this side and on that side: and it had eight steps.

[38] Its chambers and its door-ways, and its porches at the second gate served as a drain, [39] that they might slay in it the sin-offerings, and the trespass-offerings. [40] And behind the drain for the whole-burnt-offerings at the north gate, two tables eastward behind the second gate; and behind the porch of the gate two tables eastward. [41] Four on one side and four on the other side behind the gate; upon them they kill the victims, in front of the eight tables of sacrifices. [42] And there were four tables of hewn stone for whole-burnt-offerings, the breadth of them was a cubit and a half, and the length of them two cubits and a half, and their height was a cubit: on them they shall place the instruments with which they slay there the whole-burnt-offerings and the victims. [43] And they shall have within a border of hewn stone round about of a span broad, and over the tables above screens for covering them from the wet and from the heat.

[44] And he brought me into the inner court, and behold there were two chambers in the inner court, one behind the gate looking to the north, turning southward, and one behind the southern gate, but which looks to the north. [45] And he said to me, This chamber that looks to the south, is for the priests that keep the charge of the house. [46] And the chamber that looks to the north is for the priests that keep the charge of the altar: they are the sons of Sadduc, those of the tribe of Levi who draw near to the Lord to serve him.

[47] And he measured the court, the length whereof was a hundred cubits, and the breadth a hundred cubits, on its four sides; and the altar in front of the house. [48] And he brought me into the porch of the house; and he measured the post of the porch, the breadth was five cubits on one side and five cubits on the other side; and the breadth of the door was fourteen cubits, and the side-pieces of the door of the porch were three cubits on one side, and three cubits on the other side. [49] And the length of the porch was twenty cubits, and the breadth twelve cubits; and they went up to it by ten steps; and there were pillars to the porch, one on this side and one on that side.

[1] And he brought me into the temple, the porch of which he measured, six cubits the breadth on one side, and six cubits the breadth of the porch on the other side. [2] And the breadth of the gateway was ten cubits, and the side-pieces of the gateway were five cubits on this side, and five cubits on that side: and he measured the length of it, forth cubits, and the breadth, twenty cubits.

[3] And he went into the inner court, and measured the post of the door, two cubits; and the door, six cubits; and the side-pieces of the door, seven cubits on one side, and seven cubits on the other side. [4] And he measured the length of the doors, forty cubits; and the breadth, twenty cubits, in front of the temple: and he said, This is the holy of holies.

[5] And he measured the wall of the house, six cubits: and the breadth of each side, four cubits round about. [6] And the sides were twice ninety, side against side; and there was a space in the wall of the house at the sides round about, that they should be for them that take hold of them to see, that they should not at all touch the walls of the house. [7] And the breadth of the upper side was made according to the projection out of the wall, against the upper one round about the house, that it might be enlarged above, and that men might go up to the upper chambers from those below, and from the ground-sills to the third story.

[8] And as for the height of the house round about, each space between the sides was equal to a reed of six cubits; [9] and the breadth of the wall of each side without was five cubits; and the spaces that were left between the sides of the house, [10] and between the chambers, were a width of twenty cubits, the circumference of the house.

[11] And the doors of the chambers were toward the space left by the one door that looked northward, and there was one door southward; and the breadth of the remaining open space was five cubits in extent round about.

[12] And the partition wall in front of the remaining space, toward the west, was seventy cubits in breadth; the breadth of the partition wall was five cubits round about, and the length of it ninety cubits. [13] And he measured in front of the house a length of a hundred cubits, and the remaining spaces and the partitions; and the walls thereof were in length a hundred cubits. [14] And the breadth in front of the house, and the remaining spaces before it were a hundred cubits.

[15] And he measured the length of the partition in front of the space left by the back parts of that house; and the spaces left on this side and on that side were in length a hundred cubits: and the temple and the corners and the outer porch were ceiled. [16] And the windows were latticed, giving light round about to the three stories, so as to look through: and the house and the parts adjoining were planked round about, and so was the floor, and from the floor up to the windows, and the window shutters folded back in three parts for one to look through. [17] And almost all the way to the inner, and close to the outer side, and upon all the wall round about within and without, [18] were carved cherubs and palm-trees between the cherubs, and each cherub had two faces. [19] The face of a man was toward one palm-tree on this side and on that side, and the face of a lion toward another palm-tree on this side and on that side: the house was carved all round. [20] From the floor to the ceiling were cherubs and palm-trees carved.

[21] And the holy place and the temple opened on four sides; in front of the holy places the appearance was as the look of [22] a wooden altar, the height of it three cubits, and the length two cubits, and the breadth two cubits; and it had horns, and the base of it and the sides of it were of wood: and he said to me, This is the table, which is before the face of the Lord.

[23] And the temple had two doors, and the sanctuary had two doors, with two turning leaves apiece; [24] two leaves to the one, and two leaves to the other door. [25] And there was carved work upon them, and cherubs on the doors of the temple, and palm-trees according to the carving of the sanctuary; and there were stout planks in front of the porch without.

[26] And there were secret windows; and he measured from side to side, to the roofing of the porch; and the sides of the house were closely planked.

Chapter 42

[1] And he brought me into the inner court eastward, opposite the northern gate: and he brought me in, and behold five chambers near the vacant space, and near the northern partition, [2] a hundred cubits in length toward the north, and in breadth fifty, [3] ornamented accordingly as the gates of the inner court, and arranged accordingly as the peristyles of the outer court, with triple porticos fronting one another. [4] And in front of the chambers was a walk ten cubits in breadth, the length reaching to a hundred cubits; and their doors were northward. [5] And the upper walks were in like manner: for the peristyle projected from it, even from the range of columns below, and there was a space between; so were there a peristyle and a space between, and so were there two porticos. [6] For they were triple, and they had not pillars like the pillars of the outer ones: therefore they projected from the lower ones and the middle ones from the ground.

[7] And there was light without, corresponding to the chambers of the outer court looking toward the front of the northern chambers; the length of them was fifty cubits. [8] For the length of the chambers looking toward the inner court was fifty cubits, and these are the ones that front the others; the whole was a hundred cubits.

[9] And there were doors of these chambers for an outlet toward the east, so that one should go through them out of the outer court, [10] by the opening of the walk at the corner; and the south parts were toward the south, toward the remaining space, and toward the partition, and so were the chambers. [11] And the walk was in front of them, according to the measures of the chambers toward the north, both according to the length of them, and according to the breadth of them, and according to all their openings, an according to all their turnings, and according to their lights, and according to their doors. [12] So were the measures of the chambers toward the south, and according to the doors at the entrance of the walk, as it were the distance of a reed for light, and eastward as one went in by them.

[13] And he said to me, The chambers toward the north, and the chambers toward the south, in front of the void spaces, these are the chambers of the sanctuary, wherein the priests the sons of Sadduc, who draw nigh to the Lord, shall eat the most holy things: and there shall they lay the most holy things, and the meat-offering, and the sin-offerings, and the trespass-offerings; because the place is holy. [14] None shall go in thither except the priests, and they shall not go forth of the holy place into the outer court, that they that draw nigh to me may be continually holy, and may not touch their garments in which they minister, with defilement, for they are holy; and they shall put on other garments whenever they come in contact with the people.

[15] So the measurement of the house within was accomplished: and he brought me forth by the way of the gate that looks eastward, and measured the plan of the house round about in order.

[16] And he stood behind the gate looking eastward, and measured five hundred cubits with the measuring reed. [17] And he turned to the north and measured in front of the north side five hundred cubits with the measuring reed. [18] And he turned to the west, and measured in front of the west side, five hundred cubits with the measuring reed. [19] And he turned to the south, and measured in front of the south side, five hundred cubits by the measuring reed. [20] The four sides he measured by the same reed, and he marked out the house and the circumference of the parts round about, a space of five hundred cubits eastward, and a breadth of five hundred cubits, to make a division between the sanctuary and the outer wall, that belonged to the design of the house.

Chapter 43

[1] Moreover he brought me to the gate looking eastward, and led me forth. [2] And, behold, the glory of the God of Israel came by the eastern way; and there was a voice of an army, as the sound of many redoubling their shouts, and the earth shone like light from the glory round about. [3] And the vision which I saw was like the vision which I saw when I went in to anoint the city: and the vision of the chariot which I saw was like the vision which I saw at the river Chobar; and I fell upon my face.

[4] And the glory of the Lord came into the house, by the way of the gate looking eastward. [5] And the Spirit took me up, and brought me into the inner court; and, behold, the house of the Lord was full of glory. [6] And I stood, and behold there was a voice out of the house of one speaking to me, and a man stood near me, [7] and he said to me,

Son of man, thou hast seen the place of my throne, and the place of the soles of my feet, in which my name shall dwell in the midst of the house of Israel for ever; and the house of Israel shall no more profane my holy name, they and their princes, by their fornication, or by the murders of their princes in the midst of them; [8] when they set my door-way by their door-way, and my thresholds near to their thresholds: and they made my wall as it were joining myself and them, and they profaned my holy name with their iniquities which they wrought: and I destroyed them in my wrath and with slaughter. [9] And now let them put away from me their fornication, and the murders of their princes, and I will dwell in the midst of them forever.

[10] And thou, son of man, shew the house to the house of Israel, that they may cease from their sins; and shew its aspect and the arrangement of it. [11] And they shall bear their punishment for all the things that they have done: and thou shalt describe the house, and its entrances, and the plan thereof, and all its ordinances, and thou shalt make known to them all the regulations of it, and describe them before them: and they shall keep all my commandments, and all my ordinances, and do them.

[12] And thou shalt shew the plan of the house on the top of the mountain: all its limits round about shall be most holy.

[13] And these are the measures of the altar by the cubit of a cubit and a span, the cavity shall be a cubit deep, and a cubit shall be the breadth, and the border on the rim of it round about shall be a span: and this shall be the height of the altar [14] from the bottom at the commencement of the hollow part to this great mercy-seat, from beneath was two cubits, and the breadth was a cubit; and from the little mercy-seat to the great mercy-seat, four cubits, and the breadth was a cubit. [15] And the altar shall be four cubits; and from the altar and above the horns a cubit. [16] And the altar shall be of the length of twelve cubits, by twelve cubits in breadth, square upon its four sides.

[17] And the mercy-seat shall be fourteen cubits in length, by fourteen cubits in breadth on its four sides; and there shall be a border to it carried round about it of half a cubit; and the rim of it shall be a cubit round about; and the steps thereof looking eastward.

[18] And he said to me, Son of man, thus saith the Lord God of Israel; These are the ordinances of the altar in the day of its being made, to offer upon it whole-burnt-offerings, and to pour blood upon it. [19] And thou shalt appoint to the priests the Levites of the seed of Sadduc, that draw nigh to me, saith the Lord God, to minister to me, a calf of the herd for a sin-offering. [20] And they shall take of its blood, and shall put it on the four horns of the altar, and upon the four corners of the propitiatory, and upon the base round about, and they shall make atonement for it. [21] And they shall take the calf of the sin-offering, and it shall be consumed by fire in the separate place of the house, outside the sanctuary. [22] And on the second day they shall take two kids of the goats without blemish for a sin-offering; and they shall make atonement for the altar, as they made atonement with the calf. [23] And after they have finished the atonement, they shall bring an unblemished calf of the herd, and an unblemished ram of the flock. [24] And ye shall offer them before the Lord, and the priests shall sprinkle salt upon them, and shall offer them up as whole-burnt-offerings to the Lord.

[25] Seven day shalt thou offer a kid daily for a sin-offering, and a calf of the herd, and a ram out of the flock: they shall sacrifice them unblemished for seven days: [26] and they shall make atonement for the altar, and shall purge it; and they shall consecrate themselves. [27] And it shall come to pass from the eighth day and onward, that the priests shall offer your whole-burnt-offerings on the altar, and your peace-offerings; and I will accept you, saith the Lord.

[1] Then he brought me back by the way of the outer gate of the sanctuary that looks eastward; and it was shut. [2] And the Lord said to me, This gate shall be shut, it shall not be opened, and no one shall pass through it; for the Lord God of Israel shall enter by it, and it shall be shut. [3] For the prince, he shall sit in it, to eat bread before the Lord; he shall go in by the way of the porch of the gate, and shall go forth by the way of the same.

[4] And he brought me in by the way of the gate that looks northward, in front of the house: and I looked, and, behold, the house was full of the glory of the Lord: and I fell upon my face. [5] And the Lord said to me, Son of man, attend with thine heart, and see with thine eyes, and hear with thine ears all that I say to thee, according to all the ordinances of the house of the Lord, and all the regulations thereof; and thou shalt attend well to the entrance of the house, according to all its outlets, in all the holy things. [6] And thou shalt say to the provoking house, even to the house of Israel, Thus saith the Lord God; Let it suffice you to have committed all your iniquities, O house of Israel! [7] that ye have brought in aliens, uncircumcised in heart, and uncircumcised in flesh, to be in my sanctuary, and to profane it, when ye offered bread, flesh, and blood; and ye transgressed my covenant by all your iniquities; [8] and ye appointed others to keep the charges in my sanctuary.

[9] Therefore thus saith the Lord God; No alien, uncircumcised in heart or uncircumcised in flesh, shall enter into my sanctuary, of all the children of strangers that are in the midst of the house of Israel.

[10] But as for the Levites who departed far from me when Israel went astray from me after their imaginations, they shall even bear their iniquity. [11] yet they shall minister in my sanctuary, being porters at the gates of the house, and serving the house: they shall slay the victims and the whole-burnt-offerings for the people, and they shall stand before the people to minister to them. [12] Because they ministered to them before their idols, and it became to the house of Israel a punishment of iniquity; therefore have I lifted up my hand against them, saith the Lord God. [13] And they shall not draw nigh to me to minister to me in the priests' office, nor to approach the holy things of the children of Israel, nor to approach my holy of holies: but they shall bear their reproach for the error wherein they erred. [14] They shall bring them to keep the charges of the house, for all the service of it, and for all that they shall do.

[15] The priests the Levites, the sons of Sadduc, who kept the charges of my sanctuary when the house of Israel when astray from me, these shall draw nigh to me to minister to me, and shall stand before my face, to offer sacrifice to me, the fat and the blood, saith the Lord God. [16] These shall enter into my sanctuary, and these shall approach my table, to minister to me, and they shall keep my charges.

[17] And it shall come to pass when they enter the gates of the inner court, that they shall put on linen robes; and they shall not put on woollen garments when they minister at the gate of the inner court. [18] And they shall have linen mitres upon their heads, and shall have linen drawers upon their loins; and they shall not tightly gird themselves. [19] And when they go out into the outer court to the people, they shall put off their robes, in which they minister; and they shall lay them up in the chambers of the sanctuary, and shall put on other robes, and they shall not sanctify the people with their robes. [20] And they shall not shave their heads, nor shall they pluck off their hair; they shall carefully cover their heads. [21] And no priest shall drink any wine, when they go into the inner court. [22] Neither shall they take to themselves to wife a widow, or one that is put away, but a virgin of the seed of Israel: but if there should happen to be a priest's widow, they shall take her.

[23] And they shall teach my people to distinguish between holy and profane, and they shall make known to them the difference between unclean and clean. [24] And these shall attend at a judgment of blood to decide it: they shall rightly observe my ordinances, and judge my judgments, and keep my statutes and my commandments in all my feasts; and they shall hallow my sabbaths.

[25] And they shall not go in to the dead body of a man to defile themselves: only a priest may defile himself for a father, or for a mother, or for a son, or for a daughter, or for a brother, or for his sister, who has not been married. [26] And after he has been cleansed, let him number to himself seven days. [27] And on whatsoever day they shall enter into the inner court to minister in the holy place, they shall bring a propitiation, saith the Lord God.

[28] And it shall be to them for an inheritance: I am their inheritance: and no possession shall be given them among the children of Israel; for I am their possession. [29] And these shall eat the meat-offerings, and the sin-offerings, and the trespass-offerings; and every special offering in Israel shall be theirs. [30] And the first-fruits of all things, and the first-born of all animals and all offerings, of all your first-fruits there shall be a share for the priests; and ye shall give your earliest produce to the priest, to bring your blessings upon your houses. [31] And the priests shall eat no bird or beast that dies of itself, or is taken of wild beasts.

Chapter 45

[1] And when ye measure thee land for inheritance, ye shall set apart first-fruits to the Lord, a holy space of the land, in length twenty and five thousand reeds, and in breadth twenty thousand; it shall be holy in all the borders thereof round about. [2] And there shall be a sanctuary out of this, five hundred reeds in length by five hundred in breadth, a square round about; and there shall be a vacant space beyond this of fifty cubits round about. [3] And out of this measurement shalt thou measure the length five and twenty thousand, and the breadth twenty thousand: and in it shall be the holy of holies. [4] Of the land shall be a portion for the priests that minister in the holy place, and it shall be for them that draw nigh to minister to the Lord: and it shall be to them a place for houses set apart for their sacred office; [5] the length shall be twenty-five thousand, and the breadth twenty thousand: and the Levites that attend the house, they shall have cities to dwell in for a possession.

[6] And ye shall appoint for the possession of the city five thousand in breadth, and in length twenty-five thousand: after the manner of the first-fruits of the holy portion, they shall be for all the house of Israel.

[7] And the prince shall have a portion out of this, and out of this there shall be a portion for the first-fruits of the sanctuary, and for the possession of the city, in front of the first-fruits of the sanctuary, and in front of the possession of the city westward, and from the western parts eastward: and the length shall be equal to one of the parts of the western borders, and the length shall be to the eastern borders of the land. [8] And he shall have it for a possession in Israel: and the princes of Israel shall no more oppress my people; but the house of Israel shall inherit the land according to their tribes.

[9] Thus saith the Lord God; Let it suffice you, ye princes of Israel: remove injustice and misery, execute judgment and justice; take away oppression from my people, saith the Lord God. [10] Ye shall have a just balance, and a just measure, and a just choenix for measure. [11] And in like manner there shall be one choenix as a measure of capacity; the tenth of the gomor shall be the choenix, and the tenth of the gomor shall be in fair proportion to the gomor. [12] And the weights shall be twenty oboli, your pound shall be five shekels, fifteen shekels and fifty shekels.

[13] And these are the first-fruits which ye shall offer; a sixth part of a gomor of wheat, and the sixth part of it shall consist of an ephah of a core of barley. [14] And ye shall give as the appointed measure of oil one bath of oil out of ten baths; for ten baths are a gomor. [15] And one sheep from the flock out of ten, as an oblation from all the tribes of Israel, for sacrifices, and for whole-burnt-offerings, and for peace-offerings, to make atonement for you, saith the Lord God. [16] And all the people shall give these first-fruits to the prince of Israel.

[17] And through the prince shall be offered the whole-burnt-offerings and the meat-offerings, and the drink-offerings in the feasts, and at the new moons, and on the sabbaths; and in all the feasts of the house of Israel: he shall offer the sin-offerings, and the meat-offering, and the whole-burnt-offerings, and the peace-offerings, to make atonement for the house of Israel.

[18] Thus saith the Lord God; In the first month, on the first day of the month, ye shall take a calf without blemish out of the herd, to make atonement for the holy place. [19] And the priest shall take of the blood of the atonement, and put it on the thresholds of the house, and upon the four corners of the temple, and upon the altar, and upon the thresholds of the gate of the inner court. [20] And thus shalt thou do in the seventh month; on the first day of the month thou shalt take a rate from each one; and ye shall make atonement for the house.

[21] And in the first month, on the fourteenth day of the month, ye shall have the feast of the passover; seven days shall ye eat unleavened bread. [22] And the prince shall offer it that day a calf for a sin-offering for himself, and the house, and for all the people of the land. [23] And for the seven days of the feast he shall offer as whole-burnt-offerings to the Lord seven calves and seven rams without blemish daily for the seven days; and a kid of the goats daily for a sin-offering, and a meat-offering. [24] And thou shalt prepare a cake for the calf, and cakes for the ram, and a hin of oil for the cake. [25] And in the seventh month, on the fifteenth day of the month, thou shalt sacrifice in the feast in the same way seven days, as they sacrificed the sin-offerings, and the whole-burnt-offerings, and the freewill-offering, and the oil.

Chapter 46

[1] Thus saith the Lord God; The gate that is in the inner court, that looks eastward, shall be shut the six working days; but let it be opened on the sabbath-day, and it shall be opened on the day of the new moon. [2] And the prince shall enter by the way of the porch of the inner gate, and shall stand at the entrance of the gate, and the priests shall prepare his whole-burnt-offerings and his peace-offerings, and he shall worship at the entrance of the gate: then shall he come forth; but the gate shall not be shut till evening. [3] And the people of the land shall worship at the entrance of that gate, both on the sabbaths and at the new moons, before the Lord.

[4] And the prince shall offer whole-burnt-offerings to the Lord on the sabbath-day, six lambs without blemish, and a ram without blemish; [5] and a freewill-offering, a meat-offering for the ram, and a meat-offering for the lambs, the gift of his hand, and a hin of oil for the meat-offering. [6] And on the day of the new moon a calf without blemish, and six lambs, and there shall be a ram without blemish; [7] and a meat-offering for the ram, and there shall be a meat-offering for the calf as a freewill-offering, and for the lambs, according as his hand can furnish, and there shall be a hin of oil for the cake.

[8] And when the prince goes in, he shall go in by the way of the porch of the gate, and he shall go forth by the way of the gate. [9] And whenever the people of the land shall go in before the Lord at the feasts, he that goes in by the way of the north gate to worship shall go forth by the way of the south gate; and he that goes in by the way of the south gate shall go forth by the way of the north gate: he shall not return by the gate by which he entered, but he shall go forth opposite it. [10] And the prince shall enter with them in the midst of them when they go in; and when they go forth, he shall go forth.

[11] And in the feasts and in the general assemblies the freewill oblation shall be a meat-offering for the calf, and a meat-offering for the ram, and for the lambs, as his hand can furnish, and a hin of oil for the meat-offering. [12] And if the prince should prepare as a thanksgiving a whole-burnt-peace-offering to the Lord, and should open for himself the gate looking eastward, and offer his whole-burnt-offering, and his peace-offerings, as he does on the sabbath-day; then shall he go out, and shall shut the doors after he has gone out.

[13] And he shall prepare daily as a whole-burnt-offering to the Lord a lamb of a year old without blemish: in the morning shall he prepare it. [14] And he shall prepare a freewill-offering for it in the morning, the sixth part of a measure of flour, and a third part of a hin of oil to mix therewith the fine flour, as a freewill-offering to the Lord, a perpetual ordinance. [15] Ye shall prepare the lamb, and the freewill-offering, and the oil in the morning, for a perpetual whole-burnt-sacrifice.

[16] Thus saith the Lord God; If the prince shall give a gift to one of his sons out of his inheritance, this shall be to his sons a possession as an inheritance. [17] But if he give a gift to one of his servants, then it shall belong to him until the year of release; and then he shall restore it to the prince: but of the inheritance of his sons the possession shall continue to them. [18] And the prince shall by no means take of the inheritance of the people, to oppress them: he shall give an inheritance to his sons out of his own possession: that my people be not scattered, every one from his possession.

[19] And he brought me into the entrance of the place behind the gate, into the chamber of the sanctuary belonging to the priests, that looks toward the north: and, behold, there was a place set apart. [20] And he said to me, This is the place where the priests shall boil the trespass-offerings and the sin-offerings, and there shall they bake the meat-offering always; so as not to carry them out into the outer court, to sanctify the people.

[21] And he brought me into the outer court, and led me round upon the four sides of the court; and, behold, there was a court on each of the sides of the court, [22] on every side a court, even a court for all the four sides, and each little court belonging to the court was in length forty cubits, and in breadth thirty cubits, there was one measure to the four. [23] And there were chambers in them round about, round about the four, and cooking-places formed under the chambers round about. [24] And he said to me, These are the cooks' houses, where they that serve the house shall boil the sacrifices of the people.

[1] And he brought me to the entrance of the house; and, behold, water issued from under the porch eastward, for the front of the house looked eastward; and the water came down from the right side, from the south to the altar. [2] And he brought me out by the way of the northern gate, and he led me round by the way outside to the gate of the court that looks eastward; and, behold, water came down from the right side, [3] in the direction in which a man went forth opposite; and there was a measuring line in his hand, and he measured a thousand cubits with the measure; [4] and he passed through the water; it was water of a fountain: and again he measured a thousand, and passed through the water; and the water was up to the thighs: and again he measured a thousand; and he passed through water up to the loins. [5] and again he measured a thousand; and he could not pass through: for the water rose as of a torrent which men cannot pass over.

[6] And he said to me, Hast thou seen this, son of man? Then he brought me, and led me back to the brink of the river [7] as I returned; and, behold, on the brink of the river there were very many trees on this side and on that side. [8] And he said to me, This is the water that goes forth to Galilee that lies eastward, and it is gone down to Arabia, and has reached as far as to the sea to the outlet of the water: and it shall heal the waters. [9] And it shall come to pass, that every animal of living and moving creatures, all on which the river shall come, shall live: and there shall be there very many fish; for this water shall go thither, and it shall heal them, and they shall live: everything on which the river shall come shall live.

[10] And fishers shall stand there from Ingadin to Enagallim; it shall be a place to spread out nets upon; it shall be distinct; and the fishes thereof shall be as the fishes of the great sea, a very great multitude. [11] But at the outlet of the water, and the turn of it, and where it overflows its banks, they shall not heal at all; they are given to salt. [12] And every fruit tree shall grow by the river, even on the bank of it on this side and on that side: they shall not decay upon it, neither shall their fruit fail: they shall bring forth the first-fruit of their early crop, for these their waters come forth of the sanctuary: and their fruit shall be for meat, and their foliage for health.

[13] Thus saith the Lord God; Ye shall inherit these borders of the land; they are given by lot to the twelve tribes of the children of Israel. [14] And ye shall inherit it, each according to his brother's portion, even the land concerning which I lifted up my hand to give it to your fathers: and this land shall fall to you by lot.

[15] And these are the borders of the land that lies northward, from the great sea that comes down, and divides the entrance of Emaseldam; [16] Maabthera, Ebrameliam, between the coasts of Damascus and the coasts of Emathi, the habitation of Saunan, which places are above the coasts of Auranitis. [17] These are the borders from the sea, from the habitations of Ænan, the coasts of Damascus, and the northern coasts. [18] And the eastern coasts between Loranitis, and Damascus, and the land of Galaad, and the land of Israel, the Jordan divides to the sea that is east of the city of palm-trees. These are the eastern coasts. [19] And the southern and south-western coasts are from Thaeman and the city of palm-trees, to the water of Marimoth Cadem, reaching forth to the great sea. This part is the south and south-west. [20] This part of the great sea forms a border, till one comes opposite the entrance of Emath, even as far as the entrance thereof. These are the parts west of Emath.

[21] So ye shall divide this land to them, even to the tribes of Israel. [22] Ye shall cast the lot upon it, for yourselves and the strangers that sojourn in the midst of you, who have begotten children in the midst of you: and they shall be to you as natives among the children of Israel; they shall eat with you in their inheritance in the midst of the tribes of Israel. [23] And they shall be in the tribe of proselytes among the proselytes that are with them: there shall ye give them an inheritance, saith the Lord God.

[1] And these are the names of the tribes from the northern corner, on the side of the decent that draws a line to the entrance of Emath the palace of Ælam, the border of Damascus northward on the side of Emath the palace; and they shall have the eastern parts as far as the sea, for Dan, one portion. [2] And from the borders of Dan eastward as far as the west sea-coast, for Asser, one. [3] And from the borders of Asser, from the eastern parts as far as the west coasts, for Nephthalim, one. [4] And from the borders of Nephthalim, from the east as far as the west coasts, for Manasse, one. [5] And from the borders of Manasse, from the eastern parts as far as the west coasts, for Ephraim, one. [6] And from the borders of Ephraim, from the eastern parts to the west coasts, for Ruben, one. [7] And from the borders of Ruben, from the eastern parts as far as the west coasts, for Juda, one. [8] And from the borders of Juda, from the eastern parts shall be the offering of first-fruits, in the breadth twenty-five thousand reeds, and in length as one of the portions measured from the east even to the western parts: and the sanctuary shall be in the midst of them. [9] As for the first-fruits which they shall offer to the Lord, it shall be in length twenty-five thousand, and in breadth twenty-five thousand. [10] Out of this shall be the first-fruits of the holy things to the priests, northward, five and twenty-thousand, and towards the west, ten thousand, and southward, five and twenty thousand: and the mountain of the sanctuary, shall be in the midst of it, [11] for the priests, for the consecrated sons of Sadduc, who keep the charges of the house, who erred not in the error of the children of Israel, as the Levites erred. [12] And the first-fruits shall be given to them out of the first-fruits of the land, even a most holy portion from the borders of the Levites.

[13] And the Levites shall have the part, next to the borders of the priests, in length twenty-five thousand, and in breadth ten thousand: the whole length shall be five and twenty thousand, and the breadth twenty thousand. [14] No part of it shall be sold, nor measured as for sale, neither shall the first-fruits of the land be taken away: for they are holy to the Lord.

[15] But concerning the five thousand that remain in the breadth in the five and twenty thousand, they shall be a suburb to the city for dwelling, and for a space before it: and the city shall be in the midst thereof. [16] And these shall be its dimensions; from the northern side four thousand and five hundred, and from the southern side four thousand and five hundred, and from the eastern side four thousand and five hundred, and from the western side they shall measure four thousand five hundred. [17] And there shall be a space to the city northward two hundred and fifty, and southward two hundred and fifty, and eastward two hundred and fifty, and westward two hundred and fifty.

[18] And the remainder of the length that is next to the first-fruits of the holy portion shall be ten thousand eastward, and ten thousand westward: and they shall be the first-fruits of the sanctuary; and the fruits thereof shall be for bread to them that labour for the city. [19] And they that labour for the city shall labour for it out of all the tribes of Israel.

[20] The whole offering shall be a square of twenty-five thousand by twenty-five thousand: ye shall separate again part of it, the first-fruits of the sanctuary, from the possession of the city.

[21] And the prince shall have the remainder on this side and on that side from the first-fruits of the sanctuary, and there shall be a possession of the city, for five and twenty thousand cubits in length, to the eastern and western borders, for five and twenty thousand to the western borders, next to the portions of the prince; and the first-fruits of the holy things and the sanctuary of the house shall be in the midst of it. [22] And there shall be a portion taken from the Levites, from the possession of the city in the midst of the princes between the borders of Juda and the borders of Benjamin, and it shall be the portion of the princes.

[23] And as for the rest of the tribes, from the eastern parts as far as the western, Benjamin shall have one portion. [24] And from the borders of Benjamin, from the eastern parts to the western, Symeon, one. [25] And from the borders of Symeon, from the eastern parts to the western, Issachar, one. [26] And from the borders of Issachar, from the eastern parts to the western, Zabulon, one. [27] And from the borders of Zabulon, from the east to the western parts, Gad, one. [28] And from the borders of Gad, from the eastern parts to the south-western parts; his coasts shall even be from Thaeman, and the water of Barimoth Cades, for an inheritance, unto the great sea. [29] This is the land, which ye shall divide by lot to the tribes of Israel, and these are their portions, saith the Lord God.

[30] And these are the goings out of the city northward, four thousand and five hundred by measure. [31] And the gates of the city shall be after the names of the tribes of Israel: three gates northward; the gate of Ruben, one, and the gate of Juda, one, and the gate of Levi, one. [32] And eastward four thousand and five hundred: and three gates; the gate of Joseph, one, and the gate of Benjamin, one, and the gate of Dan, one. [33] And southward, four thousand and five hundred by measure: and three gates; the gate of Symeon, one, and the gate of Issachar, one, and the gate of Zabulon, one. [34] And westward, four thousand and five hundred by measure: and three gates; the gate of Gad, one, and the gate of Asser, one, and the gate of Nephthalim, one.

[35] The circumference, eighteen thousand measures: and the name of the city, from the day that it shall be finished, shall be the name thereof.

Daniel

Chapter 1

[1] In the third year of the reign of Joakim king of Juda, came Nabuchodonosor king of Babylon to Jerusalem, and besieged it. [2] And the Lord gave into his hand Joakim king of Juda, and part of the vessels of the house of God: and he brought them into the land of Sennaar to the house of his god; and he brought the vessels into the treasure-house of his god. [3] And the king told Asphanez his chief eunuch, to bring in some of the captive children of Israel, and of the seed of the kingdom, and of the princes; [4] young men in whom was no blemish, and beautiful in appearance, and skilled in all wisdom, and possessing knowledge, and acquainted with prudence, and who had ability to stand in the house before the king, and the king gave commandment to teach them the learning and language of the Chaldeans.

[5] And the king appointed them a daily portion from the king's table, and from the wine which he drank; and gave orders to nourish them three years, and that afterwards they should stand before the king.

[6] Now these were among them of the children of Juda, Daniel, and Ananias, and Azarias, and Misael. [7] And the chief of the eunuchs gave them names: to Daniel, Baltasar; and to Ananias, Sedrach; and to Misael, Misach; and to Azarias, Abdenago. [8] And Daniel purposed in his heart, that he would not defile himself with the king's table, nor with the wine of his drink: and he intreated the chief of the eunuchs that he might not defile himself. [9] Now God had brought Daniel into favour and compassion with the chief of the eunuchs. [10] And the chief of the eunuchs said to Daniel, I fear my lord the king, who has appointed your meat and your drink, lest he see your countenances gloomy in comparison of the young men your equals; also shall ye endanger my head to the king. [11] And Daniel said to Amelsad, whom the chief of the eunuchs had appointed over Daniel, Ananias, Misael, and Azarias. [12] Prove now thy servants ten days; and let them give us pulse, and let us eat, and let us drink water: [13] And let our countenances be seen by thee, and the countenances of the children that eat at the king's table; and deal with thy servants according as thou shalt see.

[14] And he hearkened to them, and proved them ten days. [15] And at the end of the ten days their countenances appeared fairer and stouter in flesh, than the children that fed at the king's table. [16] So Amelsad took away their supper and the wine of their drink, and gave them pulse.

[17] And as for these four children, God gave them understanding and prudence in all learning and wisdom: and Daniel had understanding in all visions and dreams. [18] And at the end of the days, after which the king had given orders to bring them in, then the chief of the eunuchs brought them in before Nabuchodonosor. [19] And the king spoke with them; and there were not found out of them all any like Daniel, and Ananias and Misael, and Azarias: and they stood before the king. [20] And in every matter of wisdom and knowledge wherein the king questioned them, he found them ten times wiser than all the enchanter and sorcerers that were in all his kingdom. [21] And Daniel continued till the first year of king Cyrus.

[1] In the second year of his reign Nabuchodonosor dreamed a dream, and his spirit was amazed, and his sleep departed from him. [2] And the king gave orders to call the enchanters, and the magicians, and the sorcerers, and the Chaldeans, to declare to the king his dreams. And they came and stood before the king. [3] And the king said to them, I have dreamed, and my spirit was troubled to know the dream. [4] And the Chaldeans spoke to the king in the Syrian language, saying, O king, live for ever: do thou tell the dream to thy servants, and we will declare the interpretation. [5] The king answered the Chaldeans, The thing has departed from me: if ye do not make known to me the dream and the interpretation, ye shall be destroyed, and your houses shall be spoiled. [6] But if ye make known to me the dream, and the interpretation thereof, ye shall receive of me gifts and presents and much honour: only tell me the dream, and the interpretation thereof. [7] They answered the second time, and said, Let the king tell the dream to his servants, and we will declare the interpretation.

[8] And the king answered and said, I verily know that ye are trying to gain time, because ye see that the thing has gone from me. [9] If then ye do not tell me the dream, I know that ye have concerted to utter before me a false and corrupt tale, until the time shall have past: tell me my dream, and I shall know that ye will also declare to me the interpretation thereof. [10] The Chaldeans answered before the king, and said, There is no man upon the earth, who shall be able to make known the king's matter: forasmuch as no great king or ruler asks such a question of an enchanter, magician, or Chaldean. [11] For the question which the king asks is difficult, and there is no one else who shall answer it before the king, but the gods, whose dwelling is not with any flesh.

[12] Then the king in rage and anger commanded to destroy all the wise men of Babylon. [13] So the decree went forth, and they began to slay the wise men; and they sought Daniel and his fellows to slay them.

[14] Then Daniel answered with counsel and prudence to Arioch the captain of the royal guard, who was gone forth to kill the wise men of Babylon; saying, [15] Chief magistrate of the king, wherefore has the preemptory command proceeded from the king? So Arioch made known the matter to Daniel. [16] And Daniel intreated the king to give him time, and that he might thus declare to the king the interpretation of it. [17] So Daniel went into his house, and made known the matter to Ananias, and Misael, and Azarias, his friends. [18] And they sought mercies from the God of heaven concerning this mystery; that Daniel and his friends might not perish with the rest of the wise men of Babylon.

[19] Then the mystery was revealed to Daniel in a vision of the night; and Daniel blessed the God of heaven, and said,

[20] May the name of God be blessed from everlasting and to everlasting:

for wisdom and understanding are his. [21] And he changes times and seasons: he appoints kings, and removes them, giving wisdom to the wise, and prudence to them that have understanding: [22] he reveals deep and secret matters; knowing what is in darkness, and the light is with him. [23] I give thanks to thee, and praise thee, O God of my fathers, for thou has given me wisdom and power, and has made known to me the things which we asked of thee; and thou has made known to me the king's vision.

[24] And Daniel came to Arioch, whom the king had appointed to destroy the wise men of Babylon, and said to him; Destroy not the wise men of Babylon, but bring me in before the king, and I will declare the interpretation to the king. [25] Then Arioch in haste brought in Daniel before the king, and said to him, I have found a man of the children of the captivity of Judea, who will declare the interpretation to the king. [26] And the king answered and said to Daniel, whose name was Baltasar, Canst thou declare to me the dream which I saw, and the interpretation thereof?

[27] And Daniel answered before the king, and said, The mystery which the king asks the explanation of is not in the power of the wise men, magicians, enchanters, or soothsayers to declare to the king. [28] But there is a God in heaven revealing mysteries, and he has made known to king Nabuchodonosor what things must come to pass in the last days. Thy dream, and the visions of thy head upon thy bed, are as follows, [29] O king: thy thoughts upon thy bed arose as to what must come to pass hereafter: and he that reveals mysteries has made known to thee what must come to pass. [30] Moreover, this mystery has not been revealed to me by reason of wisdom which is in me beyond all others living, but for the sake of making known the interpretation to the king, that thou mightest know the thoughts of thine heart.

[31] Thou, O king, sawest, and behold an image: that image was great, and the appearance of it excellent, standing before thy face; and the form of it was terrible. [32] It was an image, the head of which was of fine gold, its hands and breast and arms of silver, its belly and thighs of brass, [33] its legs of iron, its feet, part of iron and part of earthenware. [34] Thou sawest until a stone was cut out of a mountain without hands, and it smote the image upon its feet of iron and earthenware, and utterly reduced them to powder. [35] Then once for all the earthenware, the iron, the brass, the silver, the gold, were ground to powder, and became as chaff from the summer threshingfloor; and the violence of the wind carried them away, and no place was found for them: and the stone which had smitten the image became a great mountain, and filled all the earth. [36] This is the dream; and we will tell the interpretation thereof before the king.

[37] Thou, O king, art a king of kings, to whom the God of heaven has given a powerful and strong and honourable kingdom, [38] in every place where the children of men dwell: and he has given into thine hand the wild beasts of the field, and the birds of the sky and the fish of the sea, and he has made thee lord of all. [39] Thou art the head of gold. And after thee shall arise another kingdom inferior to thee, an a third kingdom which is the brass, which shall have dominion over all the earth; [40] and a fourth kingdom, which shall be strong as iron: as iron beats to powder and subdues all things, so shall it beat to powder and subdue.

[41] And whereas thou sawest the feet and the toes, part of earthenware and part of iron, the kingdom shall be divided; yet there shall be in it of the strength of iron, as thou sawest the iron mixed with earthenware. [42] And whereas the toes of the feet were part of iron and part of earthenware, part of the kingdom shall be strong, and part of it shall be broken. [43] Whereas thou sawest the iron mixed with earthenware, they shall be mingled with the seed of men: but they shall not cleave together, as the iron does not mix itself with earthenware. [44] And in the days of those kings the God of heaven shall set up a kingdom which shall never be destroyed: and his kingdom shall not be left to another people, but it shall beat to pieces and grind to powder all other kingdoms, and it shall stand for ever. [45] Whereas thou sawest that a stone was cut out of a mountain without hands, and it beat to pieces the earthenware, the iron, the brass, the silver, the gold; the great God has made known to the king what must happen hereafter: and the dream is true, and the interpretation thereof sure.

[46] Then king Nabuchodonosor fell upon his face, and worshipped Daniel, and gave orders to offer to him gifts and incense. [47] And the king answered and said to Daniel, Of a truth your God is a God of gods, and Lord of kings, who reveals mysteries; for thou has been able to reveal this mystery. [48] And the king promoted Daniel, and gave him great and abundant gifts, and set him over the whole province of Babylon, and made him chief satrap over all the wise men of Babylon. [49] And Daniel asked of the king, and he appointed Sedrach, Misach, and Abdenago, over the affairs of the province of Babylon: but Daniel was in the king's palace.

Chapter 3

[1] In his eighteenth year Nabuchodonosor the king made a golden image, its height was sixty cubits, its breadth six cubits: and he set it up in the plain of Deira, in the province of Babylon. [2] And he sent forth to gather the governors, and the captains, and the heads of provinces, chiefs, and princes, and those who were in authority, and all the rulers of districts, to come to the dedication of the image. [3] So the heads of provinces, the governors, the captains, the chiefs, the great princes, those who were in authority, and all the rulers of districts, were gathered to the dedication of the image which king Nabuchodonosor had set up; and they stood before the image.

[4] Then a herald cried aloud, To you it is commanded, ye peoples, tribes, and languages, [5] at what hour ye shall hear the sound of the trumpet, and pipe, and harp, and sackbut, and psaltery, and every kind of music, ye shall fall down and worship the golden image which king Nabuchodonosor has set up. [6] And whosoever shall not fall down and worship, in the same hour he shall be cast into the burning fiery furnace. [7] And it came to pass when the nations heard the sound of the trumpet, and pipe, and harp, and sackbut, and psaltery, and all kinds of music, all the nations, tribes, and languages, fell down and worshipped the golden image which king Nabuchodonosor had set up.

[8] Then came near certain Chaldeans, and accused the Jews to the king, saying, [9] O king, live for ever. [10] Thou, O king, has made a decree that every man who shall hear the sound of the trumpet, and pipe, and harp, sackbut, and psaltery, and all kinds of music, [11] and shall not fall down and worship the golden image, shall be cast into the burning fiery furnace. [12] There are certain Jews whom thou has appointed over the affairs of the province of Babylon, Sedrach, Misach, and Abdenago, who have not obeyed thy decree, O king: they serve not thy gods, and worship not the golden image which thou hast set up.

[13] Then Nabuchodonosor in wrath and anger commanded to bring Sedrach, Misach, and Abdenago: and they were brought before the king. [14] And Nabuchodonosor answered and said to them, Is it true, Sedrach, Misach, and Abdenago, that ye serve not my gods, and worship not the golden image which I have set up? [15] Now then if ye be ready, whensoever ye shall hear the sound of the trumpet, and pipe, and harp, and sackbut, and psaltery, and harmony, and every kind of music, to fall down and worship the golden image which I have made; well: but if ye worship not, in the same hour ye shall be cast into the burning fiery furnace; and who is the God that shall deliver you out of my hand?

[16] Then answered Sedrach, Misach and Abdenago and said to king Nabuchodonosor, We have no need to answer thee concerning this matter. [17] For our God whom we serve is in the heavens, able to deliver us from the burning fiery furnace, and he will rescue us from thy hands, O king. [18] But if not, be it known to thee, O king, that we will not serve thy gods, nor worship the image which thou hast set up.

[19] Then Nabuchodonosor was filled with wrath, and the form of his countenance was changed toward Sedrach, Misach, and Abdenago: and he gave orders to heat the furnace seven times more than usual, until it should burn to the uttermost. [20] And he commanded mighty men to bind Sedrach, Misach, and Abdenago, and to cast them into the burning fiery furnace. [21] Then those men were bound with their coats, and caps, and hose, and were cast into the midst of the burning fiery furnace, [22] forasmuch as the king's word prevailed; and the furnace was made exceeding hot. [23] Then these three men, Sedrach, Misach, and Abdenago, fell bound into the midst of the burning furnace, and walked in the midst of the flame, singing praise to God, and blessing the Lord.

Song of the Three Children

[1] Then Azarias stood up, and prayed on this manner; and opening his mouth in the midst of the fire said,

[2] Blessed art thou, O Lord God of our fathers: thy name is worthy to be praised and glorified for evermore: [3] For thou art righteous in all the things that thou hast done to us: yea, true are all thy works, thy ways are right, and all thy judgments truth.

[4] In all the things that thou hast brought upon us, and upon the holy city of our fathers, even Jerusalem, thou hast executed true judgment: for according to truth and judgment didst thou bring all these things upon us because of our sins. [5] For we have sinned and committed iniquity, departing from thee. [6] In all things have we trespassed, and not obeyed thy commandments, nor kept them, neither done as thou hast commanded us, that it might go well with us. [7] Wherefore all that thou hast brought upon us, and every thing that thou hast done to us, thou hast done in true judgment.

[8] And thou didst deliver us into the hands of lawless enemies, most hateful forsakers of God, and to an unjust king, and the most wicked in all the world. [9] And now we cannot open our mouths, we are become a shame and reproach to thy servants; and to them that worship thee.

[10] Yet deliver us not up wholly, for thy name's sake, neither disannul thou thy covenant: [11] And cause not thy mercy to depart from us, for thy beloved Abraham's sake, for thy servant Isaac's sake, and for thy holy Israel's sake; [12] To whom thou hast spoken and promised, that thou wouldest multiply their seed as the stars of heaven, and as the sand that lieth upon the seashore. [13] For we, O Lord, are become less than any nation, and be kept under this day in all the world because of our sins. [14] Neither is there at this time prince, or prophet, or leader, or burnt offering, or sacrifice, or oblation, or incense, or place to sacrifice before thee, and to find mercy.

[15] Nevertheless in a contrite heart and an humble spirit let us be accepted. [16] Like as in the burnt offerings of rams and bullocks, and like as in ten thousands of fat lambs: so let our sacrifice be in thy sight this day, and grant that we may wholly go after thee: for they shall not be confounded that put their trust in thee.

[17] And now we follow thee with all our heart, we fear thee, and seek thy face. [18] Put us not to shame: but deal with us after thy lovingkindness, and according to the multitude of thy mercies.

[19] Deliver us also according to thy marvellous works, and give glory to thy name, O Lord: and let all them that do thy servants hurt be ashamed; [20] And let them be confounded in all their power and might, and let their strength be broken; [21] And let them know that thou art God, the only God, and glorious over the whole world. [22] And the king's servants, that put them in, ceased not to make the oven hot with rosin, pitch, tow, and small wood; [23] So that the flame streamed forth above the furnace forty and nine cubits. [24] And it passed through, and burned those Chaldeans it found about the furnace.

[25] But the angel of the Lord came down into the oven together with Azarias and his fellows, and smote the flame of the fire out of the oven; [26] And made the midst of the furnace as it had been a moist whistling wind, so that the fire touched them not at all, neither hurt nor troubled them. [27] Then the three, as out of one mouth, praised, glorified, and blessed, God in the furnace, saying,

[28] Blessed art thou, O Lord God of our fathers: and to be praised and exalted above all for ever. [29] And blessed is thy glorious and holy name: and to be praised and exalted above all for ever.

[30] Blessed art thou in the temple of thine holy glory: and to be praised and glorified above all for ever. [31] Blessed art thou that beholdest the depths, and sittest upon the cherubims: and to be praised and exalted above all for ever. [32] Blessed art thou on the glorious throne of thy kingdom: and to be praised and glorified above all for ever. [33] Blessed art thou in the firmament of heaven: and above all to be praised and glorified for ever.

[34] O all ye works of the Lord, bless ye the Lord: praise and exalt him above all for ever, [35] O ye heavens, bless ye the Lord: praise and exalt him above all for ever. [36] O ye angels of the Lord, bless ye the Lord: praise and exalt him above all for ever. [37] O all ye waters that be above the heaven, bless ye the Lord: praise and exalt him above all for ever. [38] O all ye powers of the Lord, bless ye the Lord: praise and exalt him above all for ever.

[39] O ye sun and moon, bless ye the Lord: praise and exalt him above all for ever. [40] O ye stars of heaven, bless ye the Lord: praise and exalt him above all for ever. [41] O every shower and dew, bless ye the Lord: praise and exalt him above all for ever. [42] O all ye winds, bless ye the Lord: praise and exalt him above all for ever, [43] O ye fire and heat, bless ye the Lord: praise and exalt him above all for ever. [44] O ye winter and summer, bless ye the Lord: praise and exalt him above all for ever. [45] O ye dews and storms of snow, bless ye the Lord: praise and exalt him above all for ever.

[46] O ye nights and days, bless ye the Lord: bless and exalt him above all for ever. [47] O ye light and darkness, bless ye the Lord: praise and exalt him above all for ever. [48] O ye ice and cold, bless ye the Lord: praise and exalt him above all for ever. [49] O ye frost and snow, bless ye the Lord: praise and exalt him above all for ever. [50] O ye lightnings and clouds, bless ye the Lord: praise and exalt him above all for ever.

[51] O let the earth bless the Lord: praise and exalt him above all for ever. [52] O ye mountains and little hills, bless ye the Lord: praise and exalt him above all for ever. [53] O all ye things that grow in the earth, bless ye the Lord: praise and exalt him above all for ever. [54] O ye mountains, bless ye the Lord: Praise and exalt him above all for ever.

[55] O ye seas and rivers, bless ye the Lord: praise and exalt him above all for ever. [56] O ye whales, and all that move in the waters, bless ye the Lord: praise and exalt him above all for ever. [57] O all ye fowls of the air, bless ye the Lord: praise and exalt him above all for ever. [58] O all ye beasts and cattle, bless ye the Lord: praise and exalt him above all for ever.

[59] O ye children of men, bless ye the Lord: praise and exalt him above all for ever. [60] O Israel, bless ye the Lord: praise and exalt him above all for ever.

[61] O ye priests of the Lord, bless ye the Lord: praise and exalt him above all for ever. [62] O ye servants of the Lord, bless ye the Lord: praise and exalt him above all for ever. [63] O ye spirits and souls of the righteous, bless ye the Lord: praise and exalt him above all for ever. [64] O ye holy and humble men of heart, bless ye the Lord: praise and exalt him above all for ever.

[65] O Ananias, Azarias, and Misael, bless ye the Lord: praise and exalt him above all for ever: for he hath delivered us from hell, and saved us from the hand of death, and delivered us out of the midst of the furnace and burning flame: even out of the midst of the fire hath he delivered us. [66] O give thanks unto the Lord, because he is gracious: for his mercy endureth for ever.

[67] O all ye that worship the Lord, bless the God of gods, praise him, and give him thanks: for his mercy endureth for ever.

[24] And Nabuchodonosor heard them singing praises; and he wondered, and rose up in haste, and said to his nobles, Did we not cast three men bound into the midst of the fire? and they said to the king, Yes, O king. [25] And the king said, But I see four men loose, and walking in the midst of the fire, and there has no harm happened to them; and the appearance of the fourth is like the Son of God. [26] Then Nabuchodonosor drew near to the door of the burning fiery furnace, and said, Sedrach, Misach, and Abdenago, ye servants of the most high God, proceed forth, and come hither. So Sedrach, Misach, and Abdenago, came forth out of the midst of the fire. [27] Then were assembled the satraps, and captains, and heads of provinces, and the royal princes; and they saw the men, and perceived that the fire had not had power against their bodies, and the hair of their head was not burnt, and their coats were not scorched, nor was the smell of fire upon them.

[28] And king Nabuchodonosor answered and said, Blessed be the God of Sedrach, Misach, and Abdenago, who has sent his angel, and delivered his servants, because they trusted in him; and they have changed the king's word, and delivered their bodies to be burnt, that they might not serve nor worship any god, except their own God. [29] Wherefore I publish a decree: Every people, tribe, or language, that shall speak reproachfully against the God of Sedrach, Misach, and Abdenago shall be destroyed, and their houses shall be plundered: because there is no other God who shall be able to deliver thus. [30] Then the king promoted Sedrach, Misach, and Abdenago, in the province of Babylon, and advanced them, and gave them authority to rule over all the Jews who were in his kingdom.

[31] King Nabuchodonosor to all nations, tribes, and tongues, who dwell in all the earth; Peace be multiplied to you. [32] It seemed good to me to declare to you the signs and wonders which the most high God has wrought with me, [33] how great and mighty they are: his kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and his power to all generations.

[1] I Nabuchodonosor was thriving in my house, and prospering. [2] I saw a vision, and it terrified me, and I was troubled on my bed, and the visions of my head troubled me. [3] And I made a decree to bring in before me all the wise men of Babylon, that they might make known to me the interpretation of the dream. [4] So the enchanters, magicians, soothsayers, and Chaldeans came in: and I told the dream before them; but they did not make known to me the interpretation thereof; [5] until Daniel came, whose name is Baltasar, according to the name of my God, who has within him the Holy Spirit of God; to whom I said,

[6] O Baltasar, chief of the enchanters, of whom I know that the Holy Spirit of God is in thee, and no mystery is too hard for thee, hear the vision of my dream which I had, and tell me the interpretation of it. [7] I had a vision upon my bed; and behold a tree in the midst of the earth, and its height was great. [8] The tree grew large and strong, and its height reached to the sky, and its extent to the extremity of the whole earth: [9] its leaves were fair, and its fruit abundant, and in it was meat for all; and under it the wild beasts of the field took shelter, and the birds of the sky lodged in the branches of it, and all flesh was fed of it.

[10] I beheld in the night vision upon my bed, and, behold, a watcher and an holy one came down from heaven and cried aloud, and thus he said, [11] Cut down the tree, and pluck off its branches, and shake off its leaves, and scatter its fruit: let the wild beasts be removed from under it, and the birds from its branches. [12] Only leave the stump of its roots in the earth, and bind it with an iron and brass band; and it shall lie in the grass that is without and in the dew of heaven, and its portion shall be with the wild beasts in the grass of the field. [13] His heart shall be changed from that of man, and the heart of a wild beast shall be given to him; and seven times shall pass over him. [14] The matter is by the decree of the watcher, and the demand is a word of the holy ones; that the living may know that the Lord is most high over the kingdom of men, and he will give it to whomsoever he shall please, and will set up over it that which is set at nought of men. [15] This is the vision which I king Nabuchodonosor saw: and do thou, Baltasar, declare the interpretation, for none of the wise men of my kingdom are able to shew me the interpretation of it: but thou, Daniel, art able; for the Holy Spirit of God is in thee.

[16] Then Daniel, whose name is Baltasar, was amazed about one hour, and his thoughts troubled him. And Baltasar answered and said, My lord, let the dream be to them that hate thee, and the interpretation of it to thine enemies. [17] The tree which thou sawest, that grew large and strong, whose height reached to the sky and its extent to all the earth; [18] and whose leaves were flourishing, and its fruit abundant, (and it was meat for all; under it the wild beasts lodged, and the birds of the sky took shelter in its branches:) [19] is thyself, O king; for thou art grown great and powerful, and thy greatness has increased and reached to heaven, and thy dominion to the ends of the earth. [20] And whereas the king saw a watcher and a holy one coming down from heaven, and he said, Strip the tree, and destroy it; only leave the stump of its roots in the ground, and bind it with a band of iron and brass; and it shall lie in the grass that is without, and in the dew of heaven, and its portion shall be with wild beasts, until seven times have passed over it; [21] this is the interpretation of it, O king, and it is a decree of the Most High, which has come upon my lord the king. [22] And they shall drive thee forth from men, and thy dwelling shall be with wild beasts, and they shall feed thee with grass as an ox, and thou shall have thy lodging under the dew of heaven, and seven times shall pass over thee, until thou know that the Most High is Lord of the kingdom of men, and will give it to whom he shall please. [23] And whereas they said, Leave the stumps of the roots of the tree; thy kingdom abides sure to thee from the time that thou shalt know the power of the heavens. [24] Therefore, O king, let my counsel please thee, and atone for thy sins by alms, and thine iniquities by compassion on the poor: it may be God will be long-suffering to thy trespasses.

[25] All these things came upon king Nabuchodonosor. [26] After a twelvemonth, as he walked in his palace in Babylon, [27] the king answered and said, Is not this great Babylon, which I have built for a royal residence, by the might of my power, for the honour of my glory?

[28] While the word was yet in the king's mouth, there came a voice from heaven, saying, To thee, king Nabuchodonosor, they say, The kingdom has departed from thee. [29] And they shall drive thee from men, and thy dwelling shall be with the wild beasts of the field, and they shall feed thee with grass as an ox: and seven times shall pass over thee, until thou know that the Most High is Lord of the kingdom of men, and he will give it to whomsoever he shall please.

[30] In the same hour the word was fulfilled upon Nabuchodonosor: and he was driven forth from men, and he ate grass as an ox, and his body was bathed with the dew of heaven, until his hairs were grown like lions' hairs, and his nails as birds' claws.

[31] And at the end of the time I Nabuchodonosor lifted up mine eyes to heaven, and my reason returned to me, and I blessed the Most High, and praised him that lives for ever, and gave him glory; for his dominion is an everlasting dominion, and his kingdom lasts to all generations: [32] and all the inhabitants of the earth are reputed as nothing: and he does according to his will in the army of heaven, and among the inhabitants of the earth: and there is none who shall withstand his power, and say to him, What has thou done?

[33] At the same time my reason returned to me, and I came to the honour of my kingdom; and my natural form returned to me, and my princes, and my nobles, sought me, and I was established in my kingdom, and more abundant majesty was added to me.

[34] Now therefore I Nabuchodonosor praise and greatly exalt and glorify the King of heaven; for all his works are true, and his paths are judgment: and all that walk in pride he is able to abase.

Chapter 5

[1] Baltasar the king made a great supper for his thousand nobles, and there was wine before the thousand. [2] And Baltasar drinking gave orders as he tasted the wine that they should bring the gold and silver vessels, which Nabuchodonosor his father had brought forth from the temple in Jerusalem; that the king, and his nobles, and his mistresses, and his concubines, should drink out of them. [3] So the gold and silver vessels were brought which Nabuchodonosor had taken out of the temple of God in Jerusalem; and the king, and his nobles, and his mistresses, and his concubines, drank out of them. [4] They drank wine, and praised the gods of gold, and of silver, and of brass, and of iron, and of wood, and of stone.

[5] In the same hour came forth fingers of a man's hand, and wrote in front of the lamp on the plaster of the wall of the king's house: and the king saw the knuckles of the hand that wrote. [6] Then the king's countenance changed, and his thoughts troubled him, and the joints of his loins were loosed, and his knees smote one another. [7] And the king cried aloud to bring in the magicians, Chaldeans, and soothsayers; and he said to the wise men of Babylon, Whosoever shall read this writing, and make known to me the interpretation, shall be clothed with scarlet, and there shall be a golden chain upon his neck, and he shall be the third ruler in my kingdom. [8] Then came in all the king's wise men: but they could not read the writing, nor make known the interpretation to the king. [9] And king Baltasar was troubled, and his countenance changed upon him, and his nobles were troubled with him.

[10] Then the queen came into the banquet house, and said, O king, live for ever: let not thy thoughts trouble thee, and let not thy countenance be changed. [11] There is a man in thy kingdom, in whom is the Spirit of God; and in the days of thy father watchfulness and understanding were found in him; and king Nabuchodonosor thy father made him chief of the enchanters, magicians, Chaldeans, and soothsayers. [12] For there is an excellent spirit in him, and sense and understanding in him, interpreting dreams as he does, and answering hard questions, and solving difficulties: it is Daniel, and the king gave him the name of Baltasar: now then let him be called, and he shall tell thee the interpretation of the writing.

[13] Then Daniel was brought in before the king: and the king said to Daniel, Art thou Daniel, of the children of the captivity of Judea, which the king my father brought? [14] I have heard concerning thee, that the Spirit of God is in thee, and that watchfulness and understanding and excellent wisdom have been found in thee. [15] And now, the wise men, magicians, and soothsayers, have come in before me, to read the writing, and make known to me the interpretation: but they could not tell it me. [16] And I have heard concerning thee, that thou art able to make interpretations: now then if thou shalt be able to read the writing, and to make known to me the interpretation of it, thou shalt be clothed with purple, and there shall be a golden chain upon thy neck, and thou shalt be third ruler in my kingdom.

[17] And Daniel said, before the king, Let thy gifts be to thyself, and give the present of thine house to another; but I will read the writing, and will make known to thee the interpretation of it. [18] O king, the most high God gave to thy father Nabuchodonosor a kingdom, and majesty, and honour, and glory: [19] and by reason of the majesty which he gave to him, all nations, tribes, and languages trembled and feared before him: whom he would he slew; and whom he would he smote; and whom he would he exalted; and whom he would he abased. [20] But when his heart was lifted up, and his spirit was emboldened to act proudly, he was deposed from his royal throne, and his honour was taken from him. [21] And he was driven forth from men; and his heart was given him after the nature of wild beasts, and his dwelling was with the wild asses; and they fed him with grass as an ox, and his body was bathed with the dew of heaven; until he knew that the most high God is Lord of the kingdom of men, and will give it to whomsoever he shall please.

[22] And thou accordingly, his son, O Baltasar, has not humbled thine heart before God: knowest thou not all this? [23] And thou has been exalted against the Lord God of heaven; and they have brought before thee the vessels of his house, and thou, and thy nobles, and thy mistresses, and thy concubines, have drunk wine out of them; and thou has praised the gods of gold, and silver, and brass, and iron, and wood, and stone, which see not, and which hear not, and know not: and the God in whose hand are thy breath, and all thy ways has thou not glorified. [24] Therefore from his presence has been sent forth the knuckle of a hand; and he has ordered the writing.

[25] And this is the ordered writing, Mane, Thekel, Phares. [26] This is the interpretation of the sentence: Mane; God has measured thy kingdom, and finished it. [27] Thekel; it has been weighed in the balance, and found wanting. [28] Phares; thy kingdom is divided, and given to the Medes and Persians.

[29] Then Baltasar commanded, and they clothed Daniel with scarlet, and put the golden chain about his neck, and proclaimed concerning him that he was the third ruler in the kingdom. [30] In the same night was Baltasar the Chaldean king slain. [31] And Darius the Mede succeeded to the kingdom, being sixty-two years old.

Chapter 6

[1] And it pleased Darius, and he set over the kingdom a hundred and twenty satraps, to be in all his kingdom; [2] and over them three governors, of whom one was, Daniel; for the satraps to give account to them, that the king should not be troubled. [3] And Daniel was over them, for there was an excellent spirit in him; and the king set him over all his kingdom.

[4] Then the governors and satraps sought to find occasion against Daniel; but they found against him no occasion, nor trespass, nor error, because he was faithful. [5] And the governors said, We shall not find occasion against Daniel, except in the ordinances of his God.

[6] Then the governors and satraps stood by the king, and said to him, King Darius, live for ever. [7] All who preside over thy kingdom, captains and satraps, chiefs and local governors, have taken counsel together, to establish by a royal statue and to confirm a decree, that whosoever shall ask a petition of any god or man for thirty days, save of thee, O king, shall be cast into the den of lions. [8] Now then, O king, establish the decree, and publish a writ, that the decree of the Persians and Medes be not changed. [9] Then king Darius commanded the decree to be written.

[10] And when Daniel knew that the decree was ordered, he went into his house; and his windows were opened in his chambers toward Jerusalem, and three times in the day he knelt upon his knees, and prayed and gave thanks before his God, as he used to do before.

[11] Then these men watched, and found Daniel praying and supplicating to his God. [12] And they came and said to the king, O king, has thou not made a decree, that whatsoever man shall ask a petition of any god or man for thirty days, but of thee, O king, shall be cast into the den of lions? And the king said, The word is true, and the decree of the Medes and Persians shall not pass. [13] Then they answered and said before the king, Daniel of the children of the captivity of Judea, has not submitted to thy decree; and three times in the day he makes his requests of his God. [14] Then the king, when he heard the saying, was much grieved for Daniel and he greatly exerted himself for Daniel to deliver him: and he exerted himself till evening to deliver him.

[15] Then those men said to the king, Know, O king, that the law of the Medes and Persians is that we must not change any decree of statue which the king shall make. [16] Then the king commanded, and they brought Daniel, and cast him into the den of lions. But the king said to Daniel, Thy God whom thou servest continually, he will deliver thee. [17] And they brought a stone, and put it on the mouth of the den; and the king sealed it with his ring, and with the ring of his nobles; that the case might not be altered with regard to Daniel. [18] And the king departed to his house, and lay down fasting, and they brought him no food; and his sleep departed from him. But God shut the mouths of the lions, and they not molest Daniel.

[19] Then the king arose very early in the morning, and came in hast to the den of lions. [20] And when he drew near to the den, he cried with a loud voice, Daniel, servant of the living God, has thy God, whom thou servest continually, been able to deliver thee from the lion's mouth?

[21] And Daniel said to the king, O king, live for ever. [22] My God has sent his angel, and stopped the lions' mouths, and they have not hurt me: for uprightness was found in me before him; and moreover before thee, O king, I have committed no trespass. [23] Then the king was very glad for him, and he commanded to bring Daniel out of the den. So Daniel was brought out of the den, and there was found no hurt upon him, because he believed in his God. [24] And the king commanded, and they brought the men that had accused Daniel, and they were cast into the den of lions, they, and their children, and their wives: and they reached not the bottom of the den before the lions had the mastery of them, and utterly broke to pieces all their bones.

[25] Then king Darius wrote to all nations, tribes, and languages, who dwell in all the earth, saying, Peace be multiplied to you. [26] This decree has been set forth by me in every dominion of my kingdom, that men tremble and fear before the God of Daniel: for he is the living and eternal God, and his kingdom shall not be destroyed, and his dominion is for ever. [27] He helps and delivers, and works signs and wonders in the heaven and on the earth, who has rescued Daniel from the power of the lions. [28] And Daniel prospered in the reign of Darius, and in the reign of Cyrus the Persian.

Chapter 7

[1] In the first year of Baltasar, king of the Chaldeans Daniel had a dream, and visions of his head upon his bed: and he wrote his dream.

[2] I Daniel beheld, and, lo, the four winds of heaven blew violently upon the great sea. [3] And there came up four great beasts out of the sea, differing from one another. [4] The first was as a lioness, and her wings as an eagle's; I beheld until her wings were plucked, and she was lifted off from the earth, and she stood on human feet, and a man's heart was given to her. [5] And, behold, a second beast like a bear, and it supported itself on one side, and there were three ribs in its mouth, between its teeth: and thus they said to it, Arise, devour much flesh. [6] After this one I looked, and behold another wild beast as a leopard, and it had four wings of a bird upon it: and the wild beast had four heads, and power was given to it. [7] After this one I looked, and behold a fourth beast, dreadful and terrible, and exceedingly strong, and its teeth were of iron; devouring and crushing to atoms, and it trampled the remainder with its feet: and it was altogether different from the beasts that were before it; and it had ten hours. [8] I noticed his horns, and behold, another little horn came up in the midst of them, and before it three of the former horns were rooted out: and, behold, there were eyes as the eyes of a man in this horn, and a mouth speaking great things.

[9] I beheld until the thrones were set, and the Ancient of days sat; and his raiment was white as snow, and the hair of his head, as pure wool: his throne was a flame of fire, and his wheels burning fire. [10] A stream of fire rushed forth before him: thousand thousands ministered to him, and ten thousands of myriads, attended upon him: the judgment sat, and the books were opened. [11] I beheld then because of the voice of the great words which that horn spoke, until the wild beast was slain and destroyed, and his body given to be burnt with fire. [12] And the dominion of the rest of the wild beasts was taken away; but a prolonging of life was given them for certain times.

[13] I beheld in the night vision, and, lo, one coming with the clouds of heaven as the Son of man, and he came on to the Ancient of days, and was brought near to him. [14] And to him was given the dominion, and the honour, and the kingdom; and all nations, tribes, and languages, shall serve him: his dominion is an everlasting dominion, which shall not pass away, and his kingdom shall not be destroyed.

[15] As for me Daniel, my spirit in my body trembled, and the visions of my head troubled me. [16] And I drew near to one of them that stood by, and I sought to learn of him the truth of all these things: and he told me the truth, and made known to me the interpretation of the things. [17] These four beasts are four kingdoms that shall rise up on the earth: [18] which shall be taken away; and the saints of the Most High shall take the kingdom, and possess it for ever and ever.

[19] Then I enquired carefully concerning the fourth beast; for it differed from every other beast, exceeding dreadful: its teeth were of iron, and its claws of brass, devouring, and utterly breaking to pieces, and it trampled the remainder with its feet: [20] and concerning it ten horns that were in its head, and the other that came up, and rooted up some of the former, which had eyes, and a mouth speaking great things, and his look was bolder than the rest. [21] I beheld, and that horn made war with the saints, and prevailed against them; [22] until the Ancient of days came, and he gave judgment to the saints of the Most High; and the time came on, and the saints possessed the kingdom. [23] And he said, The fourth beast shall be the fourth kingdom on the earth, which shall excel all other kingdoms, and shall devour the whole earth, and trample and destroy it. [24] And his ten horns are ten kings that shall arise: and after them shall arise another, who shall exceed all the former ones in wickedness and he shall subdue three kings. [25] And he shall speak words against the Most High, and shall wear out the saints of the Most High, and shall think to change times and law: and power shall be given into his hand for a time and times and half a time. [26] And the judgment has sat, and they shall remove his dominion to abolish it, and to destroy it utterly. [27] And the kingdom and the power and the greatness of the kings that are under the whole heaven were given to the saints of the Most High; and his kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and all powers shall serve and obey him.

[28] Hitherto is the end of the matter. As for me Daniel, my thoughts greatly troubled me, and my countenance was changed: but I kept the matter in my heart.

Chapter 8

[1] In the third year of the reign of king Baltasar a vision appeared to me, even to me Daniel, after that which appeared to me at the first. [2] And I was in Susa the palace, which is in the land of Ælam, and I was on the bank of Ubal. [3] And I lifted up mine eyes, and saw, and, behold, a ram standing in front of the Ubal; and he had high horns; and one was higher than the other, and the high one came up last. [4] And I saw the ram butting westward, and northward, and southward; and no beast could stand before him, and there was none that could deliver out of his hand; and he did according to his will, and became great. [5] And I was considering, and, behold, a he-goat came from the south-west on the face of the whole earth, and touched not the earth: and the goat had a horn between his eyes. [6] And he came to the ram that had the horns, which I had seen standing in front of the Ubal, and he ran at him with the violence of his strength. [7] And I saw him coming up close to the ram, and he was furiously enraged against him, and he smote the ram, and broke both his horns: and there was no strength in the ram to stand before him, but he cast him on the ground, and trampled on him; and there was none that could deliver the ram out of his hand.

[8] And the he-goat grew exceedingly great: and when he was strong, his great horn was broken; and four other horns rose up in its place toward the four winds of heaven. [9] And out of one of them came forth one strong horn, and it grew very great toward the south, and toward the host: [10] and it magnified itself to the host of heaven; and there fell to the earth some of the host of heaven and of the stars, and they trampled on them. [11] And this shall be until the chief captain shall have delivered the captivity: and by reason of him the sacrifice was disturbed, and he prospered; and the holy place shall be made desolate. [12] And a sin-offering was given for the sacrifice, and righteousness was cast down to the ground; and it practised, and prospered. [13] And I heard one saint speaking, and a saint said to a certain one speaking, How long shall the vision continue, even the removal of the sacrifice, and the bringing in of the sin of desolation; and how long shall the sanctuary and host be trampled? [14] And he said to him, Evening and morning there shall be two thousand and four hundred days; and then the sanctuary shall be cleansed.

[15] And it came to pass, as I, even I Daniel, saw the vision, and sought to understand it, that, behold, there stood before me as the appearance of a man. [16] And I heard the voice of a man between the banks of the Ubal; and he called, and said, Gabriel, cause that man to understand the vision. [17] And he came and stood near where I stood: and when he came, I was struck with awe, and fell upon my face: but he said to me, Understand, son of man: for yet the vision is for an appointed time. [18] And while he spoke with me, I fell upon my face to the earth: and he touched me, and set me on my feet. [19] And he said, Behold, I make thee know the things that shall come to pass at the end of the wrath: for the vision is yet for an appointed time.

[20] The ram which thou sawest that had the horns is the king of the Medes and Persians. [21] The he-goat is the King of the Greeks: and the great horn which was between his eyes, he is the first king. [22] And as for the one that was broken, in whose place there stood up four horns, four kings shall arise out of his nation, but not in their own strength. [23] And at the latter time of their kingdom, when their sins are coming to the full, there shall arise a king bold in countenance, and understanding riddles. [24] And his power shall be great, and he shall destroy wonderfully, and prosper, and practise, and shall destroy mighty men, and the holy people. [25] And the yoke of his chain shall prosper: there is craft in his hand; and he shall magnify himself in his heart, and by craft shall destroy many, and he shall stand up for the destruction of many, and shall crush them as eggs in his hand. [26] And the vision of the evening and morning that was mentioned is true: and do thou seal the vision; for it is for many days.

[27] And I Daniel fell asleep, and was sick: then I arose, and did the king's business; and I wondered at the vision, and there was none that understood it.

[1] In the first year of Darius the son of Assuerus, of the seed of the Medes, who reigned over the kingdom of the Chaldeans, [2] I Daniel understood by books the number of the years which was the word of the Lord to the prophet Jeremias, even seventy years for the accomplishment of the desolation of Jerusalem.

[3] And I set my face toward the Lord God, to seek him diligently by prayer and supplications, with fastings and sackcloth. [4] And I prayed to the Lord my God, and confessed, and said, O Lord, the great and wonderful God, keeping thy covenant and thy mercy to them that love thee, and to them that keep thy commandments; we have sinned, [5] we have done iniquity, we have transgressed, and we have departed and turned aside from thy commandments and from thy judgments: [6] and we have not hearkened to thy servants the prophets, who spoke in thy name to our kings, and our princes, and our fathers, and to all the people of the land. [7] To thee, O Lord, belongs righteousness, an to us confusion of face, as at this day; to the men of Juda, and to the dwellers in Jerusalem, and to all Israel, to them that are near, and to them that are far off in all the earth, wherever thou has scattered them, for the sin which they committed. [8] In thee, O Lord, is our righteousness, and to us belongs confusion of faced, and to our kings, and to our princes, and to our fathers, forasmuch as we have sinned. [9] To thee, the Lord our God, belong compassions and forgivenesses, whereas we have departed from thee; [10] neither have we hearkened to the voice of the Lord our God, to walk in his laws, which he set before us by the hands of his servants the prophets.

[11] Moreover all Israel have transgressed thy law, and have refused to hearken to thy voice; so the curse has come upon us, and the oath that is written in the law of Moses the servant of God, because we have sinned against him. [12] And he has confirmed his words, which he spoke against us, and against our judges who judged us, by bringing upon us great evils, such as have not happened under the whole heaven, according to what has happened in Jerusalem. [13] As it is written in the law of Moses, all these evils have come upon us: yet we have not besought the Lord our God, that we might turn away from our iniquities, and have understanding in all thy truth. [14] The Lord also has watched, and brought the evils upon us: for the Lord our God is righteous in all his work which he has executed, but we have not hearkened to his voice. [15] And now, O Lord our God, who broughtest thy people out of the land of Egypt with a mighty hand, and madest to thyself a name, as at this day; we have sinned, we have transgressed.

[16] O Lord, thy mercy is over all: let, I pray thee, thy wrath turn away, and thine anger from thy city Jerusalem, even thy holy mountain: for we have sinned, and because of our iniquities, and those of our fathers, Jerusalem and thy people are become a reproach among all that are round about us. [17] And now, O lord our God, hearken to the prayer of thy servant, and his supplications, and cause thy face to shine on thy desolate sanctuary, for thine own sake, O Lord. [18] Incline thine ear, O my God, and hear; open thine eyes and behold our desolation, and that of thy city on which thy name is called: for we do not bring our pitiful case before thee on the ground of our righteousness, but on the ground of thy manifold compassions, O Lord. [19] Hearken, O Lord; be propitious, O Lord; attend, O Lord; delay not, O my God, for thine own sake: for thy name is called upon thy city and upon thy people.

[20] And while I was yet speaking, and praying, and confessing my sins and the sins of my people Israel, and bringing my pitiful case before the Lord my God concerning the holy mountain; [21] yea, while I was yet speaking in prayer, behold the man Gabriel, whom I had seen in the vision at the beginning, came flying, and he touched me about the hour of the evening sacrifice. [22] And he instructed me, and spoke with me, and said, O Daniel, I am now come forth to impart to thee understanding. [23] At the beginning of thy supplication the word came forth, and I am come to tell thee; for thou art a man much beloved: therefore consider the matter, understand the vision.

[24] Seventy weeks have been determined upon thy people, and upon the holy city, for sin to be ended, and to seal up transgressions, and to blot out the iniquities, and to make atonement for iniquities, and to bring in everlasting righteousness, and to seal the vision and the prophet, and to anoint the Most Holy.

[25] And thou shalt know and understand, that from the going forth of the command for the answer and for the building of Jerusalem until Christ the prince there shall be seven weeks, and sixty-two weeks; and then the time shall return, and the street shall be built, and the wall, and the times shall be exhausted.

[26] And after the sixty-two weeks, the anointed one shall be destroyed, and there is no judgment in him: and he shall destroy the city and the sanctuary with the prince that is coming: they shall be cut off with a flood, and to the end of the war which is rapidly completed he shall appoint the city to desolations.

[27] And one week shall establish the covenant with many: and in the midst of the week my sacrifice and drink-offering shall be taken away: and on the temple shall be the abomination of desolations; and at the end of time an end shall be put to the desolation.

Chapter 10

[1] In the third year of Cyrus king of the Persians a thing was revealed to Daniel, whose name was called Baltasar; and the thing was true, and great power and understanding in the vision was given to him. [2] In those days I Daniel was mourning three full weeks. [3] I ate no pleasant bread, and no flesh or wine entered into my mouth, neither did I anoint myself with oil, until three whole weeks were accomplished.

[4] On the twenty-fourth day of the first month, I was near the great river, which is Tigris Eddekel. [5] And I lifted up mine eyes, and looked, and behold a man clothed in linen, and his loins were girt with gold of Ophaz: [6] and his body was as Tharsis, and his face was as the appearance of lightning, and his eyes as lamps of fire, and his arms and his legs as the appearance of shining brass, and the voice of his words as the voice of a multitude. [7] And I Daniel only saw the vision: and the men that were with me saw not the vision; but a great amazement fell upon them, and they fled in fear. [8] So I was left alone, and saw this great vision, and there was no strength left in me, and my glory was turned into corruption, and I retained no strength. [9] Yet I heard the voice of his words: and when I heard him I was pricked in the heart, and I fell with my face to the earth.

[10] And, behold, a hand touched me, and it raised me on my knees. [11] And he said to me, O Daniel, man greatly beloved, understand the words which I speak to thee, and stand upright: for I am now sent to thee. And when he had spoken to me this word, I stood trembling. [12] And he said to me, Fear not, Daniel: for from the first day that thou didst set thine heart to understand, and to afflict thyself before the Lord thy God, thy words were heard, and I am come because of thy words. [13] But the prince of the kingdom of the Persians withstood me twenty-one days: and behold, Michael, one of the princes, came to help me; and I left him there with the chief of the kingdom of the Persians: [14] and I have come to inform thee of all that shall befall thy people in the last days: for the vision is yet for many days. [15] And when he had spoken with me according to these words, I turned my face to the ground, and was pricked in the heart.

[16] And, behold, as it were the likeness of a son of man touched my lips; and I opened my mouth, and spoke, and said to him that stood before me, O my lord, at the sight of thee my bowels were turned within me, and I had no strength. [17] And how shall thy servant be able, O my lord, to speak with this my lord? and as for me, from henceforth strength will not remain in me, and there is no breath left in me. [18] And there touched me again as it were the appearance of a man, and he strengthened me, [19] and said to me, Fear not, man greatly beloved: peace be to thee, quit thyself like a man, and be strong. And when he had spoken with me, I received strength, and said, Let my lord speak; for thou hast strengthened me.

[20] And he said, Knowest thou, wherefore I am come to thee? and now I will return to fight with the prince of the Persians: and I was going in, and the prince of the Greeks came. [21] But I will tell thee that which is ordained in the scripture of truth: and there is no one that holds with me in these matters but Michael your prince.

Chapter 11

[1] And I in the first year of Cyrus stood to strengthen and confirm him.

[2] And now I will tell thee the truth. Behold, there shall yet rise up three kings in Persia: and the fourth shall be very far richer than all: and after that he is master of his wealth, he shall rise up against all the kingdoms of the Greeks.

[3] An there shall rise up a mighty king, and he shall be lord of a great empire, and shall do according to his will.

[4] And when his kingdom shall stand up, it shall be broken, and shall be divided to the four winds of heaven; but not to his posterity, nor according to his dominion which he ruled over: for his kingdom shall be plucked up, and given to others beside these.

[5] And the king of the south shall be strong; and one of their princes shall prevail against him, and shall obtain a great dominion. [6] And after his years they shall associate; and the daughter of the king of the south shall come to the king of the north, to make agreements with him: but she shall not retain power of arm; neither shall his seed stand: and she shall be delivered up, and they that brought her, and the maiden, and he that strengthened her in these times.

[7] But out of the flower of her root there shall arise one on his place, and shall come against the host, and shall enter into the strongholds of the king of the north, and shall fight against them, and prevail. [8] Yea, he shall carry with a body of captives into Egypt their gods with their molten images, and all their precious vessels of silver and gold; and he shall last longer than the king of the north. [9] And he shall enter into the kingdom of the king of the south, and shall return to his own land.

[10] And his sons shall gather a multitude among many: and one shall certainly come, and overflow, and pass through, and he shall rest, and collect his strength. [11] And the king of the south shall be greatly enraged, and shall come forth, and shall war with the king of the north: and he shall raise a great multitude; but the multitude shall be delivered into his hand. [12] And he shall take the multitude, and his heart shall be exalted; and he shall cast down many thousands; but he shall not prevail. [13] For the king of the north shall return, and bring a multitude greater than the former, and at the end of the times of years an invading army shall come with a great force, and with much substance.

[14] And in those times many shall rise up against the king of the south; and the children of the spoilers of thy people shall exalt themselves to establish the vision; and they shall fail. [15] And the king of the north shall come in, and cast up a mound, and take strong cities: and the arms of the king of the south shall withstand, and his chosen ones shall rise up, but there shall be no strength to stand. [16] And he that comes in against him shall do according to his will, and there is no one to stand before him: and he shall stand in the land of beauty, and it shall be consumed by his hand.

[17] And he shall set his face to come in with the force of his whole kingdom, and shall cause everything to prosper with him: and he shall give him the daughter of women to corrupt her: but she shall not continue, neither be on his side. [18] And he shall turn his face to the islands, and shall take many, and cause princes to cease from their reproach: nevertheless his own reproach shall return to him. [19] Then he shall turn back his face to the strength of his own land: but he shall become weak, and fall, and not be found.

[20] And there shall arise out of his root one that shall cause a plant of the kingdom to pass over his place, earning kingly glory: and yet in those days shall he be broken, yet not openly, nor in war.

[21] One shall stand on his place, who has been set a nought, and they have not put upon him the honour of the kingdom: but he shall come in prosperously, and obtain the kingdom by deceitful ways. [22] And the arms of him that overflows shall be washed away as with a flood from before him, and shall be broken, and so shall be the head of the covenant. [23] And because of the leagues made with him he shall work deceit: and he shall come up, and overpower them with a small nation. [24] And he shall enter with prosperity, and that into fertile districts; and he shall do what his fathers and his fathers' fathers have not done; he shall scatter among them plunder, and spoils, and wealth; and he shall devise plans against Egypt, even for a time. [25] And his strength and his heart shall be stirred up against the king of the south with a great force; and the king of the south shall engage in war with a great and very strong force; but his forces shall not stand, for they shall devise plans against him: [26] and they shall eat his provisions, and shall crush him, and he shall carry away armies as with a flood, and many shall fall down slain.

[27] And as for both the kings, their hearts are set upon mischief, and they shall speak lies at one table; but it shall not prosper; for yet the end is for a fixed time. [28] And he shall return to his land with much substance; and his heart shall be against the holy covenant; and he shall perform great deeds, and return to his own land.

[29] At the set time he shall return, and shall come into the south, but the last expedition shall not be as the first. [30] For the Citians issuing forth shall come against him, and he shall be brought low, and shall return, and shall be incensed against the holy covenant: and he shall do thus, and shall return, and have intelligence with them that have forsaken the holy covenant.

[31] And seeds shall spring up out of him, and they shall profane the sanctuary of strength, and they shall remove the perpetual sacrifice, and make the abomination desolate. [32] And the transgressors shall bring about a covenant by deceitful ways: but a people knowing their God shall prevail, and do valiantly. [33] And the intelligent of the people shall understand much: yet they shall fall by the sword, and by flame, and by captivity, and by spoil of many days. [34] And when they are weak they shall be helped with a little help: but many shall attach themselves to them with treachery.

[35] And some of them that understand shall fall, to try them as with fire, and to test them, and that they may be manifested at the time of the end, for the matter is yet for a set time.

[36] And he shall do according to his will, and the king shall exalt and magnify himself against every god, and shall speak great swelling words, and shall prosper until the indignation shall be accomplished: for it is coming to an end. [37] And he shall not regard any gods of his fathers, nor the desire of women, neither shall he regard any deity: for he shall magnify himself above all. [38] And he shall honour the god of forces on his place: and a god whom his fathers knew not he shall honour with gold, and silver, and precious stones, and desirable things. [39] And he shall do thus in the strong places of refuge with a strange god, and shall increase his glory: and he shall subject many to them, and shall distribute the land in gifts.

[40] And at the end of the time he shall conflict with the king of the south: and the king of the north shall come against him with chariots, and with horsemen, and with many ships; and they shall enter into the land: and he shall break in pieces, and pass on: [41] and he shall enter into the land of beauty, and many shall fail: but these shall escape out of his hand, Edom, and Moab, and the chief of the children of Ammon. [42] And he shall stretch forth his hand over the land; and the land of Egypt shall not escape. [43] And he shall have the mastery over the secret treasures of gold and silver, and over all the desirable possessions of Egypt, and of the Libyans and Ethiopians in their strongholds. [44] But rumors and anxieties out of the east and from the north shall trouble him; and he shall come with great wrath to destroy many. [45] And he shall pitch the tabernacle of his palace between the seas in the holy mountain of beauty: but he shall come to his portion, and there is none to deliver him.

Chapter 12

[1] And at that time Michael the great prince shall stand up, that stands over the children of thy people: and there shall be a time of tribulation, such tribulation as has not been from the time that there was a nation on the earth until that time: at that time thy people shall be delivered, even every one that is written in the book. [2] And many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, some to everlasting life, and some to reproach and everlasting shame. [3] And the wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament, and some of the many righteous as the stars for ever and ever.

[4] And thou, Daniel, close the words, and seal the book to the time of the end; until many are taught, and knowledge is increased.

[5] And I Daniel saw, and, behold, two others stood, on one side of the bank of the river, and the other on the other side of the bank of the river. [6] And one said to the man clothed in linen, who was over the water of the river, When will be the end of the wonders which thou has mentioned? [7] And I heard the man clothed in linen, who was over the water of the river, and he lifted up his right hand and his left hand to heaven, and sware by him that lives for ever, that it should be for a time of times and half a time: when the dispersion is ended they shall know all these things.

[8] And I heard, but I understood not: and I said, O Lord, what will be the end of these things? [9] And he said, Go, Daniel: for the words are closed and sealed up to the time of the end. [10] Many must be tested, and thoroughly whitened, and tried with fire, and sanctified; but the transgressors shall transgress: and none of the transgressors shall understand; but the wise shall understand. [11] And from the time of the removal of the perpetual sacrifice, when the abomination of desolation shall be set up, there shall be a thousand two hundred and ninety days. [12] Blessed is he that waits, and comes to the thousand three hundred and thirty-five days. [13] But go thou, and rest; for there are yet days and seasons to the fulfillment of the end; and thou shalt stand in thy lot at the end of the days.

History of Susanna

[1] There dwelt a man in Babylon, called Joacim: [2] And he took a wife, whose name was Susanna, the daughter of Chelcias, a very fair woman, and one that feared the Lord. [3] Her parents also were righteous, and taught their daughter according to the law of Moses. [4] Now Joacim was a great rich man, and had a fair garden joining unto his house: and to him resorted the Jews; because he was more honourable than all others.

[5] The same year were appointed two of the ancients of the people to be judges, such as the Lord spake of, that wickedness came from Babylon from ancient judges, who seemed to govern the people. [6] These kept much at Joacim's house: and all that had any suits in law came unto them.

[7] Now when the people departed away at noon, Susanna went into her husband's garden to walk. [8] And the two elders saw her going in every day, and walking; so that their lust was inflamed toward her. [9] And they perverted their own mind, and turned away their eyes, that they might not look unto heaven, nor remember just judgments. [10] And albeit they both were wounded with her love, yet durst not one shew another his grief. [11] For they were ashamed to declare their lust, that they desired to have to do with her. [12] Yet they watched diligently from day to day to see her.

[13] And the one said to the other, Let us now go home: for it is dinner time. [14] So when they were gone out, they parted the one from the other, and turning back again they came to the same place; and after that they had asked one another the cause, they acknowledged their lust: then appointed they a time both together, when they might find her alone.

[15] And it fell out, as they watched a fit time, she went in as before with two maids only, and she was desirous to wash herself in the garden: for it was hot. [16] And there was no body there save the two elders, that had hid themselves, and watched her. [17] Then she said to her maids, Bring me oil and washing balls, and shut the garden doors, that I may wash me.

[18] And they did as she bade them, and shut the garden doors, and went out themselves at privy doors to fetch the things that she had commanded them: but they saw not the elders, because they were hid.

[19] Now when the maids were gone forth, the two elders rose up, and ran unto her, saying, [20] Behold, the garden doors are shut, that no man can see us, and we are in love with thee; therefore consent unto us, and lie with us. [21] If thou wilt not, we will bear witness against thee, that a young man was with thee: and therefore thou didst send away thy maids from thee.

[22] Then Susanna sighed, and said, I am straitened on every side: for if I do this thing, it is death unto me: and if I do it not I cannot escape your hands. [23] It is better for me to fall into your hands, and not do it, than to sin in the sight of the Lord. [24] With that Susanna cried with a loud voice: and the two elders cried out against her.

[25] Then ran the one, and opened the garden door. [26] So when the servants of the house heard the cry in the garden, they rushed in at the privy door, to see what was done unto her. [27] But when the elders had declared their matter, the servants were greatly ashamed: for there was never such a report made of Susanna.

[28] And it came to pass the next day, when the people were assembled to her husband Joacim, the two elders came also full of mischievous imagination against Susanna to put her to death; [29] And said before the people, Send for Susanna, the daughter of Chelcias, Joacim's wife. And so they sent. [30] So she came with her father and mother, her children, and all her kindred.

[31] Now Susanna was a very delicate woman, and beauteous to behold. [32] And these wicked men commanded to uncover her face, (for she was covered) that they might be filled with her beauty. [33] Therefore her friends and all that saw her wept.

[34] Then the two elders stood up in the midst of the people, and laid their hands upon her head. [35] And she weeping looked up toward heaven: for her heart trusted in the Lord.

[36] And the elders said, As we walked in the garden alone, this woman came in with two maids, and shut the garden doors, and sent the maids away. [37] Then a young man, who there was hid, came unto her, and lay with her. [38] Then we that stood in a corner of the garden, seeing this wickedness, ran unto them.

[39] And when we saw them together, the man we could not hold: for he was stronger than we, and opened the door, and leaped out. [40] But having taken this woman, we asked who the young man was, but she would not tell us: these things do we testify. [41] Then the assembly believed them as those that were the elders and judges of the people: so they condemned her to death.

[42] Then Susanna cried out with a loud voice, and said, O everlasting God, that knowest the secrets, and knowest all things before they be: [43] Thou knowest that they have borne false witness against me, and, behold, I must die; whereas I never did such things as these men have maliciously invented against me. [44] And the Lord heard her voice.

[45] Therefore when she was led to be put to death, the Lord raised up the holy spirit of a young youth whose name was Daniel: [46] Who cried with a loud voice, I am clear from the blood of this woman. [47] Then all the people turned them toward him, and said, What mean these words that thou hast spoken? [48] So he standing in the midst of them said, Are ye such fools, ye sons of Israel, that without examination or knowledge of the truth ye have condemned a daughter of Israel? [49] Return again to the place of judgment: for they have borne false witness against her.

[50] Wherefore all the people turned again in haste, and the elders said unto him, Come, sit down among us, and shew it us, seeing God hath given thee the honour of an elder. [51] Then said Daniel unto them, Put these two aside one far from another, and I will examine them.

[52] So when they were put asunder one from another, he called one of them, and said unto him, O thou that art waxen old in wickedness, now thy sins which thou hast committed aforetime are come to light. [53] For thou hast pronounced false judgment and hast condemned the innocent and hast let the guilty go free; albeit the Lord saith, The innocent and righteous shalt thou not slay. [54] Now then, if thou hast seen her, tell me, Under what tree sawest thou them companying together? Who answered, Under a mastick tree.

[55] And Daniel said, Very well; thou hast lied against thine own head; for even now the angel of God hath received the sentence of God to cut thee in two. [56] So he put him aside, and commanded to bring the other, and said unto him, O thou seed of Chanaan, and not of Juda, beauty hath deceived thee, and lust hath perverted thine heart. [57] Thus have ye dealt with the daughters of Israel, and they for fear companied with you: but the daughter of Juda would not abide your wickedness. [58] Now therefore tell me, Under what tree didst thou take them companying together? Who answered, Under an holm tree.

[59] Then said Daniel unto him, Well; thou hast also lied against thine own head: for the angel of God waiteth with the sword to cut thee in two, that he may destroy you. [60] With that all the assembly cried out with a loud voice, and praised God, who saveth them that trust in him. [61] And they arose against the two elders, for Daniel had convicted them of false witness by their own mouth: [62] And according to the law of Moses they did unto them in such sort as they maliciously intended to do to their neighbour: and they put them to death. Thus the innocent blood was saved the same day.

[63] Therefore Chelcias and his wife praised God for their daughter Susanna, with Joacim her husband, and all the kindred, because there was no dishonesty found in her. [64] From that day forth was Daniel had in great reputation in the sight of the people.

Chapter 14

Bel and the Dragon

[1] And king Astyages was gathered to his fathers, and Cyrus of Persia received his kingdom. [2] And Daniel conversed with the king, and was honoured above all his friends.

[3] Now the Babylonians had an idol, called Bel, and there were spent upon him every day twelve great measures of fine flour, and forty sheep, and six vessels of wine. [4] And the king worshipped it and went daily to adore it: but Daniel worshipped his own God. And the king said unto him, Why dost not thou worship Bel? [5] Who answered and said, Because I may not worship idols made with hands, but the living God, who hath created the heaven and the earth, and hath sovereignty over all flesh.

[6] Then said the king unto him, Thinkest thou not that Bel is a living God? seest thou not how much he eateth and drinketh every day? [7] Then Daniel smiled, and said, O king, be not deceived: for this is but clay within, and brass without, and did never eat or drink any thing.

[8] So the king was wroth, and called for his priests, and said unto them, If ye tell me not who this is that devoureth these expenses, ye shall die. [9] But if ye can certify me that Bel devoureth them, then Daniel shall die: for he hath spoken blasphemy against Bel. And Daniel said unto the king, Let it be according to thy word.

[10] Now the priests of Bel were threescore and ten, beside their wives and children. And the king went with Daniel into the temple of Bel. [11] So Bel's priests said, Lo, we go out: but thou, O king, set on the meat, and make ready the wine, and shut the door fast and seal it with thine own signet; [12] And to morrow when thou comest in, if thou findest not that Bel hath eaten up all, we will suffer death: or else Daniel, that speaketh falsely against us. [13] And they little regarded it: for under the table they had made a privy entrance, whereby they entered in continually, and consumed those things.

[14] So when they were gone forth, the king set meats before Bel. Now Daniel had commanded his servants to bring ashes, and those they strewed throughout all the temple in the presence of the king alone: then went they out, and shut the door, and sealed it with the king's signet, and so departed. [15] Now in the night came the priests with their wives and children, as they were wont to do, and did eat and drink up all.

[16] In the morning betime the king arose, and Daniel with him. [17] And the king said, Daniel, are the seals whole? And he said, Yea, O king, they be whole. [18] And as soon as he had opened the door, the king looked upon the table, and cried with a loud voice, Great art thou, O Bel, and with thee is no deceit at all.

[19] Then laughed Daniel, and held the king that he should not go in, and said, Behold now the pavement, and mark well whose footsteps are these. [20]

And the king said, I see the footsteps of men, women, and children. And then the king was angry, [21] And took the priests with their wives and children, who shewed him the privy doors, where they came in, and consumed such things as were upon the table. [22] Therefore the king slew them, and delivered Bel into Daniel's power, who destroyed him and his temple.

[23] And in that same place there was a great dragon, which they of Babylon worshipped. [24] And the king said unto Daniel, Wilt thou also say that this is of brass? lo, he liveth, he eateth and drinketh; thou canst not say that he is no living god: therefore worship him.

[25] Then said Daniel unto the king, I will worship the Lord my God: for he is the living God. [26] But give me leave, O king, and I shall slay this dragon without sword or staff. The king said, I give thee leave. [27] Then Daniel took pitch, and fat, and hair, and did seethe them together, and made lumps thereof: this he put in the dragon's mouth, and so the dragon burst in sunder: and Daniel said, Lo, these are the gods ye worship.

[28] When they of Babylon heard that, they took great indignation, and conspired against the king, saying, The king is become a Jew, and he hath destroyed Bel, he hath slain the dragon, and put the priests to death. [29] So they came to the king, and said, Deliver us Daniel, or else we will destroy thee and thine house.

[30] Now when the king saw that they pressed him sore, being constrained, he delivered Daniel unto them: [31] Who cast him into the lions' den: where he was six days. [32] And in the den there were seven lions, and they had given them every day two carcases, and two sheep: which then were not given to them, to the intent they might devour Daniel.

[33] Now there was in Jewry a prophet, called Habbacuc, who had made pottage, and had broken bread in a bowl, and was going into the field, for to bring it to the reapers. [34] But the angel of the Lord said unto Habbacuc, Go, carry the dinner that thou hast into Babylon unto Daniel, who is in the lions' den.

[35] And Habbacuc said, Lord, I never saw Babylon; neither do I know where the den is. [36] Then the angel of the Lord took him by the crown, and bare him by the hair of his head, and through the vehemency of his spirit set him in Babylon over the den. [37] And Habbacuc cried, saying, O Daniel, Daniel, take the dinner which God hath sent thee.

[38] And Daniel said, Thou hast remembered me, O God: neither hast thou forsaken them that seek thee and love thee. [39] So Daniel arose, and did eat: and the angel of the Lord set Habbacuc in his own place again immediately.

[40] Upon the seventh day the king went to bewail Daniel: and when he came to the den, he looked in, and behold, Daniel was sitting. [41] Then cried the king with a loud voice, saying, Great art Lord God of Daniel, and there is none other beside thee. [42] And he drew him out, and cast those that were the cause of his destruction into the den: and they were devoured in a moment before his face.

Susanna

History of Susanna

[1] There dwelt a man in Babylon, called Joacim:

[2] And he took a wife, whose name was Susanna, the daughter of Chelcias, a very fair woman, and one that feared the Lord.

[3] Her parents also were righteous, and taught their daughter according to the law of Moses.

[4] Now Joacim was a great rich man, and had a fair garden joining unto his house: and to him resorted the Jews; because he was more honourable than all others.

[5] The same year were appointed two of the ancients of the people to be judges, such as the Lord spake of, that wickedness came from Babylon from ancient judges, who seemed to govern the people.

[6] These kept much at Joacim's house: and all that had any suits in law came unto them.

[7] Now when the people departed away at noon, Susanna went into her husband's garden to walk.

[8] And the two elders saw her going in every day, and walking; so that their lust was inflamed toward her.

[9] And they perverted their own mind, and turned away their eyes, that they might not look unto heaven, nor remember just judgments.

[10] And albeit they both were wounded with her love, yet durst not one shew another his grief.

[11] For they were ashamed to declare their lust, that they desired to have to do with her.

[12] Yet they watched diligently from day to day to see her.

[13] And the one said to the other, Let us now go home: for it is dinner time.

[14] So when they were gone out, they parted the one from the other, and turning back again they came to the same place; and after that they had asked one another the cause, they acknowledged their lust: then appointed they a time both together, when they might find her alone.

[15] And it fell out, as they watched a fit time, she went in as before with two maids only, and she was desirous to wash herself in the garden: for it was hot.

[16] And there was no body there save the two elders, that had hid themselves, and watched her.

[17] Then she said to her maids, Bring me oil and washing balls, and shut the garden doors, that I may wash me.

[18] And they did as she bade them, and shut the garden doors, and went out themselves at privy doors to fetch the things that she had commanded them: but they saw not the elders, because they were hid.

[19] Now when the maids were gone forth, the two elders rose up, and ran unto her, saying,

[20] Behold, the garden doors are shut, that no man can see us, and we are in love with thee; therefore consent unto us, and lie with us.

[21] If thou wilt not, we will bear witness against thee, that a young man was with thee: and therefore thou didst send away thy maids from thee.

[22] Then Susanna sighed, and said, I am straitened on every side: for if I do this thing, it is death unto me: and if I do it not I cannot escape your hands.

[23] It is better for me to fall into your hands, and not do it, than to sin in the sight of the Lord.

[24] With that Susanna cried with a loud voice: and the two elders cried out against her.

[25] Then ran the one, and opened the garden door.

[26] So when the servants of the house heard the cry in the garden, they rushed in at the privy door, to see what was done unto her.

[27] But when the elders had declared their matter, the servants were greatly ashamed: for there was never such a report made of Susanna.

[28] And it came to pass the next day, when the people were assembled to her husband Joacim, the two elders came also full of mischievous imagination against Susanna to put her to death;

[29] And said before the people, Send for Susanna, the daughter of Chelcias, Joacim's wife. And so they sent.

[30] So she came with her father and mother, her children, and all her kindred.

[31] Now Susanna was a very delicate woman, and beauteous to behold.

[32] And these wicked men commanded to uncover her face, (for she was covered) that they might be filled with her beauty.

[33] Therefore her friends and all that saw her wept.

[34] Then the two elders stood up in the midst of the people, and laid their hands upon her head.

[35] And she weeping looked up toward heaven: for her heart trusted in the Lord.

[36] And the elders said, As we walked in the garden alone, this woman came in with two maids, and shut the garden doors, and sent the maids away.

[37] Then a young man, who there was hid, came unto her, and lay with her.

[38] Then we that stood in a corner of the garden, seeing this wickedness, ran unto them.

[39] And when we saw them together, the man we could not hold: for he was stronger than we, and opened the door, and leaped out.

[40] But having taken this woman, we asked who the young man was, but she would not tell us: these things do we testify.

[41] Then the assembly believed them as those that were the elders and judges of the people: so they condemned her to death.

[42] Then Susanna cried out with a loud voice, and said, O everlasting God, that knowest the secrets, and knowest all things before they be:

[43] Thou knowest that they have borne false witness against me, and, behold, I must die; whereas I never did such things as these men have [44] And the Lord heard her voice.

[45] Therefore when she was led to be put to death, the Lord raised up the holy spirit of a young youth whose name was Daniel:

Hosea

Chapter 1

[1] The word of the Lord which came to Hosea the son of Beeri, in the days of Ozias, and Joatham, and Achaz, and Ezekias, kings of Juda, and in the days of Jeroboam son of Joas, king of Israel.

[2] The beginning of the word of the Lord by Hosea. And the Lord said to Hosea, Go, take to thyself a wife of fornication, and children of fornication: for the land will surely go a-whoring in departing from the Lord.

[3] So he went and took Gomer, daughter of Debelaim; and she conceived, and bore him a son. [4] And the Lord said to him, Call his name Jezrael; for yet a little while, and I will avenge the blood of Jezrael on the house of Juda, and will make to cease the kingdom of the house of Israel. [5] And it shall be, in that day, that I will break the bow of Israel in the valley of Jezrael.

[6] And she conceived again, and bore a daughter. And he said to him, Call her name, Unpitied: for I will no more have mercy on the house of Israel, but will surely set myself in array against them. [7] But I will have mercy on the house of Juda, and will save them by the Lord their God, and will not save them with bow, nor with sword, nor by war, nor by horses, nor by horsemen.

[8] And she weaned Unpitied; and she conceived again, and bore a son. [9] And he said, Call his name, Not my people: for ye are not my people, and I am not your God. [10] Yet the number of the children of Israel was as the sand of the sea, which shall not be measured nor numbered: and it shall come to pass, that in the place where it was said to them, Ye are not my people, even they shall be called the sons of the living God. [11] And the children of Juda shall be gathered, and the children of Israel together, and shall appoint themselves one head, and shall come up out of the land: for great shall be the day of Jezrael.

Chapter 2

[1] Say to your brother, My people, and to your sister, Pitied. [2] Plead with your mother, plead: for she is not my wife, and I am not her husband: and I will remove her fornication out of my presence, and her adultery from between her breasts: [3] that I may strip her naked, and make her again as she was at the day of her birth: and I will make her desolate, and make her as a dry land, and will kill her with thirst. [4] And I will not have mercy upon her children; for they are children of fornication. [5] And their mother went a-whoring: she that bore them disgraced them: for she said, I will go after my lovers, that give me my bread and my water, and my garments, and my linen clothes, my oil and my necessities.

[6] Therefore, behold, I hedge up her way with thorns, and I will stop the ways, and she shall not find her path. [7] And she shall follow after her lovers, and shall not overtake them; and she shall seek them, but shall not find them: and she shall say, I will go, and return to my former husband; for it was better with me than now.

[8] And she knew not that I gave her her corn, and wine, and oil, and multiplied silver to her: but she made silver and gold images for Baal. [9] Therefore I will return, and take away my corn in its season, and my wine in its time; and I will take away my raiment and my linen clothes, so that she shall not cover her nakedness. [10] And now I will expose her uncleanness before her lovers, and no one shall by any means deliver her out of my hand. [11] And I will take away all her gladness, her feasts, and her festivals at the new moon, and her sabbaths, and all her solemn assemblies. [12] And I will utterly destroy her vines, and her fig-trees, all things of which she said, These are my hire which my lovers have given me: and I will make them a testimony, and the wild beasts of the field, and the birds of the sky, and the reptiles of the earth shall devour them. [13] And I will recompense on her the days of Baalim, wherein she sacrificed to them, and put on her ear-rings, and her necklaces, and went after her lovers, and forgot me, saith the Lord.

[14] Therefore, behold, I will cause her to err, and will make her as desolate, and will speak comfortably to her. [15] And I will give her possessions from thence, and the valley of Achor to open her understanding: and she shall be afflicted there according to the days of her infancy, and according to the days of her coming up out of the land of Egypt.

[16] And it shall come to pass in that day, saith the Lord, that she shall call me, My husband, and shall no longer call me Baalim. [17] And I will take away the names of Baalim out of her mouth, and their names shall be remembered no more at all. [18] And I will make for them in that day a covenant with the wild beasts of the field, and with the birds of the sky, and with the reptiles of the earth: and I will break the bow and the sword and the battle from off the earth, and will cause thee to dwell safely. [19] And I will betroth thee to myself for ever; yea, I will betroth thee to myself in righteousness, and in judgment, and in mercy, and in tender compassions; [20] and I will betroth thee to myself in faithfulness: and thou shalt know the Lord.

[21] And it shall come to pass in that day, saith the Lord, I will hearken to the heaven, and it shall hearken to the earth; [22] and the earth shall hearken to the corn, and the wine, and the oil; and they shall hearken to Jezrael. [23] And I will sow her to me on the earth; and will love her that was not loved, and will say to that which was not my people, Thou art my people; and they shall say, Thou art the Lord my God.

Chapter 3

[1] And the Lord said to me, Go yet, and love a woman that loves evil things, an adulteress, even as the Lord loves the children of Israel, and they have respect to strange gods, and love cakes of dried grapes. [2] So I hired her to myself for fifteen pieces of silver, and a homer of barley, and a flagon of wine. [3] And I said unto her, Thou shalt wait for me many days; and thou shalt not commit fornication, neither shalt thou be for another man; and I will be for thee.

[4] For the children of Israel shall abide many days without a king, and without a prince, and without a sacrifice, and without an altar, and without a priesthood, and without manifestations. [5] And afterward shall the children of Israel return, and shall seek the Lord their God, and David their king; and shall be amazed at the Lord and at his goodness in the latter days.

[1] Hear the word of the Lord, ye children of Israel: for the Lord has a controversy with the inhabitants of the land, because there is no truth, nor mercy, nor knowledge of God in the land. [2] Cursing, and lying, and murder, and theft, and adultery abound in the land, and they mingle blood with blood. [3] Therefore shall the land mourn, and shall be diminished with all that dwell in it, with the wild beasts of the field, and the reptiles of the earth, and with the birds of the sky, and the fish of the sea shall fail: [4] that neither any one may plead, nor any one reprove another; but my people are as a priest spoken against. [5] Therefore they shall fall by day, and the prophet with thee shall fall: I have compared thy mother unto night.

[6] My people are like as if they had no knowledge: because thou hast rejected knowledge, I will also reject thee, that thou shalt not minister as priest to me: and as thou has forgotten the law of thy God, I also will forget thy children. [7] According to their multitude, so they sinned against me: I will turn their glory into shame. [8] They will devour the sins of my people, and will set their hearts on their iniquities. [9] And the priest shall be as the people: and I will avenge on them their ways, and I will recompense to them their counsels. [10] And they shall eat, and shall not be satisfied: they have gone a-whoring, and shall by no means prosper: because they have left off to take heed to the Lord.

[11] The heart of my people has gladly engaged in fornication and wine and strong drink. [12] They asked counsel by means of signs, and they reported answer to them by their staves: they have gone astray in a spirit of whoredom, and gone grievously a-whoring from their God. [13] They have sacrificed on the tops of the mountains, and on the hills they have sacrificed under the oak and poplar, and under the shady tree, because the shade was good: therefore your daughters shall go a-whoring, and your daughters-in-law shall commit adultery. [14] And I will not visit upon your daughters when they shall commit fornication, nor your daughters-in-law when they shall commit adultery: for they themselves mingled themselves with harlots, and sacrificed with polluted ones, and the people that understood not entangled itself with a harlot.

[15] But thou, O Israel, be not ignorant, and go ye not, men of Juda, to Galgala; and go not up to the house of On, and swear not by the living Lord. [16] For Israel was maddened like a mad heifer: now the Lord will feed them as a lamb in a wide place. [17] Ephraim, joined with idols, has laid stumbling-blocks in his own way. [18] He has chosen the Chananites: they have grievously gone a-whoring: they have loved dishonour through her insolence. [19] Thou art a blast of wind in her wings, and they shall be ashamed because of their altars.

Chapter 5

[1] Hear these things, ye priests; and attend, O house of Israel; and hearken, O house of the king; for the controversy is with you, because ye have been a snare in Scopia, and as a net spread on Itabyrium, [2] which they that hunt the prey have fixed: but I will correct you. [3] I know Ephraim, and Israel is not far from me: for now Ephraim has gone grievously a-whoring, Israel is defiled. [4] They have not framed their counsels to return to their God, for the spirit of fornication is in them, and they have not known the Lord.

[5] And the pride of Israel shall be brought low before his face; and Israel and Ephraim shall fall in their iniquities; and Judas also shall fall with them. [6] They shall go with sheep and calves diligently to seek the Lord; but they shall not find him, for he has withdrawn himself from them. [7] For they have forsaken the Lord; for strange children have been born to them: now shall the cankerworm devour them and their heritages.

[8] Blow ye the trumpet on the hills, sound aloud on the heights: proclaim in the house of On, Benjamin is amazed. [9] Ephraim has come to nought in the days of reproof: in the tribes of Israel I have shown faithful dealings. [10] The princes of Juda became as they that removed the bounds: I will pour out upon them my fury as water.

[11] Ephraim altogether prevailed against his adversary, he trod judgment under foot, for he began to go after vanities. [12] Therefore I will be as consternation to Ephraim, and as a goad to the house of Juda. [13] And Ephraim saw his disease, and Judas his pain; then Ephraim went to the Assyrians, and sent ambassadors to king Jarim: but he could not heal you, and your pain shall in nowise cease from you. [14] Wherefore I am as a panther to Ephraim, and as a lion to the house of Juda: and I will tear, and go away; and I will take, and there shall be none to deliver.

[15] I will go and return to my place, until they are brought to nought, and then shall they seek my face.

[1] In their affliction they will seek me early, saying, Let us go, and return to the Lord our God; for he has torn, and will heal us; [2] he will smite, and bind us up. [3] After two days he will heal us: in the third day we shall arise, and live before him, and shall know him: [4] let us follow on to know the Lord: we shall find him ready as the morning, and he will come to us as the early and latter rain to the earth.

[5] What shall I do unto thee, Ephraim? What shall I do to thee, Juda? whereas your mercy is as a morning cloud, and as the early dew that goes away. [6] Therefore have I mown down your prophets; I have slain them with the word of my mouth: and my judgment shall go forth as the light. [7] For I will have mercy rather than sacrifice, and the knowledge of God rather than whole-burnt-offerings. [8] But they are as a man transgressing a covenant: [9] there the city Galaad despised me, working vanity, troubling water. [10] And thy strength is that of a robber: the priests have hid the way, they have murdered the people of Sicima; for they have wrought iniquity in the house of Israel. [11] I have seen horrible things there, even the fornication of Ephraim: Israel and Juda are defiled; [12] begin together grapes for thyself, when I turn the captivity of my people.

Chapter 7

[1] When I have healed Israel, then shall the iniquity of Ephraim be revealed, and the wickedness of Samaria; for they have wrought falsehood: and a thief shall come in to him, even a robber spoiling in his way; [2] that they may concert together as men singing in their heart: I remember all their wickedness: now have their own counsels compassed them about; they came before my face. [3] They gladdened kings with their wickedness, and princes with their lies. [4] They are all adulterers, as an oven glowing with flame for hot-baking, on account of the kneading of the dough, until it is leavened. [5] In the days of our kings, the princes began to be inflamed with wine: he stretched out his hand with pestilent fellows. [6] Wherefore their hearts are inflamed as an oven, while they rage all the night: Ephraim is satisfied with sleep; the morning is come; he is burnt up as a flame of fire. [7] They are all heated like an oven, and have devoured their judges: all their kings are fallen; there was not among them one that called on me.

[8] Ephraim is mixed among his people; Ephraim became a cake not turned. [9] Strangers devoured his strength, and he knew it not; and grey hairs came upon him, and he knew it not. [10] And the pride of Israel shall be brought down before his face: yet they have not returned to the Lord their God, neither have they diligently sought him for all this.

[11] And Ephraim was as a silly dove, not having a heart: he called to Egypt, and they went to the Assyrians. [12] Whenever they shall go, I will cast my net upon them; I will bring them down as the birds of the sky, I will chasten them with the rumor of their coming affliction.

[13] Woe to them! for they have started aside from me: they are cowards; for they have sinned against me: yet I redeemed them, but they spoke falsehoods against me. [14] And their hearts did not cry to me, but they howled on their beds: they pined for oil and wine. [15] They were instructed by me, and I strengthened their arms; and they devised evils against me. [16] They turned aside to that which is not, they became as a bent bow: their princes shall fall by the sword, by reason of the unbridled state of their tongue: this is their setting at nought in the land of Egypt.

Chapter 8

[1] He shall come into their midst as the land, as an eagle against the house of the Lord, because they have transgressed my covenant, and have sinned against my law. [2] They shall soon cry out to me, saying, O God, we know thee. [3] For Israel has turned away from good things; they have pursued an enemy. [4] They have made kings for themselves, but not by me: they have ruled, but they did not make it known to me: of their silver and their gold they have made images to themselves, that they might be destroyed.

[5] Cast off thy calf, O Samaria; mine anger is kindled against them: how long will they be unable to purge themselves in Israel? [6] Whereas the workman made it, and it is not God; wherefore thy calf, Samaria, was a deceiver: [7] for they sowed blighted seed, and their destruction shall await them, a sheaf of corn that avails not to make meal; and even if it should produce it, strangers shall devour it. [8] Israel is swallowed up: now is he become among the nations as a worthless vessel. [9] For they have gone up to the Assyrians: Ephraim has been strengthened against himself; they loved gifts. [10] Therefore shall they be delivered to the nations: now I will receive them, and they shall cease a little to anoint a king and princes.

[11] Because Ephraim has multiplied altars, his beloved altars are become sins to him. [12] I will write down a multitude of commands for him; but his statutes are accounted strange things, even the beloved altars. [13] For if they should offer a sacrifice, and eat flesh, the lord will not accept them: now will he remember their iniquities, and will take vengeance on their sins: they have returned to Egypt, and they shall eat unclean things among the Assyrians. [14] And Israel has forgotten him that made him, and they have built fanes, and Juda has multiplied walled cities: but I will send fire on his cities, and it shall devour their foundations.

Chapter 9

[1] Rejoice not, O Israel, neither make merry, as other nations: for thou hast gone a-whoring from thy God; thou hast loved gifts upon every threshing-floor. [2] The threshing-floor and wine-press knew them not, and the wine disappointed them. [3] They dwelt not in the Lord's land: Ephraim dwelt in Egypt, and they shall eat unclean things among the Assyrians. [4] They have not offered wine to the Lord, neither have their sacrifices been sweet to him, but as the bread of mourning to them; all that eat them shall be defiled; for their bread for their soul shall not enter into the house of the Lord.

[5] What will ye do in the day of the general assembly, and in the day of the feast of the Lord? [6] Therefore, behold, they go forth from the trouble of Egypt, and Memphis shall receive them, and Machmas shall bury them: as for their silver, destruction shall inherit it; thorns shall be in their tents.

[7] The days of vengeance are come, the days of thy recompense are come; and Israel shall be afflicted as the prophet that is mad, as a man deranged: by reason of the multitude of thine iniquities thy madness has abounded. [8] The watchman of Ephraim was with God: the prophet is a crooked snare in all his ways: they have established madness in the house of God. [9] They have corrupted themselves according to the days of the hill: he will remember their iniquities, he will take vengeance on their sins.

[10] I found Israel as grapes in the wilderness, and I saw their fathers as an early watchman in a fig-tree: they went in to Beel-phegor, and were shamefully estranged, and the abominable became as the beloved. [11] Ephraim has flown away as a bird; their glories from the birth, and the travail, and the conception. [12] For even if they should rear their children, yet shall they be utterly bereaved: wherefore also there is woe to them, though my flesh is of them. [13] Ephraim, even as I saw, gave their children for a prey; yea, Ephraim was ready to bring out his children to slaughter.

[14] Give them, O Lord: what wilt thou give them? a miscarrying womb, and dry breasts. [15] All their wickedness is in Galgal: for there I hated them: because of the wickedness of their practices, I will cast them out of my house, I will not love them any more: all their princes are disobedient. [16] Ephraim is sick, he is dried up at his roots, he shall in no wise any more bear fruit: wherefore even if they should beget children, I will kill the desired fruit of their womb. [17] God shall reject them, because they have not hearkened to him: and they shall be wanderers among the nations.

Chapter 10

[1] Israel is a vine with goodly branches, her fruit is abundant: according to the multitude of her fruits she has multiplied her altars; according to the wealth of his land, he has set up pillars. [2] They have divided their hearts; now shall they be utterly destroyed: he shall dig down their altars, their pillars shall mourn.
